Cases Involving School Personnel

When a physical assault occurs, the employee, while acting within the scope of his duties, has the right to defend himself and/or obtain assistance.

The principal should be immediately notified to call parents, the Director of Schools, his designee, and if appropriate under the circumstances, the police.

The Board shall fully support the school employee assaulted as outlined in the Board's Professional Personnel Protection Policy.

A student who physically assaults a staff member will be immediately suspended by the principal, pending full investigation. Upon recommendation of the Director of Schools, the Board may expel the student.

Right to be accompanied by association representative at private reprimand or grievance sessions; proposal for study of potential of differentiated staffing; free admission to athletic events involving the teacher's school, with tournament play ticket of any teacher assigned duties at the tournament site paid for by the board; professional council to study, discuss, and make recommendations concerning matters related to the education of students, teacher welfare, and mutually agreeable subject areas related to education; efforts to maintain racial balance to be maintained.

PRELIMINARY REPORT SHOWS MODERATE INCREASES IN TEACHER SALARIES[1]

Average annual scheduled salaries for teachers will show a slight increase for 1972-73 if preliminary results of the NEA Research salary survey hold constant. The data are gathered from school systems with enrollments of 6,000 or more pupils.

Mean scheduled salaries from 1962-63 through 1972-73 for teachers with bachelor's and master's degree together with annual increases are given in Table 1. Average and median scheduled salaries for beginning teachers by geographic region are given in Table 2. As in prior surveys, the Mideast is maintaining leadership in starting salaries, and the Southeast is surpassing the averages for the Southwest and Rocky Mountain regions.

The final data will be published as a Research Report which will comprise summary tables for all major preparation levels, a minimum of explanatory text material, and a system-by-system listing of reporting systems with enrollments of 6,000 or more. Summary tabulations for systems with enrollments of 1,200 to 5,999 will also be included, but there will be no system-by-system listing for the smaller systems since information for this group of districts is obtained from a random sample.

In addition to scheduled salary data for 1972-73, the final report will contain information on salaries actually paid in 1971-72, and information on leave and insurance practices for most of the approximately 1,180 systems with enrollments of 6,000 or more which furnished salary information.

[1] National Education Association, Research Memo 1972-19, November 1972.

TABLE 1.–COMPARISON OF MEAN SCHEDULED SALARIES, 1962-63 THROUGH 1972-73, REPORTING SYSTEMS WITH ENROLLMENTS OF 6,000 OR MORE

		Bachelor's degree				Master's degree
		Minimum		Maximum		Minimum		Maximum
School year	Number of reporting systems	Mean scheduled salary	Percent increase over previous year	Mean scheduled salary	Percent increase over previous year	Mean scheduled salary	Percent increase over previous year	Mean scheduled salary	Percent increase over previous year
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
1962-63 ..	557	$4,331	...	$ 6,426	...	$4,680	...	$ 7,054	...
1963-64 ..	918	4,564	5.4	6,744	4.9	4,946	5.7	7,487	6.1
1964-65 ..	1,063	4,707	3.1	6,937	2.9	5,085	2.8	7,723	3.2
1965-66 ..	1,071	4,925	4.6	7,262	4.7	5,350	5.2	8,167	5.7
1966-67 ..	1,104	5,144	4.4	7,590	4.5	5,600	4.7	8,578	5.0
1967-68 ..	1,080	5,522	7.3	8,133	7.2	6,043	7.9	9,248	7.8
1968-69 ..	1,199	5,941	7.6	8,690	6.8	6,546	8.3	9,981	7.9
1969-70 ..	1,142	6,383	7.4	9,278	6.8	7,058	7.8	10,717	7.4
1970-71 ..	1,176	6,850	7.3	10,012	7.9	7,599	7.7	11,630	8.5
1971-72 ..	1,179	7,061	3.1	10,299	2.9	7,837	3.1	11,973	2.9
1972-73[a] .	1,137	7,306	3.5	10,651	3.4	8,127	3.7	12,455	4.0

[a]Preliminary data.

TABLE 2.–MEAN AND MEDIAN SCHEDULED SALARIES FOR BEGINNING TEACHERS WITH A BACHELOR'S DEGREE, 1972-73, BY GEOGRAPHIC REGION (Preliminary data)

Region[a]	Number of reporting systems	Beginning salary for bachelor's degree
		Mean	Median	Range
				Low	High
1	2	3	4	5	6
New England	73	$7,752	$7,718	$6,600	$ 8,875
Mideast	174	8,080	7,950	6,600	9,500
Southeast	327	6,750	6,732	5,644	8,008
Great Lakes	189	7,720	7,630	6,200	9,405
Plains	77	7,159	7,200	6,275	7,725
Southwest	89	6,720	6,660	6,000	7,600
Rocky Mountain	34	6,663	6,775	5,800	7,850
Far West	174	7,430	7,400	6,250	10,500
Total, all regions	1,137	$7,306	$7,245	$5,644	$10,500

[a]NEW ENGLAND: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, MIDEAST: Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania. SOUTHEAST: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia. GREAT LAKES: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin. PLAINS: Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota. SOUTHWEST: Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas. ROCKY MOUNTAIN: Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Wyoming. FAR WEST: Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Washington.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS OUTSTANDING NEA REFERENCE WORK?

COMPREHENSIVE NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT PROVISIONS
1972 Edition

PART I	- Scope of Agreement and Association, Board and Teacher Rights Provisions
PART II	- Joint Committees, Instructional, Educational and Teacher Assignment and Work-Load Provisions
PART III	- Grievance Procedures, Personnel and Salary Provisions
PART IV	- Group Insurance, Leaves of Absence and Fringe Benefit Provisions

This four-part document prepared by NEA Research is an invaluable source of negotiated items in teacher/board agreements. In 1,418 pages it analyzes over 1,500 negotiated agreements in U.S. public school systems. Over 300 negotiable items are identified and coded system-by-system. (Specific content of the provisions may be obtained on request by using the Information Request Forms provided in each volume.)

REPRESENTATION INFORMATION

- State
- Name of school system
- Location of school system
- Name of recognized organization
- National affiliation of recognized organization
- Number of professional personnel represented
- Type of agreement
- Term of comprehensive agreement
- Agreement page number for particular provision

PROVISION ANALYSIS

- 200 provision titles
- Detailed analysis coded for 300 variables:
  - Negotiation impasse: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Jt. administrator-teacher committees
  - Grievance arbitration: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Bench marks in salary schedules: 1-, 2-, or 3-year agreements
  - Group insurance: part or full premium paid by board
  - 21 short-term leaves identified

. . . . . .

Please send:

_____ $10./set. (4 parts per set)
(qty.) Stock No. 388-11940.

_____ Special price ONLY for NEA state
(qty.) and local associations: $25./set.
Stock No. 388-11938.

Check one below:

_____ Payment enclosed. Make checks payable to NEA.
_____ Bill on purchase order attached.

Mail to:

NEA PUBLICATION-SALES SECTION 192
1201 Sixteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20036

_____
Name

_____
Organization

_____
Address

_____
City/State/ZIP

NRD

VOL. 6 NO. 7
MAR. 1973

NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

	Page
Case Reviews	3
Recognition Picketing Enjoined
Appellate Rejects Teachers' Pay for Day on Strike
Court Issues Injunction Restraining Union From Illegally Striking
Taylor Law Requires Arbitration of Contract Retroactivity Dispute
School Board Has Sole Authority to Grant Sabbatical Leave
Remedial Process Must Be Exhausted Unless "Irreperable Injury" Can Be Proven By Continuance PLRB Agency Shop Decision Overturned
A Hearing to Determine Effects Must Precede Issuance of Strike Injunction
Court Reaffirms WERC Ruling and Orders City to Recognize Bargaining Unit Without Holding Election
Board Findings and Rulings	7
Board Asserts Its Jurisdiction Over Contract Interpretation
Negotiable Items and Unfair Labor Practice Charges
Subcontracting Negotiable; Unfair Practices Charges Dismissed Because Employer Did Negotiate
Aid to Employees' Committee Not Employer Domination
Adjunct Professors Eligible to Vote In Representation Election
Certain Supervisors Not Excluded From Bargaining Unit
Negotiation Notes	10
Court Upholds Duty-Free Lunch Period
New York City Dentists Unionize
PERB Issues First Rules and Regulations Covering State and Higher Education Employees
Attorney General Opinion: State Board of Education's Authority to Negotiate with Teachers' Association
Consumer Price Index, Real Earnings, December 1972
Statistics	12
Negotiated Dismissal Procedure Provisions in Classroom Teacher Agreements
Special Reports	15
Integration Provisions in Teacher/Board Agreements
Briefs of Recent Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2430

CASE REVIEWS

ARIZONA

Recognition Picketing Enjoined

The Arizona Court of Appeals upheld a trial court's injunction against recognition picketing by Local 8519, Communication Workers of America (CWA), in its effort to legally compel the state Board of Regents to recognize the union as the bargaining agent for physical plant employees at Northern Arizona University.

The CWA had signed up a majority of the employees and had requested recognition and bargaining talks, both of which were denied. The Board secured a permanent injunction against the ensuing strike.

The union argued that the Board of Regents acts in a proprietary, not a governmental, capacity and therefore constitutes a municipal corporation empowered to enter into collective bargaining agreements.

The Board of Regents, according to the court, is a governmental unit which is prohibited from recognizing or entering into any agreement which would limit or deprive it of its statutory authority. Further, the law upholding the right to strike is applicable only to proprietary businesses, not to governmental units exercising a governmental function. On the basis of these determinations, the court stated that though picketing is recognized as a protected activity, it may be enjoined when it is conducted for an unlawful purpose, and confirmed the lower court's decision enjoining the strike.

The court ruled that unions do not have the right to legally compel recognition, but neither is there a prohibition on the Board of Regents against recognizing or bargaining with a union. The court inferred a prohibition against entering into contracts, but refrained from expressing an opinion as to whether the Board of Regents could agree to confer with a union. (Communication Workers of America, et al. v. Arizona Board of Regents, Arizona Court of Appeals, Division 1, June 26, 1972.)

ILLINOIS

Appellate Rejects Teachers' Pay For Day On Strike

The Illinois Appellate Court reversed a decision of the Cook County Circuit Court, and ruled that striking teachers were not entitled to pay for strike days. The suit was appealed to the high court by the Illinois Education Association against the Cook County High School District #218.

The school district and the association had not yet reached an agreement for the 1969-70 school year, although teachers had signed individual contracts and the school district had adopted a schedule providing for a teachers' workshop on August 29, and a September 2 opening of schools. The association informed the school district on August 29 that teachers would withhold their services as of that date, pending the signing of an agreement; subsequently many teachers did not attend the workshop, and picketed the schools on September 2. The school district filed a complaint for a permanent injunction on September 2. The trial judge was able to get the parties to agree to continue negotiations, and the teachers consented to return to work on September 4. The court order provided that there would be no reprisals against striking teachers if they returned to school by September 4; however, teachers would not be paid for services not rendered. Accordingly, the school district paid the salaries of teachers who had attended the workshop and the first day of school, withholding salaries from teachers who had struck. The lower court found that striking teachers were required to be in court on September 2 to answer the complaint for an injunction, that the teachers had the right to defend their strike, and that September 2 was not a school day. The school district was ordered to pay teachers for September 2, but not for August 29. The district subsequently appealed the lower court's decision.

According to the appellate court, Illinois public employees have no inherent right to strike, therefore, the circuit court erred in ordering the payment of teachers who struck on September 2. The court of appeals further pointed out that the agreement signed by the two parties stated that "defendant teachers shall not be paid for services not rendered" and teachers who did not work on September 2 were not entitled to salaries. (Community High School District #218 v. Barbara Falk et al, Illinois Appellate Court, November 2, 1972.

NEW YORK

Court Issues Injunction Restraining Union From Illegally Striking

The New York Supreme Court granted the Board of Education of Oyster Bay a preliminary injunction to restrain the Plainview-Old Bethpage Federation of Teachers, Local 1401, from "illegally" striking.

The union cross-moved for an order to set aside a Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) fact-finder's report and for an order to direct the board of education to enter into meaningful collective bargaining. Additionally, the union contended that the board of education was not entitled to injunctive relief because it had not bargained in good faith.

The court held that whether or not the fact finder's report was legal and whether or not PERB followed proper procedure after the board of education had declared an impasse had no bearing on the right of the board of education to a preliminary injunction. The court could find no basis for directing the board of education to enter into meaningful collective bargaining.

The court ruled that the strike was illegal and enjoined the union "from engaging in, instigating, continuing, encouraging or condoning any strike or stoppage of work or slowdown in the performance of their duties as public employees of plaintiff." (Board of Education, Central School District No. 4, Town of Oyster Bay, Plaintiff v. Plainview-Old Bethpage Federation of Teachers, Local 1401, AFL-CIO, Defendant, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, September 15, 1972.)

Taylor Law Requires Arbitration of Contract Retroactivity Dispute

The New York Supreme Court denied a school board's petition to stay arbitration of a grievance resulting from refusal to credit a teacher with experience increments earned as a substitute teacher before her 1967 full-time hire date.

The agreement between the Great Neck Teachers Association and the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 7, provided for the submission of grievances within 60 days "after the teacher knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance was based." Evidence indicated that the teacher had initiated grievance proceedings within one month of her knowledge of the grievance. The negotiated grievance proceedings, the court said, were binding under the Taylor Law, which, in this case, superseded section 3813 of the Education Law which stipulates that any claim against a school board be filed within three months of occurrence. The court rejected the board's contention that the grievability of experience-credit denial had expired within three months of the teacher's hire-date. The court particularly noted that the board was for the first time seeking to avail itself of the procedural limitations and verification claims specified in section 3813. Further, the board had agreed to the time limit provisions included in the grievance procedure which substitutes for the statutory limitations.

However, the court determined that the issue was that of contract retroactivity since no negotiated exclusion from arbitration of pre-existing disputes existed. The court determined that retroactivity was a matter of contract interpretation, a decision best left to the purview of an arbitrator. Accordingly, the court denied the board's petition to stay arbitration.

In conclusion, the court cautioned that all collective bargaining agreements do not automatically waive section 3813 of the Education Law or other legal time limits, but only in this particular case did the Taylor Law's authority prevail. (Board of Education Union Free School District No. 7, Town of North Hempstead v. Great Neck Teachers Association, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, May 18, 1972.)

School Board Has Sole Authority to Grant Sabbatical Leave

The New York Supreme Court ruled that the granting of sabbatical leave is the prerogative of the board of education, and the superintendent's recommendation of teachers for sabbatical leave does not establish a contractual right to sabbatical leave. The Plainedge Federation of Teachers (PFT) sought a judgment under Article 78 of the Civil Practices Laws and Regulations (CPLR), directing the board to grant to seven teachers sabbatical leave which had been approved by the superintendent.

The teachers' suit contended that the board was required to grant sabbatical leave to teachers recommended by the superintendent in accordance with the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement between the board and the PFT.

The board argued that a proceeding under Article 78 of the Civil Practices Laws and Regulations "is not a proper vehicle for the enforcement of an employment contract." The court agreed with the board's contention, but since the parties were before the court, the improper form was overlooked and the case was treated as an action for declaratory judgment rather than as an order of mandamus, the proper remedy for violations of legally imposed duties.

The court ruled that according to the bargaining agreement teachers had "no right to sabbatical leave and that the granting of such is solely within the discretion of respondent." Accordingly, the court ruled that the board has the right under the contract to reject requests for sabbatical leave. (Ewen v. Board of Education of Union Free School District 18, Plainedge, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, June 10, 1972.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Remedial Process Must Be Exhausted Unless "Irreparable Injury" Can Be Proven By Continuance

The Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas dismissed the Bristol Township Education Association's petition requesting that the Bristol Township Board of School Directors be enjoined from extending teachers' recess supervision duties even though arbitration proceedings to determine whether the board's actions violated the parties' contract were in process.

The association and the school board had negotiated a collective bargaining agreement containing a grievance procedure ending in binding arbitration. The association alleged that the school board's extension of the teachers' recess duties was a contract violation, and that the inherent delays through the negotiated grievance procedure would nullify their rights because the "exhaustion of remedies" culminating in arbitration would take the remainder of the school year. The association contended that by the time a final arbitration decision would be reached, the question would be moot, and teachers would be compelled to obey a possible violative board order.

The board pointed out that an arbitration decision favorable to teachers would require the board to compensate teachers for the extra duty. The association argued that the extra-duty compensation would not be sufficient to remedy the situation, but more important, the extension of the teachers' extra-duties would result in a less effective multi-level education program which was newly instituted in the district. The board held that the agreement provision for 200 minutes of weekly preparation time per teacher had been adhered to, and was sufficient to maintain the quality of the education program. The board sought dismissal of the association's complaint on the basis that teachers failed to exhaust all remedies under the grievance procedure, that under the Public Employee Relations Act the Court of Common Pleas could not assume jurisdiction in the case, and that the teachers had an adequate remedy at law.

The court found that the issue at hand was whether the delay of exhausting the remedy of the arbitration procedure to determine if the contract had been violated would cause irreparable damage. The court's jurisdiction in the case was affirmed by a citation from a previous court decision which stated that the Court of Common Pleas could assume jurisdiction in cases "where the requirements of exhaustion of remedies would subject a member to an injury that is in a practical sense irreparable." The court then considered whether teachers suffered irreparable injury without an adequate remedy at law.

Reviewing the association's contention that the extension of the teachers' recess supervision duties resulted in the "derogation of the quality of programs within the school district," the court found that the quality of a school district's education program was a matter of policy determination for the board. Since the association believed that the negotiated 200-minute weekly preparation period was inadequate to maintain the effectiveness and quality of the education program, the association should induce the board to change its policy as to the quality of the program during the renegotiation of the parties' agreement. The association's plea for an injunction against the change in duties prior to an arbitrator's decision was rejected. (Bristol Township Education Association v. Bristol Township Board of School Directors, Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas, April 28, 1972.)

PLRB Agency Shop Decision Overturned

Pennsylvania's Court of Common Pleas overturned a state labor relations board decision which made it mandatory for a Pennsylvania State University laboratory technician who did not want to join the Teamsters Local 8, to pay union fees. The first contract negotiated between the parties contained a union shop provision under which nonunion members were required to pay union initiation fees and dues as a condition of employment. The grievant was not required to pay union fees at that time. But, when the agreement was renewed the grievant was required to pay dues or face dismissal.

The grievant argued that she should not pay union dues since she was not a union member.

The union contended that its action was legal in accordance with Section 904 of the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA) which states that "any provisions of any collective bargaining agreement in existence on January 1, 1970, which is inconsistent with any provision of this act but not otherwise illegal shall continue valid until the expiration of such contract. The parties to such agreements may continue voluntarily to bargain on any such items after the expiration date of any such agreement for so long as these items remain in any future agreement."

The court held that even though the section allows bargaining on illegal or forbidden practices, this does not give the parties the right to enlarge upon these practices or to include employees not previously covered, and in the instant case, the grievant was not included or bound by agency shop when it was legal. Further noting that "under a permissible maintenance of membership agreement union members have the right to resign membership within 15 days at the end of the bargaining agreement," the court held that it "cannot conceive of an interpretation of 904 which would lock in a nonunion employee forever in a situation not permitted by or inconsistent with the maximum union security provisions as now set forth in the act."

The court ordered the union to return the $40 in dues which the grievant had paid and to cease collecting fees from her in lieu of dues.. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board vs. Teamsters Local 8 et al., Court of Common Pleas of Centre County, August 4, 1972.)

RHODE ISLAND

A Hearing To Determine Effects Must Precede Issuance of Strike Injunction

The Rhode Island Supreme Court ruled that teacher strikes cannot be enjoined without a notice to the adverse party and an open hearing to determine whether the work stoppage would have "an adverse effect on public health, safety and welfare."

The case involved the Westerly School Committee and the Westerly Teachers Association who were at impasse in renegotiating salaries for the 1972-73 school year. The impasse was not resolved by the first day of the school year, and the teachers did not report for work. At the request of the school committee, the Superior Court issued a temporary restraining order enjoining the strike and ordering the teachers back to work.

The teachers association appealed the lower court's ruling to the Supreme Court, requesting a writ of certiorari and a stay of the lower court's order. On the basis of the frequency of teacher strikes in recent times and the controversy over a previous ruling prohibiting public employees strikes, the Supreme Court agreed to review the lower court's decision although it refused to grant a stay of the lower court's order. Following the teacher association's appeal of the decision, the strike ended.

The Supreme Court upheld its previous ruling that public employee strikes were illegal and subject to being enjoined. According to the court, public employees had no constitutional right to strike; the "need of preventing government paralysis justified the "no-strike" distinction between public and private sectors. In answer to the teacher association's contention that teachers were justified in striking because collective bargaining legislation was silent on this matter, the court held that this departure of the legislature from common law could not be assumed, but must be specified. Similarly, the association's contention that teachers were covered by an anti-injunction statute was rejected because no legislative action specified coverage of teachers. Restricting the court's authority to enjoin a labor dispute did not mean that every public employee strike should automatically be enjoined. According to law, no temporary restraining order could be issued without advance notice to the adverse party unless it appeared that irreparable harm would result before a notice could be served and a hearing held. Considering the flexibility of the school calendar, the failure of schools to open on schedule was not "a catastrophic event," held the court; furthermore ex parte relief in teacher-school board disputes could make the court "an unwitting third party at the collective bargaining table and a potential coercive force in the collective bargaining process."

In conclusion, referring to a previous Michigan court case, the majority opinion of the court held that before a trial court enjoins a teacher strike a hearing must be held to review the dispute and to determine whether an injunction should be issued. Accordingly, the court quashed the temporary restraining order.

The court's minority opinion, espousing a stronger view, held that public employees should have the same right to strike that private employees have, but in a situation where strikes would have "an adverse effect on the public health, safety or welfare," they should be enjoined. (School Committee of Westerly v. Westerly Teachers Association, Rhode Island Supreme Court, January 31, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Court Reaffirms WERC Ruling and Orders City to Recognize Bargaining Unit Without Holding Election

A Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) ruling which ordered the City of Evansville to recognize Teamsters, Local 579, as the bargaining representative of the city's employees without an election was upheld by the court. The WERC determined that the city had engaged in a coercive campaign against the union, thereby interferring with employees' rights to organize through intimidation and ordered the city to recognize the union and proceed with negotiations, whereupon the city sought relief in the courts.

The city contended that evidence did not establish that it had violated the Municipal Employee Relations Act (MERA), that the remedy ordered by WERC deprived employees of the right to vote on whether they want a union and on what kind of union they want, and that the Commission's remedy was too drastic.

After studying the transcript of testimony and the documents submitted at the Commission's hearing, the court found that the employer had tended to coerce and intimidate its employees in order to discourage unionization. The court upheld the Commission's remedy on the grounds that the MERA allows the Commission to direct a city to do anything that the city could have done voluntarily. In the instant case, the city could have voluntarily recognized the union as being the representative of its employees. Additionally, the court agreed with the Commission's conclusion that an election to determine the employees bargaining representative "after such unlawful acts had occurred, would permit the city to take advantage of its own misconduct."

The court ordered that the Commission's decision and order be enforced. (Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, Petitioner v. City of Evansville, Respondent, Wisconsin Circuit Court, Rock County, May 22, 1972.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

CONNECTICUT

Board Asserts Its Jurisdiction Over Contract Interpretation

In three separate decisions, the Connecticut State Board of Labor Relations (CSBLR) supported the union's request that the employer negotiate at reasonable times during the workday, affirmed its jurisdiction in disputes involving contract interpretation, and rejected jurisdiction over cases involving the disciplining of an employee for matters not related to union activity.

- The first case involved negotiation of a new collective bargaining agreement between the Town of Wallingford and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 1020. The town refused the union's request to hold negotiations during morning working hours.

The Board found that all of the town's negotiators were available in the morning, that the parties' existing contract provided time off for negotiations during work hours, and that past negotiations had been held in the morning. The Board concluded that the town's refusal to bargain at reasonable times constituted a prohibited practice under the Municipal Employee Relations Act (MERA). (Town of Wallingford and International Brotherhood Workers, Local 1020, Connecticut State Board of Labor Relations, September 14, 1972.)

- The Board affirmed its jurisdiction in a dispute over interpretation of the contract between the City of Bridgeport and the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Local 1522. The matter involved the extension of summer working hours, which the city contended it had a right to change on its interpretation of the parties' negotiated contract. The city contended that the Board had no jurisdiction in the matter because disputes of this nature were subject to the negotiated arbitration procedure.

The Board cited court decisions which held as secondary any contract interpretation of an unfair labor practice. The court decisions supported a Board interpretation of dispute resolution under the MERA and stated that "neither the presence of a problem of contract interpretation nor the presence of an arbitration provision deprives the Board of jurisdiction." Accordingly, the Board rejected the city's petition to dismiss the union's complaint for want of jurisdiction. (City of Bridgeport and the American Federation Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Local 1522, Connecticut State Board of Labor Relations, October 2, 1972.)

- A union member of the New Milford Police Department appealed the department's disciplining him for alleged abuse of sick leave.

The grievant contended that the department's action was prompted by his union activity, and therefore a prohibited practice under the MERA. The Board found that the employee had been disciplined for his invalid use of sick leave, and not for union activity, that working conditions had not changed, and that the employee had never filed a grievance. Accordingly, the disciplinary action was not a prohibited practice under the MERA, and the Board denied its jurisdiction in the matter. (Town of New Milford and Peter Rock, Connecticut State Board of Labor Relations, August 31, 1972.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Negotiable Items and Unfair Labor Practice Charges

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB), ruling on four cases, further defined the scope of bargaining and the duty to bargain as applied to negotiation of public employee contracts.

- Issuing a final order, PLRB reaffirmed a previous ruling on the negotiability of extracurricular compensation. The Board ordered the Kiski Area School Board to bargain with the teachers' association, as a failure to do so would constitute an unfair labor practice. Precedent for PLRB's decision was derived from Matter of Cannon-McMillan, in which the Board ruled that a failure to negotiate extracurricular pay constituted an unfair labor practice. (PLRB v. Board of School Directors of Kiski Area School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 8, 1972.)

- PLRB sustained the Conemaugh Valley Education Association's claim that the school district engaged in an unfair labor practice by unilaterally discontinuing hospitalization and surgical benefits coverage for its members while maintaining coverage for administrative, supervisory, and nonprofessional employees.

The termination occurred during negotiation sessions between the lapse of the old contract and the effectuation of a new contract. PLRB found this act to be clearly discriminatory, and ordered the school board to cease such actions and to reimburse the affected employees in an amount equal to the coverage they paid in the interim. (PLRB v. Conemaugh Valley School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 28, 1972.)

- A second suit before PLRB against the Conemaugh Valley School District was an unfair labor practice charge in which the association alleged that the school district refused to rehire particular summer school reading teachers because of their association membership.

The Board ruled in favor of the district, having determined that its summer hiring process was rotational and the complainants were not hired because they had worked the previous summer. (PLRB v. Conemaugh Valley School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 28, 1972.)

• In charges brought by the Nazareth Area School District against the Nazareth Area Education Association, PLRB found that the association refused to bargain in good faith when it continued to propose negotiation of teacher preparation time which the school district contended was a management prerogative. According to the Board, teacher preparation time was an item of managerial policy, and therefore, not subject to negotiation.

Under the Pennsylvania Employee Relations Act, employers are not required to bargain over matters of inherent managerial policy, i.e., matters which are firmly fixed, essential to the employer, and not open to surrender when specifically prohibited by statute. The Public School Code grants school districts the power to adopt rules and regulations concerning the management of school affairs and the conduct and deportment of teachers, including the right to allocate teachers' time. The labor board concluded that teacher preparation time was not a subject for negotiation. The teacher assocaition had refused to bargain in good faith by proposing a contract provision on the subject. (PLRB v. Nazareth Area Education Association, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, August 10, 1972.)

• A later exception to the PLRB's ruling on the nonnegotiability of teacher preparation time was filed by the Nazareth Area Education Association. The Board ruled that the association's insistence on continuing to negotiate a nonnegotiable item constituted bargaining in bad faith, which for legal purposes is the same as refusing to bargain in good faith. The PLRB explained that the PERA which requires parties to bargain in good faith also prohibits a party from continuing to bargain in bad faith on a nonbargainable issue. (PLRB v. Nazareth Area Education Association, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, November 20, 1972.)

Subcontracting Negotiable; Unfair Practices Charges Dismissed Because Employer Did Negotiate

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board dismissed the charges of the Employees Committee of the Wilkinsburg Sanitation Department that the Borough of Wilkinsburg had engaged in unfair labor practices by refusing to bargain with the committee and contracting the borough's rubbish collection service to a private firm.

The committee was the certified bargaining representative of sanitation department employees and had negotiated a collective bargaining agreement with the borough that expired on December 31, 1971. The two parties held 10 joint negotiating sessions from December 1971 to March 1972, yet did not reach an agreement. At one meeting, the borough informed the committee that because of economic reasons, it was investigating the possibility of engaging a private contractor for its rubbish collection. Both parties discussed the cost problems involved.

Subsequently the borough solicited bids from private contractors and suggested that the committee draw up a contract proposal with a cost somewhere between the two lowest private bids. The parties discussed bids received and the borough admitted that it was seriously considering awarding the contract to a private firm. At this time the committee and the borough also discussed the transfers of some senior sanitation workers in the event that the work was subcontracted.

The committee's final contract proposal was $314,000 a year compared with a private firm's bid to do the work for $234,000. The borough awarded the contract to the private company. The committee filed a petition with the PLRB alleging that the borough had illegally fired the sanitation workers by contracting with a private firm to perform work of bargaining unit employees. The borough held that its decision was based on economic considerations after failing to reach a new agreement with good faith bargaining.

The PLRB cited a previous Supreme Court decision, Fibreboard Paper Products Corp v. NLRB, which stated that under the National Labor Relations Act subcontracting work previously done by bargaining unit employees required employers and employees to bargain collectively on the subject. The Board held that as early as January 7, during the negotiating sessions, the committee was fully aware that the borough was considering subcontracting its rubbish collection service. According to PLRB, the borough's actions were motivated solely by economic considerations, with no evidence of anti-committee discrimination. The borough had informed the committee of its intention to subcontract, and gave the committee the opportunity to offer contract proposals. In conclusion, PLRB stated that the borough had used "the proper method of submitting a mandatory subject of collective bargaining to the mediatory influence of negotiation," and dismissed the committee's charges of unfair labor practice. (PLRB v. Borough of Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, September 28, 1972.)

FEDERAL

Aid to Employees' Committee Not Employer Domination

The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) upheld a complaint brought by the General Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers, Local 249, against Duquesne University, charging that the university had unlawfully assisted an employee committee for the purpose of dominating the committee and had granted an unusually large wage increase to employees to delay unionism.

The university contended that "the employees' committee was no different than numerous other committees on the campus that were supported and assisted by it."

The trial examiner determined that the university had unlawfully assisted and dominated the committee, pointing out that the structure of the committee was such that the university could easily dominate it by exercising its managerial power to transfer, promote, or discharge elected employee representatives. Also, the personnel director's recommendation of a lawyer to the committee when the union began its campaign exemplified the university's dominance over the committee. The examiner found that it was unlikely that the university granted the large wage increase to curb unionism since the issue of unionism affected only 200 employees out of the 2,000 who received increases. Ruling that the committee was employer dominated, the examiner ordered that the committee be disestablished.

The NLRB agreed with the trial examiner's findings that the university unlawfully assisted and supported the committee. The Board cited several examples where university officials acted as advisors and counselors to the committee, acts considered unwarranted interference with the internal affairs of the committee and constituting a violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Referring to the university's history of helping organizations, the NRLB said it disagreed with the examiner's finding that the university dominated the committee, and did not order its dissolution. However, "in view of a finding that the university did unlawfully assist the union, it is ordered that the university withdraw and withhold recognition of the committee until it is certified as the bargaining representative of nonexempt employees in an appropriate unit." Additionally, the Board ordered the university to stop giving financial support and to refrain from acting in an advisory capacity to the committee. (Duquesne University of the Holy Ghost and General Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers Local 249 a/w International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of American et. al., National Labor Relations Board, August 14, 1972.)

Adjunct Professors Eligible To Vote In Representation Election

The National Labor Relations Board issued a supplemental decision affirming its earlier full Board hearing which partially overturned a hearing examiner's rulings sustaining a challenge in a representation election among faculty at C. W. Post Center of Long Island University. The NLRB ruled that 16 of 19 adjunct professors were eligible to vote.

The challenged ballots were those cast by adjunct professors who did not teach during the semester of the election but who did teach in two of the previous three semesters, and who signed contracts contingent upon the availability of employment.

During the original hearing before the full Board, the university-employer argued that the hearing officer's sustaining of the challenged ballots of adjunct professors was inconsistent with the Board's Manhattan College decision, which designated part-time faculty members regularly teaching a minimum of one-quarter of the normal teaching load as eligible regular part-time faculty. The Board pointed out that this decision established only that adjunct professors had sufficient community of interest to be included in a unit with full-time faculty, and that it did not relate to the eligibility of particular adjunct professors. This left open the question as to whether a particular group had sufficient community of interest to allow them to vote and therefore did not preclude a challenge to their ballots.

The Board noted that the hearing examiner reasoned that no pattern of continued employment existed, and that he had not taken into account employment history of past academic years.

The Board reasoned that those adjunct professors who did not teach in the semester of the election might have had more of an interest than those currently on the payroll. These adjunct professors do sign contracts, with employment contingent upon availability of work, and reasonably expect re-employment. Therefore, those who signed such contracts in at least two of the previous three semesters and taught three or more credit hours were eligible to vote.

A dissenting opinion would have affirmed the hearing officer's decision sustaining all challenged ballots on the grounds that the challenged professors were not employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the election order, and further that eligibility rules should not be changed after the fact. (C. W. Post of Long Island University and United Federation of College Teachers, Local 1460, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, National Labor Relations Board, July 27, 1972; Supplemental Decision, November 22, 1972.)

Certain Supervisors Not Excluded From Bargaining Unit

The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) rejected a petition of the Northwest Publications Inc. that sought the exclusion of 26 supervisory positions from an employees' bargaining unit represented by the San Jose Newspaper Guild since 1937. The Board, which had previously dismissed a similar employer petition, rejected the instant complaint on the basis that it would be disruptive to the bargaining relationship.

The two parties negotiated the current agreement extending from November 1970 to December 1973. All employees of the Northwest Publications, with the exception of several executives, were covered by the contract. Midway in the term of the contract, Northwest Publications petitioned the NLRB seeking an order to exclude certain supervisory personnel from the bargaining unit because it believed that the reopener provision of the contract would allow for such an adjustment in the composition of the bargaining unit.

The NLRB, disagreeing with Northwest Publications, said that "negotiations pursuant to the reopener did not change the description of the bargaining unit." The Board pointed out that the supervisory positions in question had existed for many years, that the descriptions of them had not changed since the execution of the current contract, and that to change the composition of the bargaining unit at this time "would be disruptive of an established bargaining relationship." (Northwest Publications Inc. and San Jose Newspaper Guild, National Labor Relations Board, November 12, 1972.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

CANADA

Court Upholds Duty-Free Lunch Period

Noting that no arguments, statutes, or regulations mandate that teachers supervise students during lunch hour, the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench overturned a suit brought by the Winnipeg School Division seeking $8,762.80 from the Winnipeg Teachers Association, which had advised its members to withdraw all voluntary services.

The court also pointed out: "If a teacher who must set [sic] and mark examinations, tests, projects, and homework mostly on his own time, who must evaluate and report on his students, exercise discipline over them and also attend staff and other meetings, must also give up his lunch hour to lunchroom supervision or attend after-hour games or other extra-curricular activities without compensation time given to him, he may easily be overburdened and unable to function at his best."

The court's decision is being appealed.

NEW YORK

New York City Dentists Unionize

The movement toward unionization of professional employees gained momentum with the formation of the International Federation of Health Professionals (IFHP) as the bargaining representative for some 2,000 New York City dentists, and 600 dental hygientists, dental assistants, and secretaries.

The increasing load of Medicaid and other insurance carrier responsibilities thrust upon the dentists precipitated their unionization. The dentists said they needed the union to bargain with insurance carriers and legislative agencies over uniform pay schedules, less paper work, and higher professional standards of treatment.

KANSAS

PERB Issues First Rules and Regulations Covering State and Higher Education Employees

The Kansas Public Employer-Employees Relations Board (PERB) has issued rules and regulations effective January 1, 1973 for implementation of its Public Employer-Employees Relations Act (PERA). These procedures are "intended as aids to the efficient operation of the Board, the orderly administration of the Act, and to provide meaningful avenues for realizing and for endorsing statutory rights and obligations" of public employees, employee organizations, and employers. These step-by-step procedures cover in detail hearings, unit determinations and certifications, representative elections, mediation, arbitration, prohibited practice adjudication, and the approval of equivalent local laws. A clause permitting suspension or waiving of the rules when application of them would not be feasible or just, adds flexibility to the PERA's implementation.

Employee organization representatives are required under state law to have been licensed by either petition or authorization card within the past six months before participating in PERB proceedings. The procedures also provide for intervention of legitimately interested third parties who are required to represent 30 percent of the proposed units' employees and have an authorization card or to be authorized by petition. The criteria for determining an appropriate unit shall be "whether the proposed unit of the employees is a distinct and homogeneous group, with significant problems which can be negotiated and adjusted without regard to the other employees of the employer." In addition, the PERB "may consider the relationship of the proposed unit to the total organizational pattern of the employer."

Petitions for unit determination, clarification, and investigation may be filed by five or more public employees, a public employee organization, or a public employer. At least 30 percent of the employees in a unit must petition for decertification of any public employee organization.

Only certified employees may participate in representation elections, which must be by secret ballot under the direction of PERB. "In all elections the majority of the valid votes cast shall determine the employee representative designated" or no representative.

Under the mediation and arbitration impasse regulations, the confidentiality of all records, reports, files, or documents, received cr prepared by the mediator is guaranteed unless the PERB gives prior consent.

Although both parties must acquiese to arbitration, whether jointly or singly initiated, they have the option of requesting either advisory or binding arbitration.

An employee, a group of employees, an employee organization, or a public employer may initiate proceedings to determine prohibited practices by filing a clear concise statement of the facts of the alleged violation. The PERB then determines if formal proceedings should be instituted. However, in no case may these proceedings be dismissed because of nonjoinder or misjoinder of the parties. The board's actions on prohibited practices shall include a statement of the case and the preliminary procedures, finding of fact, conclusions of law, decision, and orders. Strike cases must be held "as expeditiously as possible disregarding normal time limitations."

All board actions on the various issues coming under the rules and regulations outline in step-by-step detail the procedures for initiating and following through petitions, filing of objections, intervention, complaints, answers to complaints, investigations, and hearings. These procedures end with the PERB's conclusions of law, determination, and orders.

The complete text of the "Kansas Public Employer-Employee Relations Board Rules and Regulations" is available upon request.

KENTUCKY

The attorney general gave the Kentucky Education Association a qualified "yes" in reply to its question as to whether the state board of education has authority to negotiate with KEA "on matters of statewide concern which affect teachers and administrators in the public schools."

The restriction placed on the affirmative answer depends upon the application and/or interpretation of the word negotiate. According to the attorney general, the state board of education may not execute any contract with KEA if negotiate means that a definitive agreement may be reached. However, if the word is construed to mean that KEA and the teachers' point of view is given in promulgating rules and regulations, the state board is allowed to invite teacher participation and input.

CPI, REAL EARNINGS RISE IN DECEMBER

Two separate reports issued by the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, indicated increases in both the Consumer Price Index (C.P.I.) and real earnings during December 1972. The C.P.I. rose 0.3 percent, while real earnings, measuring workers' average weekly earnings in terms of dollars of constant purchasing power, increased 0.1 percent.

The rise in the C.P.I. was attributed to higher prices for eggs, fresh vegetables and household services, partially offset by lower prices for meats, fresh fruits, and used cars. After seasonable adjustment, the December increase was 0.2 percent; seasonably adjusted food prices remained unchanged after increases the previous two months, while prices of non-food commodities and consumer service charges rose 0.2 percent and 0.4 percent, respectively. The Index increased at a seasonably adjusted annual rate of 3.2 percent for the calendar quarter ending in December; the increase for the quarter ending in September was 4.6 percent.

Real earnings, determined by adjusting gross figures for changes in the C.P.I. were 2.7 percent higher than a year ago; real spendable weekly earnings (average weekly pay after deductions for social security and federal income taxes) remained the same during December, but increased 3.5 percent over the year. The Hourly Earnings Index of constant purchasing power rose 0.7 percent during December, and was 2.7 percent higher than in December 1971.

STATISTICS

NEGOTIATED DISMISSAL PROCEDURE PROVISIONS IN CLASSROOM TEACHER AGREEMENTS

Dismissal procedure provisions regarding the termination of classroom teachers are incorporated in 250 (16.4 percent) of 1,529 collective bargaining agreements in school systems with 1,000 or more pupils enrolled. Sixty-two agreements, every fifth agreement with at least one from each state having a negotiated contract, were selected for further analysis. The selected sample of agreements taken from the 1970-71 data base are representative and indicative of the prevalence of dismissal procedure provisions in negotiated contracts. This analysis is restricted to what appeared in negotiated contracts; specific reference to dismissal procedures as mandated by state law were not analyzed. All data appearing in the tables are not mutually exclusive, and percentages may not add to the totals shown because of rounding.

Negotiated provisions regarding dismissal procedures are usually supplemental to state tenure laws in those states which have tenure laws. Such negotiated procedures serve to provide another avenue through which dismissal or nonrenewal may by processed. State labor boards and courts have upheld this principle.

TABLE 1.–NEGOTIATED CONTENT OF DISMISSAL PROCEDURE PROVISIONS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Tenure laws and other legislation mentioned or referred to	22	35.5
Reasons for dismissal stated	36	58.1
Prior written notice of dismissal required	45	72.6
Meetings/conferences regarding dismissal required	5	8.1
Suspensions	5	8.1
Hearing required	24	38.7
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS ANALYZED	62	100.0

In a recent decision involving the Board of Education, Union Free School District #3, the Nassau County, Supreme Court (N.Y.) ruled that the board must continue arbitration proceedings which were initiated to resolve a dismissal dispute. The court upheld the board's contention that under state tenure law other avenues are available to resolve the issue, but stressed that a teacher has the right to select arbitration. In another case, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission ordered the Oostburg Board of Education, Joint School District 14 to accept the Oostburg Education Association's submission of a nonrenewal dispute to arbitration, and to comply with the arbitration provisions of the agreement with respect to grievance.

Generally, the procedures for dismissal outlined in the agreements provide (a) that school boards give written notification of charges, and (b) that the teacher is entitled to a hearing prior to dismissal or nonrenewal of his contract being effective.

Nonrenewal occurs after the expiration of a teacher's contract with at least a 30-day notice. Nontenure teachers who fail to show improvement after an unsatisfactory evaluation are those primarily affected. Dismissal of a teacher may occur at any time during the term of the teacher's contract provided there is reasonable or "just cause."

In more than one-third of the agreements dismissal provisions are also governed by state tenure law and other legislation. These laws provide for the continuing employment of teachers who under tenure law, have acquired permanent or tenure status. Additionally, tenure laws require school boards to comply with prescribed procedural provisions for prior notice of dismissal, statement of charges and the teacher's right to a hearing before dismissal or before the nonrenewal of his contract becomes effective.

Tenure law primarily affects tenure teachers, but some states have extended due process of law to nontenure teachers through amendments to the tenure law which detail the procedures to be followed for dismissal of a nontenure teacher. The issue of whether nontenure teachers who are subject to nonrenewal are constitutionally entitled to procedural protections under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment was considered by the Supreme Court of the United States in recent court decisions. In Perry v. Sindermann (92 S.Ct.2694 (1972)) and Board of Regents of State Colleges v. Roth (92 S.Ct.2701 (1972)) the Supreme Court ruled that a nontenure teacher would be entitled to a statement of reasons and to an opportunity for an administrative hearing if the teacher could show that the nonrenewal deprived him of an interest in "liberty" or "property."

TABLE 2.–REASONS FOR DISMISSAL STATED IN NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS

Reasons	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Specific reason given	18	29.0
Dismissal for "just cause" only	9	14.5
Reasons given to teacher upon request but not specified in agreement	9	14.5
	36	58.1
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS ANALYZED	62	100.0

Teacher dismissal for "just cause," as indicated by agreements, is the basic reason given for dismissal regardless of tenure or nontenure status.

> A tenured teacher shall not be disciplined, reprimanded, suspended or discharged without reasonable and just cause.
>
> [Oakland Unified Sch. Dist Oakland, California]

> No teacher shall be suspended or discharged except for just cause.
>
> [New Haven, Connecticut]

When defined, "just cause" usually includes gross contract violations, professional inadequacies, and personal misconduct. Eighteen agreements listed specific reasons for dismissal among which were incompetence; immorality; insubordination; habitual tardiness; abuse of preparation hour, sick leave, and personal leave; persistent and willful violation of regulations, and the teacher's failure to show improvement after receiving an unsatisfactory evaluation. These clauses were similar to the following:

> No teacher will be disciplined, demoted, dismissed, suspended with or without pay, or reprimanded without just cause. Just cause will include, but not be limited to, inefficiency or incompetence, insubordination against the reasonable rules of the Board of Education, moral misconduct, or disability, mental or physical, as shown by competent medical evidence, habitual tardiness and abuse of the preparation hour, sick leave and personal leave days, and non-compliance with the provisions of the Master Agreement.
>
> [Saginaw, Michigan]

> No teacher who has acquired tenure in accordance with the Board rules and who has not reached the retirement age shall be refused employment, dismissed, removed, or discharged except for willful neglect of duty, repeated violation of the published rules of the Board of Education, conviction of felony, immorality, physical or mental incapacity to perform his or her duties, or incompetency.
>
> [Kenosha, Wisconsin]

> Teachers who are not considered satisfactory shall be notified, in writing, of their deficiencies and be given such reasonsable time to improve as the Board may determine. During this time, placement on the Salary Schedule or increments provided in the Schedule may be withheld, and continuation of unsatisfactory work will call for the teacher's dismissal.
>
> [Portland, Connecticut]

In more than 7 out of 10 agreements, the board is required to give written notice of reason when dismissal of a teacher is contemplated. The following example is illustrative.

> No teacher shall be dismissed without notification thereof in writing stating the reasons for proposed termination.
>
> [Minnetonka Pub. Sch., Excelsior, Minnesota]

TABLE 3.–PRIOR NOTIFICATION OF DISMISSAL FOUND IN NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
PRIOR NOTIFICATION OF DISMISSAL REQUIRED	45	72.6
Teachers to be notified in writing	45	72.6
Specified time for giving notice	18	29.0
15 days	1	1.6
30 days	8	12.9
60 days	5	8.1
90 days	3	4.8
6 months	1	1.6
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS ANALYZED	62	100.0

Almost 40 percent of the agreements provide for a hearing on dismissal cases when requested by teachers within specified periods following notification of dismissal or nonrenewal. Teachers involved in dismissal hearings are entitled to representation and witnesses. In some instances, tenure teachers have recourse through grievance procedures.

> A teacher under accusation for dismissal shall be notified in writing stating cause and may, if desired, have a hearing with full benefit of representation and counsel with the School Board within thirty (30) days of receipt of notification. Full pay and benefits which will accrue to the teacher under suspension shall be payable upon reinstatement. Teacher's counsel shall be the responsibility of the teacher.
>
> [Pewaukee, Wisconsin]

Any disciplinary action imposed by the Board on any teacher may be processed as a grievance. If such action includes demotion or discharge, all of the provisions of the Michigan Teachers' Tenure Act covering teachers on continuing tenure (including charges, notice, hearing, determination and appeal to the State Tenure Commission) shall apply for all teachers. The grievance may be initiated at the second step (Superintendent) of the Formal Grievance Procedure, and appeal to the Commission (rather than Arbitration) shall, where applicable, constitute the fourth and final step of the Procedure.

[Ann Arbor, Michigan]

TABLE 4.–REQUIREMENTS REGARDING DISMISSAL HEARING IN NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
HEARINGS REGARDING DISMISSAL REQUIRED	24	38.7
To be held upon teacher's request	15	24.2
Hearing to be held within specified time	10	16.1
Within 5 days	1	1.6
Within 10 days	5	8.1
Within 30 days	4	6.4
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS ANALYZED	62	100.0

Dismissal provisions further require school boards to notify a teacher as to whether he is to be suspended pending any dismissal hearing. Suspensions are generally without pay; however, if reinstated, a teacher receives compensation and benefits for the period of suspension, and all records of the dismissal proceedings are expunged from the teacher's personnel file. The following provision is an example:

Notification of suspension or discharge shall be given to the teacher in writing with a copy to the Federation. The reason for such discharge or suspension shall be stated therein.

The teacher may, if he so desires, upon receipt of notification of suspension or discharge, file a grievance at the third step of the grievance procedure, provided in this Agreement. If suspension or discharge is found to be unjustified at any step of this procedure, the teacher's full pay and benefits shall be restored for the full period of his suspension or discharge.

[New Haven, Connecticut]

The following are sample provisions only and are not to regarded as exemplary.

TERMINATION OF CONTRACTS

The contract of a teacher may not be terminated except for gross inefficiency or immorality, for willful and persistent violation of reasonable regulations of the Board, or for other good and just cause. (Ohio Revised Code, Section 3319.16.)

If the dismissal of the teacher is considered necessary, the Superintendent shall notify the Board of all pertinent facts before action is taken. The teacher, the Superintendent and the Board shall act only as provided in the Ohio Revised Code, Section 3319.
Teachers wishing to consult the Ohio Revised Code may review a copy of the same in the office of the Administrative Assistant or the President of the MRTCTA.

Any teacher who has been notified by the Board of its intent to dismiss, must be informed of his right to counsel. Said teacher may also review his own personnel file.

When it is the intention of the Board not to re-employ a teacher at the expiration of his limited contract, the Board shall give written notice on or before April 30, or the teacher shall be deemed re-employed per the Ohio Revised Code, Section 3319.11.

The Board and the Administration shall give sufficient help, time and effort to enable the teacher to correct the cause for his potential non-rehiring. If the teacher is non-responsive, the Board shall take action not to re-employ and the MRTCTA, having been satisfied that these conditions have been met, shall support the above action of the Board.

[Mad River Township,
Dayton, Ohio]

ORDERLY DISMISSAL PROCEDURES

Before any teacher may be dismissed for any cause, he shall be given a written notice 15 days prior to the effective date of dismissal signed by the Superintendent or his representative, stating the causes for dismissal. Such written notice may be delivered in person or sent by registered mail addressed to the teacher at his last known post office address. A copy of the Written Agreement shall be included with the notice.

After receipt of such notice the teacher shall at his option be entitled to hearings before (1) the Superintendent of Schools, (2) the appropriate committee of the Board of Education, and (3) the Board of Education. The teacher may call the association, school staff, and such other witnesses as he may deem necessary. Said hearing shall commence within 30 days after receipt of such notice.

If the interests of the school or schools require it for sufficient and just cause, a teacher may be suspended pending a hearing and rendering of a decision.

Any hearing held for the dismissal of a teacher shall be concluded by a decision in writing within ten days after the termination of the hearing. An official copy of such decision shall be furnished the teacher affected within five days after the decision has been rendered. The Association and principal will be notified of the decision.

In all cases where the final decision is made in favor of the teacher, the charge or charges against him shall be expunged from the records. If, pending final decision as to his dismissal, such teacher has been suspended and, therefore, has suffered loss of salary, he shall be reimbursed in full for the time lost.

[Salt Lake City, Utah]

SPECIAL REPORTS

INTEGRATION PROVISIONS IN TEACHER/BOARD AGREEMENTS

Of the 1,529 agreements covering the 1970-71 school year analyzed by NEA Research, 60 contained provisions dealing with various aspects of integration of education. These contracts, negotiated in 12 states and the District of Columbia, are reported in the 1972 edition of Negotiation Agreement Provisions for Teachers.

These 60 contracts contained specific mention of minority groups, integration, or multi-ethnic relationships. Other negotiated provisions can accomplish the same purposes, e.g., academic freedom, nondiscrimination, open recruitment, promotion and transfer provisions, curriculum and textbook selection committees. However, this analysis concerns only specific provisions; other policies or procedures may be found in school-board rules and regulations.

Some of the provisions on integration of education-textbooks, curriculum, staff, and pupils-are general while others contain detailed specifications for achieving integration.

Study Committees

To help provide integrated education, 10 agreements authorize study committees to deal with special areas relative to minority, multi-ethnic, or integration processes. Morenci, Michigan, requires a joint conference to meet at least once each semester for the purpose of improving the selection and use of educational tools containing contributions of minority groups (textbooks, instructional materials, supplementary reading materials.) The contract also stipulates that the board implement all committee decisions.

The River Rouge, Michigan, contract mandates a study committee, to review, evaluate, and study methods of improving the integration of faculty and students and to insure the implementation of policies regarding inservice training to help teachers and administrators understand and deal with human relations problems. The contract also contains a plan for systematic inclusion of curriculum content dealing with minority groups.

Other agreements provide for curriculum advisory committees to investigate ways of achieving integrated education, and to implement multi-racial experiences. The committee established in the Willow Run, Michigan, agreement serves as a system-wide coordinating and planning group charged with studying the extent to which the achievements of racial and ethnic groups receive fair recognition.

Other agreements provide for the establishment of committees to assist with integration of teaching staffs. Some include a special committee to work with colleges of education to help develop curriculum content geared toward understanding and working with children with cultural differences, and to help provide balance on existing staffs through recruitment. The New York City agreement establishes a funded joint committee to develop recruitment procedures and supervise application of them to achieve ethnic balance.

The Rochester, New York, agreement provides three joint committees which are intended to (a) study recommendations regarding federal and state aid; (b) work with area colleges of education in planning required courses of study toward understanding and working with children with cultural differences; (c) develop plans for supplying inner city schools with additional teachers possessing the necessary experience, skill, and attitude to provide the strongest possible educational program.

Textbooks and Curriculum

Seventeen agreements deal specifically with the multi-ethnic nature of textbooks and other instructional materials. In essence, such provision requires that textbooks and instructional materials be multi-ethnic and reflect contributions of racial, ethnic, and religious groups to the historical, scientific, and social development of the United States. In addition, Oak Park, Michigan, includes a statement urging provision of a culture-free testing program. The Albion, Michigan, agreement provides for promotion of inservice training to increase understanding of human relations.

The Rochester, New York, contract treats textbook selection as follows: use of multi-racially oriented textbooks at all levels as part of the basic reading program; use of textbooks and other curriculum material in American History classes in order to cover in depth the contributions of black, Puerto Rican, and other minority groups in each unit taught; use of supplemental reading material dealing with black, Puerto Rican, and other minority group contributions, e.g., Jews, Chinese, and American Indian; use of comprehensive units which cover African, Puerto Rican, Asian, and Latin-American history at appropriate grade levels.

Thirteen agreements contain general statements dealing with curriculum issues, two specifically include minority groups in the curriculum. These general statements usually deal with the common goal of providing in-school activities (learning and social experiences) in a nonpartisan manner, without prejudice or bias, in which all races, religions, national origins, and socioeconomic levels can learn to know and understand differences as well as similarities. These agreements imply that learning situations are enhanced by integration of children and teachers of diverse backgrounds.

The Franklin-McKinley School District of San Jose, California, gives special attention to the Mexican-American population. The contract requires the Curriculum Screening Committee to investigate the establishment of special classes for non-English-speaking students. The school district is required to employ a "community liaison person" thoroughly familiar with the problems of, and acceptable to, the Mexican-American community within the district. The district is also to employ more bi-cultural and Spanish-speaking teachers, to communicate with the home, when appropriate, in English and Spanish, and to support commemorative calendar dates of ethnic groups, including calendar dates in black and Mexican-American history.

Staff

Twenty agreements deal with faculty integration, ranging from the need for multi-ethnic representation among school staff members, to active recruitment and inservice training to achieve balance.

The Hartford, Connecticut, agreement states that to give each pupil the advantages of integrated education, the faculty of each school is to be racially balanced and incorporates detailed transfer procedures to correct any imbalance. The contract defines a racially unbalanced faculty as one where the ratio between the minority and majority groups varies more than five percentage points from the ratio of such groups in the system-wide faculty. While the Jackson, Michigan, agreement does not define its procedures as specifically as does Hartford, Connecticut, both state a desire to have at least 15 percent of every building staff from minority racial groups. Philadelphia defines faculty racial balance as follows: "The faculty in a school shall be deemed to be racially balanced if, in a school at the elementary level the faculty consists of at least twenty percent of the appointed teachers of the race in the minority in the faculty of that school and in a school at the secondary level the faculty consists of at least ten percent of appointed teachers of the race in the minority in the faculty of that school."

Six contracts-Jackson, Eau Claire, and Mt. Clements, Michigan; Zion, Illinois; Excelsior, Minnesota; and New York City-state specifically that they "declare a policy of actively seeking minority group personnel."

In an arbitration case between the Detroit Federation of Teachers and the East Detroit Board of Education, the arbitrator laid down three-step guidelines for minority recruitment on the basis of the wording of the negotiated contract which stated that the board would "seek out and hire a certified integrated staff reflective of all races." The arbitrator stated that the object of the provision was an "active effort" at recruitment, and he directed the board to (a) request placement officers in certain named universities and schools of education enrolling large numbers of black students to help with recruitment, (b) actively recruit outside the state of Michigan in schools having a large black enrollment, and (c) place at least three advertisements during the recruiting season in newspapers published primarily for black readers.

The Novi, Michigan, and Schenectady, New York, agreements merely state, "The Board and the Association... shall consider the employment of minority group personnel." The recruitment plan in Rochester, New York, requires a "joint Association-Board committee to develop plans for supplying inner city schools with additional teachers possessing the necessary qualities of experience, skill, and empathy to continue to provide the strongest possible educational program in these schools." The agreement for the Baltimore, Maryland, schools suggests the "cadre system" as a plan for integration of faculty by which "a small group of teachers of one racial pattern from one grade level of an elementary school, or one department of a secondary school, and the principal or vice principal could voluntarily transfer to a school not enjoying an integrated staff pattern."

The Harrisburg, Illinois, agreement states that "the Board of Education asserts that it is an equal opportunity employer."

A "Human Relations Program" is outlined in the 1970-71 Oakland, California, agreement. It includes: "a) All certificated employees will be encouraged to complete either a college or district in-service course in Multi-Ethnic Studies. . .b) The district will give favorable consideration to out-of-district applicants who have completed a course in Multi-Ethnic Studies and the major colleges and universities providing the district with teaching applicants will be so informed. . .c) Five minimum days shall be scheduled during the 1970-71 school year for Human Relations in-service meetings."

The 20 agreements having provisions on faculty integration also refer to the need to work with the community and with colleges of education to help new teachers and to help develop inservice programs to retrain present faculty members in multi-ethnic differences and similarities to provide pupils with better education.

Pupils

Twenty-one contracts contain a general statement on integration of pupils. The following is an example: "The Board and the Association pledge themselves to extend the advantages of public education to every student without regard to race, creed, religion, sex, color, or national origin and to seek to achieve full equality of educational opportunity to all pupils."

Three agreements state this general concept in a slightly different way, in that programs and school activities are not to be conducted in a manner which denies or discriminates against students because of race, color, creed, sex, or national origin.

The same principle is asserted in the San Diego, California, agreement: "It is recognized that segregation of students on account of race or color, regardless of its cause, seriously impairs the promise of equal educational opportunities. It is further recognized that while problems of racial imbalance in the schools are not easily solved, partial solutions are available."

Other than stating that there is to be equal educational opportunity without discrimination, the Oak Park, Michigan, agreement requires the board to continue its efforts to provide a culture-free testing program.

Summary

Of the 1,529 contracts, 60 in 12 states and the District of Columbia deal specifically with integration of races and cultures in textbooks, curriculum, staff and student body. Statements range from general board policy to detailed requirements.

Of several contracts dealing with study committees to develop programs of integration, one contract permits the committee, while others require committees to deal with curriculum, recruitment, transfers of staff for racial balance, and to plan required courses for colleges of education and for inservice programs.

Textbooks and other instructional materials are required to be multi-ethnic by 17 contracts with a few naming the ethnic groups. The Mexican-American population, in particular, is provided for through curriculum and staff liaison assignments.

Twenty of the agreements concern staff integration and range from broad, all-encompassing provisions to provisions stating exact definitions of what comprises a balanced or integrated staff. Equality of educational opportunity for all pupils without regard to race, creed, religion, sex, color, or national origin is mentioned in varying degrees in 21 agreements.

The following are intended as samples of integration of education-provisions and are not to be regarded as exemplary.

Community and Human Relations

The District and the Association recognize that children must live in a multi-racial and multi-ethnic world, and that a democratic society is one which appreciates diversity. Therefore, school must be a natural place for multi-cultural contact and experiences.

The District shall employ a "community liaison person" to function as a liaison between the school and the community. The large portion of Mexican-American students in the district mandates that the community liaison person shall be thoroughly familiar with the problems of, and acceptable to, the Mexican-American community within the district.

The District shall attempt to employ more bi-cultural and Spanish-speaking teachers thoroughly familiar with the minority cultures of the District.

School and/or District communications to the home when appropriate shall be in both English and Spanish.

The Curriculum Screening Committee shall investigate establishing special classes for non-English-speaking students and an English-as-a-second language program (E.S.L.) for grades K-8.

A committee shall be formed at each school comprised of building administrators and teachers to consult with parents and other community leaders to plan inservice and instructional programs which are relevant.

The District shall recognize and actively support commemorative calendar dates of the ethnic groups represented in the District including calendar dates in Black and Mexican-American history.

[Franklin-McKinley School District
San Jose, California]

QUALITY INTEGRATED EDUCATION

In order to assure the continuation of positive action designed to further implement the City School District's commitment to provide quality integrated education as expressed in Board resolutions, and to carry out the principles of the Preamble of the Agreement, the Association and the Administration shall continue and will accelerate their efforts to provide quality integrated education in the following manner:

TEXTBOOK AND CURRICULUM IMPROVEMENT

The Council on the Improvement of Instruction shall continue to study and make recommendations concerning:

a. Use of multi-racially oriented textbooks at all levels as part of the basic reading program.

b. Use of textbooks and other curriculum material for each pupil in all American History classes in order to cover in depth the contributions of Black, Puerto Rican, and other minority groups in each unit taught; and the inclusion of such materials as part of the course of study in Curriculum Guides.

c. Use of supplemental reading material dealing with Black, Puerto Rican, and other minority groups contributions, e.g. Jews, Chinese, and American Indian, etc.

d. Use of comprehensive units which cover African, Puerto Rican, Asian, and Latin-American history at appropriate grade levels.

FEDERAL PROJECTS REVIEW COMMITTEE

The existing Association-Board Federal Projects Review Committee shall continue to study the following Association recommendations for concentrating federal and state aid:

Use of available funds from E.S.E.A. to reduce the class size in inner city schools to a maximum of 15 students in regular grades.

Increased use of special services in inner city schools including psychological, medical, dental services, teacher aides, etc. through federal and/or state programs and/or by taking fullest advantage of available community resources

Use of available state and/or federal funds to provide a lunch program in the schools. Appropriate facilities to house students and non-teaching supervisory personnel shall be provided.

By using federal, state and local funds a massive remedial reading, mathematics program shall be provided in inner city schools. Implementation of the program shall be developed by a joint Association-Administration Committee.

The Board shall designate the personnel necessary to insure the implementation of the above sections.

COOPERATION WITH INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER LEARNING

A joint Association-Board committee shall be formed to work with area colleges of education willing to cooperate in planning required courses of study geared toward understanding and working with children with cultural differences.

RECRUITMENT OF TEACHERS

A joint Association-Board committee shall develop plans for supplying inner city schools with additional teachers possessing the necessary qualities of experience, skill, and empathy to continue to provide the strongest possible educational program in these schools.

[Rochester, New York]

BRIEFS OF RECENT AGREEMENTS

Dayton, Ohio

Between Dayton Public School System and Dayton Classroom Teachers Association, effective July 24, 1972, to March 3, 1974. Approximately 2,524 classroom teachers. Provision for automatic renewal, > unless either the Board or the D.C.T.A. serves written notice on the other of its intentions to amend or modify this Agreement not more than ninety (90) and not less than sixty (60) days prior to the expiration date (March 3, 1974) or the end of the yearly extension period.

>
> The Board agrees that it will not, during the period of this Agreement, officially adopt or implement any condition of employment not contained within this Agreement until such term or condition has been a subject of negotiation.

Provision for reopener on items affected by changes in law or in the financial status of the district, and 30 days after completion of negotiation on items negotiated, but not agreed to in this agreement.

COMPENSATION: (effective January 8, 1973) B.A., $7,902.30 to $12,888.54, 14 increments; B.A. plus 18 hours, $13,083.32 maximum; M.A., $8,570.10 to $14,179.62, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $14,624.82 maximum; Ph.D., $15,598.70 maximum; increments earned after serving six consecutive months (120 days) per school year (includes 40 days in the same substitute position); seventh step is maximum placement for first year of service in the district or upon re-entering service after January 1, 1956;

Vocational teacher salary schedule: B.A., $9,482.76 to $15,466.22, 14 increments; B.A. plus 18 hours, $15,699.96 maximum; M.A., $10,284.12 to $17,015.46, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $17,549.70 maximum; Ph.D., $18,718.36 maximum; up to seven years' business or trade experience in teaching or related area credited toward college equivalency at the rate of 18 hours undergraduate credit per year; seven years' vocational experience (four as apprentice and three as journeyman) equals a B.A., with two undergraduate credits beyond that level equal to one graduate credit; each year of work experience beyond seven years credited as one year of teaching experience, with 10 calendar months' experience, including not less than five consecutive months, counted as one year for teachers appointed after January 1, 1947.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1972-73) head football and basketball coaches and athletic director, $1,300; head baseball, gymnastics, track, and wrestling, and assistant football and basketball coaches, $760; band director, $26.50 per appearance, $325 per year maximum; vocal and dramatic directors, $265 per music production; orchestra director, $105 per production; play director, $290 per major stage production, $580 per year maximum; newspaper and yearbook advisors, $265 or $132.50 with staff or journalism period; class advisors: senior, $265; junior, $210; sophomore and freshman, $55; intramural leader, $320 per year; elementary audiovisual, $80 if school has no Learning Center; elementary intramural, $105 to $420 according to school size; vocational school job coordinators, $125.

OTHER: Pay for serving on board-initiated committees, including inservice program, beyond the regular work day for two or more sessions, $4.00 per hour; Inservice Program Committee service during the summer, $148 for each 30-hour week; Unit-House leader (Individually Guided Education), $300 per year; home and hospital teachers with B.A., $7.23 per hour, without B.A., $7.02 per hour; high-school registrars and night school teachers at vocational high school, $7.51 per hour; nurses with B.A. are placed on teachers' salary schedule; 10 cents per mile for job-related use of own car; inservice workshop attendance outside school day, $4.00 per hour; rates for summer school regular and substitute teachers: elementary and middle school, $124.65 per week or $24.93 per day; high school, $139.15 per week or $27.83 per day; high-school laboratory classes, $155.80 per week or $31.16 per day.

LEAVES: One and one-fourth days per month annual sick leave, 200 days maximum accumulation; one hour sick leave for each 17.3 hours' night school service, maximum accumulation of one and one-fourth days per month when teaching both day and night classes; however, teachers teaching both day and night school will have only one days' leave deducted while receiving entire days' pay; sick leave prorated for part-time employees; leave for quarantine and illness in the immediate family deducted from sick leave; 3 days for death in the immediate family with 2 additional days for travelling over 300 miles from Dayton; one day for funeral of other relatives; one day personal leave (requiring no justification) upon 3 days' notice, if unused will be paid with final pay; 4 days' emergency leave granted upon "submission of satisfactory evidence" for accidents in immediate family, required court appearances, impassable roads, major disaster affecting family property, up to 2 days for religious observance, college graduation of staff member or member of the immediate family, military induction physical, wedding in immediate family, ceremony where member of immediate family receives award of major significance, "participation at civic, musical or dramatic groups of important significance to the school system on a nonpaid basis," and paternity leave, superintendent may authorize absences for other reasons; leave for subject matter conferences with approved expenses paid by the board available to selected educational organization representatives; in addition, board pays expenses for one representative from each organization (designated by the association and the curriculum development department) attending a professional conference within the U.S.; up to two days' leave for school visitation that does not require a substitute; paid jury-duty leave less court fees; at least two sabbatical leaves granted per year at difference between regular pay and substitute's compensation for one year after five consecutive years' service, with joint committee making the final selection; adoption leave available; leave for job-related injury with deduction from sick leave of the difference between Workman's Compensation and regular pay with teacher receiving full remuneration for 90 days even if sick leave is exhausted.

INSURANCE: Hospital-medical, surgical, and major medical with family coverage available; $4,000 policies for both term life and accident insurance, pro rata payment of part-time employees' insurance premiums; tax-sheltered annuity plan.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; "the superintendent shall authorize up to eighty (80) days with pay per year to members of the D.C.T.A. elected to represent the D.C.T.A. or chosen to serve on programs or in any official capacity at D.C.T.A. affiliated meetings, conferences or conventions. Additional days beyond 80 will be granted to members of D.C.T.A. elected to official bodies of the Ohio Education Association and/or National Education Association", monthly conferences between association and administration representatives; leave with pay to attend necessary organization meetings for teachers elected to state or national office and for delegates or working members of designated organization; leave of absence for association president with association reimbursing total cost to the district; upon notifying the principal the association president may visit the schools; use of bulletin boards, school equipment, and public address system, and reasonable use of school buildings upon approval of request; association may make announcements at faculty meetings; interschool extension phone provided, association pays charges; board funds may not be used to support rival organization seeking to represent teachers; two association representatives shall have same seating privileges as the press at board meetings; board may not hear policy statements of other organizations without the association's consent; the board shall furnish to the association the names and addresses of new staff members as soon as possible; the board shall provide all professionals with a copy of this agreement and with a directory of the addresses, phone numbers, and job assignments of all employees.

INSTRUCTION: Normal high-school teaching load is 6 periods including homeroom and preparation time, with 5 planning periods per week; teacher ratio per building, 30 to 1; maximum junior high and elementary class sizes, 35 students; an aide will be provided (if available) upon written request if an elementary- or high-school class exceeds 35 pupils; if board fails to provide requested aide within 60 days, excess pupils will be reassigned; maximum high-school pupil load, 170 pupils per day; size of laboratory and special subject classes limited to the number of stations; activity classes, such as physical education, excluded from class size maximums; special education and service class sizes must be in compliance with state requirements; day school class sizes apply to night school classes; effort to reduce teachers' clerical responsibilities; school calendar is 180 pupil-contact days, 16 holidays, 4 inservice days; joint development of 1973-74 school calendar; elementary- and junior high-school day: 330 minutes of student contact, 30 minutes for duty-free lunch, 60 minutes of development or approved activity time, 15 minutes after school, five 45-minute preparation periods per week; school day for primary grades: 330 minutes of student contact, 30 minutes for duty-free lunch, 60 minutes of development time, 15 minutes after school, 45 minutes per week preparation time, and "additional time not to exceed seventy-five (75) minutes [that] may be made available through cooperative teacher planning for students with the approval of the principal;" school day for kindergarten with morning and afternoon (two) sessions to be a maximum of 435 continuous minutes, 330 minutes of pupil contact, 45 minutes for duty-free lunch, 45 minutes of development time, 15 minutes after school; kindergarten school day, one session is 218 continuous minutes, with 165 minutes of pupil contact, 53 minutes for development, 15 minutes after school; high-school day is maximum of 435 continuous minutes, with 375 minutes of pupil contact, 30 minutes for duty-free lunch, 20 minutes before school, 10 minutes after school; nurses' school day, 480 minutes between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. with one hour for lunch; counselors' day is 450 minutes with 30 minutes for lunch; faculty determines school day at the vocational high school; joint committee to attempt to find the means to give elementary teachers additional released time; development time to be used for conferences, faculty and departmental meetings, planning sessions, inservice training, and parent-teacher conferences; librarians work 5 hours per day for an additional week; learning center teachers work an additional 3 days at the beginning of the year and three five-hour days at the end of the year at summer rate; two association representatives may be appointed to any committee concerned with curriculum changes, selection of texts, and development of new instructional programs and facilities; plan books fo substitute teachers' use must be kept current; grade and lesson plan books provided at board expense "although grade books are teachers property, they shall be available to the principal upon request"; School Faculty Council disburses Professional Activities Fund of $10 per staff member for teaching materials and equipment, professional books and magazines, faculty room furniture, growth, and travel, with funds accounted for monthly; adequate audiovisual equipment shall be available; academic freedom exercised with "sound judgment in selecting for discussion those issues [the teacher] deems relevant to the maturity and understanding of the students involved; programs concerning controversial issues should be cleared with the principal;

INDIVIDUALLY GUIDED EDUCATION

Individually Guided Education (IGE) is recognized as viable systematic program that provides a framework for achieving the individualization of instruction.

THE IGE SYSTEM IS COMPRISED OF:

A defined decision-making structure providing professional staff, pupils and parents opportunity to participate in instructional planning (multi-unit school).

An instructional process combining clear definition of learning objectives and continuous assessment of pupil progress and learning style to provide diversified learning environment which encourages self-directed learning by pupils.

A home-school communications network.

An alliance of schools and support services to provide continuous input and assistance (the League).

Implementation and Assessment

The D.C.T.A. will establish a Joint Committee on Individually Guided Education. The responsibilities of this committee shall include:

To address concerns and seek resolution of problems created through or intensified by implementation efforts.

To monitor commitments made through the joint committee.

To monitor on-going assessment of implementation progress.

To participate in decision-making relative to expansion of implementation beyond 1971-72 level, i.e., 16 elementary and 5 middle schools.

In-Service Education

Professional staff members in League School shall participate in in-service program. The Instructional/Program Improvement Council of each school determine the needs of the staff and develop programs to meet identified needs.

There shall be 3 days of in-service education planned by the Instructional/Program Improvement Council during the pupil year.

There shall be 5 days of in-service education and planning time planned by the IIC/PIC immediately prior to the opening of school for children.

In-service education programs developed through the Joint Committee on IGE will be offered for professional staff during the summer. Such programs would address those areas of need selected by the participants.

Remuneration shall be made at the in-service rate or through university credit (if such can be arranged).

Any professional staff member not assigned to a League School may participate without remuneration in the above in-service education programs on a voluntary basis.

Staffing

Staffing of an IGE school shall be done under the following guidelines:

All professional staff members working in League schools shall do so on a voluntary basis.

Prospective staff members shall be interviewed by the building principal and unit leaders, and should visit the school during the pupil day.

All professional staff members in League schools shall have current appropriate certification. Staff will be required to instruct only in areas where certified.

The staff of a League school shall reflect a cross section of the entire teaching staff of the Dayton Public Schools.

Any professional staff member requesting transfer from a League school shall be transferred as soon as an opening occurs and a replacement can be trained. Such transfers shall follow the voluntary transfer guidelines.

One (1) aide shall be assigned to each League Elementary School unit.

Two (2) aides shall be assigned to each League Middle School house.

One (1) additional clerical aide shall be assigned to each League Elementary School for each four units or major fraction thereof.

Qualified, trained substitutes are to be made available to League Schools.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Unit/House Leader

To be a decision-making member of Instructional Improvement/Program Improvement Council.

To serve as a liaison between the Instructional Improvement/Program Improvement Council and the unit/house.

To chair unit/house meetings, cooperatively planning the agenda (such agenda shall be in writing and distributed prior to the meeting).

To coordinate unit/house schedule—teacher's and student's use of time, space, resources.

To coordinate the collection and maintenance of necessary data pertinent to students in the unit/house.

To coordinate the self-improvement process of the unit/house.

To participate in the implementation of learning programs as a unit/house teacher.

To coordinate supportive resources to the unit/house.

To coordinate unit/house efforts related to student discipline.

Unit/House Teacher

To serve as a teacher-advisor.

Provide the security of a homebase environment for an assigned group of students.

Plan and evaluate an individual program with each pupil based on diagnostic and performance data as well as input of other teachers.

Hold individual student conferences on personal and educational matters.

Help student work out individual projects and independent study plans.

Coordinate student's work in all areas of the curriculum.

Provide that student remains in same unit/house as long as he is in the age group it serves unless circumstances indicate otherwise.

Gather and maintain diagnostic information which will augment observations of the advisor and teachers; information relative to interests, needs, learning styles, etc.

help to insure that each pupil has established personal rapport with at least one unit/house teacher.

To serve as a teacher in content area.

Provide a learning environment conducive to varied learning modes and activities.

Function as a teacher-planner in their selected area(s) of subject matter strength.

Participate in unit/house decision-making regarding the use of time, space and resources; assignment of pupils within the unit house; learning opportunities to be provided; division of labor; selection of assessment and evaluative procedures.

Unit/House Aide

Shall assume those responsibilities delineated in writing by the Instructional/Program Improvement Council.

The functions and duties of the Instructional Improvement Council and the Program Improvement Council shall be as defined in On Organizing a School for Learning.

IIC/PIC shall not replace the Faculty Council's functions and duties related to teacher welfare.

At least one teacher must be a member of both the Faculty Council and the IIC/PIC.

SELECTION OF UNIT/HOUSE LEADER

A. Criteria for the selection of Unit Leaders shall be established by each IIC/PIC in accordance with responsibilities outlined in this Master Agreement and On Organizing a School for Learning.

B. Each Unit/House Leader shall receive a stipend of three hundred dollars ($300) per school year to compensate for additional responsibility assumed.

A League Resource file (a permanent bank of objective and units) will be created and a listing of contents of the League Resource file will be available to all professional staff members.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; advisory panel resolves agreement implementation and interpretation disputes; right to review all materials in personnel file, except references, and to be accompanied by an association representative, copy of any file material furnished at cost, opportunity given to read acknowledge, and answer in writing all critical material placed therein, exclusion of anonymous material, removal of critical material with consent of staff development assistant superintendent or when sustained as false through grievance procedure;

DOCUMENTATION

The purpose of documentation is to make professional performance a matter of record.

Documentation will be read and signed by the professional staff member before being entered in the personnel file.

Documentation will be reviewed periodically with the professional staff member. A third party of his choice may be present.

Any documentation which may be considered unfavorable and is intended to be used in the personnel file for disciplinary, administrative reprimand, demotion or transfer must bear the signature of the party concerned. The professional staff member involved must have had the opportunity to read this documentation with a third party of his choice present and to reply in writing. Such reply will be attached to the documentation.

Maximum of one school faculty meeting (not to exceed 45 minutes, if after school) per month from which teachers may not be regularly excused because of extra duties; any additional monthly meetings must be approved by faculty council; Thursdays to be reserved for meetings; the minimum qualification for employment, with the exception of vocational teachers, is a B.A. and credentials to secure proper certification; teachers with insufficient qualifications may be hired on a substitute basis in emergencies;

In the selection of teachers, collegiate training, student teaching experience, teaching experience, other work, community experience and the recommendations of former professors, supervisors, cooperating teacher, principals, and other responsible individuals shall be considered. The college transcript shall be one factor to be evaluated and a personal interview will be required. Consideration of the teaching areas to be filled, the specific abilities to fill specific assignments, and the total general evaluation of personality and competency shall be the deciding factors in employment.

IN-SERVICE PROGRAM

The D.C.T.A. and the Administration believe that a comprehensive in-service program for the certificated staff is essential. Through staff participation in such activities, higher level and more varied competencies will emerge. Specifically, the staff will:

Experience individual professional growth;

Become better informed concerning current curriculum trends and procedures; and Assume leadership in educational programs and media developments.

The D.C.T.A. and the Administration will establish an In-Service Program Committee. This committee shall consist of seven (7) members, four (4) members selected by the D.C.T.A. and three (3) by the Administration. Suggestions from this committee are to be referred to the Curriculum Development Department for its action.

IN-SERVICE PROGRAM GUIDELINES

A more specific definition should be applied to "In-Service Programs" to provide clarity of purpose, promote maximum participation, and establish professional accountability. Basically, programs to be covered under such a definition may be those provided through:

College training beyond provisional certification requirements;

Workshops, seminars, and study programs (including those individually directed) under the direction of the Curriculum Development Department;

Programs developed on a building level within the system;

Programs arranged through the D.C.T.A. and its affiliates; and/or Programs provided through professional educational organizations to which professional staff belong.

To insure as many professional staff members as possible an adequate opportunity to participate, it is suggested that the Board provide a variety of programs annually.

At the earliest opportunity, upon basic agreement between the D.C.T.A. and the Administration through the Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum Development, the In-Service Program Committee shall meet to develop the program guidelines.

The In-Service Program Committee shall be appointed hereafter in October, assuming responsibilities in January, its primary responsibilities being to recommend the programs for the coming year, such programs to be submitted, on or before May 15th. All teaching personnel selected for the In-Service Committee will be compensated at $4.00 per hour for participation during the contract year and at the rate of $148.40 for each thirty (30) hour work week during the summer.

At all times encouragement shall be given to have staff submit ideas for programs and evaluate existing meetings.

All required In-Service education programs after regular school hours must be mutually agreed to by the D.C.T.A. and the Administration.

Compensation - See In-Service Compensation.

Programs in which participants will be remunerated must be mutually agreed to by the D.C.T.A. and the Administration.

Building level programs developed through the principal and the School Faculty Council will not be remunerated and must be on a voluntary basis.

PROFESSIONAL STAFF MEMBER ASSESSMENT

The term "assessment" is used to describe the philosophy, criteria and procedures by which professional judgments are made regarding each professional staff member's performance. The purpose of the assessment process is to bring about constructive change and be positive in approach.

A Formal Assessment is defined as one which conforms to the procedures listed elsewhere in this Article and on the Cooperative Assessment Form itself, and one which is filed in the Staff Development Department.

An Informal Assessment is defined as one which may be less structured and may be initiated by either the professional staff member or the Administrator. The results of an Informal Assessment should be utilized within the building between the professional staff member and Administrator for the professional improvement of the teacher.

The professional staff member will be fully informed by the principal as to how such assessment shall be conducted.

New professional staff members will have an Orientation Critique during the first three (3) weeks of school. They will be advised as to when the administration will observe and critique their performance.

Prior to completing a Formal Assessment, an objective review will be made of the conditions that have influenced the effectiveness of the professional staff member during the period for which the assessment is made. Both the professional staff member concerned and the administration will make this review.

The week during which observations for Formal Assessments will occur shall be announced.

All observations of the work of a professional staff member shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the professional staff member.

Each Formal Assessment of a teacher must be preceded by at least two (2) classroom observations of at least thirty (30) consecutive minutes, one observation being within ten (10) school days prior to the assessment.

Both observations of a teacher prior to a Formal Assessment must be made by the same building administrator. Upon agreement of the teacher and building administrator, a member of the Instruction Department or a qualified administrator from another building may perform a Formal Assessment.

Every classroom observation of a teacher must be followed as soon as possible but within one (1) week by a personal discussion between the teacher and those persons making the observations. Assessment must be behavioral in approach, must include suggestions for improvement and must be descriptive of specific teacher problems.

Any written report of an observation will be submitted to the teacher prior to the Formal Assessment. The teacher will have the opportunity to review the assessment report with the administrator. The document will be signed and dated by all concerned. Such signature by the teacher does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material. No additional comments by the assessor may be made after the assessment has been signed by the teacher. Adequate time for study of assessor comments will be given to the teacher prior to signing.

If a critical report of an observation of a teacher is made, the person making the criticism shall record his plan to correct the situation causing the criticism. The next observation report will explicitly, where possible, state what actual steps have been taken to correct the cause of criticism.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

The criteria to be included as part of a teacher assessment program are: Director of Learning, Counselor and Guidance worker, Link with the Community, Mediator of the Culture, Member of the Staff, Member of the Profession.

The criteria to be included as part of the assessment of professional staff members other than teachers will be criteria relevant to the position occupied by the professional staff member.

ASSESSMENT SCHEDULE

Teachers new to the Dayton Public School System will have a Formal Assessment each semester during their first two years. It is strongly recommended that each new teacher be assessed by the same administrator in a given school year.

Teachers new to a building shall have a Formal Assessment during their initial year. Teachers wishing to upgrade certification will request a Formal Assessment.

Any teacher may initiate a Formal Assessment for such purposes as self-improvement, renewal of current certification, or other employment purposes; however, each teacher will have a Formal Assessment once in each four years of service.

INDIVIDUALLY GUIDED EDUCATION

The self-improvement outcomes of the IGE process shall not be used as a substitute means of accomplishing the purposes of teacher assessment. Unit leaders or teachers shall not be required to assume responsibility in accomplishing the assessment of their colleagues.

Each new teacher will be assigned an assisting teacher associate; posting of promotions, except when an existing position is combined or reclassified, with eligibility requirements being appropriate degree and certification status, satisfactory prior service, appropriate background experience; criteria for transferring teachers, specific professional competencies, age, sex, experience, co-curricular interests, race, and longevity; vacancies posted from April 30 to end of the year; staff development department selects voluntary transfers; teachers already in the system have priority over "new hires"; teachers may apply for two openings; principal-initiated transfers to be made only "if all constructive means to remedy the situation are ineffective toward problem solution"; transferred teacher to be given choice among available assignments; teachers reassigned because of administrator-initiated transfer for organizational reasons may later request and will have priority for transfer from involuntary assignment; procedures for transferring nurses and counselors are similar to those for classroom teachers; teachers with continuing contracts and with greater seniority have priority during a reduction in force; "teachers, whose continuing contracts are suspended, shall have right of restoration of continuing service status in the order seniority of service," when positions later become vacant; dismissal procedures are initiated in instances of "gross inefficiency or immorality, for wilful and persistent violation of reasonable regulations or for other good and just cause"; professional staff member's dismissal must be preceded by conferences for the purpose of preparing a positive program for correcting the problem(s); appointment to summer and evening school and all other board sponsored education programs based on proper certification and satisfactory experience, and length of service when all else is equal and staff is balanced in regard to race, experience, and academic status; deadline for application for summer school assignment March 15 with notification of action on application by April 1; summer and night school assignments are based on length of service, instructional effectiveness, program type, and staff balance; any reduction in summer school force is according to length of summer school service, staff balance, and instructional effectiveness; teachers who taught night school the preceding year have priority for night school assignments; night school reduction in force will be according to length of service in the night school, staff balance, and instructional effectiveness; leave granted teacher from day school also applies if night classes are cancelled; staff members shall be compensated for all scheduled classes provided annual number of days of class requirements are met; reasons for denial of a summer or night school appointment given upon request; teachers shall have option of suggesting methods for reduction of operating costs; a substitute teacher with a degree and certificate if found acceptable after 20 consecutive days in one assignment may not be removed until the end of the year or until the teacher returns; after teaching 40 consecutive days the substitute will be placed on the regular salary schedule; regular teachers evaluate substitutes to determine continuance of service; school nurses' facilities will include a clinic with hot and cold running water, sufficient space for 20-foot vision test, private phone, proper first-aid equipment, and service of school secretaries; board provides required medical examinations and vaccinations free of cost; however, teachers bear the cost of private health services; public-address interruptions of classes only in emergencies; librarians and learning center teachers recommend use of monies funding their fields; protection of teachers: written report shall be made of any assault on a staff member; if assault is "sufficiently severe," it shall be reported to the police and the staff member shall be excused to seek a physician's evaluation of his injuries; school faculty may request security assistance if discipline in the school is in jeopardy;

CIVIL DISTURBANCE

In case of a general civil disturbance in the area of a school, a professional staff member fearful for his safety should contact the proper school authorities for instructions as to work assignment.

No professional staff member will be required to report to a school where clear and present danger exists, as determined by the Superintendent.

In the event of disorder or other emergency, while school is in session, no professional staff member shall leave a class unattended or dismiss a class unless instructed to do so by the principal.

PROTECTION OF PROFESSIONAL STAFF MEMBERS

General—The Administration recognizes its responsibility to support professional staff members in the performance of their duties and shall fully support and assist professional staff members in the maintenance of control and discipline in the classroom. In accordance with Section 3319.41 of the Ohio Revised Code, a professional staff member, principal, or administrator may only use such force as is reasonable and necessary to quell a disturbance threatening physical injury to others, to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects upon the person or within the control of the pupil, for the purpose of self-defense, or for the protection of persons or property. It is the responsibility of the professional staff member to provide a classroom learning situation which provides an atmosphere for learning to take place. When it becomes apparent that a break-down in classroom discipline is caused by a particular pupil who is disruptive in nature, it is the duty of the professional staff member and principal to find a reasonable solution to the problem.

DISRUPTIVE BEHAVIOR OF STUDENTS

Behavior which is regarded as disruptive is defined in Section 2151.022 of the Revised Code of Ohio as that of an "unruly child".

When the behavior of a student is identified as disruptive, a coordinated program of documentation will be instituted by the teacher or teachers, in conjunction with a School Counselor and/or Visting Teacher and/or School Psychologist. Such documentation will take place during a mutually agreeable period of time, not to exceed three (3) weeks.

Following the cooperative documentation, a conference will be held involving the teacher or teachers, parents, guardians, the principal and/or the School Counselor, and/or a School Psychologist and a representative of the D.C.T.A. The purpose of this conference shall be to:

Help determine root causes for the behavior.

Develop an individualized action program to meet the student's needs.

Provide a specialized counseling program to:

Act as positive feedback to those teachers concerned as to effectiveness of their educational approach regarding the disruptive student.

Maintain a longitudinal study of student improvement.

Provide the student with a personal relationship of professional quality to help resolve school oriented conflicts.

Should disagreement on the above program occur, the teacher, School Counselor and/or Visiting Teacher, and/or School Psychologist may present a written appeal to the Assistant Superintendent for Student Development, whereupon a conference shall be arranged with the teacher, a representative of the D.C.T.A., the principal and the Assistant Superintendent for Student Development. During the conference, the program for and placement of the student will be discussed with the object that all parties concerned might mutually agree on a satisfactory resolution. In the absence of such mutual agreement, the decision as to a final program and the placement of the student shall be that of the Assistant Superintendent for Student Development.

If a parental complaint against a teacher is not resolved through a personal conference, parents may pursue further action in writing; a copy shall be submitted to the teacher involved, who may either request a closing or filing of the matter or further action:

If requested by the complainant or the professional staff member, a meeting involving the professional staff member, the principal, and the complainant will be arranged at a mutually convenient time to discuss the complaint.

If the complaint is unresolved, it may be appealed to the appropriate director or assistant superintendent.

If it is not resolved at that level, it may be appealed to the Superintendent.

If it is still unresolved, it may be appealed to the Board.

In each of the steps above, a professional staff member may request, and be accompanied by counsel and/or representative of his choosing. Conferences regarding such complaints shall be private.

Rotation of staff members only upon request; student-teacher supervisory qualifications;

COOPERATING TEACHER

The Board recognizes the professional responsibilities of teachers to assist student teachers in developing into competent professionals. The Board also recognizes the fact that there is a certain degree of both personal enrichment and self-development in the cooperating teacher in his work in assisting and guiding the professional growth of the neophyte. The Board also recognizes that teacher training institutions have a responsibility for compensation and remuneration of those teachers who are supervising student teachers. This remuneration may come through college credit, free course offerings or through cash payment.

The Board will attempt to establish with universities the following policy:

An in-service course for those teachers with a minimum of three (3) years' teaching experience who desire to sponsor student teachers. This course should consist of appropriate lectures and discussion which will aid the cooperating teacher in his supervisory role with the student teacher. The course shall be waived for those persons who have through the years sponsored student teachers in the Dayton Public Schools.

Upon completion of this course, a teacher shall notify the Administration if he is willing to accept a student teacher for a supervised student teaching experience. No teacher shall be asked to supervise more than one student teacher at a time.

In addition to having completed the in-service course, the cooperating teacher should:

Possess at least a Provisional Certificate and a Bachelor's Degree.

Have three (3) years' teaching experience (one of which must have been in the present teaching field).

Have taught one year in the Dayton Public Schools.

Indicate an interest in teacher training and professional development.

Make application.

As candidates for student teaching become available, they shall be assigned to the various schools equitably.

The D.C.T.A. agrees to accept student teachers as associate members during their training period and include them in appropriate meetings and activities of the Association.

The Board agrees to provide student teachers with a copy of the texts, guides and building policies to assist them during this period.

No professional staff member will be assigned a student teacher without the professional staff member's consent.

Board encourages departmentalization and other organizational patterns which may more effectively achieve teaching objectives; department chairmen appointed by the principal with consent of department members; duties of department chairmen are to: "Develop curriculum materials, hold departmental meetings, confer with teachers on instructional problems, conduct demonstration lessons, visit classrooms on request of individual teachers, assist in the orientation of new teachers, assume responsibility for intra-departmental communication, advise on materials, supplies and equipment, represent the department in program planning and evaluating departmental performance with the administration"; to assist in the performance of these functions department chairman's teaching load shall be adjusted to extent possible; staff representatives to participate in development of plans for new buildings or for remodeling; provision for integration of the schools and for balancing staff according to age, experience, training, race, and sex.

Fairfax County, Virginia

Between the Fairfax County School Board and Fairfax Education Association, effective July 17, 1971, to June 30, 1973. Approximately 6,345 certificated professional employees. Provision for renegotiation to start by September 15 and for mediation if agreement is not reached by November 15. Provision for reopener if sufficient funds are not appropriated by the County Board of Supervisors. This agreement is automatically suspended during circumstances beyond the control of the school board such as an "act of God, riot, flood, civil disorder, national emergency, or other such acts."

COMPENSATION: (1972-73, based on a 4.4 percent cost-of-living revision of the 1971-72 salary schedule) B.A., $7,600 to $13,721, 12 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $14,553 maximum; M.A., $8,000 to $17,122, 17 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $17,852 maximum; Ph.D., $18,583.

DIFFERENTIALS: High-school major sport head coaches, newspaper, yearbook, equipment manager, assistant athletic director, $915; high-school major sport assistant coaches, dramatics, girls' sports head coaches, intramurals, $680; high-school girls' sports assistant coaches, band, cheerleaders, debate, choir, literary magazine, minor sports, ticket manager, $470; high-school forensics, junior and senior class advisors, $310; junior high intramural coordinator, $680; junior high assistant intramural coordinator, $495; junior high yearbook newspaper, and S.C.A., $310.

OTHER: Ten cents per mile reimbursement for use of own car for school business, a wage and salary cost consultant, whose fees will be shared equally by the board and the association, will make recommendations for design and structure of administrative salary scale; credit applied to teachers' progress toward the M.A. plus 30 hours lane for up to 5 hours' credit earned prior to meeting M.A. requirements; all veterans with 3 years' active military experience who have received only 2 years' credit will be given 3 years' credit "providing the total maximum salary credit in effect at the time of initial employment or promotion is not exceeded, no retroactive pay; $10 per day for sick leave accumulated after July 1, 1968.

LEAVES: Twelve days' annual sick leave, unspecified maximum accumulation; 3 days' personal leave, if unused, credited to sick leave; establishment of voluntary sick leave bank contingent upon participation of at least 2,000 employees; each employee donates one day of sick leave per year and may draw up to 45 days after 30 days' absence once own sick leave is depleted; if bank ever has less than 1,000 days additional assessment will be made; inservice leave contingent upon prior approval for professional conferences, school visitation, county classes, training sessions, and workshops; sabbatical leave at half pay with at least 20 sabbaticals offered in 1972-73 (providing there are 20 qualified applicants), at least 50 percent of the sabbaticals shall be given to teachers; up to 5 days' leave upon application for enrollment in college or university summer school; adoption leave available; leave with pay to employee having a positive tuberculin test pending final diagnosis; if teacher has tuberculosis, he may use all accumulated sick leave prior to severance; administrative leave will be provided if accumulated sick leave does not cover absence prior to severance.

INSURANCE: Board-paid hospitalization, medical-surgical, and major medical insurance coverage for individual premium or payment of three-fourths of family premium; if both husband and wife are employed in the district, board pays full family health insurance premium; major medical protection increased from $[illegible] to $[illegible]," joint "insurance Committee" to study hospitalization options annually; board pays one-third of premium for long-term disability protection.

ASSOCIATION: Administrative leave for state association convention delegates or participants upon request; experience credits given for unpaid leaves of absence of up to 2 years to engage in local, state, or national association activities; board to provide the association with list of personnel assigned each school as available; no-strike clause.

INSTRUCTION: School year, 9-3/4 months consisting of 185 instructional days and 8 inservice or record days;

> Days missed as a result of inclement weather shall not be made up except in the event that the total number of teaching days should fall below a minimum of 180. In such event, week days following the last teaching day of the school session will be used with one (1) work day to follow the final day pupils report.
>
> Principals will be directed to release teachers who have completed all required reports and other obligations from reporting on the final work day.

Assignment of additional specialists: 5 librarians or audio-visual specialists in 1971-72 and 2 in 1972-73; one additional director of health and physical education for 5 high schools in 1971-72 and one for 7 high schools in 1972-73; and 4 psychologists; maximum of one 11-month secretary per elementary principal; special reading courses will be made available to teachers willing to learn more about teaching and diagnosing students having reading problems.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; 30-minute duty-free lunch period except when pupils' lunch period is less than 30 minutes; 2½ hours per week conference preparation time for grades 1-6 teachers; utilization of school librarians as a means of providing preparation time to be discontinued; $135,000 tuition reimbursement fund provided; written teacher evaluation records to be maintained with teachers receiving copies of each evaluation; joint committee to continually develop and review evaluative instruments; 12-month extended contracts available on a voluntary basis to 390 teachers with criteria for selection including an application, 3 years' successful teaching in the county, a professional teaching certificate, principal's recommendation, and priority for tenure and longevity (may be waived when special skills are involved); in addition, department chairmen may receive extended contracts, the grievance procedure will apply during term of extended contract, teachers may resign from extended contracts without prejudice to later re-application, at least 4 special education teachers will be offered extended contracts; extended contract teachers will teach summer school, develop curriculum, participate in workshops, or other appropriate activities; transfer requests submitted before April 15 will be acted upon before hiring new personnel; staff members transferred involuntarily will be notified by April 15 (except in unusual circumstances) with reasons for transfer provided upon request; best interests of the education program will be criterion for transfers; teachers transferred because of de-staffing a school will have their preference of vacancies in other schools; appointment of principals for elementary schools by April, for intermediate and high schools by January 1, and for new grades 7-12 complexes by July 1 one year prior to opening; Faculty Advisory Council in each building to discuss matters pertaining to school operation and instructional program;

PROFESSIONAL STUDY COUNCIL

There is hereby established a Professional Study Council consisting of the Superintendent or his representative and two persons appointed by the Superintendent, and the Executive Director, the President, and the President Elect of the Association. The Council will meet periodically to discuss matters of mutual concern. Generally, the Professional Study Council will be expected to meet at not less than approximately monthly intervals during the school year, but the actual schedule of meetings will be left to the discretion of the Professional Study Council itself. Whenever it is jointly agreed to hold meetings during the school day, the members of the Professional Study Council, or members of any subcommittees created by it and whose attendance is required, shall be relased from school duties without loss of salary. Expenses arising from the operation of the Professional Study Council shall be shared jointly by the Board and the Association.

Joint Retirement Committee to study and make recommendation for programs supplementing state retirement program; the board may require board-paid mental or physical examinations; "married couples may not work in the same school."

VOL. 6 NO. 8
APRIL 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Appeals Court Overturns Lower Court's Appointment of Neutral Member to "Persistent Disagreement" Committee
- State-wide Negotiation Act Has Precedence Over City Ordinances
- School Board Has Sole Authority to Grant Sabbatical Leave
- Tenure Law Does Not Preclude Use of Arbitration Machinery in Dismissal Cases
- Longevity Increases, Graduate Course Reimbursement, and Agency Shop Provisions Upheld
- Educational Policy Not Negotiable

Board Findings and Rulings 6
- Student-Teacher Ratios Negotiable; Methods for Attaining the Ratios Not Negotiable
- Faculty Bargaining Unit Can Be Expanded by Accretion
- Board of Education Ordered to Rehire Teacher Fired for Involving Board in His Financial Woes
- PLRB Delineates Additional Negotiable Items
- Second Election for Catholic Lay Teachers Ordered
- WERC Refuses To Issue Advisory Arbitration Award
- Nonrenewal of Teacher's Contract Ordered to Arbitration

Negotiation Notes 9
- Public View as a Precondition for Negotiations Illegal
- Impact of CSC Rules Subject to Grievance Machinery
- Motion for More Definite Statement of Sex Discrimination Denied
- FSIP Supports Payment for Union Representatives' Negotiating Time
- Union Shop Clause Does Not Violate Constitutional Rights
- Public Employee Collective Bargaining Permitted
- Paid Voting Leave Affirmed

Statistics 12
- Negotiated Provisions for Inservice Training

Special Reports 17
- Negotiated Provisions for Elementary-School Teacher Planning Periods
- Briefs of Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2455

CASE REVIEWS

CALIFORNIA

Appeals Court Overturns Lower Court's Appointment of Neutral Member to "Persistent Disagreement" Committee

The California Court of Appeals overturned a lower court's appointment of a neutral third member of a "persistent disagreement" committee to resolve impasses between the Westminster Teachers Association (WTA) and the Westminster school district.

The court ruled that it would be inappropriate for a court to change a "comprehensive, unique, experimental scheme" for California teachers' labor relations by adding procedures "intentionally omitted by the legislature."

The state's Winton Act, which requires school employers to meet and confer with teacher representatives, provides for a three-member persistent disagreement committee to resolve persistent disputes. WTA and the school board met and conferred on a persistent disagreement resolution, but were unable to agree on a resolution procedure. The parties' efforts to designate a neutral representative to serve on the committee were fruitless, whereupon WTA petitioned the Orange County Superior Court to appoint a neutral third member.

The school board challenged the court's jurisdiction to appoint the third member. However, the court indicated that it had such authority and that it would obtain nominees from the state superintendent's office but inadvertently obtained a list of nominees from the Los Angeles County School superintendent. WTA suggested that the neutral third member be selected from a list obtained by the State Conciliation Service (SCS). This the court adopted and ordered.

The school board appealed the court's imposition of a third party, claiming that the court had no jurisdiction to do so and that it abused its discretion by using the SCS list.

WTA contended that while the law provides the right to form a persistent disagreement committee, it does not provide procedures for selecting the neutral third member in the event the parties cannot agree. Therefore, the court must provide a remedy.

The appeals court determined that the judiciary was not authorized to appoint a member to the statutory persistent disagreement committee. It held that "the imposition on either party of a member of the persistent disagreement committee selected by the court rather than by agreement of the parties is inconsistent with the Winton Act." The court ruled that it is inappropriate for the courts to alter a comprehensive, unique, experimental scheme enacted by the legislature by adding procedures intentionally omitted. (Westminster School District et al. v. Orange County Superior Court, WTA, et al., Court of Appeals, Fourth District, Second Division, State of California, October 13, 1972.)

CONNECTICUT

State-wide Negotiation Act Has Precedence Over City Ordinances

The Connecticut Supreme Court ruled on the appeal of three cases argued before it as companion cases. The major resolution in each case depended on a common basic issue—"the respective powers of a board of education vis-a-vis the municipal board of finance." In each case the court ruled that the financial provisions in collective bargaining agreements between the Waterbury Board of Education and the Waterbury Teachers Association (WTA) are subject to the approval of the Waterbury Board of Finance.

The disputes involved the conflict between provisions of the Waterbury Charter which vest the city board of finance with the power to approve the salaries of teachers as fixed by the board of education and act [No. 298] entitled "An Act Concerning the Right of Teachers' Representatives to Negotiate with Boards of Education." The case is based on the original Act of 1965.*

The association contended that Public Act 298 bound the school board to the terms of the negotiated agreement. According to the association, the Act's use of the word contract indicated "a legislative intent to add a binding effect to a negotiated salary agreement" and to invalidate all prior inconsistent legislation.

The court, in reconciling the charter with Public Act 298, reasoned that the legislature intended that "the [negotiation act] be read in light of existing legislation." Rejecting the association's argument that the legislature intended to add a binding effect to negotiated salary agreements, the court pointed out that "nowhere does [Act 298] say who should approve the contract before it becomes binding on the municipality or whether approval of any body other than the board of education is required." The court decided all three of the Waterbury contract dispute cases in light of this interpretation of the relevant statutes, but decided each separately.

*The 1969 amendments to Public Act 298 now provide a period of rejection of negotiated appropriation and further, that notwithstanding the provisions of any special act, municipal charter, or local ordinance, the provisions of Public Act 298 shall apply to negotiations concerning salaries and conditions of employment conducted by boards of education and certified personnel.

- In the first case, the court determined that the school budget set by the city board of finance legitimately negated the negotiated pay raises. This decision upheld a lower court ruling which had determined that the negotiated salary increments were not legally binding without the approval of the board of finance (as required by the city charter). The state supreme court likewise refused to mandate payment of the raises.
- When the board of education declined to pay raises negotiated in 1965, the association sought $40,000 in damages. The lower court denied the association relief. Again referring to the city charter, the state supreme court upheld the lower court's ruling.
- Regarding the third dispute, the state supreme court upheld a lower court's finding that an arbitrator had exceeded his authority when ruling in favor of the association concerning a pension plan dispute. Once again citing the city charter and the education laws, the court observed: "The tenor of our opinion in this trilogy of cases has been that the special laws which make up the Waterbury City Charter are valid and governing insofar as they apply to contracts and expenditures of the board of education which are not within the 'overriding exception' for expenditures which are necessary for the fulfillment of the board's statutory obligation to 'maintain. . .good public elementary and secondary school." (Waterbury Teachers Association v. Arnold Furlong, et al.; Waterbury Teachers Association v. Board of Education; Waterbury Board of Education et al. v. Waterbury Teachers Association, Connecticut Supreme Court, February 29, 1972.)

NEW YORK

School Board Has Sole Authority To Grant Sabbatical Leave

The New York Supreme Court ruled that the granting of sabbatical leave is the prerogative of the board of education, and the superintendent's recommendation of teachers for sabbatical leave does not establish a contractual right to sabbatical leave. The Plainedge Federation of Teachers (PFT) sought a judgment under Article 78 of the Civil Practices Laws and Regulations (CPLR), directing the board to grant to seven teachers sabbatical leave which had been approved by the superintendent.

The teachers' suit contended that the board was required to grant sabbatical leave to teachers recommended by the superintendent in accordance with the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement between the board and the PFT.

The board argued that a proceeding under Article 78 of the Civil Practices Laws and Regulations "is not a proper vehicle for the enforcement of an employment contract." The court agreed with the board's contention, but since the parties were before the court, the improper form was overlooked and the case was treated as an action for declaratory judgment rather than as an order of mandamus, the proper remedy for violations of legally imposed duties.

The court ruled that according to the bargaining agreement teachers had "no right to sabbatical leave and that the granting of such is solely within the discretion of respondent." Accordingly, the court ruled that the board had the right under the contract to reject requests for sabbatical leave. (Ewen v. Board of Education of Union Free School District 18, Plainedge, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, June 10, 1972.)

Tenure Law Does Not Preclude Use of Arbitration Machinery in Dismissal Cases

The Nassau County Supreme Court denied a motion of the Board of Education, Union Free School District #3, to stay arbitration of an individual teacher's dismissal dispute. The court found that the board did not prove that a valid agreement to arbitrate had not been made or that the arbitration was untimely.

The board filed the motion to stay arbitration subsequent to the institution of arbitration proceedings in a teacher's dismissal case. The board contended that under the state tenure laws there were other legal avenues available for an "aggrieved teacher" to challenge the adverse decision of the school board.

The court agreed with the board's contention, but added that a teacher had the right to choose arbitration to settle the dispute. Viewing the fact that the board had already involved itself in the initial stages of the arbitration procedure, the court believed that the board was estopped from filing a motion to stay arbitration. Accordingly, the court dismissed the board's motion, and ordered the arbitration proceedings to continue. (McCarthy v. Board of Education, Union Free School District #3, Town of Huntington, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, August 3, 1972.)

RHODE ISLAND

Longevity Increases, Graduate Course Reimbursement, and Agency Shop Provisions Upheld

The Rhode Island Supreme Court ruled that an arbitration panel did not overstep its jurisdiction by awarding longevity pay increases and reimbursement for graduate courses, and recommended inclusion of an agency shop clause in a contract between the School Committee of the Town of North Kingston and the North Kingston Teachers' Association (NKTA).

The school committee filed the complaint against the arbitration decision, contending that longevity increases and reimbursement for graduate courses are bonuses and therefore outside the scope of bargaining under the School Teachers' Arbitration Act (STAA). The school committee also argued that negotiation of an agency shop provision would be in conflict with the right-to-work provision of the STAA, which guarantees public-school teachers the freedom "to join or to decline to join any association or organization regardless of whether it has been certified as the exclusive representative of certified public school teachers." Additionally, according to the school committee, the teachers' bargaining act which is more restrictive than other state labor acts, indicates legislative intent to invalidate the agency shop as a type of union security provision.

Determining that longevity pay increases and reimbursement for graduate courses are regarded as salary under the STAA, the court ruled that these two items are within the scope of bargaining.

The NKTA argued that agency shop is valid as the two acts are not incongruous, and that the silence of the STAA regarding the paying of union dues by nonmembers is evidence of legislative intent to allow rather than ban an agency shop clause in a teacher contract.

The court noted that neither from the language of the Act nor the report of the legislative commission preceding its enactment could legislative intent be ascertained.

"It is as if there were a complete lack of awareness that there might someday be a proposal to include an agency shop provision in a labor agreement," the court said. The court decided that it had to "legislate between the gaps and fill the open spaces in the law" in order to formulate an appropriate rule concerning the agency shop issue.

Considering that a representative union must, by law, negotiate for both union and nonunion members and that such negotiations are costly, the court held that it would be inequitable to permit nonunion members to benefit from the services rendered by the union without requiring these members to bear a fair share of the financial burdens. The court approved an agency shop provision similar to the provision in New Jersey Turnpike Employees, Local 194, AFL-CIO v. New Jersey Turnpike Authority which requires nonunion members to share only those expenditures related to bargaining. (Town of North Kingston et al., v. The North Kingston Teachers Association, Rhode Island Supreme Court, November 30, 1972.)

SOUTH DAKOTA

Educational Policy Not Negotiable

The South Dakota Circuit Court ruled that the Aberdeen School Board could take unilateral action after conducting reasonable negotiations with the Aberdeen Education Association (AEA) in respect to subjects on which the board is legally required to bargain and that it need not negotiate on subjects that are educational policy or management responsibilities.

After reviewing the AEA negotiators' list of 15 items, the school board determined that it would negotiate on four items and refused to negotiate on elementary conferences, teacher aides, class size, audiovisual expansion, school-wide guidance and counseling programs, mandatory retirement of administrators, elementary planning periods, and budget allowances on the ground that they were not proper bargaining subjects under South Dakota's public employee bargaining statute.

The court pointed out that the employer is obligated to negotiate only items that have to do with conditions of employment, i.e., matters that directly affect the teachers' welfare and do not include "those matters which are predominately matters of educational policy, management prerogatives, or statutory duties of defendant board of education." According to the court all of the matters that the school board refused to bargain on were within the scope of the policy and management responsibilities of the board of education. (Aberdeen Education Association v. Aberdeen Board of Education, Brown County, South Dakota, Circuit Court, October 17, 1972.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

HAWAII

Student-Teacher Ratios Negotiable; Methods for Attaining the Ratios Not Negotiable

The Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board (HERB) determined that student-teacher ratio is a negotiable item, but that the method for attaining that ratio is a management prerogative. The HERB examined the "hybrid issue" of the negotiability of the pupil-teacher ratio, which involves both working conditions and management prerogative, in light of legal precedent, the parties' collective bargaining agreement, and the Hawaii Revised Statutes.

Included in the Hawaii Public Employment Relations Statute is the requirement that "public employers... negotiate with and enter into written agreement with exclusive representatives on matters of wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment" (Sec. 1). In addition, matters that are not negotiable are subject to consultation (Sec. 9 (c) if they in any way affect employee relations. Since a provision requiring that pupil-teacher ratio be reduced by one pupil per teacher obviously relates to working conditions, the HERB declared it a legitimate item for negotiation.

However, the HERB upheld the objection of the Department of Education (DOE) to negotiation of the precise method for reducing class size on the basis that state statutes do not allow a public employer to negotiate away the right and responsibility "to direct...transfer, assign and retain employees in positions,...maintain efficiency of government operations; determine methods, means, and personnel by which the employer's operations are to be conducted" (Sec. 9 (d) (1, 2, 4, 5).

Further, the Hawaii Constitution provides that "the board of education shall have power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the public school system" [emphasis added]. Thus, HERB voided the contractual provision that dictated the number of employees to be hired on the basis that this was "clearly a managerial decision." HERB held that the DOE can transfer teachers from support and special positions to classroom teaching positions, but in doing so, cannot eliminate negotiated staff benefits, such as duty-free preparation and lunch periods. Thus, the DOE had violated Sec. 9 (c) of the Act which requires consultation on "all matters affecting employee relations" when it failed to consult with the HSTA about the hiring, assigning, or transferring of teachers. The DOE's action was also in violation of the contract maintenance of standards clause.

The HERB resolved a jurisdictional question raised by a negotiated provision requiring final and binding arbitration for the settling of contract interpretation disputes and the scope of its authority in such matters. The Board, interpreting legislative intent, determined that the statute vested all authority in the Board, which can remand a case for settlement through the arbitration procedures.

Also resolved was the parties' disagreement over the method for determining pupil-teacher ratios. The DOE had determined a ratio of 27.4 to 1 by dividing the total number of pupils by the number of teachers (excluding special and support teachers) so that when special and support teachers were later transferred to classroom positions, the ratio appeared to decrease to 26.4 to 1. The HERB approved the Association's method, which included only those teachers actually in the classroom on the agreement's effective date in the ratio's common denominator. A ratio of 26.4 pupils per teacher, on the basis of the HSTA method of calculation, was upheld and the DOE was ordered to reduce average class size by one pupil per teacher "to the fullest extent possible" in accordance with the parties' agreement.

Also ordered were the reinstatement of the temporary support positions so that duty-free preparation and lunch periods might be continued, and consultation between the DOE and the HSTA on any matter that might arise in the future which affects employment conditions. (In Matter of the Hawaii State Teachers Association and Department of Education, Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board, October 24, 1972.)

MICHIGAN

Faculty Bargaining Unit Can Be Expanded by Accretion

Positions created after a unit determination become part of the new unit under the doctrine of accretion. Using this rationale, the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) determined that athletic coaches at Oakland Community College appropriately belong in the faculty unit, the Oakland Community College Faculty Association (OCCFA).

The MERC found that the "athletic program [of the college] is an integral part of faculty duties and responsibilities," and that the institution's total course of studies gave coaches a close community of interest with the academic faculty.

The MERC decision upheld a trial examiner's conclusions which had been tested in the state courts and returned to the MERC for final determination. The Commission held that the college's refusal to bargain with the OCCFA over the terms and conditions of employment of the coaches, regardless of their faculty status, violated the college's obligation under the Public Employment Relations Act to bargain with the employee organization.

The MERC explained that its decision to include coaches in the recently certified bargaining unit represented by the OCCFA was owing to the athletic coaches and the academic faculty's community of interest in the educational process. And though the college excepted to the trial examiner's decision to include the coaches in the unit and his order to bargain, the MERC ordered the college to bargain with the association over wages and working conditions of coaches. (In Matter of Oakland Community College and Oakland Community College Faculty Association, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, September 20, 1972.)

Board of Education Ordered To Rehire Teacher Fired for Involving Board in His Financial Woes

Ruling that the penalty imposed on a teacher was too severe in view of certain "mitigating circumstances," an arbitrator ordered the Dryden Board of Education to rehire for a third probationary year a teacher who had been fired because he had involved the administration in his personal financial problems.

Grieving the teacher's dismissal, the Dryden Education Association (DEA) cited two contractual provisions that the board had allegedly violated. One provision stated that "the private and personal life of any teacher is not within the appropriate concern or attention of the board" and the other provided that "no teacher shall be disciplined. . .without just cause."

The arbitrator rejected DEA's initial argument on the grounds that the teacher had "made his personal financial problems the concern of the board by involving the superintendent, by obtaining wage assignments, and by generally discussing his financial problems with the board." He then held that the teacher's nonrenewal was in fact a disciplinary action and focused on the question of whether or not the nonrenewal of the teacher's contract was for just cause.

The arbitrator argeed that the board should not have to spend time administering the financial problems of a teacher or be concerned with queries as to why a teacher cannot pay his bills. He pointed out, however, that since the teacher was attempting to pay his debts and remedy his financial status, the penalty of losing his job was too severe; moreover, the board considered the grievant a good teacher.

The arbitrator also noted that prior to the board's nonrenewal action the teacher should have been notified in writing that he would not be renewed if he continued to involve the board in his financial problems. On the basis of the foregoing, the arbitrator ordered the board to renew the teacher's contract. (Dryden Board of Education and Dryden Education Association, American Arbitration Association, July 25, 1972.)

PENNSYLVANIA

PLRB Delineates Additional Negotiable Items

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) declared that sick leave bank, occupational disease, family illness, court leave, unsafe teaching conditions, assaults on teachers, legal proceedings involving teachers, actions before the board of education, reimbursement for job-related medical expenses, loss of or damage to property, and compensation for extracurricular duties and athletic coaching are negotiable items. Thus, the refusal of the Cameron County and Richland School Districts to bargain collectively with teacher organizations concerning mandatory negotiable items violated Section 1201 (a) (5) of the Pennsylvania Employee Relations Act (PERA).

This section prohibits public employers from "refusing to bargain collectively in good faith with an employee representative" as specified in Section 701 of the PERA with "respect to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment." The PLRB's interpretation of the Act rejected the contention of two school boards that the disputed items were matters of "inherent managerial policy."

- In the Richland School District case, the PLRB observed that the subjects, such as teaching standards, budgets, technology, organization, and personnel, which involve "the foundation of the operations of a school system," are matters of "inherent managerial policy" because "these items begin at the management level and filter down to the employees." However, the Board found negotiable those items that "often originate closer to the employee level and have a direct, immediate bearing on [employees]." The negotiable items which the Richland School Board refused to negotiate were sick leave bank, occupational disease, family illness and court leave, unsafe teaching conditions, assaults on teachers, legal proceedings, actions before the board of education, reimbursement for the cost of job-related medical expenses, and loss of or damage to personal property. Determining that these items directly concerned the teachers' conditions of employment, the Board held that they were "fit topics of collective bargaining."

Also rejected was the school board's contention that the School Code precluded the board from negotiating these topics. The PLRB pointed out that the Code does not limit the powers of school districts, but rather establishes minimums of what teachers may receive. The PLRB stated that the "upper limits of what teachers may receive is subject to bargaining between the parties." (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Richland School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, November 20, 1971.)

- In the Cameron County School District case, the PLRB maintained that compensation for extracurricular duties and athletic coaching "cannot be divorced from the overall salary paid for services and must be considered an integral part of the wage scale calculation." Rejecting the school board's position that extracurricular positions were nonprofessional and not within the scope of the bargaining unit, the Board held that compensation for them is bargainable. Further, Section 701 of the PERA specifically required collective bargaining with "respect to wages." (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Cameron County School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, November 15, 1972.)

Second Election for Catholic Lay Teachers Ordered

Determining that the Archdiocese of Philadelphia Elementary School System circulated menacing campaign literature and challenged an extremely large number of ballots during the June 1972 election, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ordered a second election for the 1,400 Catholic lay teachers.

Campaign literature circulated by the archdiocese before the first election consisted of letters which, according to the Board, "lifted out of context" a portion of the decision directing an election, after finding that lay teachers were subject to the state's Public Employee Relations Act as their work "did not extend to the making of policy on religious matters." The PLRB was accused of implying that lay teachers have no real role in accomplishing the Catholic schools' religious purposes and that lay teachers would be admitting their noncontribution to the religious education of the children by voting for the union.

The Board determined that approximately two-thirds of the challenged ballots were cast by teachers who on the day of the election were eligible to vote.

In view of the archdiocese's campaign tactics, the number of challenged ballots, and the PLRB's loss of control of the election, a second election was ordered and the archdiocese was directed to conduct the second campaign "in an uncoercive manner," to limit its challenges to bona fide questions of eligibility, and to post the findings and conclusions of the PLRB. (PRLB v. Archdiocese of Philadelphia Elementary School System, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, December 15, 1972.)

WISCONSIN

WERC Refuses To Issue Advisory Arbitration Award

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) determined that it would be an abuse of its procedures to issue an advisory award and to proceed in a prohibited practice complaint on the same issue involved in the advisory arbitration.

Superior Federation of Teachers requested WERC to appoint an impartial arbitrator to resolve a dispute between the Federation and the Superior Board of Education. During the hearing, it was determined that the arbitrator's jurisdiction was limited to the issuance of an advisory award, binding on the parties only if they agreed.

The Commission decided not to appoint any member of its staff or Commission to issue advisory awards because they are not final and binding upon the parties. WERC stated that the parties should agree to final and binding arbitration, or the party alleging a contract violation should proceed in a prohibited practice complaint before the Commission. (Superior Federation of Teachers Local 202, WFT, AFT, AFL-CIO and Superior Board of Education, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, October 31, 1972.)

Nonrenewal of Teacher's Contract Ordered to Arbitration

An examiner for the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) ruled that the board of education and Oostburg Joint School District 14 committed a prohibited practice by refusing to proceed to arbitration concerning a grievance on nonrenewal of a teacher's contract.

The complaint was brought by the Oostburg Education Association, alleging that the board violated the contract when it did not hold a hearing or agree to submit the grievance to arbitration, and that the teacher was terminated without cause.

The board contended that WERC lacked jurisdiction in the matter and that the teacher was not terminated but that her contract was not renewed. Further, the board alleged that the nonrenewal of a contract is not covered by the agreement but is subject to Wisconsin Statutes and thereby is not subject to the grievance procedure.

The examiner held that according to Wisconsin Statutes, WERC has jurisdiction to determine unfair labor practices, as in this case. He determined that the issue of whether nonrenewal constituted termination, required an interpretation of termination and Article II of the collective bargaining agreement (which provides that the board may select and terminate a teacher for cause). The examiner ruled that such a determination must be made by an arbitrator, as provided in the agreement, not by the examiner.

The board contended that the 1970-71 contract had expired; therefore it did not violate that agreement. Further, the board argued that the teacher could not allege rights under a contract not in existence. But the examiner noted that WERC has held that the expiration of an agreement does not excuse the employer from arbitrating a dispute which arose during the term of the agreement.

Concluding, the examiner ordered the board to cease and desist from refusing to submit the grievance to arbitration, and directed the board to comply with the arbitration provisions of the agreement with respect to the grievance. He also ordered the board to notify the association that it would proceed to arbitration, and to assist the association in the selection of an arbitrator. (Oostburg Education Association and Ruthanne Meyer v. Oostburg Joint School District No. 14 and Board of Education of Oostburg Joint School District No. 14, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, November 17, 1972.)

Negotiation Notes

MASSACHUSETTS

Public View as a Precondition for Negotiations Illegal

Almost two years after the alleged violations had occurred, the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission (MLRC) ruled that the City of Salem had violated the Public Employee Labor Relations Act (PERA) by insisting on public view bargaining as a precondition to negotiations with the International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF). The city's conduct, according to MLRC, constituted a refusal to bargain in good faith.

When IAFF proposed amendments to the agreement, the city insisted "that as a precondition to negotiations the bargaining had to be held open to public view" and in the presence of rank-and-file members of the union. The IAFF proceeded to negotiate under protest, but when negotiations stalled, it filed charges with MLRC, alleging that the city violated the PERA by insisting on "public view" as a precondition to negotiations.

The MLRB noted the similarity between the Massachusetts bargaining statute and the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) which holds that negotiating parties can insist only on mandatory bargaining subjects such as wages, hours, and conditions of employment, as a bargaining precondition. Since public view bargaining does not fall within wages, hours, and other conditions of employment, and is not mandatory subject of bargaining, the court ruled that the city's insistence on it was illegal. However, the MLRB stated that had the IAFF agreed to the city's proposed public view bargaining, it would have become legal and the city would not have violated its duty to bargain in good faith.

The city's insistence that negotiations be conducted in the presence of rank-and-file members of the fire fighter's unit was determined to be "contrary to uniform bargaining practice, [and] not conducive to the orderly, informal, and frank discussion of the issues confronting the negotiators necessary to reach a contract, and violates the duty to bargain in good faith." The court also said that public view bargaining interferes with the employees' right to bargain through representatives of their own choosing.

Since setting preconditions to negotiations was "inconsistent with the procedural framework for municipal collective bargaining as set forth in the law," the MLRB ordered the city to bargain in good faith and to cease insisting on public view as a precondition to negotiations. (Mayor Samuel E. Zoll and City of Salem and IAFF Local 1780, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, December 14, 1972.)

MICHIGAN

Impact of CSC Rules Subject to Grievance Machinery

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) upheld a trial examiner's ruling that the Flint Civil Service Commission (CSC) violated the state's Public Employee Relations Act (PERA) by refusing to bargain with representatives of Local 1600, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, over the impact of newly reinstated residency requirements. The CSC had decided to further its affirmative action programs funded under the Federal Emergency Employment Act by imposing a residency requirement for new employees in positions other than those requiring college preparation. The union was notified of the change through a copy of the minutes of the CSC meeting.

Upon the city's refusal to rehire nonresident seasonal workers covered by the union contract, the union requested consideration of the effect of the residency requirement on city employees who might have current employee rights. When the CSC denied this request, the union charged that CSC had violated Section 10(e) of PERA.

At the hearing the CSC contended that "(1) the change in the residency requirement did not apply to current employees and thus had no effect on the bargaining unit; (2) CSC procedures are not grievable; and (3) two Michigan Supreme court decisions, Detroit Police Officers Association (DPOA) v. City of Detroit and Williams v. Detroit Civil Service Commission justify its residency requirement."

The trial examiner said that in City of Pontiac (PPOA) the MERC ruled that a public employer must bargain with the representative union with regard to a proposed change in residency even though the change was incorporated in an ordinance. The examiner also stated that nothing in the holdings in the two cases referred to by the CSC negated the city's obligation under PERA to "bargain with the agent of its employees in regard to the application, institution, or continuation of such requirement."

The trial examiner pointed out that even though the city did not have to bargain with the union concerning the application of the residency requirement to new employees, the employer should have bargained with the union to determine whether seasonal employees included in the bargaining unit were technically new applicants. Rejecting the CSC's contention that its procedures were not grievable, the trial examiner said that "CSC is only an arm of the City and there is nothing in the contract to indicate that its procedures are exempt from contract grievance procedure." (City of Flint, Civil Service Commission, and American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Local 1600, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, September 26, 1972.)

FEDERAL

Motion for More Definite Statement of Sex Discrimination Denied

When the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents was charged with violating provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act banning sex discrimination in paying wages, it requested a more definite statement of facts from the U. S. Secretary of Labor. The U. S. District Court ruled that the University had enough information in its records to frame a responsive pleading.

The University argued that the original pleading was so vague and ambiguous that it was unable to frame a responsive pleading without a statement detailing amounts, dates, and number of employees involved in the alleged acts of discrimination.

Relying on the case of Schultz v. Manor House of Madison, Inc., the court pointed out that federal rules require "relatively skeletal pleadings and place the burden of unearthing the underlying factual details on the discovery procedure," and that the Board could form a responsive pleading from its own records, payroll, and operations either admitting or denying the allegations. In light of the above, the court denied the Board's motion. (James D. Hodgson, Secretary of Labor, United States Department of Labor, Plaintiff v. The Regents of the University of Wisconsin and University Hospitals, Defendant, United States District Court, Western District, Wisconsin, October 24, 1972.)

FSIP Supports Payment for Union Representatives' Negotiating Time

In three precedent setting cases, the Federal Services Impasse Panel authorized payment for time spent by union representatives negotiating with federal agencies. The FSIP recommended payment for different amounts of negotiating time depending on individual circumstances.

The cases involved the Immigration and Naturalization Services of the Justice Department, the Texas Air National Guard, and the Naval Plant Representatives of the Navy Department bargaining with various locals of the American Federation of Government Employees. The AFGE argued that payment for on-the-clock bargaining was a necessary trade-off for the absence of the right to strike and the absence of union or agency shop. The FSIP believed that the preamble to Executive Order 11491 calling for the maintenance of constructive and cooperative relationships between labor organizations and management justified the payment of union representatives for negotiating time. According to the FSIP, "Paid official time for employees representing the union in negotiations is in keeping with this concept."

The FSIP's determination for the amount of compensated negotiating time depended on the size of the bargaining unit, the diversity of members' job classifications, and the geographical dispersion of the unit's members. "Negotiations" in the view of the FSIP, was the process beginning with preliminary meetings on ground rules and extending to "all aspects" of collective bargaining. The FSIP ordered payment for one-half of the negotiating time for AFGE representatives negotiating with the Immigration and Naturalization Services and the Texas Air National Guard, and for the first 40 hours of negotiations for AFGE representatives bargaining with the Navy Department's Navy Plant Representatives. In the last mentioned case, less paid time was authorized because the Panel believed that the parties' negotiations would be completed within 80 hours. (Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Services, and National Council of INS Locals, AFGE, Federal Service Impasse Panel, September 25, 1972; U.S. Naval Plant Representatives and AFGE Local 2693, Federal Services Impasse Panel, September 25, 1972; Texas Air National Guard and TANG Council of Locals, AFGE, Federal Service Impasse Panel, September 25, 1972.)

Union Shop Clause Does Not Violate Constitutional Rights

Upholding a district court decision, the U.S. Court of Appeals dismissed an employee's complaint alleging that he had been unlawfully discharged because he refused to join the United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union, AFL-CIO, or pay the equivalent of union dues pursuant to affirmation of a contract that contained a union shop clause between the Watervliet Paper Company of Michigan and the union. The employee refused to pay union fees on the ground that to do so would be a violation of his religious beliefs and, therefore, a violation of his First Amendment Rights.

The court noted that Congress authorized the inclusion of union shop clauses in collective bargaining agreements under the National Labor Relations Act. Additionally, this legislation has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court also cited two cases based on the issue involved in this case, Linscoll v. Millers Falls Co. and Gray v. Gulf, Mobile and Ohio R.R. Co., in which the courts ruled against the grievants. (Newell Hammond, Plaintiff-Appellant v. United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union, AFL-CIO et al., Defendants-Appellees, United States Court of Appeals, June 14, 1972.)

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

ARKANSAS

Public Employee Collective Bargaining Permitted

State agencies may bargain with public employees on nonlegislated items, but they are not obliged to do so.

items, such as wages and working conditions that are fixed by state law, are exempt from bargaining.

The attorney general observed that Amendment 34 to the state constitution permits public employees to belong to a union, but that the courts have held that municipalities are under no legally enforceable obligation to bargain with their employees. Citing court precedent, the attorney general noted that the "fixing of wages, hours and other conditions of employment are legislative responsibilities which may not be delegated or bargained away." He also cited Norwalk Teachers Association v. Board of Education of the City of Norwalk (Connecticut) wherein collective bargaining between public employees and a public employer concerning wages and working conditions was endorsed with the reservation that bargaining not go beyond the employer's power to delegate authority nor that any agreement be contrary to law (i.e., involve surrender of the agency's legal discretion).

The attorney general concluded that "while a public employer may bargain collectively with public employees through their union representatives, the scope of such collective bargaining is restricted by the legislative authority to fix wages, laws and other matters relating to working conditions."

Agencies will later be advised as to the extent to which they may negotiate with employees, since the legal limits of public employee collective bargaining have been left undefined.

OKLAHOMA

Paid Voting Leave Affirmed

The state attorney general, clarifying the statutory provisions mandating time off for voting, ruled that employees must be paid for such leave since denial of paid, voting leave time would penalize employees exercising their right.

Although the statute does not specifically grant paid-leave time, the attorney general held that legislative intent was to prevent employers from adversely influencing employees' exercise of voting rights by refusing to compensate them for time off for voting.

STATISTICS

NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS FOR INSERVICE TRAINING

Provisions concerning inservice training were contained in 35.0 percent of 1,529 comprehensive teacher agreements comprising NEA Research's Survey of 1970-71 Written Negotiation Agreements. By culling every fifth agreement, with at least one from each state having negotiated agreements, 110 provisions were selected for further analysis. The negotiated contents of these selected provisions were divided into three groups: (a) 12.7 percent contained stipulations concerning salary credit for participation in inservice training programs; (b) 36.4 percent made general statements either agreeing to establish an inservice program or recognizing an existing program, which had not been included in the agreement; and (c) 50.9 percent established guidelines for the existing inservice training program (Table 1). As the last mentioned category, which comprised over half of the selected provisions (56), was the most comprehensive insofar as these provisions related to functional programs, a sub-category was established for intensive analysis. The remainder of this article concerns these 56 provisions.

More than one-half of the 56 provisions specified purposes of the programs (Table 2), with improvement of the quality of instruction and furthering the staff's professional growth the most prevalent.

As shown in Table 3, the teachers and/or association's role in developing inservice training was outlined in about 45 percent of the provisions. More than 3 provisions in 10 stated that inservice training would be developed jointly by the association and the board of education, through either organized joint committees or informal consultations and meetings.

About 7 provisions in 10 indicated the types of inservice activities to be offered in the school district. The majority of provisions (48.2 percent) stipulated in-district activities,

TABLE 1.—INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
AGREEMENTS CONTAINING INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS	534	100.0
Inservice training provisions selected for analysis	110	20.6
INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS SELECTED FOR ANALYSIS	110	100.0
Specified only salary credit for inservice training	14	12.7
Contained general statement agreeing to establish or recognizing an existing inservice training program	40	36.4
Contained guidelines for an established program of inservice training	56	50.9
GENERAL CONTENT OF PROVISIONS CONTAINING GUIDELINES FOR AN ESTABLISHED INSERVICE TRAINING PROGRAM	56	100.0
Purpose of inservice training specified	29	51.8
Teacher involvement in developing inservice training program required	24	42.9
Types of inservice training activities offered	39	69.6
Requirements for attending inservice training stated	30	53.6
Time inservice training activities are to be conducted	29	51.8
Incentives for participating in inservice training stated	31	55.4

TABLE 2.–INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: SPECIFIED PURPOSE

Purpose	Number	Percent
1	2	3
To improve the quality of instruction	9	16.1
To further the staff's professional growth	8	14.3
To orient new teachers	4	7.1
To acquaint teachers with new curriculum and teaching methods	4	7.1
To improve the curriculum	4	7.1
Purpose not stated	27	48.2
Total	56	99.9

i.e., activities which were organized and directed by the school district, although outside personnel and resources were to be utilized in some instances. Activities conducted outside the school district (i.e., activities sponsored by professional organizations, higher education institutions, etc.) were the only form of inservice training indicated in 7.1 percent of the provisions.

Course work, specified in nearly one-half of the provisions, was to be conducted by the school district, sponsored by professional organizations or other groups, or offered by accredited higher education institutions. Workshops, specified by more than one-third of the provisions, were to be organized by the school district in 3 provisions in 10 and by professional organizations in 1 provision in 20. Inservice training meetings, exclusively school district sponsored, were specified in more than one-fourth of the provisions. Orientation sessions, curriculum development committees, purposeful travel, authorship of articles and books, attendance at professional conferences, research projects, class visitations, school district seminars, professional organization conventions, teaching college courses, and student/teacher supervision were infrequently found in inservice training provisions.

TABLE 3.–INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: ROLE OF TEACHERS AND TEACHERS ASSOCIATION IN DEVELOPING INSERVICE TRAINING

Role	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Program to be developed jointly by the teachers association and the board of education	17	30.4
Teachers and/or the teachers association to make recommendations to the board concerning inservice training	5	8.9
The teachers association must request inservice training	3	5.4
Role not stated	31	55.4
Total	56	100.1

More than 20 percent of the provisions contained statements regarding payment for inservice training expenses; 12.3 percent of the provisions stated that the board was to pay all expenses for in-district training, and 7.1 percent, required the board to absorb the cost of inservice training outside the school district. Relatively few provisions specified that the teacher was responsible for paying all inservice expenses.

As shown in Table 5, over one-half of the provisions analyzed contained requirements for teacher participation in inservice training. More than 20 percent of the provisions required all teachers to attend a specified number of inservice training meetings per year; 16.1 percent required first year or probationary teachers to participate in inservice training if the program was relevant to their teaching assignment, or if mandated by the administration.

TABLE 4.–INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: TYPES OF ACTIVITIES OFFERED

Type of activity	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Courses	26	46.4
In-district courses	14	25.0
Professional organization courses	6	10.7
Courses given by accredited higher education institutions	6	10.7
Workshops	21	37.5
In-district workshops	18	32.1
Professional organization workshops	3	5.4
School district meetings	15	26.8
Orientation sessions	4	7.1
Curriculum development committees	4	7.1
Travel	3	5.4
Authorship	3	5.4
Professional organization conferences	3	5.4
Research projects	2	3.6
Other	8	14.3
Only in-district inservice training activities indicated	27	48.2
Both in-district and out-of-district activities indicated	8	14.3
Only out-of-district activities indicated	4	7.1
Provisions indicating types of activity	39	69.6
Provisions not indicating type of activity	17	30.4
Total provisions analyzed	56	100.0

Stipulations as to when inservice training activities were to be conducted were included in over 50 percent of the provisions (see Table 6). More than one-fourth of the provisions stated that inservice training activities would take place during the school day with released time from teaching duties for participants. After school hours were specified in 21.4 percent of the provisions, and during the summer, in 3.6 percent.

TABLE 5.–INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: REQUIREMENTS CONCERNING TEACHERS' PARTICIPATION IN INSERVICE TRAINING

Requirement	Number	Percent
1	2	3
All teachers may be required to attend a specified number of inservice meetings per year	13	23.2
First year or probationary teachers must participate in inservice training	9	16.1
Teachers must participate when program is relevant to their teaching assignment	5	8.9
Teachers must participate when requested to do so by the administration	3	5.4
No requirements specified	26	46.4
Total provisions analyzed	56	100.0

Material incentives for participating in inservice training activities were included in more than one-half of the provisions. The majority of these provisions specified salary credit for all or part of the inservice training activities. Some provisions stated that inservice activities could be credited toward either an advanced degree or an extension of the teaching certificate.

Crediting inservice activities either to salary advancement or advanced degrees was subject to administrative approval in more than one-quarter of the provisions. For the most part inservice training was subject to the approval of the superintendent of schools, or, in smaller percentages of provisions, the principal or the board of education.

Following are several examples of negotiated inservice training provisions. These are sample provisions only and are not to be regarded as exemplary.

In-service education will consist of those courses, programs and projects undertaken by teachers while actively employed by the school district for the purpose of updating and improving their professional effectiveness and competence in the classroom.

Within the limitations of the criteria, the Board of Education will recognize any of the following in-service programs for salary credits:

TABLE 6.–INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: TIME INSERVICE TRAINING IS TO BE CONDUCTED

Time	Number	Percent
1	2	3
During school hours–released time	15	26.8
After school hours	12	21.4
Summer	2	3.6
Time not specified	27	48.2
Total provisions analyzed	56	100.0

- In-service courses organized by colleges or universities;
- In-service courses organized by related professional organizations;
- In-service courses organized locally.

Instructors for in-service courses will be fully competent in their specialty, familiar with problems involved in classroom or administrative implementation of the materials under consideration, and able to suggest creative approaches to better teaching.

Criteria for approval of in-service credit for salary purposes;

- One (1) credit hour equals fifteen (15) in-class hours.
- No more than one unexcused absence per credit hour will be allowed, but work missed by excused absence may be made up to the satisfaction of the instructor, and credit certified upon its completion. (Excused absences will be those generally considered legal for public school nonattendance by the New York State Department of Education.)
- Before more than ten (10) in-service credit hours will be recognized for an individual for salary purposes, five (5) graduate credits must be completed.

An in-service course will carry credit for salary purposes if

- the course and admission to it is approved by the Superintendent;
- the course is completed to the instructor's satisfaction;
- proof of satisfactory completion of the in-service course is sent to the Superintendent by the teacher.

[CORTLAND, NEW YORK]

* * *

IN-SERVICE WORKSHOPS

To maintain and improve teaching performance, the Board and Association realize the value of in-service training. In-service programs shall meet during normal teaching hours which will permit all teachers to attend and it is understood that two (2) half day sessions shall be held per year.

It is understood that attendance at the in-service workshops is mandatory unless permission is granted from the Superintendent of Schools to deviate from the planned in-service session.

A committee of three (3) teachers and three (3) administrators will plan the two (2) in-service training sessions per year. They may involve as many other professional staff as is necessary to facilitate the planning of these in-service training sessions.
In-service sessions will be held as long as they do not conflict with school calendar requirements which are to be determined by the Michigan State Department of Education.

[AVONDALE, MICHIGAN]

* * *

TEACHER IN-SERVICE EDUCATION

The Board and the Association agree that a cooperatively planned teacher in-service education program is indispensable for meaningful curriculum improvement. Therefore both parties agree to the following specific provisions.

Nature of the In-Service Program–
The general nature of the teacher in-service program shall be directed toward curriculum development and the improvement of teacher competencies in the classroom.

Released Time–
Teachers shall be released from their classroom's duties from time to time to engage in in-service training activities. These activities shall include:

- Inter-class and inter-school visitation.
- Attendance at professional conferences and workshops.
- Regularly scheduled in-service meetings.
- Unscheduled in-service meetings.
- In-service sabbatical program.

It is understood by both parties that not all in-service activities will be held on a released time basis. Some meetings and activities will take place after regular school hours and on weekends. It shall be the responsibility of the Assistant Superintendent for Instruction or his designated representative(s) to approve requests for released time for professional growth.

Induction of New Teachers Into School Community—
Designated teachers selected by the Board will assist new teachers during the new teacher's first year of employment.

Prescriptive In-Service Education—
As an individual situation may warrant, a building principal may recommend, and the Superintendent may direct that any teacher participate in an after school in-service training program of not more than two (2) hours per week and extending over a period of not more than six (6) school weeks, designed to heighten the capabilities of the teacher.

Responsibility for Teacher In-Service Training—
It is agreed by the Board and Association that responsibility for initiating cooperative planning for teacher in-service activities shall rest with the Assistant Superintendent for Instruction and his immediate staff.

[HIGHLAND, INDIANA]

* * *

IN-SERVICE EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Professional employees agree to participate in in-service educational programs to the amount of 22 and one-half hours each year, or an equivalent 15 meetings each year. No one of these meetings would exceed one and one-half hours in duration. Whenever possible and practical the school district will share the time equally with released time from the regular school day. As an example, during any one and one-half hour periods, the faculty group would give 45 minutes of time beyond the school day, and the district would match this with 45 minutes of released time from the school day.

TABLE 7.—INSERVICE TRAINING PROVISIONS, 1970-71: INCENTIVES FOR PARTICIPATING IN INSERVICE TRAINING

Incentive	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Inservice activities to be credited on the salary schedule	29	51.8
All inservice activities to be credited on salary schedule	26	46.4
Some inservice activities to be credited on salary schedule	3	5.4
Inservice activities could be credited toward an advanced degree or an extension of certificate	2	3.6
No incentive specified	25	44.6
Total provisions analyzed	56	100.0

Participating Association members shall have a part in organizing and planning in-service programs. This shall be within the framework of the established curriculum reference in which they operate. It shall encompass any phase of planning and organization; but, specifically, it shall refer to selection of the program, its scope and objectives, and the materials and the methods to be used and presented. Insofar as it is practical and applicable, teachers should consider participation as a voluntary function and a meaningful experience to be shared with professional colleagues and other interested parties of the school-community.

Credit awards shall be permitted toward the salary schedule on a two or three credit hours basis, whichever may apply. Hours can be credited in terms of work and service performed in any 22 and one-half hours in-service program. Credits will be evaluated by the person in charge of the program. He should be free to establish an evaluation committee from the group for such purpose to determine amounts of credit to be awarded. Full participation in the program including attendance at all meetings, active and positive participation, and follow-up work as writing a course of study or writing a summary of the materials studied would constitute full credit. Mere attendance and participation would be evaluated in terms of partial credit.

As in all matters, a teacher who wishes can invoke the grievance procedure so that full review can be considered of any dispute or misunderstanding in reference to any phase of the in-service policy.

[GRANVILLE, NEW YORK]

* * *

At the request of the Association or on the Board's initiative, arrangements may be made for: after school courses, workshops, conferences, and programs designed to improve the quality of instruction. Compensation may be provided for such after-school inservice training according to Appendix B.* Every effort will be made to obtain people of the highest qualification to participate as consultants or resource people in such activities. The Board may provide, as a condition of employment prior to the hiring of a teacher, that attendance of certain after-school inservice training activities be required.

When a comprehensive evaluation by the principal or immediate supervisor shows the need for inservice training of any teacher, a request that the teacher receive the needed inservice training shall be a matter of record. While attendance is voluntary, the teacher's participation or non-participation shall likewise become a matter of record. Such activities will be within the teacher's workday, or reimbursed at the inservice training rate established in Appendix B. Except as provisions may be made by the Board as a condition of employment prior to the hiring of a teacher, attendance at such after-school inservice training activities, whether initiated by the Association, the Board, or jointly, shall be voluntary on the part of the teacher.

[*$4.20 per hour for inservice activities.]

[LIVONIA, MICHIGAN]

* * *

INSERVICE CREDIT

Teachers must secure prior approval from the District Principal in order to assure in-service credit. At least six credits of each fifteen must be earned in degree granting institutions. Credits may be earned as follows:

Organized classes:

- Appropriate courses given by a degree granting institution.

- In-service courses given by the Valley Stream Inter-District Committee or School districts.

- Special courses given by other approved organizations.

Purposeful travel:

- Two credits will be earned for at least six consecutive weeks of purposeful travel. A maximum of four credits will be granted for travel within each fifteen points claimed for salary credit.

- An itinerary, including dates, is to be submitted with the request for prior approval.

- A written report of travel, including statement of objectives, activities pursued, and appraisal of trip indicating cultural and professional significance of important places visited and major activities completed, is to be submitted to the District Principal within three months after travel has been completed.

Cooperating teacher:

A cooperating teacher will receive two credits for satisfactory service rendered to each student teacher. A maximum of four credits will be granted for cooperating teachers within each fifteen points claimed for salary credit. A cooperating teacher may be expected to accept additional student teachers without credit during this fifteen point period.

Study groups:

Two credits will be allowed for study completed by a teacher in a local study group provided it meets the following criteria and is approved in advance by the District Principal. A maximum of four credits will be granted in each fifteen points claimed for salary credit.

Organization Requirements:
The study group shall be organized under the auspices of the Board of Education or a recognized teachers association and offered at an hour not included in the regular school day.

Study Requirements:
The organization of the program of study shall stimulate advanced and independent study on the part of members of the group.

The study group shall meet for study and discussion purposes for a total of at least thirty hours within twelve months of date of inception.

Report:
The group chairman shall keep permanent records clearly indicating the study completed by the group. Individual attendance and contributions shall be recorded. No credit shall be granted any person absent for more than 10% of the total meeting time.

This report is to be filed with the District Principal prior to granting credit to an individual teacher for participation in a study group.

Authorship:

- Professional articles totaling 1,500 words or more published in a recognized magazine or journal will earn two credits.

- The publication of a professional book by a recognized publisher will earn two credits.

- A maximum of four credits will be granted for authorship within each fifteen points claimed for salary credit.

Teaching a College Level Course:

Two credits will be earned by teaching a college level course for which credit is granted; providing the course content relates to the teaching assignment of the instructor. Credit for teaching on the college level may be earned only once in the Valley Stream districts.

[VALLEY STREAM NO. 13, NEW YORK]

SPECIAL REPORTS

NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS FOR ELEMENTARY-SCHOOL TEACHER PLANNING PERIODS

Provisions for planning periods for elementary-school teachers were found in 42.8 percent (655) of 1,529 written negotiated agreements for 1970-71 analyzed by NEA Research. Every fifth agreement, with at least one from each of the 31 states which have contracts incorporating such a provision was selected for further analysis, a total of 137.

Planning periods allow time during the teacher's regular school day for planning, developing tests, improving curriculum, reviewing instructional materials, holding conferences with parents, maintaining records, or correcting papers. Of the 137 selected agreements containing provisions for planning periods for elementary-school teachers, 27 percent contained general statements on the purpose of such planning periods. Examples of these types of statements are:

> The Board recognizes the value of a planning period for improving the educational climate. The intent of the planning period is to provide a period of time to the teacher for lesson planning, meeting with individual students, professional reading, visiting other classes or engaging in activities that will improve teacher performance or student learning.
>
> [Mapleton School System, Denver, Colorado]

> It is expected that preparation periods will be used for such things as thorough class preparation, conferences with students, teachers, parents, and administrators, teaching interns, support ing personnel, and special assistance to students individually and/or in small groups, professional reading, writing, and research.
>
> [Glen Ridge, New Jersey]

TABLE 1.–NEGOTIATED CONTENT OF PLANNING PERIOD PROVISIONS FOR ELEMENTARY-SCHOOL TEACHERS, 1970-71

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Function of planning period	37	27.0
Schedule of planning periods	127	92.7
Length of planning period	53	38.7
Teacher cannot be assigned to other duties	25	18.2
Teacher permitted to leave classroom when class is being instructed by special subject teacher	24	17.5
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS	137	100.0

TABLE 2.–SCHEDULING OF PLANNING PERIODS, 1970-71

Scheduling of planning periods	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Daily	72	52.6
Weekly	17	12.4
Only during special teacher's instruction of class	38	27.7
Not specified	10	7.3
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS	137	100.0

Special provisions exclusively for planning periods for elementary teachers are found in 73 percent of the agreements. The remaining agreements cover all teachers under the same planning period provision. Over half of the provisions analyzed allow for preparation time on a daily basis. In more than one-fourth of the agreements planning periods for teachers are scheduled only during the time that their classes receive instruction from special subject teachers (art, music, language, physical education) with less than 2 percent (1.5) of the provisions requiring that teachers remain in the classroom during the special subject teacher's instruction time. In 3.6 percent of the agreements, teachers with regularly scheduled planning periods also receive time off during the special subject teacher's instruction time.

A few agreements, other than those which schedule the planning period during the time special subject teachers are in the classroom, specify how the school system intends to supervise pupils during planning time. The following provision is an example.

> The Board agrees to hire at least 95 additional Teacher Aides, such aides to be used first for the purpose of providing the preparation time provided in subsection 5 above, and then for the purpose of helping teacher and relieving teachers of non-teaching duties as to be agreed upon the parties.
>
> [Buffalo, New York]

More than half the agreements (62.0 percent) do not specify the length of the period, but among those that do, 30 minutes is stated as the length of the period more than any other. Examples of provisions specifying time follow.

All elementary classroom teachers shall have at least one thirty-minute period per day.

[Madison Community Unit District 12, Madison, Illinois]

Classroom teachers shall, in addition to their duty free lunch period have daily preparation time during which they shall not be assigned to any other duties as follows:

Elementary School - 45 minutes per student day.

[Manasquan, New Jersey]

TABLE 3.–LENGTH OF PLANNING PERIODS, 1970-71

Length of planning periods	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Less than 30 minutes	6	4.4
30 minutes	23	16.8
31-44 minutes	6	4.4
45 minutes	9	6.6
46-59 minutes	2	1.5
60 minutes or more	6	4.4
Length of period not specified	85	62.0
TOTAL SAMPLE PROVISIONS	137	100.1[a]

[a] Percentages do not add to 100% owing to rounding.)

A normal teaching load (K-6) will consist of a maximum of three hundred sixty (360) minutes of instructional teaching per day over a one week period, plus a minimum of sixty (60) minutes of preparation time per teaching day.

[Lodi School District No. 1 Lodi, Wisconsin]

Almost 1 provision out of 5 states that teachers are not to be assigned to other duties during the planning period, while 5.1 percent state that teachers could be assigned to other duties during this time. Some provisions stipulate that the planning period is to be duty free, but in case of emergency, the teacher may either be assigned or voluntarily serve as a substitute with compensation; for example:

The practice of using a regular teacher as a substitute, thereby depriving him of his preparation period, is undesirable and shall be discouraged. In those cases where regular substitutes are not available, regular teachers may be used as substitutes during their non-teaching time. Assigned teachers shall be paid at the rate of $5.00 per hour or any fraction thereof. Such coverage shall be arranged by the principal of the school in question and shall be distributed as equitably as possible within the areas of certification of the absent teachers and those who substitute for them.

[Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey]

It is desirable for each teacher to have an uninterrupted preparation period each day. The practice of using a regular teacher as a substitute, thereby depriving him of his preparation period, is undesirable and shall be discouraged. In those cases where regular substitutes are not available, regular teachers who volunteer may be used as substitutes during their regular non-teaching time. In the absence of volunteers, a teacher may be assigned to serve as a substitute. Volunteers and assigned teachers may choose to credit these periods up to a total of ten (10) periods which shall entitle him to one (1) additional personal business day to be taken before the end of the current school year.

[Spotswood, New Jersey]

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Lyon County, Nevada

Between the Lyon County School District and the Lyon County Association of Classroom Teachers, effective August 15, 1971, with provision for annual renewal unless either party requests changes or termination. Approximately 90 certificated professional employees. Provision for a meeting at the request of either party within 15 days to renegotiate any portion of this agreement. Provision for factfinding which may be binding by mutual agreement in case of negotiation impasse.

COMPENSATION: (September 1971 to June 1973) B.A., $7,700 to $10,164, 8 increments; B.A. plus 32 hours, $12,012 maximum; M.A., $8,624 to $12,936, 14 increments, salary placement determined by a combination of graduate and/or undergraduate credits (undergraduate credit equals two-thirds of graduate credit).

DIFFERENTIALS: Head baseball, basketball, football, track, and wrestling coaches and athletic director, $650; assistant coaches, $500; girls' intramurals, basketball, and drill team, yearbook sponsor, and elementary intramurals, up to $425; band and music instructors, grades 7-9 basketball coaches, up to $400; high-school cheerleader sponsor and department heads, $300.

OTHER: Regular teachers receive hourly substitute rate when serving as substitutes; salary as "agreed upon" shall be received for working on curriculum projects during the summer.

LEAVES: Fifteen days' annual sick leave to be used for personal illness, doctor's appointments, and illness in the immediate family, 90 days maximum accumulation; 5 days, deducted from sick leave, for bereavement leave, and school trustees or designee may grant additional bereavement leave.

INSURANCE: Board pays 30 percent of group health insurance; job-related liability insurance provided; board pays medical expenses resulting from job-related injury or occupational illness over and above legislated maximums.

ASSOCIATION: Released time for workshops, conferences, conventions, and other organization activities granted to association representatives at the discretion of the superintendent; one association member shall be present at all board meetings, released time will be granted if meeting is during the school day, and an additional association member may be invited to attend; association representatives to assist in revising school policy guide; board to provide association with available information pertinent to the development of constructive negotiation proposals, including complete and accurate financial reports and the next year's tentative budget; no-strike clause.

INSTRUCTION: Association and administration agree to cooperate in the mutual development and implementation of experimental and innovative programs, and "new techniques in staffing and scheduling [which] may involve changes in the length and number of class periods taught and the number of students assigned to a given class"; teachers to report no more than 15 minutes before or remain longer than 15 minutes after classes; 7½-hour workday; association proposes school calendar; association and board to confer to improve selection of teaching materials; participation in curriculum development committee is encouraged with released time for curriculum projects that require special planning; each student is to have textbook(s) for each class; association may object to textbook changes; association to recommend topics for inservice training, conferences, and workshops; insofar as possible curriculum workshops and district-wide programs shall be jointly developed; teachers involved in experimental and innovative programs may be requested to attend inservice training sessions.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration "provided that both parties have so agreed beforehand"; right to review and make copies of material in personnel file, with the exception of confidential information; reductions in rank or compensation and adverse evaluations are subject to the grievance procedure; teachers shall be notified of any reprimand or evaluation placed in file with opportunity to discuss the material with his principal; all information concerning discipline of a teacher must be made available to that teacher; "use of public address systems or other surveillance devices is strictly prohibited"; each school shall have a faculty advisory committee which meets at least once a month; provision for joint committee, composed of 2 association and 2 administrative members to evaluate and review existing facilities at least once yearly; teachers who will occupy new or renovated buildings may act as consultants to administration and architects; association has prerogative of reprimanding teachers who violate the professional code of ethics; dress and hair style to be compatible with community standards; teachers shall not be required to score achievement tests if machine scoring is available; any teacher running for public office must notify the board, "may expect a change in teaching assignment as a consequence of running" for office, and if elected, will be granted a leave of absence without pay for term of office.

* * *

Houston, Texas

Between the Board of Education of Houston Independent School District and Teacher Council for Professional Consultation, effective October 9, 1972. Approximately 7,500 certificated nonsupervisory personnel. Provisions for completion of negotiation by May 31.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $7,100 to $10,200, 10 increments; M.A., $7,720 to $11,440, 12 increments; Ph.D., $12,060 maximum; super-maximum pay at $100 on B.A. lane and $310 on M.A. or Ph.D. lanes if maximum salary is reached in 1971-72; terminal pay or amount paid to estate of deceased teacher for accumulated unused annual leave not to exceed one-half the contract year at current annual rate, providing the teacher is eligible for state retirement plan; maximum of 5 steps credited for prior experience with one step credited for each 2 years' experience in an accredited school; 90 or more teaching days per year to equal one year of service; extended or reduced work year paid on pro rata basis; special increments and extra days' service for counselors, 2 steps and 10 days extra; registrars and secondary head librarians, one step and 5 days extra; special education, one step and regular work year.

LEAVES: One and one-half days per month annual leave for tenure teachers, credited at the beginning of the school year, and one day per month for probationary teachers to be used for personal illness, illness in the immediate family, funerals, and personal business (24 hours' notice required); 3 days per occurrence for death in the immediate family; professional leave, as granted, for school visitations and professional meetings; leave as necessary to participate in board of education/teacher council meetings and grievance proceedings; paid leave for jury duty or mandatory court appearance, less court fees; up to 15 days' paid leave for military reserve obligations, less military pay; sabbatical leave at not less than one-half pay for one year after 6 years' service.

INSURANCE: Board contributes 1 percent of each teacher's annual salary or $72, whichever is greater, toward the individual premium for basic hospital and major medical insurance; $50,000 special fund to cover salary and medical and hospital costs (not covered by regular health insurance) resulting from assault of teacher while performing job-re lated duties, maximum medical and salary payments of $20,000 per teacher (with no deduction from annual leave); tax-sheltered annuity plan.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; leave of absence with salary credit for any association officer when association remits sum equal to salary; released time for negotiation sessions during the school day; association representative may transact organization business on school property provided normal school activity is not interrupted; one inservice day to attend state association's annual convention; use of school buildings at reasonable hours with the association paying costs; use of school bulletin boards, mail service, and mailboxes, with delivery of association mail "unopened"; board to furnish records and data pertinent to negotiation, with cost of collection and reproduction to be shared by both parties; board to provide preliminary budgets and proposals affecting teachers' conditions of employment as they become available; board to distribute a minimum of 5 copies of this agreement per building with the teacher council being allocated 500 copies.

INSTRUCTION: Teacher-pupil ratios: grades K-6, 1 to 30; grades 7-9, 1 to 28; grades 10-12, 1 to 25; during 1972-73 these ratios may be exceeded by one student per teacher owing to budgetary restrictions; special education teachers, itinerant teachers and specialists are exempted from established ratios; academic class size goal, 37 students; school calendar, 180 instruction days and 10 inservice days; joint curriculum development committee for the development, implementation, and evaluation of curriculum with recommendations to be made to chief instructional officer; all innovative programs to be discussed with staff prior to implementation, but if school is not in session, faculty advisory council or representative teacher group shall be called into session and consulted; no performance contracting related to direct instructional services may be executed without review by teacher council; club sponsors must know how money is expended and must approve disbursement vouchers; funds of clubs to remain in club account from year to year, but if club is inactive, funds may be transferred by the principal.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with action as provided by state board of education policy and law; right to review nonconfidential contents of personnel file and to be accompanied by another person; evaluation protests to be attached to personnel file; at least 45 minutes for preparation as provided by statute; daily relief time for elementary teachers; new teachers are required to attend two-day orientation session prior to the start of school without remuneration; funds to be provided for cooperatively developed staff development program; at least one-half of nonteaching time during opening and closing days reserved for planning and the completion of reports and records; substitute teachers provided if staff development activities are held during the school day; teacher council chairman to appoint staff development planning committee; no districtwide staff development may be scheduled on state association convention days; inservice activities to be provided teachers not attending state association convention; student teacher assignments are voluntary; teacher evaluations are conducted openly by the principal or his designee and based on reasonable criteria; the National Teachers Examination may not be an employment requirement; with the exception of part-time principal positions, all job descriptions for promotional vacancies shall be posted; professional personnel to be assigned so as to maintain racial and experienced-inexperienced teacher balances; bi-lingual teachers to be given preference for Mexican-American school assignments; teachers have the right to initiate transfers, decision resting with the principal with advice and consent of the area superintendent; transfer requests of contract teachers have priority over those of probationary teachers; vacancies to be posted May 15 and updated through June 15; teachers requesting transfer may not be assigned an unrequested position involuntarily; transfer appeals committee, 3 members of which are appointed by the general superintendent and 3 by the chairman of the teachers council, forwards its recommendations to the general superintendent; reduction in force within building, teaching area and level on the basis of seniority in this order: permanent substitute assigned teachers, probationary teachers, and continuing contract teachers; recall will be in reverse order of layoff;

TRANSFER OF TEACHERS

TEACHER-INITIATED REQUEST FOR TRANSFER

It is agreed that all teachers have a right to initiate transfer requests from one school to another, that all decisions regarding transfer requests are educational decisions and the individual best qualified to make such decision is the principal with the advice and consent of the area superintendent.

The transfer requests of contract teachers shall be considered before those of probationary teachers. Requests for transfer shall be made annually and in duplicate, signed and dated, with one copy going to the Personnel Office, and the other to be retained by the teacher. All requests for transfer will be acknowledged in writing by the Personnel Office. The Personnel Office shall keep an updated file of all requests as of May 15 of the current school year.

A list of vacancies as of May 15 of the current school year shall be posted and up-dated through June 15 in the schools and the central administration building. It shall be the responsibility of the teacher seeking a transfer to make an appointment with the principals of those schools where the desired vacancies exist.

Any teacher requesting a transfer shall not be assigned without his concurrence to a position other than that for which he has applied. If he does not receive his specific requested assignment, he shall not be singled out for an involuntary transfer, but shall be considered equal with others in his experience category for administration-initiated transfer.

SPECIAL TRANSFER

A teacher may direct a transfer request motivated for special professional concerns to the area superintendent. In the event the transfer request is not granted, the teacher may appeal to the Transfer Appeals Committee.

The Transfer Appeals Committee shall have six (6) members, three (3) of whom shall be appointed by the General Superintendent and three (3) of whom shall be appointed by the chairman of the Teacher Council. Recommendations of the Transfer Appeals Committee shall be forwarded to the General Superintendent.

TRANSFERS NECESSARY TO ACHIEVE RACIAL BALANCE

If it becomes necessary to create vacancies to achieve racial balance, the guidelines adopted by the Board of Education on April 27, 1970, shall prevail with the following exception: deletion of paragraph II, A 4e which reads "Not more than the proper racial balance of the teachers in any subject matter area in the secondary schools or in the two divisions of the elementary schools will be moved."

TRANSFERS NECESSARY TO MAINTAIN RACIAL BALANCE

If it becomes necessary to create vacancies to maintain racial balance as indicated by law, teachers may be reassigned on the following basis:

- Consideration shall be given to distance from residence of teachers of the same race in making the new assignments.
- Priority of reassignment shall be on the basis of seniority in the school district. In the case of equal experience, the principal shall decide who will make the transfer.
- No teacher will be transferred outside the scope of his teaching credentials.
- Any teacher displaced by the effort to maintain racial balance shall be reassigned within sixty (60) days and without loss of pay, unless such displacement grows out of a general reduction of staff under Article VII, Section 6.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF INVOLUNTARY TRANSFER MADE IN ORDER TO ACHIEVE RACIAL BALANCE

Any teacher who feels that such involuntary transfer is contrary to the provisions of this agreement or would work an undue hardship because of physical reasons, shall have the right of appeal to the special committee established by the April 27, 1970, guidelines.

Retirement at age 65; Special Projects Fund, administered by 3 teachers and 3 administrators, funds innovative projects; coercion to join or not join any organization is forbidden; no political activity on school property during school hours; any political material used in classes must have legitimate relationship to the instructional unit studied; each building to have a faculty advisory committee (composed of one teacher for every 10 teachers or fraction thereof with a minimum of 4 teachers per building) to discuss formulation of policy with the principal at least once per quarter; any collection of funds from the faculty is voluntary with use thereof directed by an elected faculty committee; no solicitation clause; administration supports teachers in maintenance of discipline and assists teachers with legal and judicial handling of assault case of third party suit;

SPECIAL PROJECTS

It is agreed that the Houston Independent School District shall set aside sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) in an account to be deemed the Special Projects Fund. The purpose of this fund is to encourage teachers to be innovative in their classrooms. It is also to shorten the time span whereby a teacher can get an idea from the drawing board into action. Once such a fund is established, it is agreed that it be administered by three teachers appointed by the Chairman of the Teacher Council and three administrators appointed by the General Superintendent.

This Special Projects Committee shall be responsible to their respective bodies and the General Superintendent. Their responsibilities shall include receiving written proposals from teachers for innovative projects, judging the merit of such proposals, recommending allocation of funds to that teacher and securing evaluations of the projects from the teacher after a specific length of time.

Teachers may write a proposal for any project they wish to attempt. The proposal shall be presented to the principal and to the Special Projects Committee and shall include purpose, structure and evaluation procedure. The teacher is accountable to the principal and committee and must report his findings with an evaluation of the project. Information gathered in this process is the property of the school district and may be disseminated among other teachers.

Teachers may act as individuals or as teams or as whole faculties in submitting proposals.

At the end of the school year it shall be the responsibility of the Special Projects Committee to report directly to the General Superintendent the number of projects undertaken and their findings.

Bellevue, Washington

Between the Bellevue Public Schools Board of Directors and the Bellevue Education Association, effective for the 1972-73 school year. All-inclusive "certificated personnel" manual states:

"Any settlement of policy matters reached in meetings between representatives of the recognized employee organization and the Superintendent and/or his representatives or a committee of the Board, as the case may be, shall be reduced to writing in the form of a proposed resolution to be signed by the parties with the understanding that said proposed resolution will be recommended: (1) to the recognized employee organization for ratification within two weeks; and (2) to the Board of Directors of the Bellevue School District for adoption at a public meeting of the Board. When adopted by the Board, a resolution so proposed shall constitute Board policy with respect to that matter subject to change only as provided herein."

Approximately 1,195 certificated professional employees.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A. $7,400 to $10,878, 9 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $11,366 maximum; M.A., $8,880 to $14,060, 11 increments; M.A. plus 45 hours, $16,058 maximum; Ph.D., $16,798 maximum; salary credit for experience in other school districts;

one year's credit for either full semester or 90 days' service during the year; up to 2 years' credit for VISTA or Peace Corps service; increments of employees on probation are postponed.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1972-73, first and seventh steps indicated) senior high football and basketball, $866 to $1,123; senior high head wrestling and swimming, $650 to $842; senior high head baseball, track, cross country, music and band, $614 to $795; senior high assistant football and basketball and dramatics, $542 to $702; senior high assistant track and gymnastics, $361 to $468; tennis, $289 to $374; vocal and orchestra music, volleyball, badminton, $217 to $281; senior high stage crew, drill team, $144 to $187; junior high basketball and football, $578 to $748; junior high baseball, track, wrestling, $469 to $608; junior high music and orchestra coordinator, $144 to $159 (two increments); elementary-school patrol coordinator, $144 to $166 (three increments); extended contract compensation is per diem rate of regular salary.

ASSOCIATION: Substitutes supplied for up to seven association negotiators when sessions are held during school hours; board provides one copy of this agreement per building or department, one copy per 30 teachers or fraction thereof, and one copy per administrator.

INSTRUCTION: School year is 180 instructional days with automatic emergency make-up days, one inservice day, 8 legal holidays, one student evaluation day and when possible 2 preparation days, one week spring and two weeks Christmas vacation; minimum of 8-hour school day; no more than 2 extracurricular activities per year or one assignment at a time; no more than two major coaching positions per coach per year; no more than 12 percent of intramural allocation per teacher per year;

CAREER INCENTIVE PLAN

The Career Incentive Plan has been developed to introduce flexibility into Bellevue's salary program. The plan provides a procedure for the selection of certificated employees for either extended contracts or educational grants.

Procedures for identifying needed projects, submitting proposals and awarding of CIP grants are as follows:

Any certificated employee may identify and initiate a proposal for a program improvement project and submit his or her own application for project funding.

Any combination of certificated employees may identify and initiate a proposal for a program improvement project and submit their joint application for project funding.

Any certificated employee with supervisory responsibility may nominate an employee or combination of the same for projects desirable in respective buildings or departments.

Curriculum coordinators should assist in identifying district program priorities and submit these to the certificated staff whose members may wish to apply for work on any ensuing priority project.

Proposals are submitted to the Curriculum Department and in turn to subject area coordinating councils appropriate to the features of the proposed projects. Coordinating councils determine a rank ordering of respective subject area proposals and submit this priority listing to the Director of Curriculum.

In collaboration with the Assistant Superintendent for Instruction and the Superintendent of Bellevue Public Schools, the Director of Curriculum awards funding for projects meeting accepted criteria.

Determination of funded projects are based upon the needs of district programs, the soundness of the proposed project, the background and ability of individual applicants and the ability of applicants to carry out the project.

Materials produced as well as techniques developed are submitted to the Curriculum Department for dissemination throughout the district.

The Career Incentive Plan is a step toward making teaching a twelve-month profession. This has been the goal of the professional organizations in the field of education. Our plan provides the opportunity for twelve-month employment for those who desire it. By providing the opportunities for making teaching a twelve-month profession, there will be incentive for high quality college students to enter the teaching profession. Many bright students fail to enter teaching because they are discouraged with the prospect of entering a profession where they must find other work for part of the year.

The Career Incentive Plan will encourage teachers to remain in the classroom because they will have opportunity to earn more income as teachers. Many teachers enter into administration today because they are forced to do so for financial reasons. A look at our administrative salary schedule shows that the greatest difference in salaries is based upon time spent on the job, or work done beyond the regular school year. If teachers are also given this opportunity, many teachers who desire to remain in the classroom can afford to do so.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board of directors; inspection of personnel file is restricted to the employee (in the presence of an authorized administrator), his supervisors, superintendent, administrative staffs of instruction and personnel divisions, and authorized employees or board members; employee to receive requested copy of file contents upon paying costs, as well as copy of any material placed therein (with an opportunity to respond thereto); when possible 2 days' notice for faculty meetings with effort to hold such meetings during the working day; professional growth program: 12 credit hours every 6 years earned through college credit, regular professional credit or under professional growth program; up to 3 credit hours may be carried from one 6-year period to the next; 8-member professional credit committee, 4 each selected by the association and by the school with the assistant superintendent, as executive secretary, to recommend award of credit for travel, workshops, adult education courses, private classes and seminars, high professional office, publication of written material, and other professional experience; participation of teachers in approved exchange programs; required posting of vacancies except in an emergency; list of all teachers seeking voluntary transfer to be compiled and distributed to principals and supervisors so that assignment may be made "in best interest of the school district"; reason for transfer denial given upon request; involuntary transfer only to position for which teacher is qualified, with good cause, and with prior notice, involuntary transfer candidates will have opportunity to select among available vacancies; all reassignments "in best interest of the schools"; sole promotion criteria are competency in fulfilling the position's responsibilities; use of any political, social, or other pressure when seeking a position automatically disqualifies the applicant; immediate relatives of the board of directors and chief administrative officer are ineligible for school district positions; school may deny an applicant employment even when recommended by the superintendent; however, only on the recommendation of the superintendent may a teacher be employed; new teachers hired by a majority of the board of directors; temporary contracts issued to employees replacing teachers on leave of absence; valid health certificate, including tuberculosis tests, required; materials distributed to students or employees by outside organizations must be approved, and must be relevant and available to all children; prior approval required for circulation of petitions or drives through the schools (which, in general, are discouraged); solicitation of students prohibited unless approved by the board of directors, with any contribution strictly voluntary; except for materials approved through the superintendent's office, parents and students shall not be persuaded to purchase any merchandise; gifts to employees are discouraged; teachers or members of their immediate families may not tutor for pay; criteria for participation as a cooperating teacher in student teaching program (with teacher receiving any honorarium):

> Have demonstrated his ability to provide appropriate teaching experiences for the student teacher.
>
> Be willing to accept the responsibility of working with a student teacher.
>
> Have the necessary health and vitality to easily assume the added responsibility of working with the student teacher and the college or university representative.
>
> Be sufficiently free of other responsibilities to give adequate guidance and supervision to the student teacher.
>
> Assist the building principal, college representative or other appropriate individuals with the evaluation of the student teacher.

Teachers to be involved in the recruitment of other teachers; emphasis on minority recruitment; two members of the same family will not be assigned to the same school nor shall any employee be assigned to a position evaluated by an immediate relative; a person may not substitute for his or her spouse; general lesson plans must be provided for substitutes; provision for evaluation of substitutes; superintendent is liable (at the rate of $25 per day) for failure to submit required records and reports, and for any apportionment due the district which is lost owing to his negligence.

VOL. 6 NO. 9
MAY 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Status as Exclusive Bargaining Representative Does Not Terminate Yearly
- Board's Financial Troubles Do Not Alter Law
- Bargaining Concession Does Not Constitute Breach of Fair Representation
- Board May Not Deny Individual Salary Increases Negotiated by Union
- Grievance Proceeding Does Not Bar a Remedy Before State Agency
- Discharge of Probationary Teacher Without a Hearing Not Arbitrable
- Restriction on Emergency Employment Act Funds Invalid

Board Findings and Rulings 6
- Transfer Request Not Sufficient Grounds for Non-Reappointment of Tenured Teacher
- Association Representatives May Transact Business During Preparation Periods
- Sick Leave Granted for Incapacity Following Childbirth
- State-wide Bargaining Unit Recommended
- Separate Teacher Aides Unit Ruled Inappropriate
- Minimum Starting Salaries for Teachers Negotiable
- Number of Regular Hours Worked No Bar to Representation

Negotiation Notes 9
- Family Health Insurance Plan Bargainable
- Teachers Gain Collective Bargaining Statute
- Amendment Limits Closed Shop and Union Security
- Alteration of Merit Promotion Plan Negotiable
- EEOC May Issue Right-To-Sue Notices
- Basic Workweek Negotiable
- Doctor Groups Unionize
- Attorney General's Opinion
- The Consumer Price Index-March 1973

Statistics 13
- Negotiated Extra Compensation For Extra-Duty Assignments

Special Reports 19
- Briefs of Agreements

Texts 25
- HEW Proposed Regulations On Welfare Aid For Strikers

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2477

CASE REVIEWS

KANSAS

Status as Exclusive Bargaining Representative Does Not Automatically Terminate Yearly

Interpreting, for the first time, sections of the 1970 Kansas Professional School Employees Negotiation Statute, the Kansas Supreme Court overturned a lower court decision and ruled that a school district cannot withdraw recognition of the local National Education Association affiliate after having recognized and bargained with it for one year.

In the instant case, the Board of Education, Unified School District No. 480, refused to negotiate a second contract with the Liberal-NEA association after the board had been advised by the state board of education that the teacher bargaining act required an exclusive representative to petition annually for recognition or lose its status; thus the board would be freed from the duty to negotiate.

The school board contended that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction in the matter because the association had not exhausted all available administrative remedies. The Liberal-NEA contended that "the status of an exclusive representative, once established through the statutory procedure continues until the board has presented to it an application of a competing employees' organization for recognition or an application by employees in the negotiating unit to terminate such recognition and status."

After examining the teacher bargaining act, the court ruled that the recognition and status of an exclusive bargaining representative continues until a new request is filed with a board of education by at least 30 percent of its employees seeking recognition of another exclusive representative or by a majority of the employees seeking nonrecognition of the formerly recognized representative. The court rationalized that a school board cannot unilaterally withdraw recognition of an exclusive representative in the absence of a request from its employees.

In response to the board's contention that the court did not have jurisdiction in this case because the NEA affiliate had not exhausted the administrative remedy available by filing a petition with the state board of education, the court said that it disagreed because "the plaintiff [the association] had no duty to petition for a status it already had." On the basis of the foregoing, the board was ordered to engage in collective negotiations with the NEA affiliate. (Liberal-NEA, An Unincorporated Association, Appellant, v. Board of Education of Unified School District No. 480, Seward County, Kansas, and J. L. Smalling, Appellees, Kansas Supreme Court, March 12, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Board's Financial Troubles Do Not Alter Law

Pointing out to the Detroit Board of Education that "for a proper interpretation of the statute we have to look at this [budgetary crises] as if you had all the money you need," the Wayne County Circuit Court ruled that the board must give written contracts to 1,000 qualified emergency substitute teachers working in regular positions. Because of a budgetary crisis, all new teachers were hired as emergency substitutes (not fully covered by the Detroit Federation of Teachers' contract) who could be laid off on two days' notice.

The Federation brought the suit after the school board denied these teachers contracts on the basis that "the teachers in question were required only because a federal court last year issued an injunction against the board's planned layoff of teachers for this year." The school board also argued that it could not give these teachers regular contracts because it might not have funds to pay these teachers since the system might run out of money on March 15 and if under contract, these teachers must be paid to at least April 1.

The court said that it was aware of the school system's financial problems but that financial difficulties do not alter the statute. Therefore, the board of education was ordered to give the teachers regular contracts. (Detroit Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO v. Detroit Board of Education, Wayne County Circuit Court, March 1973.)

Bargaining Concession Does Not Constitute Breach of Fair Representation

The Wayne County Circuit Court granted motions for summary judgment sought by the Detroit Federation of Teachers (DFT) and the Detroit Board of Education on behalf of all emergency substitute teachers. The suit was instituted after DFT and the school board signed a two-year agreement which increased teacher salaries each year but raised the pay of emergency substitutes for only one of the two years.

The grievants charged the DFT with discrimination amounting to a breach of duty to fairly represent all employees. The board was charged with conspiracy on the ground that it participated in the negotiations which denied them a raise.

The DFT and the board moved for a summary judgment on the basis that the substitutes failed to state a cause of action.

According to the court, the allegations made by the substitutes were sufficient with respect to notice pleading; however, the grievants had not presented enough evidence to support their position that the board had engaged in a conspiracy with DFT or that DFT had breached its duty. The court stated that "the union has complete discretion to negotiate contracts in the interest of the members as a whole," and in doing so can make concessions, as the one in the instant case, for the benefit of all. "This in itself does not constitute arbitrary or discriminatory action, bad faith, or fraud." Therefore, the motions for summary judgment were granted. (William J. McGrail, Jr., vs. Detroit Federation of Teachers and Detroit Board of Education, Wayne County Circuit Court, January 18, 1973.)

MINNESOTA

School Board May Not Deny Individual Teacher Salary Increases Negotiated by Union Representatives

Even though school boards meet and confer with employee representatives, there is no statutory obligation to reach an agreement. But if an agreement is reached, the board is bound by the terms of the agreement and may not deal with teachers individually as far as salary matters are concerned. So ruling, the Minnesota Supreme Court overturned a lower court decision and ordered the Ada School District to reimburse a teacher monies lost from 1968 to 1971 when the Ada Education Association (AEA) negotiated pay scales which the school board did not apply to her.

In 1952 the teacher signed a contract which provided that "it shall remain in full force and effect, except as modified by mutual consent of the school board and the teacher." Her salary was changed yearly by a rider to this contract. However, in March 1968 "the school board advised her that she would not get a raise for the coming school year because of various objections by the board to her work." She continued receiving a lower salary through 1970-71 even though other teachers in her classification received pay raises in accordance with the agreement between the board and the AEA.

The teacher contended that she should have received raises in accordance with the agreement and that the denial constituted an illegal demotion violating her constitutional rights.

According to the school board the provision in the salary schedule which stated that "the board of education reserves the right to refuse any teacher the annual increment for unsatisfactory work" and that "this schedule is not a part of the teachers' contract and may be changed by the board of education" reserved to the board the right to change an individual teacher's salary. The board maintained that a teacher has a continuing contract with the school district upon completing a probationary period unless modified by the consent of the board and teacher. Further, a bargaining agreement superseding an individual teacher's contract would destroy the consent provisions of the tenure statute.

The reservation in the salary schedule which gave the board the right to change an individual teacher's salary was applicable only to annual increments involving in-step raises for additional education and other special matters, and not to annual salaries, the court said. And although the second part of the provision gave the employer the right to change the entire schedule and reserved to the board the right to renegotiate the schedule in future agreements, the board was not vested with the power to alter individual contracts. The court pointed out that the agreement between the parties had the effect of modifying individual teachers' contracts with the consent of all involved, thereby bringing the agreement into harmony with the statutory tenure provisions. The court ruled that the board could not refuse to pay an individual teacher the salary increases bargained for by her representative union since such schedules are binding on both parties. (Elizabeth Hetland v. Board of Education of Independent School District No. 521, Ada, Minnesota Supreme Court, February 16, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Grievance Proceeding Not an Action Barring Remedy Before State Administrative Agency Based on Same Grievance

The New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, reversed a lower court decision and dismissed the petition of the Board of Education of the Syracuse City School District to restrain the State Division of Human Rights from hearing charges made by two members of the Syracuse Teachers Association that "the Board was engaging in unlawful discriminatory employment practices."

After filing grievances pursuant to the contractual grievance procedure for payment of salaries for coaching the girls' extramural basketball team, the association filed complaints with the Human Rights Division charging that women teachers were discriminated against by the board because men teachers were compensated for coaching basketball whereas women teachers were not.

The lower court ruled that by commencing a grievance procedure, the teachers were barred from filing a complaint with the Human Rights Division in accordance with the Executive Law section that states that prior institution of action in a court of competent jurisdiction or before any administrative agency on an unlawful discriminatory practice will operate to bar resort to the Human Rights Division.

The appellate court overturned the lower court ruling on the grounds that "a grievance proceeding arising as it did here pursuant to the terms of the parties' own collective bargaining agreement is neither an action in a court of competent jurisdiction nor an action pending before any administrative agency under any other law of the state." Further, the grievance proceeding concerned enforcement of the terms of the collective bargaining contract while the complaint filed with the Division involved discrimination in terms and conditions of employment. The court then pointed out that it agreed with the Division's argument that "redress of the grievance would not dispose of all the issues raised by the complaints or vindicate the public interest in the question of discrimination." Accordingly, the lower court decision was reversed and the petition dismissed. (Board of Education of the Syracuse City School District, Respondent, v. State Division of Human Rights, et al., Appellants, Supreme Court, Appellate Division, February 17, 1972.)

Discharge of Probationary Teacher Without a Hearing Not Arbitrable

The New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, upheld a lower court decision granting the petition of Central School District No. 1 to stay arbitration sought by the Three Village Teachers Association (TVTA) on behalf of a probationary teacher who was discharged without a hearing.

The association contended that the board's dismissal action was a violation of the labor agreement and grievable. Additionally, the association contended that neither state statutes nor the labor agreement precluded a probationary teacher from arbitrating the reasons for dismissal.

The school board argued that the teacher had no grievance within the terms of the labor agreement.

The court in disposing of the association's argument that no statutes prohibited arbitrating a probationary teacher's reasons for dismissal, referred to Matter of Pinto v. Wynstra wherein it was held that under the Education Law "the services of a probationary teacher may be discontinued without a hearing and without giving the reasons." The court pointed out that the legal effect of the teacher's dismissal was that the teacher was denied tenure. And because the agreement specifically provided that the question of whether tenure was improperly denied was not a grievance, the teacher's dismissal was not subject to arbitration. (Central School District No. 1 of the Towns of Brookhaven and Smithtown, Respondent v. Three Village Teachers Association, Inc., et al., Appellants, New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, October 24, 1972.)

FEDERAL

Restriction on Emergency Employment Act Funds Invalid

The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Ohio ruled that the precondition that not more than 15 percent of funds granted under the Emergency Employment Act (EEA) could be used to rehire persons who had been employed during the six months prior to the application date "constitutes an abuse of discretion under the equitable standard required by the Act." The court thereby granted the motion for summary judgment sought by the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, District Council 78.

According to the Labor Department, the restriction was imposed in order to comply with the objectives of the Act. The union "brought a suit against the city and the Department of Labor on behalf of members who had been laid off and who had a claim to preferential rehiring under the union's contract with the city."

The union contended that the restriction was in conflict with the provisions of the EEA which stated that currently employed workers or existing service contracts would not be displaced or impaired.

The court rejected the union's argument that the restriction conflicted with the EEA by pointing out that laid-off employees are not currently employed workers and collective bargaining contracts are not service contracts. Further, since "the purpose of the EEA is to provide transitional employment for unemployed persons with certain characteristics, restricting its operation in the manner urged by the union would not comport with the freedom of choice the Congressional scheme seems to indicate."

According to the court, the Labor Department's reasons for imposing the restriction were valid, but the restriction itself did not further the purposes of the Act since "there is no basis for believing that placing a restriction on the hiring of laid-off persons will favor Vietnam veterans and other favored classes of unemployed." Moreover, the objective "sought by the Labor Department could have been more directly achieved by requiring that a certain percentage of those hired possessed the desired characteristics."

The court granted the union's motion for summary judgment, declaring the restriction invalid and enjoining the city and the Labor Department from putting the restriction into effect. However, the court ruled that the union's request for an injunction prohibiting the city from hiring employees except in conformity with the seniority provision in the bargaining agreement should be handled by a local rather than an federal court. (American Federation of State, County, & Municipal Employees District Council 78 v. City of Cleveland, et al, United States District Court, Northern District of Ohio, October 6, 1972.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

CALIFORNIA

Transfer Request Not Sufficient Grounds for Non-Reappointment of Tenured Teacher

In an advisory opinion, an arbitrator recommended that the San Diego City School Board reinstate a tenured teacher to an extra-duty counseling position.

The arbitrator found that the teacher, a member of the San Diego Teachers Association, had been relieved of his counseling duties at the end of his third year after having requested a transfer to another school. The teacher had not been previously notified of substandard work nor had any evaluations indicating substandard performance been placed in his personnel file. When the transfer request was denied, the teacher informed the building principal that he would continue at his present position, and he received assurance of a counseling position. The teacher was later informed that he would not be given a counseling position for the following year.

According to the arbitrator, the nonappointment was based solely on the teacher's desire to transfer from the school and, therefore, the failure to reappoint the teacher on this basis was violative of the contractual provision that assured tenured teachers that they would not be disciplined, reprimanded, or discharged except for just cause.

The arbitrator recommended that the teacher be reinstated to a counseling position no later than the 1973-74 school year, and that he be given $200 in back pay, the annual stipend for counseling positions. (San Diego City School District and the San Diego Teachers Association, American Arbitration Association, October 25, 1972.)

HAWAII

Association Representatives May Transact Association Business During Preparation Periods

An arbitrator ruled that Hawaii State Teachers Association (HSTA) field representatives may transact official association business with teachers during their preparation periods if the teachers are not teaching or supervising students at the time.

The issue at arbitration involved two contractual provisions, one allowing association representatives to transact association business on school property at reasonable times if they do not interfere with teachers while they are teaching or supervising students. The other established duty-free periods for the pursuit of personally initiated school tasks for perparation, evaluation, and reflection. The teachers association felt that its representatives should be free to visit teachers as long as the teachers were not teaching or supervising students. The Hawaii Department of Education (DOE) maintained that preparation periods were intended for pursuit of professional responsibilities and duties and therefore association business should be conducted during non-working hours. The DOE also contended that the reason for the duty-free preparation period provision was to modify the first provision.

The arbitrator found that preparation periods were blocks of time granted teachers to fulfill professional obligations, but as this time was intended to be duty free, teachers were relieved of instructional and/or supervisory duties. The arbitrator upheld the association's contention since no evidence was presented to establish that the parties intended during negotiations to prohibit association representatives from visiting teachers during their preparation periods. (Hawaii Department of Education and the Hawaii State Teachers Association, American Arbitration Association, August 23, 1972.)

MICHIGAN

Sick Leave Granted Teacher for Incapacity Following Childbirth

An arbitrator sustained the grievance of an elementary-school teacher employed by the Wayne-Westland Community Schools Board and awarded her "18 days' sick leave for the period following the birth of her child when she was physically incapacitated." The teacher suffered complications following birth, requiring an operation.

Following her release from the hospital, her physician ordered her to remain flat on her back for a period of time. Upon returning to work, she requested that her 3.5 days' accumulated sick leave be applied to her absence and that the Wayne-Westland Education Association (WWEA) "recommend that she be granted 14.5 days' sick leave from the bank provided in the contract to cover the total amount of time she was away from work."

The teacher contended that she was entitled to use sick leave because the contract stated that "sick leave may be used for bona fide physical incapacity to report for and discharge duties."

The school board argued that maternity complications were not included within sick leave benefits.

The arbitrator pointed out that the instant case did not involve questions regarding the legality of a mandatory maternity leave policy or sex discrimination from a constitutional or statutory viewpoint as these questions were being decided by the courts. Rather, the case revolved around the negotiated contract, centering on whether maternity leave is mandated upon written request or whether an employee is entitled to sick leave if the employee is determined "bona fide physically incapacitated." In the first instance, stated the arbitrator, the employee did not request maternity leave. And based on the doctor's report, the teacher was incapacitated. Since the incapacity involved post-birth complications more than normal pregnancy and delivery, the arbitrator ruled that the teacher be granted the sick leave. (Wayne-Westland Education Association and Wayne-Westland Community Schools, American Arbitration Association, November 16, 1972.)

NEW JERSEY

State-wide Bargaining Unit for State College Faculties Recommended

A single state-wide faculty unit is the appropriate representative for academic employees of all New Jersey state colleges, according to the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC). The colleges whose faculties comprise the proposed unit are William Paterson College of New Jersey, Jersey City State College, Trenton State College, Newark State College, Montclair State College, Stockton State College, Ramapo State College, and Glassboro State College.

In agreement with the parties involved, the Commission recommended that all full-time teaching and/or research faculty, department chairmen, nonmanagerial administrative staff, librarians, student personnel staff, demonstration teachers, and professional academic support personnel holding academic rank be in the faculty bargaining unit. However, college presidents and vice-presidents, deans and other managerial executives, secretarial staff, maintenance staff, bookstore and food service staffs, adjunct and part-time professional staffs, graduate assistants, and all others were excluded.

The Commission ordered a faculty election to choose as bargaining representative either the New Jersey State Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, or the Association of New Jersey State College Faculties, or to choose "no organization."

A hearing officer had previously recommended that the state-wide unit be formed because of community interest among the eight colleges. He noted that employees at the colleges had similar titles and were indistinguishable from one another; that salaries and conditions of employment, as delineated in the Personnel Policies Guide of the board of higher education, were the same for all academic employees; that these employees had the same employer, the governor; and that the colleges' labor relations functions and budget-making processes were centralized. However, the hearing officer had suggested that items within the specific jurisdictions of the separate colleges be negotiated on a campus-by-campus basis. (Stockton State College, Montclair State College, Jersey City State College, William Paterson College of New Jersey, Trenton State College, Glassboro State College, Ramapo State College, Newark State College, Public Employers, and New Jersey State Federation of Teachers, AFT, AFL-CIO, through various locals, Petitioner, and Association of New Jersey State College Faculties Inc., Intervenor, New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission, November 30, 1972.)

[Editor's Note: The New Jersey PERC consolidated review of 14 separate petitions concerning college faculty unit determination so that all petitions were resolved with one decision.]

NEW YORK

Separate Teacher Aides Unit Ruled Inappropriate

The Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) denied the decertification petition of the Levittown Federation of Teachers, United Teachers of New York, Local 1383 AFT, AFL-CIO (the Federation), for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative for teacher aides employed by the Union Free School District No. 5, Town of Hempstead. Concurrently, PERB denied a similar petition filed by Local 237, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, on behalf of bus drivers and custodial and maintenance personnel. Both the teacher aides and the bus drivers and custodial and maintenance personnel were members of Nassau Chapter, Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA).

The Federation and Local 237 contended that the groups they sought to represent had negotiating interests different from those of other members in the CSEA unit and that these differences prevented effective negotiations. The Federation backed up its contention by pointing out that only one of the teacher aides' special demands was attained during negotiations "as a direct result of CSEA's lack of concern."

According to the trial examiner, the varying interests of employees did not demonstrate the existence of enough conflict to preclude effective negotiations. "All it shows," said PERB, "is a possible difference in perspective which is to be expected, for the negotiating priorities of even people in the same general job category will shift to reflect such variables as age and marital status." Referring to a similar case, Matter of Board of Cooperative Educational Services Nassau County, the trial examiner pointed out that PERB "policy militates against unit fragmentation of employees who share a community of interest in an overall unit, unless sharp conflicts of interest are apparent between the employees." In addition, the fact that CSEA's negotiating demands were largely rejected by the employer made it impossible to conclude that the aides' special demands were not achieved as a direct result of CSEA's lack of concern. On the basis of the foregoing, the examiner ruled that separate units of teacher aides and bus drivers and maintenance and custodial personnel were not appropriate or justified, and denied the petitions. (In the Matter of Union Free School District No. 5, Town of Hempstead, Nassau County, Employer and Levittown Federation of Teachers of New York, Local 1385, AFT, AFL-CIO, Petitioner, and Nassau Chapter, Civil Service Employees Association, Inc., Intervenor, Public Employment Relations Board, July 12, 1972.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Minimum Starting Salaries for Teachers Negotiable

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the refusal of the Warwick Area Board of School Directors to bargain with teachers' representatives regarding a minimum starting salary for new hires constituted a violation of the Public Employee Relations Act (PERA).

The district board contended that it did not have to bargain on starting salaries because prospective applicants were not members of the bargaining unit and because previous contracts between the board and the union did not contain the provision.

The PLRB held that past practice had no bearing on the negotiability of a subject, and pointed out that "the concept of benefiting persons who will be employees in the future is inherent in the collective bargaining process." The board's objections were obviated by the already agreed upon terms and conditions of employment for the coming year.

The PLRB stated that the bargaining agent represented all employees "who will fill the employee positions that comprise the unit." Accordingly, the PLRB found that the district board had violated the PERA. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Warwick Area Board of School Directors, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, January 12, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Number of Regular Hours Worked No Bar to Representation

In a unit determination proceeding, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) determined that all part-time school aides employed by the Unified School District No. 1 of the City of Kenosha and Towns of Pleasant Prairie and Somers are public employees entitled to representation.

Arguing against inclusion of the two categories of aides, the school district said that none of the employees working as bus aides or noon-hour supervisors worked more than a three-hour day, received none of the fringe benefits paid to other groups of aides, and did not consider this work for the employer to be a career. Additionally, both of these categories of aides have experienced a high degree of employee turnover.

The Kenosha Educational Aides Association (KEAA) contended that since bus aides and noon-hour supervisors were employees with regular hours, they were entitled to representation with respect to wages, hours, and conditions of employment.

According to WERC any employee who is regularly employed, regardless of the number of hours worked weekly, has a definite interest in the wages, hours, and working conditions governing his employment and is entitled to representation unless special circumstances indicating that the employee does not have a definite interest are presented.

The Commission believed that the high turnover rate among the two groups of aides might be an indication of the need for collective bargaining rather than lack of interest in the terms and conditions of employment. Additionally, the fact that these employees did not have the same benefits as the members of the bargaining unit did not bar them from being included in the unit. Furthermore, the work performed by these employees was similar to the work performed by other members of the bargaining unit. On the basis of the foregoing the WERC ruled that bus aides and noon supervisors should be included in the KEAA. (Kenosha Educational Aides Association vs. Unified School District No. 1 of the City of Kenosha and Towns of Pleasant Prairie and Somers, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, September 19, 1972.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

DELAWARE

Family Health Insurance Plan Bargainable

The New Castle County Court ordered the Division of Adult Corrections of the Department of Health and Social Services to include in its budget as a priority item, the contractually agreed upon health insurance terms. The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees filed a claim seeking to enforce part of a 1969 agreement in which the employer agreed to provide Blue Cross-Blue Shield health care coverage and to assume the full cost of a $2,000 life insurance policy for each department employee.

The state employer argued that the contract article in question was unenforceable because the state's merit system statute limited the scope of bargaining contained in the state's public employee bargaining statute to subjects specifically mentioned in the bargaining law; and since health insurance was not included, it was nonnegotiable. The employer also contended that a health plan particularly for employees' family members was beyond the scope of bargaining because it was not included within any of the subjects specifically mentioned in the bargaining law (wages, salaries, hours, vacations, sick leave, grievance procedures, and other terms and conditions of employment) and it was neither a term or condition of employment nor a matter of employment relations.

The court pointed out that the fact that health insurance was not covered in the bargaining law was irrelevant since "the merit statute does not limit the permissable scope of bargaining to matters listed in the bargaining law but rather provides a set of rules to resolve any conflicts that may arise between commission rules and negotiated agreements." Additionally, courts have held that group insurance programs fall within the meaning of wages under the National Labor Relations Act and that the Taylor Law has been expanded by New York courts to include medical, dental, and life insurance premiums as terms and conditions of employment. The state court thus ruled that "the subject of health insurance programs for both employees and the members of their families is within the permissible scope of collective bargaining."

Attention was turned to the question of whether or to what extent the agreement between the parties was enforceable. The court said that if the legislature had intended that state agencies not be bound by collective bargaining agreements, the legislature would not have granted state employees the right to bargain collectively. Even though the agreement between the parties could not bind the department to pay for health insurance until funds were appropriated, the public employee bargaining statute requires the public employer to negotiate in good faith and to take the necessary action within its power to abide by its agreement.

In this case the employer could provide the payment of health premiums by including such payments as a priority item in its budget. The decision to exclude the health insurance provision was based upon an "administrative judgment" of the minimum budgetary needs and the "exercise of discretion" in trading off priority items. The court held that the time to exercise judgment and discretion is before and during negotiation, as once the agreement is signed, the employer is bound to pursue every step within its power to see that the insurance is provided. Therefore, the court ordered the employer to include funds for health insurance as a priority item in its budget. (State of Delaware, Department of Health and Social Services, Division of Adult Correction, and John J. Moran, Director v. American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees Local 1726 et al., Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in and for New Castle County, November 3, 1972.)

INDIANA

Teachers Gain Collective Bargaining Statute

Indiana Governor Otis Bowen signed into law a measure requiring school boards throughout the state to bargain collectively with teachers. The Indiana State Teachers Association (ISTA) hailed the measure as "a major victory."

The collective bargaining statute is the first of its kind for any group of public employees in the state and brings to 30 the number of states with teacher collective bargaining laws.

The law calls for recognition of exclusive bargaining representatives and mandates bargaining on salaries, wages, hours, and fringe benefits. Bargaining on other issues, such as curriculum, textbook selection, and class size, is permitted but not required. A "grandfather" clause protects the negotiability of those items in present contracts between teachers associations and school boards.

The new law creates a five-member Indiana Educational Employment Relations Board to oversee bargaining practices, and provide for impasse machinery, including fact-finding and mediation by the board. Grievances will continue to be processed by the exclusive representatives with binding arbitration as the final step.

The law will become effective July 1, 1973, and school boards must begin bargaining sessions no later than January 1, 1974, with elections to determine exclusive representatives to take place immediately. (The full text of the Indiana Collective Bargaining Bill will be published in a future issue of the NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST.)

VIRGINIA

Amendment Puts Limitations on Closed Shop and Union Security

The amended Virginia Right-to-Work Law, which becomes effective June 1, 1973, declares that "the right of persons (including public employees) to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or non-membership in any labor union or labor organization."

According to the amended law no employer can require any person, as a condition of employment or continuation of employment, to pay dues, fees, or other charges of any kind to a labor union or organization, to become or remain a member of a labor union or organization, or to abstain from membership in any labor union or organization. Any person denied employment in violation of the foregoing is entitled to recover from the employer and any other person, firm, corporation, or association acting in concert with the employer, any damages sustained on account of such denial or deprivation of employment.

The use of lockouts, lay-offs, boycotts, picketing, work stoppages, or other conduct for the purpose of inducing an employee or employer to violate any provision of this law is illegal conduct contrary to public policy. Any party injured as a result of any violation or threatened violation is entitled to injunctive relief and all cognizable damages resulting from the violation.

Labor unions or organizations whose officers and trustees reside outside the state "shall by written power of attorney, filed with the Department of Labor and Industry and the State Corporation Commission, appoint the clerk of the State Corporation Commission, its attorney or agent, upon whom all legal process against the union or organization may be served and who shall be authorized to enter an appearance on its behalf."

Violation of this amendment is a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not more than $500.

FEDERAL

Alteration of Merit Promotion Plan Negotiable

Striking down the Veterans Administration position that the item was nonnegotiable, the Federal Labor Relations Council ruled negotiable a union proposal to alter the promotion plan at a VA Research Hospital.

The Veterans Administration Independent Service Employees Union (VAISEU) representing nonprofessional hourly and salaried employees of the VA Research Hospital in Chicago alleged that "preselection" of job candidates by supervisors was ruining the hospital's merit plan.

During negotiation, the union and the hospital agreed on a provision requiring the selecting official to notify a VAISEU steward who could request both justification for the selection and written, supporting materials. If dissatisified with the explanation, the steward could within two days request review of the selection by a higher official.

The VA declared the proposal to be nonnegotiable and alleged that the clause would violate Section 12 (b) (2) of Executive Order 11491 which prohibits collective bargaining agreements from imposing on management rights to hire, promote, transfer, assign, retain, and discipline employees. The VA also asserted that the clause violated its own and Civil Service Commission regulations governing grievance procedures and merit promotion.

FLRC said that no right accorded to unions under the Executive Order might be permitted to interfere with inherent management rights, but that this reservation does not bar negotiations of procedure.

The Civil Service Commission held that its regulations on grievance procedures were not applicable because the VAISEU procedure for higher management review of selection decisions was not grievable. Also, the Commission did not find support for the VA's rules interpretation governing merit promotion.

FLRC concluded that none of the characteristics alleged by the VA existed in the proposal and that the proposal would provide a review of an official's selection by a higher official whose decision would be final. (Veterans Administration Independent Service Employees Union and Veterans Administration Research Hospital, Chicago, Federal Labor Relations Council, November 22, 1972.)

Court Upholds EEOC District Offices' Issuance of Right-To-Sue Notices

In a ruling handed down by the U.S. District Court for Northern California, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) was found to have correctly delegated the power to issue right-to-sue notices to its district offices.

The court held that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 stipulates that EEOC may, within 30 days after a noncompliance charge is filed, notify the aggrieved person and bring civil action against the respondent named in the charge.

In the instant case, a plaintiff had charged with EEOC that the E. D. S. Federal Corporation discriminatorily denied her, solely because of sex, opportunities and prerequisites to which she was entitled as a systems engineer. EEOC field office issued the right-to-sue notice after conciliation failed.

The company contended that the court lacked jurisdiction since the right to sue is statutory, thereby existing only where all statutory prerequisites are present. Further, the company stated that one of the prerequisites is obtaining a notice to sue from the commission itself. The company declared that the action being issued by a delegate of EEOC was null and void; therefore, the prerequisites were not complied with and the action must fail for lack of jurisdiction.

The company cited several Supreme Court decisions, notably Cudahy Packing Co. v. Holland in which the high court struck down the Wage-Hour Administration's attempt to delegate to its regional directors the power to sign subpoenas on the ground that legislative grant to delegate authority existed.

The court stated that in view of Cudahy the delegation of authority to issue right-to-sue notices was improper. However, the court agreed with EEOC's position and decided that it would be foolish to hold that EEOC cannot delegate such power since under its regulations EEOC's function with respect to charges is only to receive charges and issue notices.(Julia B. Stone v. E. D. S. Federal Corporation, U. S. District Court for Northern California, November 10, 1972.)

Basic Workweek Negotiable

Federal Labor Relations Council (FLRC) resolved a negotiability dispute in favor of the Federal Employees Metal Trades Council (MTC) which had sought to insert the phrase, "Monday through Friday," in the agreement with the Navy Supply Center, Charleston, South Carolina. The current contract stated that the "basic workweek shall consist of five (5) eight (8) hour days."

The Navy Department objected to the addition, alleging that the proposal would increase overtime costs, thereby infringing on management's right to maintain efficient operations, and would require bargaining on the establishment and change of tours of duty which conflict with Section II (b) of Executive Order 11491 as interpreted by FLRC in Plum Island Animal Disease Laboratory.

In the Plum Island case, FLRC had rejected a similar contention that a contract proposal which would add to cost would of itself result in decreased efficiency. Further, the FLRC explained, the Plum Island case involved a round-the-clock operation in which the number and duration of duty tours affected the numbers and types of assigned workers. FLRC decided that in this case (MTC) there was no indication that the proposal of Monday through Friday as the basic workweek would require bargaining on the numbers, types, and grades of positions or employees.

FLRC found the proposal negotiable and not in conflict with Section II (b) of the EO 11491. (Federal Employees Metal Trades Council of Charleston and Naval Supply Center, Charleston, S.C., Federal Labor Relations Council, November 24, 1972.)

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST

Doctors Groups Affiliate with Service Employees International Union

Doctors groups in California, Washington state, and New Jersey have affiliated with the Service Employees International Union (SEIU).

According to the president of Contra Costa Physicians Union, Local 683, in California, its members decided to unionize owing to the Board of Supervisors obstruction of physicians' efforts to provide better and more efficient health care to their patients, and the board's refusal to talk about health problems in the country or to accept a state offered contract for prepayment of Medi-Cal premiums. Strike actions against the board were ruled out because physicians' ethics prevent them from denying vital care to any patient; however, it was pointed out, "many other actions are possible due to the central role of physicians in the management of health care services."

The Nevada Physicians Union, Local 676, which preceeded the formation of the California union did so in order "to protect the right of physicians to make their own decisions about patient care without interference from third parties."

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

MINNESOTA

Any agreement between a school board and an association whereby a school district employee loses his statutory right to receive military pay in addition to his regular salary while on military leave from the district violates state law. Such an agreement would impair the incentive designed by the legislature to encourage participation in the military.

NEW MEXICO

State employers may negotiate a bargaining agreement with the representatives of state employees providing the terms of such agreement do not exceed the maximum limitation rules of the personnel board.

[Editor's Note: Guidelines of the New Mexico State personnel boards were summarized in NRD 1-72-11.]

NEW YORK

New York Labor Law statutes that discriminate against the employment rights of women were found unconstitutional because they conflicted with the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission guidelines issued thereunder, and federal court decisions interpreting the Act. However, absence of legislation does not invalidate laws which provide special benefits for women, i.e., "Labor Law Section 203 (b) that requires a sufficient number of seats for female employees in certain occupations" or "Sections 294 and 295 that require dressing and emergency rooms and separate water closets for females in factories."

The statutes that were found unconstitutional prohibited employment of women in certain occupations or job functions: jobs that compel constant standing, operation of automatic elevators, cleaning moving machinery, working as a conductor, guard, or messenger in a railroad, working in a foundry connected with core making, or employment in connection with a mine or quarry. Also, the law that established different hours for female and male minors was found invalid.

NEVADA

Barring an alternative appeal route contained in the negotiated agreement, the Professional Practices Act provides the exclusive review procedure machinery for dismissal of teachers. Therefore, a local government employee-management board does not have jurisdiction to review the dismissal of a probationary teacher without a collective bargaining agreement even if the dismissal is alleged as prompted by discrimination which is a violation of the Local Government Employee-Management Act.

The Consumer Price Index—March 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.9 percent in March, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. A substantial increase in food prices, due largely to higher prices for poultry and meats, accounted for about two-thirds of the rise in the CPI. Increases for clothing, used cars, and rent and other household services also contributed significantly to the rise. The March index was 129.8 (1967=100), 4.7 percent above a year ago.

After seasonal adjustment, the March increase was 0.8 percent. Prices of food, including restaurant meals and snacks, rose an average of 2.5 percent after seasonal adjustment. The nonfood commodities index increased 0.3 percent after seasonal adjustment. The services index rose 0.3 percent.

In the calendar quarter ended in March, the CPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 8.8 percent; in the quarter ended in December, the rate of advance was 3.2 percent. The acceleration was due primarily to a faster rate of increase in the food index which advanced at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 29.8 percent in the December-March period—the largest increase for any 3-month period since 1951. The index for nonfood commodities increased at a seasonally adjusted 3.4 percent rate in the 3 months ended in March, compared with 1.0 percent in the quarter ended in December. The increase reflected the action of the Price Commission which resulted in a postponement of most of the price increase for new cars from the fourth quarter of 1972 into 1973 and an acceleration in the first quarter of price increases for fuel oil and gasoline. The services index increased at a 3.6 percent rate in the December-March period, slightly less than the 3.9 percent rate in the preceding quarter.

[U.S. Dept. of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, "News Release," April 20. 1973.]

STATISTICS

NEGOTIATED EXTRA COMPENSATION FOR EXTRA-DUTY ASSIGNMENTS

Over one-third of the teacher collective bargaining agreements on file with NEA Research contain provisions granting extra compensation for a variety of duties assigned in addition to the regular teaching load or the annually compensated guidance of student extracurricular activities. Of the 1,529 agreements negotiated during 1970-71 in districts with 1,000 or more pupils enrolled, 521 agreements contained such provisions.

This analysis is intended to show the variety of activities and duties for which teachers are compensated and the frequency with which compensation for them is negotiated, not the specific dollar amounts received.

Normal curricular duties, extracurricular activities for which a seasonal or yearly stipend is paid, adult education, night school, and summer school are considered to be part of the regularly contracted teaching load and are not included in this analysis.

The ranges of compensation rates paid for the same or

TABLE 1.—NEGOTIATED EXTRA-DUTY, OVERTIME, AND PREMIUM PAY PROVISIONS, 1970-71

Paid Extra Duties	Number	Percent*
1	2	3
TOTAL NUMBER OF AGREEMENTS	1,529
NUMBER OF AGREEMENTS WITH EXTRA COMPENSATION	521	100.0
Duties during the school day	380	72.9
Regular teachers as substitutes	187	35.9
Overload, extra class period	126	24.2
Lunch, hall, recess, bus loading, cafeteria and other duties	56	10.7
Excessive class size, combined classes	11	2.1
Duties before or after school	469	90.0
Student supervision, athletic and supplemental support services at unspecified events	152	29.2
Chaperones	123	23.6
Curriculum development	42	8.1
Field trips	18	3.4
Faculty meetings, parent-teacher conferences, etc.	11	2.1
Support services for dramatic and musical	9	1.7
Inservice participation	8	1.5
Debate and speech contest judges	7	1.3
Undefined activity	81	15.5
Undefined Saturday, Sunday, holiday duty	18	3.4
Extended school year	72	13.8

*Since provisions are not mutually exclusive, the percent of agreements containing specific provisions falling within a broad category cannot be determined accurately.

TABLE 2.–COMPENSATION FOR OTHER THAN REGULAR ASSIGNMENTS, 1970-71.

Duty and Type of Pay	Median	Mode	Range	Number of Provisions
1	2	3	4	5
TOTAL NUMBER OF AGREEMENTS				521
Extra duty during the school day				380
Regular teachers as substitutes				187
Flat amount				131
Per period	$5.00	$5.00	$3.00-10.00	71
Per hour	5.00	5.00	3.00-10.36	57
Per day (for teacher assigned absent teacher's class)	$30.00		$24.00-45.00	3
Proration formula				51
Proration of regular pay		1/6 per day		20
Proration of substitute pay		1/6 per day		26
Proration of B.A. base				5
Other				5
Overload, extra-class period				126
Hourly pay	$6.25	$6.00	$4.90-8.00	13
Annual pay per extra class	650.00	560.00	185.00-2,000.00	14
Percent of regular daily rate	16.6%	16.6%	10.0%-20.0%	46
Proration of daily pay				22
Other				12
Undefined				19
Lunch, hall, recess, bus loading, cafeteria, and other duties				56
Hourly pay	$4.00	$5.00	$1.25-7.50	33
Annual stipend	400.00	400.00	50.00-500.00	9
Other				14
Excessive class size/combined classes				11
Extra duty, before or after school				469
Athletic supplemental support services[a]				152
Per hour			2.00-7.50
Per event			3.00-30.00
Student supervision, unspecified admission supported event				35
Per hour			3.00-6.00
Per event			4.00-11.50
Chaperones				123
Student bus				67
Per hour	3.00		2.00-5.00	11
Per trip	10.00	10.00	5.00-30.00	49
Other				7
Dance				56
Per dance	10.00	10.00	2.25-26.00	44
Per hour	3.00	5.00	2.00-5.00	10
Other				2
Curriculum development				42
Per hour	6.00	6.00	4.00-9.00	21
Proration				11
Other				10

TABLE 2.–COMPENSATION FOR OTHER THAN REGULAR ASSIGNMENTS, 1970-71. (Continued)

Duty and Type of Pay	Median	Mode	Range	Number of Provisions
1	2	3	4	5
Field trips				18
Per night	14.00	10.00	10.00-25.00	9
Per day	15.00		7.00-20.00	7
Other				2
Faculty meetings, parent-teacher Conferences				10
Per hour	$8.75		$5.00-10.00	4
Proration				3
Other				3
Dramatic, musical production supplemental support services				9
Per event	11.50		5.00-20.00	6
Per hour	4.00	4.00	3.00-4.00	3
Inservice participation				8
Per hour	7.90		6.80-9.00	2
Other				2
Class instruction, hourly pay	13.30		7.50-14.10	4
Judges, debate/speech contest per event	12.00	10.00	4.00-25.00	7
Extra services (unspecified activity)				81
Per hour	$4.75	$5.00	$2.40-8.05	42
Per event	10.00	10.00	3.00-20.00	17
Proration				12
Other				10
Saturday, Sunday, holiday duty				18
Per hour	5.00	4.00	3.00-10.00	11
Per day or per event	13.00		10.00-15.00	4
Proration				3
Extended Year Pay				66
Proration				42
Other				24

[a]Duties include ticket taking and selling, crowd control, guarding fences, proctoring, timing and scoring events, announcing, photography and general supervisory assistance.

similar activities are illustrated in Table 2. The cited methods of compensation are those appearing most frequently, or in some cases the only measurable form. The range of dollar amounts paid is broad, therefore, the mode (frequency) and median (midpoint) of the amounts of compensation for a specific type of extra service are computed where sufficient information was available. The dollar figures presented are those negotiated during 1970-71. It may be assumed that these amounts have been renegotiated upward, even though the content of the contract may have remained unchanged.

PROVISIONAL CONTENT

Agreement provisions for extra duties are grouped into three broad categories: (a) specific, irregular assignments supporting a variety of extracurricular and professional activities; (b) duty assignments beyond the negotiated school day or work year; and (c) emergency assignments, which increase the number of student contact hours or class size above the negotiated limits.

Regular teachers perform and receive compensation for duties and services ranging from substitute teaching in an emergency, to assistance in support of an assortment of extracurricular activities or contests performed on an irregular basis. The types of extra pay duties vary widely since they are often indigenous to the climatic conditions or customs of a particular section of the country.

Extra-duty compensation spans three time periods: (a) service performed during the school day, but beyond the normal teaching load; (b) services rendered before or after the school day; and (c) extension of the school year. Services rendered beyond the school year are seldom defined in contracts. Compensation for curriculum development and inservice training, services, often performed as an extension of the school year, are reported in this analysis because they are frequently negotiated along with other extra duty compensation provisions, or appear as computable rates paid for extra service.

In the majority of provisions, extra compensation is effective upon assignment, but in some provisions, payment is made after performance of a specified number of overtime hours or repetitions. For example, the Holbrook, Massachusetts, agreement provides:

> Teachers may be required to substitute for other teachers in emergency situations, and, in any event, for a maximum of seven (7) periods per year during the term of this Agreement, as follows:
> First three (3) periods - without compensation
> Fourth through seventh periods - $7.00 per period
> Eighth period and beyond-voluntary and at a rate of $7.00 per period.

In some deviant provisions, the rate of pay increases or decreases after a specified number of hours have been expended in the performance of that duty. The Orfordville, Wisconsin agreement compensates teachers who take tickets, chaperone buses, or supervise dances with $5.00 for the first hour and $1.00 for each succeeding hour or part thereof. According to the Pontiac, Michigan, extra-duty provision:

> The hourly rate for a secondary school teacher who is assigned a duty period within the school day beyond the normal five (5) periods of teaching responsibility will be as follows: $5.00 for temporary or casual assignments, $6.00 for long term assignments. Long term assignments are defined to mean assignments that extend beyond five (5) consecutive days. Elementary teachers will be reimbursed on a prorated basis of the above on the actual time spent in substituting on both a temporary and extended basis.

Usually, extra-duty compensation is expressed in terms of a flat dollar amount or a proration tied to the teacher's regular salary, substitute teacher's salary, B.A. base pay, or other agreed upon variation. Flat dollar amounts are often specified in terms of hourly rates or per diem amounts; however, some provisions attached a fixed dollar amount for an event on a per occurrence basis. The proration formulas are computed as a percentage or fraction of an identifiable rate of a negotiated salary figure. However, if the duty is performed repeatedly over an extended period of time (particularly overload pay for teaching an additional class period or increased student contact hours for a semester or a year), payment is frequently in the form of an annual or semi-annual stipend, with the basis for derivation remaining constant.

The following sample provisions are indicative of the varied duties for which extra compensation is negotiated. These provisions are not intended to be exemplary, but are guides for developing provisions for payment for similar duties.

REGULAR TEACHERS AS SUBSTITUTES

> Every attempt will be made to obtain a substitute teacher qualified in the particular area. In the event a qualified substitute in a particular area cannot be obtained, a substitute qualified in another area will be secured. If a substitute cannot be obtained, teachers will be reimbursed at the rate of $9.00 per period in 1970-1971 and ten dollars ($10.00) per period in 1971-1972. If students are divided in the elementary schools when the teacher is absent, the teacher sharing the responsibility of the absent teacher's students will share equally forty-five dollars ($45.00) during 1970-71 and fifty dollars ($50.00) during 1971-72. This shall not be the case in an emergency. An emergency refers to an uncontrollable circumstance after the Teacher Day begins.
>
> [Deer Park UFSD No. 17
> Deer Park, New York]

* * *

OVERLOAD TEACHING

> When a teacher accepts an overload assignment, he shall receive an additional 1/5 of his daily rate per day for the length of that assignment. Under no circumstances shall a teacher be assigned to more than one overload hour.
>
> [Wichita, Kansas]

> If a teacher shall teach more than the normal teaching load as set forth in this article, he shall receive additional compensation at one and one-half (1½) times his hourly rate for each teaching period in the excess of such norms.
>
> [Eau Claire, Michigan]

> If a teacher shall volunteer to teach more than the normal teaching load as set forth in the Article, he shall receive additional compensation at the rate of one-fifth (1/5) of his annual salary. Temporary assignment as substitute shall be paid at the rate of $6.00 per hour.
>
> [Morenci, Michigan]

> In secondary schools where, over the course of any given month, a teacher of an academic subject is required to teach a cumulative average of 5½ periods per day or more, such teachers shall be compensated at the rate of $7.00 per period for the extra instruction required of him.
>
> [Fair Lawn, New Jersey]

* * *

PREMIUM PAY FOR EXCESSIVE CLASS SIZE

> Size of Classes - It is recommended that 30 pupils per classroom be maximum size. In laboratory-type classes, where individualized instruction and small-group work are more prevalent, class sizes should range from 16-24 pupils. In most classes, class size should range from 24-30 pupils per classroom.
>
> Large-Group Instruction - The following guideline is to be followed for teachers in this area:

4-Large-group classes per week
20-Periods of instruction
No additional supervision or miscellaneous activity responsibility (hall duty, homeroom, study hall, etc.) Additional $500 stipend

In large-group instruction classes, class size may range from 50-150 pupils.
Communication Classes-Communication classes should have a reduced class size load, with a range from 16-24 pupils.

Split Assignments
a) No supervision
b) No more than one (1) move per day between buildings
c) One (1) preparation period between building assignments
d) The teacher day for a teacher with a split assignment shall not exceed that of an intermediate or senior high school teacher (7½ hours).

[Coatesville, Pennsylvania]

* * *

EXTRA-DUTY COMPENSATION

The salary schedule is based upon a normal weekly teaching load, as hereinafter defined, September 6 to June 9 during normal teaching hours. For extra work the teacher shall be entitled to appropriate additional professional compensation, at his established professional hourly rate. The professional hourly rate of any teacher shall be determined by dividing his base salary, as set forth in Schedule A, by 1520 hours. The teacher shall be paid his established hourly rate, in addition to his base salary, for all time spent after the regular school day in parent-teacher conferences, supervision of extra-curricular activities of students, (unless they have volunteered for such supervision), teacher meetings after 4 p.m. of any day or on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays, and attendance at any educational or civic functions where attendance is not voluntary but required. Attendance of P.T.A. meetings is a voluntary activity of the teacher, as is the attendance of parents.

[Ironwood, Michigan]

After School Activities: The District Principal and a committee of three staff members selected by the Association shall screen proposals for after school activities submitted jointly by the staff and Principal of each school. Final authorization shall be given by the District Principal by October 1st. The sponsor shall be paid $7.00 per hour. A sum of money, not to exceed $2,500.00, shall be budgeted for supervised after school activities.

[Elmont USFD No. 16
Elmont, New York]

* * *

NONPROFESSIONAL DUTIES

Teachers who are required to serve at any approved activity as chaperones, ticket sellers or collectors, track officials, and other non-professional duties of this type shall be compensated as follows:

Invitational track and dances $18.00 per event. All others $14.50 per event.

[Carle Place, New York]

* * *

MUSICAL PRODUCTION EXTRA-DUTY PAY

Because of the difference in the programs in the several secondary schools, and because of the differing demands on the time of those who work in the programs, funds will be appropriated to provide for: (1) A per-diem compensation for music teachers who accompany students in out-of-county, state-sponsored activities; (2) A per-diem compensation for music teachers who assume primary responsibility in the annual music festivals; (3) A per-hour compensation for those music teachers who work with drama coaches in the jointly sponsored music-drama productions; (4) A per-hour compensation for senior high school band directors not to exceed 40 hours as required for the football season; (5) A per-hour compensation for vocal music teachers for a maximum of 90 hours of direction of madrigals or similar singing groups as a part of the music program of the school but not during the regular contract day; (6) The per-hour compensation for those art teachers who work with drama coaches in performing arts production, and for art teachers who work on major student art exhibitions.

THE PER-DIEM RATE SHALL BE $25 AND THE PER-HOUR RATE SHALL BE $4.

[Arlington, Virginia]

* * *

ATHLETIC EVENT, SUPERVISION, AND SUPPORT SERVICES

Teachers may volunteer for work on the duty roster. The principal will make specific assignments and determine the number of events each person will work.

Payment will be as follows:

Supervision Category

$10.00 Door/Gate Watcher
$10.00 General Supervisor
$10.00 Ticket Takers

Special Skill Category

$13.00 Scorer-home-official book
$13.00 Scorer—away
$13.00 Timer
$13.00 P.A. Announcer/Video Tape
$12.00 Ticker Seller

High Responsibility Supervision Category

$15.00 Bus Chaperones over 75 miles round trip
$12.00 Bus Chaperones under 75 miles round trip

Officiating Category

$13.00 Baseball umpires (Varsity)
$12.00 Basketball referees (Freshmen and Jr. High) (2 games)
$10.00 Basketball referees (Junior Varsity)
$12.00 Football referees (Junior Varsity or Freshmen)
$12.00 Track Meet Assistants

Payment is to be made in a lump sum at the end of the school year upon satisfactory completion of assignments as attested by the High School Principal. (Payment to be subject to appropriate deduction for social security, retirement, etc.).

[Cumberland, Wisconsin]

* * *

CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT

The Board agrees to compensate teachers who participate in Summer Curriculum Workshops according to the following rates:

Bachelor's Schedule	$6.00 per hour
Master's Schedule	$7.00 per hour
6th Year Schedule	$8.00 per hour
PhD Schedule	$9.00 per hour

The chairman of Curriculum Workshops Committee shall be paid an additional $1.00 per hour over and above the rates set forth herein.

[Newington, Connecticut]

* * *

INSERVICE PARTICIPATION

Inservice participation (for approved programs with special budget provisions)	$6.80 per hour
Project and Curriculum Development Committee or Group Member	$10.80 per hour
Inservice Instructors	$14.10 per hour
Project and Curriculum Development	$14.10 per hour

[Oakland, California]

* * *

ACTIVITIES AND ASSIGNMENTS HAVING HOURLY OR PER-ASSIGNMENT RATES

Approved Curriculum Planning	$5.00 hr. - 0-3 yrs. exp. $6.00 hr. - 4 yrs. exp./over
Supervision of Extra Curricular Activities - Includes only:	$3.50 per hour (Not to exceed maximum time scheduled for each type of activity).
Chaperon Dances
Ticket Sales	(Minimum of $7.00 per event.
Crowd Control as Athletic Events and Dramatic Events	Applies only when teacher must return in evening or nonschool day).
Assist in Athletic Field Assignments
Assist in Athletic Scoring Assignments
Forensics and Debate Judges	$25.00 per assignment
Intra-Faculty Substitution Grades 7-12	$5.60 per scheduled period
Intra-Faculty Substitution Grades K-6	$2.75 per scheduled period
Supervision in lieu of 30-Minute Noon Hour	$2.50 per 30-minute period
Intramurals	$5.00 per hour (actual time)

[Franklin, Wisconsin]

* * *

SPECIAL REPORTS

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Oakland, California

Between the Board of Education of the Oakland Unified School District and the Certificated Employee Council, effective September 1, 1972, to August 30, 1973. Approximately 2,200 certificated professional employees including Children's Center employees. Provision for negotiation of impasse, provision for re-opener of monetary clauses upon addition of new money allocation of any additional 1972-73 funds, which must be placed in the special program improvement reserve, is subject to the meet and confer process.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $7,200 to $11,100, 10 increments; 5 years' preparation, $12,963 maximum; 6 years' preparation, $9,222 to $14,406, 12 increments; Ph.D., $15,417 maximum.

OTHER: Additional $360 longevity pay after 20 creditable years' service; joint committee to study payment of portion of accumulated sick leave at time of retirement; daily substitute pay is $33.25; after 20 consecutive days of substitute service, $40.75 per day; regular teacher as substitute, $10.05 per hour; Children's Center substitute, $3.80 per hour with assistant substitute, $3.15 per hour; teachers working with student teachers receive amount equal to, but not limited to, teacher training institution stipend; homebound and adult education teachers, $10.05 per hour; teachers on special assignment receive an additional $405 per year; one-tenth of annual salary for each additional month (18 days' work) of service;

Senior high-school department heads, including librarians:
5-19 periods assigned (including head)	Added	$261.00/yr.
20-34 periods assigned (including head)	Added	357.00/yr.
35-49 periods assigned (including head)	Added	453.00/yr.
50+ periods assigned (including head)	Added	549.00/yr.
Head teacher:
Fewer than five teachers	Added	405.00/yr.
Five teachers or more	Added	612.00/yr.
Audiometrists	Added	405.00/yr.
Inservice participation (for approved programs with special budget provisions		6.85/hr.
Project and curriculum development:
Committee or group member		10.90/hr.
Leader or chairman		14.25/hr.
Inservice instructors		14.25/hr.

Summer school pay is a proration of regular salary; ROTC instructors receive the difference between active duty pay and retirement pay plus $123 per month; compensation for "certain principal assigned non-classroom duties" performed before or after the regular school day in excess of 5 hours per month.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave credited at the beginning of the school year, unlimited accumulation; up to 6 days, deducted from sick leave, for illness or death in the immediate family, accident to the teacher, member of his immediate family or their property, emergency delay in travel, or officially ordered court appearance; emergency personal business leave granted at the discretion of the superintendent; up to one hour unrecorded emergency leave may be granted; leave for educational conferences, meetings, and committees (with "up to full" expenses paid by the district) available to authorized district representatives; 29 sabbatical leaves at 60 percent pay after 7 consecutive years' service; up to 60 days' leave (less Workman's Compensation) for any Workman's Compensation qualified disability; Children's Center teachers' vacation accrues at the rate of 10 days annually the first year, 15 days annually the second and third years, and 20 days annually after the fourth year.

INSURANCE: Board-paid health insurance, effective on first day of the second month of employment, with family coverage, teacher has a choice between one of two health services, if both family members are employed in the district, each has the choice of the same or of different health services, but neither may be a dependent on the other's plan and children may be enrolled in one plan only; board's contribution to part-time employees' health insurance is prorated; board-paid dental insurance begins the first day of the seventh month of employment; life insurance policy pays $2,500 for natural death and $5,000 for accidental death; board provides insurance protection against work-related liability claims; tax-sheltered annuity plan available; supplemental annuity program, administered by 5 trustees, 4 of whom are appointed by the council; long-term disability insurance, effective the first day of the sixth month of employment, pays two-thirds of the first $1,000 basic pay and one-third of pay beyond $1,000 per month; up to $1,000 per month paid for disability after 60 calendar days or expiration of all paid leaves.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; 5 days' released time for each of 9 council members so that they may meet with the board's representatives; right to conduct organization business on school property, to use bulletin boards, school district mail service, teacher mailboxes, and school buildings; first Monday (second, when the first Monday follows a vacation) of the month reserved for teacher organization meetings; board furnishes upon request non-confidential information relating to employer-employee relations, salaries, budgets, district finance, other appropriate council data, and a list of the names, addresses, and phone numbers of employees (unless the individual employee requests otherwise); board to consult the council concerning the appropriation and allocation of additional tax funds.

INSTRUCTION: Elementary teachers shall have one and secondary teachers shall have only 2 preparation periods, when possible; school calendar is negotiated; elementary school day shall be from 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. with teachers reporting at least 15 minutes before and remaining 10 minutes after class; secondary teaching day shall be from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. with teachers reporting 15 minutes before and remaining 15 minutes after class.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; right to review personnel file in the presence of an administrator or his designee and to be accompanied by a representative; prior notification of all derogatory material placed therein, with the right to review and answer such material;

> In the event that such charges made against an employee are proven to be without substance, such employee shall have the prerogative of deciding what shall be done with any records of such proceedings.

Elementary teachers have 45-minute duty-free lunch period; all other teachers have at least 30-minute duty-free lunch period; elementary preparation period between 8:30 and 9:00 a.m., with rotation of morning yard duty between 8:50 and 9:00 a.m., the teacher assigned such duty may leave 10 minutes early; maximum of 10 faculty meetings per year including preschool orientation; additional meetings permitted when there are "unforseeable circumstances which require immediate action"; professional growth is expected of teachers; completion of college or inservice multi-ethnic studies course is encouraged; first, second, third, and seventh days of 7 Minimum Day Workshops allocated for initiation of new evaluation procedures with remaining workshop time allocated for program improvements;

> Parent, community and student involvement in the design and conduct of the workshops is strongly recommended. A permissible option is the release of faculty for the afternoon for one or more Minimum Day Workshops, to return in toto in the evening for a workshop with parents and community. Possible workshop topics include school objectives, advancing school site Master Plan, Citizens Committee processes, new curriculum design, multi-ethnic programs, and staff and parent inservice training.

Private evaluation of teachers in accordance with pre-established specifications:

> Establish standards of expected student progress in each area of study and techniques for the measurement of that progress.
>
> Measure certificated employee competence relative to the achievement of the foregoing.
>
> Assess certificated employee performance of duties adjunct to their regular assignment.
>
> Insure that all certificated employees are maintaining proper control and preserving a suitable learning environment.

Provision for evaluation of substitute teachers serving more than 5 days; procedures established for investigating and resolving complaints against employees; no discussion of such complaints permitted in open board meetings; community ethnic composition:

> It is the policy of the Board to seek racial and ethnic balance of employees, conscientiously striving to create a balance that is consistent with the community's ethnic composition. In seeking candidates for vacant positions, the Board shall maintain among new appointees a balance in terms of age, training and experience. Highly qualified candidates of proven experience shall not be passed over because of higher placement on the salary schedule, with due regard for maintaining the above-mentioned balance.

Posting of all promotional and other vacancies; teachers may apply for posted positions or for a general transfer; all applications will be acknowledged; criteria for selection shall be the suitability of the teacher's qualifications and experience to the position for which the teacher is applying, balancing of the staff as to race, sex, age, experience, and ethnic background, the best interests of the school district, children, and community, and seniority (when all other factors are equal); reasons for denial of transfer given upon request; denial of transfer may be appealed to the superintendent; principal-intiated transfer must be preceded by a conference on reasons for the proposed transfer, and if the transfer is deemed advisable, reasons will be submitted to the Coordinator of Certificated Personnel in writing, and the teacher may appeal the new assignment; the central office may transfer teachers when such transfer is in the district's best interest or when necessitated by "consolidation," i.e., reduction of staff at a particular school or in a given department; when hiring outside the district, teachers who have completed a course in multi-ethnic studies will be given priority; posting of summer school positions with placement priority given to district teachers who meet the training and ability criteria of the specific assignment, maintain the district's sex, age, and ethnic balance and have most recently taught summer school; posting of all adult education openings with placement priority given to district teachers (when all else is equal); Adult Education Advisory Committee, composed of representatives of the administration, adult school, advisory committee, faculty, students, 28th District California Congress, Parent-Teachers, industry, business, management, labor, city government, military, and community organizations to offer advice, suggestions, outreach, and feedback in meeting the needs of the students and the community; Faculty Council, composed of 3 to 15 members (maximum of one per grade level (K-6) or department (7-12), established in each school to involve teachers in operation of the school, enable them to make recommendations to the administration, and give the principal the opportunity to consult the faculty; joint study committees to be established to investigate topics of common interest; district-wide committees appointed by the superintendent who shall select 50 percent of the members from the council's nominating list; district planning and reorganization committee, composed of staff, student, and community representatives, to develop school district master plan recommendations; provision for committee to dramatize Oakland's needs; student discipline joint committee to establish school-site discipline committees, which are to be composed of parents, teachers, and students; a discipline hearing panel to make recommendations to the superintendent pertaining to severe discipline cases;

Procedures for Conditions of Severe Disorder, Student Unrest, and Control of Unauthorized Persons

Establishes requirement that a major incident control plan be developed at each school in consultation with the faculty.

Provides for emergency dismissal procedures.

Provides for faculty, student, and parent involvement in the development of the plan to reopen a school when a school has been closed due to unrest. This plan requires a student identified as contributing to the disruption to return with his parent or guardian to the school for a conference prior to his readmittance to the school.

Establishes procedures for the control of loiterers and unauthorized persons engaging in disruptive behavior on or adjacent to school sites.

Establishes procedure for providing every reasonable precaution for school staff safety.

Procedures for Working with Law Enforcement Agencies

Commits the school district to cooperate closely with all law enforcement agencies in matters of mutual concern.

Specifies conditions for police questioning or removal of students at the school site.

Provision for safety of students and staff attending, participating in, or supervising after school events; reimbursement of costs resulting from unavoidable line-of-duty damage to personal property; legal counsel provided for any teacher requested by the district to appear as a witness at a trial or hearing, or charged in a civil or criminal complaint as a result of legitimate performance of his duties; dismissal or demotion only for just cause; provision for assistance to beginning teachers; academic freedom is encouraged.

Greenville, Delaware

Between the Alexis I. duPont School District, Board of Education, and Alexis I. duPont Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 174 certificated professional employees. Provision for reopener to negotiate 1973-74 teachers' and nurses' salaries.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $8,200 to $12,325, 15 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $14,700 maximum; M.A., $9,650 to $15,300, 20 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,225 maximum; Ph.D., $16,775 maximum. (1972-73 nurses salary schedule) B.A., $7,861 to $11,874, 15 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $14,245 maximum.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1972-73) athletic director and head football coach, $1,300; head basketball coach, $1,100; high-school band director, $900; head basketball, track, wrestling, and junior varsity football coaches, and dramatics director, $800; head soccer coach and cheerleader director, $700; yearbook advisor, girls' basketball and hockey coaches, $600; winter track, girls' lacrosse and softball coaches, $500; middle-school band director, music show director, girls' and boys' tennis, high-school newspaper advisor, $400; stagecraft director, junior and senior class advisors, literary magazine advisor, $300; astro shop, $100.

OTHER: $500 terminal pay upon retirement with 15 years' service in the district; participation in curriculum improvement projects outside school hours: chairman, $7.00 per hour and members, $6.25 per hour; inservice workshop participation outside school hours: director, $7.00 per hour and participants, $5.00 per hour; football scoreboard operator, timekeepers and gatekeepers, $10 per event; dance chaperons and nurse for athletic events, $15 per event; sabbatical leave at one-fourth of the total annual salary for one year, pro-rated if less than year, board may limit sabbatical leaves to 2 for any school year.

INSURANCE: Board-paid hospital-surgical-medical and special comprehensive benefits for individual coverage; board contribution toward family coverage with employee paying the difference; board-paid life insurance at 75 percent of annual salary for employees working 20 or more hours per week; $250,000 per person or $500,000 per occurrence liability insurance coverage in effect while performing assigned duties; board-paid income protection insurance for employees working 20 or more hours per week, the employee to receive two-thirds of annual salary to a maximum of $277 per week, effective after 30 days, to age 65, less any payments for Workmen's Compensation, social security, sick leave, and the state pension plans; blood bank membership available to all active and retired employees.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board of education; right to review personnel file in the presence of the principal, the superintendent, or his designee with nothing removed from or added to personnel file without the employee's knowledge; vacancies to be posted for at least 14 school days with consideration given to "professional background and attainments of all employees"; announcement of filling of promotional position to be made within 15 days; voluntary transfer applications "shall be honored to the extent that the transfer does not conflict with the instructional requirements of the school district"; upon request, reasons shall be given for denial of transfer; involuntary transfers may be effected only after a meeting between the employee and the principals involved; curriculum council is to be composed of the superintendent, the assistant superintendent for instructional services, school principals or assistant principals, and 8 teachers (at least two of whom are to be from each school level), to study and advise on matters relating to the improvement of instruction; council for administrative advisement is to be composed of the superintendent, assistant superintendents, 5 principals and 8 association representatives, to investigate and develop recommendations regarding various areas of common concern.

Edina, Minnesota

Between Independent School District No. 273 and Edina Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 37,000 certificated professional employees, excluding psychologists, counselors, and the administrator for athletics. Provision for automatic renewal for biennial periods unless either party notifies the other in writing of termination or modification of this agreement between 120 and 90 days prior to the expiration date.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $8,000 to $12,100, 8 increments; B.A. plus 36 quarter hours, $13,400 maximum; M.A., $8,925 to $16,350, 11 increments; M.A. plus 36 quarter hours, $17,225 maximum; Ph.D., $18,950 maximum. (1973-74) B.A., $8,200 to $12,325, 8 increments; B.A. plus 36 quarter hours, $13,625 maximum; M.A., $9,325 to $16,750, 11 increments; M.A. plus 36 quarter hours, $17,625 maximum; Ph.D., $19,375 maximum.

Longevity career differentials:

Teachers shall qualify for career differentials above the base salary schedule as follows:

Teachers who were 50 or beyond as of June 30, 1966, qualify for a longevity differential equal to 3% of the B.A. minimum their fifth year at the former B.A. maximum. (Step 12) This does not apply to personnel who qualify for the B.A. + 18 or B.A. + 36 levels of training.

1972-73

After 14 years of service in the school district, differentials will be paid to teachers as follows:

B.A. training level	$100
M.A. level and above	$200

1973-74

After 14 and 19 years of service in the school district, differentials will be paid to teachers as follows:

	15-19 years	20 years & above
B.A. training level	$125	$250
M.A. level and above	$250	$500

1972-73 Only

Teachers with M.A. training and above who do not receive an increment in 1972-73 and do not qualify for the differential in [as provided above] will be paid a differential of $100. This does not apply in subsequent years.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1972-74) varsity football and basketball, $1,873; varsity hockey, $1,738; varsity wrestling, $1,561; swimming, $1,516; gymnastics, $1,426; soccer, $1,383; baseball, $1,338; upper and lower division newspaper, $1,204 (effective 1973-74); girls' gymnastics, $1,115; varsity debate and upper division student council, $936; three-act play and operetta productions, literary magazine, girls' skiing, ninth-grade hockey, varsity cross country, $714; girls' badminton and aqua nymphs, lower division student council, secondary area leaders, head teachers, and art, health, and music specialists, $447; cheerleaders, $312; senior and junior class advisors, clubs, lower division choir and newspaper, $222; differentials are based on responsibility points determined by 15-member joint study committee; when mutual agreement is reached, salary adjustment is effective first pay period thereafter. However, if it is determined that a teacher has performed extra-curricular services at a responsibility level not consistent with that agreed upon as a result of procedures outlined in this section, appropriate salary adjustments will be made, retroactive to the beginning of the activity in that contract year.

OTHER: When the degree in the teacher's area requires 5 years' study, the teacher shall be placed on the 5 years' training lane of the salary schedule; full year's credit is to be given when the teacher serves more than one-half of the duty days; requests for salary adjustment to be recognized for the following school year or the current school year must be filed by July 1 or October 15, respectively; when the director of secondary or elementary education refuses to approve courses for salary credit, Upon request of the teacher seeking approval, appeal may be made directly to the Superintendent of Schools.

Upon request of the teacher seeking approval, an advisory review committee may be set up as follows:

At the secondary level, an advisory review committee composed of the school principal, the area leader, and a teacher (selected by the principal and the area leader) in the subject area of the teacher seeking approval.

At the elementary level, an advisory review committee composed of the school principal, the coordinator of elementary curriculum, and a teacher (selected by the principal and the coordinator of elementary curriculum) in the subject area of the teacher seeking approval.

At the option of the teacher seeking approval, up to two additional members of the professional staff of the schools may be added to the advisory review committees. Such professional members of the staff shall be the choice of the teacher seeking approval.

Annually in November, if there is a request, the Directors of Elementary and Secondary Education shall publish in the Superintendent's Bulletin the time and place for a review of prior approvals processed or certification of credits for salary schedule purposes. Such meetings shall be open to faculties and shall be anonymous as far as individual teachers or certifications are concerned. Purpose of the meetings shall be to establish communication as to methods used in the approval of credits or certification of credits for salary purposes and to receive suggestions for guidelines criteria and procedures for such approval or certification.

Each day of service beyond the regular school year paid at 1/184 of base salary; 12 cents per mile for use of own car for inter-school travel; compensation for summer school program teaching (curriculum writing, band, driver education, post-kindergarten, speech therapy, library, and physical conditioning): B.A., steps 1 through 7, $7.80 per hour; B.A., steps 8 through 12, M.A., steps 1 through 7, $8.07 per hour; M.A., steps 8 through 13, and Ph.D., steps 5 through 15, $8.32 per hour.

LEAVES: Twelve days' annual sick leave credited after 20 days' service, unlimited maximum accumulation; extended sick leave for disability or chronic condition, equivalent to 100 percent of accumulated sick leave is granted after one year's service, 75 percent of accumulated sick leave is granted after 2 years; 50 percent after 3 years; 25 percent after 4 years; 10 percent after 5 years; 5 percent after 6 years, and none after 7 years; school selects physician and pays fee when teacher is required to certify illness of less than 6 days; up to 5 days deducted from sick leave for illness or death in the immediate family; 3 days deducted for illness or death in the immediate family; 2 days for death of distant relative or close friend; up to 2 hours' leave to attend local funeral when classes can be covered by other staff members; 2 days' personal business leave limited to 10 percent of teachers on any one day and requires 3 days' notice unless emergency exists; leave for professional conferences and school visitation granted with the superintendent's approval; paid jury duty leave, less court fees; sabbatical leave available to 2½ percent of full-time employees after 6 years' service from date of hire or last sabbatical leave at 50 percent of annual basic salary for school year or 75 percent with 11 years' service from date of hire or last sabbatical; tax-sheltered annuity continues for teachers on sabbatical leave; 3 years' service is a requisite for any long-term leave of absence.

INSURANCE: Board pays $355 in 1972-73 and $380 in 1973-74 toward hospitalization-medical-life insurance premium for family coverage or $130 in 1972-73 and $140 in 1973-74 toward individual premium; the board's contribution toward insurance premium for teacher on sabbatical is prorated on the basis of the ratio of sabbatical compensation to the teacher's regular salary; board-paid life insurance policy equals the whole number 1,000's of the teacher's basic annual salary less $2,000; an additional $2,000 life insurance is available to teachers enrolled in health insurance plan; additional life insurance for which employees pay the premium is available; board pays premium for income protection (2/3 basic salary after 65 days continuous absence owing to disability); tax-sheltered annuity plan: the board matches individual contributions which are 1½ percent of basic salary for teachers with M.A. or M.A. plus for steps 1-4, and 2 percent of basic salary for all teachers on step 5 or higher; the matching amount of the tax-sheltered annuity program that would normally be paid to the annuity company by the school board will be paid to the teacher for changes of training approved too late to be included in the current years' annuity program; teachers on B.A. and B.A. interim steps 1 through 4 are ineligible for the tax-sheltered annuity program.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; the association is credited with 24 days' released time (requires 48 hours' notice); released time granted for participation in grievance hearings held during the school day; teachers elected to an association office or in relevant professional staff position granted up to 2 years' leave without pay, but benefits will continue if costs are paid; board to provide the association with current list of all staff members; board to furnish the association with 50 copies of this agreement.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; school calendar comprises 184 duty days; each teacher is expected to work 40 hours per week, i.e., 8 hours per day, including one-half hour duty-free lunch period; secondary teachers may be assigned up to 48 supervisory hours in lieu of unassigned period without compensation; assignment of supervisory hours in excess of 48 will be compensated in accordance with summer school salary schedule; teachers without an M.A. are expected to earn 6 quarter hour credits every 5 years; association to be notified of vacancies at least 3 weeks prior to filling of the position; staff is reduced in this order among those whose certification is the same as the discontinued positions:

a. Teachers with limited permits.
b. Teachers with provisional certificates.
c. Teachers on probation.
d. Teachers eligible for retirement.
e. Teachers with lesser seniority.
f. In the event of equal seniority, teachers whose performance evaluation indicates them to be less effective than other teachers of the same certification.

Teachers must retire at age 65, but those in good health whose services are needed may be extended for one year; joint policy committee, composed of 3 members appointed by the board and 3 members appointed by the association, to meet at least every 4 months; joint committee to evaluate and make recommendations concerning assignment of the responsibility points which determine compensation for extra-curricular services; seniority in the activity and tenure in the district are prime factors in the assignment of extra-duty positions.

Laramie County
Cheyenne, Wyoming

Between the Board of Trustees of Laramie County School District No. 1 and the Cheyenne Teachers Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1973. Approximately 750 certificated professional employees comprising classroom teachers, counselors, librarians, motor specialists, nurses, psychometricians, social workers, and speech and hearing clinicians.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $6,850 to $10,001, 8 increments; half yearly steps after 5 years; B.A. plus 30 hours, $10,480 maximum; M.A., $7,603 to $11,542, 10 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $12,809 maximum; Ph.D., $13,494 maximum; career incentive increment, 3 percent of base salary for teachers at the top of their salary lane included in above maximums nondegree nurses start on B.A. base of teachers' salary and thereafter receive 90 percent of teachers' B.A. lane.

DIFFERENTIALS: (percent of base salary) high-school football, basketball, wrestling, track and swimming head coaches, band director, vocal music director, debate and forensics coach, and district resource teachers, $822 (.12); junior high-school wrestling, football, basketball coaches, and senior high tennis, golf, and wrestling head coaches, $411 (.06); junior high orchestra and dramatics director, and cross country and track coaches, $257 (.0375).

OTHER: Credit for up to 6 years' service outside the district during the preceding 6 years, including 2 consecutive years' military service; a course taken for salary credit may not be repeated within 5 years; approval of course work for salary credit based upon "potential contribution to staff members total professional effectiveness."

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, unlimited maximum accumulation; up to 5 days deducted from sick leave for family illness; 2 days' personal business leave with employee paying substitute's pay the second day, and except for emergencies, 24 hours' notice is required; bereavement leave based on circumstances of each case; sabbatical leave for study or independent travel at three-fourths pay for one year after 5 years' service, with $32,500 appropriated for a maximum of 4 sabbatical leaves; sabbatical joint committee develops criteria for selection.

INSURANCE: Board-paid individual hospital and medical insurance.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national organization dues; if association president is a secondary-school teacher, only 4 classes shall be assigned, commensurate released time granted if president is either an elementary or junior high teacher; released time for participants in grievance proceedings held during school hours; use of school buildings allowed if regular school activities are not interrupted; Impasse Committee selected jointly to assist in resolution of disagreements over the meaning or application of this agreement or in instance of a negotiation impasse; the association executive committee to be provided with board meeting information.

INSTRUCTION: Faculty advisory committees shall make recommendations on assignment and use of noninstructional aides; school calendar is 186 days with a maximum of 180 student-contact days; the responsibilities of the curriculum advisory council (composed of 20 elementary and 18 secondary representatives representing each elementary school and grade level and each secondary subject area and special advisory personnel, the assistant superintendent, the director and assistant directors of curriculum are:

> To advise in the coordination and articulation of curriculum planning in grades K-12; to assist in providing for continuous and systematic evaluation of the curriculum; to encourage and seek out innovative and creative projects; to serve as a clearing house for new ideas for curriculum; to assist in communication among staff members about matters of curriculum; to function as an advisory organization, submitting approved recommendations to the director of curriculum for further consideration.

$4 per pupil provided for instructional supplies and equipment, use of which must be approved by the Faculty Advisory Committee or department heads and principals; the school day is normally 7½ hours; teachers may be required to arrive before or remain after regular hours for regularly scheduled activities or staff meetings.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; 30-minute duty-free lunch period; right to inspect personnel file with opportunity to comment in writing on contents; early school dismissal 4 times per year for professional meetings, curriculum planning, special inservice training, and individual building projects; monthly posting of vacancies; transfer requests may be initiated at any time, preferably before March 1, vacancies during the year to be temporarily filled, with permanent appointment being made at beginning of next term; transfer criteria: educational qualifications and experience in subject area, seniority in the district, and teaching ability; written explanation to be given for denial of transfer request; faculty advisory committee to assist and advise building administration; department members to cooperatively make class assignment recommendations.

TEXTS

HEW PROPOSED REGULATIONS ON WELFARE AID FOR STRIKERS

Social and Rehabilitation Service

[45 CFR Part 233]

COVERAGE AND CONDITIONS OF ELIGIBILITY IN FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Dependent Children of Unemployed Fathers

Notice is hereby given that the regulation set forth in tentative, alternative form below is proposed by the Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, with the approval of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. Both alternatives would amend § 233.100 (a)(1), which provides a Federal definition of unemployed father under the AFDC program in terms of hours of work.

In applying the existing regulation, the Department policy has been to permit a State, at its option to use a definition of unemployed father which imposes additional conditions relating to the reason for the unemployment, e.g., the State definition might exclude a father whose unemployment results from participation in a labor dispute or who is unemployed by reason of dispute or who is unemployed by reason of conduct or circumstances which result or would result in disqualification for unemployment compensation under the State's unemployment compensation law. In Davidson v. Francis, the U.S. Supreme Court on October 16, summarily affirmed the judgment of the district court which held, in effect, that while the Secretary has broad authority to define an unemployed father for purposes of section 407 of the Social Security Act, the existing Federal regulation provides only an hours-of-work test, and thus prohibits a State from excluding fathers who meet this test but are disqualified for unemployment compensation.

Accordingly, the proposed alternative A below would amend the regulation to make the prior Department policy explicit, by stating the options which are permitted to the States in defining an unemployed father. Alternative B, on the other hand, would amend the regulation to make clear that the hours-of-work test is intended as the exclusive definition of unemployed father, so that States may not have definitions which impose added conditions. This would be a change in Department policy, but would be consistent with the way that the existing regulation has been interpreted by the courts.

Davidson v. Francis attracted broad interest from States, assistance recipients, and industry and labor groups. The regulations are proposed in alternative form to give all those who are interested full information as to the various courses of action which are being considered.

Prior to the adoption of the proposed regulation, consideration will be given to any comments, suggestions, or objections thereto which are submitted in writing to the Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20201, within a period of 30 days from date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Comments received will be available for public inspection in room 5120 of the Department's offices at 301 C Street SW., Washington, DC, on Monday through Friday of each week from 8:30 to 5 p.m. (area code 202-963-7361). (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302)

ALTERNATIVE A

Section 233.100 (a) (1) of Chapter II of Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations is revised to read as follows:

§ 223.100 Dependent children of unemployed fathers.

(a) Requirements for State plans.* * *

(1) Include a definition of an unemployed father which shall apply only to families determined to be needy in accordance with the provisions in § 233.20. Such definition must include any father who:

(i) Is employed less than 100 hours a month; or

(ii) Exceeds that standard for a particular month, if his work is intermittent and the excess of a temporary nature is evidenced by the fact that he was under the 100-hour standard for the 2 prior months and is expected to be under the standard during the next month; except that, at the option of the State, such definition need not include a father whose unemployment results from participation in a labor dispute or who is unemployed by reason of conduct or circumstances which result or would result in disqualification for unemployment compensation under the State's unemployment compensation law.

ALTERNATIVE B

Section 233.100(a)(1) of Chapter II of Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations is revised to read as follows:

§ 233.100 Dependent children of unemployed fathers.

(a) Requirements for State plans.* * *

(1) Include a definition of an unemployed father which shall apply only to families determined to be needy in accordance with the provisions in §233.20 and shall include any father who:

(i) Is employed less than 100 hours a month, or

(ii) Exceeds that standard for a particular month, if his work is intermittent and the excess is of a temporary nature as evidenced by the fact that he was under the 100-hours standard for the 2 prior months and is expected to be under the standard during the next month.

This shall be the exclusive definition of an unemployed father.

* * * *

[FR Doc.73-33 Filed 1-2-73;8:45 am]

VOL. 6 NO. 10
JUNE 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Agreement Effective Until Properly Terminated or Altered by Negotiations
- Winton Act Bars Binding Agreements
- School Boards Must Negotiate Principals' Salaries and Working Conditions
- New Trial Ordered for Teachers Fined in Violations of Strike Injunction
- Board Has Statutory Right to Enact Administrative Rules
- State Employees May Sue for Recovery of Wages in State Not Federal Court
- Board of Regents Must Grant AFT Same Privileges It Gives AAUP
- Restriction on Staff Political Activity Lawful

Board Findings and Rulings 7
- Union Can Expel Members for Disciplinary Reasons
- Agency Shop Fee Increased
- Board May Issue Administrative Rules Unless Contract is Specific
- Two Grievances Lost on Interpretation of Single Word
- Appropriate Units for Aides and Part-time Teachers Clarified
- Denial of Pay for Attending Arbitration Hearing Not Unfair
- State-Wide Higher Education Unit Determined
- Evening School Teachers' Representatives Entitled to Negotiate Terms and Conditions of Employment
- NLRB Determines Appropriate College and Law School Faculty Bargaining Units

Negotiation Notes 11
- Alaska, Wisconsin Issue Rules Clarifying Public Employees' Bargaining Laws
- Management Team Urges Unified Public Employee Statutes
- New York State University Staffers Approve Merger
- Labor Department Regulations Covering Extension of Equal Pay Act
- Consumer Price Index Advances 0.6 Percent in May
- Public Employee Bargaining Law Amended

Statistics 14
- Written Negotiation Agreements Survey: 1972-73
- BLS Issues New Cost-of-Living Indicators

Special Reports 21
- Briefs of Recent Agreements

Text 25
- Indiana Classroom Teachers Collective Bargaining Act

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2502

CASE REVIEWS

ALASKA

Agreement Effective Until Properly Terminated or Altered by Negotiations

In a declaratory judgment, the Superior Court of Alaska held that a contract negotiated between the Anchorage Borough Education Association and the Greater Anchorage Area Borough School District for the 1971-72 school year was to remain in effect for subsequent years until the contractual provisions were altered by negotiations or one of the parties terminated the agreement, upon tendering adequate notice to the opposite party.

The agreement negotiated by the parties became effective on April 19, 1971. In accordance with the contractual negotiation procedure, negotiation for a successor agreement began on December 6, 1971. Negotiations ended on May 29, 1972, whereupon the district issued a press release to the effect that no negotiated agreement would be in effect during the 1972-73 school year. Following the district's action the teachers association filed a complaint claiming that Article XIX of the agreement provided for its automatic renewal.

According to the court, Article XIX of the agreement provided that all negotiated policy provisions were to be maintained unless altered by subsequent negotiations. Article XIX, though not a statement of intended duration, indicated that negotiated provisions are effective during the term of the contract or until altered by later agreements. The court stated that since the contractual provisions had not been changed, the important question was whether the agreement had a specific duration.

As there was no express duration, the court considered other factors. Noting that certain items in the contract, i.e., insurance and extra-duty pay, referred to the 1971-72 school year only, other contractual items implied the continuous existence of provisions. For example, a clause required the board to recognize "the organization which on November 1 of each year" represented the majority of the certificated staff, and an additional provision referred to the hiring of librarians during the 1972-73 school year. In view of the conflicting provisions, the court held that a specific contract duration could not be determined.

The court did not support the association's contention that the contract "must remain in effect until altered or superceded by a new agreement." According to the court, the contract was terminable "at will by either party upon reasonable notice"; however, the district's press release was not sufficient to terminate the contract, and was untimely notification. The court stated that the contractual negotiation procedure required that requests for negotiation be submitted by December 1. Reasonable notice of either party's intent to terminate the contract must allow time for the opposite party to request negotiations.

Additionally, the court felt that each party must be made aware of the consequences of either not requesting negotiations or not reaching an agreement. Since the district had not given adequate or timely notice of its intention to terminate the contract, the agreement with the teachers association was still effective during the 1972-73 school year, and would remain in effect until terminated by either party upon reasonable notice or until altered by negotiations. The plaintiff teachers association was also awarded attorney's fees. (Anchorage Borough Education Association v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough School District, Superior Court of Alaska, October 4, 1972.)

CALIFORNIA

Winton Act Bars Binding Agreements

California school boards cannot enter into binding written agreements with teacher representatives. The California Court of Appeals, consolidating two suits, so ruled in accordance with the Winton Act and prior rulings, thereby upholding a lower court decision which nullified a contract between the Los Angeles City Board of Education and the United Teachers of Los Angeles (UTLA).

The contract agreed upon by the parties followed a strike by nearly half of Los Angeles's 25,000 certified teachers. Following acceptance of the agreement the superior court issued a preliminary injunction prohibiting the parties from entering into the proposed agreement. To circumvent the Act's restrictions, the board proposed adoption of a resolution which included the major provisions of the agreement. The superior court permanently enjoined the board from entering into an agreement or similar resolution on the grounds that the settlement was the product of unlawful collective bargaining and an unlawful teachers' strike and that the proposed settlement was beyond the power of the board or school district to execute or implement.

UTLA appealed the superior court's decision, contending that the "primary and fundamental question presented by this appeal is whether or not the Los Angeles City Board of Education and the Negotiating Council may enter into the employment contract which contains understandings and agreements reached as a result of meeting and conferring pursuant to the Winton Act." Additionally, UTLA contended that the Winton Act did not bar a board from entering into agreements but left it to the board's discretion.

The board of education, in concurring with the lower court's injunction, also contended that the appeal should be dismissed for mootness since the composition of the employees' organization had changed and the agreement had expired in June 1971.

Noting the length of the strike and the number of teachers involved, the court said that "it is readily apparent that the termination of the strike formed a substantial part of the consideration for the proposed findings." The court then concluded that the agreement was invalid since it was contrary to public policy to exact a consideration for the cessation of an illegal activity.

Addressing the question of mootness and the question of the permanent injunction barring the board from entering into future agreements, the court rejected dismissal or dissolution of the injunction because dismissal would be contrary to public interest and because the possibility existed that this question would rise again.

The appeals court ruled that the trial court correctly interpreted the Winton Act to mean that any agreements reached between the parties must be implemented in the form of resolutions, regulations, or policies of the public-school employer which, except as provided by law, must be freely entered into, subject to change at the board's pleasure, and not in the form of a binding agreement. On the basis of the foregoing the court upheld the lower court decision. (Natalie Grasko, Lee Gill, et al., Plaintiffs and Respondents, vs. Los Angeles City Board of Education, et al., and United Teachers of Los Angeles, etc., et al., Defendants and Appellants; Farrel T. Miles, et al., Plaintiffs and Respondents, vs. United Teachers-Los Angeles, etc., et al., Defendants and Appellants, California Court of Appeals, March 26, 1973.)

CONNECTICUT

School Boards Must Negotiate Principals' Salaries and Working Conditions

The Connecticut Supreme Court denied the Waterbury Teachers Association's (WTA) appeal of a lower court decision that declined to enjoin the City of Waterbury from filling a position for elementary-school principal. The court also ruled that the state's teacher bargaining act mandated that a school board negotiate the salaries and working conditions of its principals.

The court stated that the responsibility of determining employee job classifications and specifications was charged to the city's personnel director and civil service commission. In April 1970, the city had adopted revised classifications and specifications for elementary-school principal III to require two years' rather than three years' experience as an elementary principal II and state certification for elementary principal III. In addition, the principal would be responsible for the evaluation of all teachers.

The plaintiff applied for the open examination to fill a vacant position, but was declared ineligible because he lacked the required two years' experience in an elementary school with kindergarten through grade 8. It was noted that the plaintiff had two years' experience in elementary school and had taught school routinely for two periods a day, spending his remaining time in a supervisory capacity.

WTA filed a grievance concerning the principals' examination pursuant to contract procedure, but the plaintiff did not join in the grievance. Prior to the arbitration hearing, WTA and the plaintiff sought court action to stop the filling of the principal III position. But the New Haven Superior Court would not issue an injunction.

The appeals court struck down the plaintiffs' contention that the lower court erroneously refused to stay the proceedings, as requested, since state statute provides that the court stay the action until the completion of arbitration. The court acknowledged the arbitration law citied by the plaintiffs, but found that any right to arbitration under the statute had been waived by the plaintiffs' proceeding almost to completion in a court trial on the same issues claimed for arbitration. The court found that the plaintiff did not qualify for the school principal III examination, upholding the decision of the lower court.

The court also ruled that Section 10-153 d of the teacher bargaining act provided that a school board shall negotiate salaries and other conditions of employment and that Section 10-153 b showed that the law was not restricted to teachers not in administrative positions. According to the court, school principals are certified professional employees, and, therefore, are covered by the act. (Waterbury Teachers Association et al v. City of Waterbuty et al., Connecticut Supreme Court, March 1973.)

New Trial Ordered for Teachers Fined in Violation of Strike Injunction

The Connecticut State Supreme Court ordered a retrial for members and officers of the New London Education Association (NLEA) who disregarded a 1970 anti-strike order. The state supreme court determined that a lower court classified contempt of court proceedings against the teachers as civil rather than criminal, thus failing to grant the teacher defendants safeguard rights entitled to them in a criminal case.

The NLEA adopted a resolution reaffirming its "no contract no work" position. The same day, the New London Superior Court issued an injunction enjoining NLEA from engaging in a work stoppage. However, the teachers went out on strike, and within several days were found guilty of contempt of court with stiff fines levied on the association and individual teachers.

The teachers contended, on appeal, that the lower court contempt proceedings should have been classified as criminal rather than civil, and that rights implicit in a criminal trial should have been afforded.

The state supreme court defined criminal contempt as conduct directed at the dignity and authority of the court, while civil contempt concerns conduct directed against the opposing party's rights. According to the court, in criminal contempt, the "sanction is punitive in order to vindicate the authority of the court," and fines are payable to the state. The contempt is civil when fines are conditional and coercive and when the contemnor can obtain release by compliance with the judicial decree.

The supreme court cited Board of Junior College District v. Cook County College Teachers Union in which the Illinois Appellate Court stated that a useful test of whether contempt proceedings are criminal or civil is consideration of the punishment invoked. The Illinois court further held that contempt is criminal when the punishment is punitive, imprisonment is for definite term, and the fine is a fixed sum. The contemp would be civil if punishment is remedial or coercive, and if commitment of the contumacious party is to force compliance with the court order. The Illinois court also noted that guilt in a criminal contempt case must "be proven beyond a reasonable doubt."

In the instant case, the Connecticut high court found that the fines imposed on the teachers were punitive and "designed to uphold the dignity and authority of the court," and payable to the state. The court concluded that the contempt proceedings were criminal, and the teachers were entitled to the safeguards of a criminal trial. Determining that the lower court did not afford the defendants a criminal trial, the court declared the lower court's judgment erroneous, and ordered a new trial. (L. Mary McTigue et. al. v. New London Education Association et. al.; Rose Lubchansky et. al. v. New London Education Association et. al., Connecticut Supreme Court, March 6, 1973.)

OHIO

Board has Statutory Right To Enact Administrative Rules

The Ohio Court of Appeals upheld a lower court decision which dissolved a temporary injunction against the Youngstown Board of Education which blocked enforcement of adopted regulations. A concurring opinion elaborated on the question of board-association authority to bargain and asserted that a board of education can enter into a collective bargaining agreement with a teachers association so long as the agreement does not compromise the board's authority to manage and regulate its schools.

Following the negotiation of a master agreement between the Youngstown Education Association (YEA) and the school board, the board adopted policies governing the signature of complaints against teachers, parent group visitations to classrooms, toilet privileges for students, and parental review of teachers' professionalism. A temporary injunction restraining implementation of these rules was dissolved by a lower court.

On appeal, the YEA contended that the legislature contemplated collective bargaining for teachers and therefore the policies adopted by the board contravened the express language and breached conditions of the master contract.

The board argued that the agreement had no legal effect since collective bargaining was not sanctioned by law, and further, statutory duty to enact rules and regulations concerning the running of schools would supersede any agreement even if bargaining was sanctioned.

The court pointed to several cases to show that lower courts in Ohio are split on the issue of whether the legislature intended for school boards to enter into agreements with teacher associations. However, the court reasoned that it did not need to pass on this issue since the school board was statutorily charged to manage and control the schools and the policies were adopted by the board in response to that obligation. Nonetheless, in a concurring opinion the court held that the legislature enactment of R. C. Section 9.41 providing dues check-off for public employees and R. C. Section 3313.17 authorizing a board of education to enter into contracts, authorized a board of education to enter into a binding collective bargaining agreement with a teachers association, but the statutory authority of the board to manage schools could not be compromised in the process. (Youngstown Education Association v. Youngstown City Board of Education et al., Ohio Court of Appeals, February 27, 1973.)

FEDERAL

State Employees May Sue for Recovery of Wages in State Not Federal Court

A federal suit was brought by state health facilities employees in Missouri to recover overtime pay claimed due under Section 16 (a) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), which allows suits in "any court of competent jurisdiction" for unpaid wages and an equal amount for liquidated damages and attorney fees. A. U. S. District Court had ruled that an employees' suit could not be brought in federal court, however, a three-member appeals court panel reversed that decision, which likewise was reversed by a full appeals court.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in reviewing this matter held that the Congress did not mean that employees could bring federal suit to recover unpaid wages when the FLSA was amended in 1966 to extend minimum wage and overtime pay coverage to employees of nonprofit state schools and hospitals. The high court ruled that a state has constitutional immunity to suit in federal court by state employees, according to the Court, but that the Secretary of Labor can sue on the employees' behalf. Further, the majority opinion of the Court left to question whether employees can sue in a state court. A concurring opinion advocated that employees have this right.

The Supreme Court held that the policy of the FLSA "is wholly served by allowing the delicate federal-state relationship to be managed through the Secretary of Labor." Further, the Court noted that FLSA language allowing employee suits in "any court of competent jurisdiction" could be interpreted to mean that employees can sue the state government in the state courts.

The concurring opinion held that employees can sue in state courts under FLSA, and since federal law is supreme, the state courts must enforce it even if in conflict with state policy.

A dissenting opinion held that the trend has been against enforcing governmental immunity and that the majority and concurring opinions restrain this trend. (Employees of the Department of Public Health and Welfare, State of Missouri, et al., v. Department of Public Health and Welfare, State of Missouri, et al., U.S. Supreme Court, April 18, 1973.)

Board of Regents Must Grant AFT Same Privileges It Gives AAUP

The U.S. District Court of Florida enjoined the state university system to stop denying the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) the same rights granted to the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and other employee organizations. Following the board of regent's adoption of a policy prohibiting the use of university facilities or equipment at institutions of the state university system by groups whose purpose is to organize employees, the AFT was denied use of university facilities while other organizations enjoyed these privileges.

The AFT contended that the action prohibiting the union from utilizing university facilities on an equal footing with other employee organizations was a violation of its right to equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Pointing out that the case did not involve a violation of constitutional rights, the court held that the question to be considered was whether the adopted policy had been applied arbitrarily in a manner that deprived the plaintiffs of equal protection of the laws. The court continued that though the board may regulate use of state university facilities, it must do so in a reasonable and nondiscriminatory manner unless some governmental interest is furthered by a differential course of treatment.

After examining the objectives and policies of both AFT and AAUP, the court concluded that the two organizations were substantially homogeneous with differences so minute as not to warrant different treatment. Upon the board's concession that AFT's presence on campus would not constitute a threat of disruption, the court determined that no state interest was served by the system's treatment of AFT, and ordered the board of regents to grant AFT the same rights afforded other campus organizations.

Following the court order, the university ordered AAUP and similiar organizations off campus until the board of regents drafts a permanent policy regarding use of facilities by employee organizations. Proposed policy changes include allowing employee groups to use campus buildings for meetings and requiring them to pay for other services which would be available to all employees and groups. (Florida State University Chapter, Local 1880, AFT et al., v. Florida Board of Regents et al., U. S. District Court for the Northern District of Florida, March 13, 1973.)

Restriction on Staff Political Activity Lawful

The U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia granted a request of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) for summary judgment declaring that the provision in the AFT bargaining agreement with the Committee for National Representatives prohibiting intra-union political activity by AFT staffers was legal. The case was brought before the court after an AFT employee was discharged because he became a candidate for president of the union (AFT).

The employee contended that enforcement of the provision prohibiting intra-union political activity is illegal because it violates the guarantees of free expression and candidacy for union office without retaliation as provided for in the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (LMRDA).

The union claimed that the contract provision furthers the policy of maintaining an apolitical staff who do not serve at the pleasure of elected officials, assuring the AFT "a professional experienced staff, and means that the policies of AFT will be made by its elected officials responsible to its full membership rather than by a political staff."

Comparing the instant case with two similar cases, Machinists v. King and Retail Clerks, Local 648 v. Retail Clerks International Union, in which the courts suggested that "a firmly established policy of required political neutrality indiscriminately administered and not adopted in order to perpetuate incumbent leadership or any other ulterior purpose would not offend the LMRDA provision," the U.S. District Court noted the similarities and held that the employer had a rational basis for adopting a provision which would not jeopardize the democratic process nor violate the LMRDA. The court therefore granted summary judgment in favor of the AFT and declared the provision lawful. (American Federation of Teachers v. Kenneth E. Miesen, U.S. District Court, District of Columbia, December 29, 1972.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

HAWAII

Union Can Expel Members for Disciplinary Reasons

The Hawaii Employment Relations Board (HERB) dismissed for lack of jurisdiction the charges against the Hawaii Government Employees Association (HGEA) brought by six persons who were expelled from HGEA because they supported the Professional and Supervisors Association of Hawaii, a rival union, during an organizational drive.

The former members contended that "their expulsion violated the statutory prohibition against interfering with employees' rights to participate in—or refrain from—the activities of an employee organization."

HERB pointed out that it had jurisdiction, in some instances, over union actions directed at members, but on the basis of the facts in the instant case, the Board decided that it did not have jurisdiction in the matter. The Board then said that "to hold that a union may not protect itself from actions such as those engaged in by petitioners through the use of discipline, such as expulsion, would be to prevent a union from taking reasonable steps to preserve its existence." On the basis of this reasoning the charges were dismissed. (In the matter of James Chang, et al., and Hawaii Government Employees Association, Local 152, Hawaii Employment Relations Board, March 15, 1973.)

Agency Shop Fee Increased

The Hawaii Employment Relations Board (HERB) certified the requested agency shop fees that nonmembers of the Hawaii State Teachers Association (HSTA) must pay to help offset the costs of negotiation and administration of their collective bargaining agreements.

In its petition for certification of a $97 annual service fee, HSTA requested that teachers on leave without pay be required to pay the entire service fee. The Board ruled that the $97 fee was reasonable under the terms of the bargaining statute and Board rules. However, the Board said that the legislature did not intend for persons not on the payroll, i.e., on leave without pay, to be assessed service fees. Comparing the employee on leave without pay with a new employee, the Board pointed out that "the new employee is not required to pay retroactively for services rendered by the exclusive representative prior to his/her employment and the employee on leave, who may receive benefits negotiated during an absence, is in no more advantageous a position than a new employee who becomes an employee after such benefits have been established."

A dissenting HERB member held that "the legislature has left no leeway" in the matter of payment of service fees. He noted that according to the law the service fee is an assessment of all employees that is computed on a pro-rata basis among all employees. (In the matter of Hawaii Employment Relations Board, March 15, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Board May Issue Administrative Rules Unless Contract Is Specific

In two separate cases, arbitrators upheld school-board policies and administrative regulations relative to short-term leave and the school calendar. In each case the contract lacked detailed language and adequate safeguards.

- The first case involved the Oscoda Board of Education and the Oscoda Education Association. In an effort to correct reported abuses of the negotiated personal leave provision entitling teachers to two days of personal leave to transact business that could be handled only during the school day, the board required teachers to give a specific reason for requesting such leave. The association contended that the school board was exceeding its bounds by issuing this directive.

The arbitrator did not find the board's policy to be unreasonable, holding that reasons for utilizing personal leave do not "have to be spelled out in such detail as to embarrass the person making the request." Personal leave, as provided in the contract, was to be used only for business that could not be transacted except during the school day, and was not to be used as vacation time.

- In the second case, involving the Wayne-Westland Education Association and the Wayne-Westland Board of Education, the arbitrator supported the board's suspension of two teachers who had extended their Easter vacation.

As a result of the association's five-day strike in January, the board was compelled to shorten the scheduled Easter vacation in order to make up the lost time. The board announced that except for extreme emergencies, leave immediately before or after the holiday would not be granted, and also that failure to follow this directive would result in disciplinary action.

Aware of the board's policy and possible discipline, the suspended teachers had gone ahead with their original vacation plans. The arbitrator found no inequities in the board's suspension of the teachers. He held that the board had a valid reason to shorten and limit the Easter holiday and that the teachers were aware of the policy, and by their own admission, had expected discipline. (Oscoda School District and Oscoda Education Association, American Arbitration Association, October 13, 1972; Wayne-Westland Education Association and Wayne-Westland Board of Education, American Arbitration Association, October 17, 1972.)

NEW JERSEY

Two Grievances Lost on Interpretation of Single Word

In two cases, arbitrators upheld the school board's interpretation of a single word in the contract.

- One case involved an agreement which contained a clause stating that proposals for changes in the terms and conditions of employment must be approved by 75 percent of the building "staff." An advisory opinion upheld the board's position that non-bargaining unit personnel, such as counselors and department heads, were part of the building staff and therefore eligible to vote on proposed changes.

The teachers association contended that during negotiations non-bargaining unit staff members were excluded from the clause in question, and furthermore, personnel other than bargaining unit members were legally barred from voting on changes in the terms and conditions of employment. The arbitrator found that although the agreement was unclear as to which group of personnel constituted "staff," the word teachers was used most often to refer to bargaining unit members, and furthermore, certain sections of the agreement other than the one in question, clearly indicated provisions that applied to bargaining unit members only.

The arbitrator felt that since non-bargaining unit personnel were allowed to vote in pre-agreement proceedings and were "to propose, discuss, and receive distribution of consequent decisions," it was not logical that these persons should "be excluded from the vote after being so involved."

- The other case revolved about a negotiated sick leave clause which stated that "a regular audit will be made of employee absences." The arbitrator upheld the board's contention that auditing sick leave implied interviewing employees with more than nine absences a year in order to verify the number and the reasons.

The arbitrator rejected the union's argument that the word audit referred only to a check for arithmetical accuracy, holding that the board intended the broader meaning of the term audit as used in business and accounting. In reply to the union's contention that the board could not unilaterally interpret the terms of the contract, the arbitrator stated: "There is no legal obligation resting upon a party to a contract to negotiate its interpretation before he acts; he is free to interpret it and act upon his interpretation without securing the agreement of the other party to that interpretation. Of course when a party acts unilaterally in that way he incurs the risk that appropriate tribunal (court or arbitration) may disagree with his interpretation and hold him in breach of contract." (South Orange and Maplewood Board of Education and the South Orange and Maplewood Education Association, American Arbitration Association, November 28, 1972; Wethersfield Board of Education and the Wethersfield Education Association, American Arbitration Association, October 1972.)

NEW YORK

Appropriate Units for Aides and Part-time Teachers Clarified

In two separate proceedings, the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) ruled that certain groups of aides and part-time teachers are public employees entitled to representation.

In the first case, the Great Neck Paraprofessional Association, an affiliate of the Great Neck Teachers Association (GNTA), filed a petition for certification as the exclusive bargaining representative of all aides employed by the Great Neck Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 7. Aides are categorized according to the duties they perform and source of funding. Instructional aides assist teachers in the classroom; noninstructional and cafeteria aides supervise students on playgrounds and in libraries, study halls, corridors, and cafeterias; clerical aides type, file, mimeograph, take inventory of books, and record grades are paid from district funds. Some aides are also employed in state and federally funded programs.

The district contended, and the trial examiner concurred, that aides in federally or state funded programs were not entitled to representation since "effective control over the hours, wages, and benefits of these aides resides not with the employer but with the State Education Department and federal government."

The trial examiner dismissed the district's contention that the other aides are not entitled to representation because of their part-time status since "most of the regularly employed aides are the only individuals performing their particular functions for the employer and thus may be said to fill their job classifications on a fulltime basis."

The district pointed out that if clerical aides are found to be public employees entitled to representation, they should be added to the Office Staff Association (OSA) because the unit definition of OSA members perforce includes clerical aides. However, the trial examiner ruled that the definition of clerical aide differed from that of OSA members owing to their primary orientation and the parties to which they give their allegiance. Moreover, clerical aides and other aides share similar lines of supervision relating to the instructional staff not shared by the regular clerical employees. The trial examiner also noted that the record indicated that there is a strong potential for conflict between clerical aides and regular clerical staff.

Acting on the basis of the information above, the trial examiner ruled that instructional, noninstructional, cafeteria, and clerical aides are entitled to representation within the same unit. (Great Neck Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 7, Employer and Great Neck Paraprofessionals Association, affiliated with the Great Neck Teachers Association, Petitioner, and Office Staff Association of the Great Neck Public Schools Intervenor, Public Employment Relations Board, October 7, 1971.)

A trial examiner's decision that part-time reading teachers employed by Amityville Public Schools are public employees entitled to representation as a separate bargaining unit was upheld by PERB after the employer filed exceptions to the decision.

The Amityville Reading Teachers Association petition for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative of part-time reading teachers, hinged on the issue of whether these employees were entitled to representation as public employees of the school district even though they were paid from federal and state funds.

In an effort to have the petition dismissed, the school district referred to the Great Neck decision wherein the trial examiner held that a group of aides employed in state and federally funded programs "lack a sufficient employment nexus with the employer. . .to justify their designation as public employees with the concomitant right to negotiate collectively about their terms and conditions of employment."

The trial examiner pointed out that federal funding did not mandate that the teachers were not public employees. Further, in Great Neck the aides' employment was incidental to their function as community representatives. In the instant case, the employer "had unquestioned control over the selection, placement, hours of work, work assignment, evaluation, and all other non-economic terms and conditions of employment of the part-time reading teachers." The trial examiner ruled that the teacher aides were public employees entitled to representation since the employer had primary control over their conditions of employment. The PERB agreed with the trial examiner's findings and confirmed his decision ordering an election. (Amityville Public Schools, Employer, and Amityville Reading Teachers Association, Petitioner, Public Employment Relations Board, August 17, 1972.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Denial of Pay for Attending Arbitration Hearing Not Unfair

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the Centennial School District did not violate the Public Employees Relations Act (PERA) when it refused to compensate teachers for time off to attend an arbitration hearing. The board found the school district's decision nondiscriminatory and in accordance with its leave policies.

The teachers, union officials, had requested time off to attend arbitration hearings between the union and the school district, and had been granted leave but without pay. Subsequently, the teachers filed a petition with the PLRB, contending that the denial of compensation was in retaliation for their union activity.

The teachers were subpoenaed by the union's counsel to attend the arbitration hearings. According to school-board policy, teachers were to be paid for mandatory attendance at legal proceedings, but not to be paid if they as litigants were found guilty. Payment for unspecified absence was to be made at the discretion of the school district.

The Board found that the superintendent's action in denying payment to the teachers was proper and consistent with the leave policy. The main issue, according to PLRB, was whether the district had violated PERA by applying its leave policy in a non-uniform manner in retaliation for union activity. The PLRB held that the union failed to show that the superintendent had applied the leave policy in an arbitrary manner. Moreover, even if the subpoenas had not been issued, the teachers would not be entitled to compensation, and in addition, PLRB felt, the issuance of the subpoenas was not relevant. The subpoenas had been issued under the complete control of the union's counsel, and to base a decision on the issuance of the subpoenas "would enable the union to control whether or not an unfair labor practice was committed by the district by its own acts."

The Board continued, stating that since leave payments were not covered in the collective bargaining agreement between the union and the school district, the only issue was whether the nonpayment violated the Act. According to PLRB, the Act did not require school districts to pay for attendance at board hearings on an allegation of an employer's unfair labor practice. Therefore, the school district did not illegally refuse teachers payment for time spent at arbitration hearings. (PLRB v. Centennial School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, March 7, 1973.)

VERMONT

State-Wide Higher Education Unit Determined

The Vermont State Labor Relations Board (VSLRB) dismissed a petition filed by 19 of the 45 faculty members of Vermont Technical College (VTC), in accordance with the state's collective bargaining law, to form a unit of the Vermont State Employees Associations. VTC is one of four state colleges established at the same time by an act of the state legislature. The four colleges have a common board of trustees and, according to testimony, the academic differences among them are minimal. The board, and not the president, has the power to take action on many matters that are subject to collective bargaining.

The VSLRB agreed that the employees seeking organization could form an appropriate unit in terms of similarity of interests, needs, and conditions of employment, but pointed out that faculty members at the other three colleges would also be appropriate for the unit. A separate bargaining unit, the board said, "would be very likely to produce an adverse effect on the operation of the Vermont State Colleges and would result in over-fragmentation." The VSLRB, therefore, dismissed the petition on the basis that a state-wide unit would best serve the interests of the employees involved. (Petition for Certification of Faculty at Vermont Technical College, Vermont State Labor Relations Board, February 20, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Evening School Teachers' Representatives Entitled To Negotiate Terms and Conditions of Employment

Ruling that a union has the right and that a school district is duty bound to bargain over wages, hours, and working conditions affecting its employees, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission upheld a petition filed by Local 212, Wisconsin Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. The union sought a declaratory judgment to force the District 9 Area Board of Vocational, Technical, and Adult Education to bargain over salaries of its evening school employees whose workload is at least 50 percent of a regular teacher's.

The union became the exclusive bargaining representative of all regular full-time and part-time teachers teaching at least 50 percent of a regular teaching schedule after an election was held on June 3, 1963, which determined these teachers desired a unit separate from that of teachers with less than 50 percent of a teaching schedule. In determining the amount of teaching time, the Commission counted day and night classes.

The Commission stated that it was difficult to understand why the board refused to bargain wages, hours, and working conditions of these teachers since in the original representation proceeding the time that evening classes were taught was included in determining whether a teacher taught at least 50 percent of a full schedule. Had the Commission intended for night class teachers to be excluded from collective bargaining, it would not have included evening teachers in the unit.

On the basis of the foregoing, the Commission ruled that as the exclusive collective bargaining representative for teachers who teach at least 50 percent of a full teaching schedule the union has the right, "and the Municipal Employer has the duty to bargain wages, hours, and conditions of employment of the teachers in the bargaining unit regardless of whether they teach during day or evening." (Local 212, Wisconsin Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO vs. District 9 Area Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, July 14, 1972.)

FEDERAL

NLRB Determines Appropriate College and Law School Faculty Bargaining Units

National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) determinations have expanded two proposed higher education bargaining units. The Board expanded the unit sought by the Catholic University of America Law Faculty Bargaining Committee to include part-time faculty who were not currently on the law school payroll, but who met established criteria for inclusion in the unit. Similarly, the NLRB inlcuded department chairmen in a unit sought by the Rosary Hill (College) Faculty Association on the basis that the chairmen lacked the supervisory authority requisite to exclusion from a faculty bargaining unit.

- Finding that the unit sought by the Law Faculty Bargaining Committee was broader than the unit for which the committee had petitioned, the NLRB ordered the postponement of any representation election until an adeqate showing of interest among all eligible voters was provided.

The NLRB clarification of the appropriate law school faculty bargaining unit brought additional part-time faculty into the unit. On the basis of criteria established in University of Detroit [NRD, 12-71, 12] and C.W. Post Center of Long Island University [NRD, 6-71, 12], the Board included all part-time faculty who were not teaching during the semester of the election, but who had taught at least one semester pursuant to written appointment during any two of the previous three consecutive years (including the election year) with at least one-fourth of the average full-time teaching load. (The Catholic University of America and Law Faculty Bargaining Committee, National Labor Relations Board, March 23, 1973.)

- The NLRB took the stance that faculty department heads generally do not have or exercise the degree of supervisory authority, which under the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) would exclude them from faculty bargaining units. The Board requires an affirmative showing that department heads have one or more of the indicia of supervisory authority, or proof of the department authority to effectively make recommendations affecting personnel status.

The Board determined that the Rosary College department chairmen lacked such authority since their recommendations for hiring, terminating, promoting, and granting tenure are subject to the college administration's approval. Further, the chairmen are responsible to the academic dean, who supervises curricula, methods of instruction, and examining and grading practices, recruits, interviews, and recommends faculty replacements, and approves assignments made by the department chairmen. Accordingly, the Board ruled that the college's department chairmen were not supervisors, and, therefore, that they were to be included in the proposed faculty bargaining unit. (Rosary Hill College and Rosary Hill Faculty Association, aw New York State Teachers Association, National Labor Relations Board, April 17, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

Alaska, Wisconsin Issue Rules Clarifying Public Employees' Bargaining Laws

The Alaska State Labor Relations Agency (ASLRA) and the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) issued rules and operating procedures under which they implement the states' respective public employee bargaining laws.

The ASLRA issued rules and regulations covering petitions to represent public employees, election procedures, and prohibited practices. The new regulations stipulate that petitions for certification or decertification must be accompanied by a 30 percent showing of interest among the employees involved and that intervenors must have a 10 percent showing of interest to be added to a ballot. Representation elections must be held 150 to 120 days before the expiration of a valid bargaining agreement but more than nine months after a prior election.

The ASLRA shall decide whether a proposed unit is "a prima facie appropriate unit," and shall then hold investigatory hearings on whether the proposed unit is "an appropriate unit" for bargaining purposes and either dismiss the petition or order a secret ballot election. "Appropriate units of state employees cannot combine supervisory with nonsupervisory or confidential personnel or combine nonsupervisors with confidential employees." An organization may be certified without an election if the parties file a consent agreement for recognition with the agency unless another organization intervenes or 10 percent of the employees object to the recognition agreement.

Representation elections are to be held mainly by manual ballots, with mail ballots used when employees are situated some distance from the central balloting location or when there are many scattered locations. The ASLRA will investigate any challenged ballots before certifying election results. When no union receives a majority of the votes, a runoff between the two receiving the largest numbers of votes will be conducted.

Upon notifying the employer, an employee organization may organize employees only during their lunch time, other official free time, or before or after work.

ASLRA will first try to resolve complaints of prohibited practices "by informal methods of conference, conciliation, and persuasion"; however, if these methods fail after two weeks, "the agency shall pursue the matter formally with hearings."

The amended rules adopted by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) accommodate amendments to the Wisconsin Municipal Employment Relations Act. The amendments which were adopted in 1971 extended the act's coverage to policemen, permitted teachers and local employees to negotiate "fair share" agency shop agreements, added a prohibited practices section to the law's definitions, and enunciated a policy against fragmentation of bargaining units.

The newly adopted rules set forth procedures for election of bargaining representatives for supervisory law enforcement or supervisory firefighter personnel, determination of appropriate unit placement of state employees, prevention of prohibited practices, and arbitration, mediation, or factfinding.

A municipal employer, labor organization, or anyone acting on their behalf may file a petition for referendum seeking authorization to implement or to determine the continuation of a fair share agreement. The petition must be accompanied by at least a 30 percent showing of interest or opposition with respect to a fair share agreement by the employees in the appropriate unit.

Management Team Urges Unified Public Employee Statutes

Specifying the deficiencies of present labor relations statutes and the impossibility of administering them, a management team hired by the Rhode Island Department of Education recommended that the state's five public employee bargaining statutes be consolidated, that a separate and independent Public Sector Employment Relations Board be set up, that dispute settlement procedures be revised, and that public employees, except for police and firemen, be granted the right to strike.

According to the report, the major drawback of the five public employee laws is the impact on bargaining made by each group that draws from the same tax revenues. Also, the administration of the acts as well as the requirements for resolving disputes which are handled independently make it difficult to effectively understand the total economic and organizational impact of these laws. The report said that the proliferation of collective bargaining laws has had a disruptive effect on labor relations in the public sector.

The report struck down the assumption that the public sector is either identical to or reasonably similar to the private sector with one agency, the Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board (RISLRB), to administer the five diverse statutes. The report emphasized that many states have realized that a "private sector labor relations board, regardless of its excellence and regardless of its capabilities, was not a logical administrative agency to administer the public sector legislation and relationships."

Additionally, the report stated that public employers and employees often feel that the RISLRB mediation members neither represent the public sector nor fully understand the peculiarities of public sector problems and relationships. The report attributes these deficiencies to the unavailability of enough mediators to handle mediation needs of the public sector. Moreover, the Teachers Act recommendation that the Department of Education mediate disputes has "seriously endangered both the collective bargaining as well as the relationship between the State Department of Education and their constituents." Further, the department's continued acceptable neutrality in mediation efforts is highly unlikely.

The report concluded with suggestion that the present procedures for resolving disputes be revised within the framework of new legislation.

New York State University Staffers Approve Merger

The New York Senate Professional Association (SPA), bargaining agent for professional staff members of the State University of New York (SUNY) voted 1,225 to 311 in favor of a merger with the State University Federation of Teachers (STUFT).

The next move in forming SUNY/United is amendment of the association constitution and by-laws. Further, a jointly agreed upon schedule for implementing the merger entails merger and election of officers on local campuses, with a SUNY/United Delegate Assembly and election of state officers in May.

Labor Department Regulations Covering Extension of Equal Pay Act

The U. S. Labor Department has issued regulations in accordance with the 1972 extension of the Equal Pay Act. The Equal Pay Act was enacted in 1963 as an amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). Accordingly, employees who were exempt from FLSA's minimum wage and overtime provisions were also exempt from equal pay provisions.

For the most part, the Labor Department's regulation revisions were technical, the most notable change extended coverage to "those employees exempt from the minimum wage and overtime provisions as bona fide executive, administrative and professional employees (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in elementary or secondary schools), or in the capacity of outside salesmen."

In an effort to curb sex discrimination on the administrative and executive level, the amended regulations require employers to maintain salary and fringe benefit records for those previously exempt employees. The regulations state: "Where an exempt administrative employee and another employee of the establishment are performing substantially 'equal work,' the sex discrimination prohibitions of section 6(d) are applicable with respect to any wage differential between those two employees."

CONSUMER PRICE INDEX ADVANCES 0.6 PERCENT IN MAY

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.6 percent in May to 131.5 percent of the 1967 base, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. After seasonal adjustment the May increase was unchanged. The Index now stands 5.5 percent above a year ago.

Prices for foods—including food purchased in grocery stores and in restaurants—increased 1.1 percent in May, compared to 1.4 percent in April and 2.4 percent in March. BLS says that with the exception of meats and eggs, most items showed price increases in May.

BLS notes that in the six months ended in May, the CPI increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.2 percent. During the three-month period ended in May, the index increased at a rate of 8.7 percent.

KANSAS

Public Employee Bargaining Law Amended

The Kansas public employee bargaining statute, which covers state higher education employees (professional school district employees are covered by a separate law), was amended to provide for authorization of employee organization agents and filing of employee runoffs, and established a time limitation for the filing of unfair labor practices charges with the board.

An agent is defined as "any authorized person who acts or attempts to act for any employee organization in (1) the issuance of membership or authorization cards, or (2) in soliciting or receiving from any employer any right or privilege for employees when such employee organization has not been formally recognized." Authorized agents are required to file applications certifying U. S. citizenship, their names, addresses, length of Kansas residency, and the written authorization of the organization's president and secretary. The agent's certificate is valid for the calendar year, automatically expiring December 31, unless surrendered, suspended, or revoked prior to that date.

All employee organizations are required to file annual reports with the secretary of state within 90 days after the close of the fiscal year unless an extension is granted. Such reports must include the name, location, and mailing address of the organization, the names, titles, salaries and other remuneration of its officers and registered agents, the rates of initiation fees, dues, and assessments, and an audited statement of the organization's income, expenditures, assets, and liabilities.

The amendment to the section of representation/determination requires a runoff election between the two top choices in a multi-union election when none of the choices receives a majority of the vote.

In addition, amendments to the mediation and fact-finding sections place a six-month limitation on the submission of prohibited practice charges, unless the situation is deemed an emergency, i.e., a strike, whereupon the board is to act within 24 hours of notification.

The amendments (H. B. 1531, L1973) are effective upon publication in the state statute book.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Public Employee Bargaining Law Amended

Amendments to the Public Employees' Unions Act, which grants school teachers and other public employees the right to bargain collectively, have modified the strike injunction section, further delineated grievance procedure, and defined unfair labor practices. Although the amended version of the Act, effective July 1, 1973, does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or make a concession, the parties are required to negotiate in good faith and explain the "rationale for any position taken."

The act no longer mandates that governmental agencies, governing boards, or state attorneys' seek injunctive strike relief; seeking this injunctive relief is now optional.

The section elaborating upon grievance procedures defines grievance as "a complaint by a public employee or group of public employees based upon an alleged violation, misinterpretation, or inequitable application of any existing agreements, contracts, ordiances, policies, rules or regulations [emphasis added] of the government of the state . . .or . . .of the political subdivisions thereof, or of the public schools." The governmental agencies are obligated to establish procedures for the disposition of grievances. Unresolved grievances may be appealed to the labor commissioner, whose decision will be final and binding.

If the governing body of any agency fails to establish grievance procedures, the commissioner of labor and management relations "shall promulgate such rules and regulations and may be appropriate and adopt a standard grievance procedure."

The definitions of public employee organization and public employer unfair labor practices are reprinted below:

Employer unfair labor practices—It shall be an unfair practice for a public employer to:

(1) Interfere with, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of rights guaranteed by law;

(2) Dominate, interfere or assist in the formation or administration of any employee organization, or contribute financial or other support to it; provided, an employer shall not be prohibited from permitting employees to confer with him during working hours without loss of time or pay;

(3) Discriminate in regard to hire or tenure or employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any employee organization;

(4) Discharge or otherwise discriminate against an employee becuase he has filed a complaint, affidavit, petition or given any information or testimony under this Act;

(5) Refuse to negotiate collectively in good faith with a formal representative; and

(6) Fail or refuse to comply with any provision of this Act. [Sec. 1, H. B. 860, L. 1973, effective July 1, 1973.]

Union unfair labor practices.—It shall be an unfair practice for an employee organization or its agents to:

(1) Restrain or coerce (a) an employee in the exercise of the rights guaranteed by this Act; provided, that this paragraph shall not impair the right of an employee organization to prescribe its own rules with respect to the acquisition or retention of membership therein; or (b) an employer in the selection of his representative for the purpose of collective bargaining or the adjustment of grievances;

(2) Cause or attempt to cause an employer to discriminate against an employee in violation of subdivision (3) of section 1 or to discriminate against an employee with respect to whom membership in such organization has been denied or terminated on some ground; and

(3) Refuse to negotiate collectively in good faith with an employer, provided it is the formal representative. [Sec. 2, H. B. 860, L. 1973, effective July 1, 1973.]

STATISTICS

WRITTEN NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS SURVEY: 1972-73

Preliminary results of NEA Research's seventh annual survey of written negotiation agreements in school systems with 1,000 or more pupils enrolled indicated that 3,958 school systems, employing 1,482,476 professional staff members, had negotiated agreements. Of the 7,228 school systems surveyed, 5,858 responded, an 81.0 percent response rate. Of the 5,858 responding school systems, 67.6 percent had negotiation agreements.

At present, 30 states have teacher collective bargaining statutes. The majority of these statutes were passed between 1968 and 1971, and much of the rapid increase in the number of school systems negotiating agreements during this period is directly attributable to this legislation. During 1972-73, only one state, Indiana, enacted a collective bargaining statute affecting teachers, and as the legislation does not become effective until July 1973, there was no notable increase in teacher collective bargaining in that state.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE PRELIMINARY SURVEY:

- Since 1966-67, when the first survey of written agreements was conducted, the number of school systems with negotiation agreements has increased by 158.5 percent. In the 1966-67 survey, 1,531 school systems reported negotiation agreements; the 1972-73 survey found 3,958 systems with such agreements.
- The number of teachers covered by collective bargaining agreements has more than doubled. In 1966-67, 648,322 teachers were covered by negotiated agreements while during 1972-73, 1,482,476 teachers were working under a collective bargaining agreement.
- NEA affiliates acted as representatives in 91.8 percent of the surveyed school systems, representing 79.0 percent of the teachers. In 24 states all surveyed school systems negotiated with NEA affiliated representatives. American Federation of Teachers locals represented 16.2 percent of the teachers in 3.4 percent of the school districts.
- More than four-fifths of the teachers employed in the nation's largest school systems (25,000 or more pupils) are covered by collective bargaining agreements.
- The largest percentage of negotiated agreements were found in the Far West where 93.7 percent of the school systems have negotiated agreements. Only the Southeast and the Southwest have less than three-fifths of the school systems negotiating agreements, and more than 50 percent of teachers in all regions, except for the Southeast, are covered by collective bargaining agreements.
- Over 50 percent of the school systems and professional staff in all enrollment strata are covered by negotiated agreements.

REGIONS	STRATUM	SCHOOL SYSTEM ENROLLMENT
Northeast: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont	1	100,000 or more
Mideast: Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania	2	50,000-99,999
Southeast: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia	3	25,000-49,999
Great Lakes: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin	4	12,000-24,999
Plains: Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota	5	6,000-11,999
Southwest: Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas	6	3,000-5,999
Rocky Mountain: Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Wyoming	7	1,200-2,999
Far West: Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Washington	8	1,000-1,199

TABLE A

SCOPE OF SURVEY

STATE	SYSTEMS SURVEYED	SYSTEMS RESPONDING NUMBER	SYSTEMS RESPONDING PERCENT	SYSTEMS RESPONDING: TOTAL CLASSROOM TEACHERS EMPLOYED	SYSTEMS RESPONDING: TOTAL INSTRUCTIONAL STAFF EMPLOYED
1	2	3	4	5	6
ALABAMA	113.	77.	68.2	22560.	23956.
ALASKA	9.	7.	77.8	2948.	3113.
ARIZONA	66.	59.	89.4	16912.	18815.
ARKANSAS	103.	61.	59.3	9747.	10515.
CALIFORNIA	484.	455.	94.1	180816.	209336.
COLORADO	65.	53.	81.6	23998.	26290.
CONNECTICUT	119.	109.	91.6	33374.	37223.
DELAWARE	22.	20.	91.0	5902.	6449.
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA	1.	1.	100.0	6193.	7850.
FLORIDA	65.	50.	77.0	58564.	66601.
GEORGIA	173.	96.	55.5	31466.	35458.
HAWAII	1.	1.	100.0	8225.	9769.
IDAHO	45.	32.	71.2	5665.	6227.
ILLINOIS	432.	348.	80.6	85647.	97792.
INDIANA	256.	169.	66.1	38865.	42910.
IOWA	142.	130.	91.6	22165.	24269.
KANSAS	89.	87.	97.8	18141.	20678.
KENTUCKY	158.	103.	65.2	22841.	25614.
LOUISIANA	66.	40.	60.7	28759.	29946.
MAINE	85.	60.	70.6	7604.	8302.
MARYLAND	24.	23.	95.9	43695.	47937.
MASSACHUSETTS	216.	196.	90.8	56734.	63277.
MICHIGAN	397.	385.	97.0	88436.	98275.
MINNESOTA	171.	144.	84.3	36659.	40453.
MISSISSIPPI	142.	53.	37.4	9445.	10461.
MISSOURI	175.	128.	73.2	35345.	38395.
MONTANA	31.	31.	100.0	5607.	6074.
NEBRASKA	43.	32.	74.5	8734.	9434.
NEVADA	10.	8.	80.0	5122.	5557.
NEW HAMPSHIRE	43.	28.	65.2	5806.	6334.
NEW JERSEY	325.	299.	92.0	70412.	79427.
NEW MEXICO	41.	39.	95.2	10151.	11609.
NEW YORK	524.	491.	93.8	179065.	201157.
NORTH CAROLINA	151.	116.	76.9	38043.	41699.
NORTH DAKOTA	16.	16.	100.0	2967.	3202.
OHIO	520.	429.	82.5	90167.	100444.
OKLAHOMA	92.	70.	76.1	16823.	18545.
OREGON	93.	85.	91.4	20952.	23210.
PENNSYLVANIA	485.	378.	78.0	91201.	100655.
RHODE ISLAND	30.	27.	90.0	7814.	9554.
SOUTH CAROLINA	88.	54.	61.4	21231.	23766.
SOUTH DAKOTA	29.	27.	93.2	3873.	4294.
TENNESSEE	125.	102.	81.6	31930.	34522.
TEXAS	370.	246.	66.5	83726.	95515.
UTAH	29.	25.	86.3	10939.	12120.
VERMONT	27.	18.	66.7	2909.	3232.
VIRGINIA	120.	93.	77.5	44398.	48307.
WASHINGTON	122.	113.	92.7	30019.	34556.
WEST VIRGINIA	55.	32.	58.2	10952.	12016.
WISCONSIN	220.	193.	87.8	38208.	42627.
WYOMING	20.	19.	95.0	3715.	4090.
UNITED STATES	7228.	5858.	81.0	1735470.	1941862.

STRATUM	SYSTEMS SURVEYED	SYSTEMS RESPONDING NUMBER	SYSTEMS RESPONDING PERCENT	SYSTEMS RESPONDING: TOTAL CLASSROOM TEACHERS EMPLOYED	SYSTEMS RESPONDING: TOTAL INSTRUCTIONAL STAFF EMPLOYED
1	2	3	4	5	6
1	27.	27.	100.0	270041.	312664.
2	53.	51.	96.3	151554.	171351.
3	106.	100.	94.4	149886.	169257.
4	399.	357.	89.5	268289.	300205.
5	955.	823.	86.2	321513.	356434.
6	1795.	1501.	83.7	297778.	328718.
7	3261.	2630.	80.7	255405.	280220.
8	632.	369.	58.4	21004.	23013.
TOTAL	7228.	5858.	81.0	1735470.	1941862.

TABLE 8

STATUS OF WRITTEN NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

STATE	TOTAL SYSTEMS SURVEYED	RESPONDING SYSTEMS		SYSTEMS WITH PROCEDURES				SYSTEMS WITHOUT PROCEDURES
		NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF	NUMBER	PERCENT	INSTR. STAFF NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF PERCENT	NUMBER	PERCENT	INSTR. STAFF NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF PERCENT
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
ALABAMA	113	77.	23956.	1.	1.3	62.	0.3	76.	98.7	23894.	99.7
ALASKA	9	7.	3118.	7.	100.0	3118.	100.0	0.	0.0	0.	0.0
ARIZONA	66	59.	18815.	36.	61.0	15943.	84.7	23.	39.0	2872.	15.3
ARKANSAS	103	61.	10515.	8.	13.1	4793.	45.6	53.	86.9	5722.	54.4
CALIFORNIA	484	455.	209336.	433.	95.2	204175.	97.5	22.	4.8	5161.	2.5
COLORADO	65	53.	26290.	34.	64.2	23605.	89.8	19.	35.8	2685.	1[illegible].2
CONNECTICUT	119	109.	37223.	97.	89.0	35365.	95.0	12.	11.0	1858.	5.0
DELAWARE	22	20.	6449.	19.	95.0	6099.	94.6	1.	5.0	350.	5.4
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA	1	1.	7850.	1.	100.0	7850.	100.0	0.	0.0	0.	0.0
FLORIDA	65	50.	66601.	18.	36.0	42562.	63.9	32.	64.0	24039.	36.1
GEORGIA	173	96.	35458.	1.	1.0	1783.	5.0	95.	99.0	33675.	95.0
HAWAII	1	1.	9769.	1.	100.0	9769.	100.0	0.	0.0	0.	0.0
IDAHO	45	32.	6227.	22.	68.8	4705.	75.6	10.	31.3	1522.	24.4
ILLINOIS	432	348.	97792.	242.	69.5	85652.	87.6	106.	30.5	12140.	12.4
INDIANA	256	169.	42910.	67.	39.6	28209.	65.7	102.	60.4	14701.	34.3
IOWA	142	130.	24269.	34.	26.2	12511.	51.6	96.	[illegible]	11758.	48.4
KANSAS	89	87.	20678.	63.	72.4	17534.	84.8	24.	27.6	3144.	15.2
KENTUCKY	158	103.	25614.	21.	20.4	10472.	40.9	82.	79.6	15142.	59.1
LOUISIANA	66	40.	29946.	0.	0.0	0.	0.0	40.	100.0	29946.	100.0
MAINE	85	60.	8302.	51.	85.0	7327.	88.3	9.	15.0	975.	11.7
MARYLAND	24	23.	47937.	23.	100.0	47937.	100.0	0.	0.0	0.	0.0
MASSACHUSETTS	216	196.	63277.	185.	94.4	61122.	96.6	11.	5.6	2155.	3.4
MICHIGAN	397	385.	98275.	382.	99.2	98029.	99.7	3.	0.8	247.	0.3
MINNESOTA	171	144.	40453.	126.	87.5	37224.	92.0	18.	12.5	3229.	8.0
MISSISSIPPI	142	53.	10461.	0.	0.0	0.	0.0	53.	100.0	10461.	100.0
MISSOURI	175	128.	38395.	67.	52.3	21479.	55.9	61.	47.7	16916.	44.1
MONTANA	31	31.	6074.	25.	80.6	5272.	86.8	6.	19.4	802.	13.2
NEBRASKA	43	32.	9436.	22.	68.8	7846.	83.1	10.	31.3	1590.	16.9
NEVADA	10	8.	5557.	5.	62.5	5160.	92.9	3.	37.5	397.	7.1
NEW HAMPSHIRE	43	28.	6334.	16.	57.1	4239.	66.9	12.	42.9	2095.	33.1
NEW JERSEY	325	299.	79427.	280.	93.6	74844.	94.2	19.	6.4	4583.	5.8
NEW MEXICO	41	39.	11609.	13.	33.3	5366.	46.2	26.	66.7	6243.	53.8
NEW YORK	524	491.	201157.	476.	96.9	197631.	98.2	15.	3.1	3526.	1.8
NORTH CAROLINA	151	116.	41699.	5.	4.3	4206.	10.1	111.	95.7	37493.	89.9
NORTH DAKOTA	16	16.	3202.	13.	81.3	2936.	91.7	3.	18.8	266.	8.3
OHIO	520	429.	100444.	339.	79.0	88811.	88.4	90.	21.0	11633.	11.6
OKLAHOMA	92	70.	18545.	16.	22.9	11080.	59.7	54.	77.1	7465.	40.3
OREGON	93	85.	23210.	74.	87.1	20905.	90.1	11.	12.9	2305.	9.9
PENNSYLVANIA	485	378.	100655.	301.	79.6	85557.	85.0	77.	20.4	15093.	15.0
RHODE ISLAND	30	27.	9554.	26.	96.3	9294.	97.3	1.	3.7	260.	2.7
SOUTH CAROLINA	88	54.	23766.	2.	3.7	1374.	5.8	52.	96.3	22392.	94.2
SOUTH DAKOTA	29	27.	4294.	17.	63.0	2966.	69.1	10.	37.0	1328.	30.9
TENNESSEE	125	102.	34522.	5.	4.9	12052.	34.9	97.	95.1	22470.	65.1
TEXAS	370	246.	95515.	57.	23.2	50803.	53.2	189.	76.8	44712.	46.8
UTAH	29	25.	12120.	9.	36.0	6830.	56.4	16.	64.0	5290.	43.6
VERMONT	27	18.	3232.	11.	61.1	2010.	62.2	7.	38.9	1222.	37.8
VIRGINIA	120	93.	48307.	10.	10.8	15739.	32.6	83.	89.2	32568.	67.4
WASHINGTON	122	113.	34556.	107.	94.7	33856.	98.0	6.	5.3	700.	2.0
WEST VIRGINIA	55	32.	12016.	7.	21.9	2941.	24.5	25.	78.1	9075.	75.5
WISCONSIN	220	193.	42627.	172.	89.1	40577.	95.2	21.	10.9	2050.	4.8
WYOMING	20	19.	4090.	11.	57.9	2859.	69.9	8.	42.1	1231.	30.1
TOTAL	7228	5858.	1941862.	3958.	67.6	1482476.	76.3	1900.	32.4	459386.	23.7

STRATUM	TOTAL SYSTEMS SURVEYED	RESPONDING SYSTEMS		SYSTEMS WITH PROCEDURES				SYSTEMS WITHOUT PROCEDURES
		NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF	NUMBER	PERCENT	INSTR. STAFF NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF PERCENT	NUMBER	PERCENT	INSTR. STAFF NUMBER	INSTR. STAFF PERCENT
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
1	27	27.	312664.	23.	85.2	292780.	93.6	4.	14.8	19884.	6.4
2	53	51.	171351.	37.	72.5	129208.	75.4	14.	27.5	42143.	24.6
3	106	100.	169257.	71.	71.0	122198.	72.2	29.	29.0	47059.	27.8
4	399	357.	300205.	283.	79.3	240941.	80.3	74.	20.7	59264.	19.7
5	955	823.	356434.	596.	72.4	263201.	73.8	227.	27.6	93233.	26.2
6	1795	1501.	328718.	1056.	70.4	236008.	71.8	445.	29.6	92710.	28.2
7	3261	2630.	280220.	1690.	64.3	185175.	66.1	940.	35.7	95045.	33.9
8	632	369.	23013.	202.	54.7	12965.	56.3	167.	45.3	10048.	43.7
TOTAL	7228	5858.	1941862.	3958.	67.6	1482476.	76.3	1900.	32.4	459386.	23.7

TABLE D-1

NUMBER OF PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL REPRESENTED BY NATIONAL AFFILIATION OF LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS FOR NEGOTIATION PURPOSES

STATE	PERSONNEL REPRESENTED		N. E. A.		A. F. T.		INDEPENDENT		DUAL MEMBERSHIP IN TWO OR MORE NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS
	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
ALABAMA	59	100.0	59	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ALASKA	2,981	100.0	2,981	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ARIZONA	14,468	100.0	14,468	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ARKANSAS	4,483	100.0	4,483	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
CALIFORNIA	174,634	100.0	130,123	74.5	7,677	4.4	15,494	8.9	21,340	12.2
COLORADO	21,958	99.9	21,303	97.0	405	1.8	250	1.1	...	...
CONNECTICUT	34,210	100.0	28,431	83.1	5,093	14.9	686	2.0	...	...
DELAWARE	5,364	100.0	4,612	86.0	752	14.0	...	...	...	...
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA	7,250	100.0	...	...	7,250	100.0	...	...	...	...
FLORIDA	37,220	100.0	37,220	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
GEORGIA	1,698	100.0	1,698	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
HAWAII	9,769	100.0	9,769	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
IDAHO	4,325	100.0	4,325	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ILLINOIS	73,636	100.0	41,352	53.2	30,846	39.2	5,938	7.6	...	...
INDIANA	25,059	100.0	21,549	85.0	3,510	14.0	...	...	...	...
IOWA	10,717	100.0	10,517	98.1	200	1.9	...	...	...	...
KANSAS	15,208	100.0	15,208	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
KENTUCKY	9,545	100.0	9,545	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
LOUISIANA	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
MAINE	6,842	100.0	6,842	99.9	...	...	4	.1	...	...
MARYLAND	46,458	100.0	36,740	79.1	8,600	18.5	1,118	2.4	...	...
MASSACHUSETTS	57,702	100.1	48,211	83.6	8,992	15.6	499	.9	...	...
MICHIGAN	91,229	100.0	72,725	79.7	15,566	17.0	2,819	3.1	139	.2
MINNESOTA	33,945	100.0	21,956	64.7	11,904	35.1	45	.1	40	.1
MISSISSIPPI	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
MISSOURI	19,439	99.9	16,474	84.7	2,711	13.9	254	1.3	...	...
MONTANA	4,779	100.0	4,151	86.9	628	13.1	...	...	...	...
NEBRASKA	7,623	100.0	7,623	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEVADA	4,732	100.0	4,732	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEW HAMPSHIRE	3,912	100.0	3,392	86.7	520	13.3	...	...	...	...
NEW JERSEY	70,022	100.0	62,953	89.9	5,913	8.4	1,156	1.7	...	...
NEW MEXICO	4,756	100.0	4,756	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEW YORK	190,925	100.0	101,527	53.2	77,941	40.8	3,508	1.9	7,949	4.2
NORTH CAROLINA	1,210	100.0	1,210	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NORTH DAKOTA	2,759	100.0	2,735	99.1	...	...	24	.9	...	...
OHIO	81,529	100.0	71,677	87.9	8,815	10.8	1,037	1.3	...	...
OKLAHOMA	8,469	100.0	8,468	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
OREGON	19,362	100.0	19,114	98.7	...	...	248	1.3	...	...
PENNSYLVANIA	79,548	100.1	60,580	75.2	17,732	22.3	1,236	1.6	...	...
RHODE ISLAND	8,697	100.0	4,686	53.9	3,951	45.4	60	.7	...	...
SOUTH CAROLINA	1,214	100.0	1,214	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
SOUTH DAKOTA	2,680	100.0	2,680	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TENNESSEE	11,537	100.0	11,537	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TEXAS	43,898	100.0	42,398	96.6	...	...	1,500	3.4	...	...
UTAH	6,157	100.0	6,157	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
VERMONT	1,863	100.0	1,863	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
VIRGINIA	15,128	100.0	15,128	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
WASHINGTON	32,384	100.0	32,384	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
WEST VIRGINIA	2,773	100.0	2,631	94.9	...	...	142	5.1	...	...
WISCONSIN	36,558	100.0	35,358	96.7	1,200	3.3	...	...	...	...
WYOMING	2,706	100.0	2,706	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TOTAL	1,358,427	100.1	1,072,756	79.0	220,186	16.2	36,018	2.7	29,467	2.2

STRATUM	PERSONNEL REPRESENTED		N. E. A.		A. F. T.		INDEPENDENT		DUAL MEMBERSHIP IN TWO OR MORE NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS
	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.	NO.	PCT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
1	276,700	100.0	99,322	35.9	135,003	48.8	21,035	7.6	21,340	7.7
2	116,666	100.0	87,112	74.7	23,133	19.8	2,721	2.3	3,700	3.2
3	107,426	100.0	91,261	85.0	14,180	13.2	1,985	1.8	...	...
4	218,912	100.0	194,664	88.9	18,816	8.6	3,946	1.8	1,486	.7
5	242,036	99.9	218,880	90.4	17,938	7.4	3,711	1.5	1,507	.6
6	216,222	100.0	206,858	95.7	6,836	3.2	1,595	.7	933	.4
7	168,520	100.0	162,860	96.6	4,209	2.5	950	.6	501	.3
8	11,945	100.0	11,799	98.8	71	.6	75	.6	...	...
TOTAL	1,358,427	100.1	1,072,756	79.0	220,186	16.2	36,018	2.7	29,467	2.2

TABLE D-2

NATIONAL AFFILIATION OF ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTING PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN NEGOTIATION

STATE	SYSTEMS WITH ORGANIZATIONAL REPRESENTATION NO.	PCT.	N. E. A. NO.	PCT.	A. F. T. NO.	PCT.	INDEPENDENT NO.	PCT.	TWO OR MORE ORGANIZATIONS WITH MIXED AFFILIATIONS NO.	PCT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
ALABAMA	1	100.0	1	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ALASKA	7	100.0	7	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ARIZONA	36	100.0	35	97.2	...	...	1	2.8	...	...
ARKANSAS	8	100.0	8	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
CALIFORNIA	433	100.1	313	72.3	...	...	2	.5	118	27.3
COLORADO	34	100.0	33	97.1	1	2.9	...	...	...	...
CONNECTICUT	97	100.0	88	90.7	9	9.3	...	...	...	...
DELAWARE	19	100.0	18	94.7	1	5.3	...	...	...	...
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA	1	100.0	...	...	1	100.0	...	...	...	...
FLORIDA	17	100.0	17	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
GEORGIA	1	100.0	1	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
HAWAII	1	100.0	1	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
IDAHO	22	100.0	22	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
ILLINOIS	239	100.0	201	84.1	36	15.1	1	.4	1	.4
INDIANA	66	100.0	59	89.4	5	7.6	...	...	2	3.0
IOWA	33	100.0	32	97.0	...	...	...	...	1	3.0
KANSAS	63	100.0	63	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
KENTUCKY	21	100.0	21	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
LOUISIANA	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
MAINE	31	100.0	31	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
MARYLAND	23	100.0	22	95.7	1	4.3	...	...	...	...
MASSACHUSETTS	185	99.9	176	95.1	8	4.3	...	...	1	.5
MICHIGAN	382	100.1	362	94.6	16	4.2	3	.8	1	.3
MINNESOTA	126	99.9	89	70.6	9	7.1	...	...	28	22.2
MISSISSIPPI	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
MISSOURI	66	100.0	65	98.5	1	1.5	...	...	...	...
MONTANA	25	100.0	23	92.0	2	8.0	...	...	...	...
NEBRASKA	22	100.0	22	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEVADA	5	100.0	5	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEW HAMPSHIRE	16	100.1	15	93.8	1	6.3	...	...	...	...
NEW JERSEY	280	100.0	275	98.2	3	1.1	2	.7	...	...
NEW MEXICO	13	100.0	13	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NEW YORK	476	100.0	437	91.8	15	3.2	4	.8	20	4.2
NORTH CAROLINA	2	100.0	2	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
NORTH DAKOTA	13	100.0	13	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
OHIO	349	100.0	332	97.4	6	1.8	1	.3	...	...
OKLAHOMA	15	100.0	15	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
OREGON	71	100.0	69	97.2	...	...	1	1.4	1	1.4
PENNSYLVANIA	301	100.0	294	97.7	7	2.3	...	...	...	...
RHODE ISLAND	26	100.0	19	73.1	7	26.9	...	...	...	...
SOUTH CAROLINA	2	100.0	2	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
SOUTH DAKOTA	17	100.0	17	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TENNESSEE	5	100.0	5	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TEXAS	54	100.0	53	98.1	...	...	...	...	1	1.9
UTAH	9	100.0	9	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
VERMONT	11	100.0	11	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
VIRGINIA	10	100.0	10	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
WASHINGTON	107	100.0	107	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
WEST VIRGINIA	7	100.0	6	85.7	...	...	...	...	1	14.3
WISCONSIN	172	100.0	167	97.1	5	2.9	...	...	...	...
WYOMING	11	100.0	11	100.0	...	...	...	...	...	...
TOTAL	3,941	100.0	3,617	91.8	134	3.4	15	.4	175	4.4

STRATUM	SYSTEMS WITH ORGANIZATIONAL REPRESENTATION NO.	PCT.	N. E. A. NO.	PCT.	A. F. T. NO.	PCT.	INDEPENDENT NO.	PCT.	TWO OR MORE ORGANIZATIONS WITH MIXED AFFILIATIONS NO.	PCT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
1	23	100.0	14	60.9	7	30.4	...	...	2	8.7
2	37	100.0	27	73.0	6	16.2	...	...	4	10.8
3	70	100.0	48	68.6	7	10.0	1	1.4	14	20.0
4	281	100.0	231	82.2	20	7.1	2	.7	28	10.0
5	593	100.0	506	85.3	36	6.1	2	.3	49	8.3
6	1,052	100.0	984	93.5	24	2.3	2	.2	42	4.0
7	1,684	100.0	1,609	95.5	33	2.0	7	.4	35	2.1
9	201	100.0	198	98.5	1	.5	1	.5	1	.5
TOTAL	3,941	100.0	3,617	91.8	134	3.4	15	.4	175	4.4

TABLE J-1

PERCENT OF SCHOOL SYSTEMS WHICH HAVE WRITTEN PROCEDURES BY WHICH LOCAL TEACHERS NEGOTIATE FOR ALL OR PART OF THE PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN RESPONDING SCHOOL SYSTEMS

ITEM	ENROLLMENT STRATUM
	TOTAL	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
YES	67.6	85.2	72.5	71.0	79.3	72.4	70.4	64.3	54.7
NO	32.4	14.8	27.5	29.0	20.7	27.6	29.6	35.7	45.3
TOTAL	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
TOTAL RESPONSE	5,858	27	51	100	357	823	1,501	2,630	369

TABLE J-2

PERCENT OF SCHOOL SYSTEMS WHICH HAVE WRITTEN PROCEDURES BY WHICH LOCAL TEACHERS NEGOTIATE FOR ALL OR PART OF THE PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN RESPONDING SCHOOL SYSTEMS

ITEM	ENROLLMENT GROUPING			REGION
	1,2,3 A	4,5,6 B	7,8 C	N.E.	MIDEAST	S.E.	G.L.	PLAINS	S.W.	R.M.	FAR WEST
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
YES	73.6	72.2	63.1	88.1	90.6	9.3	78.9	61.0	29.4	62.9	93.7
NO	26.4	27.8	36.9	11.9	9.4	90.7	21.1	39.0	70.6	37.1	6.3
TOTAL	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
TOTAL RESPONSE	178	2,681	2,999	438	1,209	381	1,522	569	412	159	668

TABLE K-1

PERCENT OF INSTRUCTIONAL STAFF IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS WHICH HAVE WRITTEN PROCEDURES BY WHICH LOCAL TEACHERS NEGOTIATE FOR ALL OR PART OF THE PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN RESPONDING SCHOOL SYSTEMS

ITEM	ENROLLMENT STRATUM
	TOTAL	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
YES	76.3	93.6	75.4	72.2	80.3	73.8	71.8	66.1	56.3
NO	23.7	6.4	24.6	27.8	19.7	26.2	28.2	33.9	43.7
TOTAL	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
TOTAL RESPONSE	1,941,862	312,664	171,351	169,257	300,205	356,434	328,718	280,220	23,013

TABLE K-2

PERCENT OF INSTRUCTIONAL STAFF IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS WHICH HAVE WRITTEN PROCEDURES BY WHICH LOCAL TEACHERS NEGOTIATE FOR ALL OR PART OF THE PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN RESPONDING SCHOOL SYSTEMS

ITEM	ENROLLMENT GROUPING			REGION
	1,2,3 A	4,5,6 B	7,8 C	N.E.	MIDEAST	S.E.	G.L.	PLAINS	S.W.	R.M.	FAR WEST
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
YES	83.3	75.1	65.3	93.3	93.6	27.0	89.3	73.0	57.6	78.9	97.0
NO	16.7	24.9	34.7	6.7	6.4	73.0	10.7	27.0	42.4	21.1	3.0
TOTAL	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
TOTAL RESPONSE	653,272	985,357	303,233	127,922	447,526	358,750	380,608	141,753	144,117	54,600	286,586

BLS ISSUES NEW COST-OF-LIVING INDICATORS

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has formulated a new set of consumer prixe indexes which will be published quarterly (March, June, September, December) in the Consumer Price Index. The new indexes are calculated from price data collected in 56 metropolitan and nonmetropolitan urban areas for the national Consumer Price Index. The areas are grouped accroding to their 1960 populations as follows: Class A-1, population at least 3.5 million; Class A-2, population 1.4 million to 3.5 million; Class B, population 250,000 to 1.4 million; Class C, population 50,000 to 250,000; Class D, population 2,500 to 50,000.

These new indexes dc not replace the individual city indexes currently published. They indicate only whether prices in one group have changed more, less, or the same as in another.

The new compilation includes indexes for all items and for the subgroups of food, housing, apparel and upkeep, transportation, and health and recreation. The all-items index shows that between 1968 and 1972, prices increased 4.0 percentage points more in the largest population class than in the smallest. Similarly, from 1972 to March of 1973 prices in the largest class increased 0.5 points more than the smallest.

CONSUMER PRICE INDEX FOR URBAN WAGE EARNERS AND CLERICAL WORKERS, ALL ITEMS [1967=100]

Population class (1)	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972	March 1973	Percent increase, 1972-March 1973	Percent increase, 1968-1972
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
A-1: 3.5 million or more[a]	104.3	110.2	117.4	122.9	127.5	132.4	3.8	22.2
A-2: 1.4 to 3.5 million[b]	104.4	110.4	116.6	121.7	125.5	130.0	3.6	20.2
B: 250,000 to 1.4 million[c]	104.0	109.9	116.2	120.8	124.7	129.2	3.6	19.9
C: 50,000 to 250,000[d]	104.3	109.7	115.5	120.1	123.9	128.2	3.5	18.8
D: 2,500 to 50,000[e]	104.0	109.1	114.9	119.5	122.9	127.0	3.3	18.2

SOURCES: Monthly Labor Review, August 1972, p. 4-6; June 1973, p. 55.

[a]Class A-1: 3.5 million or more Chicago, Ill.- Northwestern Indiana; Detroit, Mich.; Los Angeles- Long Beach, Calif.

[b]Class A-2: 1.4 to 3.5 million Baltimore, Maryland; Boston Massachusetts; Cleveland, Ohio; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Saint Louis, Missouri; San Francisco- Oakland, California; Washington, D.C.

[c]Class B: 250,000 to 1.4 million Atlanta, Georgia; Buffalo, New York; Cincinnati, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Dayton, Ohio; Denver, Colorado; Hartford, Connecticut; Honolulu, Hawaii; Houston, Texas; Indianapolis, Indiana.

[d]Class C: 50,000 to 250,000 Austin, Texas; Bakersfield, California; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Champaign-Urbana, Illinois; Durham, North Carolina; Green Bay, Wisconsin; Lancaster, Pennsylvania; Orlando, Florida; Portland, Maine.

[e]Class D: 2,500 to 50,000 Anchorage, Alaska; Crookston, Minnesota; Devil's Lake, North Dakota; Findlay, Ohio; Florence, Alabama; Kingston, New York; Klamath Falls, Oregon; Logansport, Indiana; McAllen, Texas; Mangum, Oklahoma; Martinsville, Virginia; Millville, New Jersey; Niles, Michigan; Orem, Utah; Southbridge, Massachusetts; Union, South Carolina; Vicksburg, Mississippi.

2520

SPECIAL REPORTS

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Laurel, Delaware

Between the Laurel Board of Education and the Laurel Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 120 certificated professional employees. Provision for renegotiation to begin by November 1 of each negotiating year.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $7,373 to $9,755, 15 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $10,507 maximum; M.A., $8,376 to $10,758, 15 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $11,535 maximum; Ph.D., $12,087 maximum. Up to 6 years' credit for military and/or teaching experience in other districts.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1972-74, 4 steps, first and last steps shown) senior high head football coach, $500 to $550; athletic director, $450 to $500; basketball head coach, $300 to $400; track and wrestling head coaches, $250 to $350; girls' field hockey, basketball, and softball, $200 to $300; tennis coach, $175 to $275; junior high boys' basketball and track and junior high girls' basketball, field hockey, and softball coaches, $150 to $250; band and drama, $150; cheerleaders, $100; yearbook and newspaper, $75; head of major departments, $200; heads of minor departments, $150; elementary coordinators, $100.

OTHER: Proration of regular salary for required overtime, extension of school year, Instructional Council participation, summer school, home teaching, federal projects and other programs; 10 cents per mile for use of own car on school business; psychologist, $2,000 additional.

LEAVES: Annual sick leave in accordance with state law; up to 15 days' leave for military reserve obligations.

INSURANCE: Blue Cross-Blue Shield as provided by state law; $2,000 board-paid life insurance policy, $5,000 accidental death and dismemberment coverage; long-term disability insurance pays 60 percent of regular salary to monthly maximum of $1,300 after 60 days' disability until age 65.

ASSOCIATION: Released time for negotiation or grievance proceedings during the school day; association president has the same amount of released time as the department heads; the first and last Mondays of the month (in September the second Wednesday) are reserved for association meetings; an association representative has the right to speak for 10 minutes during faculty meetings; right to wear organization pins or identiciation, to use school buildings (at reasonable hours with advance notification); use of facilities and equipment with the association paying for the cost of materials; use of bulletin boards in teacher's lounge and dining room, and of space on central office bulletin board; use of interschool mailboxes; board to furnish the association with all available financial information, board meeting minutes, census data, the names, addresses of all teachers, and other information "that shall assist teacher organizations in developing intelligent, accurate, informed constructive programs; association to be notified of the transfer or reassignment of any teacher; association office space to be provided when space becomes available; board to provide all teachers employed in the district, or considered for employment, with copies of this agreement.

INSTRUCTION: No more than 4½ hours instruction time or 4 continuous teaching periods per day for junior and senior high teachers; no more than 5 hours instruction time or 3 continuous teaching hours per day for elementary teachers; a junior or senior high teacher may not be assigned more than 2 subject areas or 3 preparations without his consent; hiring of specialists to be considered by the instructional council; the school day starts at 8:15 a.m. and ends between 3:30 and 4:15 p.m.; the Instructional Council composed of 6 members appointed by the superintendent and 6 appointed by the association, recommends, researches, and evaluates the needs of the students, schools, and community concerning "curriculum improvements, in-service training, pupil testing and evaluation, the philosophical and education goals of the district, teacher research and experimentation, and education specifications for buildings and related matters"; the board is to consider all Instructional Council recommendations and state in writing specific reasons in case of refusal to implement; sufficient funds for textbooks, library books, and other instructional materials to be provided;

> Teachers shall be guaranteed full freedom in classroom presentations and discussions and may introduce politically, religiously or otherwise controversial material, provided only that said material is relevant to the course content and is approved by the Instructional Council.
>
> In performing their teaching functions, teachers shall be guaranteed full freedom in expressing their personal opinions on all matters relevant to the course content, provided, however, that when they do so they shall make every effort to indicate that they are speaking personally and that it is an opinion and not on behalf of the school, its administration, or the Board. Teachers are required to see that all sides of controversies are presented fairly.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; right to review personnel file in the company of an association representative, copies of materials found therein furnished upon request at board expense; every three years a teacher may request a review of any personnel file materials he considers obsolete, such materials to be destroyed if found obsolete; no derogatory material to be placed in personnel file unless reviewed and signed by the teacher, who may submit an answer; notification of any complaint against a teacher with procedure for resolving the complaint unresolved complaints are grievable; 30-minute duty-free lunch period during which teachers may leave the building; each teacher shall have at least 3-3/4 hours of conference/preparation time per week; junior and senior high teachers shall have at least one preparation period per day; department heads to have 3-3/4 hours per week or 1 period per day in addition to normal preparation time and to be excused from study hall and homeroom assignments; time when specialists take a teacher's class to be considered preparation time; 2 professional or faculty meetings a month, beginning no later than 10 minutes after student dismissal time and ending no later than 5:00 p.m.; such meetings may extend beyond 5:00 p.m. only in an emergency, may not be held on Fridays or any day preceding a holiday or reserved for an association meeting, 2 days' notice required (except in an emergency); maximum of one evening assignment or meeting per year; parent-teacher or student-teacher conferences after 4:15 require authorization; the board and the association are to agree upon the scheduling and implementation of field trips; reimbursement of $20 per semester hour (maximum of 3 hours for a fall or spring semester) for graduate courses of B or better and for undergraduate courses of C or better; reimbursement of $10 per semester hour credit (maximum of 30 semester hours) for teachers on sabbatical leave; teacher evaluation: surveillance devices are prohibited; copy of evaluation report must be submitted to the teachers at least one day prior to discussion; minimum of two evaluations per year for probationary teachers; notification of assignments at least 31 days prior to the opening of school; new teachers to receive notification of assignment no later than the date of employment; immediate notification of any change in the teacher's schedule; posting of all full- and part-time vacancies including promotional position; applications to be submitted within 5 days of posting; a teacher's second request for transfer shall not be denied if a position is available; the association is to be notified of all promotional positions; applications for promotions to be kept on file for future consideration until withdrawn by the applicant; applicants to be notified of vacancies occurring during the summer; when all else is equal qualified teachers employed by the board are given preference on the basis of seniority; criteria for appointment to summer school, home teaching, federal projects, and other positions: major/minor field of study, performance, attendance record, preference to teachers who have taught in the subject area during the regular year (then to those who have taught the subject area during the previous 5 years), and who are employed in the district; the job descriptions for grade coordinator, department heads, audio-visual coordinator, director of physical education and athletics, head coaches, and activity sponsors are negotiated; fair dismissal joint committee, composed of 3 board members and 3 association members, to develop specific dismissal criteria; probationary teachers to be notified of contract renewal or nonrenewal by May 1; provision for teacher-administration liaison to review and discuss current school problems and practices; principals to administer corporal punishment; student discipline procedures provide for committee to study and make recommendations concerning serious disruptions of the instructional program; reasons for required appearance before the superintendent or his designee must be given and the teacher may have an association representative present if the matter to be discussed adversely affects him; a teacher who is suspended and later reinstated shall receive retroactive payment for the suspension period; free home-game athletic passes available to all professional employees, with half price passes available to employees' spouses; free admission for any employee supervising an athletic event.

* * *

Hastings, Minnesota

Between Hastings Independent School District No. 200 and Hastings Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 180 certificated professional employees, excluding superintendents, assistant superintendents, principals, and assistant principals (who devote more than 50 percent of their time to administrative or supervisory duties), confidential, essential, and part-time employees (working no more than 14 hours per week), and employees working no more than 100 days per year. Provision for renegotiation no later than May 1, 1974. Provision for reopener by mutual agreement.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $7,635 to $11,725, 11 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,325 maximum; M.A., $8,635 to $15,135, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,535 maximum; specialists, $15,935 maximum. (1973-74) B.A., $7,750 to $11,840, 11 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,440 maximum; M.A., $8,750 to $15,250, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,650 maximum; specilaist, $16,050 maximum. Salary increases may be withheld for just cause. Teachers new to the district as of 1968-69 are credited with a maximum of 6 years' service (earned within the previous 10 years); additional experience may be credited at the Board's discretion; courses credited for salary advancement must be earned after certification and be approved by the superintendent; $20 additional per credit for approved undergraduate courses to a total maximum of $300 per teacher.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1973-74) football, basketball, wrestling, swimming, and hockey head coaches, $1,555; baseball and track head coaches, $1,065; golf, cross country, and tennis head coaches, $710; debate director, $850; newspaper and annual, one hour free time per day or $600; speech director, $530; musicals, $480; cheerleader directors, $315; girls' canoeing, $141.60.

Department Head Compensation:

Department Size		Compensation % of Base Salary $7,750 for 1973-74
6 - 15 Class Sections	2 - 3 Teachers	3%	233
16 - 30 Class Sections	4 - 6 Teachers	4%	310
31 - 45 Class Sections	7 - 9 Teachers	5%	388
46 - 60 Class Sections	10 - 12 Teachers	6%	465
61 - 75 Class Sections	13 - 15 Teachers	7%	543
76 - 90 Class Sections	16 - 18 Teachers	8%	620
91 - 105 Class Sections	19 and over	9%	698

OTHER: $8.00 per after-school activity assigned by the principal; substitute teachers, $27.50 per day; 10 and 11-month personnel are paid 10/9 and 11/9, respectively, of regular pay; counselors receive 1.15 of regular M.A. salary for 10-month contract, not eligible for placement beyond the M.A. lane; tutoring, adult education, $7.25 per hour; driver education, $5.75 per hour; summer school, 1/10 of 1 percent of salary per hour to maximum of $8.00 per hour.
LEAVES: Twelve days' annual sick leave, credited on the second work day, 120 days' maximum accumulation; 2 separate days' personal leave for tenure teachers, and one day for probationary teachers, with additional days deducted from sick leave; sabbatical leave at one-half pay for one year after 7 years' service; adoption leave provided.
INSURANCE: Board pays 75 percent of medical-hospitalization plan with family coverage to a maximum of $367.50 per year; $3,000 board-paid life insurance policy; board contributes 50 percent of monthly income protection premium.
PERSONNEL: Teachers with B.A. or less must earn at least 6 quarter hour credits every four years to be eligible for salary increases; within teacher evaluations to be conducted with teacher's full knowledge and submitted to the teacher within 10 days so that he may sign and, if there is any objection, attach a written answer to the file copy.

* * *

Corvallis, Oregon

Between Corvallis School District No. 509J and Corvallis Education Association, effective September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1976. Approximately 400 certificated professional employees. Provision for automatic renewal unless either party notifies the other of its desire to modify or terminate this agreement before October 15.
COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,319 to $10,415, 10 increments; B.A. plus 45 hours, $11,066 maximum; M.A., $8,235 to $13,043, 12 increments; M.A. plus 45 hours, $13,768 maximum; Ph.D., $14,493 maximum. Subsequent years' salary increases directly related to the percentage increase in the Portland Consumer Price Index as measured from October 1972 to October 1973. Teachers employed after July 1, 1968, who have only a B.A., may not advance beyond step 7; no automatic increments; salary credit given for up to 3 years' military experience and for one year's participation in a cooperative university-school district internship program; third step is the maximum placement for teachers who have not taught for 5 or more years; number of salary credits for approved undergraduate work may not exceed number of credits for graduate courses; 15 hours' curriculum workshop attendance equals one hour salary credit (in lieu of mandatory payment); maximum of 6 district credits allowed for movement from one lane to another; 6 collegiate term hours must be earned every 3 years as a requisite to advancement on the salary schedule, maximum of 3-hours credit for approved travel and 3 hours for inservice courses; an additional increment granted in 1972-73 for longevity after 20 years' service, 15 years of which must have been in the district; eligibility for longevity reduced to 14 years' service in 1974-75 and to 13 years' service in 1975-76; retirement pay is a lump-sum payment of 10 percent of last year's salary for teachers.
ADMINISTRATORS: Credit granted for up to 9 years' teaching experience, with additional credit granted for administrative experience; annual pay is based on teachers' salary times responsibility factor, which is 1.20 to 1.35 for assistant superintendents, 1.20 for curriculum, personnel, and special services directors and high-school principals, 1.16 for junior high principals, 1.12 for high-school associate and assistant principals and elementary principals; 1.10 for junior high assistant principals, and 1.06 for consultants.
VOCATIONAL EDUCATION COMPENSATION: Vocational education teachers with minimum of 3 years' journeyman experience (not including 5 years' vocational certificate) may be placed on B.A. salary column, up to and including step 4, and an additional 3 years' service credit may be given for military service (up to step 7); vocational teachers with 5 years' certificate advance on B.A. schedule as do other teachers;

> Upon qualifying for the trade exam in the areas of teaching and receiving a minimum of thirty (30) units credit, the teacher will be advanced to the appropriate placement on the masters column based on experience and training. However, his salary increment on the masters column shall be two percent less than that normally received by a regular classroom teacher with a masters degree.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Stipend based on principal's recommendation) athletic director, $1,000 to $1,200; head football and basketball coaches, $900 to $1,100; wrestling, baseball, track, swimming, girls' and boys' gymnastics head coaches, and drama (3 plays), $600 to $1,000; high-school cross country, golf, and tennis, junior high football and basketball, and girls' track and swimming head coaches, $400 to $600; marching band, rally squad, and drill team, $300 to $450; elementary boys' and girls' after-school sports, all junior high intramurals, pep club, chess, vocal, music, and speech, $150 to $350.
OTHER: Summer school pay is based on teacher's regular salary, but is computed on a 75 percent base factor; per diem substitute rate is either B.A. or M.A. base pay, with placement on the regular schedule after 10 continuous days; $5.00 per game for supervisors of ticket sellers, accounting of money and tickets, public address announcer, chain men, clockers, and scorers; driver training instruction, $5.00 per hour.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, credited at the beginning of the year, unlimited maximum accumulation; leave for illness in the immediate family deducted from sick leave; 3 days for death in the immediate family, with an additional 3 days which may be granted; 2 days' emergency personal leave, with an additional 2 days (less substitute's pay) for commitments or convenience; professional conference leave granted at the discretion of the district; sabbatical leave at three-fourths pay granted to a maximum of 1½ percent of the teaching staff.

INSURANCE: Board pays $25 per month toward individual health and hospital insurance premiums.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; 21 days' leave for association representatives to attend conferences and other association activities; right to use interschool mail (providing such mail is labeled CEA, contains name of authorizing CEA official, is not detrimental to district-teacher relations and does not defame any individual); use of school facilities during reasonable non-duty hours; names and addresses of new teachers to be furnished no later than September 15; no-strike clause.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; teachers may consult the personnel director concerning contents of personnel file and may rebut or add to material found therein; 5-year statute of limitation on negative formal reprimands; $4,000 allocated for extended time so that the building administrator may allocate an additional 14 preparation periods among department chairmen; notification of vacancies by April 15 and May 15 each year; notification by May 25 of involuntary transfers, which must be based on needs and "best interests" of the district and preference of the teacher; provision for appeal when a teacher objects to an involuntary transfer.

* * *

Rutland, Vermont

Between the Rutland Board of School Commissioners and the Rutland Teachers Association, effective July 1, 1972. Approximately 200 certificated professional employees. Provision for renegotiation if funds to finance the teachers' contracted salaries are not available.

COMPENSATION: (1972-73) B.A., $6,860 to $9,947, 9 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $10,633 maxmimum; M.A.; $7,546 to $11,662, 12 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $12,691 maximum; regular teachers serving as substitutes for more than 2 days receive 20 percent of 1/190th of their regular salary for each extra class period; salary increments are not automatic; up to 4 years' credit for military service; graduate work credited only past B.A. lane, half of which must be in the teacher's field (exceptions considered when course offerings are restricted).

LEAVES: Twelve days' annual sick leave, 120 days' maximum accumulation; 4 days' bereavement leave and 2 days for professional visitations deducted from sick leave; 2 days' personal leave, one day notice required except in an emergency; sabbatical leave for advanced study at full pay (plus hospitalization insurance and retirement contributions) for one year after 5 continuous years' service available to 5 percent of the staff.

INSURANCE: Board-paid hospitalization, medical-surgical, and major medical insurance with family coverage; board matches the employee's contribution to City Life Insurance Plan; board-paid liability policy with minimum coverage of $100,000 per person, $300,000 per occurrence for bodily injury, and $50,000 per occurrence for property damage; Workmen's Compensation provided; board pays 6 times employee's contribution to city pension plan.

ASSOCIATION: Released time for grievance hearings; an association representative to sit in at all board meetings as an ex officio member.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the school board; reimbursement of tuition and related expenses upon successful completion of courses (beyond the six hours required for certification) leading to an advanced degree or to increased teaching proficiency (with the exception of courses for which the teacher has received federal aid or other stipends), maximum payment is $400; committees composed of school-board and association representatives to study methods for appraising teacher performance.

TEXT

INDIANA CLASSROOM TEACHER COLLECTIVE BARGAINING ACT

(This newly enacted law granting teachers in K-12 collective bargaining rights is codified under IC 1971, Title 20, article 7.5, regarding the powers and authority of the state and local boards of education and the administration of educational institutions.)

AN ACT amending IC 1971, Title 20 by adding a new article concerning collective bargaining between school corporations and certain employees.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana:

SECTION 1. IC 1971, Title 20, is hereby amended by adding a new article 7.5 to read as follows:

Article 7.5. Collective Bargaining Between School Corporations and Their Certificated Employees. Chapter 1. Certificated Educational Employee Bargaining.

Sec. 1. Intent. The Indiana General Assembly hereby declares that:

(a) The citizens of Indiana have a fundamental interest in the development of harmonious and cooperative relationships between school corporations and their certificated employees;

(b) Recognition by school employers of the right of school employees to organize, and acceptance of the principle and procedure of collective bargaining between school employers and school employee organizations, can alleviate various forms of strife and unrest;

(c) The State has a basic obligation to protect the public by attempting to prevent any material interference with the normal public school educational process;

(d) The relationship between school corporation employers and certificated school employees is not comparable to the relation between private employers and employees among others for the following reasons: (I) a public school corporation is not operated for profit but to insure the citizens of the State rights guaranteed them by the Indiana State Constitution; (II) the obligation to educate children and the methods by which such education is effected will change rapidly with increasing technology, the needs of an advancing civilization and requirements for substantial educational innovation; (III) the Indiana General Assembly has delegated the discretion to carry out this changing and innovative educational function to the local governing bodies of school corporations, composed of citizens elected or appointed under applicable law, a delegation which these bodies may not and should not bargain away; and (IV) public school corporations have different obligations with respect to certificated school employees under constitutional and statutory requirements than private employers have to their employees.

Sec. 2. Definitions. As used in this chapter:

(a) "school corporation" means any local public school corporation established under Indiana law and, in the case of public vocational schools or schools for handicapped children established or maintained by two or more school corporations, shall refer to such schools.

(b) "governing body" shall mean the board or commission charged by law with the responsibility of administering the affairs of the school corporation.

(c) "school employer" means the governing body of each school corporation and any person or persons authorized to act for the governing body of the school employer in dealing with its employees.

(d) "superintendent" shall mean the chief administrative officer of any school corporation, or any person or persons designated by him or by the governing body to act in his behalf in dealing with school employees.

(e) "school employee" means any full-time certificated person in the employment of the school employer. A school employee shall be considered full-time even though he does not work during school vacation periods, and accordingly works less than a full year. There shall be excluded from the meaning of school employee supervisors, confidential employees, employees performing security work and non-certificated employees.

(f) "certificated employee" means a person whose contract with the school corporation requires that he hold a license or permit from the state board of education or a commission thereof as provided in IC 1971, 20-6.

(g) "non-certificated employee" means any school employee whose employment is not dependent upon the holding of a license or permit as provided in IC 1971, 20-6.

(h) "supervisor" means any individual who has: (I) authority, acting for the school corporation, to hire, transfer, suspend, lay off, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward or discipline school employees, or (II) responsibility to direct school employees and adjust their grievances, or (III) effectively to recommend the action set out in these categories; provided, however that exercise of the foregoing authority is not of a merely routine or clerical nature but requires the use of independent judgment. Supervisors shall include, but not be limited to, superintendents, assistant superintendents, business managers and supervisors, or directors with school corporation-wide responsibilities, principals and vice-principals or department heads who have responsibility for evaluating teachers.

(i) "confidential employee" means a school employee whose unrestricted access to confidential personnel files or whose functional responsibilities or knowledge in connection with the issues involved in dealings between the school corporation and its employees would make his membership in a school employee organization incompatible with his official duties.

(j) "employees performing security work" means any school employee whose primary responsibility is the protection of personal and real property owned or leased by the school corporation or who performs police or quasi-police powers.

(k) "school employee organization" means any organization which has school employees as members and one of whose primary purposes is representing school employees in dealing with their school employer, and includes any person or persons authorized to act on behalf of such organizations.

(l) "exclusive representative" means the school employee organization which has been certified for the purposes of this chapter by the board or recognized by a school employer as the exclusive representative of the employees in an appropriate unit as provided in Section 10 of this chapter, or the person or persons duly authorized to act on behalf of such representative.

(m) "board" means the Indiana education employment relations board provided by this chapter.

(n) "bargain collectively" means the performance of the mutual obligation of the school employer and the exclusive representative to meet at reasonable times to negotiate in good faith with respect to items enumerated in Section 4 of this chapter and to execute a written contract incorporating any agreement relating to such matters; provided, however, that such obligation shall not include the final approval of any contract concerning these or any other items. Agreements reached through collective bargaining are binding as a contract only if ratified by the governing body of the school corporation and the exclusive representative. The obligation to bargain collectively does not require the school employer or the exclusive representative to agree to a proposal of the other or to make a concession to the other.

(o) "discuss" means the performance of the mutual obligation of the school corporation through its superintendent and the exclusive representative to meet at reasonable times to discuss, to provide meaningful input, to exchange points of view, with respect to items enumerated in Section 5 of this chapter. This obligation shall not, however, require either party to enter into a contract, to agree to a proposal, or to require the making of a concession. A failure to reach an agreement on any matter of discussion shall not require the use of any part of the impasse procedure, as provided in Section 13. Neither the obligation to bargain collectively nor to discuss any matter shall prevent any school employee from petitioning the school employer, the governing body, or the superintendent for a redress of his grievances either individually or through the exclusive representative, nor shall either such obligation prevent the school employer or the superintendent from conferring with any citizen, taxpayer, student, school employee or other person considering the operation of the schools and the school corporation.

(p) "strike" means concerted failure to report for duty, willful absence from one's position, stoppage of work, or abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment, without the lawful approval of the school employer, or in any concerted manner interfering with the operation of the school employer as defined in subsection (a) of this section for any purpose.

(q) "deficit financing" with respect to any budget year shall mean expenditures in excess of monies legally available to the employer.

(r) any reference in this chapter to any section or chapter of IC 1971 shall refer to such section or chapter as it is heretofore or hereafter amended, modified, supplemented or superseded. The reference to any person or organization in any gender shall refer to the masculine, feminine or neuter as required by the context.

Sec. 3. Duty to Bargain Collectively and Discuss. On and after January 1, 1974, school employers and school employees shall have the obligation and the right to bargain collectively the items set forth in Section 4, the right and obligation to discuss any item set forth in Section 5 and shall enter into a contract embodying any of the matters on which they have bargained collectively. No contract may include provisions in conflict with (a) any right or benefit established by federal or state law, (b) school employee rights as defined in Section 7(a) of this chapter, or (c) school employer rights as defined in Section 7(b) of this chapter. It shall be unlawful for a school employer to enter into any agreement that would place such employer in a position of deficit financing as defined in this chapter, and any contract which provides for deficit financing shall be void to that extent and any individual teacher's contract executed in accordance with such contract shall be void to such extent.

Sec. 4. Subjects of Bargaining. A school employer shall bargain collectively with the exclusive representative on the following: salary, wages, hours, and salary and wage related fringe benefits. A contract may also contain a grievance procedure culminating in final and binding arbitration of unresolved grievances, but such binding arbitration shall have no power to amend, add to, subtract from or supplement provisions of the contract.

Sec. 5. Subjects of Discussion.

(a) A school employer shall discuss with the exclusive representative of certificated employees, and may but shall not be required to bargain collectively, negotiate or enter into a written contract concerning or be subject to or enter into a impasse procedures on the following matters: working conditions, other than those provided in Section 4; curriculum development and revision; textbook selection; teaching methods; selection; assignment or promotion of personnel; student discipline; expulsion or supervision of students; pupil-teacher ratio; class size or budget appropriations: Provided, however, that any items included in the 1972-1973 agreements between any employer school corporation and the employee organization shall continue to be bargainable.

(b) Nothing shall prevent a superintendent or his designee from making recommendations to the school employer.

Section 6. Rights of School Employees and School Employers.

(a) School employees shall have the right to form, join or assist employee organizations, to participate in collective bargaining with school employers through representatives of their own choosing and to engage in other activities, individually or in concert for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, or improving salaries, wages, hours, salary and wage related fringe benefits and other matters as defined in sections 4 and 5.

(b) School employers shall have the responsibility and authority to manage and direct in behalf of the public the operations and activities of the school corporation to the full extent authorized by law. Such responsibility and activity shall include but not be limited to the right of the school employer to:

(1) direct the work of its employees;
(2) establish policy;
(3) hire, promote, demote, transfer, assign and retain employees;
(4) suspend or discharge its employees in accordance with applicable law;
(5) maintain the efficiency of school operations;
(6) relieve its employees from duties because of lack of work or other legitimate reasons;
(7) take actions necessary to carry out the mission of the public schools as provided by law.

Sec. 7. Unfair Practices.
(a) It shall be an unfair practice for a school employer to:

(1) interfere with, restrain or coerce school employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in Section 6 of this chapter.
(2) dominate, interfere or assist in the formation or administration of any school employee organization or contribute financial or other support to it; provide, that subject to rules and regulations made by the governing body, a school employer may permit school employees to confer with the school employer or with any school employee organization during working hours without loss of time or pay;
(3) encourage or discourage membership in any school employee organization through discrimination in regard to hiring or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment;
(4) discharge or otherwise discriminate against a school employee because he has filed a complaint, affidavit, petition, or given any information or testimony under this chapter;
(5) refuse to bargain collectively or discuss with an exclusive representative as required by any provisions of this chapter;
(6) fail or refuse to comply with any provision of this chapter.

(b) It shall be an unfair practice for a school employee organization or its agents to:

(1) interfere with, restrain or coerce (a) school employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed by this chapter, or (b) a school employer in the selection of its representatives for the purpose of bargaining collectively, discussing or adjusting grievances. This paragraph shall not impair the right of a school employee organization to prescribe its own rules with respect to the acquisition or retention of membership therein.
(2) cause or attempt to cause a school employer to discriminate against an employee in violation of subsection (a);
(3) refuse to bargain collectively with a school employer, if the school employee organization is the exclusive representative;
(4) fail or refuse to comply with any provision of this chapter.

(c) Nothing herein shall in any way restrict the right of either the school employer or the school employee organization to bring suit for specific performance and/or breach of performance of a collective bargaining contract in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

Sec. 8. Dues Deduction. The school employer shall, on receipt of the written authorization of a school employee, deduct from the pay of such employee any dues designated or certified by the appropriate officer of a school employee organization which is an exclusive representative of any employees of the school employer and shall remit such dues to such school employee organization: Provided, however, that such deductions shall be consistent with the provisions of IC 1971, 22-2-6 and IC 1971, 22-2-7, and IC 1971, 20-6-18-1.

Section 9. Indiana Education Employment Relations Board.
(a) There is hereby created an Indiana education employment relations board which shall consist of three (3) members appointed by the governor to serve at his pleasure. One (1) member shall be desiganted by the governor as chairman. Not more than two (2) members of the board shall be members of the same political party. Each member shall be appointed for a term of four (4) years except that one (1) shall be appointed for a term to expire two (2) years following the effective date of this chapter, one (1) for a term that shall expire three (3) years following the effective date of this chapter, and one (1) for a term that shall expire four (4) years following the effective date of this chapter. A member appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed for the unexpired term of the member who he is to succeed.
(b) Members shall hold no other public office or employment by the state or other public agency or public employer, or be an officer or employee of any school employee organization or any of its affiliates, or represent any school employer or school employee organization, or its affiliates. The chairman shall give his full time to his duties. The chairman of the board shall not engage in any other business, vocation or employment. The members of the board other than the chairman shall receive as compensation payment equal to that of the chairman, computed on a daily rate and paid for every day actually spend serving on the board.
(c) A majority of the members of the board shall constitute a quorum.
(d) To accompolish the objectives and to carry out the duties prescribed in this chapter the board shall have the following powers:

(1) To adopt an official seal and prescribe the purposes for which it shall be used;
(2) To hold such hearings and make such inquiries as it deems necessary to carry out properly its functions and powers;
(3) To establish a principal office which shall be in the city of Indianapolis;
(4) To meet and exercise any or all of its powers at any other place in the state;
(5) To conduct in any part of this state any proceeding, hearing, investigation, inquiry, or election necessary to the performance of its functions. For any such purpose, the board may designate one of its members, or an agent or agents, as hearing examiners. The board may utilize such voluntary and uncompensated services as may from time to time be needed;

(6) To appoint such staff and attorneys as it may from time to time find necessary for the proper performance of its duties. The attorneys appointed under this section may, at the direction of the board, appear for and represent the board in any case in court;

(7) To pay the reasonable and necessary traveling and other expenses of any employee member, or agent of the board;

(8) To subpoena witnesses and issue subpoenas requiring the production of books, papers, records and documents which may be needed as evidence in any matter under inquiry; and to administer oaths and affirmations. In cases of neglect or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any person, the circuit or superior court of the county in which the investigations or the public hearings are taking place, upon application by the board, shall issue an order requiring such person to appear before the board and produce evidence about the matter under investigation. A failure to obey such order may be punished by the court as a contempt. Any subpoena, notice of hearing or other process of the board issued under the provisions of this chapter shall be served in the manner prescribed by the Indiana Rules of Procedure;

(9) To adopt, promulgate, amend or rescind such rules and regulations as it deems necessary for administratively feasible to carry out the provisions of this chapter. Such rules and regulations shall be adopted in accordance with the provisions of IC 1971, 4-22-2.

(10) To request from any public agency such assistance, services, and data as will enable the board properly to carry out its functions and powers;

(11) At the end of every year to make a report in writing to the governor and the general assembly stating in detail the work it has done in hearing and deciding cases and otherwise, and to publish and report in full an opinion in every case decided by it.

(e) The board shall organize its staff to provide for the functions of unit determination, unfair labor practice processing, conciliation and mediation, fact-finding and research. In connection with any conciliation and mediation or fact-finding, it may use either full-time employees or appoint employees for specific cases from a panel which it establishes. Its research division shall be organized to provide statistical data on the resources of each school corporation, the substance of any agreements reached by each school corporation and other relevant data.

Sec. 10. Unit Determination and Selection of the Exclusive Representative.

(a) The exclusive representative shall serve for school employees within certain groups referred to in this chapter as units or bargaining units. No bargaining unit shall contain both certificated and non-certificated employees. Subject to this limitation, the units for which an exclusive representative shall serve shall be determined as follows:

(1) The parties may agree on the appropriate unit. For this purpose the parties shall consist of the school employer and a school employee organization representing twenty percent (20%) or more of the school employees in any proposed unit.

(2) If no such agreement is reached, of if any school employee in the proposed unit files a complaint to such unit with the board, the board shall determine the proper unit. Such determination shall be made by the board after a hearing and its decision shall be based on, but shall not be limited to, the following considerations: (I) efficient administration of school operations; (II) the existence of a community of interest among school employees; (III) the effects on the school corporation and school employees of fragmentation of units; and (IV) recommendations of the parties involved. In making such determination notice shall be given to all interested parties in accordance with the rules of the board, but the board need not follow the provisions of IC 1971, 4-22-1.

(b) A school employer may recognize as the exclusive representative of its employees within an appropriate unit an organization which presents to the employer evidence of its representation of a majority of the school employees within the unit, unless (1) any other organization representing twenty percent (20%) of the school employees within the unit file written objections to such recognition, or (2) any school employee files a complaint to the composition of the unit with the school employer or the board within the notice period set out below. Before recognizing such an exclusive representative under the circumstances of this subsection, the school employer shall post a written public notice of its intention to recognize the organization as exclusive representative of the school employees within the unit. Such notice shall be posted for thirty (30) calendar days immediately preceding recognition in each of the buildings where the school employees in any unit principally work.

(c) Where an exclusive school employee organization is not determined as provided in subsection (b) above, the determination of whether any school employee organization shall be the exclusive representative shall be determined in accordance with the following provisions:

(1) A petition may be filed by a school employee organization asserting that twenty percent (20%) of the employees in an appropriate unit (I) wish to be represented for collective bargaining by it as exclusive representative, of (II) asserting that the designated exclusive representative is no longer the representative of the majority of school employees in the unit.

(2) A petition may be filed by the school employer asserting that one (1) or more school employee organizations have presented to it a claim to be recognized as the exclusive representative in an appropriate unit; or that the school employer has good faith doubt that the certified school employee organization represents a majority of employees in the bargaining unit.

(3) A petition may be filed by twenty percent (20%) of the school employees in any unit asserting that the designated exclusive representative is no longer the representative of the majority of school employees in the unit.

(4) The board shall investigate such petition, and if it has reasonable cause to believe a question exists as to whether the desiganted exclusive representative or any school employee organization represents a majority of the school employees in a unit, it shall provide for an appropriate hearing within thirty (30) days. In such hearing the board need not follow the requirements of IC 1971, 4-22-1. If the board finds, based upon the record of such hearing that such a question of representation exists, it shall direct an election by secret ballot in a unit it determines to be appropriate. Certification as the exclusive representative shall then be granted only to a school employee organization that has been selected, in a secret ballot election, by a majority of all the employees in an appropriate unit as their representative. No election shall be held in any bargaining unit if a valid election has been held in the preceding twenty-four (24) month period.

(d) In any election the board shall determine who is eligible to vote in the election and shall establish rules governing the election. The ballot shall contain in addition to the name of the petitioning school employee organization the names of any other school employee organization showing written evidence satisfactory to the board of at least twenty percent (20%) representation of the school employees within the unit, and a provision for choosing "no representation by a school employee organization".

Sec. 11. Prevention of Unfair Practices. Unfair practices shall be remediable in the following manner:

(a) Any school employer or any school employee who believes he is aggrieved by an unfair practice may file a complaint under oath to such effect, setting out a summary of the facts involved and specifying the section of this chapter alleged to have been violated.

(b) Thereafter, the board shall give notice to the person or organization against whom the complaint is directed and shall determine the matter raised in the complaint, and appeals may be taken in accordance with IC 1971, 4-22-1. Testimony may be taken and findings and conclusions may be made by a hearing examiner or agent of the board who may be a member thereof. The board, but not a hearing examiner or agent thereof, may enter such interlocutory orders after summary hearing as it deems necessary in carrying out the intent of this chapter.

Sec. 12. Time Table for Coordination of Bargaining with the School Corporation Budget Requirements.

(a) Bargaining collectively between a school corporation and the exclusive representative shall begin on or before one hundred eighty (180) days prior to the submission of a budget by a school employer (herein referred to as the "submission date") which, for the purpose of this chapter, shall be the first date for the legal notice and publication for such budget as provided in IC 1971, 17-3-78-1.

(b) At any time after such one hundred eighty (180) days has begun, the board shall appoint a mediator if either party declares an impasse either in the scope of the items which are to be bargained collectively or on the substance of any item to be bargained collectively.

If after five (5) days the mediator is unsuccessful in finding a solution to the problems or in causing the parties to reach agreement, either party may request the board to initiate fact-finding on the items which the parties are obligated to bargain collectively.

(c) If no agreement has been reached on the items to be bargained collectively seventy-five (75) days prior to the submission date, the board shall initiate mediation.

(d) If no agreement has been reached on the items to be bargained collectively forty-five (45) days prior to the submission date, the board shall initiate fact-finding.

(e) If no agreement has been reached on the items to be bargained collectively fourteen (14) days prior to the submission date, the parties shall continue the status quo and the employer may issue tentative individual contracts and prepare its budget based thereon. During this status quo period in order to permit the successful resolution of the dispute, the employer may not unilaterally change the terms or conditions of employment that are issues in dispute. Nothing in this subsection, however, shall be construed as relieving the school employer or the school employee organization from the duty to bargain collectively until a mutual agreement has been reached, and a contract entered as called for in Section 3 of this chapter.

(f) Nothing shall prevent either party from requesting mediation or fact-finding at any time after such one hundred eighty (180) days on items which must be bargained collectively under Section 4 of this chapter, or prevent the parties acting together to request mediation of fact-finding on any items which must be bargained collectively under Section 4 of this chapter.

Sec. 13. Impasse Procedures.

(a) Mediation. The purpose of mediation of disputes between school employers and exclusive representatives is to delineate the problems involved in bargaining collectively, finding solutions which can reasonably be accepted by both parties and to determine common grounds, if any. Accordingly, the board shall establish and hire a permanent staff of mediators and a panel of part-time mediators. When a mediator is requested or required under Section 12 of this chapter, the board shall appoint a mediator from such staff or panel. It is the intent of the legislation that the mediation process shall be confidential in nature. The mediator shall not be subject to the subpoena power of courts or other administrative agencies of the state regarding the subjects discussed as a part of the mediation process.

(b) Fact-Finding. The purpose of fact-finding is to give a neutral advisory opinion where the parties are unable by themselves, or through a mediator, to resolve a dispute. The board shall establish and hire a permanent staff of fact-finders and a panel of part-time fact-finders. Such persons may also be mediators. When a fact-finder is requested or required under Section 12 of this chapter, the board shall appoint a fact-finder from such staff or panel. The fact-finder shall make such investigation and hold such hearings as he deems necessary in connection with any dispute, may restrict his findings to those issues which he determines significant, may use evidence furnished him by the parties, by the board, its staff, or any other state agency. The fact-finder shall make a recommendation as to the settlement of the disputes over which he has jurisdiction. In conducting such hearings and investigations, he shall not be bound by the provisions of IC 1971, 4-22-1; he shall, however, take into consideration the following factors:

(1) past memoranda of agreements and/or contracts between the parties;

(2) comparisons of wages and hours of the employees involved, with wages of other employees working for other public agencies and private concerns doing comparable work, giving consideration to factors peculiar to the school corporation;

(3) the public interest;

(4) the financial impact upon the school corporation and whether any settlement will cause such school corporation to engage in deficit financing.

(c) The school employer and the exclusive representative may also at any time submit any issue in dispute to final and binding arbitration to an arbitrator appointed by the board. The award in any such arbitration shall constitute the final contract between the parties with respect to such issue.

(d) No person who has served as a mediator in a dispute between a school employer and an exclusive representative, except by their mutual consent, shall serve as a fact-finder or arbitrator in a dispute arising in the same school corporation within a period of five (5) years. Nothing, however, shall prevent an arbitrator or fact-finder, if asked by the parties, to attempt to mediate a dispute.

Mediators and fact-finders shall not be employed on a full or part-time basis by any public school employer which is a school corporation, or by an organization of public employees or employers or their affiliates.

The compensation and expenses of any mediator and fact-finder shall be borne by the board. The cost of an arbitrator shall be paid by the board which shall be reimbursed equally by the two (2) parties under procedures for collection and payment established by the board.

(e) The investigation, hearing and findings of the fact-finder shall be made as expeditiously as the circumstances permit and shall be delivered to the parties and to the board. The board, after receiving such findings and recommendations, may make additional findings and recommendations to the parties based upon information in the report or in its own possession. At any time within five (5) days after such findings and recommendations have been delivered to the board it may, and within ten (10) days, it shall, make the findings and recommendations of the fact-finder and its own additional findings and recommendations, if any, available to the public through news media and such other means as it deems effective.

If a school employer issues tentative individual contracts, the board shall continue to have the responsibility to provide for further mediation and/or fact-finding until such time as an agreement has been reached.

Sec. 14. Strikes.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any school employee, school employee organization, or any affiliate, including but not limited to state or national affiliates thereof, to take part in or assist in a strike against a school employer or school corporation.

(b) Any school corporation or school employer may, in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding, take action against any school employee organization, any affiliate thereof, or any person aiding or abetting in a strike, for redress of such unlawful act.

(c) Where any exclusive representative engages in a strike, or aids or abets therein, it shall lose its dues deduction privilege for a period of one (1) year.

(d) No regulation, rule or law with respect to the minimum length of a school year shall be applicable or shall require make-up days in any situation where schools in a school corporation are closed as a result of a school employee strike. A school corporation shall not pay any school employee for any day when the school employee fails as a result of a strike to report for work as required by the school year calendar.

SECTION 2. Severability. If any provision of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is invalid, such invalidity shall not affect the other provisions or applications of this act, which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and, to this end, the provisions of this act are declared to be severable.

SECTION 3. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated from the general fund of the state of Indiana, to the Indiana education employment relations board, the sum of four hundred thousand dollars ($400,000), for the purpose of establishing, staffing and operating the board.

SECTION 4. Effective Date. Whereas an emergency exists for the more immediate taking effect of this act, the same shall be in full force and effect from and after July 1, 1973.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

Publication of the NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST will resume in September. To ensure continued, up-to-date coverage of public sector bargaining activity, renew your DIGEST subscription immediately. Just complete the subscription blank printed on the back cover of this issue and mail it today to: Records Division, National Education Association, 1201 Sixteenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS OUTSTANDING NEA REFERENCE WORK?

COMPREHENSIVE NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT PROVISIONS
1972 Edition

PART I -	Scope of Agreement and Association, Board and Teacher Rights Provisions
PART II -	Joint Committees, Instructional, Educational and Teacher Assignment and Work-Load Provisions
PART III -	Grievance Procedures, Personnel and Salary Provisions
PART IV -	Group Insurance, Leaves of Absence and Fringe Benefit Provisions

This four-part document prepared by NEA Research is an invaluable source of negotiated items in teacher/board agreements. In 1,418 pages it analyzes over 1,500 negotiated agreements in U.S. public school systems. Over 300 negotiable items are identified and coded system-by-system. (Specific content of the provisions may be obtained on request by using the Information Request Forms provided in each volume.)

REPRESENTATION INFORMATION

- State
- Name of school system
- Location of school system
- Name of recognized organization
- National affiliation of recognized organization
- Number of professional personnel represented
- Type of agreement
- Term of comprehensive agreement
- Agreement page number for particular provision

PROVISION ANALYSIS

- 200 provision titles
- Detailed analysis coded for 300 variables:
  - Negotiation impasse: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Jt. administrator-teacher committees
  - Grievance arbitration: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Bench marks in salary schedules: 1-, 2-, or 3-year agreements
  - Group insurance: part or full premium paid by board
  - 21 short-term leaves identified

. . . . . .

Please send:

_____ $40./set. (4 parts per set)
(qty.) Stock No. 388-11940.

_____ Special price ONLY for NEA state
(qty.) and local associations: $25./set.
Stock No. 388-11938.

Check one below:

_____ Payment enclosed. Make checks payable to NEA.
_____ Bill on purchase order attached.

Mail to:

NEA PUBLICATION-SALES SECTION 192
1201 Sixteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20036

_____
Name

_____
Organization

_____
Address

_____
City/State/ZIP

VOL. 7 NO. 1
SEPT. 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

	Page
Case Reviews	3
School Board Ordered to Negotiate in Good Faith
College President Deprived of Constitutional Rights Entitled to Court Hearing
Interns and Residents Entitled to Bargaining Rights
Settlement of Association's Bargaining Demands Remanded to NCIR
No Maximum on Summarily Imposed Contempt of Court Fines
Arbitrator's Award of Sabbaticals Contravenes State Statute
"Freedom of Expression" Guaranteed Unless It Interferes with Educational Process
Constitutionality of Employee Discipline Law Remanded for Hearing
Board Findings and Rulings	7
Employee's Discharge for Failure to Pay Agency Fee Discriminatory Petitioned for Unit Denied as Arbitrary and Inappropriate
Principals Who Are Board Negotiators and Have No Agent Are Managers
PERA Included in School Laws of Commonwealth
Insistence on Third-Party Presence at Negotiation Sessions Constitutes Unlawful Refusal to Bargain
Teachers' Assignment to 5-Minute "Door" Duty Violated Contract
WERC Rulings Send Grievances to Advisory Arbitration
Negotiation Notes	10
Comprehensive Bargaining Law for Public Employees Proposed
State Employees May Negotiate Agency Shop Agreements
Legality of Patronage System in State Government Questioned
Major Collective Bargaining Settlements, First Half of 1973
The Consumer Price Index - June 1973
Special Reports	13
Length of the School Day for Teachers
Briefs of Agreements
Text	22
Advisory Council on Public Employee Relations, Summary of Principal Recommendations

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2532

Case Reviews

CONNECTICUT

School Board Ordered to Negotiate In Good Faith

Interpreting the Connecticut Teacher Negotiations Act, the state's Superior Court issued a permanent injunction ordering the East Hartford Board of Education to negotiate in good faith with the East Hartford Education Association (HEA) regarding salaries and other conditions of employment.

The HEA brought the case seeking an order to compel the board to continue negotiations that had broken off after both sides rejected the arbitrator's recommendations in part. The board contended that negotiations after a nonbinding arbitration were unnecessary since the Teacher Negotiations Act did not expressly provide for post-arbitration negotiation.

The Superior Court cited West Hartford Education Association Inc. v. DeCourcy, et. al., in which it was determined that the act strips boards of some discretion which they otherwise could exercise under certain provisions since it mandates negotiations with teacher representatives, thereby eliminating any need for illegal and disruptive remedies. The Act, however, does not compel agreement nor does it require parties to make concessions.

The court indicated that enforcement of the board's obligation to negotiate in good faith is basic to the implementation of the Act. The court rejected the board's arguments, and issued an injunction ordering the board to bargain in good faith with HEA regarding salaries and other conditions of employment and the negotiation of an agreement. (East Hartford Education Association, Plaintiff v. East Hartford Board of Education, Defendant, Connecticut Superior Court, November 10, 1972.)

ILLINOIS

College President Deprived of Constitutional Rights Entitled to Court Hearing

Overturning a lower court decision, the U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that the former president of Prairie State Junior College had sufficient evidence showing deprivation of his First Amendment right to free expression and his Fourteenth Amendment right to due process to warrant court consideration.

The grievant's contract was terminated without a hearing or opportunity to speak in his defense following his circulation of a confidential memorandum among his administrative staff requesting that they consider changes in the college's ethnic studies program.

The Board of the Junior College District contended that the grievant's proposal constituted a breach of his administrative duties and was not a matter of free expression, and that the grievant's proposals constituted grounds for dismissal because they offended the sensibilities of the board. The board also argued that "they should have unfettered discretion to hire and fire presidents as a means of expediently carrying out their statutory duties, and that this necessity outweighs any interests of the plaintiff in receiving any kind of hearing before termination."

The plaintiff contended that the right to due process, free speech, and association, that the courts have traditionally granted academicians, should also cover his circulation of the ethnic studies memorandum. He also argued that the defendants deprived him of liberty by attacking his veracity and deprived him of property by discharging him two years prior to expiration of his contract.

The court disagreed with the board's contention that the plaintiff could be dismissed solely on the grounds that he expressed "an opinion that could be interpreted as a sign of disloyalty or an undermining of the confidence placed in him." According to the court in Pickering v. Board of Education, a public employee can be punished only for speech that causes substantial disruption or that hinders the functioning of the state. In the instant case, the board presented no proof of disruption and no reasons to deny the plaintiff's First Amendment rights. Additionally, the guidelines in Pickering for determining whether an employee's speech should be restricted supported the plaintiff's right to make proposals for changes in the curriculum.

The court also held that the board had acted arbitrarily in denying him due process since "the plaintiff, as a public employee, is entitled to be protected from retaliation for actions which he had every reason to believe were a part of his assigned duties." Using the definitions of deprivation of liberty and property in Board of Regents v. Roth, the court upheld the plaintiff's contention that he had been denied both. The court concluded that the plaintiff had presented sufficient evidence supporting his contention that his constitutional rights had been denied to warrant a court hearing and remanded the case to the district court for consideration. (Richard W. Hostrop, Plaintiff- Appellant, v. Board of Junior College District No. 515, Counties of Cook and Will, and State of Illinois, Defendants-Appellees, United States Court of Appeals, December 21, 1972.)

MICHIGAN

Interns and Residents Entitled to Bargaining Rights

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled that interns, residents, and post-doctoral fellows working at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor are public employees within the meaning of the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA).

The University of Michigan Interns-Residents Association (UMIRA) filed an election petition with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) after the university regents refused to recognize it. Ruling affirmatively MERC directed an election which the association won. Subsequently the regents appealed and refused to bargain until a court ruling was made on the matter. MERC's decision was overturned on the ground that it impinged on the constitutional authority of the regents to control and manage university affairs.

Nothing that the state constitution originally contained provisions for a board of regents and was later amended to include resolution of public employee disputes, the high court said that "it must attempt to harmonize the various constitutional provisions and give meaning to them all." In harmonizing the two provisions, the court held that "some conditions of employment may not be subject to collective bargaining because those particular facets of employment would interfere with the autonomy of the regents."

The court ruled that since UMIRA members pay federal, state, and social security taxes and receive fringe benefits available to other university employees, there was ample evidence to support MERC's conclusion that they are public employees. The court thus rejected as unsubstantiated the contention that interns and residents are primarily students because they spend a great deal of time acquiring new skills. Comparing the interns and residents to fledgling lawyers employed by a law firm, the court noted that the latter group also spends a great deal of time acquiring new skills but no one would maintain that they are not employees of the law firm. (Regents of the University of Michigan v. Michigan Employment Relations Commission and University of Michigan Interns-Residents Association, Michigan Superior Court, February 20, 1973.)

NEBRASKA

Settlement of Association's Bargaining Demands Remanded To NCIR

The Nebraska Supreme Court held that the unrecognized, NEA-affiliated Sidney Education Association (SEA) may have its bargaining demands settled by the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations (NCIR) after having exhausted and complied with all bargaining procedures of the Nebraska Teachers' Professional Negotiations Act (TPNA).

SEA claimed that it represented a majority of the system's teachers and had requested bargaining with the Sidney School District on salaries and other terms and conditions of employment. But the board voted not to recognize the association in accordance with a permissive provision of the TPNA which allows a board to ignore negotiation demands if the organization is not granted recognition.

The association sought relief through NCIR which ordered the board to recognize SEA and bargain in good faith. The board appealed that decision.

In its majority opinion, the Supreme Court held that the case involved conflicting provisions within the TPNA. The court determined that the NCIR had jurisdiction in accordance with the TPNA since by declining to recognize the association the district exhausted the provisions of TPNA without resolving the dispute.

The court citied Seward Education Association v. School District of Seward in which it ruled that NCIR has authority under the state constitution to compel negotiations and set wages for school employees. The court stated that while the Sidney board refused and cannot be compelled to recognize the association, the board's action exhausted all TPNA remedies and NCIR has jurisdiction. So stating, the court remanded the case to NCIR.

Rejecting the majority decision that NCIR's authority to settle a dispute over wages and working conditions does not compel a school to enter into any agreement, a dissenting opinion asserted that when NCIR sets wages and terms, it compels a school board to comply by entering into agreements with the organization members. Further, the dissent held that the organization would obtain its agreement by court order, thus making the statutory sections in question meaningless. (Sidney Education Association, Plaintiff v. School District of Sidney, Nebraska Supreme Court, January 26, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

No Maximum on Summarily Imposed Contempt of Court Fines

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that a $17,350 fine summarily imposed on the Fair Lawn Education Association for contempt of a court order enjoining its illegal strike activities was appropriate "in light of the public wrong."

The association contended that "contempt is not punishable beyond some nominal fine unless the issue of its guilt is decided by a jury." In support, the association cited United States v. R. L. Polk and Co. wherein the court ruled that a $35,000 fine for contempt established the offense as serious and worthy of jury trial because the fine was over the $500 maximum which petty offenses carry.

Defending the lower court's right to summarily impose unlimited fines in contempt cases, the superior court said that this power enables it to compel immediate compliance with court orders without impairing the truthfinding process or denying relief through delay. To set a limit on the amount of monetary punishment which may be summarily imposed in contempt cases would hinder the court's power to demand that judiciary orders be immediately obeyed and the underlying wrong which led to the order be ended. The superior court also pointed out that judges "have always decided issues of civil liability, no matter how large the claim, without the aid of a jury" and the Constitution of the United States does not entitle a defendant to a jury when the litigant injured by the violation seeks dollar recompense.

The superior court overturned the association's contention that the courts have set a maximum amount a corporation can be summarily fined, pointing out that the association had erroneously assumed that the liability of a corporation for contempt may be equated with the liability of a corporation for statutory offenses. The legislature has fixed a maximum fine on statutory offenses but not on contempt fines, the court said.

Concluding, the court found the lower court's decision appropriate and modest in light of the public wrong and affirmed the decision. (In the Matter of Fair Lawn Education Association Charged with Contempt of Court, Supreme Court of New Jersey, May 21, 1972.)

NEW YORK

Arbitrator's Award of Sabbaticals Contravenes State Statute

In a majority decision, the New York State Supreme Court, Appellate Division, held that an emergency statute (Section 82 of the Civil Service Law) barring sabbatical leave between July 1, 1971, and July 1, 1972, represented "clear public policy." Consequently, the court vacated an arbitrator's award which permitted the taking of sabbaticals during that period as contrary to the law.

In the instant case, the Associated Teachers of Huntington filed a grievance for teachers who were informed in May 1971 that no sabbaticals would be granted for the 1971-72 school year. An arbitrator had ordered the board to consider the applications for sabbaticals on the basis that the teacher's had contractual rights which preexisted the ban.

The award was twice confirmed by the Supreme Court at Special Term, but on appeal the court's majority opinion held for the Huntington Board of Education.

The appellate court ruled on whether the association had an enforceable right to sabbatical leaves, and maintained that while the collective bargaining agreement between the parties lists the criteria for sabbatical leaves, discretionary power is vested with the board to grant or deny requested sabbatical leave. Therefore, any contractual rights which the teachers may have had to sabbatical leaves were not in existence and enforceable prior to April 12, 1971, the effective date of the emergency law.

The court further ruled on whether the arbitrator exceeded his authority when he ordered the board to grant the requests. The court held that since the judiciary has the authority to prevent an arbitrator from rendering an award requiring an action prohibited by law or offensive to public policy, it follows that if an arbitrator's award requires actions prohibited by state statute, the award should be vacated.

The dissenting opinion found no violation of public policy, and held that the issue before the arbitrator was whether the board had violated the agreement. It also asserted that the arbitrator's findings did not violate the statute or public policy, and therefore, would affirm the arbitrator's order and judgment. (The Associated Teachers of Huntington, Inc., v. Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 3, Town of Huntington, New York State Supreme Court, Appellate Division, November 2, 1972.)

"Freedom of Expression" Guaranteed Unless It Interferes with Educational Process

The New York Court of Appeals reversed a Supreme Court, Appellate Division, decision and denied injunctive relief sought by the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 3 to prevent the National Education Association (NEA) and its affiliate, the New York State Teachers Association (NYSTA) from distributing statements urging teachers not to work for the school district.

After the school district and NYSTA failed to reach an agreement concerning the interpretation and enforcement of the terms of the contract, the association issued an advisory directive to its member associations and student associations stating that no teacher in the state should apply or take employment in School District No. 3 until the dispute between the board and the association was settled because it "is not an appropriate place at present in which professional teachers should seek employment."

The school board contended that the statement constituted unlawful coercion of teachers.

The Appeals Court overturned the Appelate Court decision agreeing with the dissenting Appellate Court opinion that there was no evidence that NEA or NYSTA imposed or threatened to impose sanctions or punishment on any of its members who accepted employment or remained employed by the school district. Additionally, the court agreed that "the constitutionally protected right of free expression should not be curtailed unless it was demonstrated that the exercise of the right was accompanied by intentional falsity or overbearing tactics which so far disturbed the balance between the opposing parties that it could not be restored by the response of the lawful means open to the one attacked." Since the association's actions did not prevent the school district from discharging its educational functions, the lower court decision was overturned.

According to the minority opinion, the association had violated the Taylor Law by urging teachers to refuse to sign new contracts because their refusal constituted a collective action similiar to an illegal strike. Additionally, the court pointed out that the advisory directive was threatening since its purport was to "stay away from the school district or suffer the consequence of being considered an unprofessional teacher by your fellows, your future superiors and your association." (Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 3, Town of Brookhaven, Respondent, et al. v. National Education Association of the United States et al., New York Court of Appeals, July 7, 1972.)

• • •

FEDERAL

Constitutionality of Employee Discipline Law Remanded For Hearing

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia remanded a case to the District Court for a hearing questioning the constitutionality of certain laws and regulations governing the disciplining of federal employees. The American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) brought the suit which had previously been dismissed by a lower court for failure to exhaust administrative remedies.

The union contended that the statute, 5 U. S. C. 7501, by which federal employees may be suspended without pay is unconstitutional because under the statute, agencies may refuse a hearing to employees threatened with discipline. Additionally, the union's suit challenged Civil Service Commission (CSC) regulations and disciplinary regulations of the Bureau of Customs.

The suit was brought as a result of an agency's refusal to accept two employees' promotion bids because of previous disciplinary suspension actions against their records. The employees and their union sued in district court seeking to have the statute and regulations declared unconstitutional, to have any reference to the suspensions stricken from the employees records, and to have the applications for promotion immediately processed.

Having its motion for a three-judge court denied by the district court, the union sought a writ of mandamus from the appellate court to overturn the denial. The appeals court denied the request for mandamus, stipulating that what the parties were seeking was equitable rather than injunctive releif. Thus, the three-judge court was unwarranted. A rehearing in the lower court saw the government's motion to dismiss upheld on the grounds that the employees failed to exhaust administrative remedies. However, the appeals court reversed this holding.

The appellate indicated that courts have allowed exceptions to the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine when it appeared that to exhaust these remedies would be futile, pointing out that in this case there was no chance that appellate review by the CSC would have reversed the Bureau of Customs on the merits.

The appeals court ruled that the district court erred in dismissing this action and remanded the case for hearing on the merits of the appellant's constitutional claim.

A dissenting opinion held that in this case no exception to the exhaustion doctrine should be applied, and denied the contention that the CSC would not have reviewed the Bureau of Customs decision on the merits. Further, the dissent held that the right to notice, an opportunity to reply in writing, and the right to be represented by counsel, as required by 5 U.S.C. 7501, are "not necessarily a denial of due process." The dissent further found the employees' suspensions reasonable and proper. (American Federation of Government Employees v. Vernon D. Acree, Commissioner of Customs, et al., United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, February 21, 1973.)

Board Findings and Rulings

MICHIGAN

Public Employee's Discharge for Failure to Pay Agency Fee Discriminatory

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) ruled that a public employee's discharge for failure to pay an agency shop fee was discriminatory, since the fee did not relate to actual bargaining unit representation costs.

A carpenter, represented by the Greater Detroit Building Trades Council, was fined by the Carpenters District Council for "unappropriate" conduct while working for the Detroit Board of Education. The employee was subsequently suspended from the union for failure to pay the fine, and at the union's request, the employee was discharged by the school board for failing to pay an agency shop fee since his suspension from the union. The school board subsequently recalled the employee to work.

The MERC cited Oakland County Sheriff in which it determined that an agency shop fee was a proper form of union security, provided the fee equalled regularly scheduled dues. However, the State Supreme Court found this ruling erroneous in Smigel v. Southgate Community School District, wherein it decided that the agency shop fee had to relate to the actual cost of representation of the bargaining unit.

In this case the MERC found the agency shop fee unrelated to the cost of representation, but identical to regular dues.

Accordingly, the MERC ruled the discharge discriminatory, contrary to the Public Employment Relations Act; MERC ordered back pay plus interest (Matter of Detroit Board of Education and Albert Mozdzen, Greater Detroit Building Trades Council, Intervenor, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, Labor Relations Division, May 31, 1973.)

Bargaining Unit Petitioned for Denied as Arbitrary and Inappropriate for Collective Bargaining

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission dismissed a petition filed by the Benevolent Order Of Guides in Extremis (BOOGIE) seeking a unit limited to approximately 32 of approximately 4,000 students employed by the University of Michigan Board of Regents.

The petitioners were employed by the Counseling Services of the University of Michigan under the Vice-President of Student Services. They man telephones on a 24-hour basis to "answer any and all questions by the student body" and then refer students to various university agencies for assistance. Student employees not included in the petition also counsel students but are employed by other university services and deal with student problems related to particular services. However, although student employees work in different departments, all student salaries are determined by the Temporary Employment Office of the university before hiring, and all students are subject to the Standard Practice Guide for Temporary Employees.

In making its determination the Commission referred to the case, Wayne State University Board of Governors, in which it ruled that a unit of student assistants and technicians was inappropriate because it was a fragmentary part of a larger unit of all student assistants. The Commission compared the student job programs at Wayne State with those at the University of Michigan, noted the similarity, and concluded that the principles established in the Wayne State case were applicable.

The Commission also held that though the student-employees were situated in different units, each with its own supervision, this was not sufficient evidence to warrant a fragmentary unit. Further, the unit petitioned for would not contain enough members to form a traditional departmental unit since the duties performed by this group of employees were not sufficiently unique and distinct from those of employees in other departments. The Commission concluded that the unit petitioned for was an arbitrary grouping of employees inappropriate for collective bargaining purposes and therefore, dismissed the petition. (In the Matter of The Regents of the University of Michigan, Employer, and Benevolent Order of Guides In Extremis (BOOGIE), Petitioner, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, March 29, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Principals Who are Board Negotiators And Have No Agent Are Managers

Principals who bargain for a school district and are not represented in negotiations are managerial under the 1971 amendments to the Taylor Law. So ruling, the New York Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) found in the consolidated appeals of the Hempstead and Copiague school districts that principals and assistant principals in the former are managerial while principals in the latter are nonmanagerial.

Arguing for managerial status of principals, the Hempstead school district alleged that the Taylor Law falls short of mandating preservation of representation rights for principals. Therefore, they can be designated managerial whenever they formulate policy or have a significant role in employee relations. The district also argued that principals are the only representatives of the board in the school building, their duties, including the day-to-day administration of the educational and personnel program, are managerial, and unless principals are found managerial, the board "is defenseless if teacher militancy should develop at a specific school."

Follwoing examination of considered amendments and legislators' remarks on their intent regarding managerial employees under the Taylor Law, PERB declared that as amended the law stresses that existing units of principals or other school administrators who do not formulate policy or have a significant role in employee relations should not be destroyed. PERB said that from its study of the record it is persuaded that "where no negotiating unit has previously existed, the legislative intent is that we be less severe in evaluating a school board's application to have such employees designated as managerial."

Because Copiague principals belonged to no recognized bargaining unit and served on the school district's negotiating committee, PERB determined that they were managers and granted the Copiague school board's application to classify its principals managerial. However, PERB dismissed Hempstead's application on the grounds that its principals belong to a recognized bargaining unit and their duties are not managerial (Matter of Copiague Public Schools and Matter of Hempstead Public Schools, New York Public Employment Relations Board, January 3, 1973.)

[Editor's Note: As a yardstick for determining managerial and/or supervisory status PERB uses criteria contained in a private sector study, "Status of First-Level Supervisors," Bureau of National Affairs, Survey No. 95, November 1971.]

PENNSYLVANIA

PERA Included in School Laws of Commonwealth

Finding an arbitrator's award consistent with the provisions of the Public Employee Relations Act and not violative of the Public School Code, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the Freeport Area School District must abide by the arbitrator's decision and discharge a teacher if she continues to refuse to pay dues to the Freeport Education Association.

The school district refused to fire the teacher subsequent to the arbitrator's decision, contending that such action would violate the Public School Code which expounds causes for discharge and does not include among them refusal to pay dues to the bargaining organization. Additionally, the district contended that enforcement of the decision would cause it to amend or repeal the code.

The Board pointed out that Pennsylvania courts had ruled that the legislature intended for school laws "to include legislation not specifically in the Public School Code which affect education," and, "there can be no doubt that the Public Employees Act affects education since it defines 'public employers' to include school districts, 'public employees' to include teachers at public schools." Further, the district's contention that acceptance of the arbitrator's award would force amendment or repeal of the school code failed to take into account the differences in the subject matter of the two statutes which are reconcilable and harmonious in light of the distinct purpose of each.

On the basis of Section 705 of PERA which states that failure to pay maintenance of membership dues is cause for dismissal and the school code rule which states that defiance of any school laws of the Commonwealth is adequate reason for discharge, the Board ordered the school board to abide by the arbitrator's decision. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Freeport Area School District, June 11, 1973.)

Insistence on Third-Party Presence at Negotiation Sessions Constitutes Unlawful Refusal to Bargain

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that a public employer violated Section 1201, 1, 5 of the Public Employee Relations Act by insisting on the presence of the press at collective bargaining sessions.

The PLRB noted the absence of any language in the agreement regarding the presence of a third party at negotiations.

Citing similar decisions the Board noted that in Basset v. Braddock, the Florida Supreme Court decided that a state statute did not include negotiation sessions although all other meetings of any board or state agency were to be open to the public. The court ruled that the public's right to attend a meeting involving debate and adoption of negotiation matters was sufficient, and that it would jeopardize the constitutional right of employees to bargain collectively by applying the law to negotiations.

Also, in the matter of Mayor Samuel E. Zoll, the Massachusetts Labor Relations Board, following the rationale of the NLRB, decided that third-party presence at negotiations was a nonmandatory matter for bargaining and that one party could not impose such presence on the other. So doing, violated good faith bargaining and interfered with the employees' right to bargain through their representative.

Concluding, the PLRB decided that in this case and the imposition of a third party at the negotiation table constituted a refusal to bargain. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Board of School Directors of the Bethlehem Area School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, April 11, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Teachers' Assignment to 5-Minute "Door" Duty in Violation of Contract

An arbitrator ordered the Madison Joint School District to reimburse teachers for their required 5-minute door duty during the lunch period. He found that the school district violated its agreement with the Madison Teachers, Inc., when it assigned teachers to door duty without previous discussion with the MIT and without compensation.

At the beginning of the 1972-73 school year, a school principal announced that teachers would be required to be at the school doors 5 minutes before classes resumed after lunch in order to organize the pupils' orderly entry into the building. Following this announcement the teachers association filed a grievance alleging that the door duty violated duty-free lunch and playground supervision clauses of the parties' negotiated agreement.

The district contended that the teachers' assignment could not be considered playground supervision, and that because of budget cuts, the principal had no alternative but to require teachers to assist with lunch-time supervision. The principal also stated that the pupils' lunch period could be considered a scheduled school activity and requiring professional supervision.

The association contended that the noon lunch period was not a scheduled school activity, and that the negotiated duty-free lunch clause stipulated that in the event that noncertificated personnel were unavailable to fill these positions (in this case because of budget cuts), a teacher-administrator meeting would be held to arrive at a solution; and furthermore that the provision stated that in the event teachers had to be utilized to fill these vacancies, they would be compensated at a special negotiated rate. The principal, according to the association, had ignored this procedure.

The arbitrator found no merit in the idea that the noon lunch period was a scheduled school activity, and considered the lunch door duty as playground supervision. Teachers, even while standing at the doors to the school were responsible for the pupils in the playground, according to the arbitrator, and to forcibly assign teachers this duty violated the negotiated playground supervision clause.

The arbitrator agreed with the association that the principal had neglected to follow procedures for assigning teachers such duties in case of budgetary cuts, and, had the proper meetings been held, other solutions to the problem would have been found.

Considering the present situation, the arbitrator could not see any alternative to utilizing teachers for door duty for the remainder of the school year. Accordingly, the school district was not required to change its plan, but it was ordered to reimburse teachers who had performed the extra duty at the negotiated rate, and to compensate teachers at the same fate for the remainder of the school year.

WERC Rulings Send Grievances to Advisory Arbitration

In two separate rulings, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) held that a school board's refusal to process a grievance and submit to advisory arbitration constituted a prohibited practice under the Municipal Employment Relations Act (MERA). In each case the Commission ruled that collective bargaining agreements had been violated and ordered the respective boards to proceed to arbitration.

o The first case involved the Alma Center Board of Education and the Alma Center United Education Association. Seeking an order directing the board to cease and desist from alleged unlawful actions and to submit a grievance regarding an employee's discharge to advisory arbitration as provided in the parties' collective bargaining agreement, the association contended that the board committed a prohibited practice when it terminated an employee who sought to return to his teaching position upon expiration of an extended leave of absence in violation of the leave clause which guaranteed return.

o In the second case, involving the Melrose-Mindoro Board of Education and the Melrose-Mindoro Education Association, the association alleged that an employee was assigned to duties outside the scope of her certification and was summarily terminated when the appropriate certification could not be obtained. The association contended that the board's refusal to submit the grievance to advisory arbitration was a contract violation, constituting a prohibited practice under the Municipal Employment Relations Act.

The WERC rejected the board's arguments for dismissal in each case including the claims by both school boards that no grievance existed and that the complainants wavied their right to seek a remedy before the Commission since relief had been sought elsewhere.

In the Alma Center case the WERC ruled in favor of the association and ordered the board to submit the grievance to advisory arbitration provided in the parties' 1971-72 collective bargaining agreement.

In the Melrose-Mindoro case the Commission held that the board's refusal to submit the grievance to arbitration violated the parties' 1971-72 agreement, a practice prohibited under the Municipal Employment Relations Act. WERC ordered the board to proceed to advisory arbitration, provided the association waived it right to seek a remedy from WERC and gave notice that it waived the right to file a prohibited practice complaint with the WERC regarding violation of the agreement. (Alma Center United Education Association and Richard Fischer, Complainants, v. Alma Center United School District No. 3 and Board of Education, Respondents, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, February 21, 1973; Melrose-Mindoro Education Association and Phyllis Grams, Complainants, v. Melrose-Mindoro Joint School District No. 1 and Board of Education of Melrose-Mindoro Joint School District No. 1, Respondents, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, February 23, 1973.)

Negotiation Notes

CALIFORNIA

Comprehensive Bargaining Law for Public Employees Proposed

In a recent report, the California Assembly Advisory Council on Public Employee Relations recommended the enactment of a single comprehensive pre-emptive law administered by a neutral three-member board. The proposed law would provide employees with the right to organize, bargain, and strike.

The law would be applicable to all public employees, excluding management and confidential employees, supervisory employees, transit employees, and elected officials, unless the public employer chose to bargain with them. The law would permit local jurisdictions to enact their own employee relations policies, provided such policies complied with the proposed law and are administered by neutral boards.

The proposed three-member board would be chosen by the governor from a list submitted by a panel comprised of the state chief justice, the director of the state conciliation services, and the president of the American Arbitration Association. The board would establish lists of qualified neutrals and appoint them, determine units, conduct elections, adjudicate charges of unfair labor practices, and bring court action to enforce its decisions.

Under the proposed law, public employees would have the right to form and join or not to join employee organizations. The law would allow bargaining on wages, hours, and other terms of employment.

Under the Council's proposal, employee organizations or employers could petition the board for an election to obtain exclusive bargaining rights. Further, any unit approved by the board should be the largest possible deemed appropriate for collective bargaining, with the presumption that professional employees not be included in units with nonprofessionals.

The Council also listed certain acts which would be committed by either the employer or the employee organization as unfair labor practices, and also recommended mandatory bargaining on organizational security clauses limited to maintenance of membership or agency shop. Additionally, the proposed statute stipulates that employers be permitted to check off dues and that agreements may incorporate provisions for binding arbitration of grievances while proscribing lockouts and strikes over grievance disputes.

Bargaining impasses would be resolved through mediation, and if still unresolved, either party could request a fact-finding panel charged with making recommendations within 30 days. These recommendations would be made public if rejected after 10 more days of negotiation, and if the impasse continued, the employee organization before striking, would be required to hold a membership meeting and vote by secret ballot to accept or reject the panel's recommendations; the employer must follow a similar procedure before engaging in a lockout.

Under the proposed statute, if either party rejects the recommendations, the employees would be allowed to strike and the employer to initiate a lockout after giving written notice to the other and to the public before engaging in a job action, and provided that five days elapsed from the time the notice was given. The recommendations also suggest that any party at interest should be allowed to initiate court proceedings to prevent a job action.

The proposed statute would prohibit courts from issuing injunctions unless evidence showed that a strike or lockout imminently threatened public health or safety, and if the court so found, the parties would be ordered to accept the panel's recommendations. The proposal stipulates that the panel's recommendations have no effect on the court's decision, and if made binding by court order, the recommendations be subject to superior court review limited to state law.

(See TEXT section for reprint of pertinent sections.)

WASHINGTON

State Employees May Negotiate Agency Shop Agreements

Under two bills enacted by the Washington State Legislature and signed by the governor, state classified employees may negotiate agency shop agreements, and police and firemen's bargaining disputes will be subject to mandatory binding arbitration.

The bill amending the civil service law and the state bargaining law permitting agency shop for classified employees in the university system, stipulates that the director of the State Personnel Board shall hold an election to determine whether to require membership in an organization representing the certified bargaining unit as a condition of employment. Further, upon petition of 30 percent of the members, the director shall hold an election once each 12-month period after the expiration of 12 months following the original election, to decide whether a majority would rescind agency shops as a condition of employment.

The clause calls for monthly or periodic dues, absent initiation, reinstatement, and other fines or fees. Additionally, nonmembers must pay an amount equal to regular union dues, less union sponsored insurance programs, and are entitled to the same representation rights as union members.

The measure establishing compulsory arbitration of police and firemen's bargaining disputes amends the local government employee bargaining law by acknowledging the existence of public policy barring strikes by uniformed personnel as a means to settle labor disputes.

The amendments specify that bargaining between employers and uniformed personnel begin five months before the submission date. An impasse will be declared if no agreement is reached in 45 days and either party may submit the matters to arbitration. After 10 days, a fact-finding panel is established and renders its findings within 30 days.

If no agreement is reached 45 days after mediation and fact-finding, the parties are to establish an arbitration panel. The panel will hold hearings, administer oaths, and require the attendance of witnesses and the production of materials necessary to determine the issues. Further, an arbitration panel may serve subpoenas and secure contempt orders.

The amendments mandate that panels consider additional standards for reaching decisions, e.g., the employer's legal authority; comparisons of wages, hours, and fringe benefits; the Consumer Price Index; and other factors associated with determining wages, hours, and terms of employment.

The bill incorporates a no-strike clause which includes superior court enforcement and court-imposed fines on an organization for defiance of an enforcement order. Further, the employer is subject to the same court enforcement procedure.

FEDERAL

Legality Of Patronage System In State Government Questioned

In a case involving the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees and the Illinois Secretary of State, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit dismissed a district court's summary judgment in favor of the Secretary. The class action suit, filed by the AFSCME, charged the Secretary with dismissing 1,940 employees on the basis of their political affiliation. The court of appeals held that the lower court had not considered several factual questions prior to the issuance of the summary judgment. The case was remanded to the lower court for consideration of the facts involved and also to review whether the suit could be maintained as a class action.

Soon after his appointment to fill the unexpired term of the former Secretary of State, the incumbent Secretary discharged 1,940 employees without reason. The AFSCME, representing the non-civil-service employees, filed a class action suit holding that the employees were discharged for refusing to change their political affiliation to that of the present Secretary. In response, the Secretary requested a motion for summary judgment, asserting that the discharges had resulted from "widespread inefficency and confusion." Following the Secretary's statement, the terminated employees filed 94 affidavits attesting their satisfactory job performance and the political motivation of the discharges. In addition, these employees requested interrogatories from the Secretary. Prior to receiving responses to the interrogatories, the district court granted the summary judgment to the Secretary. In supporting the Secretary's petition, the lower court ruled that the employees' affidavits were insufficient under law, and that the responses to the interrogatories were irrelevant.

As issues of fact were in dispute, the court of appeals stated that the case could not be settled with a summary judgment, and indicated that procedural requirements for issuing judgments, specifically those granting the opposing party the right to gather information concerning the factual basis for the motion, had not been met. The summary judgment, therefore, had been improperly issued.

Although the subject of the case was political, the appeals court felt that the case did not involve a political question and was not subject to political consideration. The court, in ruling on the case, stated that it was not attempting to impose a civil service system on the state but was intervening in a case where an employee was discharged for an "impermissible reason." Arguments based on the tradition of the spoils system in the American government were dismissed, as the main issue, according to the court, was whether employees' rights guaranteed by the First Amendment were illegally curtailed owing to political affiliation.

The court presented several justifications for infringing on First Amendment rights. Considering whether employees who accepted patronage jobs waived their right to question their termination, the court held that this was a factual question, and reiterated that it was an insufficient basis for issuing a summary judgment. The court also felt that political affiliation, as a criterion for certain governmental positions was a factual question, and added that in light of the types of positions involved in the case (e.g., janitors, elevator operators), political affiliation was hardly a relevant criterion. Moreover, basing employment on political affiliation might reduce the efficiency of the government's operation more than recognizing employees' rights. The most relevant justification was that broad powers for hiring and firing personnel were necessary for the efficient administration, especially in view of the Secretary's claims of inefficiency and confusion. However, this justification also involved a factual question as the plaintiffs' testimony to their satisfactory job performance was in direct conflict with the Secretary's claims.

The court stated that state and federal governments should have broad administrative powers, but that these powers should be more restricted than those of private employers, with some loss of efficiency necessary to protect individual liberties.

In conclusion the court stated that the district court erred in not allowing the AFSCME to present its case, and reversed the lower court's motion for summary judgment, remanding the case to the lower court for consideration of the factual questions involved and for determination of whether the suit was validly a class action. (Illinois State Employees Union, Council 34, AFSCME v. John W. Lewis, Secretary of State of the State of Illinois, U.S. Court of Appeals of the Seventh Circuit, September 18, 1972.)

Major Collective Bargaining Settlements, First Half of 1973

A report released by the United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics revealed that during the first six months of 1973, first year wage-rate increases averaged 5.8 percent, as compared with the 7.0 percent average increase during 1972. The report includes only those settlements which were reached in the first half of 1973, excluding settlements that were reached but not approved by stabilization agencies. These settlements will be included in the figures for the period in which they were approved.

Wage-rate increases over the duration of the contract averaged 5.3 percent; during the previous year the average wage rate increase was 6.4 percent. Considering both fringe benefits and wages, the average first year adjustment was 7.5 percent during the first half of 1973, in contrast to an 8.4 percent average gain in 1972. The durations of contracts negotiated were shorter than in previous years. The average length of early 1973 settlements was 27 months, previously the average duration of these contracts was 33½ months.

During the early part of 1973, approximately one out of every five American workers was a union member, and one out of every nine workers was covered by a collective bargaining agreement.

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX–JUNE 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.7 percent in June, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. Higher prices for food, gasoline and fuel oil, and household services were responsible for about three-fourths of the rise in the CPI. The June index was 132.4 (1967=100), 5.9 percent above a year ago.

After seasonal adjustment, the June increase was 0.6 percent. The index for food rose 0.9 percent and nonfood commodities increased 0.5 percent after seasonal adjustment. The services index increased 0.4 percent.

The June index is based largely on prices collected before the price freeze on June 13.

For the quarter ended in June, the CPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.4 percent compared with 8.6 percent in the quarter ended in March. This change was due to a slower rate of increase in the food index; the seasonally adjusted annual rate of 14.7 percent in the 3 months ended in June was about half the 28.6 percent rate in the quarter ended in March. The index for nonfood commodities, on the other hand, increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.4 percent from March to June,

Special Reports

LENGTH OF THE SCHOOL DAY FOR TEACHERS

Negotiated provisions regarding the length of the classroom teacher's work day were found in 53.6 percent of 1,529 agreements covered by the NEA Research survey of written negotiation agreements in 1970-71. A random sample of agreements, one out of every five (174) with at least one from each state having a negotiated agreement, was selected for further analysis.

The following analysis illustrates the variety of negotiated terminology relative to the length of the work day, and shows the lack of uniformity and the potential confusion which may result in interpreting the negotiated intent of these provisions. The confusion lies not with the choice of words or phrases, but rather with their meaning and intent which are vaguely if at all stated.

The analysis revealed five often used phrases: "school day" (39.1), "work day" (31.0), "teaching hours" (15.5), "teaching day" and "duty day" (6.3). Generally, "hours of work" for teachers within a school day is difficult to determine and complicated by the various phrases used to describe the component parts of a teacher's work day, such as, instruction time, pupil supervision, preparation periods, lunch periods, and extracurricular activities time. The length of day for the purposes of this article is the contractual expressions of the teacher's hours of work, expressed as hours per day, hours per week, instructional time, student contact hours, report-in and dismissal times, or the structured schedules for individual schools or entire districts.

The aforementioned five terms found in contracts to express the time spent on instructional and/or supervisory activities obfuscate the question of how much on-site (building) time a teacher devotes to student contact, versus how much total time is spent on-site, including duty-free time and time spent on extracurricular activities, compensation for which is separate from the salary schedule and may, therefore, be categorized as akin to overtime (non-classroom compensation).

The over-all catch phrase, "school day," is all encompassing, denoting the time from the opening of the school building to the closing of the building, regardless of when a teacher actually reports in and out, how much time he devotes to instruction, duty-free time, or extracurricular supervision. A more nearly accurate term designating that portion of the day spent on-site is "duty day" since it implies the time from report-in to dismissal. Although such a designation does not correspond to the length of the school day, it neither acequately differentiates between but includes those hours engaged in classroom instruction/supervision, and duty-free time, and sometimes extracurricular instruction. Of the 130 contracts that mentioned lunch as a duty-free period, only six excluded it from the total work-day hours.

The phrase, "teaching hours," most adequately expresses that work time spent on-site involved in student instruction/supervision, exclusive of home room duty, reporting and dismissal before and after pupil arrival and departure, duty-free lunch, and extracurricular instruction. An alternate form of conveying this same concept is "teaching load," often found apart from the work day provision, but an integral part of the work day provision.

TABLE 1.—MEASURES OF THE SCHOOL DAY FOR TEACHERS, 174 PROVISIONS

Measures	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Hours per day	57	32.8
Starting and dismissal time	70	40.2
Time reporting before and remaining after pupil day	32	18.4
Hours per week	7	4.0
Other	8	4.6
TOTAL SAMPLE OF PROVISIONS	174	100.0

To inject into a negotiated contract a nebulous, all-embracing term that represents a time frame for classroom instruction/supervision heterogeneous with the term used, i.e., "school day," to mean only that time spent in classroom instruction/supervision exclusive of duty-free time and not corresponding to the true meaning of the term

TABLE 2.–LENGTH OF SCHOOL DAY FOR TEACHERS IN PROVISIONS SPECIFYING NUMBER OF HOURS PER DAY[a]

Length of day[b]	For teachers of all grade levels		For elementary-school teachers		For Secondary-school teachers
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
5 hours to 5 hours, 29 minutes	1	1.8	...	...	...	...
5 hours, 30 minutes to 5 hours, 59 minutes	...	...	2	3.5	...	...
6 hours to 6 hours, 29 minutes	...	...	...	...	...	...
6 hours, 30 minutes to 6 hours, 59 minutes	7	12.3	8	14.0	5	8.8
7 hours to 7 hours, 29 minutes	24	42.1	2	3.5	6	10.5
7 hours, 30 minutes to 7 hours, 59 minutes	8	14.0	1	1.8	...	...
8 hours or more	5	2.9	1	0.6	1	0.6
TOTAL	45	78.9	14	24.6	12	21.1
Median	7 hrs., 15 min.		6 hrs., 50 min.		7 hrs., 10 min.

[a]The total number of provisions analyzed was 57; however, some provisions specified length of school day for more than one group teachers by grade level.
[b]Includes duty-free lunch periods.

used, opens the association to a host of grievances regarding interpretation relative to the actual length of the work day and even to what constitutes "duty-free" time.*

Ideally use of the term "work day" to mean those hours spent on site that are devoted to instruction/supervision and including duty-free lunch and preparation periods would alleviate many of the interpretation disputes. However, such a negotiated term should clearly spell out the actual time devoted to student instruction/supervision and duty-free time within fixed terminal points, and exclusive of nonclassroom instruction/supervision.

In the majority of contracts, determining the actual hours per day teachers were expected to be on duty engaged in classroom activity was difficult as some contracts stipulated that preparation time and/or lunch periods were included in or excluded from the total time, without specifying the amount of time, daily or weekly, allocated to each activity. Other contracts did not indicate either the time allotted or how these two periods were to be categorized. Nevertheless, an attempt has been made to exclude these duty-free times from the actual student-contact hours in a teacher's day.

Editor's Note:* On file are over 151 reported grievances from 1970-73 regarding some component of the work day, be it on the subject of length, teaching load, preparation periods, using teachers as substitutes during duty free time, etc. These are only a minute number of the grievances that have been collected and reported. Note the case discussion on page 9.

As shown in Table 1, 4 provisions in 10 specified starting and dismissal times; 3 in 10 specified the number of hours per day; and 2 in 10 reporting before and after the pupils' day. Nearly one-third of the provisions designated the length of all grade levels in terms of hours per day. Of these provisions, the length of the day ranged from 5 to 8 hours or more. However, those provisions that specified 8 hours or more stated that one or two hours were for the teachers to use for lunch, preparation, recreation, or professional activities. Student-contact hours in these provisions usually totaled 5 to 6 hours, e.g.,

> Teachers shall normally be on duty thirty (30) minutes before classes begin, and shall normally remain on duty until they have completed their professional duties, but in no event shall they leave the school prior to fifteen (15) minutes after the close of the scheduled school day.
>
> The length of the school day for all elementary schools shall normally be five and one-half (5½) hours per day, excluding the lunch period.
>
> The length of the school day for all secondary schools shall normally be six and three-quarter (6¾) hours per day, including one class period for lunch. Secondary schools shall normally be in session from 8:45 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.
>
> [Columbus, Ohio]

Where the provision applied to all teachers regardless of grade, the median school day was 7 hours and 15 minutes; for provisions differentiating between grade levels, the median was 6 hours and 50 minutes for elementary grades, and 7 hours and 10 minutes for teachers of secondary grades. Lunch periods are included (Note Table 2.).

Elementary Schools - The length of the school day in the elementary schools shall not exceed six hours and forty minutes, including lunch.

Secondary Schools - The length of the school day in the secondary schools shall not exceed seven hours and fifteen minutes, including lunch.

[Middle Country Cen. Sch. Dist. No. 11
Centereach, New York]

The school day for teachers of the Dickinson Public School District will normally be from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Variations to this time schedule will be set for school buildings located outside the City of Dickinson for the purpose of handling busing situations. All teachers will be required to be at school at 8:00 a.m. and required to remain at school until 4:00 p.m.

During these eight hours, teachers will be required to have six hours of assigned duty and two hours of unassigned responsibility.

During the two hours of unassigned responsibility, teachers will take time out for their noon lunch. In the average day this will allow each teacher the equivalent of one hour for lunch and one hour for preparation or relaxation.

[Dickinson, North Dakota]

The official length of the teacher's school day shall not exceed six and three-quarters (6 and ¾) hours. The official length of the teacher's school day shall be defined as the length of time between the time the teacher is required to report and the time he is free to leave the school property for the day.

[Cumberland Sch. Dist.
Ashton, Rhode Island]

Only 4 provisions in 10 designated a starting and ending time for teachers of all grade levels, and displayed a wide variety of time schedules, but none of them scheduled a starting time earlier than 7:30 a.m. or an ending time later than 4:00 p.m., e.g.,

The regular school day for teachers will be from 7:45 A.M. to 3:40 P.M.

[Warwick, New Jersey]

TABLE 3.—AMOUNT OF TIME TEACHERS ARE REQUIRED TO BE ON DUTY, 32 PROVISIONS SPECIFYING RELATION OF TEACHERS' WORK DAY IN RELATION TO PUPILS' DAY

Scheduled time[a]	For teachers of all grades		For elementary-school teachers		For secondary-school teachers
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
BEFORE CLASSES
10 minutes	...	...	...	...	1	3.1
15 minutes	18	56.3	2	6.3	3	9.4
20 minutes	6	18.8	...	...	...	...
30 minutes	6	18.8	2	6.3	...	...
40 minutes	...	...	1	3.1	...	...
AFTER CLASSES
15 minutes	6	18.8	...	...	2	6.3
20 minutes	5	15.6	1	3.1	...	...
30 minutes	13	40.6	3	9.4	...	...
40 minutes	...	...	...	...	1	3.1
45 minutes	1	3.1	...	...	1	3.1
TOTAL	32	100.0

[a]Excludes those provisions giving a before and after time included in the designated hours per day and those specifying starting and ending time.

The basic school day for all teaching personnel, including librarians and counselors, shall be from eight o' clock in the morning until four o' clock in the afternoon.

[East Lansing, Michigan]

The working day shall be from 8:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. for teachers and from 8:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. for students in all the schools

[Posen-Robbins Sch. Dist. 143
Posen, Illinois]

The amount of time that a teacher is required to be on duty before or after the regular pupil day was designated in one-fifth of the provisions. Of these provisions, 5 of every 10 stipulated that teachers be in attendance at least 15 minutes before class time. Yet, only 4 out of 10 provisions negotiated a dismissal time for teachers of all grade levels of at least 30 minutes after the pupil day.

All teachers in a building are to be in their homerooms a minimum of fifteen (15) minutes before school begins unless on special duty, and remain a minimum of thirty minutes after pupil dismissal.

[Old Saybrook, Connecticut]

The normal school day shall be seven (7) hours and five (5) minutes at all grade levels which would provide for six (6) hours and twenty (20) minutes of formal school time including lunch and recess periods. This allows for the required presence of teachers fifteen(15) minutes before classes convene and thirty (30) minutes after the completion of classes.

[Lunenburg, Massachusetts]

The following are sample provisions on the length of the work day for teachers. These are sample provisions only, and are not to be regarded as exemplary.

TEACHING HOURS

In elementary schools the teachers' normal workday shall be divided into the following segments:

Teacher supervision
Teacher Planning - 35 minutes at beginning of day.*
Teacher-pupil contact time - 5 hours, 30 minutes.
Teacher lunch - 70 minutes duty free
Pupil Conferences 0 If parents request individual conferences regarding students and the parents are unable to meet during the normal day, the teacher will be available for individual conferences outside the above time.

Total duty time shall not exceed 6 hours 35 minutes.

*Scheduled library time may be used as additional planning time at the option of the teacher.

In schools where lunch programs are provided, teachers (except at Gier Park) will have a 45-minute lunch period.

In senior high schools the teachers' normal workday shall be divided into the following segments:

Vocational teacher assignments shall be two three hour blocks without homeroom or supervision assignments during school hours.
Teacher-pupil contact time shall include five periods of 50 or 55 minutes duration.
Teacher planning.
Teacher lunch of one period duty free.
Teacher supervision, pupil conferences.
A homeroom period not to exceed 15 minutes except in extenuating circumstances.

Total duty time shall not exceed 6 hours and 55 minutes.

In junior high schools the teacher's normal workday shall be divided into the following segments:

Teacher-pupil contact time shall include five periods of 50 or 55 minutes duration.
Teacher planning of one period duration.
Teacher lunch of 23 minutes duty free.
Teacher supervision and pupil conferences.
An optional homeroom period not to exceed 15 minutes except in extenuating circumstances.

Total duty time shall not exceed 6 hours and 37 minutes.

[Lansing, Michigan]

Length of School Day

The length of the school day shall remain as it is at present. The students' day in the elementary schools, exclusive of kindergarten, begins at 8:45 A.M. and ends at 2:45 P.M. The students' formal school day in the secondary schools begins at 8:15 A.M. and ends at 2:45 P.M. While the students' formal school day in the secondary schools ends at 2:45 P.M., it is understood by the Board, the Administration, and the Association, that the period from 2:45 P.M. to 3:15 P.M. may be utilized by secondary school students for individual help as provided by members of the instructional staffs of the secondary schools.

The teachers' day in the elementary schools begins at 8:15 A.M. and ends at 3:15 P.M. In the secondary schools, the teachers' day begins at 8:00 A.M. and ends at 3:15 P.M.

[Port Washington, New York]

The length of the school day shall not exceed six (6) hours and fifty- (50) minutes for all levels of teachers except as required by state law or by mutual agreement of the Somerset Teachers' Association and Somerset School Committee.

[Somerset, Massachusetts]

* * *

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Hopkinton, Massachusetts

Between Hopkinton School Committee and Hopkinton Teachers Association, effective September 1, 1973, to September 1, 1975. Approximately 84 certificated professional employees including all classroom teachers, guidance counselors, librarians, art and music supervisors, department heads, and excluding all other professional and nonprofessional employees. Provision for renegotiation no later than September 15 of the calendar year preceeding expiration of this agreement.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,800 to $12,948, 11 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $13,494 maximum; M.A., $8,892 to $14,040, 11 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $14,586 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,132 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $15,678 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $16,224 maximum. (1974-75) B.A., $8,200 to $13,612, 11 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $14,186 maximum; M.A., $9,348 to $14,760, 11 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $15,334 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15, 908 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $16,482 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $17,056 maximum; automatic yearly salary step increases the first two years for teachers entering the system at the minimum salary, thereafter two increases granted after completion of an approved course, one increase the September following completion of the course and the second, the subsequent September; teachers who have been at step 10 a minimum of two years or have been at step 10 one year and in the system nine years are eligible for longevity bonuses of $400.

DIFFERENTIALS: Faculty manager of athletics, $800 to $1,100 total; audiovisual, $1,200 total; student council, $500; class advisor, junior, senior, driver education (per 30-hour course), $450; class advisor, freshman, sophomore, junior high, gymnastics, show (per show), play (per play), $400; year book, $300; key club, girls club, $275; student program and assemblies coordination, school newspaper, adult education (per semester), $250; art club, elementary, cheerleader advisor, $200; school literary magazine, $100; school newsletter (per issue), $50; minimum salary for athletic coaches based on student participation, responsibility, time period per sport, and public interest; department heads remunerated at the rate of 8 percent of the minimum B.A. salary the first year and thereafter at 10 percent, however, if a department has more than 6 members, percentages will be increased 2 percentage points; acting department heads remunerated at same rate as department head.

INSURANCE: Board pays the maximum percentage allowed by law for Blue Cross/Blue Shield, individual or family coverage; a $2,000 term life insurance plan; 50 percent of the annual insurance premium for long-term disability insurance; tax-sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; released time for contract negotiation; not more than 5 representatives released for negotiation preparation, cost of substitutes paid by association; released time for association representative on professional rights and responsibilities committee to investigate a grievance or attend a grievance meeting; teachers serving as witnesses also granted released time; three teachers designated by the association will be granted unpaid leaves of absence for up to one year to engage in association activities; upon return the teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule step he would have achieved if he had not been absent; the association has the right to use school buildings at reasonable times for meetings, the right to use athletic facilities without cost one evening each week when school is in session; use of bulletin board in faculty lounge of each school; no teacher will be prevented from wearing pins or other identification of membership in any organization.

OTHER: Teacher agreeing to serve as substitute during his nonteaching time shall be compensated at $9 for each period substituted; $.10 per mile for all interschool driving in fulfillment of assignments; full credit for prior teaching experience plus 2 years for military experience; credit for Peace Corps work not to exceed 2 years, will be given upon initial employment.

LEAVES: Ten days' paid leave granted for military reserve obligations less difference between regular pay and military pay; sabbatical leave after 5 years' service at 66 2/3 of regular salary for no more than 2 teachers; sick days based on allowable absences (noncumulative) at 15 days the first year and an additional 15 days for each year up to 180 days per year allowed after 12 years, absences in excess of 5 successive days may require a doctor's statement; maximum of 5 days granted for death or serious illness of a relative; leave of absence up to 2 years for participants in either Peace Corps or teacher exchange program, upon return such teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent; teacher granted military leave shall be placed, upon return, on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved had he not been absent, up to a maximum of 2 years; teachers shall be granted maternity leave without compensation upon request until the following September, or for 90 days following delivery, whichever is greater, if such teacher works more than 90 days of the year, she will continue on the salary schedule at the level she would have achieved had she not been absent; leave of absence without pay or increment up to one year for the purpose of caring for a sick member in the immediate family; leave of absence without pay or increment up to 2 years to campaign for or serve in a public office; leave of absence without pay for up to one year for health reasons after 5 years of continuous employment; leave of absence without pay until recovery from illness for tenure teachers whose illness extends beyond the period compensated; teachers returning from leaves of absences shall be granted the same benefits and positions or substantially equivalent positions as they had when their absence commenced.

INSTRUCTION: Teachers of grades 7 and 8 academic subjects, and teachers of English, mathematics, social studies, languages, and business education in grades 9 through 12 will not be assigned more than 25 instructional nor more than 30 student supervision periods per week; science teachers in grades 9 through 12 will not be assigned more than 28 periods per week of laboratory and lecture nor more than 29 periods per week of laboratory, lecture, and study halls; secondary teachers of home economics, industrial arts, boys' physical education, or girls' physical education will not be assigned more than 30 periods per week of instruction and supervision; disagreements over exceptions to the foregoing are subject to the grievance procedure; duty-free lunch period equal to the student lunch period; the school committee will try to insure that class size is the most effective for both teacher and pupil; association may establish an Educational Improvement Committee to discuss with the superintendent proposals for educational improvements; the Educational Improvement Committee may request to be included on the school committee's agenda if no satisfaction is received within 90 days of submission of its proposals.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with arbitration; right to review personnel file upon written request along with association representative, with the right to submit a written answer to any derogatory material; complaints made against a teacher by any parent, student, or other person will be promptly called to the teacher's attention; any teacher disciplined above the level of superintendent is entitled to have an association representative present; "no teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or any professional advantage without just cause"; the Committee will pay reasonable expenses for meals, lodging, and transportation incurred during attendance at workshops, seminars, conferences, or other professional improvement sessions approved by principal; tuition reimbursement up to $420 per annum; teachers will not be required to perform health examinations, collect money, perform custodial duties, or transport pupils; all evaluations to be conducted with full knowledge of the teacher; teachers to be given copy of any formal evaluation after discussing it with their superior; vacancies will be publicized by means of notice placed on association bulletin board; information concerning vacancies or new professional positions during the summer months will be sent to teachers requesting such information; association to be notified of any changes in qualifications and the reasons therefor set forth for a particular position; disagreement over the necessity for such change is subject to grievance and arbitration; in filling vacancies, preference will be given to teachers currently employed; released time at noon first Wednesdays of October through May for staff meetings, inservice training, departmental meetings, curriculum development, parental conferences, and any other activity deemed appropriate by the superintendent; department heads should have as few administrative responsibilities as possible; all cases of assault in connection with employment must be reported to superintendent in writing; the committee will provide legal defense for a teacher if criminal or civil proceedings are brought, teacher may request the Committee to furnish legal council to represent him in proceedings against the assailant; if the Committee fails to provide such council and the teacher prevails in the case, the Committee will reimburse the teacher for reasonable council fees; full salary less the amount of workmen's compensation will be paid teacher for absence resulting from personal injury caused by accident or assault occuring in the course of employment; medical costs incurred will also be paid.

* * *

North Hills School District
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania

Between the North Hills Board of Education and the North Hills Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 431 certificated professional employees. Negotiation for a successor contract will begin no later than January 1975.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $8,600 to $13,350, 14 increments; B.A. plus 24 hours, $13,850 maximum; M.A., $9,600 to $14,550, 14 increments; M.A. plus 60 hours, $16,550 maximum; placement on the BA plus 12 and BA plus 24 salary schedules will be based on credits earned after the bachelor's, placement on the M.A. schedule will be determined by the award of a degree regardless of the number of credits; any credits earned after the master's can be applied to the MA plus 15, 30, 45 and 60 salary schedules; verification of academic achievement must be received by September 1 for full-year salary adjustments, verification received by January 31 will be credited to the salary for the remainder of the school year; terminal pay upon retirement after 25 years' service: 1972-73: $500, 1973-74: $600, and 1974-75: $700; longevity increments after 20, 25, and 30 years of service, $200 for teachers with BA and $400 for MA.

DIFFERENTIALS: Extracurricular activities are weighed in units for compensation purposes; prior to staffing, the board and the association shall determine the unit worth of any new activity; monetary values for units are: 1973-74, $57; 1974-75, $58. High School [all figures are for 1972-73] : athletic director (42 units), $2,310; varsity football head (34 units), $1,870; varsity baseball assistant (9 units), $495; girls' varsity basketball head (6 units), $330; girls' varsity tennis head (5 units), $275; band and yearbook editor (10 units), $550; cheerleaders (5 units), $275; newspaper (9 units), $495. Junior High School: faculty manager (2 units), $110; junior high football and 9th grade soccer (7 units), $385; chess club (1.5 units), $82.50; boys' and girls' intramurals, (6 units) $330; weightlifting (2 units), $110; hall patrol and library aides (1 unit), $55. Intermediate School: bowling and dramatics (4 units), $220; ski club (2 units), $110; handbook (5 units), $275. Elementary School: safety patrol (3 units), $165; newspaper (2 units), $110; music coordinator (4 units), $220.

OTHER: Department chairmen: in addition to regular salary, $50 for each teacher supervised with a minimum in 1973-74, $250 and a maximum of $450; the 1974-75 minimum will be $250 and the maximum, $500; hourly rate for teaching summer school or curriculum work is regular annual salary divided by 190 x 6; rate for relinquishing a preparation period is regular annual salary divided by 190 x 7; $.12 per mile for driving students to out-of-school activities, field trips, school district business, or traveling from one school to another in the course of work.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave credited at the beginning of school, unlimited maximum accumulation; 3 days' personal or emergency leave, written notice to be given to supervisor at least two days prior to use, first two days may be taken without a stated reason, third day may be taken only for certain specific reasons; unspecified time for jury duty, appearance as a witness or as a defendant, compensated for at difference between teaching pay and court fees; board determines leave for education conferences and conventions based on educational benefits and available funds; maternity leave for up to 18 months must be requested not later than the fifth month of pregnancy, the starting date of the leave to be determined by the teacher in consultation with her physician and the administration notified at least 30 days prior to leave in order to find a qualified substitute, the teacher may select the date of return as long as it is within 18 months of the start of the leave; the teacher must inform the board at least 30 days prior to returning to allow the board to make the necessary personnel adjustments, a physician's statement must be presented before the teacher resumes duties, and upon returning to work, will be given a position similar to the one previously held, employees on maternity leave may continue their fringe benefits by remitting premiums to the school board.

INSURANCE: Board-paid Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Major Medical shall be provided employees and dependents; board-paid group term life insurance shall be provided in the amount of $12,000 per person, and as of November 1974, it shall be increased to $15,000; during 1973-74 and 1974-75 the board will pay one-half of the monthly premium for disability income protection insurance.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues in seven equal monthly payments; released time for negotiations during the working day when scheduled by the administration and the association, released time for grievance procedures, and meetings related to the administration of the agreement; right of the association to use school buildings (upon notice and at reasonable times) subject only to prior arrangements with other organizations, and to utilize school equipment, bulletin boards, and interschool mail and faculty mail boxes; the board is to provide information relating to negotiations and/or administration of the agreement, copy of the monthly board meeting minutes to be sent to the association president; association representatives to be permitted to announce association meetings during orientation programs; during the school year six association representatives are to be allowed to meet with the superintendent or his designees at least once a month to discuss school problems and administration of the agreement; leave with pay granted for attendance at meetings, conferences, or seminars conducted by the local, state, or national teachers association, (attendance at meetings devoted largely to matters of collective bargaining will not be paid) time allowed for attendance at meetings is 20 days per year with only seven teachers being permitted to attend at one time.

INSTRUCTION: Every effort shall be made to limit secondary teachers to no more than two preparations or two teaching stations per day and not more than three hours of continuous teaching by elementary teachers; one-half hour duty-free lunch period, teachers may leave the building after notifying the office, no elementary or kindergarten teacher may be assigned lunchroom or lunchtime playground duty; secondary teachers shall have one preparation period a day, or at least five periods a week; elementary teachers shall have one continuous 30-minute preparation period per day; school calendar provides for 190 work days in 1973-74 and 1974-75; joint Curriculum and Instruction Committee to be established with four members appointed by the superintendent and four members selected by the association with directors of elementary and secondary education as ex-officio members shall meet at least once a month to make recommendations and suggestions on matters concerning educational policy or procedures and professional employees' inservice programs; student-teacher supervision by agreement of administration and teacher; use of regular teachers as substitutes and depriving them of preparation periods is discouraged, special compensation to be given teachers volunteering to substitute; recommendations for purchase of teaching materials and supplies shall be solicited from employees; duplicating equipment shall be made available to all teachers to prepare instructional materials; association recommendations to the director of business affairs concerning correction and/or improvement of teacher workrooms, lounges, and lavatories must be answered within 30 days; board shall provide adequate parking facilities for all schools.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; right to review evaluation records; evaluation shall be conducted with full knowledge of employee; eavesdropping, audio systems, and other surveillance methods are strictly forbidden; employee shall be given a copy of report prior to any conference to discuss it, no adverse evaluation report will be placed in employee's personnel file without prior discussion, employees will not be required to sign incomplete evaluation forms. Employee is entitled to have an association representative present when he is being disciplined; teachers will be notified of assignments including grade level, subject area, and achievement ability grouping by June 15, after that date teachers will be promptly notified of any changes and consulted; vacancies shall be posted in each building's administrative offices and during the summer months, a copy of each vacancy shall be sent to the association president; requests for transfers are to be made to the director of personnel and to include the reasons for the request, the school, grade, and position sought, and applicant's academic qualifications; board and/or administration shall answer request within 30 days; involuntary transfers from a building, subject, or grade to another, are to be made only after a conference between the employee and the building principal; reasons for transfer will be discussed and if requested, put in writing, teacher will have right to conference with director of elementary or secondary education if requested within seventy-two hours; decisions of administration are final and not grievable; teacher maintains right to determine students' grades and evaluations; building discipline committee shall be established to revise discipline guidelines and regulations with provisions for student and parent comments; association agrees to assist board in implementing any policies developed; board will handle all vandalism and personal injury cases, though their maximum expenditure in any year is not to exceed $1,000; teachers will be notified of complaints concerning their professional responsibilities with parties cooperating in investigating such matters; board to pay for any required physical exam or tests by school physician and to provide flu immunization shots.

* * *

West Bend, Wisconsin

Between Joint School District Number 1 and West Bend Education Association, effective August 15, 1972, to August 14, 1975. Approximately 333 certificated professional employees including all teaching personnel with at least 50 percent of a full teaching schedule, guidance, counselors and librarians, but excluding per diem teachers, office and clerical employees, the superintendent, principals, assistant principals, and other supervisory employees. Provision for reopener on salaries and school calendar for 1974-75 school year upon written request of either party on or before December 10, 1973.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,000 to $12,176, 12 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $13,152 maximum; M.A., $8,766 to $13,940, 13 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $15,021 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,175 maximum; journeyman status and three years' trade experience of vocational teachers are equivalent to bachelor's degree.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Based on percent of base entry pay) head coaches of baseball, basketball, football, swimming, wrestling, and debate, 10%; head track coach, 9%; high-school annual, drama, and forensics, assistant football coach, 7%; high-school newspaper, cheerleading, cross country, and band, assistant coaches of baseball and track, jr. varsity coaches of basketball, football, swimming, and wrestling, sophomore football coach, head coaches of golf and tennis, 6%; freshman coaches of basketball, football, track, and wrestling, debate assistant, assistant football coach, 7-8 football coach, 5%; high-school student council, chorus, annual assistant, drama assistant, and forensics assistant, middle-school newspaper and forensics, basketball, and track 7-8, football assistant coach, jr. varsity and freshman coaches of golf and tennis, 4%; cheerleading, middle-school drama, student council, and forensics, high-school girls' swimming, 3%.

OTHER: Teachers required to substitute during preparation period compensated at the rate of $4.00 per hour; summer school teachers compensated according to base salary of prior year divided by 190 times 75; driver education teacher shall have a maximum rate of $6.50 per hour; the rate of pay for taking and selling tickets, crowd control, and bus chaperoning at varisty basketball and football games on Friday, Saturday, or Sunday evenings, $4.00 per hour for the teacher in charge and $3.50 per hour for others; $.10 per mile for regular travel from one building to another computed and paid on a semiannual basis; $.08 per mile plus tolls for travel to points outside the district.

INSURANCE: Board-paid group hospital-surgical insurance; job-related personal liability insurance provided; board pays partial cost of group life insurance; income protection insurance and tax sheltered annuity program available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; right to use school building, bulletin boards, school district mail service, and teacher mailboxes; board to furnish association minutes of each official board meeting.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, credited at beginning of school term, 120 days' maximum accumulation; maximum of 3 days' noncumulative leave per year for severe illness in immediate family (husband, wife, father, mother, son, daughter); maximum of 3 days' nonaccumulative bereavement leave for death in the immediate family; released time for school visitation scheduled whenever the principal and the teacher feel that a visitation would render educational benefits to the district; paid leave of absence resulting from job-related assault or accident up to the maximum number of sick leave days accumulated, provided that such absence will not be charged to sick leave with which teacher is then credited, and provided that all workmen's compensation payments during the period the teacher receives full salary are endorsed to the district; 2 days' leave may be granted by superintendent for extraordinary and uncontrollable circumstances such as "an act of God"; 2 days granted at discretion of superintendent for pressing personal business; contracts of teachers replacing teachers on military or medical leaves of absence include a provision stating that the contract is subject to unilateral termination and cancellation by the board in the event the teacher on leave presents himself for re-employment.

INSTRUCTION: School year is 180 pupil contact days, 7 inservice days, 3 holidays, and Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter recesses; 30-minute duty-free lunch daily; efforts will be made to assign para-professionals to classrooms in which enrollment is excessive; building hours for teachers, 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. daily; efforts will be made to employ paraprofessionals to supervise all school lunch rooms and elementary playgrounds during noon hour; when such supervision is performed by a teacher, he will be paid $3.50 per hour except on a day when substituting for a paraprofessional who did not provide prior notice of absence; released time provided for a home visit where the principal and the teacher determine that a problem exists and parents are unable or unwilling to attend a conference at school but would receive a visit from the teacher at home.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with arbitration; meetings requiring attendance until 5:00 p.m. will average no more than three per month; teachers required to attend no more than two public evening meetings each year for open house and parent visitation; attendance at any other meetings shall be at the option of the teacher; teachers attending professional meetings (other than annual teachers convention) shall be reimbursed at the rate of $150 maximum for national meetings and $50 maximum for other meetings; evaluation of all new or probationary teachers shall be made quarterly by the principal, other teachers to be evaluated regularly as appropriate; following evaluation a conference between the principal and the teacher will be held, the teacher will be given a file copy of his evaluation indicating among other things any deficiencies noted and suggestions as to how he may correct them, with the principal's assistance; the teacher shall sign file copy acknowledging receipt of evaluation and be allowed to present in writing his views of the evaluation for attachment to the file copy prior to its inclusion in his personnel file; superintendent is to notify teacher of possible nonrenewal no later than February 1; the teacher may request in writing a meeting with the superintendent within five days of such notice to discuss the situation and may be accompainied by anyone he chooses; in the event the board considers nonrenewal of a teacher, he must be notified in writing of the reasons for such consideration prior to March 1; the teacher may request in writing a meeting with the board to discuss the reasons for nonrenewal and may be accompanied by a person of his choice in the meeting; if the board votes not to renew the teacher's contract after the teacher has met privately with both the superintendent and the board, the association may process the matter to arbitration in the same manner as it may process a grievance to arbitration; "in the event of arbitration, the decision of the board shall not be reversed by the arbitrator unless he shall determine that the decision of the Board not to renew such teacher's contract either was for a constitutionally impermissible reason or was arbitrary and capricious"; reduction in force as far as possible shall be through normal attrition resulting from teachers' retiring or resigning; teachers who are laid off will be selected by the board taking into consideration "both on an individual basis and in comparison to other teachers, factors such as the individual teacher's length of service in the District, over-all teaching experience, academic training, ability and performance as a teacher in the District"; the board will provide the association and each teacher involved the basis upon which the teacher was selected to be laid off:

> The lay off of each teacher shall commence on the date specified therefor by the Board and such teacher shall be paid pro-rata for services performed under his individual teacher contract to the date of such lay off. The teacher shall not be precluded from securing other employment during such teacher's re-employment rights period.
>
> If, within a teacher's re-employment rights period, the District has a vacant teaching position available for which that teacher is deemed qualified by the Board, the teacher shall be notified of such position and offered employment in that position, commencing as of the date specified in such notice. Under this paragraph, teachers on lay off will be contacted in reverse order of their lay off with respect to a position for which they are so qualified. In the event two (2) or more teachers who are so qualified were laid off on the same date, the Board shall select which such teacher shall be first contacted, taking into account the factors set forth in Step 2 of paragraph 2 above.
>
> Within ten (10) days after a teacher receives a notice pursuant to paragraph 5, he must advise the District in writing that he accepts the position offered by such notice and will be able to commence employment on the date specified therein. Any notice pursuant to paragraph 5 shall be mailed, registered-return receipt requested, to the last known address of the teacher in question as shown on the District's records. It shall be the responsibility of each teacher on lay off to keep the District advised of his current whereabouts.
>
> Any and all re-employment rights granted to a teacher on lay off pursuant to this Article shall terminate upon (i) the expiration of such teacher's re-employment rights period or (ii) such teacher's failure to accept within ten (10) days any position offered to him as provided in paragraphs 5 and 6, whichever occurs the earlier. For purposes of this Article, the term "teacher's re-employment rights period" means the period of time that is equal to the shorter of (i) the three (3) years following the date on which the teacher is laid off pursuant to this Article or (ii) the number of years following such lay off date which is equivalent to the number of full consecutive school years that the teacher taught in the District between the date such teacher was last employed by the District and such lay off date; provided, however, that a leave of absence pursuant to paragraph 1, 2 or 3 or Article XXII—Leaves of Absence shall not be deemed a break in a teacher's continuity of employment and the period thereof shall be included in determining the number of full consecutive school years that he has taught in the District.
>
> Any lay off pursuant to this Article shall not be subject to the provisions of paragraph 2 of Article XXVI—Procedures Relating to the Disciplining or Termination of Employment of a Teacher. If a teacher who has been laid off wishes to contest such action, he may do so by appealing to the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association which may, if it so desires, process a grievance beginning at Step 3 of the grievance procedure by referring the matter in writing to the Superintendent within ten (10) days after receipt by the teacher of the written explanation provided in paragraph 3 above; provided, however, that, in the event such grievance is submitted to arbitration, the Board's determination to lay off such teacher shall stand unless the arbitrator shall find that, in making such determination, the Board acted in bad faith in utilizing and/or applying the procedure provided in this Article.

Texts

ADVISORY COUNCIL ON PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RELATIONS SUMMARY OF PRINCIPAL RECOMMENDATIONS

Coverage of the Proposed Statute

1. There should be a comprehensive, pre-emtive state law applicable to all public employees except (a) management and confidential employees; (b) supervisory employees, unless the public agency elects to bargain with them; (c) employees subject to the transit district acts; and (d) elected public officials.

2. The following three statutes should be repealed in their entirety: the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (Government Code Sections 3500-10), which applies to employees of local government; the George Brown Act (Government Code Sections 3525-36), which applies to state employees; and the Winton Act (Education Code Sections 13080-90), which applies to school district employees. In addition, Labor Code Sections 1960-63, which apply to fire fighters, should be repealed.

3. Local legislative bodies should be permitted to continue, or to enact, their own employer-employee relations policies, provided that the local law is in substantial compliance with the proposed statute and is administered by a board or commission of impartial persons, broadly representative of the public, with experience in the field of employer-employee relations.

4. Duly negotiated agreements on matters within the scope of bargaining, which are approved in accordance with the provisions of the proposed statute, should prevail over any conflicting state or local statute, charter provision, ordinance, resolution, or regulations adopted by a public employer or its agent, such as a personnel board or civil service commission.

Administration of the Proposed Statute

5. The proposed statute should be administered by a Public Employment Relations Board, composed of three persons, broadly representative of the public, all of whom should be persons with experience in the field of employer-employee relations. The members of the Board should be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, from a list of 12 names submitted by a panel composed of the following persons: the Chief Justice of California, the Director of the California State Conciliation Service, and the President of the American Arbitration Association. The members of the Board should serve full-time, should hold no other public or private office, and should receive no other compensation for services rendered. The Board should be given broad responsibilities and correspondingly broad authority to administer the proposed statute. Specifically, it should have the power and duty, among others, (a) to establish lists of qualified neutral persons available to serve as mediators, fact-finders, and arbitrators; (b) to appoint such persons upon request; (c) to determine in disputed cases or otherwise to approve appropriate bargaining units; (d) to arrange for and supervise the determination of certified employee representatives for appropriate bargaining units by means of secret ballot elections, and to certify the results; (e) to decide contested matters involving recognition, certification, or decertification of employee organizations; (f) to investigate unfair practice charges, and to take such action in respect thereto as it deems necessary to effectuate the policies of the proposed statute; (g) to make, amend, and rescind such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions, purposes, and policies of the proposed statute; and (h) to bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction to enforce any of its orders, decisions, or rulings.

6. The initial determination whether charges of unfair practices are justified and, if so, what remedy is necessary to effectuate the purposes of the proposed statute, should be within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Board. The Board should not have authority to enforce collective agreements, however, and should be denied the power to issue a complaint on any charge based on an alleged violation of a collective agreement that would not also constitute an unfair practice under the proposed statute.

7. The Board should have the power to issue decisions and orders directing offending parties to cease and desist from engaging in unfair practices, and to take such affirmative action, including but not limited to the reinstatement of employees, as will effectuate the purposes of the proposed statute; but the Board should not have the power to assess exemplary damages against an offending party.

8. No state court should have jurisdiction, except for the purposes of limited judicial review, to grant legal or equitable relief based soley on the claim that (a) a public employer or employee organization has committed an unfair practice defined in the proposed statute; (b) the Board has made an erroneous bargaining-unit determination; or

(c) the Board has resolved, or is about to resolve, a question of representation contrary to law.

9. No public employer or employee organization should have the right to judicial review of a bargaining-unit determination, except when the Board agrees that the case is one of special importance and joins in the request of one or more parties to such review.

10. Any charging party, respondent, or intervenor aggrieved by a decision or order of the Board in an unfair practice case should have the right to seek review in a court of competent jurisdiction. The Board's findings of fact, if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole, should be conclusive. Once the record of the case has been filed with the court, its jurisdiction should be exclusive and its judgment final, except that it should be subject to appeal to the higher courts in the State.

Employee Rights Under the Proposed Statute

11. Public employees should have the right to form, join, or assist employee organizations, to participate in collective bargaining with public employers over matters within the scope of bargaining—i.e., wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment, including any other matters agreed to by the parties as a subject of bargaining—through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection. Employees should also have the right to refrain from engaging in such activities, subject to the requirements of permissible organizational-security arrangements.

12. Public employers should be permitted, but not required, to bargain collectively with their supervisory employees—i.e., those persons having substantial responsibility on behalf of management regularly to participate in the performance of all or most of the following functions: employ, promote, transfer, suspend, discharge, or adjudicate grievances of other employees, if in connection therewith, the exercise of such responsibility is not merely of a routine nature, but requires the exercise of independent judgment. Managerial and confidential employees (see paragraph 19, below) should be prohibited from the exercise of any collective bargaining rights under the proposed statute; but any agreements covering them and in effect as of March 15, 1973, should remain in effect until their expiration date, or three years thereafter, whichever date occurs sooner.

Exclusive Representation: Recognition, Certification, Decertification

13. The public employee organization selected as the collective-bargaining representative by the majority of employees in an appropriate unit should be the exclusive representative of all employees in the unit. Individual employees should have the right at any time to present grievances to the public employer, and to have such grievances adjusted without the intervention of the exclusive bargaining representative; but no such adjustment should be inconsistent with the terms of an existing collective agreement, and the exclusive representative should be given the opportunity to be present at such adjustment.

14. A public employer should be required, upon receipt of a request for recognition of an employee organization as the exclusive representative of employees in a given unit, supported by proof of majority support, to recognize the employee organization as the exclusive representative of its employees, unless (a) the employer has a good-faith doubt as to the accuracy or the validity of the evidence purporting to demonstrate majority support; or (b) another organization intervenes and either challenges the appropriateness of the unit or presents a competing claim, supported by evidence, that it represents a majority of the employees in the unit; or (c) the representation claim is barred by a valid collective agreement between the employer and another lawfully recognized or certified employee organization covering some or all of the employees in the proposed unit; or (d) within the previous 12 months, another employee organization has been recognized or certified as the exclusive representative of any of the employees in the proposed unit.

15. A public employer should have the right to petition the Board to investigate and decide a question of representation when the employer has received a request for exclusive recognition from an employee organization, and has a good-faith doubt as to the accuracy or validity of the evidence purporting to demonstrate majority support, or as to the appropriateness of the proposed unit, or when two or more employee organizations have made a request to represent all or some of the same group of employees. An employee organization should have the right similarly to petition the Board when its timely request for exclusive recognition, submitted to the employer in proper form and with the necessary supporting evidence, has been denied or has not been acted upon within a reasonable time (not to exceed 30 days) after the request was made.

16. If the Board, after investigation, determines that a question of representation with an appropriate unit exists, it should conduct an election by secret ballot and certify the result. An employee organization that receives a majority of the valid votes cast should be certified as the exclusive representative of the employees in the appropriate bargaining unit. Such an election, regardless of the outcome, should be a bar to any other election in all or any part of the bargaining unit for the succeeding 12-month period.

17. Any group of employees should have the right to file a timely petition with the Board alleging that the certified or currently recognized employee organization no longer represents a majority of employees in the bargaining unit, and supported by such evidence as the Board specifies by rule or regulation. After the petition is filed, the Board should conduct an election by secret ballot to determine the wishes of the employees involved. If a majority of the valid votes cast favors decertification, the employee organization should be decertified as exclusive bargaining representative. Such an election, regardless of the outcome, should be a bar to any other election in all or any part of the bargaining unit for the succeeding 12-month period. No public employer should be allowed to file a decertification petition.

Bargaining Units Under the Proposed Statute

18. The Board should be empowered and directed to find the largest reasonable unit to be the only one appropriate for purposes of collective bargaining. In making its determination the Board should consider (a) the internal and occupational community of interest of employees; (b) the probable effect of the unit on sound collective-bargaining relationships, giving particular regard to the availability and authority of public employer representatives to bargain effectively with employee organizations in respect of the unit; and (c) the effect of the unit on the efficient operation of the public agency, and the compatibility of the unit with the responsibility of the agency and its employees to serve the public.

19. Managerial employees—i.e., those having significant responsibilities for formulating and administering agency policies and programs, and confidential employees—i.e., those who are privy to information leading to decisions of agency management affecting employee relations, should be denied any rights of collective bargaining under the proposed statute.

20. There should be a strong, but rebuttable, presumption that professional employees—i.e., those engaged in work requiring specialized knowledge and skills attained through completion of a recognized course of instruction in an institution of higher learning or its equivalent—should not be included in the same bargaining unit with nonprofessional employees.

21. Supervisors (see paragraph 12, above) should neither be protected in nor prohibited from the exercise of the right to bargain collectively. Supervisory bargaining units determined prior to March 15, 1973, by a neutral person or persons under local legislation should be presumptively valid and subject to challenge only before the Board. Nonsupervisory bargaining units similarly determined prior to March 15, 1973, should not be subject to challenge under the proposed statute.

22. Any bargaining unit determined prior to March 15, 1973, in which a written agreement or memorandum of understanding has been negotiated between a public employer and an employee organization covering the employees in such unit, should not be subject to attack prior to a prescribed period before its termination date, or prior to the end of a three-year period before its termination date, or prior to the end of a three-year period from its effective date, whichever time occurs first.

Unfair Practices Under the Proposed Statute

23. It should be unlawful for a public employer (a) to impose or threaten to impose reprisals on employees, to discriminate or threaten to do so against employees, or otherwise to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees because of their exercise of rights guaranteed by the proposed statute; (b) to deny employee organizations the rights guaranteed to them by the proposed statute; (c) to refuse or fail to negotiate in good faith with a lawfully recognized or certified employee organization; and (d) to dominate or interfere with the formation or administration of any employee organization, or to contribute financial or other support to it, other than payments, provided for in a collective agreement with a lawfully recognized or certified employee organization, to representatives of such an organization for time spent in the processing of grievances and other collective-bargaining activities.

24. It should be unlawful for a public employee organization (a) to cause or attempt to cause an employer to violate the provisions of paragraph 23 (a) above; (b) to impose or threaten to impose reprisals on employees, to discriminate or threaten to discriminate against employees, or otherwise to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees because of their exercise of rights guaranteed by the proposed statute, except that an employee organization should retain the right to prescribe reasonable rules in respect of admission and expulsion; and (c) to refuse or fail to bargain in good faith with a public employer of any of the employees of which it is the exclusive representative.

25. The duty to bargain in good faith should require the parties to begin negotiations prior to the adoption by the public agency of its final budget for the ensuing year sufficiently in advance of such adoption date so that there is adequate time for agreement to be reached, or for the resolution of an impasse. The parties should have authority to agree to retroactive application of any agreement between them, whether or not it requires the expenditure of funds. The public employer should have the authority to make such expenditures pursuant to such agreement, fact-finding recommendation, arbitration award, or order of the Board.

Organizational Security Under the Proposed Statute

26. Organizational security should be a mandatory subject of bargaining between a public employer and an organization representing the majority of its employees in an appropriate unit. Any form of organizational security should be agreed upon by both parties to the collective agreement. Any form of organizational security permissible under the law and actually in effect should be rescindable by a majority vote of employees covered by such arrangement, in accordance with rules promulgated by the Board. Permissible forms of organizational security should be limited to (a) an arrangement that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized or certified employee organization, or to pay to the organization a service fee in an amount not to exceed the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of such organization; or (b) an arrangement that provides for maintenance of membership i.e., one that permits an employee to decide whether or not to join an employee organization, but which requires him, as a condition of continued employment, if he does join, to maintain his membership in good standing, or to pay to the organization a service fee in an amount not to exceed the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of such organization for the duration of the collective agreement. The agreement must also provide for a 30-day period following the expiration of a collective agreement, or following a period of three years from the effective date of such agreement, whichever comes first, in which the employee can terminate his obligation to the employee organization.

Voluntary Deductions Under the Proposed Statute

27. A public employer should be permitted, upon an employee's written authorization, to deduct and remit to an employee organization the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of such organization, unless an employee organization is recognized or certified as the exclusive bargaining representative of an appropriate bargaining unit of which the employee is a member, in which case deductions as to any such employee should no longer be permissible except pursuant to a collective agreement which limits such deductions and remittances to the recognized or certified organization.

Resolution of Rights Disputes

28. A public employer and employee organization should have authority to include in their collective agreement procedures for binding arbitration of rights disputes, i.e., controversies, commonly referred to as grievances, over the interpretation or application of (a) a collective agreement, or (b) such established agency policies or practices as the employer and the organization have agreed should be submissible to arbitration.

29. An agreement to submit a rights dispute to binding arbitration should be enforceable in the courts. Similarly, arbitration awards made pursuant to such agreements should be enforceable by court order.

30. A public employer should not be permitted to lockout, i.e., shut down the operation of the agency for which it is responsible, over a rights dispute submissible to binding arbitration or in violation of a no-lockout provision, nor should public employees be permitted to strike, i.e., engage in a work stoppage or any other concerted refusal to perform the services which they are employed to perform, over a rights dispute submissible to binding arbitration, or in violation of a no-strike provision.

31. A public employer or employee organization that is injured, or threatened with injury, by a strike or lockout over a rights dispute subject to binding arbitration under a collective agreement or in violation of a no-strike or no-lockout provision of such an agreement should have the right to bring an action in an appropriate court for compensatory and equitable relief.

Resolution of Interests Disputes

32. Public employers and employee organizations should be encouraged to resolve interests disputes, i.e., controversies over the provisions to be included in a collective agreement, either by reaching voluntary settlements or by agreeing on procedures for final and binding settlements.

33. If a public employer and the employee representative reach an impasse, i.e., a point in negotiations at which their differences in positions are so substantial or prolonged that further meetings would be futile, they should follow the procedure set forth below:

(b) The party making such declaration should (1) ask the Board for a list of mediators from which the parties may make a selection, in which event the Board shall supply a list immediately, or (2) ask the Board to designate a mediator, in which event the Board shall comply immediately upon the consent of the other party, or (3) ask the California State Conciliation Service to designate a mediator, in which event the Conciliation Service shall comply immediately upon consent of the other party;

(c) When a mediator is selected by the parties from a Board list or designated by the Board, the fees and costs of such service should be borne equally by the parties; when a mediator is designated by the Conciliation Service, the services of a mediator should be provided without charge;

(d) The Board should have the right, on its own motion, to appoint a mediator if it is satisfied that an impasse exists and that the exigencies of the situation created by the failure of the parties to request the designation of a mediator or to agree on a mediator justify such intervention, it being understood that the fees and costs of such service shall be borne equally by the parties;

(e) It should be the function of the mediator to assist the parties in reaching a voluntary resolution of their impasse;

(f) If the impasse has not been resolved by mediation after the period of time specified in the proposed statute, either party may request that their differences be submitted to a fact-finding panel. Each should designate a person to serve as its member of the panel. The members so designated should select the chairman of the panel; or, if they cannot agree, the chairman should be appointed by the Board. The fee and costs of the chairman should be borne equally by both parties.

(g) The fact-finders should identify the issues, review the positions of the parties, resolve factual differences, and make recommendations. In arriving at their recommendations, the fact-finders should consider, weigh, and be guided by the criteria specified in the proposed statute. If the dispute is not settled within 30 days after its appointment, the panel should issue recommendations to both parties for settlement of the dispute. All members of the fact-finding panel should have the right to vote on recommendations unless the public employer and employee organization agree to the contrary. The recommendations of the fact-finders should be given to the parties privately, and should be given no publicity.

(h) The parties, if they do not accept the recommendations as a basis for settlement, should resume negotiations and continue to negotiate for a period of 10 calendar days, or longer if they mutually agree. During this time, the Board should exercise a continuing jurisdiction in an effort to facilitate settlement of the dispute. If, at the end of the 10-day period, or such extended period as the parties may have agreed to, the dispute has not been settled, the findings and recommendations of the fact-finders should be made public;

(i) If, at the end of such period, the parties have still not reached agreement, the employee organization, as a condition precedent to striking, should call a meeting of its membership, at which the members attending should be asked to vote by secret ballot on the following question: "Do you wish to accept the fact-finders' recommendations?" As a condition precedent to locking out the employees, the legislative body of the employer should vote on the same question;

(j) If both parties answer the question in the affirmative, the dispute should be settled on the basis of those recommendations. If one of the parties answers the question in the negative, the employees should be permitted to strike and the employer to lockout, but such decision should be communicated to the other party in writing and announced to the public immediately, and the strike or lockout should not commence until five calendar days from the date of such notice;

(k) Any party in interest, including an employee organization, a public employer, a citizen who would be affected by the interruption of services, or a taxpayer should be permitted to initiate proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction for injunctive relief to prevent or stop the strike or lockout;

(l) The superior court in which such proceedings are brought should not issue any form of injunctive process except on the basis of findings of fact, supported by evidence elicited at a hearing, that the strike or lockout imminently threatens public health or safety. If the court finds that the evidence establishes such a threat, and finds further that there is no feasible alternative method for protecting public health and safety, the court should issue injunctive relief and should direct the parties to accept the recommendations of the fact-finders in settlement of their dispute;

(m) If the court does not make these findings, injunctive releif should be denied and the lockout or strike should be permitted to commence or continue, with the court having the authority in its discretion to retain jurisdiction of the case until the dispute is resolved;

(n) The merits of the fact-finders' recommendations should not be before the court and should play no part in its determination. The fact-finders' recommendations, if made binding by court decree, should be subject to review in a separate proceeding in the superior court in any county where the agreement is to be performed, with review limited as specified in existing California statutes dealing with the vacation of arbitration awards;

(o) The issuance or denial of relief should be subject to an expedited review before the appropriate court of appeal. Similarly, if relief is granted, the question of whether its operation should be stayed pending the outcome of the appeal should be determined by a motion before the trial court, subject to the same expedited appeal as the order disposing of the injunction question.

34. Subject only to the restrictions and limitations contained in the foregoing recommendations, public employers should have the right to lock out and public employees should have the right to strike.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS OUTSTANDING NEA REFERENCE WORK?

COMPREHENSIVE NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT PROVISIONS
1972 Edition

PART I -	Scope of Agreement and Association, Board and Teacher Rights Provisions
PART II -	Joint Committees, Instructional, Educational and Teacher Assignment and Work-Load Provisions
PART III -	Grievance Procedures, Personnel and Salary Provisions
PART IV -	Group Insurance, Leaves of Absence and Fringe Benefit Provisions

This four-part document prepared by NEA Research is an invaluable source of negotiated items in teacher/board agreements. In 1,418 pages it analyzes over 1,500 negotiated agreements in U.S. public school systems. Over 300 negotiable items are identified and coded system-by-system. (Specific content of the provisions may be obtained on request by using the Information Request Forms provided in each volume.)

REPRESENTATION INFORMATION

- State
- Name of school system
- Location of school system
- Name of recognized organization
- National affiliation of recognized organization
- Number of professional personnel represented
- Type of agreement
- Term of comprehensive agreement
- Agreement page number for particular provision

PROVISION ANALYSIS

- 200 provision titles
- Detailed analysis coded for 300 variables:
  - Negotiation impasse: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Jt. administrator-teacher committees
  - Grievance arbitration: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Bench marks in salary schedules: 1-, 2-, or 3-year agreements
  - Group insurance: part or full premium paid by board
  - 21 short-term leaves identified

. . . . . .

Please send:

_____ $40./set. (4 parts per set)
(qty.) Stock No. 388-11940.

_____ Special price ONLY for NEA state
(qty.) and local associations: $25./set.
Stock No. 388-11938.

Check one below:

_____ Payment enclosed. Make checks payable to NEA.
_____ Bill on purchase order attached.

Mail to:

NEA PUBLICATION-SALES SECTION 192
1201 Sixteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20036

_____
Name

_____
Organization

_____
Address

_____
City/State/ZIP

VOL. 7 NO. 2
OCT 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3

Arbitrator Cannot Grant Tenure
Treatment of Unions Must be Uniform
Policy Prohibiting Discussions with Students About Negotiations Violates Free Speech
Agency Shop Invalid
Arbitration Decisions on Contract Provision Upheld
Paid Leave for Jury Duty Constitutional
Federal Law Ambiguous When Applied to Public Employees' Freedom of Speech

Board Findings and Rulings 6

Contract Does Not Bar Representation Election in Split District
MERC Defers Contract Dispute to Arbitration
Single Unit of Vocational and Special Education Teachers Determined
Arbitrator Upholds Agency Shop Provision
Mandatory Retirement Negotiable
"Specific Need" Necessary to Gain Access to Facilities
PLRB Refuses to Set Aside Election
Grievance Procedure Mandatory Subject of Bargaining

Negotiation Notes 9

Separate Blue-Collar Units Urged at State Colleges and Universities
Women Custodial Employees Awarded Retroactive Pay, Interest, Equalized Wages
Accrued Sick Leave May Be Used for Maternity
Phase IV Pay Regulations: Pay Increase Prenotification, Hourly Rate Exemption
The Consumer Price Index – August 1973
Five States Amend Labor Relations Legislation

Special Reports 12

PSC/CUNY Negotiates Highest Faculty Scheduled Salaries in Comparison with Public Institutions of Higher Education
School Calendar/School Year Negotiations
Briefs of Agreements

Text 23

Oregon Public Employee Collective Bargaining Act

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2558

Case Reviews

ILLINOIS

Arbitrator Cannot Grant Tenure

The Circuit Court of Cook County ruled that an arbitrator could hear the case of nontenured probationary teachers whose contracts were not renewed by Malcolm X and Loop Colleges. However, the court limited the scope of the arbitrator's jurisdiction to a determination of whether procedures for nonrenewal outlined in the agreement between the colleges and the Cook County Teachers Union had been followed.

In its petition for declaratory relief from arbitration, the Board of Trustees of the Junior College District argued that "an arbitrator does not have jurisdiction to hear grievances seeking review of judgments not to rehire non-tenured probationary faculty members" since this would interfere with the board's legislated right to employ and determine the duration of employment. The court determined that the only relief should be confined to affording the grievants the procedures outlined in the agreement because "under no circumstances does an arbitrator have the power to award additional employment."

The union contended that pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement only the chancellor of the city colleges and the board had authority to decide whether faculty members are hired or retained, and not the president of the college. Since their decisions are subject to review by arbitration, the union contended that the requested restrictions on the arbitrator's authority were illegal because the board had bargained away the limitations upon the scope of arbitration which it sought to impose.

Overturning the union's contention that the president of a college did not have authority to decide whether faculty members are hired or fired, the court said that such authority was conferred in the Public Junior College Act (P.J.C.A.). Additionally, courts have held that "a board may not through a collective bargaining agreement or otherwise, delegate to another party those matters of discretion that are vested in the board by statute." Therefore, the court ruled that the decisions in the grievances involved in this case were properly made by the college president, who by law is an agent of the board. And, since the law mandates the board to determine which faculty members are qualified for promotions, "it follows that an arbitrator may not award a renewal contract even if the Collective Bargaining Agreement explicitly clothes him with that power."

On the basis of Board of Regents v. Roth in which the court approved due process hearing procedures, the court concluded that the grievants had a right to have arbitrated the question of whether the grievance procedures outlined in the agreement were followed; however, the arbitrator's authority is limited to awarding that such procedures be accorded the grievants. But, "those grievants who rest their claim to renewal of their contracts upon a denial of a constitutional right may seek an award of renewal of their contracts only if it is clearly and convincingly proved that renewal was denied them solely by reason of the exercise of the right of free speech or because of engagement in Union activity, and that the judgment to refuse renewal was manifestly in disregard of their demonstrated competence and qualifications." (Board of Trustees of Junior College District No. 508, Plaintiff v. Cook County College Teachers Union, Local 1600 et al., Defendants, Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, September 14, 1972.)

MINNESOTA

Treatment of AAUP and UFT Must Be Uniform

The University of Minnesota must be uniform in its treatment of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the United Federation of Teachers Local 2408 (UFT) according to the Minnesota District Court. Citing a similar court ruling in Florida, the court said that the university may not refuse to meet with the UFT or deny it the use of university mailing and other facilities while granting AAUP such privileges.

In concluding, the court pointed out that its ruling was not intended to direct the university to treat such organizations in any particular way but to insure that such organizations are treated equally. (United Federation of Teachers Local 2408 v. University of Minnesota and Malcolm Moos, President, Minnesota District Court, May 16, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Policy Prohibiting Discussions with Students About Negotiations Violates Free Speech

The New Jersey Superior Court ruled that the Dell River Board of Education could not prohibit teachers from answering students' questions concerning labor negotiations between the River Dell Education Association (RDEA) and the board. During negotiations the board issued a directive prohibiting teachers from answering students' questions regarding negotiations, the purpose being, to prevent disruption of school routine by prolonged discussion of negotiations. Though the policy change had been rejected by the association, the board unilaterally implemented it and attached disciplinary measures for infractions. The disciplinary measures included discharge, removal of tenure, or withholding of increments. RDEA sought a declaratory judgment as to the legality of the policy and an injunction against its enforcement.

The association argued that "the board's policy is a prior restraint on freedom of discussion in an academic environment."

The board asserted that the court had no jurisdiction since administrative remedies had not been exhausted. The court ruled that this case was within its purview and not the education commissioner's since the issue involved was a constitutional question for which the court was "uniquely suited to determine," and not a dispute arising under the school laws which the commissioner would have the expertise to handle.

Referring to the Supreme Court of the United States ruling in Tinker v. Des Moines Independent School District, the Superior Court held that this ruling barred a school board from curtailing freedom of expression, however controversial, unless it could show that school activities would be disrupted if these views were not curtailed. And in this case, the board had not presented enough evidence to warrant curtailing freedom of expression. However, the court pointed out that the board's case would have been more valid had the memo prohibited extended discussion of negotiations. Moreover, the Supreme Court has held that neither students nor teachers "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of expression at the school house gate." The Superior Court stated that "it can be argued that the subject of current negotiations is appropriate for questions by students and answers by teachers in the school setting since the relationship between the teachers and the school board may have a direct effect on the students themselves."

On the basis of the foregoing, the court ruled that the directive banning discussions of negotiations was unconstitutional as violative of both the Constitution of the United States and the New Jersey Constitution. (River Dell Education Association et al., Plaintiffs v. River Dell Board of Education, Defendant, New Jersey Superior Court, January 18, 1973.)

Agency Shop Ruled Invalid

The Appellate Division of the Superior Court of New Jersey upheld a lower court decision which had invalidated an agency shop clause in the contract between the New Jersey Turnpike Employees' Union, Local 194, American Federation of Technical Engineers, and the New Jersey Turnpike Authority. The parties had sought a declaratory judgment as to the legality of the agency shop provision which had been negotiated and accepted into the contract contingent upon a favorable decision by the court.

The union held that an agency shop fee equal to regular dues, with payment a condition of employment, would distribute the costs of membership services, negotiations, and grievance processing equitably among all persons benefiting from the provisions.

The Turnpike Authority demurred on two points; the first argued that the agency shop clause violated the right of an individual under the state constitution to choose his own representative(s). The second objection focused on a provision of the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act that stated that public employees are "protected in the exercise of the right freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join, and assist any employee organization or to refrain from any such activity."

On the constitutional argument, the court ruled that the existence of an exclusive bargaining agent in this instance precluded the right of a public employee to represent himself or seek other representation. As to the second obligation the court found that the agency shop clause "would have the predominant effect of inducing, if not compelling, union membership" thereby abridging the individual's right to refrain from membership under the state labor relations statute. The higher court sustained the lower court's ruling that the agency shop clause was invalid. (New Jersey Turnpike Employees Union, Local 194 of American Federation of Technical Engineers v. New Jersey Turnpike Authority, New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, April 18, 1973.)

NEW YORK

State Supreme Court Upholds Two Arbitration Decisions

The New York Supreme Court upheld arbitrator's decisions in two cases challenging the enforceability of his decision.

- In the first case, the court upheld an arbitrator's determination that a collective bargaining agreement had not been violated and the arbitrator's decision not to rule on whether a regulation of the State Commissioner of Education had been violated.

The petitioners contended that the arbitrator had exceeded his power by failing to determine both issues before him, including the question of whether the Commissioner's regulations had been violated.

The arbitrator held that violations of these regulations are subject to their own enforcement and need not be arbitrated.

The court agreed with the arbitrator and said that his determination was not contrary to the agreement and that the arbitrator had a duty to interpret the agreement and "to enforce it according to the rules of law which he deems appropriate in the circumstances." Accordingly, the arbitrator's award was confirmed.

- In the second case, the court found no misconduct on the part of an arbitrator who made an award even though the Glen Cove School District absented itself from the hearing. The arbitrator awarded teachers employed by the district the salaries set forth in the collective bargaining agreement, including retroactive pay, unless the district proceeded in good faith with arbitration within 15 days after receiving notice of the order. After informing the attorney for the district of the date that the hearing would be held in the event that the district's request for a stay of arbitration was lifted, the arbitrator concluded that the district had no intention of attending the scheduled hearing and, therefore, proceeded to hear the case and make the award.

Since evidence indicated that the school district was aware of the hearing date and made clear its intention to be absent, the court ruled that the arbitrator was justified in proceeding without the respondent being present and in making the determination with only the evidence presented. Therefore, the award was confirmed. (Caligiuri, Petitioner v. Board of Education of New York City, Respondent, New York Supreme Court, January 18, 1973; Edward Sweeney, Petitioner v. Glen Cove City School District, Respondent, New York Supreme Court, January 12, 1973.)

FEDERAL

Mandatory Paid Leave for Jury Duty Constitutional

The Supreme Court of the United States reversed the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals decision which struck down as unconstitutional a state statute requiring employers to pay their employees regular compensation less jury duty pay.

In accordance with an Alabama statute stipulating that an employee excused for jury duty is entitled to his regular compensation less the fee received as a juror, the petitioner sued his employer for refusing to pay. A trial court ruled in favor of the petitioner, but the Court of Civil Appeals held the statue unconstitutional.

The appeals court held that the Act violated the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because it deprived the employer of property. The court cited Coppage v. Kansas, in which a statute was declared unconstitutional because it violated due process by making it a misdemeanor for an employer to require an employee to agree not to join or remain a member of a union.

The Supreme Court cited Coppage along with Day-Brite Lighting Inc. v. Missouri, where in the court sustained a state statute which made it a misdemeanor for an employer to deduct employee wages when the employee absented himself in order to vote.

Turning to police power, the high court held that the present law was designed to eliminate any penalty for exercising the right of suffrage. Further, the court indicated that the police power adequate to fix the financial burden for one was adequate for the other.

Accordingly, the Supreme Court reversed the state court's decision. (Sam Dean, Petitioner v. Gadsden Publishing Corporation, Respondent, United States Supreme Court, June 11, 1973.)

Federal Law Ambiguous When Applied To Public Employees' Freedom Of Speech

The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois ruled that absent specified limits on free speech, the Federal law (U.S.C. 7501) which allows termination of employees "to promote the efficiency of the service" was unconstitutionally vague when used to justify the termination of a public employee who openly criticized his superiors. The court also found the law unconstitutional as it permitted termination of an employee without a hearing on the charges without meeting the minimal due process requirements of the Fifth Amendment.

The suit was filed by an employee of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) who was discharged after attending a press conference where a group of American Indians criticized certain governmental agencies including the OEO.

The court agreed with the plaintiff-employee in that termination under the law abrogated the employee's rights to have a hearing before an impartial party, to present witnesses, and to receive a written notice of the reasons for this discharge. The court felt that only an "unusually important governmental need justified an employee's discharge without a hearing of the charges."

Considering whether the law authorized an employee's dismissal for criticizing his superiors, the court found both the law and the OEO implementing regulations unclear on the issue of free speech. However, the court stated that the government should be able to regulate its employees' speech to some extent, but continued that "it is because Kennedy [plaintiff] and other federal employees in the competitive service are not specifically notified of such limits on their speech by [the law and regulations] that the [government's] construction of the statutes is unconstitutional." Accordingly, the court declared 5 U.S.C. 7501 and related regulations unconstitutional when applied to free speech and ordered the OEO employee reinstated with back pay. (Wayne Kennedy, et al., v. Philip Sanchez et al., U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, October 24, 1972.)

Board Findings and Rulings

MASSACHUSETTS

Contract Does Not Bar Representation Election in Split District

A current contract does not effect a bar to the formation of a new bargaining unit created as a result of splitting of a school district even though the employees of the new district are covered by the already existing contract. The Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission (MLRC) thus affirmed that the contract between the Montague Teachers Association and the Montague School Committee did not bar the formation a new association at a new school district where half of the Montague teachers would be employed, upon transfer. Accordingly, the MLRC ordered a representation election for teachers employed by the newly created Gill-Montague Regional School Committee.

Having received a petition for an election by the Massachusetts Teachers Association for its affiliate, the Montague Teachers Association, and the newly formed Gill-Montague Teachers Association, the MLRC had to interpret prohibition implied by the "contract-bar rule" with regard to the formation of the new bargaining unit.

MLRC noted that the contract-bar rule existed "to help the parties to a contract enjoy a stabilized employer-union relationship" and did not apply the rule in this case as it "would frustrate the opportunity of the parties to develop a sound and stable employer-union relationship."

The MLRC ordered an election for two units, one for certificated employees, and a second to include the principal, and the assistant principal, but excluded from both units all nonprofessionals, custodians, clericals, cafeteria workers, substitute teachers, and teacher aides. (Gill-Montague Regional School Committee and Gill-Montague Teachers Association, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, April 19, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

MERC Defers Contract Dispute to Arbitration

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) refused jurisdiction over a dispute concerning outside hiring to fill a vacancy in violation of a negotiated contract.

The Wayne County Road Commission Supervisory Employees union filed unfair labor charges against the Board of County Road Commissioners, alleging that the board's refusal to bargain was a violation of the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA), when the board filled a job through outside hiring. The union contended that the board discriminated against five employees who held Account IV positions by hiring a black employee at an Account V position solely to implement a recently established affirmative action program and comply with the Civil Rights Act. The union maintained that filling the vacancy without consulting it was an unlawful refusal to bargain.

The board contended that according to the Civil Service Rules and Regulations that were made a part of the agreement, it had a right to hire from outside rather than promote an employee to fill a job vacancy.

MERC concurred with the reasoning in Collyer Insulated Wire that mandated resolution of differences through arbitration where parties have agreed to that method in cases involving unfair labor practice stemming from a failure to comply with the negotiated agreement.

Since the union and the board had an agreement incorporating a grievance procedure with the final step providing binding arbitration to settle disputes, MERC declined jurisdiction and dismissed the charge that the board violated Section 10(e) of PERA. (Matter of The Board of County Road Commissioners of The County of Wayne and Wayne County Road Commission Supervisory Employees, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, September 19, 1972.)

MINNESOTA

Single Unit of Vocational and Special Education Teachers Determined

The Minnesota Bureau of Meditiation Services rejected vocational educators organization's request for separate units for vocational and special education teachers. The Bureau held that it must comply with statutes and "find an appropriate unit to be all certificated teachers in a given school districts, excluding certain supervisors." Interjecting that similar questions have been raised where vocational schools operate within a school district and where special vocational school districts have been established with varying composition, the Bureau said that its concern was whether the vocational and special educational teachers share a common ground owing to a great degree of variance in training and background.

Concluding that law bars any other remedy, and because the school district covers a wide area, the Bureau ordered an election by mail ballot in a unit consisting of all certificated teachers employed for more than 14 hours per week and for more than 100 days per year. The unit is also to include those employees on leave of absence who are guaranteed a position upon return, but to exclude supervisory employees, confidential employees, superintendents, assistant superintendents, principals, assistant principals who devote 50 percent of their time to administrative and supervisory duties, and all other employees. (916 Vocational Educators Organization and AFT Local 2343 and Special Intermediate School District No. 916, Roseville, Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, November 22, 1972.)

NEW YORK

Arbitrator Upholds Agency Shop Provision

Stating that the scope of an arbitrator's powers lies only with the interpretation of contractual provisions and not with points of law, an arbitrator upheld a negotiated agency shop provision and ordered the Glen Cove School District to remit to the Glen Cove Teachers Association all agency fee monies collected and held in escrow.

While skirting the question of the legality of agency shop, despite negative decisions from PERB as to its validity, the arbitrator nevertheless upheld the association's contention as the grievance machinery limited him to decisions on the negotiated content of the collective bargaining agreement.

In agreements and a supplemental contract negotiated for 1971-1973, the parties agreed on an agency shop provision which stipulated that the concept of agency shop would be employed within the district unless the legislature made it illegal. Included was a save harmless commitment in which the association agreed to pay any loss, expenses, damages, costs, and attorneys fees that might accrue against the district as a result of the implementation of the agency shop fee. The association also agreed to participate to the fullest extent possible in all legal actions or proceedings relating to the legality of agency shop.

The board contended that its refusal to submit to the association monies collected under the agency shop provision was based on the fact that "substantial doubt exists as to the legality of compliance with agency shop provisions in teacher organization-school board collective agreements under the laws of the State of New York."

Examining a decision of the state's lowest court and a PERB ruling which the board submitted in support of its position, the arbitrator concluded that the board's position was not frivolous, but, that questions of legality were beyond his jurisdiction, his powers being confined to contract questions. On the basis of the present agreement, according to the arbitrator, the district's reasons for failing to abide by the agreement were inadequate. In addition, the arbitrator noted that the evidence supporting the district's argument did not stem from the Court of Appeals or a court of higher jurisdiction in the Second Judicial Department. However, if such a higher decision existed, the arbitrator said, the terms of the agreement would compel him to decide in the board's favor.

Finding the board in violation of the terms of the agreement, the arbitrator ruled in the association's favor. (In the Matter of Arbitration Between the Glen Cove City School District and Glen Cove Teachers Association, May 28, 1973.)

Mandatory Retirement Negotiable

The scope and duty to negotiate under the Taylor Law was expanded with regard to mandatory retirement when the PERB ordered the Harrison School District to negotiate with the Harrison Association of Teachers on a mandatory retirement policy that the school board had attempted to unilaterally impose.

The school board passed a resolution mandating that teacher-members of the Teachers' Retirement System aged 70 or over retire. The association considered compulsory retirement a negotiable issue and filed an improper practice charge when the school board refused to bargain on the matter. The issue concerned the interpretation of the Education Law which states that "any member who has attained age seventy may be retired at his own request or at the request of his employer. . . ."

The school board, while conceding that compulsory retirement was a term and condition of employment, advanced the opinion that the Education Law gave it absolute authority to require a mandatory retirement at age 70.

PERB, disagreeing with the school board, determined that the language of the Education Law was permissive by design and that neither was absolute authority explicitly vested nor was the board obligated to retire teachers at age 70.

Absent a state law requiring the school board to set a mandatory retirement age and specifying it, and with no contractual agreement between the parties concerning mandatory retirement, PERB ruled that under the Taylor Law there was a duty to negotiate the subject and ordered the board to negotiate with the association over a mandatory retirement age. (Harrison Association of Teachers and Board of Education, Central School District No. 1, Public Employment Relations Board, March 19, 1973.)

"Specific Need" Must Be Shown To Gain Access To Facilities

Failure of an association to show specific need to inspect school facilities, according to the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB), allows a school board to exercise its prerogative and deny any association visitation requests. The PERB upheld a previous ruling that the Albany School District did not violate the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act by refusing to give permission to representatives of the Albany Public School Teachers Association to inspect physical conditions at the schools in order to gather data for negotiations and grievances.

The association regarded refusal of these requests as failure to negotiate in good faith and interference with the administration of the contract, thus constituting grounds for improper practice charges against the district. Provision for access to school facilities did not exist in the parties' contract.

PERB noted that the absence of a visitation provision did not necessarily deny the association access rights but did place the burden upon the association to establish the specific need for visitations. PERB stated that "an employee organization may request and is entitled to receive, information which is necessary for the preparation for collective negotiations. . .and information necessary for the administration of a contract including the investigation of grievances." However, the association's request must be reasonable, and the information sought must be relevant and unavailable elsewhere, obviously unknown to or unavailable through the membership, and germane to protection of members' rights as delineated in the contract. The information does not have to be furnished in the exact form requested so long as it satisfies the need.

The PERB held that the association and the school board are obligated to deal with each other in administration of the contract as to grievances arising under the agreement.

Examining the content and timing of the association's visitation requests, PERB concluded that the association had failed to demonstrate that access in each instance was necessary for purposes of preparing for negotiations or processing greivances. PERB found no violation of law in the school board's conduct and ordered the association's charges dismissed. (Board of Education, City School District of the City of Albany and Albany Public School Teachers Association, Public Employment Relations Board, March 5, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

PLRB Refuses To Set Aside Election

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board rejected the Allentown School District's exceptions to a nisi order of certification of the appropriate unit of cafeteria employees. The school district asked that the election be set aside because of employee turnover between elections, misstatements in union propaganda, and premature closing of the polling place.

The school district, citing similar National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) decisions, objected to the sustaining of a challenge to the ballots of nine cafeteria workers who were hired after the eligibility list was prepared prior to the election. However, in the NLRB cases, the turnover of employees was 25 percent while the nine in this case accounted for only a 5 percent turnover considered too negligible to warrent a new election.

Regarding the district's allegation that misstatements in union propaganda, created ambiguities the PLRB stated that an election could not be set aside unless one party has made a material misrepresentation of fact so misleading as to prevent a free choice by employees. No such misrepresentation was made in this case according to PLRB.

The school district's contention that the polling place was closed before the designated time was also rejected as there was no evidence presented by the district to show that any employee was denied the right to vote.

The PLRB did not set aside the union run-off election in response to the exception filed by the district and dismissed its request to reopen the question of the affiliate unit. (Matter of Employers of School District of City of Allentown, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, May 10, 1973.)

RHODE ISLAND

Grievance Procedure Mandatory Subject of Bargaining

The Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board (RISLRB) supported the Richmond Teachers Association's contention that a grievance procedure is a mandatory subject of bargaining under state law. The association alleged that the Richmond School Committee had illegally refused to execute a collective bargaining agreement which included an impasse arbitration award providing for binding arbitration of grievances.

During negotiations, the school committee refused to bargain over an associations proposed grievance procedure on the grounds that resolution of grievances was governed by Section 16-39 of the General Laws. The unresolved issues were subsequently sent to arbitration, and arbitrator's award included the grievance procedure provision, however, the school committee refused to execute the collective bargaining agreement.

The Board felt that the main issue was whether grievance procedures were a mandatory subject of bargaining under Section 28.9 of the General Laws (the Michaelson Act). According to the Board's findings, the Michaelson Act which provides for the negotiation of hours, salaries, working conditions and all other terms and conditions of professional employment, includes the negotiation of grievance procedures. The RISLRB therefore ordered the school committee to execute the collective bargaining agreement including binding arbitration of grievances. (In the matter of Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board and Richmond School Committee, Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board, November 20, 1973.)

Negotiation Notes

KANSAS

State Board Favors Separate Blue-Collar Units at State Colleges and Universities

The Kansas Public Employee Relations Board made its first determination of bargaining units appropriate for public employees by favoring the Wisconsin approach of recognizing five basic state units: operational services; security services; institutional services; administrative services; and professional, scientific, and technical services. The Board also favored allowing employees at each unit of higher education institutions to organize on an individual institution basis.

The Service Employees International Union applied to the Board for recognition of its Public Service Employees Union, Local 1132 to bargain for service and maintenance employees at the University of Kansas Medical Center and for recognition of its Local 513 for those at the Fort Hays facility.

The state maintained that the appropriate units should consist of the employees of the University of Kansas and University of Kansas Medical Center as one unit and employees of Kansas State Teachers College, Wichita State University, Kansas State College of Pittsburg, Fort Hays Kansas State College, and Kansas State University as one unit.

The decision of the Kansas PERB was to have separate units of its blue-collar employees at the several state institutions of higher education rather than one unit to cover all employees doing the same work at the several institutions.

The Board based its decision to declare appropriate separate units of physical plant employees at Fort Hays, Lawrence, and Kansas City on the separate operating entity and the complex relationship between an administration and its employees, the employees' community of interest within individual institutions, and the fact that problems with university employees' working conditions tend to be handled at the local level.

TEXAS

Women Custodial Employees Awarded Retroactive Pay, Interest, Equalized Wages

A violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) by the Goose Creek Consolidated Independent School District's discriminatory wage policy resulted in a U.S. District Court order to compensate women at the average rate paid male custodial employees and to pay retroactive wages at those rates.

The school district acknowledged a difference in average wages paid male and female custodial employees, but claimed the differences were generated by a merit system and numerous additional responsibilities assigned to the men. The school district also stated that men often had supervisory responsibilities, monitored heating and air-conditioning equipment, ordered supplies, and performed minor repairs, as well as operating cleaning equipment.

The court found the work performed by both sexes to be substantially the same, regardless of the alleged differences in duties and responsibilities. The additional responsibilities for men took very little time and had been performed at times by women, the court declared. Furthermore, the existence of a merit system had never been announced, nor had merit raises ever been given to women.

The court ruled that the wage differential was based on sex discrimination and ordered the pay for women to be raised to the average wage paid to men and the compensation, retroactive to May 18, 1969, to be computed at the new rates, with 6 percent interest. (Brenan and Goose Creek Consolidated Independent School District, U.S. District Court, Southern Texas, April 3, 1973.)

FEDERAL

Accrued Sick Leave May Be Used for Maternity, Says U.S. Solicitor General

The Nixon administration has submitted a memorandum to the Supreme Court of the United States which declares forced leave policies for pregnant teachers in violation of the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal protection under the law. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork said the policy which requires a woman to stop teaching when she reaches the fifth month of pregnancy is unlawful discrimination and that, instead, she "should be granted sick leave for the period she expects to be absent, just as other employees may use their accrued sick leave for their disabilities or illnesses." Although the Administration's legal view was not solicited by the Court's justices, it is expected to carry weight. The High Court will hear maternity leave cases this month involving teachers from Virginia and Ohio. NEA is financing the Supreme Court appeal of Susan Cohen from Virginia. It also financed her case at the district and appellate court levels and has filed amicus briefs in the LaFleur case (Ohio) in the 6th Circuit and in the Supreme Court.

Phase IV Pay Regulations May Require Pay Increase Prenotification: Workers Earning Less Than $3.50 An Hour Exempt From Pay Controls

The Cost of Living Council (CLC) has issued pay regulations affecting Phase IV of the Economic Stabilization Program. Though Phase III pay regulations, including the council's authority to require pay increase prenotification, have been retained, new regulations exempt "low wage" workers (under $3.50 an hour) from pay regulations and expand prenotification requirements.

Under the regulations, the Council may require prenotification to allow sufficient time for examining pay increases to see if the increases meet the following criteria: are in excess of general wage and salary standards, may unduly influence the collective bargaining process in a destablizing manner in other firms or appropriate employee units, or appear to be unreasonably inconsistent with the standards and goals of the Economic Stablization Program. The Council's authority was exercised infrequently during Phase III, and similar behavior is expected during Phase IV.

The 5.5 percent general pay standard and the 0.7 percent qualified benefits standard will be maintained during Phase IV; however, these limitations do not apply to workers earning less than $3.50 an hour. For employee units which contain both workers earning more than $3.50 an hour and workers earning less than $3.50 an hour, pay prenotification forms must be submitted for any increases granted to those earnings more than $3.50. Previously, regulations had been issued governing new and retroactive raises. One regulation mandates that when employers compute pay increases after January 10, 1973, they use the base rates that resulted from the Pay Board cutback rather than the rates that their contracts had initially proposed.

The second grants employers, regardless of the number of workers employed, the authority to pay retroactively for work performed during Phase II without prior approval of CLC provided such payments do not exceed the Phase II wage and salary standards. However, should the parties agree that a retroactive increase that exceeds the pay standard or self-executing exceptions is justified, the increase may be paid retroactively without prior approval of CLC. In this instance CLC must be notified within 10 days after the payment becomes effective. Further, CLC will make determinations in cases where the parties do not agree that an increase under Phase II is justifiable.

Employers who are self-administering and not under mandatory controls must now report pay adjustments affecting employee units of 5,000 or more workers to the Council within 10 days after the increases become effective. Additionally, units of 5,000 or more with a merit increase plan must now submit reports for the control year within 10 days after the first increase is granted.

The Consumer Price Index—August 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 1.8 percent in August to 135.1 (1967=100), the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. A substantial increase in food prices, primarily for meats, poultry, and eggs, accounted for about 80 percent of the rise in the CPI.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the July-to-August increase in the CPI was 1.9 percent. In the 6-month period ended in August, the CPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 10 percent; over the 12-month period the rate of increase was 7.5 percent.

The August increase in the CPI was the sharpest 1-month rise since September 1947, mainly because of the record 6.1 percent rise in the food index. The nonfood commodities index increased 0.5 percent in August after seasonal adjustment, slightly above the average for recent months. The services index rose 0.7 percent, the largest monthly rise in almost 3 years.

FIVE STATES AMEND LABOR RELATIONS LEGISLATION

Public employee bargaining statutes in Minnesota and Michigan were amended to allow negotiation of agency shop clauses for all public employees. In Rhode Island, state employees' statutes also were amended to permit negotiation of agency shop provisions. The Minnesota statute was revised to grant strike rights to nonessential employees in certain situations. A revision of Maine's state employees grievance procedure includes time limits on filing of charges. An extensively amended collective bargaining act in Oregon covers all public employees; for teachers it supersedes the 1965 Teacher-Board Consultation Law. This revised legislation allows negotiation of agency shop, and permits strikes 30 days after a fact-finder's report is issued.

- Minnesota's amended 1971 public employees collective bargaining statute now (a) grants strike rights to nonessential employees when an employer refuses to submit to binding arbitration or to adhere to a binding award; (b) further defines the terms and conditions of employment to include fringe benefits but exclude retirement benefits and the school district's educational policies; (c) makes agency shop provisions negotiable; (d) provides for election of an exclusive agent by a majority of those voting instead of a majority of all eligible voters; and (e) lifts exclusion of supervisory and confidential employees, principals, and assistant principals from units of nonsupervisory and nonconfidential employees, thus allowing them to form their own organization, be granted exclusive representative status, with all employee rights granted by the law.
- Amendments to Michigan's 1965 Public Employee Relations Act which permit negotiation of agency shop, nullify a recent state supreme court decision banning agency shop provisions as unauthorized by PERA.

• The revision of Rhode Island's state employees' salaries and traveling expenses statute allows employee organizations recognized as exclusive bargaining agents to negotiate agency shop contracts. The legislation was strongly supported by the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, the largest labor organization in the state.

• Maine's state employees' grievance procedure, enacted in 1965, was amended to include a timetable for filing grievances. Previously the procedure had no time limits, and the State Employees Board which handled the grievances, found itself sometimes dealing with matters over a year old.

• Oregon's Public Employee Collective Bargaining Act becomes effective October 1973. The newly amended law recognizes as exclusive representatives those teacher units which were previously recognized by the Teacher-Board Consultation Law; however, individual representatives are not recognized, and committee representatives will be phased out by July 1, 1974. The Act establishes the Public Employees Relations Board to supervise elections and unit determinations as well as to administer the statute. It defines the scope of negotiations to include but not be limited to wages, hours, and conditions of employment, allows negotiation of agency shop provisions, and requires dues deduction for exclusive representatives. It permits strikes provided 30 days have elapsed since a fact-finder's report, and at least 10 days' prior notice has been given to the employer. If the strike is enjoined as a violation of health, safety, or welfare, parties must submit to binding arbitration. The legislation also contains a formal procedure for resolving disputes, permits two parties to agree to binding arbitration any time during negotiation, and requires a written, signed agreement at the completion of negotiations. (The complete text of The Oregon Public Employee Collective Bargaining Act is reprinted in the TEXT section.)

Special Reports

PSC/CUNY, AN NEA AFFILIATE, NEGOTIATES HIGHEST FACULTY SCHEDULED SALARIES IN COMPARISON WITH PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION

With the exception of minimum salaries for assistant professors and maximum salaries for professors, the recently negotiated scheduled salaries for CUNY faculty, retroactive to October 1972, are the highest among 4-year degree-granting institutions for 1972-73. However, for these two exceptions, the scheduled salaries at CUNY are in the top quartile of scheduled salaries in public 4-year institutions. Compared with scheduled salaries in public 2-year institutions in 1972-73, the scheduled salaries for faculty at CUNY are the highest for each rank except for scheduled minimum salary for assistant professors.

Nationally the median number of increments in public 4-year institutions is seven for each rank; professors and associate professors at CUNY will get seven increments but assistant professors nine and instructors eight. For all ranks the average amounts of increments and the total amounts added by increments for faculty at CUNY are higher than the median of these amounts among public 4-year institutions with scheduled increments but are not the highest. The increments for faculty at each rank at CUNY are larger than the median amount of scheduled salary increments for the rank in all public 2-year institutions.

National summary information by type of institution and institutional listings of scheduled faculty salaries are available in NEA Research Reports: Faculty Salary Schedules in Community-Junior Colleges, 1972-73. Research Report 1973-R6. (63 p. $1.75. Stock No. 435-25526). Faculty Salary Schedules in Colleges and Universities, 1972-73 Research Report 1973-R7. (34 p. $1.50. Stock No. 435-25528)

The following is a brief of the recently negotiated agreement between PSC/CUNY and the Board of Higher Education. The contract, which was overwhelmingly approved, extends through the 1974-75 school year.

SALARIES

INCREMENTS: The present increment system is retained. Increments are paid annually, varying from title to title and from step to step, and averaging 4.7% of the average CUNY salary. They fall due in September at the community colleges, in January at the senior colleges, retroactive to September 1972, until 1974-75, when they fall due January 1, 1975, at all colleges.

INCREASES: In addition to applicable increments, all full-time incumbents receive $600 increases retroactive to October 1, 1972; $750 due October 1, 1973; and $850 October 1, 1974. They are 3.3%, 4.0% and 4.4%, respectively, of the average CUNY salary.

PARITY between cummunity college and senior college staffs is achieved by January 1, 1975.

MAXIMUM: The new maximum salary will be $33,475.

PROMOTIONS

FACULTY RANKS: Up to 1,800 promotions of qualified personnel shall be made during the next two years without budgetary restrictions, toward the goal of achieving a 30-30-30-10 distribution of full Professors, Associate Professors, Assistant Professors and Instructors.

CERTIFICATED LECTURERS with the doctorate who have been recommended for appointment to Assistant Professor shall be so appointed without budgetary restrictions.

COLLEGE LABORATORY TECHNICIANS shall be promoted without budgetary restrictions toward the goal of bring the percentages of those in the C, B and A titles in each college to 30, 30 and 40, respectively.

ADJUNCTS shall be eligible for promotion to higher adjunct titles.

DUE PROCESS

ACADEMIC JUDGMENT is, for the first time, defined and subjected to grievance and arbitration.

REVIEW OF ACADEMIC JUDGMENT: In cases involving failure to appoint, promote or reappoint, if the arbitrator determines that a fair academic judgment may not be made on remand "if normal academic procedures are followed," he may remand to a select faculty committee consisting of members chosen by the union, the college president, and the third by those two members.

REASONS must be given by the college president, if requested by the individual, for the president's overruling a personnel committee's recommendation to reappoint or promote.

PERSONNEL FILES: Observation reports must now be shown to employee and must be placed in Personal File, which is available for examination by the employee. The Administration File "shall contain only such materials requested by the unit of The City University or supplied by the employee in connection with the employee's employment, promotion or tenure."

PROFESSIONAL EVALUATIONS OF TEACHING FACULTY will be based on total academic performance, with special attention to teaching effectiveness according to the procedures previously established.

PROFESSIONAL EVALUATIONS OF NONCLASSROOM PERSONNEL will consist of an evaluation conference with chairman/supervisor at least once each year, preferably once each semester, reviewing "total performance and professional progress."

PROFESSIONAL EVALUATIONS FOR ALL EMPLOYEES must take place by designated dates; if they do not, employee must request same or waive right to complain regarding failure to observe/evaluate.

LECTURERS FULL-TIME AND ADJUNT LECTURERS may not be denied reappointment on the basis of professional incompetence unless evaluated during at least three semesters, including the first year of appointment, and unless two of the last four evaluations indicate unsatisfactory professional performance.

WORKLOAD

WORKLOAD FOR CLASSROOM STAFF: The contract adds to the provision in the previous contracts that, in determining what is "excessive" and "unreasonable," "practices in the University during the 1971-72 academic year shall be one of the important elements to be considered."

WORKLOAD FOR NONCLASSROOM STAFF: The contract covers nonclassroom workload for the first time, stipulating that in determining what is "excessive" and "unreasonable," "practices in the University during 1971-72 academic year shall be one of the important elements to be considered."

WORK WEEK, COUNSELORS: 30 hours.

WORK WEEK, OTHER NONCLASSROOM STAFF: 35 hours.

CLASS SIZE: A letter of agreement recommends limits of 15 students in remedial classes and 25 students in freshman English classes.

ANNUAL LEAVE FOR CLASSROOM STAFF, LIBRARIANS, AND COUNSELORS: status quo.

ANNUAL LEAVE FOR REGISTRARS is increased from 23 work days to 30 work days.

ANNUAL LEAVE FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS, CLT'S AND HEO'S is increased from 23 work days to 25 work days.

JOB SECURITY

INSTRUCTORS become eligible for contractual tenure for the first time: they may be appointed as certificated Lecturers after five years of continuous full-time service as Instructors in the same department.

BUSINESS MANAGERS AND HIGHER EDUCATION OFFICERS: The first appointment and the first reappointment shall be for one year. The second reappointment for full HEO's and full Business Managers now must be for two years, and the second reappointment for those in Assistant to, Assistant, and Associate levels, must be for three years. Notice of reappointment: May 1 for first, second and third reappointments; April 1 thereafter. Business Managers and HEO titles may be dismissed only for "just cause" during contractual appointments.

COUNSELORS: Faculty rank and tenure privileges are retained.

LIBRARIANS: Faculty rank and tenure privileges are retained.

NONCERTIFICATED LECTURERS FULL-TIME AND INSTRUCTORS with four or more years of continuous full-time service in those titles who are appointed to the rank of Assistant Professor shall receive two years of service credit toward the achievement of tenure in the title Assistant Professor.

STAFF RIGHTS

ACADEMIC FREEDOM: The rights established in the preamble of the previous contracts are extended for the first time to the nonclassroom staff.

NONDISCRIMINATION is affirmed "in respect of hire, tenure of employment or any terms or conditions of employment . . . because of sex, race, national origin, religion, political belief or membership in, or lawful activity on behalf of the union."

STATED TERMS: The Board's proposal to limit the terms of the contract to those stated explicitly in the contract was considerably modified by specifying: "All Bylaws, policies and resolutions of the Board, and all Governance plans and practices of the Colleges and of the department, as currently in effect, or as the same may be hereafter adopted, supplemented or amended, shall be subject to the said stated terms of the Agreement."

DISABILITY LEAVE (sick leave): 20 work days per year, cumulative to 160 days prorated for those on fractional schedules.

MATERNITY LEAVE for pregnancy, complications or pregnancy and childbirth may be taken to the extent of accumulated disability leave with pay and additionally without pay.

PARENTAL LEAVE may be taken by male or female employees without pay for purpose of caring for a newborn infant, for half year, extendable for an additional year.

OTHER BENEFITS

RESEARCH: $1.5 million for staff research awards annually for this year and 7/1/73, and $1.725 for 7/1/74, "available without restriction to all full-time members of the instructional staff, and the junior members of the faculty in particular."

SABBATICALS (renamed "FELLOWSHIP AWARDS"): $1 million 9/1/72, $1.5 million 9/1/73, $1.725 million 9/1/74, in sabbaticals, which shall be available to tenured members of the permanent instructional staff, including certificated Lecturers.

WELFARE FUND: Board's per-capita contribution rises to $310 effective September 1, 1972, to $330 effective September 1, 1973, and to $340 effective September 1, 1974.

TRAVEL ALLOWANCES rise from previous $500,000 annually to $625,000 annually.

TUITION WAIVER: for all full-time members, 50% of tuition fees for graduate courses up to four credits per semester and full waiver for undergraduate credit-bearing courses.

• • •

SCHOOL CALENDAR/SCHOOL YEAR NEGOTIATIONS

For the 1970-71 school year, 896 contracts from 31 states included some reference to the school calendar or school year. Of these, a sample of 164 was drawn by taking every fifth one with at least one from each state where a teacher/school board agreement existed.

The sampled contracts were examined for three items: a negotiated calendar included in the contract; a calendar not included, but guidelines indicated for the development of the calendar; and in the absence of these two, some provision for joint committee action and/or for recommendations to the superintendent and/or the board of education. The findings are shown below:

	Number of agreements	Percent
Negotiated calendar	78	47.6
Guidelines for calendar	46	28.0
Joint committes to recommend or association to be consulted on calendar	39	23.8
Proposed calendar sent to association for information purposes	1	0.6
Total	164	100.0

PUPIL ATTENDANCE DAYS

The scheduled number of instruction days in a school year are generally determined by state law; days for pre- and post-school year duties by teachers and for inservice training programs may be added. To handle emergency closing days owing to weather or other emergencies, most calendars include vacation days which can be adjusted to meet the minimum required pupil attendance days without the need for scheduling make-up days on Saturdays.

Number of days	Number of agreements	Percent
Below 180	14	8.5
180	50	30.5
181	14	8.5
182	10	6.1
183	7	4.3
184	4	2.4
185	3	1.8
Over 185	2	1.2
Not indicated	60	36.6
Total	164	99.9

In the 164 agreements examined, the number of scheduled pupil attendance days ranged from 175 in Freeport, Maine to 187 in Akron, New York.

TEACHER DAYS

The number of teacher days, including pupil attendance days, orientation days, workshops, inservice training days, and paid holidays, ranged from 180 days in Ledyard, Connecticut, to 196 days in Volusia County, Florida. The table below is a distribution of the 164 agreements by number of teacher contract days:

Number of days in school year	Number of agreements	Percent
180	2	1.2
181	9	5.5
182	5	3.0
183	9	5.5
184	16	9.8
185	21	12.8
186	10	6.1
187	12	7.3
188	9	5.5
189	4	2.4
190	11	6.7
Over 190	4	2.4
Not indicated	52	31.7
Total	164	99.9

The following table illustrates the distribution of the sample agreements by the number of days teachers are required to be at school in addition to the required instruction days:

Number of days	Number of agreements	Percent
One day	22	13.4
Two days	21	12.8
Three or more days	52	31.7
Not indicated	69	42.1
Total	164	100.0

These inservice days do not include scheduled times for parent-teacher conferences or student-teacher conferences.

In addition to the regular orientation program for all teachers, teachers new to the system may be required to attend at least one additional day before the orientation program for all teachers. Below is a distribution of the 164 agreements:

Number of days	Number of agreements	Percent
One additional day required	26	15.9
One additional day MAY be required	6	3.7
Two or more additional days required	9	5.5
Two or more additional days MAY be required	1	0.6
Not indicated	122	74.4
Total	164	100.0

HOLIDAYS/VACATION DAYS

In many agreements, the Christmas/New Year holidays and vacation period (ranging from four to eight days in addition to the two holidays) are not considered as paid leave days for teachers. The four holidays usually considered in the teacher attendance days are Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Good Friday, and Memorial Day. In addition, the Friday after Thanksgiving and the spring vacation period are considered part of the contract year.

Vacation days for pupils include the day following Thanksgiving, the day or days scheduled for teacher attendance at the state education association meeting, and/or for inservice training, as well as the days between Christmas and New Year's, and spring vacation of two to six days, usually at Easter, in addition to the regular holidays included for teachers.

SNOW DAYS

Snow days is the term used most often to mean those days schools would be closed owing to emergency weather conditions. In many states, snow as well as hurricanes, tornadoes, or epidemics can cause unscheduled school closings. Many calendars are organized so that schools may be closed two, three, or five days and still meet the minimum pupil-attendance days prescribed by law. Several analyzed contracts included provision for a shortened spring vacation and/or for extension of the school year.

Examples of these provisions are given below:

In the event inclement weather forces the closing of schools beyond the number of days that would allow 175 pupil days, Monday of the spring holiday (day after Easter) will be converted to a day of instruction.

[Little Rock, Arkansas]

Three days allows for snow, closing date dependent upon number of days used.

[Wilton, Connecticut]

Snow days (5) are assigned as follows — June 15, June 16, February 21, April 7, April 8.

[Capital School District
Dover, Illinois]

The Board will consider granting four vacation days at Eastertime if they are not needed for emergency school closings.

[Cook County, Argo
Illinois]

If closing of School is unavoidable, sufficient days will be added at the end of the school year to provide conformance with state law, at no extra cost to the district.

[Leyden High School, Franklin Park, Illinois]

The day at the end of the first semester and the day immediately prior to the end of the second semester are planned as work days without students in attendance; however, these may be utilized as days of instruction if situations arise in either semester to jeopardize the state minimum requirement of 180 days.

[Muskegan, Michigan]

Any attendance days missed in excess of five will be made up on day or days agreed to by the Association and the Board but not beyond contract days—August 28, 1970 - June 11, 1971.

[Saranac, Michigan]

Days missed as a result of inclement weather shall not be made up except in the event that the total number of teaching days should fall below a minimum of 180. In such event, week days following June 17, 1971 will be used with two work days to follow the final day pupils report.

[Fairfax County, Virginia]

Forty-six of the contracts analyzed set the school year/calendar. They vary from giving only the maximum number of teacher days to those indicating the purposes for each of the teacher days included in the total school year. Examples follow:

- 185 days maximum plus one day orientation for new teachers
- 184 days maximum between Tuesday after Labor Day and June 30
- 181 pupil-teacher days plus four institute days of which one will be the Friday before Labor Day
- 185 days total made up of 177 teacher-pupil days; three institute days; and sufficient holidays to equal 185

• No more than six days more than pupil attendance days between September 1 and June 30

• Teachers shall begin no earlier than one day prior to first day for students and end no later than one day after final day for students

BOARD ACTION

Although some aspect of the school calendar/school year was included in all 164 contracts analyzed, 70 contracts indicated that board action is final after consultation with the association or within the framework established in the agreement; one of these 70 indicated that the calendar is to be sent to the association only for information purposes. Five contracts specifically stated that the grievance procedure is waived in cases involving the school/calendar year. The 70 agreements in which board action is final are distributed in the table below by type of board action:

	Number of agreements	Percent
Board to consult with the association	29	41.4
Association forwards recommendations to superintendent to forward to board	18	25.7
Board action final within framework defined	9	12.9
District principal/superintendent to consult with association prior to board action	6	8.6
Calendar is prepared jointly by teachers and administrators	3	4.3
Calendar and charges discussed with association	2	2.9
Board to consult with teachers and building counselors	1	1.4
Board to consult with principals	1	1.4
Proposed calendar sent to association for information purposes	1	1.4
Total	70	100.0

The provisions for consultation and recommendations vary slightly as shown above, but in general, even with board action final in the preparation and adoption of the school year/school calendar, the majority of these contracts include a provision to at least consult with the association. The contract for Piscataway Township, New Jersey, for example, provides: "The Board of Education shall retain the right to determine the total number of days to be attended by pupils, and worked by teachers during the academic school year, but teachers may negotiate distribution of the teachers' working days between September 1 and June 30 of the school year." However, the superintendent prepares the annual school calendar and submits the calendar to the board of education for its consideration and approval before presenting it to the association for negotiation on the distribution of working days.

Although many provisions for consultation on school calendar/school year contain no details, 10 percent of the 164 contracts reviewed, however, provide that joint committees be established as the means for such consultation or recommendation. These provisions vary from allowing for committees to function to indicating the number to serve on such a committee and who shall appoint them. Examples of these arrangements follow:

Specific Days of school attendance to be determined mutually by the Committee and the Association.

[Freeport, Maine]

Recognizing the statutory responsibility of the Committee and the Superintendent for determination of the school calendar, and further recognizing the skills and concern of the staff in the matter, the Committee and the Association agree that the determination of the school calendar will be cooperatively arrived at through joint consultation between the Association and the Administration, subject to final approval of the Committee.

[West Springfield, Massachusetts]

The Superintendent of Schools shall prepare a tentative school year calendar which draft shall be submitted to a Calendar Committee appointed by the Association, consisting of three members whose names shall be made known in writing to the Superintendent by the Association, no later than December 31st. Within two weeks of receipt of the draft, the Calendar Committee and the Superintendent shall meet to review the proposed calendar. Within a reasonable time, the Superintendent and the Calendar Committee shall jointly submit a recommended calendar for the school year to the Board. In the event the Board rejects the entire proposed calendar or any part thereof, the Superintendent and the Calendar Committee shall jointly reconsider a proposed calendar and resubmit a revised proposal to the Board.

[Union Twp., New Jersey]

A committee shall be formed composed of administrators and representatives of MITA in equal numbers to recommend a school calendar for the school year 1970-71. It is understood and agreed, however, that the Board shall have the final decision which shall not be subject to the Grievance Procedure.

[Middle Island, New York]

The school calendar, including the starting school date, ending date, unpaid vacation periods, legal and paid holidays, number of pupil attendance and membership days, and the teacher record days will be established through the negotiating process by the Board and the representatives of the EAW prior to its adoption by the Board and before any contract for the year in question is distributed.

[Waukesha, Wisconsin]

2572

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Spencer, Massachusetts

Between the School Committee of the Spencer-East Brookfield Regional School District and David Prouty High School Teachers' Association, effective September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1975. Approximately 25 certificated professional employees, excluding the superintendent, principal, vice-principal, and guidance director. Provision for automatic renewal unless either party notifies the other in writing of its desire to modify or terminate the agreement prior to August 31. Provision for negotiation of any policy change by the school committee which is neither covered by the terms of the agreement nor proposed by the association.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,875 to $11,915, 11 increments; M.A., $8,675 to $12,715, 11 increments; M.A. + 30, $9,375 to $13,415, 11 increments; (1974-75) B.A., $8,250 to $12,500, 11 increments; M.A., $9,050 to $13,300, 11 increments; M.A. + 30 $9,750 to $14,000, 11 increments; teachers currently employed who have taken graduate courses not included in their master's program will be given credit for those courses toward a master's + 30; after September 1973, all courses must be approved; all honorably discharged veterans with 21 or more months of active military service will be allowed one additional step on the salary schedlue; the Committee has the right to withhold additional increments for just cause.

DIFFERENTIALS: Football coach, $1,100; boys' basketball coach, $900 minimum; athletic director, 1st football assistant, $650; national defense coordinator, $600; audio-visual director, coach of baseball, $550; 2nd football assistant, $540; cheerleading coach and advisor, cheerleaders' tournament, director of speech activities, boys' assistant basketball coach, soccer coach, $500; director of yearbook, girls' basketball coach, intramurals director, $450; faculty manager of athletics, $350; track coach, $330; student council advisor, 3rd football assistant, assistant soccer coach, $300; director of dramatics (per play), director of school paper, $275; assistant director of speech activities, junior varsity baseball coach, field hockey coach, boys' and girls' tennis coaches, girls' softball coach, $250; freshman basketball coach, golf coach, cross country coach, $220; director of scrapbook, yearbook business manager, $193; graduation speakers, honor societies and scholarships and awards, director of project fair, $138; technical advisor of school plays (per play), $100; compensation for professional improvement courses approved by the superintendent of schools paid at the rate of $50 per semester hour on the successful completion of each course, limited to three hours per semester and 9 hours in any one year.

INSURANCE: Board pays 50 percent of Blue Cross-Blue Shield and $2,000 term life insurance.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction for local, state, and national association dues.

LEAVES: One day personal leave for first-year teachers, two days for second and third year, and three days for tenure teachers; requests must be approved by superintendent of schools and submitted up to three days in advance; condolence leave for death in the immediate family; unpaid leave of absence up to one year for professional improvement if approved by school committee;

SICK LEAVE PLAN

1. 1st year teacher will be granted ten days sick leave.
2. 2nd year teacher will be granted ten additional days cumulative to twenty.
3. 3rd year teacher will be granted ten additional days cumulative to thirty days. Teachers who are in their first, second, or third year of service in Spencer-East Brookfield Regional School District and have used their days of sick leave will pay their substitutes for a period of ten days after their days of sick leave have been exhausted. After that 1/185th of the year's salary will be deducted for each day missed. Teachers on tenure will have thirty days plus one day for each year of experience. Example: A teacher who has taught in Spencer and Spencer-East Brookfield Regional School District ten years will have a cumulative total of forty days.
4. Sick leave days are reneweble annually for both tenure and nontenure teachers.

   Example 1—A teacher who has taught ten years and accumulates forty days and used them all in one year will start the next year with forty one days.

   Example 2—Second year teacher uses all of her sick leave days will start 3rd year with thirty days. In other words all teachers start each year with a maximum number of sick leave days according to the number of years they have taught.
5. After a tenure teacher uses her entire sick leave, the pay of the substitute will be deducted from her pay for a period of one year from the date of first absence for the original sickness or injury.
6. A doctor's certificate could be required for personal illness of five or more consecutive school days.

INSTRUCTION: Maximum of 5 teaching periods daily, sixth voluntary; teacher with fewer than 100 pupils may have load increased to 110 in 1973-75, other teachers' pupil loads may not be increased more than 10% over 1967-68; pupil load of no teacher will exceed 130 except for music and physical education classes; student teachers to be taken on a voluntary basis, regular teacher will remain in class majority of time and will be responsible for class including grades.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation; chest X rays or intradermal tuberculin skin tests required every three years by law; at least 30 days' notice required for resignation, no resignation will be accepted between August 1 and October 1; cafeteria will be supervised daily by a teacher from 7:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m.; male teachers required in turn to supervise pupils bus for one week at a time from 2:30 p.m. until the last bus has left; teachers to arrive no later than 8:00 a.m.; teachers shall remain 45 minutes on the day set by their department for the purpose of aiding students, however, if no student comes for help, the teacher may leave after 30 minutes; teachers shall remain 15 minutes three days; departure at 2:35 permitted on Fridays, the day before a holiday, and on days when teachers must return to school for school activities.

Portland, Oregon

Between the Portland Association of Teachers and School District No. 1, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 3,600 certificated professional employees. Provision for amendment.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $7,830 to $11,140, 12 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $11,340 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $11,500 maximum; B.A. plus 45 hours, $12,500 maximum; M.A. $9,020-$12,720, 11 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $13,250 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $13,790 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $14,280 maximum; longevity increment paid teachers who received the maximum salary for a B.A. or M.A. degree during the 1968-69 school year and will receive the maximum salary for those levels on the 1973-74 schedule at the rate of 2-½ percent of his annual salary for B.A. through M.A. plus 15 hours and 3 percent of his annual salary for M.A. plus 30 through M.A. plus 45; additional $500 for doctorate.

Article 21
Severance Pay

A. Severance Pay Credit

For each year commencing July 1, 1973, during which this plan is in effect every full-time teacher (regardless of the period employed) shall be credited with a "severance pay credit" computed as follows up to the maximum described below:

$$\frac{\text{50\% x Base x sick leave days granted during any year the plan is in operation.}}{100}$$

(For severance pay credits under this plan granted during July 1, 1971 to June 30, 1973, see the 1971 Professional Agreement between the District and the Association implemented by Board resolutions numbers 5340 and X6611.) As the sick leave days so credited are used, they shall be charged against the teacher at the same rate and in accordance with the same formula and the excess of the amounts so credited over the amounts so charged shall be the "net severance pay credit." At no time shall the net severance pay credit exceed the maximum of $1,200, and sick leave days which at the time of crediting would cause the net balance to exceed said maximum shall not be counted at that or any other time. For purposes of this Article (1) "base" means the basic salary of a teacher with a BA degree at the zero experience step as such base is in effect at the time the sick leave days are initially granted, (2) only the sick leave days granted under Article 12A1 of this Agreement shall be counted and (3) the days of sick leave shall be deemed used in inverse order to that in which they were originally granted under said Article whether or not such days were part of the severance pay credit.

B. Eligibility and Payment

To be eligible for payment of the severance pay credit in accordance with this plan, the teacher must have been continuously and regularly employed by this District as a full-time teacher for five successive years and the termination of such teacher's employment with the District must have been voluntary on the part of the teacher or as the result of death or retirement in accordance with the Public Employees Retirement Act or under conditions that would constitute such retirement were such Act applicable to such teacher. On or before July 1 of the year of such termination of employment an amount equal to the net severance pay credit of the teacher at the time of termination of employment shall be payable without interest to the teacher or, in the event of his or her death, the personal representative of the teacher. Prior to termination of employment no part of the severance pay credit shall be assignable, voluntarily or by operation of law, or be subject to judicial process. However, the amount of the net severance pay credit at all times shall be deemed a contingent indebtedness from the District subject only to the charges provided above for use of sick leave days and to the teacher becoming eligible for payment as provided herein.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Base is minimum for B.A., $7,830) athletic director, 26%; athletic coach (head), 16%; department chairman (A), drama (A), forensics (A), instrumental music (A), head teachers, 12%; drama (B), 10%; assistant coach, newspaper, yearbook, 9%; department chairman (B), drama (C), forensics (B), instrumental music, vocal music (B), consultants, unit leaders, 8%; intramurals (A), 7%; pep club (A), 6%; intramurals (B), rally, TV producers and directors, college and financial aid coordinators, inservice coordinators, 5%; minor sports coach, department chairman (C), J.V. rally, pep club (B), 4%; safety patrol (A), 3%; pep club (C), safety patrol (B), AV coordinator, radio-TV coordinator, 2%; intramurals high school, 1-¼%; special projects, 1-1/16%.

OTHER: Daily rate for substitute teachers with no degree, $32.48, with bachelor's degree, $35.95, with master's degree, $39.42; $4.65 additional per day paid substitute after 10 days of continuous service in the same assignment; mileage compensation for required on-the-job travel equal to .25 per enrolled child; teachers of inservice classes paid $342 for a 2-hour course and $512 for a 3-hour course in the winter, $439 for a 2-hour course and $655 for a 3-hour course in the summer; a teacher substituting in an administrative or supervisory position paid teaching salary plus $7.38 per working day; when the teacher assumes full responsibility for the position for an extended period of time, he shall receive the pay of the regular appointment.

INSURANCE: Board pays up to $18.71 per month toward the cost of medical-hospitalization insurance; fully paid liability insurance; long-term income protection plan available; tax-shelter annuity available.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, credited the first school day of the fall semester, unlimited accumulation; when a teacher has exhausted his sick leave, he shall receive leave equal to one day for each year of eight or more calendar months of service in the district at two-thirds of his daily rate; a teacher who has accumulated sick leave in another school district, and employed during the preceeding year, may be credited to his accumulated sick leave up to 180 days; 3 days per year for illness in the immediate family; absence owing to injury incurred in the course of employment not charged against the teacher's sick leave days; teacher paid the difference between his salary and benefits received under the Oregon Workmen's Compensation Law, but not to exceed 180 days for any one injury; one-half day for funeral of a relative or friend in the city limits or within a radius of 15 miles from the city limits, full day if funeral is more than 15 miles from the city; 3 consecutive days for death in the immediate family, five consecutive days and two additional days at two-thirds of scheduled salary for death of spouse; sabbatical leave for certificated teacher after 5 years' service at three-fourths of annual salary or the B.A. minimum, whichever is lesser; up to 3 days emergency leave granted for unanticipated circumstances beyond the employee's control; paid leave less court fees to appear as a court witness or when subpoenaed for jury duty; 2 days credited to each teacher at the beginning of the school year for educational conferences related to assignment or for visitation to exemplary programs; sabbatical leave for travel after each ten years of consecutive service; sabbatical leave for rest and recuperation after each 20 years of consecutive service; automatic increases in salary as if teaching during the period of such leave.

ASSOCIATION: Released time with pay for five association representatives to the Consultation Committee for negotiations; the chief negotiator for the association may be released without pay from his teaching responsibilities; released time for representative member of the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee to investigate a grievance or to attend a grievance hearing; released time with pay for three association representatives to the Consultation Committee for reviewing the administration of the contract and resolving problems that may arise; a two-year leave of absence may be granted to a tenure teacher to serve as an association officer or on its staff; upon return from such leave the teacher shall be placed at the next step on the current salary scale above the one which he occupied during his last full year before beginning of such leave; right to use school equipment, including typewriters, mimeographing machines, other duplicating equipment, calculating machines, and audiovisual equipment at reasonable times; right to post notices on bulletin boards; right to use inter-school mail and mail boxes; board shall provide information relating to financial resources of the district; association shall have the right to have brief announcements as a scheduled item on the agenda of any faculty meeting; the principal and building representative shall meet at least once each month to review and resolve building problems in the administration of the contract.

INSTRUCTION: One-half hour duty-free lunch period; the school day shall begin 15 minutes before the opening of school and shall end 15 minutes following dismissal of students; school calendar comprises 177 instruction days, 7 planning days, and 6 paid holidays.

Educators Council

A. Policy and Purpose

The District recognizes the requisite expertise and ability of teachers to provide valuable input regarding educational policies, regulations and practices, including, but not limited to: curriculum, textbook selection, personnel hiring and assignment practices, stating for reduced enrollment, noninstructional duties, class size, planning time, evaluation, experimental programs and student discipline. The purpose of the procedure described herein included that of determining teachers' views on issues other than matters described in subsection (1) of ORS 342-460. Nothing herein is intended to imply that the subjects of such input are or are not statutory subjects for consultations.

However, the councils hereinafter described shall not deal with grievances which may be processed under the District's grievance procedure and shall not make recommendations with respect to salaries, fringe benefits or matters agreed upon with the teachers' statutory consultations representative.

No arbitration award otherwise authorized by the District's Grievance Procedure shall diminish the right of the Board to manage the District or shall determine that any administrative regulation or Board policy adopted in response to recommendations hereunder is invalid or should be suspended but such award based on a failure to comply with the procedures established in this Article may direct compliance therewith.

B. Establishment, Composition and Elections

1. There are hereby established Educators Councils consisting of an Area Educators Council in each of the three Areas of the District and a District Educators Council.

2. Each of the Area Educators Councils shall consist of three teachers and three administrators. The administrators shall be appointed by the Area Superintendent or his designee. The teacher members shall be elected as follows: one each from K-4, 5-8 and high school.

3. A secret ballot election for the teacher members shall be conducted by the District's Public Information Department during the first week of May each year commencing May 5, 1973. Membership in the Association shall not be a requisite for candidates. Candidates for positions determined by grade level shall run at large throughout the area. Each member shall be elected for a two-year term except that in the initial year the term for one position as designated by the Area Superintendent shall be for one year. Election shall require a plurality. The candidate receiving the next higher number of votes shall be an alternate member to serve in the absence of the elected member. In order to vote in the elections, a teacher must be regularly employed in the District at least one half time.

4. The District Educators Council shall consist of the following:

One teacher member of each Area Educators Council, selected by the teacher members of the respective Area Educators Council, to serve a term of one year.

Three administrative members designated by the Superintendent.

The Superintendent or his designee.

One representative of the Association designated by it from time to time.

C. Procedure - Area Educators Councils

Each Area Educators Council shall meet at the request of its Chairman or of a majority of the members thereof and not less often than once each month during the school year. Concerns discussed shall include any which are received by members of the Council from their respective Association building representatives. Recommendations resulting from these discussions shall be reduced to writing and shall be delivered to the Area Superintendent or to the District Educators Council, according to the nature of the recommendations, as designated by the Area Educators Council. In the case of recommendations to the District Educators Council, they shall be delivered to the Area Superintendent who shall promptly deliver them to the District Educators Council together with such comments as he may wish to make. Any recommendation may include a minority report.

Chairmanship shall rotate every fourth meeting between the teachers and the administrators. The District shall provide release time for members of the staff as may be necessary for such meetings. Minutes, including all recommendations, shall be provided all members of the Council, the Association and all Association building representatives and shall be available in the professional library of each building.

D. Procedure - District Educators Council

The District Educators Council shall meet not less than once each three months of the school eyar. It shall consider all recommendations and reports submitted to it by Area Educators Councils, copies of which shall be furnished each member of the District Educators Council. It may also initiate proposals and reports. Before adopting final recommendations, the District Educators Council shall submit them to the affected Area Educators Councils for their recommendations. The District Educators Council shall reduce to writing its recommendations for adoption by the Board or the Superintendent, according to the nature of the recommendations, as designated by the District Council. The District Council shall accompany its recommendations with:

a. a summary of the discussion of the matter before the District Council and of any recommendations received from affected Area Educators Councils; and

b. a statement of the reasons in support of the recommendations of the District Council; and

c. such other supporting information as appears to the District Council to be pertinent or helpful to the Board or Superintendent.

A minority report may accompany the recommendation. In the case of recommendations to the Board, they shall be delivered to the Superintendent who shall promptly deliver them, with accompanying material, to the Board together with such comments as he may wish to make. He shall promptly advise the District Council of his action.

Chairmanship of the District Council shall rotate between the teachers and administrators each meeting. The Chairman shall set an agenda according to the chronological order in which he receives the recommendations unless otherwise determined by the District Council. The District shall provide release time for staff as necessary for such meetings.

E. Action on Recommendations

The Superintendent shall promptly consider each recommendation to him by the District Educators Council and shall inform it in writing of his response to the recommendation. The Board shall promptly consider each recommendation to it by the District Educators Council and shall inform such Council in writing of its response to the recommendation.

Board policies hereafter adopted in response to recommendations of the District Educators Council shall not be modified by the Board until after advance notice to the District Educators Council which provides a reasonable opportunity for comment and recommendations thereon by such Council; provided that the Board may, in case of emergency, make interim changes pending such recommendations of the Council.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; right to review personnel file exclusive of materials received prior to the date of employment, and to be accompanied by an association representative; the teacher may respond to any item placed in his personnel file and this response shall become a part of the file; board will budget $75,000 to pay expenses of teachers to attend professional conferences; sufficient leave time to attend without loss of compensation shall be granted; if a reduction in force becomes necessary because of a tax base or levy failure, the district will consider personnel for release in the reverse order of their length of service but with consideration being given to certification, grade leve, special qualifications and experiences, minority employment, and increased level of training.

Fredricktown, Pennsylvania

Between Bethlehem-Center School District and Bethlehem-Center Teacher's Association, effective August 28, 1972, to August 16, 1974. Approximately 126 certificated professional employees. Provision for renegotiation no later than January 10, 1974.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,700 to $12,000, 13 increments; M.A., $8,100 to $12,800, 14 increments; teachers with provisional certification will receive a bonus of $100 for each block of 6 graduate credits until permanent certification is earned; for each block of 6 graduate credits taken staff members with permanent certification will receive a $100 increment a maximum of three times or until a master's degree or equivalent is earned; for every 9 credits taken following the master's or equivalent, an increment of $100 will be given up to five times; guidance personnel on contracts in excess of 180 days shall be paid 1/180 of salary for each day in excess of 180; head teachers over 6 or fewer teachers shall receive $375 in 1973-74 and an additional $60 for each additional teacher working more than 50% of his time in head teacher's building; substitutes who have served a full year in the district and are subsequently hired as professional employees shall be placed on the next step of the salary scale.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Each unit equal to $100 dollars) senior high school—yearbook, 4 units, junior and senior class sponsors, boys and girls intramurals directors, 2½, newspaper, 2, sophomore class sponsor, varsity club, student council, National Honor Society, 1; (athletic coaches based on longevity in the district), head football coach, 12 - 18, athletic director, 12 - 18, head wrestling and basketball coach, 10 - 16, 1st football assistant, 8 - 11, 2nd football assistant, 7 - 10, basketball and wrestling assistants, head baseball and track coaches, 6 - 9, equipment manager, 5 - 6½, baseball and track assistants, 4 - 5½, head golf coach, 2½ - 4, cheerleader coach, 2 - 3; junior high school—publication, 2, student council, 1; (athletics coaches based on longevity in the district), head football coach, 7 - 10, head wrestling and basketball coaches, 5 - 8, football assistant, 4 - 7, wrestling and basketball assistants, head track coach, 3 - 6, athletic director 2¾ - 4, cheerleader coach, 1 - 2; chaperones and those involved in the management or direction of any school sponsored activity, 1/10 of a unit per event.

OTHER: Mileage allowance of $.12 for use of own car in student-related activities; $200 shall be paid to instructional music teachers and $300 to home and school visitor teacher, elementary guidance counselor, and nurse in lieu of mileage; head teachers receive mileage allowance, registration fees, meals, and lodging not to exceed $25 per day to attend elementary conventions, workshops, or seminars; employees who report for duty earlier or stay later than the agreed-upon school day shall receive additional compensation at 1½ times hourly rate for each hour or fraction thereof.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, credited on the opening day of school year, unlimited accumulation; unused sick leave paid at the end of the school year at a rate of $10 per day; teachers who retire or resign before the end of the school year shall receive on a pro rata basis $10 per day of unused sick leave up to $1,000; a leave of absence without pay will be granted to teachers who have exhausted sick leave and are unable to teach because of personal illness or disability; absence caused by illness or injury incurred in the course of employment shall not be charged against the teacher's sick leave days;1 day personal leave for personal, legal, religious, business, household, or family matters which require absence during school hours; and a second day to those who have accumulated 30 days' sick leave over a four-year period; administration must be notified five days before intended day of absence; employees shall receive $10 for any unused personal day at the end of the school year; an emergency day for any concern serious enough to warrant teacher's absence from school; leave for any legal proceeding that the teacher is required by law to attend, compensation is the difference between his salary and the amount he receives from attending these proceedings; up to 4 days' bereavement leave for death in the immediate family; other leaves may be granted by the board for good cause; the board shall pay the teacher the difference between his salary and benefits received under Workmen's Compensation; leave for visiting other schools, professional meetings, or conferences granted at the discretion of the principal; up to 4 days for two representatives of the association to attend conferences or conventions of state and national affiliated organizations; paid leave for military obligation, no deduction of military pay; sabbatical leave at ½ annual salary for not more than 10% of staff who have at least 8 years' service in the state including at least 5 years in the Bethlehem-Center School District; leave of absence up to 1 year for exchange teaching, foreign or military teaching programs, Peace Corps, Teacher Corps, or Job Corps as a full-time participant, or a cultural travel or work program related to professional responsibilities; leave up to one year for study related to professional responsibilities; all benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence began shall be restored to him upon his return.

INSURANCE: Board pays 100 percent of the health plan selected by the employee.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; released time for association representative or any teacher who participates in negotiation or grievance proceedings; one period per day released time for association president; 1½ hours per week released time for association representative to conduct association business; up to 2 years leave granted to serve as an officer of the association or its staff; use of school buildings, facilities, and equipment; bulletin boards for association use in faculty lounges and dining rooms; space on bulletin board in central office; use of inter-school mail and mail boxes; the right to speak to employees during any faculty or other professional meeting for at least 10 minutes with the opportunity to suggest items for the succeeding agenda; the board to provide information relating to the educational program and the financial resources of the district, including class size, number of specialists, annual financial reports and audits, register of certified personnel, tentative budgetary requirements and allocations, agendas and minutes of all board meetings, census data, individual and group teacher health insurance premiums and experience figures, names and addresses of all teachers, any other information that will aid in the formation of constructive programs on behalf of teachers and their students, and any information necessary to process grievance or complaint.

INSTRUCTION: The board will keep classes at an acceptable size as dictated by the building facilities available and in the best interests of the students; the school day shall be seven consecutive hours between 7:45 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.; Board shall confer with the association regarding the 1973-74 calendar; teachers shall be given written notice of their schedules for the forthcoming year by the preceding first day of August; a minimum of five educational aides to work a minimum of 20 hours per week will be hired by the 1973-74 year; the board will hire out to a firm the computer preparation of attendance and permanent records for the 1973-74 year; three councils, elementary, junior high, and senior high, will evaluate and suggest improvements for the educational programs and practices in the school system; each council is to be composed of 5 teachers appointed by the association and 5 members appointed by the board.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; if the association feels that a grievance affects a group or class of teachers, it may process the grievance through all levels of the grievance procedure even though the aggrieved person does not wish to do so; no association member shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation, or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause; all information forming the basis for disciplinary action will be made available to the employee and the association; employee shall be given prior written notice of the reasons why he must appear before the board, or any committee thereof, when the hearing concerns any matter which could adversely affect his continuation and he may have a representative of the association or legal counsel present to advise him; assignment of teachers outside the scope of their qualifications and certification and transfer of a teacher to another building after initial employment are subject to the grievance procedure; employee has the right to review his personnel file and be accompanied by an association representative; no derogatory material shall be placed in his file without his knowledge; derogatory material is subject to the grievance procedure; all monitoring or observation of teachers shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher; evaluations shall contain teaching strengths, weakness, and suggestions for improvement of performance; employee shall be given a copy of evaluation prior to any conference to discuss the evaluation.

CLASS LOADS

SECONDARY TEACHERS:

The daily teaching load shall be five (5) academic teaching periods per day plus a 45-minute study hall duty or activity plus a 30-minute duty-free lunch period, plus five (5) preparations per week. No teacher shall have more than two (2) preparation periods per day. If a teacher is required to teach six (6) academic classes he or she shall not be assigned to any home room period and/or fifth period activity assignment.

ELEMENTARY TEACHERS:

Primary

The daily teaching load for primary elementary teacher shall not exceed five (5) hours and forty-five (45) minutes of pupil contact per day, plus one (1) thirty (30) minute duty-free lunch period. Each primary elementary teacher shall also be provided at least five (f) forty-five (45) minute preparation periods per week. No teacher shall have more than two (2) preparation periods per day.

Intermediate

The daily teaching load shall be six (6) forty-five (45) minute periods per day, plus one (1) thirty (30) minute duty-free lunch period. Each intermediate teacher shall also be provided at least five (5), forty-five (45) minute preparation periods per week. No teacher shall have more than two (2) preparation periods per day.

NUMBER OF PREPARATIONS:

Secondary teachers shall not be required to teach more than three (3) subject areas, nor more than a total of three (3) teaching preparations per day.

Texts

OREGON
PUBLIC EMPLOYEE COLLECTIVE BARGAINING ACT
(Effective October 1973)

Section 1. ORS 243.711.

243.711. As used in ORS 243.711 to 243.795, unless the contex requires otherwise:

(1) "Appropriate bargaining unit" means the unit designated by the board to be appropriate for the purpose of collective bargaining.

(2) "Board" means the Public Employe Relations Board.

(3) "Certification" means official recognition by the board that a labor organization is the exclusive representative for all of the employes in the appropriate bargaining unit.

(4) "Collective bargaining" means the performance of the mutual obligation of a public employer and the representative of its employes to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to employment relations, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder, and the execution of a written contract incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party. However, this obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession.

(5) "Compulsory arbitration" means the procedure whereby parties involved in a labor dispute are required by law to submit their differences to a third party for a final and binding decision.

(6) "Confidential employe" means one who assists and acts in a confidential capacity to a person who formulates, determines and effectuates management policies in the area of collective bargaining.

(7) "Employment relations" includes, but is not limited to, matters concerning direct or indirect monetary benefits, hours, vacations, sick leave, grievance procedures and other conditions of employment.

(8) "Exclusive representative" means the labor organization which, as a result of certification by the board or recognition by the employer, has the right to be the collective bargaining agent of all employes in an appropriate bargaining unit.

(9) "Factfinding" means identification of the major issues in a particular labor dispute by one or more impartial individuals who review the positions of the parties, resolve factual differences and make recommendations for settlement of the dispute.

(10) "Fair-share agreement" means an agreement between the public employer and the recognized or certified bargaining representative of public employes whereby employes who are not members of the employe organization are required to make in-lieu-of-dues payment to an employe organization. Such agreement shall reflect the opinion of a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit.

(11) "Labor dispute" means any controversy concerning employment relations or concerning the association or representation of persons in negotiating, fixing, maintaining, changing, or seeking to arrange terms or conditions of employment relations, regardless of whether the disputants stand in the proximate relation of employer and employe.

(12) "Labor organization" means any organization which has as one of its purposes representing employes in their employment relations with public employers.

(13) "Legislative body" means the Legislative Assembly, the city council, the county commission and any other board or commission empowered to levy taxes.

(14) "Supervisory employe" means any individual having authority in the interest of the employer to hire, transfer, suspend, lay off, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward or discipline other employes, or having responsibility to direct them, or to adjust their grievances, or effectively to recommend such action, if in connection therewith, the exercise of such authority is not of a merely routine or clerical nature, but requires the use of independent judgment. However, the exercise of any function of authority numerated in this subsection shall not necessarily require the conclusion that the individual so exercising that function is a supervisor within the meaning of this 1973 Act.

(15) "Mediation" means assistance by an impartial third party in reconciling a labor dispute between the public employer and the exclusive representative regarding employment relations.

(16) "Payment-in-lieu-of-dues" means an assessment of all employes in an appropriate bargaining unit to defray the cost for services by the exclusive representative in negotiations and contract administration as determined by the board.

(17) "Public employe" means an employe of a public employer but does not include elected officials, persons appointed to serve on boards or commissions or persons who are "confidential employes" or "supervisory employes".

(18) "Public employer" means the State of Oregon or any political subdivision therein, including cities, counties, community colleges, school districts, special districts and public and quasi-public corporations, except mass transit districts organized under ORS chapter 267. "Public employer" includes any individual designated by the public employer to act in its interests in dealing with public employes.

(19) "Strike" means a public employe's refusal in concerted action with others to report for duty, or his wilful absence from his position, or his stoppage of work, or his absence in whole or in part from the full, faithful or proper performance of his duties of employment, for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions, compensation, rights, privileges or obligations of public employment; however, nothing shall limit or impair the right of any public employee to lawfully express or communicate a complaint or opinion on any matter related to the conditions of employment.

(20) "Unfair labor practice" means the commission of an act designated an unfair labor practice in section 4 of this 1973 Act.

(21) "Voluntary arbitration" means the procedure whereby parties involved in a labor dispute mutually agree to submit their differences to a third party for a final and binding decision.

Section 2. The Legislative Assembly finds and declares that:

(1) The people of this state have a fundamental interest in the development of harmonious and cooperative relationships between government and its employes;

(2) Recognition by public employers of the right of public employes to organize and full acceptance of the principle and procedure of collective negotiation between public employers and public employe organizations can alleviate various forms of strife and unrest. Experience in the private and public sectors of our economy has proved that unresolved disputes in the public service are injurious to the public, the governmental agencies, and public employes;

(3) Experience in private and public employment has also proved that protection by law of the right of employes to organize and negotiate collectively safeguards employes and the public from injury, impairment and interruptions of necessary services, and removes certain recognized sources of strife and unrest, by encouraging practices fundamental to the peaceful adjustment of disputes arising out of differences as to wages, hours, terms and other working conditions, and by establishing greater equality of bargaining power between public employers and public employes;

(4) The state has a basic obligation to protect the public by attempting to assure the orderly and uninterrupted operations and functions of government; and

(5) It is the purpose of ORS 243.711 to 243.795 to obligate public employers, public employes and their representatives to enter into collective negotiations with willingness to resolve grievances and disputes relating to employment relations and to enter into written and signed contracts evidencing agreements resulting from such negotiations. It is also the purpose of ORS 243.711 to 243.795 to promote the improvement of employer-employe relations within the various public employers by providing a uniform basis for recognizing the right of public employes to join organizations of their own choice, and to be represented by such organizations in their employment relations with public employers.

Section 3. ORS 243.730.

243.730. Public employes have the right to form, join and participate in the activities of labor organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of representation and collective bargaining with their public employer on matters concerning employment relations.

Section 4. (1) It is an unfair labor practice for a public employer or its designated representative to do any of the following:

(a) Interfere with, restrain or coerce employes in or because of the exercise of rights guaranteed in ORS 243.730.

(b) Dominate, interfere with or assist in the formation, existence or administration of any employe organization.

(c) Discriminate in regard to hiring, tenure or any terms or condition of employment for the purpose of encouraging or discouraging membership in an employe organization. Nothing in this section is intended to prohibit the entering into of a fair-share agreement between a public employer and the exclusive bargaining representative of its employes. If such a "fair-share" agreement has been agreed to by the public employer and exclusive representative, nothing shall prohibit the deduction of the payment-in-lieu-of-dues from the salaries or wages of such employes.

(d) Discharge or otherwise discriminate against an employe because the employe has signed or filed an affidavit, petition or complaint or has given information or testimony under ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(e) Refuse to bargain collectively in good faith with the exclusive representative.

(f) Refuse or fail to comply with any provision of ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(g) Violate the provisions of any written contract with respect to employment relations including an agreement to arbitrate or to accept the terms of an arbitration award, where previously the parties have agreed to accept such awards as final and binding upon them.

(h) Refuse to reduce an agreement, reached as a result of collective bargaining, to writing and sign such contract.

(i) Communicate directly or indirectly with employes in the bargaining unit other than the designated bargaining representative during the period of negotiations regarding employment relations, except for matters relating to the performance of the work involved.

(2) It is an unfair labor practice for a public employe or for a labor organization or its designated representative to do any of the following:

(a) Interfere with, restrain or coerce any employe in or because of the exercise of any right guaranteed under ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(b) Refuse to bargain collectively in good faith with the public employer if the labor organization is an exclusive representative.

(c) Refuse or fail to comply with any provision of ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(d) Violate the provisions of any written contract with respect to employment relations, including an agreement to arbitrate or to accept the terms of an arbitration award, where previously the parties have agreed to accept such awards as final and binding upon them.

(e) Refuse to reduce an agreement, reached as a result of collective bargaining, to writing and sign the resulting contract.

(f) Communicate directly or indirectly during the period of negotiations with officials other than those designated to represent the employer regarding employment relations.

(3) No provision of ORS 243.711 to 243.795 makes an unfair labor practice any act that was performed before the effective date of this 1973 Act.

(4) An injured party may file a written complaint with the board not later than 180 days following the occurrence of an unfair labor practice.

Section 5. (1) Whenever a written complaint is filed alleging that any person has engaged in or is engaging in any unfair labor practice listed in subsections (1) and (2) of section 4 of this 1973 Act, the board or its agent shall:

(a) Cause to be served upon such person a copy of the complaint; and

(b) Investigate the complaint to determine if a hearing on the unfair labor practice charge is warranted. If the investigation reveals that no issue of fact or law exists, the board may dismiss the complaint.

(c) Set the matter for hearing if the board finds in its investigation made pursuant to paragraph (b) of this subsection that an issue of fact or law exists. The hearing shall be before the board or an agent of the board not more than 20 days after a copy of the complaint has been served on the person.

(2) Where, as a result of the hearing required pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section, the board finds that any person named in the complaint has engaged in or is engaging in any unfair labor practice charged in the complaint, the board shall;

(a) State its findings of fact;

(b) Issue and cause to be served on such person an order that he cease and desist from the unfair labor practice; and

(c) Take such affirmative action, including but not limited to the reinstatement of employes with or without back pay, as necessary to effectuate the purposes of this 1973 Act.

(3) Where the baord finds that the person named in the complaint has not engaged in or is not engaging in an unfair labor practice, it shall issue an order dismissing the complaint.

(4) As used in subsections (1) to (3) of this section, "person" includes but is not limited to individuals, labor organizations, associations and public employers.

Section 6. ORS 243.735.

243.735. (1) A labor organization certified by the Public Employe Relations Board or recognized by the public employer is the exclusive representative of the employes of a public employer for the purposes of collective bargaining with respect to employment relations. Nevertheless any agreements entered into involving union security including an all-union agreement or agency shop agreement must safeguard the rights of nonassociation of employes, based on bona fide religious tenets or teachings of a church or religious body of which such employe is a member. Such employe shall pay an amount of money equivalent to regular union dues and initiation fees and assessments, if any, to a nonreligious charity or to another charitable organization mutually agreed upon by the employe affected and the representative of the labor organization to which such employe would otherwise be required to pay dues. The employe shall furnish written proof to his employer that this has been done.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, an individual employe or group of employes at any time may present grievances to their employer and have such grievances adjusted, without the intervention of the labor organization, if:

(a) The adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective bargaining contract or agreement then in effect; and

(b) The labor organization has been given opportunity to be present at the adjustment.

(3) Nothing in this section prevents a public employer from recognizing a labor organization which represents at least a majority of employes as the exclusive representative of the employes of a public employer when the board has not designated the appropriate bargaining unit or when the board has not certified an exclusive representative in accordance with section 8 of this 1973 Act.

(4) Those employes who selected representation as provided in ORS 342.460 or 342.760 shall be allowed to continue such representation until challenged by the provisions of this 1973 Act. Representation by committee shall not be recognized after July 1, 1974. In addition, those employes covered under both the teacher and the classified school employe consultation statutes shall have the opportunity to challenge the incumbent organization or committee during the first 30 days after the beginning of the 1973-74 school year.

Section 7. If a question of representation exists, the board shall:

(1) Upon application of a public employer, public employe or a labor organization, designate the appropriate bargaining unit, and in making its determination shall consider such factors as community of interest, wages, hours and other working conditions of the employes involved, the history of collective bargaining, and the desires of the employes. The board may determine a unit to be the appropriate unit in a particular case even though some other unit might also be appropriate.

(2) Investigate and conduct a hearing on a petition that has been filed by:

(a) A labor organization alleging that 30 percent of the employes in an appropriate bargaining unit desire to be represented for collective bargaining by an exclusive representative;

(b) A labor organization alleging that 30 percent of the employes in an appropriate bargaining unit assert that the designated exclusive representative is no longer the representative of the majority of the employes in the unit;

(c) A public employer alleging that one or more labor organizations has presented a claim to the public employer requesting recognition as the exclusive representative in an appropriate bargaining unit; or

(d) An employe or group of employes alleging that 30 percent of the employes assert that the designated exclusive representative is no longer the representative of the majority of employes in the unit.

(3) Except as provided in section 9 of this 1973 Act, if the board finds in a hearing conducted pursuant to subsection (2) of this section that a question of representation exists, it shall conduct an election by secret ballot, at a time and place convenient for the employes of the jurisdiction and also within a reasonable period of time after the filing has taken place, and certify the results thereof.

Section 8. (1) The board shall place on the ballot only those labor organizations designated to be placed on the ballot by more than 10 percent of the employes in an appropriate bargaining unit.

(2) The ballot shall contain a provision for marking no representation.

(3) The board shall determine who is eligible to vote in the election and require the employer to provide a complete list of all such eligible voters, their names, addresses and job classifications to each candidate organization on the ballot at least 20 days before the election is to occur.

(4) The labor organization which receives the majority of the votes cast in an election shall be certified by the board as the exclusive representative.

(5) In any election where there are more than two choices on the ballot and none of the choices receives a majority of the votes cast, a runoff election shall be conducted. The ballot in the runoff election shall contain the two choices on the original ballot that received the largest number of votes.

(6) (a) In conducting an election involving the faculty of a college or university administered by the State Board of Higher Education, the board shall place on the same ballot provisions for voting on two issues:

(A) For or against representation; and

(B) For those labor organizations designated to be placed on the ballot by more than 10 percent of the employes in an appropriate bargaining unit.

(b) If a majority of votes in subparagraph (A) of paragraph (a) of this subsection are cast in favor of no representation, the board shall not count the votes cast for labor organizations and shall certify no representative for the unit.

(c) If a majority of votes in subparagraph (A) of paragraph (a) of this subsection are cast in favor of representation, the board shall count the votes in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (a) of this subsection for the designated labor organizations and, if an organization receives a majority of those votes cast, shall certify that organization as the exclusive representative. If no labor organization receives a majority of the votes cast in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (a) of this subsection, a runoff election shall be conducted. The ballot in the runoff election shall contain only the two labor organizations that received the largest number of votes.

(7) Nothing in this section is intended to prohibit the waiving of hearings by stipulation for the purpose of a consent election, in conformity with the rules of the board.

Section 9. (1) No election shall be conducted pursuant to subsection (3) of section 7 of this 1973 Act in any appropriate bargaining unit within which the preceding 12-month period an election was held nor during the term of any lawful collective bargaining agreement between a public employer and an employe representative. However, a contract with a term of more than two years shall be a bar for only the first two years of its term.

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1) of this section, the board shall rule that a contract will not be given the effect of barring an election if it finds that:

(a) Unusual circumstances exist under which the contract is no longer a stabilizing force; and

(b) An election should be held to restore stability to the representation of employes in the unit.

(3) A petition for an election where a contract exists must be filed not more than 90 calendar days and not less than 60 calendar days before the end of the contract period. If the contract is for more than two years, a petition for election may be filed any time after two years from the effective date of the contract.

Section 10. (1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, whenever two or more labor organizations are certified to represent state employes in like classifications, the State of Oregon and the certified labor organization shall meet jointly at reasonable times and bargain in good faith for the purpose of establishing the compensation plan and other economic benefits and those employment relations matters which require legislative action or are the subject of Personnel Division rule-making authority. Nothing in this subsection shall prevent a labor organization which has met in such joint sessions and which represents the majority of employes in a classification from entering into an agreement with the state employer governing the compensation or other benefits of such employes when, after a reasonable time, the representative of the majority of employes in the classification and the representative of the minority of employes in the classification have not agreed as to the provisions of a proposed agreement.

(2) This section shall not apply to any subject which affects only a single agency, institution or other subordinate unit of the state.

(3) Questions concerning the application of subsections (1) and (2) of this section shall be referred to the board for determination.

Section 11. (1) In the event any provision of a collective bargaining agreement is declared to be invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, by ruling by the board or by inability of the employer or the employes to perform to the terms of the agreement, then upon request by either party all or any part of the entire collective bargaining agreement shall be reopened for negotiation.

(2) The public employer and the exclusive representative shall provide for and make every reasonable effort to conclude negotiations, including provisions for an effective date, a reopening date, and an expiration date, at a time to coincide, as nearly as possible, with the period during which the appropriate legislative bodies may act on the operating budget of the employers.

Section 12. (1) A public employer may enter into a written agreement with the exclusive representative of an appropriate bargaining unit setting forth a grievance procedure culminating in binding arbitration.

(2) In addition to subsection (1) of this section, a public employer may enter into a written agreement with the exclusive representative of its employes providing that a labor dispute over conditions and terms of a contract may be resolved through binding arbitration.

Section 13. (1) If after a reasonable period of negotiation over the terms of an agreement or after a reasonable time following certification or recognition of an exclusive representative no agreement has been signed, either or both of the parties shall notify the board of the status of negotiations. Such notification shall contain a statement of each issue on which the public employer and the exclusive representative have failed to achieve an agreement through negotiation; or the board on its own motion may determine that the public employer and the exclusive representative have failed to achieve an agreement on a labor dispute through negotiations. Upon receipt of such notification the board shall assign a mediator upon request of either party or upon its own motion.

(2) Where the board on the request of one of the parties or on its own motion has determined that the parties have failed to achieve agreement through negotiation, the board shall render assistance to resolve the labor dispute according to the following schedule:

(a) Mediation shall be provided by the State Conciliation Services as provided by ORS 662.405 to 662.455.

(b) If the labor dispute has not been settled after 15 days of mediation, the parties jointly or individually may petition the board in writing to initiate factfinding. In lieu of a petition, the board on its own motion may initiate such factfinding if it deems it appropriate and in the public interest.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the parties at any time from voluntarily agreeing to submit any or all of the issues in dispute to final and binding arbitration, and if such agreement is reached said arbitration shall supersede the mediation and/or factfinding procedures set forth in this section.

Section 14. (1) In carrying out the factfinding procedures authorized in paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section 13 of this 1973 Act, the public employer and the exclusive representative may select their own factfinder.

(2) Where the parties have not selected their own factfinder within five days after notification by the board that factfinding is to be initiated, the board shall submit to the parties a list of five qualified, disinterested persons. Each party shall alternately strike two names from this list. The order of striking shall be determined by lot. The remaining individual shall be designated the "factfinder."

(a) When both parties desire a panel of three factfinders instead of one as provided in this subsection, the board shall submit to the parties a list of seven qualified, disinterested persons. Each party shall alternately strike two names from the list. The order of striking shall be determined by lot. The remaining three persons shall be designated "factfinders."

(b) When the parties have not designated the factfinder and notified the board of their choice within five days after receipt of the list, the board shall appoint the factfinder from the list. However, if one of the parties strikes the names as prescribed in this subsection and the other party fails to do so, the board shall appoint the factfinder only from the names remaining on the list.

(3) The factfinder shall establish dates and places of hearings. Upon the request of either party or the factfinder, the board shall issue subpoenas. The factfinder may administer oaths and shall afford all parties full opportunity to examine and cross-examine all witnesses and to present any evidence pertinent to the dispute. Not more than 30 days from the date of conclusion of hearings, the factfinders shall make written findings of fact and recommendations upon the parties and upon the board. Service may be personal or by registered or certified mail. Not more than five working days after the findings and recommendations have been sent, the parties shall notify the board and each other whether or not they accept the recommendations of the factfinder. If the parties do not accept them, the board, five days after receiving notice that one or both of the parties do not accept the findings, shall publicize the factfinder's findings of facts and recommendations.

(4) The parties may voluntarily agree at any time during or after factfinding to submit any or all of the issues in dispute to final and binding arbitration, and if such agreement is reached prior to the publication of the factfinders findings of facts and recommendations, the board shall not publicize such findings and recommendations.

(5) The cost of factfinding shall be borne equally by the parties involved in the dispute.

Section 15. Any provisions of local charters and ordinances adopted pursuant thereto in existence at the time of this 1973 Act goes into effect and not in conflict with the rights and duties established in this 1973 Act may remain in full force and effect after the board has determined that no conflict exists.

Section 16. (1) Participation in a strike shall be unlawful for any public employe who is not included in an appropriate bargaining unit for which an exclusive representative has been certified by the board [illegible] ognized by the employer; or is included in an appropriate bargaining unit which provides for resolution of a labor dispute by referral to final and binding arbitration; or when the strike is not made lawful under the provisions of this 1973 Act.

(2) It shall be lawful for a public employe who is not prohibited from striking under subsection (1) of this section and who is in the appropriate bargaining unit involved in a labor dispute to participate in a strike after:

(a) The requirements of sections 13 and 14 of this 1973 Act relating to the resolution of labor disputes have been complied with in good faith;

(b) The proceedings for the prevention of any prohibited practice have been exhausted;

(c) Thirty days have elapsed since the board has made public the factfinders findings of fact and recommendations; and

(d) The exclusive representative has given 10 days' notice by certified mail of its intent to strike and stating the reasons for its intent to strike to the board and the public employer.

(3) (a) Where the strike occurring or is about to occur creates a clear and present danger or threat to the health, safety or welfare of the public, the public employer concerned may petition the circuit court of the county in which the strike has taken place or is to take place for equitable relief including but not limited to appropriate injunctive relief.

(b) If the strike is a strike of state employes the petition shall be filed in the Circuit Court of Marion County.

(c) If, after hearing, the court finds that the strike creates a clear and present danger or threat to the health, safety or welfare of the public, it shall grant appropriate relief. Such relief shall include an order that the labor dispute be submitted to final and binding arbitration within 10 days of the court's order. The manner of selection of a board of arbitration shall be as set forth in this 1973 Act.

(4) (a) No labor organization shall declare or authorize a strike of public employes which is or would be in violation of this section. When it is alleged in good faith by the public employer that a labor organization has declared or authorized a strike of public employes which is or would be in violation of this section, the employer may petition the board for a declaration that the strike is or would be unlawful. The board, after conducting an investigation and hearing, may make such declaration if it finds that such declaration or authorization of a strike is or would be unlawful.

(b) When a labor organization or individual disobeys an order of the appropriate circuit court issued pursuant to enforcing an order of the board involving this section and section 17 of this 1973 Act, they shall be punished according to the provisions of ORS chapter 33, except that the amount of the fine shall be at the discretion of the court.

(5) An unfair labor practice by a public employer shall not be a defense to a prohibited strike. The board upon the filing of an unfair labor charge alleging that a public employer has committed an unfair labor practice during or arising out of the collective bargaining procedures set forth in sections 13 and 14 of this 1973 Act, shall take immediate action on such charge and if required, petition the court of competent jurisdiction for appropriate relief or a restraining order.

Section 17. It shall be unlawful for any policeman, fireman or guard at a correctional institution or mental hospital to strike or recognize a picket line of a labor organization while in the performance of official duties.

Section 18. (1) It is the public policy of the State of Oregon that where the right of employes to strike is by law prohibited, it is requisite to the high morale of such employes and the efficient operation of such departments to afford an alternate, expeditious, effective and binding procedure for the resolution of labor disputes and to that end the provisions of this 1973 Act, providing for compulsory arbitration, shall be liberally construed.

(2) When the procedures set forth in sections 13 and 14 of this 1973 Act, relating to mediation and factfinding of a labor dispute, have not culminated in a signed agreement between the parties who are prohibited from striking, the public employer or exclusive representative of its employes shall petition the board in writing to initiate binding arbitration. In lieu of a petition, the board on its own motion may initiate such arbitration if it deems it appropriate and in the public interest.

Section 19. (1) In carrying out the arbitration procedures authorized in subsection (2) of section 18 of this 1973 Act, the public employer and the exclusive representative may select their own arbitrator.

(2) Where the parties have not selected their own arbitrator within five days after notification by the board that arbitration is to be initiated, the board shall submit to the parties a list of five qualified, disinterested persons. Each party shall alternately strike two names from the list. The order of striking shall be determined by lot. The remaining individual shall be desiganted the "arbitrator":

(a) When both parties desire a panel of three arbitrators instead of one as provided in this subsection, the board shall submit to the parties a list of seven qualified, disinterested persons. Each party shall alternately strike two names from the list. The order of striking shall be determined by lot. The remaining three persons shall be designated "arbitrators."

(b) When the parties have not designated the arbitrator and notified the board of their choice within five days after receipt of the list, the board shall appoint the arbitrator from the list. However, if one of the parties strikes the names as prescribed in this subsection and the other party fails to do so, the board shall appoint the arbitrator only from the names remaining on the list.

(3) The arbitrator shall establish dates and places of hearings. Upon the request of either party or the arbitrator, the board shall issue subpoenas. The arbitrator may administer oaths and shall afford all parties full opportunity to examine and cross-examine all witnesses and to present any evidence pertinent to the dispute.

(4) Where there is no agreement between the parties, or where there is an agreement but the parties have begun negotiations or discussions looking to a new agreement or amendment of the existing agreement, and wage rates or other conditions of employment under the proposed new or amended agreement are in dispute, the arbitration panel shall base its findings, opinions and order upon the following factors, as applicable:

(a) The lawful authority of the employer.

(b) Stipulations of the parties.

(c) The interest and welfare of the public and the financial ability of the unit of government to meet those costs.

(d) Comparison of the wages, hours and conditions of employment of other employes performing similar services and with other employes generally:

(A) In public employment in comparable communities.

(B) In private employment in comparable communities.

(e) The average consumer prices for goods and services commonly known as the cost of living.

(f) The overall compensation presently received by the employes, including direct wage compensation, vacations, holidays and other excused time, insurance and pensions, medical and hospitalization benefits, the continuity and stability of employment, and all other benefits received.

(g) Changes in any of the foregoing circumstances during the pendency of the arbitration proceedings.

(h) Such other factors, not confined to the foregoing, which are normally or traditionally taken into consideration in the determination of wages, hours and conditions of employment through voluntary collective bargaining, mediation, factfinding, arbitration or otherwise between the parties, in the public service or in private service.

(5) Not more than 30 days after the conclusion of the hearings or such further additional periods to which the parties may agree, the arbitrator shall make written findings of fact and promulgate a written opinion and order upon the issues presented to him and upon the record made before him, and shall serve such findings, opinions and order upon the parties and upon the board. Service may be personal or by registered or certified mail. The findings, opinions and order shall be just and reasonable and based upon the factors prescribed in subsection (4) of this section.

(6) The cost of arbitration shall be borne equally by the parties involved in the dispute.

Section 20. A majority decision of the arbitration panel, under sections 12 and 16 to 19 of this 1973 Act, if supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record, based upon the factors set forth in subsection (4) of section 19 of this 1973 Act shall be final and binding upon the parties, and may be enforced at the instance of either party or the board in the circuit court for the county in which the dispute arose. The commencement of a new fiscal year after the initiation of arbitration procedures under this 1973 Act, but before the arbitration decision or its enforcement, shall not be deemed to render a dispute moot, or to otherwise impair the jurisdiction or authority of the arbitration panel or its decision. Increases in rates of compensation awarded by the arbitration panel under section 19 of this 1973 Act, may be effective only at the start of the fiscal year next commencing after the date of the arbitration award. However, if a new fiscal year has commenced since the initiation of arbitration procedures under this 1973 Act, the foregoing limitation shall be inapplicable and such awarded increases may be retroactive to the commencement of such fiscal year. At any time the parties, by stipulation may amend or modify an award of arbitration.

Section 21. During the pendency of procedings before the arbitration panel, existing wages, hours and other conditions of employment shall not be changed by action of either party without the consent of the other but a party may so consent without prejudice to his rights or position under this 1973 Act.

Section 22. Nothing in this 1973 Act is intended to prohibit a public employer and the exclusive representative of its employes from entering into a collective bargaining agreement which provides for a compulsary arbitration procedure which is substantially equivalent to sections 18 to 21 of this 1973 Act.

Section 23. Public employes, other than those engaged in a non-prohibited strike, who refuse to cross a picket line shall be deemed to be engaged in a prohibited strike and shall be subject to the terms and conditions of section 16 of this 1973 Act, pertaining to prohibited strikes.

Section 24. The board shall:

(1) Establish procedures for, investigate and resolve any dispute concerning the desigantion of an appropriate bargaining unit.

(2) Establish procedures for, resolve disputes with respect to, and supervise the conduct of elections for the determination of employe representation.

(3) Conduct proceedings on complaints of unfair labor practices by employers, employes and labor organizations and take such actions with respect thereto as it deems necessary and proper.

(4) Petition the appropriate circuit court for enforcement of any order issued by the board pursuant to ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(5) Hold such hearings and make such inquiries as it deems necessary to carry out properly its functions and powers, and for the purpose of such hearings and inquiries, administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses and documents and issue subpoenas.

(6) Conduct studies on problems relating to public employment relations and make recommendations with respect thereto to the legislative bodies; request information and data from state and county departments and agencies and labor organizations necessary to carry out its functions and responsibilities; make available to public employers, labor organizations, mediators, members of fact-finding boards, arbitrators and other concerned parties statistical data relating to wages, benefits, and employment practices in public and private employment to assist them in resolving issues in negotiation.

(7) Adopt rules relative to the exercise of its powers and authority and to govern the proceedings before it in accordance with ORS chapter 183.

Section 25. Sections 2, 4, 5, 7, to 24, 32 and 33 of the Act are added to and made a part of ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

Section 26. ORS 240.060.

240.060. The Civil Service Commission that has functioned under ORS chapter 240 shall be continued as a board of five members to be known as the Public Employe Relations Board. Each member of the board shall be a citizen of the state known to be in sympathy with the application of merit principles to public employment and shall be of recognized standing and known interest in public administration and in the development of efficient methods of selecting and administering personnel. No member of the board shall hold, or be a candidate for, any public office. No person shall be appointed to the board who has held an elective public office or appointive public office of a partisan nature, or position in a political party, within six months immediately preceding his appointment to the board. No member of the board shall be employed by a public employer.

Section 27. ORS 240.065.

240.065. The members of the board shall be appointed by the Governor for a term of four years, with the term of not more than two members expiring on June 30 of each year. Each member shall be appointed for a term ending four years from the date of the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed, except that a person appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of such term shall be appointed for the remainder of the term. Each member of the board shall hold office until his successor is appointed and qualifies.

Section 28. (1) Nothing in this Act is intended to extend the terms of members of the Public Employe Relations Board who are incumbent on the effective date of this Act.

(2) Notwithstanding the term of office specified in ORS 240.065, of the members first appointed to the board after this Act takes effect:

(a) Three shall serve for terms ending four years from the date of the expiration of the terms of the members appointed for three-year terms under ORS 240.065 before its amendment by section 27 of this Act.

(b) One shall serve a term ending June 30, 1975.

(c) One shall serve a term ending June 30, 1976.

Section 29. ORS 240.080.

240.080. The board shall elect one of its members chairman. It shall meet at such times and places as are specified by call of the chairman or the Governor. All hearings shall be open to the public. The board is authorized to delegate to a panel of three members any and all of the powers which it may itself exercise. Two members of a panel shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. When the board is meeting as a full board, three members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Any agent designated by the board to make investigations and conduct hearings may administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses and receive evidence.

Section 30. ORS 240.123.

240.123. (1) The board shall employ such personnel as it considers necessary for efficient administration of its vested duties, and fix the compensation of its employes in accordance with the compensation plan for classified employes.

(2) The board shall designate one of its employes as its executive secretary and delegate to him such administrative duties and responsibilities as it finds advisable. The executive secretary shall be in the classified service.

Section 31. ORS 292.055.

292.055. (1) Upon receipt by him of the request in writing of a state officer or employe so to do, the state official authorized to disburse funds in payment of the salary or wages of such state officer or employe each month shall deduct from the salary or wages of such officer or employe the amount of money indicated in such request, for payment thereof to a labor organization as the same is defined in subsection (12) of ORS 243.711.

(2) Such state official each month shall pay such amount so deducted to any such labor organization so designated to receive it.

(3) Unless there is a contract to the contrary, upon receipt by him of the request in writing of such officer or employe so to do, such state official shall cease making such deductions and payments.

(4) No such deductions for, or payments to, more than two labor organizations shall be made in respect to any one department, board, commission, bureau, institution or other agency of the state provided that any labor organization certified under the rules of the Public Employe Relations Board as representative of employes in a bargaining unit shall be authroized a payroll deduction for its members. If no certified representative exists, should such deductions and payments be made for and to such labor organizations in respect of any such department, board, commission, bureau, institution or other agency, they shall be made for and to the two thereof designated in the greatest and next greatest numbers of such requests of officers and employe in that department, board, commission, bureau, institution or other agency, so submitted and not so revoked.

(5) Upon receipt from the Executive Department of a copy of a valid fairshare agreement in a collective bargaining unit, the state official authorized to disburse funds in payment of the salary or wages of the employes in such unit each month shall deduct from the salary or wages of the employes covered by the agreement the in-lieu-of-dues payment stated in the agreement and pay such amount to the labor organization party the agreement in the same manner as deducted dues are paid to a labor organization. Such deduction and payment shall continue for the life of the agreement.

Section 32. The rights and responsibilities prescribed for state officers and employes in ORS 292.055 shall accrue to employes of all public employers.

Section 33. (1) For purposes of proceedings commenced pursuant to any provisions of this 1973 Act, a person may be represented by counsel or any other agent authorized by such person.

(2) As used in subsection (1) of this section, "person" means any individual, a labor organization or a public employer.

Section 34. ORS 341.290.

341.290. The board of education of a community college district shall be responsible for the general supervision and control of any and all community colleges operated by the district. Consistent with any applicable rules and regulations of the State Board of Education, the board may:

(1) Subject to ORS chapter 237, employ administrative officers, professional personnel and other employes, define their duties, terms and conditions of employment and prescribe compensation therefor, pursuant to ORS 243.711 to 243.795.

(2) Enact rules for the government of the community college, including professional personnel and other employes thereof and students therein.

(3) Prescribe the educational program.

(4) Control use of and access to the grounds, buildings, books, equipment and other property of the district.

(5) Acquire, receive, hold control, convey, sell, manage, operate, lease, lease-purchase, lend, invest, improve and develop any and all property of whatever nature given to or appropriated for the use, support or benefit of any activity under the control of the board, according to the terms and conditions of such gift or appropiration.

(6) Purchase real property upon a contractual basis when the period of time allowed for payment under the contract does not exceed five years.

(7) Subject to ORS chapter 279, purchase relocatable classrooms and other relocatable structures in instalment transactions in which deferred instalments of the purchase price are payable over not more than 10 years from the date such property is delivered to the district for occupancy and are secured by a security interest in such property. Such transactions may take the form of, but are not limited to lease-purchase agreements.

(8) Establish, lease for not more than 10 years with or without an option to purchase, operate, equip and maintain food service facilities, bookstores and other revenue producing facilities connected with the operation of the community college.

(9) Fix standards of admission to the community college, prescribe and collect tuition for admission to the community college, including fixing different tuition rates for students who reside in the district, students who do not reside in the district but are residents of the state and students who do not reside in the state.

(10) Prescribe and collect fees and expend funds so raised for special programs and services for the students and for programs for the cultural and physical developments of the students.

(11) Provide and disseminate to the public information relating to the program, operation and finances of the community college.

(12) Establish or contract for advisory and consultant services.

(13) Take, hold and dispose of mortgages on real and personal property acquired by way of gift or arising out of transactions entered into in accordance with the powers, duties and authority of the board and institute, maintain and participate in suits and actions and other judicial proceedings in the name of the district for the foreclosure of such mortgages.

(14) Maintain programs, services and facilities, and, in connection therewith, cooperate and enter into agreements with any person or public or private agency.

(15) Provide student services including health, guidance, counseling and placement services, and contract therefor.

(16) Join appropriate associations and pay any required dues therefor from resources of the district.

(17) Apply for federal funds and accept and enter into any contract or agreements for the receipt fo such funds from the Federal Government or its agencies for educational purposes.

(18) Exercise any other power, duty or responsibility necessary to carry out the functions under this section or required by law.

(19) Prescribe rules for the use and access to public records of the district that are consistent with ORS 192.030. However, the following records shall not be made available to public inspection for any purpose except with the consent of the person who is the subject of the record, student or faculty, or upon order of a court of competent jurisdiction:

(a) Student records relating to matters such as grades, conduct, personal and academic evaluations, results of psychometric testing, disciplinary actions, if any, and other personal matters.

(b) Faculty records relating to matters such as conduct, personal and academic evaluations, disciplinary actions, if any, and other personal matters.

Section 35. ORS 662.705.

662.705. As used in ORS 662.705 to 662.795, unless the context requires otherwise:

(1) "Appropriate bargaining unit" means a homogeneous group of employes of a health care facility, having similar interests, duties, preparation and qualifications, determined pursuant to ORS 662.745.

(2) "Employe" means a licensed professional or practical nurse performing services for compensation for a health care facility, but does not include:

(a) A public employe, or

(b) A member of a religious order assigned to a health care facility by the order as a part of his obligations to the order.

(3) "Health care facility" means a private hospital or nursing home, agency or establishment having as one of its principal purposes the preservation of health or the care of sick or infirm individuals, or both. However, "health care facility" does not include a facility employing fewer than four employes.

(4) "Labor Commissioner" means the Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor.

Section 36. ORS 662.715.

662.715. Sufficient competent and dependable care of the ill and infirm is of paramount importance to the general welfare of the people of this state. The Legislative Assembly recognizes that the public interest requires that effective measures be taken to assure uninterrupted continuation of this care. This state encourages the practice of collective bargaining between employers and employes of health care facilities in privately operated health care facilities.

Section 37. ORS 662.785.

662.785. (1) If a health care facility and the representative of an appropriate bargaining unit of its employes are unable to reach agreement after protracted collective bargaining in good faith, either party may:

(a) Request the State Conciliation Service to mediate the dispute. Both parties shall participate actively and in good faith in the mediation of such dispute by the conciliator.

(b) Apply to the Public Employe Relations Board for a factfinding inquiry concerning the dispute, if the parties are not able to settle their dispute within 10 days through mediation and conciliation. Upon such an application, the Public Employe Relations Board shall forthwith make an investigation of the dispute. The Public Employe Relations Board may, in compliance with ORS 183.310 to 183.500, hold hearings, issue subpenas, administer oaths and do all things necessary to enable it to make a complete investigation. Upon completion of its investigation the Public Employe Relations Board shall make written findings of fact and file the original thereof as a part of the record of its investigation. The Public Employe Relations Board shall serve a copy of the findings upon each of the parties.

(2) The parties to the dispute shall not be required to reimburse the State Conciliation Service, but the cost of factfinding in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section shall be borne equally by the parties involved in the dispute.

Section 38. Nothing in this Act affects a collective bargaining agreement made before the effective date of this Act.

VOL. 7 NO. 3
NOV. 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- "Sickout" During Negotiation Is Not Refusal to Bargain
- Denial of Transfer Valid
- Unincorporated Association Must File With State Before Litigation
- Parochial School Bargaining Unit Pending NLRB Opinion
- PERB's Jurisdiction Over Representation Disputes Affirmed
- Strike Ruled Legal
- NLRB Cannot Determine Union-Imposed Fines

Board Findings and Rulings 6
- Maine Board Clarifies Negotiable Items
- Disputes Deferred to Negotiated Grievance/Arbitration Procedure
- Contract Benefits Continue Through Oral Extension
- Filing of a Grievance, Protected Activity
- Limitation on Merit Increments Barred
- Board Conduct Precipitated Association Strike
- Hiring Private Speech Therapists Board Prerogative
- No Appropriate Unit Found for State University Branch Campuses
- NLRB Excludes Part-Time Faculty From Full-Time Faculty Units

Negotiation Notes 11
- Alabama Teachers Gain "Consultation" Law
- "Right to Work" Statute Excludes Negotiation of Agency Shop
- PERC Rules Revised
- Texas Police, Firefighters Get Bargaining Statute
- Vermont Municipal Employees Bargaining Law Revised
- Group Legal Services Now Negotiable Item
- States to Determine Strikers' Eligibility for Welfare Payments
- The Consumer Price Index – September 1973

Statistics 14
- Short-Term Sick Leave Provisions in Teacher Agreements
- Price Increases Boost Family Budgets 4.3 Percent

Special Reports 18
- Negotiated Paid Leave for Educational Conferences, Conference Fees Paid, and Travel Allowance Provisions
- Briefs of Agreements

Texts 24
- Alabama Teacher Consultation and Group Insurance Laws

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2588

CASE REVIEWS

CALIFORNIA

"Sickout" During Negotiation Is Not Refusal To Bargain

A "sickout" precipitated by a refusal to negotiate the amount of caseloads for caseworkers belonging to the Los Angeles County Employees Association neither constituted a refusal to bargain nor an unfair labor practice according to the Los Angeles County Employee Relations Commission (ERCOMM). The dispute was taken to ERCOMM by the Department of Public Social Services after the county had refused, even under court order, to begin negotiations with the union.

Prior to the court order, ERCOMM had ordered the county to negotiate with the union concerning caseloads since they have "a clear and direct relationship. . .to conditions of employment." When the county continued to refuse to bargain, the union petitioned the superior court for enforcement. The court granted the union's petition. The county's appeal of the lower court's order to bargain caseloads is as yet unresolved.

Since ERCOMM was not authorized to issue injunctions or to determine the legality of strikes, the issue before it was whether the sickout was in violation of the county ordinance prohibiting an employee organization from refusing to bargain.

ERCOMM rejected the county's argument that the sickout amounted to a refusal to bargain and to coercion to force the county to bargain an item which was not negotiable, and ruled that the "union made no unlawful bargaining demand" since the county had already been ordered to bargain caseloads. Therefore, ERCOMM dismissed the unfair practice charge filed against the union. (County of Los Angeles and Los Angeles County Employees Association, SEIU, Local 660, AFL-CIO, Los Angeles County Employee Relations Commission, August 25, 1972.)

COLORADO

Denial of Transfer Valid

A negotiated agreement may include language granting priority to a school district's teachers when a school board fills vacancies because such a statement does not imply that the school district has delegated its authority and power to render decisions. On the basis of this rationale, the Colorado Court of Appeals overturned a lower court ruling which held that a "priority treatment" clause in the contract between the Colorado Springs Teachers Association and School District No. 11 illegally delegated authority vested in the district.

The issue of the legality and enforceability of the vacancy priority provision arose when a teacher employed in the school district applied for transfer into a vacanct position at a new school and was denied the transfer in favor of a teacher hired from outside the district.

The school district contended that state law prevented it from delegating its responsibility in hiring staff by means of a negotiated contract. Noting the validity of the law, the court found that the contract implied no obligation to fill vacancies solely from the district's present employees and that clauses relating to employment did not mean per se that authority or decision-making power had been delegated away. The court ruled that what had been agreed upon was a district policy to give teachers employed in the district priority in filling new openings. Since such statements of policy did not constitute delegation of district authority to the association, the provision, according to the appeals court, was not inconsistent with state statutes. (Rockey v. School District No, 11, El Paso County, Colorado Court of Appeals, Division I, April 10, 1973.)

NEBRASKA

Unincorporated Association Must File With State Before Litigation

While one section of the Nebraska Reissue Revised Statutes of 1943 allows unincorporated associations to negotiate and sue in the courts, another section, which deals with unincorporated, nonresident associations doing business in the state requires that such associations file with the secretary of state a certified statement listing the nature of the organization's business and the agents representing it in legal matters before the association can have recourse to the courts. The Court of Industrial Relations ordered the State Department of Education to negotiate with the Nebraska Council of Educational Leaders over a contract for administrative, vocational, and instructional services employees. However, because the council had not filed; the state supreme court ruled that it had no legal right to sue in court and could not legally force the department of education to negotiate over salaries and working conditions.

A dissenting opinion pointed out that R.R.S., 1943, had been amended to allow litigation by unincorporated associations representing employees in collective negotiations, and that the filing process under the law was clearly intended for nonresident unincorporated organizations. The minority opinion argued that ample evidence had been presented to show that the council was a state based employee organization, based in Lincoln, had a constitution, and had an executive committee. (Nebraska Council of Educational Leaders v. Nebraska State Department of Education and State Board of Education, Nebraska Supreme Court, March 23, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Appropriate Bargaining Unit in Parochial School Pending NLRB Opinion

The New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, upheld a trial court's findings and conclusions in the determination of an appropriate bargaining unit for personnel employed by the Newark Archdiocese parochial school system. The high court affirmed the election and the bargaining unit determination pending the result of a request to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) for an advisory opinion regarding whether NLRB would assert its jurisdiction.

The Lay Faculty Association (LFA) claimed that it represented a majority of lay faculty members, and had requested the archdiocese-employer to engage in collective bargaining; that the archdiocese refused, violating the New Jersey Constitution. The union sought relief through the courts contending that no relief could be obtained from NLRB since LFA's employer is neither an employer within NLRB's definitions nor the state public employee law. LFA sought a judgment ordering the defendant to bargain collectively and participate in a representation election and to refrain from proffering contracts to individuals until collective bargaining had been completed.

To resolve the majority representation dispute, the lower court ordered a representation election and later issued an order providing for a separate tabulation of the non-returning employee's votes.

The high court struck down the employer's allegation that the court lacked jurisdiction owing to the presence of federal preemption, on the basis that courts do have authority to enforce rights stipulated by a state constitutional provision granting employees in private employment the right to organize and bargain collectively. The court rejected defendant's suggestion to dismiss the action, indicating that while LFA did not seek NLRB jurisdiction the defendant had initially agreed to court jurisdiction.

Further rejected were the defendant's claims that it was refused a trial regarding the right to an election and the size and composition of the appropriate bargaining unit which should have been decided prior to the election, and that department chairman, librarians, guidance counselors, and non-returning teachers should have been excluded from the unit, since those librarians and guidance counselors who hold teaching certificates and receive the same salary as lay teachers are part of the faculty and share a community of interest with the lay teachers.

Upholding the lower court's ruling that the employer's challenge of department heads' right to vote came too late, the court ruled that the department heads who were considered part of the unit by the lower court were not supervisors within the meaning of the term, but the exclusion (by the lower court) of department heads devoting more than 30 percent of their time to supervisory duties would not effect the election.

The appellate court rejected the employer's final claims and retained jurisdiction pending the results of the ordered advisory opinion from NLRB. (Lay Faculty Association of Regional Secondary Schools of the Archdiocese of Newark, Plaintiff-Respondent v. Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Newark, Defendant-Appellant, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, February 2, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Court Affirms PERB's Exclusive Jurisdiction Over Representation Disputes

While the question of arbitrability is best left for the arbitrator to decide, the arbitrator lacks jurisdiction in disputes over unit representation where no contract provision addresses the issue. Further, the New York Public Employment Relations Board, having exclusive jurisdiction over matters of major public policy, is the agency empowered to modify existing units. So ruling, the state supreme court stayed for lack of jurisdiction an arbitration between the Lakeland Federation of Teachers (LFT) and the Central School District No. 1 over the union's demand that deans and department chairmen represented by an administrators association be added to the LFT unit.

A union grievance, citing alleged violation of the contract recognition clause, argued that the deans and department chairmen performed the same functions as personnel already represented by the LFT and therefore belonged in the same unit.

The school board denied the charge and the union submitted the issue to binding arbitration. The motion to stay arbitration proceedings filed by the board challenged the arbitrability of the grievance itself and the jurisdiction of the arbitrator in disputes involving changes in a unit previously certified by the PERB.

As no provision in the union contract dealt with accretions and the requested administrative employees were specifically excluded, the court reasoned that the union was not grieving a contractual matter but was attempting to expand the unit through arbitration. The court, noting state statutes which clearly empowered the PERB to define by certification the appropriate unit for collective negotiations, ruled that the PERB had exclusive jurisdiction over representation disputes and granted the stay. (Board of Education, Central School District No. 1 v. Lakeland Federation of Teachers Local 1760, New York Supreme Court, Westchester County, May 9, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Teachers' Strike Ruled Legal

When all dispute settlement procedures have been exhausted and no clear danger or threat to public health, safety, or welfare is created, a teachers' strike is legal under conditions detailed in the 1970 Public Employee Relations Act. The Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania reversed a lower court decision enjoining the Bellefonte Area Education Association from further strike activity during the 1972 contract dispute with the Bellefonte Area School District.

Attempting to reach agreement, the parties retained a mediator as prescribed under the Act. The mediator notified Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board that the situation had reached impasse, with no intervention by the PLRB. After eight months of futile negotiations, the association struck. The school district won injunctive relief owing to the PLRB's failure to institute statutory fact-finding procedures and on the grounds that the strike endangered public welfare through the district's loss of the required number of school days and the resulting loss of state subsidies.

The use of fact finding is a discretionary procedure, the court held, not a mandatory prerequisite. The court interpreted the PLRB inaction as a determination not to use fact finding and ruled that the association had exhausted the statutory prerequisites. Overruling the threat to public welfare argument, the court noted that sufficient make-up days existed to meet state requirements to qualify for the subsidy. (Bellefonte Area Education Association et al., v. Board of Education of Bellefonte Area School District and Pennsylvania School Board Association, Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania, May 23, 1972.)

FEDERAL

NLRB Does Not Have Authority To Rule on Reasonableness of Union-Imposed Fines

Reversing a U.S. Court of Appeals decision, the Supreme Court of the United States reaffirmed the position of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) that it did not have authority to determine the responsibility of a union's disciplinary fine levied against its members.

During an 18-day strike against the Boeing Company, 143 employees violated the union's constitution by crossing picket lines. Though some of the strikers resigned prior to and immediately after crossing the picket lines, they were all fined $450 and barred from holding union office for five years. Some employees refused to pay their fines, whereupon the union filed suit in state court for collection.

In turn, the Boeing Company filed a charge with the NLRB, contending that the union had committed an unfair labor practice by fining employees who had resigned from the union and for imposing unreasonable fines. The NLRB refused to rule on the issue of unreasonableness or to establish standards with respect to the reasonableness of a fine since Congress did not authorize it to regulate internal union affairs, a matter properly under the jurisdiction of state courts.

An appellate court had ruled that the fines were unreasonably large and therefore coercive and restraining within the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) and remanded the case to the Board with directions to consider questions relating to reasonableness. Additionally, both the appeals court and the employer held that NLRB should not leave the determination of reasonableness entirely to the state courts because more uniformity in the determination of what is reasonable would result since more expertise in labor matters would be brought to bear if the issue was decided by the Board.

The Supreme Court pointed out that it had previously held that the NLRA did not grant the Board power to regulate internal union affairs, including the imposition of disciplinary fines. The court cited Allis-Chalmers and Scofield in which it held that Congress did not intend for Section 8 of NLRA, which states that restraint or coercion of employees who exercise their right to refrain from various concerted activities is an unfair labor practice, to apply to union-levied fines that do not affect the employer-employee relationship.

According to the court, a review of state court cases revealed that these courts were willing to determine whether disciplinary fines were reasonable as well as capable of assessing reasonableness in varying situations by drawing on their experience in areas of law apart from labor relations. The high court also noted that there was no evidence that the Board's setting of standards of reasonableness would necessarily result in greater uniformity or even that such uniformity is desirable.

Because the union discipline did not interfere with the employee-employer relationship or otherwise violate a policy of the NLRA, the NLRB had no jurisdiction in the matter. Therefore, the lower court decision was reversed.

The dissenting opinion agreed with the ruling of the Court of Appeals that the NLRB should devise and employ national standards to govern union conduct since a union's power to discipline can be an "oppressive and coercive device of retribution" leading to an unfair labor practice. (National Labor Relations Board, Petitioner v. Boeing Company et al., Respondents, United States Supreme Court, May 21, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MAINE

PELRB Rules on Open Sessions, Unilateral Changes, and Negotiability of Smoking on School Premises

The Maine Public Employment Labor Relations Board handed down three rulings under the states new Municipal Public Employment Labor Relations Law (MPELR). Each case involved teacher-board negotiations.

• In the first case, the Board ruled that the Eliot and South Berwick School Board's refusal to negotiate with the Quamphegan Teachers Association unless the press and public were permitted to be present during bargaining sessions was a violation of the law.

The school board contended that the association's refusal to allow public negotiation sessions constituted an impasse in bargaining, and that pursuant to Section 965 of MPELR, a fact-finder should be appointed. The school board also contended that the "right-to-know" law (Maine Revised Statutes Annotated, Title 1, Section 404) set a precedent for open sessions.

The association contended that the board's position was a form of coercion and constituted a refusal to bargain in good faith.

The Board decided to assert jurisdiction after noting that the school board's request for fact-finding was filed 14 days after the complaint of a prohibited practice. The Board also decided that exhaustion of all the remedies set forth in Section 965 would cause unwarranted delays in resolution of the dispute.

After reviewing the "Right-to-Know" law, the Board held that the law was intended for peculiar situations where public view would be necessary and practical. The Board reasoned that because the law is applicable only to the public employer, a unilateral situation would exist whereby the employer could mandate public negotiation while the organization would have no in-put. In addition, the Board cited NLRB decisions and Salem (Mass.) v. International Association of Fire Fighters Local 1780 (MUP 309) which held that "negotiations are severely handicapped when conducted as a public spectacle."

On the basis of the foregoing, the Board ordered the school board to discontinue its demands and to bargain in good faith.

• In the second case, the Board ordered the Kittery School Committee to restore the 7 percent increases to teachers with 11 years' experience. The school committee had unilaterally rolled back these teachers' salaries during negotiations for a successor contract. The school committee had also withheld the 7 percent increase in salary that had been paid the teachers prior to the execution of the agreement.

The school committee considered itself bound to the terms of the previous agreement except for item 23, which granted the increases only for a specific school year.

Noting that the rollback occurred after the commencement of collective bargaining, the Board said that established principles of labor relations techniques as well as decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States declare that "an employer's unilateral change in wages or working conditions during negotiations usually can be held a refusal to bargain."

On these grounds the Board ordered the school committee to reinstate the 7 percent increase and to pay the teachers the increase for the pay periods when they did not receive it.

• In the third case, the Board ordered the South Paris Board of Directors to negotiate with the Oxford Hills Teachers Association over whether teachers may smoke on school premises. Six days after contract negotiations began, the superintendent banned smoking in the schools, a subject to be included in the negotiations. The association tried unsuccessfully on two occasions to negotiate the matter with the board, but the school board contended that the issue was not a mandatory subject for bargaining because it was not included in the previous contract, and the contract states that the employer shall establish all terms and conditions of employment not provided for in the agreement. The board also contended that smoking in public school buildings is a matter of educational policy and excluded from subjects to be negotiated.

The association cited Kittery Teachers Association v. School Committee to support its position that "a provision for smoking is a working condition for teachers and that an employer may not therefore alter the condition unilaterally when it is the subject of current negotiations."

The Board concluded that "smoking is clearly a matter of educational policy when it occurs in areas of unrestricted student access; but that on the other hand smoking is a working condition when it is performed in areas restricted to student access and is therefore fully negotiable." On this basis, the Board ordered the school board to include the question of smoking in its collective negotiations. (Quamphegan Teachers Association, and Eliot and South Berwick School Board of Directors, Public Employees Labor Relations Board, April 20, 1973; Kittery Teachers Association and School Committee of Kittery, Public Employees Labor Relations Board, March 15, 1973; Oxford Hills Teachers Association, South Paris, and Board of Directors, South Paris, Public Employees Labor Relations Board, April 20, 1973.)

MASSACHUSETTS

MLRC Orders Dispute Deferred To Negotiated Grievance/Arbitration Procedure

A recent ruling (Collyer Insulative Wire, 77 LRRM 1938) of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) which held that a dispute could be deferred to available grievance/arbitration machinery when it involved a violation of both statute and the collective bargaining agreement was applied by the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission in a case involving the Cohasset School Committee and the Cohasset Teachers Association. The dispute concerned the negotiability of a unilaterally imposed evaluation of teachers, deferred to the grievance/arbitration procedure by MLRC. However, MLRC retained jurisdiction.

The association filed a complaint requesting that MLRC require settlement of the dispute via the negotiated grievance procedure. The association also felt that MLRC should retain jurisdiction in the matter to insure that neither party would be denied its constitutional rights. The school committee's position was that the evaluation of teachers by a unilaterally established procedure was not a mandatory subject of bargaining; therefore, MLRC need not determine the issue before dismissing the complaint. The school committee also felt that the dispute should be remanded to the parties' grievance arbitration procedure.

The MLRC decided to defer the dispute to the parties' grievance machinery. However, MLRC adopted NLRB's philosophy of retaining jurisdiction in the matter in the event the dispute was not properly settled through available grievance machinery, the dispute was not settled promptly, the grievance-arbitration procedure was not fair, or the final decision was not in accord with the state's collective bargaining law.

The Commission pointed out that prompt settlement of a dispute was essential in a collective bargaining system, and in this respect, grievance-arbitration machinery was most effective.(Cohasset School Committee and their agent, James Gray, Superintendent of Schools and the Cohasset Teachers Association, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, June 19, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Contract Benefits Continue Through Oral Extension

An oral agreement to extend a contract is binding until a new contract is ratified with the extension embracing existing grievance and arbitration procedures. Awarding retroactive pay on the basis of negotiated increments in a 1970-72 contract, an arbitrator held the Riverview Board of Education to the oral agreement it had made with the Riverview Educators Association to extend all the terms and conditions of the current contract until it was superceded.

The board argued that no official extension had been granted, that recourse to arbitration had expired, and that at best any extension covered only existing salaries and benefits, as had been past practice.

The arbitrator ruled that the board and the association had intended to proceed under a contract extension and had developed a pattern of operation substantiating the extension, the only exception being the nonpayment of general salary increases. The decision entitled teachers to salaries retroactive to September 1972 and continuing until a new agreement was reached. (Michigan Education Association and Riverview Board of Education, American Arbitration Association, May 1, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Filing Grievance Protected Activity; Grievant Reinstated with Back Pay

A New York Public Employment Relations Board hearing officer supported a teacher's petition charging the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 5 with violating the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA) by discharging her for participating in a grievance procedure.

The nontenured teacher had received an unfavorable evaluation report from the department chairman. At a post-evaluation conference with the principal, the teacher challenged the validity of the evaluation report, and the principal decided that an administrator other than the department chairman would evaluate the teacher. The teacher, having requested some time to review the decision, informed the principal that his decision was unacceptable. At this time the teacher also presented a statement questioning the department chairman's professional discernment as manifested in the evaluation report, and said that she thought the matter grievable.

The first stage of the grievance procedure required the teacher to discuss the grievance with the supervisor, in this case the principal. In reply to the teacher's statement that the matter was a grievance, the principal responded that he thought it to be a personal problem between the teacher and the department chairman. The teacher was suspended for failing to accept the principal's decision. A courtesy "competency hearing" was held, and the board accepted the superintendent's recommendation for the teacher's termination.

The hearing officer stated that PERA guarantees the right of employees to participate in a grievance procedure. Furthermore, the principal's recommendation for the teacher's termination was motivated by the teacher's rejection of his decision which he considered insubordination. The only question was whether the teacher had engaged in a protected activity, i.e., a grievance procedure. According to the hearing officer, the evidence indicated that the teacher had filed a grievance, and that her response was within the negotiated grievance process, and her subsequent discharge was in violation of PERA.

In accordance with his decision, the hearing officer ordered the board to reinstate the teacher to her previous position, and to compensate her for pay lost because of her discharge. He also ordered the board to cease discriminating against employees engaging in protected activities, and to post his decisions. (In the matter of the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 5, Half Hollow Hills and Caroline Frank, New York Public Employment Relations Board, March 12, 1973.)

Limitation on Merit Increments Barred

The Jefferson Community College Faculty Association charged that the Jefferson County Board of Supervisors altered a term and condition of employment by refusing to fund merit increases determined by the Jefferson Community College Board of Trustees, and violated the Public Employment Relations Act by prohibiting faculty association representation at a meeting of the board of supervisors.

The faculty association, the board of supervisors (respondents), and the board of trustees (intervenors) negotiated an agreement effective from September 1, 1971, to August 31, 1973. The first part of the agreement, negotiated between the board of supervisors and the faculty association, dealt with salaries, grievance procedures, and leaves, and the second part, negotiated between the association and the board of trustees, concerned appointment and evaluation criteria, promotions, leave policy, and other administrative matters. The salary provisions of the contract stated that faculty members who were employed at least 50 percent of the previous school year were eligible for annual merit salary increase. The board of trustees and the administration were to make the final determination of faculty members qualifying for merit increments.

During the first contract year, all eligible faculty members were granted merit increments. During the second year of the contract, the board of trustees and the administration again recommended all eligible faculty members for merit increments. Their recommendation was communicated to the board of supervisors at budget approval time. In July 1972, the board of supervisors issued a budget message which stated that it disagreed with the recommendations of the board of trustees that all eligible faculty members receive merit increments, and suggested that the custom of giving merit increases to only one-third of the CSEA employees be applied to faculty and administrative employees. Accordingly, the budget contained a contingency fund for merit increments to faculty members deemed "outstanding" by the board of trustees. The board of supervisors later allocated additional funds to pay one-half of the requested merit increments.

Following the action of board of supervisors, the faculty association filed a grievance which was decided in favor of the faculty association. The board of supervisors then instituted legal proceedings against the board of trustees charging it with failing to make a determination of salary increments on merit. The board of supervisors did not involve the faculty association in the proceedings, considering them "innocent bystanders." At this time the faculty association filed its petition with PERB, contending that the refusal of the board of supervisors to pay merit increments as provided for in the agreement constituted a breach of the agreement and violated the respondent's duty to bargain in good faith.

Subsequently the board of supervisors obtained an order from the state supreme court staying PERB from further processing the association's petition for lack of jurisdiction. The stay was later vacated as the board of supervisors had not exhausted all administrative remedies.

Following resumption of the PERB proceedings, the board of supervisors stated that the dispute involved interpretation of a negotiated provision, and therefore PERB lacked jurisdiction in the matter; furthermore, it denied the material charges of the faculty association, and in a cross-action, contended that the intervenor (Board of Trustees of Jefferson Community College) had failed to adhere to the agreement negotiated among the three parties by determining merit increments on the basis of outstanding rather than deserving faculty members. The board of supervisors also held that the standard for determining merit under the CSEA contract should be applied to the faculty agreement.

The hearing officer rejected the board of supervisors argument concerning the application of CSEA merit standards as inapplicable and insufficent to justify modifying a term of employment. The issue was whether refusing to fund a merit salary provision in the second year of a two-year contract violated PERA. The hearing officer determined that the board's refusal to fund the merit increments was a modification of the terms and conditions of employment. The action constituted an abrogation of a contract term and as such was a violation of the obligation to bargain in good faith. According to the hearing officer, the board of trustees and the administration had the sole responsibility to determine faculty members entitled to merit increments; the responsibility of the board of supervisors was to pay the increment. However, the hearing officer found no merit to the faculty association's charge that the respondent violated PERA by barring association representatives from attending their meeting.

The board of supervisors was ordered to pay merit salary increments. The charges in all other respects were dismissed. (In the matter of Jefferson County Board of Supervisors and The Faculty Association of Jefferson Community College, New York Public Employment Relations Board, March 16, 1974.)

Board Conduct Precipitated Association Strike

The New York State Public Employment Relations Board reduced from six to three months the forfeiture of dues levied against the Port Chester Teachers Association for a five-day strike.

The Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 4, Rye, New York, had charged the association with a violation of the Civil Service Law proscribing strikes. A hearing officer examined the evidence furnished by the association, and ruled that "the board had engaged in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the association for the strike." The association's defense incorporating the extreme provocation concept elicited the hearing officer's statement that the "totality of conduct" had to be examined to see if "the employer played by the rules or . . . subverted them, whether he [had] gone out of his way to frustrate the process" of negotiations.

The Supreme Court, however, examined the same evidence and ruled that extreme provocation on the part of the board had not been established.

PERB, agreeing with the officer's analytical approach to defining the doctrine, examined the record and determined that the board had avoided negotiating any proposal involving additional costs, especially compensations. The board's chief negotiator was not authorized to agree on financial matters, protracting negotiations through mediation without a change in posture. The parties agreed to fact-finding proceedings after the association forced the issue, yet the board rejected the fact-finders recommendations. Having attempted to reach agreement for over a year, the association went on strike when the board would not accede to the association's salary package.

PERB ruled that the board had not really negotiated but had merely gone through the motions; therefore, the board's conduct clearly provoked the strike, thus detracting from the association's responsibility for the strike. PERB, therefore, reduced the association's strike penalty, the forfeiture of dues deduction, from six to three months. (Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 4, Town of Rye, New York and Port Chester Teachers Association, Public Employment Relations Board, March 19, 1973.)

Hiring Private Speech Therapists Board Prerogative

Upon finding that no terms or conditions of employment were affected by a school board's decision to engage the services of a private speech therapy center, a PERB hearing officer concluded that this action did not constitute a "contracting out" of work of an association member. Therefore, the Union Free School District No. 14, Town of Hempstead, did not have to negotiate over its action with the Hewlett-Woodmere Faculty Association.

After having reduced the district's speech therapy teachers from two to one during the summer of 1971, the board became aware that speech therapy would have to be provided for all students in the district, including those in parochial and private schools, necessitating additional therapy services. The board chose a concentrated block program over traditional methods and contracted with the Woodmere Center for Speech Disorders for an eight-week program to be conducted by three of the Center's staff. The district's remaining speech teacher continued to perform her usual duties along with pre-block program preparation and follow up after the intensive therapy course.

The association interpreted the board's arrangement with the Woodmere Center as a contracting out of work done by association members, and charged that the board had violated its duty to negotiate the matter.

The board felt it did not have to negotiate over the new method of providing speech therapy service because association members were not being replaced. The work performed by the Center's staff was not the same, nor were conditions of employment similar to those of district speech teachers.

The hearing officer examined the terms and conditions of employment of the remaining speech teacher and noted no change. He ruled that the Woodmere Center contract had not resulted in replacement of district speech teachers, hence the board's action could not be considered contracting out. Finding no violation of law, the hearing officer dismissed the association's improper practice charge. (Union Free School District No. 14, Town of Hempstead and Hewlett-Woodmere Faculty Association, New York Public Employment Relations Board, February 6, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

No Appropriate Unit Found for State University Branch Campuses

While an over-all bargaining unit of all faculty members of the branch or Commonwealth Campuses would not be appropriate, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board concluded, individual units on each campus would be too fragmentary and also inappropriate. The PLRB denied a union representation petition requesting certification as bargaining agent for the faculties of 18 Commonwealth College Campuses, excluding the Main Campus, the Capitol Campus, the Medical Center, Hershey, and the King of Prussia Graduate Center.

The Commonwealth Campuses have the common functions of providing course work leading to the associate degree, noncredit programs, and continuing education, and the Main Campus houses regular and graduate degree colleges. The branches are an integral part of the university and are controlled in varying degrees by a common administration. The PLRB noted that in employee transactions, the campus director had advisory power only, as the final responsibility rested with the dean of the college at the main campus.

Apart from common functions, administration and student matriculation at the main campus sharp distinctions in enrollment patterns, degree programs, and specialized study offerings, indicated that each campus was unique academically and in staff composition.

PLRB, therefore, denied certification to a bargaining unit consisting of the faculties of the Commonwealth Campuses because of a lack of sufficient community of interest. It also dismissed the alternative individual units at each campus, ruling that integrated administration of the state university system would be impossible with the proliferation of units. (In Matter of the Employees of Pennsylvania State University, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 6, 1973.)

FEDERAL

NLRB Reverses Ruling, Excludes Part-Time Faculty Members From Full-Time Faculty Units

Reversing a two-year-old policy, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) determined that full- and part-time faculty members at most colleges and universities should not be included in the same bargaining unit.

The new ruling was issued in a case involving the New York University, the New York University Chapter, AAUP, and the NYU Faculty of Law Association concerning unit representation and the inclusion of part-time faculty members in the same bargaining unit with full-time faculty. The NLRB stated that unit determination was based on a common interest in wages, hours, and working conditions, but it found no such common interest between part- and full-time faculty members. Part-time faculty members traditionally receive stipends or honorariums, their primary income coming from other sources; they are not entitled to fringe benefits; they teach only 2 or 3 credit hours a semester while full-time faculty members work 50 and 60 hours per week; they are not eligible for tenure; and they do not participate in the university senate or faculty council. The NLRB was unable to devise criteria to determine voting eligibility for part-time faculty members, and on this basis the majority reversed a principle stated in University of New Haven.

In this decision, the NLRB ruled that part-time and full-time faculty members may be included in the same bargaining unit "absent agreement of the parties to exclude them." The majority concluded that in view of the substantial differences in the employment of full- and part-time faculty members in higher education institutions, the two groups should not be included in the same bargaining unit. Dissenting opinions held that the ruling caused excessive unit fragmentation, and disenfranchised those who had a right to vote on union representation.

NLRB was orginally encouraged to review its position on inclusion of part-time faculty members in full-time faculty bargaining units by challenges to a representation election held at the Catholic University Law School.

The board ordered a representation election for all law school faculty on February 20, 1973. Subsequently, NLRB decided to hear oral arguments on inclusion of part-time faculty members in over-all faculty units. The Catholic University Law School election was originally stayed, but pressure from the Law Faculty Bargaining Committee concerning preparations for elections and the approaching end of the semester resulted in NLRB scheduling the election for April 25. At the election, a board agent challenged all part-time faculty members' ballots and all the election ballots were impounded pending a decision by the NLRB. After the board's issuance of the New York University decision, only the full-time faculty ballots were counted; the vote was 10-8 for no representation. (New York University and New York University Chapter, AAUP, National Labor Relations Board, July 26, 1973; Catholic University and Law Faculty Bargaining Committee, National Labor Relations Board, August 5, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

ALABAMA

Teachers Granted "Consultation" and "Dues Check-off" Rights

Two far-reaching bills, amending Title 52, Secs. 73 and 166 of the Code of Alabama of 1940, were enacted by the legislature, legally recognizing the right of teachers as public employees to meet and confer with city or county school officials on the terms and conditions of their employment.

The identical laws, one for cities and the other for county jurisdictions, recognize that teachers through their representatives have an inherent right to be consulted on the terms and conditions of their employment. The laws require that boards of education through the superintendent formulate with the employee representative written educational policies and rules and regulations for the conduct and management of the schools.

In addition, the laws mandate that the school boards consult professional assistants, principals, teachers, and interested citizens regarding the formulation of these rules and require that such policies and regulations be submitted within 20 days to the affected parties and filed with the State Superintendent on or before September 15, 1974.

A third measure passed by the legislature authorizes boards of education to recognize existing employee groups or to form employee groups for the purpose of obtaining group insurance benefits and tax-sheltered annuities. The law requires school boards to make payroll deductions for the insurance premiums, if not totally board paid, and also grants to employee groups dues check-off privileges. (See TEXT Section for the full laws.)

FLORIDA

AGO: "Right To Work" Provision Amplified to Exclude Negotiation of Agency Shop

Amplifying the "right to work" provision of the state constitution, the attorney general interpreted the statute as excluding negotiation of agency shop clauses in union contracts. His ruling makes a violation any coercive attempt to force a workman either to remain in or to join a labor organization or to require a nonmember to pay an agency fee, dues, assessment, fine, or other charges to a labor organization.

A companion opinion held hiring hall contracts (limiting the securing of employment to union members) to be in violation of the right to work statute. However, no criminal penalties were attached for violations, leaving it to the legislature to clarify and set such penalties.

NEW JERSEY

PERC Rules Revised

The New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) revised its rules and regulations governing posting, intervention, and timeliness. The changes in the three sections, which according to the deputy executive director had previously created problems, were technical and less controversial than a major overhaul would be.

The new language on posting notices of the filing of a representation petition preclude an employer from completely stopping the proceeding by failing to post the notice. Additionally, the requirement that parties advise the director of their interest within 10 days from the date of posting of such notice has been abolished and replaced with the stipulation that the parties indicate their interest as soon as possible.

Motions for intervention in a pending representation proceeding, which used to be admissable only during the 10-day posting period, can now "be made at any time up to and including the opening of the hearing so long as the motion is accompanied by a sufficient showing of interest."

The new section on timeliness for filing petitions for elections replaced the ambiguous language in the old section and eliminated confusion. "Now, petitions for state employees must be filed not less than 240 nor more than 270 days before the expiration of the agreement; for county or city employees the time period is not less than 90 nor more than 120 days, and for school districts the time period is between September 1 and October 15 of each year."

TEXAS

Police, Firefighters Covered by First State Public Employee Bargaining Statute

Police and firefighters in a historic first are now permitted to organize and bargain collectively on wages and terms and conditions of their employment. The recently enacted Firefighters Public Employee Relations Act declares as state policy that the protective service employees be compensated at levels "prevailing in comparable private sector employment." The state courts have jurisdiction and are charged with enforcement of the provisions of the Act, which supercede existing statutes and local ordinances. Existing benefits now enjoyed by police and firefighters will not be affected.

Exclusive bargaining agents for police and firefighters are determined through elections paid for by the employer. If two or more associations are involved, the costs are shared by the associations seeking representations.

Associations and public employers are to negotiate in good faith, and contractual agreements negotiated under the Act are binding upon the parties. Bargaining over compensation provisions is to begin 120 days before the end of a fiscal year, and if after 60 days no agreement is reached, an impasse is declared.

In the event of disputes or failure to reach agreement, there is recourse to mediation and arbitration. A three-member arbitration board, selected by the parties, can render binding awards subject only to judicial review by the state district court. If the employer refuses arbitration, the court can establish the level of compensation according to its determination of the prevailing wage.

Strikes and lockouts are prohibited under the Act. Penalties for violations are fines of up to $2,000 in the case of a lockout and a minimum fine of $2,500 per day in the event of a strike by an association. Dues checkoff may be suspended for up to one year, and strike penalties may be assessed against individuals. However, fines may be reduced if the court determines that "extreme provocation" by the employer detracts from the association's responsibility for the strike.

VERMONT

Municipal Employees Bargaining Law Revised

The Municipal Employee Relations Act has replaced the bargaining law for municipal employees and firefighters; excludes certificated employees of school districts. The new statute, which will be administered by the State Labor Relations Board, prescribes procedures for collective bargaining on conditions of employment and union security, gives employees a limited right to strike, outlines methods of preventing and remedying certain unfair labor practices, and lists procedures for election and certification or decertification of employee representatives.

The act promotes union security by allowing the parties to negotiate agreements requiring as a condition of employment either the payment of an agency service fee or membership in an employee organization after 30 days of employment or the effective date of the contract, whichever is later. However, "no employee can be discharged or discriminated against for nonpayment of an agency shop fee or for nonmembership in an employee organization if membership was not available on the same terms and conditions generally applicable to other members or if membership was denied or terminated for reasons other than the failure of the employee to tender the periodic dues and the initiation fees uniformly required as a condition of acquiring or retaining membership."

Strikes are not prohibited unless they occur 30 days after a fact-finding report, after the parties have voluntarily submitted a dispute to final and binding arbitration, after an arbitrator has issued an award, or unless they endanger the health, safety, or welfare of the public.

If a bargaining impasse is reached, either party may request a mediator, or one may be appointed by the labor commissioner if the public interest requires it. If the issues remain unresolved after 15 days of mediation, a fact-finder will be appointed. The parties also may voluntarily submit the dispute to binding arbitration.

The statute also contains provisions for binding arbitration of grievances involving interpretation of a contract and grievances concerning tenure.

Petitions for certification of an organization as an exclusive bargaining agent must be supported by at least 30 percent of the employees to be included in the unit. Petitions for decertification must be supported by 51 percent of the employees in the unit. Employers also may file petitions for certification or decertification of an exclusive bargaining agent "or assert that a presently certified bargaining unit is no longer appropriate under board criteria."

FEDERAL

Group Legal Services Now Negotiable Item

On August 15, 1973, the President signed into law an amendment to Section 302 of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits employer contributions to jointly administered trust funds established by labor organizations to defray costs of legal services. Before sending the bill to the President, a House-Senate conference amended it to include the words "counsel or plan of their choice."

The amendment allows negotiators to decide for themselves on open or closed panels and insures flexibility in the collective bargaining process. According to proponents, the amendment will encourage adoption of free choice plans by requiring that employers participate jointly in these plans, which are now totally union-designed and administered, and the fact that most of these plans will be purchased and provided directly by employers rather than by jointly trusted funds will ensure that consideration will be given to all alternatives, including open panel plans.

States Given Authority To Determine Strikers' Eligibility for Welfare Payments

The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) issued a regulation, effective July 12, 1973, that leaves the states free to determine whether striking workers qualify for welfare benefits under the Aid for Families with Dependent Children Program. The already established hours-of-work test for eligibility which specifies that families of unemployed fathers working less than 100 hours per month would qualify still applies, but with the stipulation that "at the option of the state, such definition [of unemployed father] need not include a father whose unemployment results from participation in a labor dispute or who is unemployed by reason of conduct or circumstances which result or would result in disqualification for unemployment compensation under the state's unemployment compensation law." Currently, of 24 states that provide welfare benefits for families under the Aid for Dependent Children Program, two, Maryland and Oregon, exclude families with fathers who are on strike.

In explaining his decision to give states the option of deciding whether strikers qualify for welfare, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said that only this course is fully consistent with the "New Federalism" policies of the present Administration, which gives states greater flexibility to determine the best course for administering federal/state programs based on their own individual needs. He then pointed out that mandates which include or exclude strikers should be set only by the Congress.

The Consumer Price Index—September 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.3 percent in September to 135.5 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. Higher mortgage interest rates and price increases for apparel and some foods—notably cereal and bakery products and restaurant meals—contributed significantly to the rise. The effects of these increases were moderated by declines in prices of some other foods, particularly fresh vegetables and poultry. The September index was 7.4 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the August-to-September increase in the CPI was also 0.3 percent. The food index declined 0.1 percent, and the nonfood commodities index increased 0.1 percent after seasonal adjustment. The services index rose 0.9 percent.

In the June-to-September quarter, the CPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 10.3 percent, compared with 7.4 percent in the quarter ended in June and 8.6 percent in the quarter ended in March. The food index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 28.8 percent. The rate of increase was more than in the June quarter, primarily due to the sharp food price increase in August, and overall about the same as in the March quarter. The nonfood commodities index increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.6 percent in the September quarter, half as fast as in the June quarter. The services index rose at an annual rate of 7.4 percent in the September quarter, compared with 4.5 and 3.6 percent in the two preceding calendar quarters. (U.S. Department of Labor, Office of Information, News Release, October 19, 1973.)

STATISTICS

SHORT-TERM SICK LEAVE PROVISIONS IN COMPREHENSIVE TEACHER AGREEMENTS

The purposes of paid short-term sick leave is to give a teacher time to recuperate from brief illness or injury which prevents the performance of regular school duties. This analysis is intended to show the general negotiated content of sick leave provisions rather than the amount of annual sick leave allowed, the rate of accumulation, and the total number of sick leave days allowed to accumulate.[1]

More than 80 percent of the 1,529 negotiated agreements for the 1970-71 school year contained sick leave provisions. A sample of agreements (133) composed of every tenth agreement from each state in which a teacher/school board agreement had a sick leave provision was selected for analysis. The general negotiated content of these provisions is shown in Table 1.

ANALYZED CONTENT

The provisions were scrutinized to see if they included the following features: purpose of sick leave, requirement of physician's certificate to verify an illness, granting of additional sick leave when alloted or accrued sick leave has been exhausted, and compensation for accrued sick leave at retirement.

TABLE 1.–SICK LEAVE PROVISIONS, 1970-71: NEGOTIATED CONTENT

General content	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Purpose of leave	133	100.0
Physician's certificate	57	42.9
Additional leave for long absence	61	45.9
Payment of accrued sick leave upon separation	13	9.8
No sick leave deduction for injury or disease compensable under Workmen's Compensation Law	27	20.3
Total provisions analyzed	133	100.0

Some contracts used broad terms for sick leave, e.g., temporary leaves, leaves of absences, absences with salary, and leave pay. These terms were so general as to cover all short-term leaves, leave for family illness, death, or personal business as well as sickness or injury.

Purpose	Number of agreements	Percent
Personal illness or injury	72	54.1
Personal illness or injury, family illness, death in family	29	21.8
Personal illness or injury, family illness, death in family, personal business	20	15.0
Personal illness or injury, personal business	12	9.0
Total provisions analyzed	133	99.9

Examples of these provisions are as follows:

Section A: Temporary Leaves
Paragraph 1: Chargeable Temporary Leaves
Instructors are entitled to temporary leaves for personal illness or injury; illness, injury or death in the immediate family; personal business; and temporary active duty (upon being ordered) as a member of a reserve military unit.

[Wichita, Kansas]

At the beginning of each school year each full time teacher shall be credited with a twelve (12) day sick leave allowance to be used for absences caused by Personal illness or quarantine
Illness in the immediate family
Death in the family other than immediate family as defined (maximum five days)
Marriage of an employee or of a child of an employee (maximum of two days)
Personal business (2)

[Benton Harbor, Michigan]

[1]See National Education Association, Research, Salary Schedules and Fringe Benefits for Teachers, 1972-73. Research Report 1973-R2. Washington, D.C.: the Association, 1973. p. 30-31.

Two provisions out of five reserved to the administration the right to require that a teacher submit a physician's statement to verify an illness. In 33 percent of these provisions, the board could request such verification when an absence continued in excess of a specified length of time, with the stipulation, in some provisions, that the board do so at its own expense:

> In the event of absence of a teacher for illness in excess of five (5) consecutive working days, the Board may, at its expense, require a physician's statement of illness.
>
> [Ypsilanti, Michigan]

Physician's certificate required	Number of agreements	Percent
After a specific number of consecutive days	34	25.6
3 or more	12	9.0
4 or more	3	2.3
5 or more	15	11.3
8 or more	1	0.8
10 or more	3	2.3
Upon board request	18	13.5
Upon suspicion of misuse	5	3.8
Total provisions analyzed	133	100.0

More than 40 percent of the provisions incorporated alternative courses for acquiring additional sick leave when the employee had exhausted accumulated sick leave owing to a continuing illness. Some agreements placed disposition of the employee's request for additional leave in the hands of the administration, for example:

> Should a teacher's sick leave be used up, he may apply to the School Board for additional days.
>
> [Scottsdale, Arizona]

Some agreements stated that extra days for the teacher's use as additional sick leave could be taken, but pay for these days would be the difference between the teacher's regular pay and a substitute's pay, for example:

> When a teacher's absence due to personal illness exceeds the total number of sick leave days accumulated, an additional ten (10) days will be allowed during which the cost of employing a substitute will be deducted from the teacher's salary. Subsequent absences will be deducted at the rate of 1/200th of the teacher's annual salary for each absence. In the case of employees whose term of employment is, for any reason, less than a full school year, the sick leave entitlement shall be calculated at one (1) day per month or major fraction of a month of actual employment.
>
> [Haddon Heights, New Jersey]

Sick leave banks[2] which allow the teacher to borrow additional sick leave days without loss of pay or reliance on special consideration, was established in some agreements, for examples:

> Sick Leave Bank shall be established whereby teachers may "deposit" one day of the sick leave to which they are entitled each year. Teachers who have a protracted illness and who have used up the sick leave to which they are entitled may apply to draw on the bank. The operations of the bank and withdrawals therefrom shall be carried out in accordance with guidelines to be prepared by a committee composed of equal numbers of persons designated by the Superintendent and by the Association.
>
> [Brookline, Massachusetts]

A small percentage of the agreements provided that a teacher would be compensated for accrued unused sick leave upon separation from the school system through retirement, death, or termination of service:[3]

	Number of agreements	Percent
Upon retirement	7	5.3
Upon death	5	3.8
Upon resignation	1	0.8
Total provisions analyzed	133	100.0

Examples of these provisions are as follows:

> Upon retirement a member of the unit will be paid for 80% of such member's accumulated unused sick leave up to but not more than one hundred fifty (150) days.
> Upon death of a member of the unit his spouse or minor children shall receive 45% of such member's accumulated unused sick leave up to but not more than one hundred fifty (150) days. If there is no surviving spouse or minor child, such payment shall be made to his estate.
>
> [Newington, Connecticut]

> Each teacher shall receive ten leave days per year accumulative to 50 days. Any days accumulated in excess of 50 days will be paid at the per diem contractual rate. Upon leaving the Redford Union Schools, in good standing, a teacher will be compensated for any unused leave time at the beginning B.A. salary, except that days in excess of fifty will be paid at the current per diem contractual rate.
>
> [Redford Union, Detroit, Michigan]

In one agreement, a teacher is to be paid for unused sick leave at the end of the school year:

> If a professional employee does not take the ton (10) days sick leave, the school district shall pay that employe for the same at the end of the school year at a rate of ten dollars ($10) per day. In the event that an employe leaves the district or retires prior the the end of the school year, said employe shall receive on a pro rata basis ten dollars ($10) per day for each day of unused sick leave.
>
> [Bethlehem Center
> Fredericktown, Pennsylvania]

[2]For further examples of sick leave bank see Negotiation Research Digest, April 1972.

[3]For further information see Terminal Leave Pay Provisions, NRD, June 1972.

SICK DAYS ALLOTTED

Almost 4 percent of the provisions sampled provided that accrued sick leave earned in one school district could be transferred on request to another school district, within the state, for example:

> Earned sick leave in another Florida County shall be transferred at the request of the Personnel Department and credited to any staff member employed having such accrued leave.
>
> [Volusia Co. Sch. Dist.
> Deland, Florida]

Most provisions stated that a teacher would be credited with a specific number of days per contract year (usually one day per month), thus affording the teacher immediate use of sick leave with the stipulation that the full year be worked. The majority of provisions included the total amount of sick leave that may be accumulated over the years. Some provisions also included language affecting the board's share of payment for absences owing to work related injury or disease compensable under the Workmen's Compensation Law.

Slightly more than 20 percent of the sick leave provisions stipulated that an employee would receive the difference between regular pay and workmen's compensation for work-related injuries with no deduction from sick leave up to a certain number of days as stipulated in the agreement.

> Any employee injured while under the coverage of Workmen's Compensation will not have days deducted from their sick leave as the result of an accident. During this period the employee will be paid the difference between the weekly compensation benefit and their normal remuneration. Such remuneration shall be payable so long as the employee is unable to work or a maximum of sixty (60) days.
>
> [Hoover Schrum Sch. Dist.
> Calumet City, Illinois]

Selected sick leave provisions are reprinted below. These are sample provisions only, and they are not intended to be regarded as exemplary.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Sick Leave

Teachers shall be entitled to sick leave with full pay for a maximum of fifteen (15) working days in each year. Unused sick leave shall be accumulated from year to year, so long as the teacher remains continuously in the service of the Board, up to but not in excess of one hundred fifty (150) working days.

Teachers whose respective schools are closed by order of the Health Officer or the Superintendent shall receive full pay and such absence shall not be charged to sick leave.

In the event of absence of a teacher for illness in excess of five (5) consecutive working days, the Board may, if it has reasonable cause to believe that there is an abuse of sick leave policy, require an examination by an independent physician, such examination to be at Board expense.

A teacher who has been absent because of infectious or contagious disease may be required to submit evidence of complete recovery before resuming his duties.

Leave of absence for ill health not to exceed two years may be granted, without pay, by the Board, such leave being subject to the regulations regarding retirement, and shall be credited as teaching experience on the salary schedule.

[Danbury, Connecticut]

* * *

Each regular, full-time teacher will be allowed ten days of sick leave each school year without loss of pay if he is absent due to personal illness. Part-time teachers and teachers who have individual contracts of less than a full year will be allowed the sick leave benefit on a pro-rated basis. A teacher under a summer school contract will be allowed two summer school days sick leave, which shall not be accumulated or deducted from regular sick leave.

The ten days of sick leave will be credited at the beginning of each school year. Any unused sick leave credit may be accumulated up to a maximum of 130 days for each teacher.

With the exception of the first ten days of accumulated sick leave, a teacher requesting approval of the use of accumulated sick leave shall have a form completed by his licensed physician indicating the nature of his illness and shall forward such form to the Superintendent. Upon receipt of the form the Superintendent will present the request of this use of accumulated sick leave to the Board.

Upon beginning employment with the Board, a teacher previously employed by a school district as a full-time certified teacher shall receive an accumulated sick leave days 70 percent of this total: 10 times (the teacher's step placement on the salary schedule); except that a teacher shall not receive more than the maximum number of accumulated sick leave days allowed under XIV(2).

A teacher absent as a result of being injured while at work may supplement Workmen's Compensation by taking accumulated sick leave in fractions (to the nearest tenth) of days. A maximum of up to ten days sick leave credit in any one school year will be reinstated to offset sick leave taken for the purpose of supplementing Workmen's Compensation during the year.

[Racine, Wisconsin]

* * *

LEAVE POLICIES

Sick Leave - Personal Illness

Each member of the professional staff is entitled to 20 days of sick leave per year with full pay.

Sick leave can be accumulated for an unlimited period.

If a staff member has used up all of his sick leave, he shall be entitled to an additional 30 days sick leave in a given year with his pay reduced by compensation paid to his substitute.

The Superintendent may require a medical exam at his discretion.

[Southbury, Connecticut]

PRICE INCREASES BOOST FAMILY BUDGETS 4.3 PERCENT

The most recent revision of the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), three standards of living budgets for a defined family of four reveals that between autumn 1971 and autumn 1972 the total annual cost of an intermediate budget rose 4.3 percent to $11,446, the higher budget rose 4.1 percent to $16,558, and the lower budget rose 2.4 percent to $7,386. Exclusive of taxes and social security payments the budgets rose 3.2, 4.5, and 4.4 percent in the three levels, lowest to highest.

Of the total intermediate budget, 79 percent accounted for consumption items including food, housing, clothing, transportation, personal care, and medical care. Housing including shelter, house furnishings, and household operations, showed the sharpest increase, 6.5 percent. The cost for shelter was up 7.9 percent—2.9 percent for renters and 9.0 percent for homeowners. A comparison of the amounts allocted to shelter among the three budget levels shows that shelter accounted for 31 percent of total consumption at the intermediate level compared with 34 percent at the higher level and 26 percent at the lower level.

The updated computations also revealed that food costs in the intermediate budget rose 5.6 percent in contrast to 3.3 percent during the preceding 18-month span. Food costs account for 34 percent of consumption at the lower level, 30 percent at the intermediate level, and 27 percent at the higher level.

In monetary terms, food accounted for $2,673 of the total intermediate budget in 1972 while housing claimed $2,810, transportation $979 with costs for automobile owners at $1,026, clothing $956, recreation, tobacco, alcoholic beverages, and education $702, medical care $632, and personal care $261. Personal income taxes totaled $1,375, social security and disability payments $482, and other items such as gifts, life insurance, and occupational expenses, $576.

TABLE 1.—SUMMARY OF ANNUAL BUDGETS FOR A 4-PERSON FAMILY AT 3 LEVELS OF LIVING, URBAN UNITED STATES, AUTUMN 1972

Component	Budget level
	Lower	Intermediate	Higher
Total budget	$7,386	$11,446	$16,588
Total family consumption	6,029	9,013	12,462
Food	2,058	2,673	3,370
Housing	1,554	2,810	4,234
Transportation	546	979	1,270
Clothing	667	956	1,400
Personal care	197	261	370
Medical care	629	632	659
Other family consumption	378	702	1,159
Other items	365	576	967
Taxes	992	1,857	3,129
Social security and disability	397	482	482
Personal income taxes	595	1,375	2,647

Source: Brackett, Jean. "Urban Family Budgets Updated to Autumn 1972." Monthly Labor Review 96: 70-76; August 1973.

An increase of 4.4 percent to $11,731 in the intermediate budget for metropolitan areas of the urban United States was also recorded by BLS. The intermediate metropolitan budget was 15 percent higher than in areas with population of 2,500 to 50,000 while the metropolitan-nonmetropolitan difference for the higher level was 22 percent and the lower level 10 percent.

Special Reports

NEGOTIATED PAID LEAVE FOR EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCES, CONFERENCE FEES PAID, AND TRAVEL ALLOWANCE PROVISIONS

The following analysis of provisions which deal with three aspects of educational conferences is based on 1,529 written negotiated agreements for 1970-71 analyzed by NEA Research. Of the 1,529 agreements analyzed, 40.6 percent contained a provision for leave with pay for educational conferences; 26.0 percent, a provision for paid conference fees; and 19.4 percent, a travel allowance provision. Table 1 presents the number and percent of the various combinations of these three provisions.

Leave for educational conferences is considered as professional improvement leave intended to allow teachers an opportunity to acquaint themselves with outstanding examples of educational projects, to improve the quality of their work, and to benefit the school system's educational and instructional programs. More than 90 percent of the agreements did not specify the maximum number of days' leave that could be taken for attendance at these conferences. Generally such leaves are granted by the superintendent upon the individual teacher's request with prior approval of the supervising principal. Some school systems stipulated that requests for permission to attend conferences be submitted a certain time in advance of the effective date of leave for the conference, and that the conference be within the teacher's area of expertise and of value to the school system. Examples of these types of statements are:

> Authorization for attendance at conferences must be submitted in writing 15 days in advance except in cases of emergencies.
>
> [Niagara, Falls City Schools, Niagara Falls, New York]

> The activity is to be of value to the district. Planning by those attending should emphasize how their participation in the activity will help meet the needs of the district.
>
> [Natrona County HSD-District No. 2 Casper, Wyoming]

> Provision may be made for excused absences for the purpose of visiting other schools or attending meetings or conferences of an educational nature by applying to the Superintendent. This leave will be granted at the discretion of the Superintendent after he has determined the appropriateness of the request and its relatedness to the education program in which the teacher is involved.
>
> [Hillsborough Township School District, Belle Meade, New Jersey]

The agreement may require teachers upon return from educational conference leave to submit a written or oral report outlining pertinent information about the conference to their immediate supervisors or the superintendent. The following provision is an example:

> A written report of the conference or meeting must be submitted to the Superintendent of Schools before reimbursement will be made. This report should be brief and should include items which may be of value in our work in this School District—new ideas, different techniques, better procedures, evidence to substantiate merit, present practices, weaknesses observed in various practices, etc.
>
> [Monticello Central School District, Monticello, New York]

TABLE 1.—NEGOTIATED PROVISIONS RELATING TO PAID LEAVE FOR EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCES, CONFERENCE FEES PAID, AND TRAVEL ALLOWANCE

Type of provision	Agreements containing designated content
	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Paid conference leave only	336	22.0
Leave, travel, and fees paid	164	10.7
Conference fees paid only	88	5.8
Leave and conferences fees paid	82	5.4
Conference fees paid and travel allowance	63	4.1
Leave and travel allowance	39	2.6
Travel allowance only	31	2.0
Total number of agreements analyzed	1,529	100.0
Total number of pertinent provisions	1,315	86.0

In 97.3 percent of the 621 agreements containing the provision for educational conference leave, such leave is separate and not deducted from other leaves. More than 90 percent of the provisions do not specify the maximum number of days of leave that can be used for conferences but indicate that teachers will be given sufficient leave time to attend conferences without loss of compensation. For example:

> Teachers may be granted leave with full pay for attendance at professional conferences, school visitation and other activities designed to improve their competency as professionals. Absence for such approved leaves shall fall outside the District policy on Non-Attendance.
>
> [Mineola Public Schools, Mineola, New York]

> A teacher attending such conferences and meetings shall be granted sufficient leave time to attend without loss of compensation or leave days.
>
> [Bloomfield Hills School District, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan]

Usually agreements containing the provision for payment of conference fees do not limit the amount that the school system will pay but state that the system will pay reasonable expenses, including conference fees, upon receipt of statements supporting expenditures.

Reimbursement for travel allowance, which covers transportation, food, and lodging, is covered in three ways. In some agreements reimbursement is limited to a daily maximum, such as:

> Cost for lodging and meals will be reimbursed at cost with a maximum of $25.00 per day if the meeting requires staying overnight.
>
> [Gwinn School District, Gwinn, Michigan]

A few systems pay a flat rate to defray the costs of travel, lodging, and meals, for example:

> Any teacher who is attending a conference related to his subject area, having first received approval from his supervisor and from the Assistant Superintendent for Instruction shall be reimbursed a maximum of $150 for all essential expenses of travel, food, lodging and conference fees.
>
> [Half Hollow Hills Central School District No. 5, Huntington Station, New York]

Most agreements cover all reasonable expenses, for example:

> The School Committee will pay the reasonable expenses including fees, meals, lodging and/or transportation incurred by teachers who attend School Committee approved workshops, seminars, conferences, or other professional improvement sessions.
>
> [Burlington School District, Burlington, Massachusetts]

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Cheshire, Connecticut

Between Cheshire Board of Education and Cheshire Education Association, effective September 1, 1972, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 316 certificated professional employees, excluding personnel in positions requiring an administrative or supervisory certificate. Provision for automatic renewal unless either party gives written notice by December 1, 1974, that it wishes to terminate the agreement; upon such notice the parties shall meet by February 1, 1975, to exchange proposals.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,065 to $12,245, 12 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $14,045 maximum; B.A. plus 60 hours, $15,095 maximum; Ph.D., $15,895 maximum; longevity pay effective September 1, 1972, through August 31, 1973, $300 additional for 15 through 17 years' service, $600 additional for 18 through 20 years' service, $900 additional for 21 through 24 years' service, $1,200 additional for 25 or more years' service; teachers who have completed at least 15 years' service who are eligible for retirement under the Connecticut State Retirement System Plan, and who have indicated their intention of retiring before February 1 prior to the last three years of service will receive a retirement increment of $1,250 a year for each of the three years prior to retirement.

DIFFERENTIALS: High school—head football coach, $1,150, head basketball coach, $1,045; faculty manager, head baseball and track coaches, $940, assistant football, basketball, baseball, and track coaches, head soccer coach, $730; boys' and girls' intramurals, $630; cross country, $625, assistant soccer and golf coaches, 9th grade football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, girls' field hockey, girls' basketball, girls' softball, girls' volleyball, $470. Junior high school—boys' intramurals, $800; girls' intramurals, $500; director of athletics, $450; football, soccer, boys' basketball, girls' basketball, boys' baseball, girls' softball, track, and cross country, $310; senior play director, $750; band director, senior class coordinator, yearbook, $500; assistant play director, $250; audiovisual building coordinators, $200; newspaper, $150; department heads, $800 plus $100 for each 5 teachers supervised; guidance counselors, $650; special education and reading and speech teachers, $400-$700, 5 steps.

OTHER: Salaries of part-time certified teachers determined by position on the salary schedule and the number of periods taught; teachers of the homebound after school hours will be paid $10 per hour; teachers working beyond 183 days as advisors for curriculum work shall receive $25 per day on steps 0 to 4, $30 per day on steps 5 to 8, and $35 per day on step 9 or above; 10¢ per mile for all interschool travel by teachers assigned to more than one school on any one school day; in the event of death the teacher's survivors or his estate will receive 50 percent of the teacher's accumulated unused leave at the daily rate of 1/200 of the average of the last three years' salary in no case will the death benefit be less than $600.

LEAVES: 15 days accumulative annual sick leave; in addition 45 days extended sick leave less substitute's salary, beyond the 45-day period a deduction shall be made each day equal to 1/200 of the teacher's annual salary for the remainder of the school year; absences caused by the death, hospitalization and/or critical illness, or wedding of a member of the immediate family, or for attendance in court or other legal demands outside the employee's control may be charged against sick leave; for other absences a prorated deduction of 1/200 of the annual salary; full salary less workmen's compensation up to 180 days for employment-related injury or illness; 1 day per year for personal leave cumulative to 3; no charge will be made against a teacher's leave for observance of recognized holy days of the teacher's faith; paid leave for approved visiting days for professional improvement; sabbatical leave at the rate specified in the contract executed between the board and the recipient for research, study, travel, or writing after 7 consecutive years of teaching in the school system; all insurance benefits will be in effect; the board may reimburse the employee for travel and other expenses related to such leave; employee must sign contract stating that he will return to active service in the Cheshire Schools for at least two years after the expiration of such leave; an employee who does not fulfill his obligations shall repay the board the amount received while on such leave but he shall be relased from such payment if his failure to serve the two years is due to illness, disability, death, or dismissal; upon return the employee will be restored to the same or equivalent position prior to such leave or to a higher position if eligible and placed on the salary schedule that he would have attained had he not been absent; all previously accumulated sick days and personal days will be reinstated; educational leave of absence without pay shall be granted to teachers who have demonstrated superior capacity for five years under the provisions of the Cheshire Evaluation Plan; the recipient of such leave will be guaranteed the right to return to the teaching position or equivalent that he or she occupied prior to the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule step which he would occupy had he remained on the job; on return all previously accumulated sick days and personal days will be reinstated; teacher on leave will have the opportunity to continue all insurance benefits during the duration of leave at his own expense; leave for personal reasons may be granted by the board; recipient of such leave shall on return be placed on the same salary step attained at the time such leave was taken; teachers on personal leave shall have the opportunity to continue all insurance benefits at their own expense; all previously accumulated sick days and personal days will be reinstated.

INSURANCE: Blue Cross Extended Plan with semiprivate room rider and maternity rider available with individual and family coverage for all teachers; major medical insurance provided; $5,000 life insurance policy with accidental death and dismemberment rider.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; released time for not more than 5 association representatives per day for negotiation meetings; released time for no more than 2 association members per day to investigate a grievance or attend a grievance meeting or hearing; any grieving teacher, or teacher called by the board, and not more than 3 teachers called by the grieving teacher shall also be accorded released time.

INSTRUCTION: Association to be provided with a copy of board policy governing class size after considering responsible comments of the professional staff; the school calendar shall consist of 180 teaching days plus 3 work days; the association shall cooperate in planning, preparing, and executing curriculum development and revision through appropriate curriculum committees involving teachers, administrators, and supervisory personnel; board agrees that clerical and paraprofessional assistance is necessary for teachers to carry out their primary responsibility of teaching; no teacher shall be required to perform lunchroom duties; teachers shall not be assigned, except temporarily and for good cause, outside the scope of their teaching certificates or their major or minor fields of study.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; tuition reimbursement up to $250 for any one school year for inservice courses or courses at accredited institutions for improvement in immediate subject area or teaching assignment; the board shall pay reasonable expenses incurred by teachers who attend workshops, seminars, conferences, or other professional improvement sessions with the advance approval of their superior and the superintendent; $3,000 will be provided annually for the duration of this contract for training expenses; released time will be provided for inservice training and workshops at the discretion of the board; the superintendent shall honor written requests for change in teaching assignments that are in the best interests of the school system, the teachers, and the children; new positions and vacancies shall be posted in each school during the school year and in the central office during the summer; all cases of assault and battery involving a teacher in connection with his employment must be reported in writing immediately to his principal who will forward this information to the superintendent and the board; a teacher may request the board to furnish legal assistance if a criminal or civil charge is brought against him alleging that he committed assault in connection with his employment.

Billings, Montana

Between Billings School District No. 2 and the Billings Education Association, effective June 30, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 850 certificated professional employees. Provision for automatic renewal unless the board or the association gives notice not later than 90 days prior to the expiration.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $7,450 to $10,730, 11 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $7,700 minimum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $7,960; B.A. plus 45 hours, $8,090; M.A., $8,220 to $13,160, 13 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $8,480 minimum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $8,730; sixth year $15,350 maximum; to receive salary increases or to remain at the maximum salary the teacher must earn four semester or six quarter hours of college credit during every five years of employment.

DIFFERENTIALS: An Extra Pay Committee composed of two association members and two board appointees established to continuously review the rating of each extracurricular assignment, recommend additions to or deletions from the extra pay schedule, advise the board and association on matters concerning pay for extra duties, and review the area of short-term duty assignments.

INSURANCE: Health and long-term disability insurance available to all employees and families at no additional cost to employees; post-retirement, major medical coverage available to retired teacher if he will assume payment of the premium.

ASSOCIATION: Voluntary payroll deduction of local association dues; one hour released time per day for one association executive officer to attend to association business; association to reimburse district for 1/6 of the released teacher's salary; professional leave, without loss of pay granted duly elected or appointed association representatives to attend state, regional, and national association meetings or conventions; it shall be at the administration's directive if more than one association representative will be allowed leave simultaneously; right to use school buildings upon notice for association meetings; right to use interschool mail and mail boxes;

LEAVES: Ten days' sick leave per year, 100 days maximum accumulation; one day personal leave to transact or attend to personal, legal, business, household, or family matters which require absence during school hours; three days' absence allowed per emergency for critical illness in immediate family upon written application to and at discretion of superintendent; up to five days per year for death in the immediate family, additional absence deducted from sick leave; nondeductible absence allowed male teachers for hospital attendance from time of wife's admission until delivery or until any unforseen emergency is resolved; nondeductible absence for a teacher who must appear in court; requests for such absence must be made in writing; teachers may be released for jury duty if adequate substitute service can be provided; sabbatical leave at one-half annual salary for training, travel, or research after seven years in the system; leave granted to serve in public office when serving interferes with regular teaching assignment; upon written request tenured teachers may be granted leave of absence for one or two semesters for health, further training, or travel and study with insurance benefits continued at employees' expense and leave time counted as experience time for advancement on salary schedule if leave was for training, travel, or study.

INSTRUCTION: Not more than six class and duty assignments per day in junior high school; for additional class and duty assignments, 1/7 of the teacher's base pay shall be added to his salary; an effort will be made to provide aides in cases where the daily pupil load is excessive; clerical help will be employed in all schools to relieve teachers of noninstructional duties; an attempt will be made to employ instructional aides; duty-free lunch period same length as that of students except in unusual circumstances; teachers may make recommendations in planning the school calendar; a Professional Advisory Committee for Curriculum (PACC) composed of four association members from primary, intermediate, junior high, and senior high levels and four administration appointees shall work to clarify the purposes, philosophy, and educational goals of the district, recommend the establishment of curriculum review subcommittee to study curriculum correlation between grades, courses of study, textbooks, and curriculum guides; PACC may also recommend workshops, courses, conferences, and programs designed to improve instruction; teacher groups are encouraged to submit recommendations on curriculum to the PACC; the parties recognize that PACC and its subcommittees serve in an advisory capacity only and that the failure of the board to implement any of its recommendations shall not constitute a basis for a grievance; a teacher has the right to refuse assignment of a student teacher; whenever possible teachers should have three years' teaching experience before being assigned a student teacher; teachers will be assigned not more than one student teacher unit per year unless the teacher requests more with reimbursement for directing student teachers paid directly to the teacher.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with meeting between the Professional Responsibility and Rights Committee, the superintendent, and the grievant;

Teachers and principals are to set up the following procedures in order to improve channels of communications in our schools:

A. Building Communication Committees

The teachers in each building will elect a Teachers Communication Committee composed of three teachers. Each committee will elect one of their members as Chairman. The principal will not be a member of the Committee. The purpose of the Teachers Communication Committee is to discuss school problems with the principal in an advisory capacity. The principal will meet with the Committee as meetings are called. A meeting may be called at any time by the principal or by any member making a request to the principal.

B. District Communication Committees

The Chairman of each Secondary Teachers Communication Committee will be a member of the District Secondary Schools Communication Committee and the Chairman of each Elementary Teachers Communication Committee will be a member of the District Elementary Schools Communication Committee. These committees will meet in October and in January of each year and when any Committee member requests a meeting through the Superintendent of Schools. The purpose of the District Committees is to discuss channels of communication—not problems.

Right to review personnel file excluding the confidential portion with any party that the teacher designates; if a teacher disagrees with his evaluation, he may seek redress through a joint committee composed of members appointed by the association and the president of the Board of Trustees; no transfers will be made for disciplinary or downgrading purposes; some veteran teachers may be asked to accept transfers to strengthen the staffs of other schools.

* * *

River Edge, New Jersey

Between the River Edge Borough School District and the River Edge Teachers Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 64 certified professional employees, including special teachers, librarians, nurses, psychologists, and social workers.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A. $8,890 to $15,090, 13 increments; M.A., $9,990 to $16,990, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $18,090 maximum. Request for and proof for any change in salary schedule placement is teacher's responsibility. Upon superintendent's prior approval, equivalency credit of up to 10 credits out of 30 credits given to teachers who satisfactorily complete approved workshops.

DIFFERENTIALS: Teachers who conduct "after-school activities" shall be compensated $500 per year for activity.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, unlimited accumulation; upon presentation of a physician's statement extended sick leave may be granted for major illness, four days after accumulated sick leave is exhausted teacher will be paid his day's salary less the substitute teacher's rate of pay; two days personal leave, subject to prior approval, without specifying a reason, and additional personal leave provided reasons are specified; leave for a legal summons, subpoena, or appearance as a witness in an action in which the teacher is not involved, amount of witness fee shall be deducted from the teacher's salary and applied to the substitute's pay; bereavement leave for a death in the immediate family shall be determined by the superintendent, dependent on individual circumstances; extended leaves: all teachers eligible except those drafted into the military leave must be requested in writing from the superintendent, requests for extended leave for personal illness must be accompanied by a physician's statement attesting the need for the leave, return to duties must be requested in writing and accompanied by a physician's statement of health.

MATERNITY LEAVE OF ABSENCE

The Board shall grant pregnancy or child-rearing leaves without pay to any teacher upon request subject to the following stipulations and limitations:

PREGNANCY LEAVE:

Notification

Pregnant teachers shall notify the Superintendent in writing of the condition of pregnancy upon knowledge of the condition.

Length of Leave

Pregnancy leave shall commence on the date set forth by the teacher;

Pregnancy leaves shall commence no later than the start of the eighth month of pregnancy unless the teacher presents a statement from her physician certifying that she is capable of continuing her employment beyond that time;

A pregnant teacher who expects to deliver her child during the first month of the school year shall not commence teaching during that month, the leave becoming effective as of the start of that month;

A pregnancy leave shall be terminated no later than ten (10) days following the date of the delivery of the child, unless the teacher's physician certifies that an additional period of recuperation is required, such additional time shall not exceed one year.

A pregnancy leave of absence granted a non-tenure teacher may not be extended beyond the end of the contract year in which the leave is obtained.

Return to Duty

A teacher shall not be permitted to return to duty following a pregnancy leave unless she produces a statement from her physician attesting that she is physically able to resume her duties;

No teacher shall be prevented from returning to work after childbirth solely on the basis that there has not been a time lapse between childbirth and the desired date of return.

CHILD REARING LEAVE:

Notification

Any teacher may apply for a child rearing leave;

Where both husband and wife may be teachers in the River Edge schools, only one of said persons shall be entitled to such leave;

Application for child rearing leave shall be filed at least three months before the anticipated birth of the child.

Length of Leave

Application for child rearing leave may become effective for female teachers immediately upon the termination of the pregnancy leave;

Child rearing leave shall terminate one year from the date of the birth of the child and, upon request of the teacher, shall be extended for one additional year;

Requests for extension of child rearing leaves must be made at least three months prior to the expiration of the first year.

A child rearing leave of absence granted a non-tenure teacher may not be extended beyond the end of the contract year in which the leave is obtained.

Return to Duty

Any teacher granted child rearing leave may be assigned to any position decided upon by the Superintendent so long as such assignment is within the certification of such teacher.

ADOPTION OF AN INFANT:

Any teacher adopting an infant child shall receive similar (child rearing) leave which shall commence upon the teacher's receiving de facto custody of said infant, or earlier if necessary to fulfill the requirements for the adoption.

INSURANCE: Board paid Blue Cross/Blue Shield basic coverage and major medical; board will permit representatives of investing firm to appear at a faculty meeting once a year to enroll new members or adjust present members' investments.

INSTRUCTION: Teachers indicate their presence in school by checking roster; board shall consider association recommendations for preparation of the school calendar; early dismissal of students one day for each scheduled five-day week for building or school-wide faculty meetings and professional development workshops; yearly one full day for a school-wide professional workshop; schools will be closed during days of NJEA convention; evaluation report to be reviewed by the teacher and an administrator before being placed in personnel file, report shall be dated and signed by both parties; pupils will be dismissed early on three designated parent-teacher conference days; attempt will be made to provide substitutes for special teachers (art, music, physical education etc.); teachers purchasing supplies with prior approval of the administration shall be reimbursed upon submitting receipt of purchase; teachers shall make recommendations regarding selection of textbooks and instructional materials; a Staff Advisory Council to be maintained by the superintendent and the association president who will serve as ex-officio members, each party shall appoint three members to serve a one-year term, council shall make recommendations and suggestions for problems of common concern, rules of procedure and by-laws will be drawn up by Council.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; right to review personnel file upon request; board will provide 25% payment of courses satisfactorily completed and with superintendent's prior approval; standing teacher-administrator committee to devise evaluation criteria; building principal may confer with teacher members of committee on matters concerning principal's responsibility for evaluating staff; nontenure teachers shall be notified of their contract status between April 1 and April 15 of the current year; all teachers shall be given tentative teaching assignments for the next year on or before April 1 and again one week before the end of the school year if any changes were made.

Texts

ALABAMA

TEACHER CONSULTATION AND GROUP INSURANCE LAWS

Consultation Law for County Employees

Enrolled, An Act, to amend Title 52, Section 73 of the Code of Alabama of 1940; to provide that the county board of education shall adopt written policies with regard to education and to provide that such written policies shall be made available to all employees of the board. BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. Title 52, Section 73 of the Code of Alabama of 1940, is hereby amended to read as follows: "Section 73. Educational Policy of the County. The county board of education shall, upon the written recommendation of the county Superintendent of education, determine and establish a written educational policy for the county and shall prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct and management of the schools. Before adopting written policies the board SHALL directly, or indirectly through the superintendent, CONSULT with the professional organization representing the majority of the certified employees, and in addition shall also consult with professional assistants, principals, teachers, and interested citizens. The county board must, on or before August 1, 1974, and establish such policies and adopt such rules and regulations and file them with the state superintendent of education on or before September 15, 1974. Such written policies, rules and regulations, so established, adopted, or promulgated shall be made available on or before September 15, 1974, to all teachers employed by the county board. Any subsequent amendments to such policies, rules and regulations shall be developed in the same manner, filed with the state superintendent and furnished to the teachers employed by the local board within twenty (20) days after adoption thereof.

Section 2. All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 3. This Act shall become effective upon its passage and approval by the Governor or upon its otherwise becoming a law.

* * *

Consultation Law for City Employees

Enrolled, An Act, to amend Title 52, Section 166 of the Code of Alabama of 1940; to provide that the city board of education shall adopt written policies with regard to education; to provide that such written policies shall be made available to all teachers employed by the board; and to provide that such written policies and written amendments thereto shall be filed with the state superintendent of education. BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. Title 52, Section 166 of the Code of Alabama of 1940 is hereby amended to read as follows: "Section 166. Control of city schools. The city board of education shall, upon the written recommendation of the city superintendent of education, determine and establish a written educational policy for the city and shall prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct and management of the schools. Before adopting written policies the board shall directly, or indirectly through the superintendent, consult with the professional organization representing the majority of the certified employees, and in addition shall also consult with professional assistants, principals, teachers, and interested citizens. The city board must, on or before August 1, 1974, establish such policies and adopt such rules and regulations and file them with the state superintendent of education on or before September 15, 1974. Such written policies, rules and regulations, so established, adopted, or promulgated shall be made available on or before September 15, 1974, to all teachers employed by the city board. Any subsequent amendments to such policies, rules and regulations shall be developed in the same manner, filed with the state superintendent and furnished to the teachers employed by the local board within twenty (20) days after adoption thereof.

Section 2. All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 3. This act shall become effective upon its passage and approval by the governor or upon its other wise becoming a law.

* * *

Group Insurance Law

SYNOPSIS: To provide Boards of Education with authority to pay part, all or none of the premium due on Employee Insurance, to form employees into groups for available employee benefits and to authorize payroll deductions therefor.

To provide for the formation of local school board employee groups for the purpose of securing group insurance and other benefits.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. Each local board of education may form its employees into a group or groups or recognize existing groups for the purpose of obtaining the advantages of group life, disability, medical, and dental insurance or any group insurance plans to aid its employees, as long as the employees continue to be employed by the board of education. Any local board of education may pay all or part of the premium on the policies, and/or may deduct from the salaries of the employees that part of the premium which is to be paid by them and may contract with the insurer to provide the above benefits.

Section 2. Each local board of education shall adopt policies or regulations which provide for deductions from salaries of its employees or groups of employees whenever a request is presented to the board by said employees or groups thereof. Such deductions shall be made from salaries earned in at least six different pay periods, and shall be remitted to the appropriate company, association or organization as specified by the employees. The deductions may be made for, but not limited to tax sheltered annuities, membership dues and group insurance premiums. With the exception of membership dues, the board shall not be required to make more than one remittance, of amounts deducted during a pay period, for a separate type of deduction. Health insurance, life insurance, and tax-sheltered annuities shall be interpreted as separate types of deductions. When amounts have been correctly deducted and remitted by the board, said board shall bear no further responsibility or liability for subsequent transaction.

Section 3. Payments and deductions made by the board of education under the authority of this section are presumed to be for services rendered and for the benefit of the public schools; and the payments and deductions do not affect the eligibility of any school system to participate in the foundation program as established in Sections 208-215 of Title 52 of the Code of Alabama, Recompiled 1958.

Section 4. The provisions of this act are severable. If any part of this act is declared to be invalid or unconstitutional, such declaration shall not affect the part which remains.

Section 5. Repealer. All laws or parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 6. This act shall become effective immediately upon its passage and approval of the Governor or its otherwise becoming law.

VOL. 7 NO. 4
DEC. 1973

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Board Not Legally Bound To Adhere to Negotiated Contract
- Injunction Issued in Contract Violation Case Upheld
- Court Reverses MERC Order To Conform with Trial Examiner's Findings
- Highest Court Orders a Hearing To Determine Striking Teachers
- Arbitrator's Award After Deleting Remedy Confirmed
- Negotiated Arbitration Provision Unenforceable; Nonrenewal Unappealable
- Wages, Hours, and Working Conditions Are Bargainable If They Do Not Affect Board Policies
- Principals Supporting Teachers' Strike Ordered Reinstated

Board Findings and Rulings 8
- Supervision Not Only Criterion for Exclusion from a Nonsupervisory Unit
- No Restrictions on Where Sick Leave Is Taken
- Political History Teacher Granted Year's Leave To Attend Law School
- Expiration of Contracts Not a Bar to Payment of Earned Compensation
- Board Provokes Impasse by Publishing Association Proposals

Negotiation Notes 11
- Executive Order Grants Bargaining Rights to State Employees
- Public Employees Bargaining Statute Amended
- Public Employee Bargaining Law Permits Agency Shop, Concerted Activities
- Employee Representative Clarified
- AGO: Sabbatical Leave Negotiable if Not in Conflict with School Code
- Payroll Dues Deduction

Statistics 13
- Consumer Price Index, September 1973; 10-Year Averages and 1972-73 by Month

Special Reports 16
- Briefs of Agreements
- Building Trades Wage Rates Average $7.61 an Hour
- Major Collective Bargaining Settlements Up 6.0 Percent
- Teacher Strikes, Work Stoppages, and Interruptions of Service, 1972-73

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1973 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2612

CASE REVIEWS

ARIZONA

Board Not Legally Bound To Adhere to Negotiated Contract

The Arizona Supreme Court reversed a lower court order directing the Board of Education of the Scottsdale High School District No. 212 to abide by the negotiated impasse procedure and cease from unilaterally setting teachers' salaries.

The Scottsdale Education Association brought the complaint after unsuccessfully invoking the negotiated impasse procedure. The board declined to follow the impasse procedure and unilaterally set teachers' salaries for the succeeding school year. In its complaint in superior court, the association asked for a writ of mandamus directing the board to comply with the procedure.

Under the Constitution of Arizona, Article VI, Sec. 14, the Superior Court has original jurisdiction over certain enumerated classes of cases "and such other jurisdiction as may be provided by law." Further, the legislature by A.R.S. 12-2021 has provided that the superior courts may issue writs of mandamus to a person or board to compel performance of an act which the law specifically imposes as a duty resulting from an office.

In the superior court's judgment, "the board voluntarily entered into the agreement and is contractually bound to honor the terms of the agreement during the life of that agreement." Since there was no public law requiring the boards to enter into impasse procedures, the obligation to do so arose wholly from the collective bargaining agreement. However, the appeals court, citing Black v. Santa Monica (13 Cal. App., 2d 4; 56 P. 2d 256 (1936), held that this rationale was applicable only to "other corporate entities or other individuals, as especially enjoined to observe contractual obligations." And since "the law imposes upon municipal corporations and their officers no special duty to carry out the terms of contracts or to refrain from breaches of contractual relations," mandamus is not an appropriate remedy to compel compliance with the asserted breach of the agreement. The supreme court declared the judgment of the superior court reversed with directions that the original complaint be dismissed. (Board of Education of the Scottsdale High School District No. 212 and the Board of Trustees of the Scottsdale Elementary District No. 48, Appellants, v. Scottsdale Education Association, Appellee, Supreme Court of the State of Arizona, May 2, 1973.)

HAWAII

Injunction Issued in Contract Violation Case Upheld

The Hawaii State Teachers Association's (HSTA) appeal of a circuit court's injunction issued against the association for a one-day walkout in October 1972 was rejected by the state supreme court. The court also upheld the application of the injunction order to a subsequent walkout in April 1973.

The collective bargaining agreement negotiated between the association and the Hawaii Department of Education (DOE) resulted in disputes over the implications of certain contractual provisions concerning class size, preparation periods, and duty-free lunch periods. The association filed unfair labor practice and grievance charges against the DOE, and when the issues were not resolved by October 1972, the association felt that its only recourse was to strike. At the request of the DOE, the Hawaii Public Employee Relations Board (HPERB) investigated the case, and the board filed a petition with the circuit court alleging that the association was in violation of the no-strike provision of the Hawaii Public Employee Relations Statute. The circuit court agreed and issued an injunction. A second walkout in April 1973 saw the original injunction again applied. At this time the association appealed the original injunction to the state supreme court.

The association held that the circuit court lacked the jurisdiction to issue the injunction because the dispute involved an employer prohibited practice of violating contract terms and as such the matter should be dealt with by the HPERB. Furthermore, the association did not have the opportunity to assert its contract violation charge prior to submission of the issue to the circuit court. Additional association arguments held that the no-strike provision applied only to initial or renewed agreements and not to grievances, that there was insufficient evidence to support a finding of irreparable harm to the public in order to justify issuance of an injunction, and that the court illegally applied the injunction to the April walkout.

According to the HPERB, the injunction was issued not on the basis of a contract violation but violation of the no-strike provision of the Hawaii Public Employee Relations Statute which prohibits strikes over grievances which can be resolved by binding arbitration. The board points out that the agreement between the association and the DOE contained such a grievance procedure, and therefore, the association was barred from striking.

The supreme court found that since legislation restricted the right to strike, the circuit court had the power of enforcement through an injunction. The association's position that the no-strike provision was applicable only to initial or renewed agreements was invalid since the law provides that negotiated agreements may contain a grievance procedure ending in binding arbitration to settle disputes concerning the interpretation or application of a written agreement. Furthermore, the law states that certain illegal strikes may be enjoined regardless of the nature of the violations, and that HPERB had the power to initiate injunctive proceedings. Thus, the association's claim that HPERB should have implemented its mediation and fact-finding machinery to resolve the dispute was determined irrelevant by the court.

The court also rejected the association's claim that there was insufficient evidence to support charges that the strike caused irreparable harm to the public which necessitated issuance of an injunction. The court held that even if a strike was legal in all respects, HPERB may take action against the strike if it believes that the action may be dangerous to the health and safety of the public. In addition, the court pointed out that irreparable harm was not a stated precondition for violating the no-strike provision. According to the court, the injunction order was properly applied in the April walkout since in October the circuit court had proscribed all strikes for the duration of the contract.

In conclusion, the court recognized that the case did involve alleged contract violations, but believed that HPERB retained the right to petition the court for injunctive relief; the association's appeal of the injunction was rejected.

Subsequent to the supreme court's decision, the state board of education decided to lift the 2-day suspensions for teachers who had participated in the October 1972 walkout to "keep communications open between the parties." (Hawaii Public Employee Relations Board v. Hawaii State Teachers Association, Hawaii Supreme Court, June 28, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Court Reverses MERC Order To Conform with Trial Examiner's Findings

The Michigan Court of Appeals reversed a decision of the Michigan Employee Relations Commission (MERC) which included lecturers, advisors, and counselors in a faculty bargaining unit. The court found that MERC had first agreed with a trial examiner's findings to exclude certain employees from a faculty bargaining unit at the Eastern Michigan University, and then had subsequently issued a decision including these employees in the faculty bargaining unit on the basis of their common "synergistic efforts aimed at the education of university studnets." MERC was ordered to revise its decision to conform with the trial examiner's findings.

Upon receiving representation petitions from the Eastern Michigan Chapter of the AAUP, the Eastern Michigan Federation of Teachers, and the Eastern Michigan Faculty Association, a trial examiner processed the petitions and decided that the appropriate bargaining unit would exclude lecturers, counselors, and advisors. The full commission later issued its decision that those employees excluded by the trial examiner were to be included. The Board of Regents appealed the decision to the court, stating that MERC inappropriately included the lecturers, advisors, and counselors in the bargaining unit.

In supporting the Regents' claims, the court of appeals stated that although the best unit was the largest possible one consistent with a community of interest among the members, the duties of the excluded employees were dissimilar enough from the duties of other faculty members to warrant exclusion from the bargaining unit. The court ruled that the commission's definition of the employees' community of interest was too general to justify the inclusion of the disputed employees in the bargaining unit.

The court concluded that having accepted the trial examiner's findings of fact, the commission erred in arriving at a "completely irreconcilable"[4] conclusion of law, and its action "does not accord with established precedent in this field of law." (Board of Regents of Eastern Michigan University v. Eastern Michigan University AAUP et al, Michigan Court of Appeals, April 25, 1973.)

MINNESOTA

Highest Court Orders a Hearing To Determine Striking Teachers

In the final round of a legal battle emanating from the 1970 strike by the Minneapolis Federation of Teachers against the Minneapolis School Baord, the state supreme court reversed a lower court decision which had invalidated affidavits solicited by the board from teachers in order to ascertain which teachers engaged in the strike. The high court ruled that each teacher was entitled to a hearing to determine his status during the strike.

The supreme court based its decision on the ground that the filing of affidavits did not constitute a waiver of the right to hearing conferred by statute.

Proceedings were originally begun by the attorney general against the school board, the Minneapolis Federation of Teachers, and the Minneapolis Education Association to obtain a judgment nullifying two resolutions adopted by the school board regarding compensating teachers who had been on strike. Individual taxpayers were permitted to intervene as parties-plaintiff to contest the method used to determine which teachers were on strike.

The supreme court agreed with the lower court that "acceptance of these self-serving affidavits was unwarranted" absent further evidence of what prompted the individual leaves and what activities the teacher engaged on the day of absence. But the court also held that the affidavits submitted by the teachers "constituted conclusions of law and not recitations of fact" from which either the school board or the court could determine whether a particular teacher was, in fact, absent in order to induce the board to come to terms with the teachers' contract negotiators.

The supreme court reversed the lower court's decision and ruled that the teachers were entitled to a hearing on whether or not they had violated the no-strike provision of state public employee labor relations law.

Commenting on whether the board's proceedings to determine the status of each teacher should have been conducted in public or private meetings, the court cited statutory provisions that all school-board hearings are to be private but may be public at the discretion of the charged teacher. The legislature, the court said, intended hearings before a school board to be private if the teacher so elected and the board's deliberations to remain confidential. However, the board should announce its decisions at an open meeting to give the citizens a chance to be heard. (Douglas M. Head et al., v. Special School District No. 1, Minneapolis Federation of Teachers and City of Minneapolis Education Association, Minnesota Supreme Court, June 1, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Arbitrator's Award After Deleting Remedy Confirmed

An arbitrator's award finding that a school board had breached a contract by allowing the student day to exceed the contractual time, was modified by the state supreme court which confirmed the award after striking out the proposed remedy.

The Half Hollow Hills Teachers Association grieved that the school board violated the contract by exceeding the contractually perscribed time of 5 hours and 50 minutes for student day in the district's intermediate schools. The arbitrator ruled for association and directed the board to remedy the situation by adjusting the bus schedule.

Arguing that the arbitrator exceeded his powers by only not making a factual determination regarding the dispute but also by fixing a remedy, the board contended that various remedies could be employed to correct the violation and that the method used should be open exclusively to itself. Further, the board contended that the arbitration proceeding should be void since the arbitrator did not take the statutorily required oath before beginning proceedings.

The court held that it had no jurisdiction to review the record of the arbitration. It found that the award could be corrected by striking the method of correcting the violation, leaving the arbitrator's basic findings undisturbed.

Rejecting the board's argument regarding the arbitrator's failure to take the oath, the court ruled that since the parties proceeded without immediate objection, the objection was waived.

Concluding, the court confirmed the arbitrator's award as modified and denied the board's motion to vacate.(Half Hollow Hills Teachers Association, Inc., Petitioner v. Board of Education, Respondent, New York Supreme Court, June 28, 1973.)

OHIO

Negotiated Arbitration Provision Unenforceable; Nonrenewal Unappealable

The state appellate court in overturning two related lower court decisions opened the door to wholesale contract violations by striking down the validity of a negotiated binding arbitration provisions as contrary to law and by rejecting due process and the right to a hearing in order to determine "just cause" prior to dismissal.

A contract dispute between the Hamilton Local Teachers Association and the school district over wages and benefits resulted in a two-day strike which was enjoined by a lower court. That court directed the board to proceed to binding arbitration over the disputed issues pursuant to the contract provision. The board later refused to renew the contract of 15 teachers, all of whom had been involved in union activities. The board's action was restrained by the same court, forbidding replacement of the terminated teachers until a hearing was held to determine cause.

While the school board had agreed to binding arbitration in the event of a negotiation impasse, in its appeal it claimed that it had no statutory right to delegate or limit its authority as specifically granted by the legislature. Though as a creature of the legislature it has the right to enter into contracts, an unlawful delegation of the policy making authority of a school board would render the contract enforceable.

The appeals court, in its ruling, pointed out that Ohio had no legal provisions for recognizing public employee organizations or for bargaining with them, and that the school board did not have authority "to enter into a contract which has within it a provision for binding arbitration, which provision, in its implementation, gives over unto a completely different party the right to make binding policy decisions, which policy decisions have been by law placed within the jurisdiction of the various boards of education in Ohio."

To support its conclusion, the court cited a New Jersey Superior Court case in which that court ruled that public employees and employers cannot enter into contracts that are contrary to the dictates of the legislature.

In the second decision the appellate court ruled that the school board's nonrenewal of the 15 teachers' contracts was an administrative decision made pursuant to state law which gives school boards the right to choose whether or not to re-employ teachers with limited contracts. Continuing, the court noted that the state constitution does grant courts the power to review the proceedings of administrative bodies when the proceedings are of a quasi-judicial nature, but does not provide for review of an administrative order or action, as in the instant case, "which merely affects the rights, duties, privileges, benefits, or legal relationships of a specified person but does not constitute a determination thereof." The court then pointed out that the situation of a teacher at the expiration of a limited contract and that of a teacher seeking employment with the board are identical because in both instances the board must exercise its discretion in deciding whether or not to employ the teacher. On the basis of the foregoing the court ruled that the school board's decision was not appealable and issued a writ prohibiting the lower court from hearing appeals. (Hamilton Local Board of Education v. Mrs. Judith Arthur et al, Court of Appeals of Franklin County, Ohio, July 24, 1973; State of Ohio, ex rel. Hamilton Local School District Board of Education and Roger O. Hoffman, Superintendent, Hamilton Local School District v. The Honorable George E. Tyack, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Franklin County, Ohio, and Duane E. Blackburn et al, (intervenors), Court of Appeals of Franklin County, Ohio, July 24, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Wages, Hours, and Working Conditions Are Bargainable If They Do Not Affect Board Policies

Public-school teachers' representatives have no right to bargain over class size, preparatory time, nonteaching duties, and other inherently managerial items under the state's Public Employee Relations Act (PERA), according to the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court. So ruling, the court cleared the State College Area School District of the charge of an unfair labor practice for refusing to bargain over 21 items during 1971 contract negotiations with the State College Education Association (SCEA).

After the school district refused to bargain on the items, the SCEA filed charges with the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB). The Board dismissed the charges. The association then filed exceptions to the decision and obtained an order ruling that five of the 21 items were bargainable and the other 16 were inherently managerial policy and not negotiable. The Common Pleas Court reviewed PLRB's decision and found that none of the 21 items was a subject for mandatory bargaining. SCEA and PLRB appealed.

Reviewing PERA, the Commonwealth Court said that section 701 of the act expressely required public employers to bargain in good faith regarding wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment. Nonetheless, under section 702 of the Act "a public employer is not required to bargain on any policy matter notwithstanding the effect or impact that it may have on wages, hours, and terms and conditions of employment." The court concluded that any item of wages, hours, and other conditions of employment is nonbargainable if it touches on inherent managerial policy. According to the Act inherent managerial policy includes "such areas of discretion or policy as the functions and programs of the employer, standards of services, its overall budget, utilization of technology, the organizational structure, and selection and direction of personnel."

After studying the 21 specific SCEA demands, which covered instructional material, team planning time, assignment notice, separate desks and drawer space, teachers' cafeteria, hall, bus and lunch duty, planning periods, chaperoning, handling supplies, personnel files, class size, preparation time, school calendar, pre-holiday and vacation closings, staff meetings and parent conferences, the court concluded that these items fell within the scope of inherently managerial policy as defined in the Act. On this basis the lower court decision was upheld.

Using the majority's reasoning, a minority opinion stated that almost everything touching on teachers' employment could be argued to be a matter of inherent managerial policy. Warning that general interpretation of the PERA could thwart the intent of the Act to grant certain employment rights, the minority member said that "the board and the courts will have to evaluate each item as it is presented and strike a balance." (State College Education Association, Appellant v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Appellee [1162 C.D. 1972]; Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Appellant v. State College Area School District, The Board of Directors, Appelle [1172 C.D. 1972], Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania, March 7, 1973.)

* * *

FEDERAL

Principals Supporting Teachers' Strike Ordered Reinstated

The U.S. District Court for Western Kentucky ordered the Russell County School Board to reinstate a teacher and three principals demoted for supporting a 1970 state-wide teachers' strike which was ruled illegal. The court found that the board's actions violated free speech rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.

The plaintiffs, three principals and four teachers, argued that the demotions of the principals and the nonrenewal of the teachers' contracts were in retaliation for written and spoken advocation of the Russell County Education Association's participation in the 1970 state-wide strike.

The board maintained that the plaintiffs were subject to discharge or demotion for supporting a strike declared illegal.

Citing Pickering v. Board of Education in which the Supreme Court of the United States held that teachers cannot be constitutionally forced to give up the right of free speech they would otherwise exercise as citizens for commenting on school operations, the district court asserted that a teacher's support of a strike ruled civilly illegal did not warrant the school board to dismiss or demote the teacher. The court also pointed out that the Supreme Court in Keyishian v. Board of Regents ruled that teachers may employ their First Amendment rights "even to the point of advocating conduct which might prove to be civilly illegal" provided such conduct is not subversive, or violent, or criminal.

The court held that absent proof of professional failure or misconduct the real reasons for the demotions of the principals were to retaliate and to make examples of the principals for a cause not popular with the school board. The court found the board's action to be arbitrary and capricious and, inconstant under applicable Kentucky law since "no sound and specific reason offered" for the demotions.

Turning to the nonrenewal of the contract of one of the four teachers, the court held that the termination was constitutionally inpermissible and concluded that the teacher and the three principals had been singled out for punishment because of their support of the strike. The court ordered the teacher and the principals reinstated and held that two of the principals were entitled to damages for loss of salary, along with transportation expenses incurred as a result of their transfer to teaching positions.

The court concluded that the discharge of the other three teachers was unrelated to the strike. (Leslie Dause, et al. v. R. Brooks, individually and as superintendent of the Russell County Board of Education, United States District Court for Western Kentucky, May 24, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MASSACHUSETTS

Supervision Not Only Criterion for Exclusion from a Nonsupervisory Unit

Because the state collective bargaining statutes do not specifically exclude supervisors from the units of employees in their charge, the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission determined that it had authority to decide whether persons are supervisors and whether they should be included in a unit with nonsupervisory employees.

The Dedham School Committee contended that a supervising nurse should not be included in a unit of nurses seeking to be represented by the Dedham Education Association. The school district had designated this nurse a supervisor, with additional responsibilities and higher salary although she had no power over hiring, termination, and wages.

As the state collective bargaining laws do not define the term supervisor, the Commission established that supervisory employees in both private and public sectors may be included in the nonmanagement bargaining units with which they have a community of interest. The nurse's primary role was that of practitioner, not supervisor, the Commission determined, and ordered that she be included in the association unit. (Dedham School Committee vs. Dedham Education Association-Massachusetts Teachers Association, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, March 5, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

No Restrictions on Where Sick Leave Is Taken

An arbitrator granted sick leave pay to a teacher with cardiac trouble who spent his sick leave at a hunting cabin during the opening days of the deer season. The arbitrator found no merit in the Beecher School District's contention that the teacher falsified his sick leave to take advantage of the opening of the hunting season.

The negotiated agreement between the Beecher Education Association and the Beecher School District included a provision for 10 days' annual sick leave for teacher and family illness. The teacher's doctor notified the school that because of the teacher's cardiac condition, he had advised him to take a three-day rest from November 15 to November 17. Upon return to school, the teacher was informed that he would be docked for the days he had taken off. The school claimed that the teacher had misrepresented his illness in order to receive sick leave pay for a hunting trip and that the teacher had collaborated with the physician in order to have a rest prescribed during the opening of the hunting season. The association filed a grievance on the teacher's behalf according to the negotiated procedure, requesting sick leave payment plus 7 percent interest.

At the arbitration hearing, the teacher testified under oath that he had not hunted during the week he was on sick leave, and furthermore, in previous years he had utilized his personal leave to go hunting, and at this time he had personal leave available. According to the school business manager, also testifying under oath, the teacher's doctor had called him on November 17 and stated that the teacher had gone deer hunting. However, in a letter dated November 17, the doctor informed the assistant superintendent that the teacher was at his cabin for a rest necessitated by his cardiac problem.

The arbitrator found no evidence that the teacher had admitted to having gone hunting while on sick leave. He also found that some confuscion as to who had told the business manager that the teacher had gone hunting. He, therefore, concluded that there was no positive evidence that the teacher had abused sick leave, and that a three-day rest for a cardiac condition came under the contractual definition of illness which did not specify a place where the leave is to be taken. The arbitrator, however, did not find any justification for paying the association's requested 7 percent interest on the back pay award. (Beecher Board of Education and Beecher Education Association, American Arbitration Association, June 8, 1973.)

MINNESOTA

Political History Teacher Granted Year's Leave To Attend Law School

A school board's refusal to grant leave on the basis that it would not add to the teacher's professional competence was arbitrary in view of the fact that the teacher's subject area required a fairly extensive knowledge of the judicial process. According to the arbitrator, a request for unpaid leave coupled with the planned return to the classroom after the year's study was permissable under the contract.

After receiving a scholarship to attend law school, the teacher applied for a leave of absence in accordance with the terms of the leave of absence provision in the agreement negotiated between the Edina Education Association and the Edina Public Schools. The board denied the request for leave, though the teacher met the provision requirement of longevity and timely notification.

The arbitrator felt that the issue was whether the school board violated the contract in denying the leave. An important consideration was whether the granting of long-term leaves was the prerogative of the board, and if so, whether there were any constraints on the board's exercise of this power. The arbitrator held that although the board had authority to grant such leaves, the fact that the contract specified minimum standards for leave applicants implied that the board's authority was subject to the objective standards of reason and equity. These standards were also implied in a provision that stated that "the provisions of this agreement shall be applied in a manner which is not arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory."

Examining the board's claim that the teacher's law study would have a limited benefit on the school district's education program, the arbitrator found that in six previous cases, arbitrators had ruled that law studies were a major contribution to the competence of a secondary political/social history teacher. An examination of the specific course content revealed that it dealt with how to work within the democratic system, a topic that would be difficult to teach without an understanding of the judicial process. The arbitrator concluded that the board's position that the teacher's law study would have limited application to her teaching was arbitrary.

A second reason offered by the district for denying the leave was that the principal felt that the teacher would not return to school after a year's leave, but would continue her studies and eventually practice law. Although the arbitrator found some merit to this assumption, he pointed out that the negotiated contract did not require a guarantee of intent to return to the district and furthermore, during the arbitration hearings the teacher indicated her intent to return to teaching.

The arbitrator found that the teacher had met the requirements for the leave of absence and had proven the benefit of her studies to her teaching performance. The grievance was upheld and the school district was instructed to grant the teacher a year's leave to attend law school. (Edina Education Association and Edina Public Schools, Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, June 25, 1973.)

* * *

NEW YORK

Expiration of Contracts Not a Bar to Payment of Earned Compensation

An improper charge filed by the Poughkeepsie Teachers Association against the Poughkeepsie City School District Board of Education alleged that the school district illegally withheld salary increments and college credits payment while negotiating a new contract.

The expired agreement provided for salary step increments based on years of service or experience and a designated dollar amount for earned course credits. When negotiations for a 1972-74 agreement were not completed prior to the expiration of the old contract, the board retained the former salary schedule but refused to pay step increments or payments for accrued credits. During negotiations for the 1972-74 agreement, the board's position was that salary step increments as well as college credit payments should be eliminated.

The hearing officer rejected the school board's claim that since the contract had expired, it was no longer required to pay salary increments or course credit. He pointed out that previous court rulings upheld the employer's statutory obligation to maintain the status quo. The school board further argued that this statutory obligation was contrary to public policy, basing its argument on the repealed sections of the Education Laws of 1971.

2619

The school board's last defense was its inability to pay the salary increments and the college credit payments because it had appropriated all available funds. Citing a previous decision, the hearing officer held that lack of funds is not a bar to reorganizing the budget and eliminating some non-mandated programs in order to maintain the status quo. In conclusion, the hearing officer found the school board to be in violation of the Public Employee Relations Act, and ordered it to pay the salary increments and college credit payments. (In the matter of Board of Education, Poughkeepsie City School District and the Poughkeepsie Public School Teachers Association, New York Public Employee Relations Act, March 21, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Board Provokes Impasse by Publishing Association Proposals

Although a school board's publication of an association's initial negotiation proposal raises questions as to its desirability as a negotiating tactic, the New York Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) found no grounds for unfair labor practice charge. The PERB amended a hearing officer's earlier decision which had sustained the charge filed against the Bellport Teachers Association, by the Central School District No. 4, Town of Brookhaven, for declaring a negotiations impasse after the school board had published the first set of association proposals.

The association, which had previously filed an improper practice charge against the district, contended that the board's action violated the mandate of the Public Employee Relations Employment Act to negotiate in good faith. The board counterclaimed that the association failed to negotiate in good faith when it declared an impasse before all the negotiation proposals had been discussed. Both the association and the board subsequently participated in the mediation and fact-finding procedures outlined in impasse regulations.

PERB noted that the parties had a responsibility "to negotiate collectively and that impasse procedure should not be invoked prior to the existence of an actual dispute. Certainly. . .not. . .until the respective demands or proposals of the parties had been considered."

In examining violations of the obligation to negotiate in good faith, PERB considered the parties' over-all conduct, focusing on whether the approach to negotiations was toward reaching an agreement. PERB found that the association's declaration of an impasse had hampered but not terminated the negotiation process, which continued into mediation and fact-finding. Noting the desire to reach agreement, PERB, while not condoning the association's tactic, judged it to have been provoked by the board's conduct. (Central School District No. 4, Town of Brookhaven, Suffolk County, New York and Bellport Teachers Association, Inc., Public Employment Relations Board, March 19, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

ILLINOIS

Executive Order Grants Bargaining Rights to State Employees

The governor of Illinois has issued an Executive Order giving state employees the right to organize and bargain collectively. The Illinois state assemblies in both the 1969 and the 1971 sessions had been unable to pass legislation permitting public employee negotiations despite recommendations of two study commissions. Illinois is now the fourth state to obtain collective bargaining for public employees by means of an executive order.

Under the executive order, which covers all state employees "of departments, agencies, boards and commissions whose vouchers are subject to approval by the Department of Finance except: supervisors, managerial employees, confidential employees, and emergency and temporary employees," state employees are given the right to join or form unions and to negotiate with department heads on wages, hours, and working conditions. Although state employees are not given the right to strike, this right is is determined by state law as interpreted by the courts. The order will not affect existing state employee organizations unless a majority of employees choose another organization.

In addition, the order establishes an Office of Collective Bargaining to make unit determinations and to carry out the provisions of the order. A six-member State Employee Labor Relations Council is also established to advise the state Director of Personnel with regard to rules and regulations to enforce the order. The Director of Personnel is responsible for developing the rules and regulations concerning procedures for handling charges of unfair labor practices and for setting standards for employee organizations.

MAINE

Public Employees Bargaining Statute Amended

Amendments to the Maine Municipal Public Employees Labor Relations Act have broadened the role of the Public Employees Labor Relations Board (PELRB) in mediating bargaining disputes through improved enforcement and decision review procedures which incorporate recent changes in governmental organization. The amendments also provide for alternates to permanent board members.

Major changes in the mediation procedures now allow the Board to appoint a mediator in disputes absent the request of either party, and make the Board's executive director responsible for administration by the executive director of a panel of 5-10 mediators who were previously supervised by the executive department and appointed by the governor. However, the services of the mediation panel will not be used in a contract grievance case when the agreement provides an alternate method of settling the dispute.

The amendment providing for the judicial enforement of PELRB rulings allows the Superior Court of Kennebec County to grant temporary relief, issue a restraining order, and impose terms and conditions "as it deems just and proper," and makes it more difficult for the court to grant a stay of a Board order pending appeal to the Superior Court.

The change in governmental organization affecting the labor relations act was the replacement of the Commissioner of Labor and the Department of Labor and Industry with the Bureau of Labor and Industry. Amendments also revised arbitration reporting by requiring that results of arbitration proceedings be filed with PELRB at the same time the determinations are submitted to the parties. If a dispute is settled by arbitration, a report must be filed with the Board's executive director within five days of the settlement. The purpose of this procedure is to give PELRB greater control over contract impasses, and to improve and speed up dispute settlements.

Another amendment provides alternatives to the three permanent members of the board. Designed for a more efficient operation of the Board, it will enable a full Board to meet at all times with representatives from labor, management, and the public.

MONTANA

Public Employee Bargaining Law Permits Agency Shop, Concerted Activities

Montana enacted a law to give public employees, excluding public health nurses and teachers who have their own bargaining laws, the right to bargain on wages, hours, and working conditions, including agency shop and binding arbitration of grievances. The law also guarantees public employees the right to form, join, or assist labor organizations, and to engage in concerted activities for collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection.

The passage of this law continues the "crazy-quilt" pattern of legislation which grants some public employees rights denied others, or severely penalizes one group for engaging in an activity which is a declared right for another. Though the new law does not prohibit striking, it does allow some public employees to engage in "concerted activities" for the purpose of collective bargaining, in essence a guaranteed right to strike. Nurses are already allowed to strike, but teachers are expressly prohibited and face suspension and/or dismissal for striking.

Under the new law, "public employers retain the prerogative to operate and manage their affairs, which includes directing, hiring, promoting, transferring, and laying off employees for lack of funds; maintaining efficient government operations; and determining methods, means, job classifications, and personnel by which operations are to be conducted as well as processes by which work is performed." Public employers are to be represented by the state's or locality's chief executive officer or county commissioner's chairman or his designee in bargaining.

With a 30 percent showing of interest an employee or union can petition for certification or decertification of an existing representative. The existing Board of Personnel Appeals will make unit determination on the basis of community of interest, wages, hours, fringes, and other working conditions, history of bargaining, common supervision and personnel policies, extent of integration of work functions, and employee interchange and employee desires.

Unfair employee practices are refusal to bargain and use of agency shop fees for political contributions; employer unfair labor practices include interference with employees' protected rights and discrimination to encourage or discourage union membership. The latter practice, however, does not preclude the employer from negotiating agency shop provisions. If the Board determines that an unfair labor practice has occurred, it has the power to state findings of fact and issue a restraining order calling for affirmative action which may include reinstatement with or without back pay and for compliance reports.

The district court can order compliance with a Board order, issue a restraining order, or modify a Board order, or set it aside in whole or in part. In making its determination the court is to consider the Board's finding of facts as conclusive if supported by substantial evidence. However, "the court may allow a party to present additional material evidence in which case the Board may modify or make new findings to be resubmitted to the court." Decisions made by the district court are subject to review by the state supreme court.

NEVADA

Employee Representative Clarified

The legislature amended the Local Government Employees Management Relations Act by adding a new section (Sec. 33) permitting public employee organizations to employ a state-licensed attorney to act on behalf of the employee group in all discussions with management or its representatives.

AGO: Sabbatical Leave Negotiable if Not in Conflict with School Code

The attorney general stated that sabbatical leave provisions are negotiable to the extent that they do not conflict with the state's statutory provisions on sabbatical leave, this ruling came in reply to a question as to whether section 702 of the Public Employee Relations Act "limits the ability of school boards and teacher organizations to enlarge or modify sabbatical leave benefits provided in the State's Public School Code."

The attorney general said that while sabbatical leave benefits qualify as a term or condition of employment and come within the permitted areas for negotiations, all negotiated provisions on this subject must be examined for possible conflict with statutory requirements since "the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement are void and unenforceable" where a conflict exists. Requirements for eligibility for leave and the benefits to be provided while on leave are not bargainable because these provisions are detailed and specific in state law. On the other hand, statutory provisions give school boards discretionary power to grant sabbaticals for purposes other than those specified, to waive the requirement of five years consecutive service in a local district, to waive the requirement to return at the end of the leave, and to extend the sabbatical leave up to one full term if the employee becomes ill while on leave. These items, therefore, are bargainable.

WASHINGTON

Payroll Dues Deduction

The state public employees collective bargaining statute, which excludes certificated school personnel, was amended to permit dues check-off from paychecks. Upon written authorization of a public employee in a bargaining unit that has been certified or recognized as the bargaining representative, the public employer is required to deduct from the pay of such public employee, the monthly dues as certified by the secretary of the bargaining representative and to transmit them to the treasurer of the bargaining unit.

The parties may request mediation if a bargaining dispute exists upon expiration of an agreement or after a reasonable period of negotiations. The parties may also petition the Board for fact-finding upon contract expiration or 30 days after certification of an exclusive representative if a dispute exists. The fact-finder selected by the parties from a Board-supplied list has 20 days to hold hearings and issue written findings of fact and recommendations. The fact-finder may also endeavor to mediate the dispute.

The parties may voluntarily submit any or all issues to binding arbitration, the award being enforceable in the same manner as the terms of the collective agreement.

STATISTICS

CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, SEPTEMBER 1973; 10-YEAR AVERAGES AND 1972-73 BY MONTH

The U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), reported that the September 1973 Consumer Price Index rose 0.3 percent from August to 135.5 (1967=100), following a record August increase of 1.9 percent (seasonally adjusted), the highest for one month since September 1947. Paced by the rapid rise in apparel and food prices, especially cereal and bakery products, the September index was 7.4 percent higher than a year ago and rose at double the rate of increase for September 1972.

Prices for fresh vegetables and fruits, poultry, pork, and eggs, declined from the high levels reached during August. Record increases in August for the food index had followed the lifting of the price freeze on July 18 for all foods except beef. Although the freeze on beef prices was extended until September 10, prices for meat and fish increased substantially for the month.

An 0.4 percent rise in the September index for nonfood commodities reflected higher prices for fall and winter clothing, fuel oil and coal, and most household durables, although prices declined for gasoline and new and used cars.

TABLE 1.–CONSUMER PRICE INDEX BY ITEM, SEPTEMBER 1972 AND SEPTEMBER 1973, SEASONALLY ADJUSTED (1967=100)

Item	Relative importance, December 1972	Consumer Price Index for the month: September 1972	Consumer Price Index for the month: September 1973	Percent change, 1972 to 1973
1	2	3	4	5
ALL ITEMS	100.0	126.2	135.5	7.4
COMMODITIES	62.6	122.1	132.8	8.8
Food	22.5	124.7	148.3	18.9
Food at home[a]	17.5	122.7	149.1	21.5
Meats, poultry and fish	6.0	129.3	178.4	38.0
Commodities less food	40.1	120.4	124.3	3.2
Nondurables less food[b]	23.4	120.6	125.1	3.7
Apparel	9.0	123.1	128.4	4.3
Gasoline, motor oil, less food and apparel	2.9	111.3	117.8	5.8
Durables[b]	16 6	120.4	123.1	2.2
Household durables	4.8	115.7	120.1	3.8
SERVICES[c]	37.4	134.1	140.6	4.8
Rent	5.1	119.9	125.4	4.6
Household services less rent	15.5	140.0	149.2	6.6
Medical care less rent	5.6	138.5	144.8	4.6
SPECIAL INDEXES
Insurance and finance	9.8	144.8	152.1	5.0
Housekeeping and home maintenance	4.5	145.2	155.0	6.8

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Consumer Price Index, September 1972 and September 1973.

[a]Includes other food items not listed.

[b]Includes other durable and nondurable commodities not listed.

[c]Includes other services not listed.

TABLE 2.—CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, ALL ITEMS, SELECTED CITIES OR SMSA'S, 1972-73 BY MONTH (1967=100)[a]

SMSA/city	October	November	December	January	February	March	April	May	June	July	August	September
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
U.S. city average	126.6	126.9	127.3	127.7	128.6	129.8	130.7	131.5	132.4	132.7	135.1	135.5
Atlanta, Ga.	...	...	127.7	...	...	130.1	...	...	132.6	...	...	137.0
Baltimore, Md.	...	...	128.0	...	...	131.9	...	...	133.6	...	...	137.5
Boston, Mass.	128.9	...	...	129.7	...	...	132.4	...	...	134.1	...	...
Buffalo, N.Y.	...	128.6	...	...	130.3	...	...	133.2	...	...	136.6	...
Chicago, Ill.-Northwestern Ind.	125.4	125.7	126.1	126.4	127.5	129.0	129.9	130.8	131.7	131.4	134.5	134.6
Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.	...	...	126.5	...	...	129.8	...	...	130.9	...	...	134.4
Cleveland, Ohio	...	127.9	...	...	129.9	...	...	132.7	...	...	135.9	...
Dallas, Texas	...	125.7	...	...	127.7	...	...	130.6	...	...	133.7	...
Detroit, Mich.	127.2	127.4	128.3	128.5	129.7	131.1	132.4	133.4	133.7	133.8	136.8	137.3
Honolulu, Hawaii	...	...	124.4	...	...	126.0	...	...	127.5	...	...	129.6
Houston, Texas	126.4	...	...	127.2	...	...	130.5	...	...	131.5	...	...
Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.	...	...	125.5	...	...	127.4	...	...	129.8	...	...	132.5
Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.	123.9	124.3	124.4	124.8	125.5	126.4	126.9	127.4	128.5	129.1	130.9	131.2
Milwaukee, Wis.	...	125.0	...	...	127.0	...	...	130.0	...	...	133.2	...
Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.	127.2	...	...	127.8	...	...	130.8	...	...	133.1	...	...
New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.	133.2	133.3	133.7	133.7	134.9	136.5	137.4	138.0	139.0	139.1	141.7	142.3
Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.	128.7	129.0	128.9	129.0	130.6	132.5	133.4	134.1	134.7	134.8	137.1	138.1
Pittsburgh, Pa.	126.5	...	...	127.2	...	...	131.2	...	...	132.6	...	...
St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.	...	...	123.7	...	...	126.2	...	...	128.1	...	...	132.3
San Diego, Calif.	...	126.8	...	...	128.2	...	...	130.7	...	...	134.4	...
San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.	...	...	126.3	...	...	128.7	...	...	130.7	...	...	134.5
Seattle, Wash.	...	121.2	...	...	123.1	...	...	126.3	...	...	128.8	...
Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.	...	129.7	...	...	130.7	...	...	133.3	...	...	136.4	...

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Consumer Price Index-September 1973.

[a]Foods, fuels, and several other items are priced every month in all cities. Most other goods and services are priced according to the following schedule:

1. Every month-city average: Chicago, Ill.-Northwestern Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.; New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.; and Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.
2. January, April, July, October: Boston, Mass.; Houston, Texas; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; and Pittsburgh, Pa.
3. February, May, August, November: Buffalo, N.Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Milwaukee, Wis.; San Diego, Calif.; Seattle, Wash.; and Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.
4. March, June, September, December: Atlanta, Ga.; Baltimore, Md.; Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.; Honolulu, Hawaii; Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.; St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.; and San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.

About one-third of the 0.9 percent rise in the services index for September was due to increases in mortgage interest rates; interest rates on VA loans rose from 7.75 to 8.50 and on FHA loans from 7.50 to 8.25. Increases in utilities, medical care, and college tuition contributed significantly to the rise.

The tables provide a comparative study of the CPI all-items index for 23 selected SMSA's or cities from 1963 to 1972 (Table 2), and for the months of October 1972 through September 1973 (Table 3). All entries were computed on the base 1967=100. Table 1 lists comparative percentage change by selected items for September 1972 and September 1973.

For the twelve-month period ending September 1973, the commodities index rose 8.8 percent, while services increased 4.8 percent. The purchasing value of the dollar registered a loss of more than a 5 cents in the same period, with purchasing power for the month down to 73.8 cents as compared with the 1967 dollar. The impact of inflation on salaries over the past two years has been such that a person earning $10,000 in September 1971 must now be earning at least $800 more to maintain the same purchasing power for goods and services at average prices.

The CPI is designed to measure "average changes in prices of goods and services usually bought by urban wage earners and clerical workers, both families and single persons living alone." Prices of some 400 items representing price movements of all goods and services purchased by wage earners and clerical workers regularly are obtained in urban portions of 39 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) and 17 selected smaller cities.

Price changes used in calculating the CPI are averaged and then weighted according to their importance in spending. In the total index, all SMSA and city data are combined and weighted on the basis of the 1960 populations of SMSA's and the cities they represent. While index numbers were previously computed on the base 1957-59=100, a new base reference point of 1967=100 became effective January 1971. Statistical series expressed as indexes are affected by the change in base, but the rebasing of the CPI does not alter percentage changes between index figures over time, except for rounding differences. The CPI is rounded to one decimal point.

TABLE 3.—CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, ALL ITEMS, SELECTED CITIES OR SMSA'S, 1963 TO 1972 (1967=100)

SMSA/city	All items
	1963	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
U.S. city average[a]	91.7[b]	92.9[c]	94.5	97.2	100.0	104.2	109.8	116.3	121.3	125.3
Atlanta, Ga.	91.4	92.8	94.0	97.0	100.0	104.0	110.2	116.3	121.7	125.5
Baltimore, Md.	92.0	92.9	94.4	97.7	100.0	104.1	110.5	117.0	123.4	126.3
Boston, Mass.	91.4	92.7	94.5	97.7	100.0	104.1	110.0	116.5	122.8	127.1
Buffalo, N.Y.	(NA)	92.0	94.2	97.4	100.0	104.5	109.6	116.1	121.8	126.6
Chicago, Ill.-Northernwestern, Ind.	93.0	93.4	94.7	97.4	100.0	104.3	109.9	116.3	120.8	124.3
Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.	92.2	93.7	94.4	97.2	100.0	104.8	109.8	115.7	120.7	124.7
Cleveland, Ohio	92.7	93.2	94.7	97.2	100.0	105.9	111.9	119.3	122.8	126.5
Dallas, Texas	(NA)	92.6	93.8	97.1	100.0	104.5	111.3	117.8	121.3	124.9
Detroit, Mich.	89.8	90.5	92.6	96.7	100.0	104.3	110.6	117.4	121.7	126.2
Honolulu, Hawaii	92.8	92.9	94.6	97.3	100.0	103.8	108.5	114.2	118.9	122.8
Houston, Texas	92.3	93.7	94.8	97.5	100.0	104.3	111.0	116.8	120.9	125.2
Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.	90.3	92.5	95.5	98.0	100.0	104.0	109.6	115.8	120.5	124.0
Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.	92.0	93.7	95.7	97.5	100.0	103.9	108.8	114.3	118.5	122.3
Milwaukee, Wis.	92.9	93.9	95.8	98.0	100.0	103.5	109.5	115.8	120.1	123.7
Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.	92.3	93.2	94.5	96.8	100.0	104.6	109.9	117.5	121.7	125.5
New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.	91.3	92.8	94.3	97.5	100.0	104.3	110.8	119.0	125.9	131.4
Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.	91.8	93.2	94.7	97.3	100.0	104.8	110.4	117.8	123.5	127.0
Pittsburgh, Pa.	93.1	94.3	95.8	98.3	100.0	104.7	110.4	116.4	121.5	125.3
St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.	90.9	92.6	94.1	97.2	100.0	104.0	109.2	115.2	119.6	122.3
San Diego, Calif.	(NA)	(NA)	95.2	97.1	100.0	104.1	109.5	115.3	119.9	124.4
San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.	91.5	92.9	94.7	97.1	100.0	104.5	110.2	115.8	120.2	124.3
Seattle, Wash.	92.1	93.4	94.5	97.1	100.0	104.1	109.2	114.0	116.4	119.7
Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.	91.3	92.8	94.1	97.3	100.0	104.7	111.2	117.6	122.7	126.9

SOURCES: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers, All Items—Series A (1967=100). Washington, D.C.: the Bureau, 1971.

U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. "Current Labor Statistics." Monthly Labor Review 96, 10: 110; October 1973.

[a]Based on 46 cities through 1963, 50 urban areas for 1965, and 56 metropolitan areas and nonmetropolitan urban places beginning in January 1966. Excludes Portland, Oreg., and Scranton, Pa. For 1965, excludes Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.; Houston, Texas; Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; and San Diego, Calif.

[b]Excludes Alaska and Hawaii.

[c]Beginning in 1964, the index structure was revised to reflect the buying patterns of urban wage earners and clerical workers in the 1960's, including single workers living alone as well as families with two or more persons. Indexes for prior years apply only to families of two persons or more.

SPECIAL REPORTS

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Belfast, Maine

Between Maine School Administrative District No. 34 Teachers Association and Belfast School Administrative District 34, effective September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1975. Approximately 110 certificated professional employees.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $6,800 to $10,200, 10 increments; M.A., $7,300 to $10,950, 10 increments; (1974-75) B.A., $7,000 to $10,500, 10 increments; M.A., $7,500 to $11,250, 10 increments; longevity pay, $125 after 10 years, $250 after 20 years, $375 after 30 years; any teacher completing 6 credit hours of additional professional work approved by the superintendent within any 2-year period shall receive $150 from the school district.

DIFFERENTIALS: Guidance director, $2,327; guidance counselor, $846; music personnel, $800; athletic director, $1,585; varsity football and basketball coaches, $1,297; football assistants, junior varsity basketball, boys' swimming, varsity baseball, wrestling, and track coaches, $721; assistant wrestling, assistant track, cross country, and skiing coaches, yearbook, $576; 9th-grade basketball, girls' basketball, girls' athletics, high-school cheerleading, girls' track, and girls' field hockey coaches, $504; 8th-grade basketball, girls' swimming, junior high baseball, high-school girls' softball, and high-school dramatics coaches, $432; junior high cheerleading, $360; age group swimming and golf coaches, $288; junior high dramatics, $216; junior and senior high-school newspapers, $144. Department heads: head teacher-elementary, science, language arts, social studies, mathematics, business, physical education, industrial arts, foreign language, $500; travel allowance for use of personal car at 10 cents per mile.

INSURANCE: Board pays single subscription, high level, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, major medical or equivalent sum to each teacher toward the annual cost for medical insurance coverage.

LEAVES: Fifteen sick leave days credited from first day of school. 120 days maximum accumulation; 3 days personal leave for personal, religious, legal, business, household, or family matters which require absence during school hours; sabbatical leave may be granted for study, travel, and other reasons of value to the school system after 7 years of service in the school district; upon return from leave the teacher shall be placed on the salary schedule where he would have been had he not been on leave; leave of absence without pay up to 3 years for Peace Corps, VISTA, National Teacher Corps, or exchange or overseas teaching or acceptance of a Fulbright Scholarship; leave without pay for military obligations or for a teacher whose spouse is in the service to join him for the period of special training in preparation for duty overseas in combat zones; military leave without pay shall be granted to any teacher who is inducted or enlists in any branch of the armed forces of the United States for the period of said induction or initial enlistment or to a teacher whose spouse is inducted or enlists to join him for the period of special training in preparation for duty overseas in combat zones; upon return from military leave a teacher shall be considered as if actively employed by the board during the leave and shall be placed on the salary schedule normally achieved; leave for up to one year for caring for a member of the teacher's immediate family when conditions necessitate such care; all benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence commenced shall be restored upon his return and he shall be placed in the same or a comparable position to the one which he held at the time such leave started.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and/or national association dues; right to use school buildings to transact official association business; right to use bulletin boards in each faculty room; the board agrees to provide the association negotiating team annual financial reports, audits, registers of certified personnel, agendas, and minutes of all board meetings, census data, names and addresses of all teachers, and approved budget proposals; association representative may speak to teachers at any meeting for 10 minutes.

INSTRUCTION: Teachers must report for duty at least 15 minutes before the opening of the pupils' school day; the daily teaching load in junior and senior high schools may not exceed 6 teaching periods per day; assignment to a supervised study period is considered a teaching period; junior and senior high-school teachers may not be required to teach more than 2 subject areas nor more than a total of 3 teaching preparations at any one time unless agreed to by the teacher and the principal; these teachers also should not be required to change subject area teaching stations more than two times during the school day without teacher's approval; duty-free lunch period may be adjusted by the principal to meet the needs of the individual school; teachers must be notified of their teaching schedules or assignments not later than 6 weeks before school reopens, teachers notified after the designated time limit may request that the schedule be reviewed by the superintendent, an association representative, and himself; teachers shall not be assigned subjects outside their area of competence unless it is vital to the school system; the school calendar shall be as set forth by the board of directors after consultation with the association; there will be no change in the calendar except by agreement of board and association; the number of teacher employment days shall in no event exceed 185 days; the association and the board recognize that pupil-teacher ratios of 20 to 1 and 25 to 1 are optimum and agree that as soon as economically possible the maximum pupil-teacher ratio shall not exceed 30 to 1.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; a "grievance" shall mean a complaint by a teacher or the Association (1) that there has been as to him or it a violation or an inequitable application of any of the provisions of this contract or, (2) that he or it has been treated inequitably by reason or any act or condition which is contrary to established Board policy or practice governing or affecting employees except that the term "grievance" shall not apply to any matter as to which the Board is without authority to act; right to review nonconfidential portions of file and to receive copies of any documents therein and to be accompanied by an association representative; once every 2 years teacher shall have right to indicate materials in his file which he considers to be obsolete or otherwise inappropriate to retain; any action to discipline, reprimand, reduce in rank or compensation, or deprive a teacher of professional advantage without just cause shall be subject to the grievance procedure before such action becomes final; if a teacher is required to appear before the superintendent or the board concerning any matter which may adversely affect the continuation of employment, or salary, he shall be given prior written notice of the reasons for the hearing and shall be entitled to have an association representative present; suspension of any teacher pending charges shall be with pay; faculty or other professional meetings shall begin no later than 15 minutes after the students' dismissal time and shall run no longer than necessary; agenda for meetings will be given to teachers at least 2 days prior to the meeting and teachers shall have the opportunity to suggest items for the agenda; periodically teachers shall be evaluated; evaluators shall be persons qualified to conduct evaluations of the particular teacher involved; within 7 days of receipt of the evaluation report the teacher may request a conference to discuss the report, with no report submitted to the central office, placed in the teacher's file, or otherwise acted upon for 7 days; teachers shall have the opportunity to respond to or rebut any complaint made to any member of the administration by any parent, student, or person which may be used in any manner to evaluate the teacher; when in the judgment of a teacher a student is seriously disrupting the instructional program to the detriment of other students, the teacher may exclude the student from the classroom and refer him to the principal; teachers may use reasonable force as is necessary to protect himself, another person, or property from attack, to quell a disturbance or to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects; the board shall give full support to the teacher, including legal and other assistance for any assault upon the teacher and for court action brought against the teacher by parents or citizens while the teacher is acting in the discharge of his duties; absences arising from such assault or injury shall not be deducted from sick leave or personal leave; compensation for these injuries shall continue beyond the period of any Workmen's Compensation until the complete recovery of the teacher.

* * *

Portsmouth, New Hampshire

Between Portsmouth Teachers Association and Portsmouth School Department, effective July 11, 1973, to June 30, 1976. Approximately 305 certificated professional employees, including employees required to hold an appropriate credential issued by the State Board of Education under its regulations governing the certification of professional school personnel, excluding superintendents, assistant principals, directors, teacher consultants, business administrators, or persons employed by the state board of education. Provision for renegotiation not later than November 15 of the year preceding the expiration of the agreement.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,070 to $11,680, 10 increments. (1974-75) B.A., $7,380 to $12,130, 10 increments; (1975-76 estimated on cost of living not to exceed 4.5 percent) $7,700 to $12,600, 10 increments. Education crediting, bachelor's plus 15 credits, $250; master's, $700 ($800 effective 1975-76); master's plus 15 credits, $1,000; master's plus 30 credits, $1,200. Longevity pay, $150 additional after 20 years' experience and $300 additional after 25 years' experience.

INSURANCE: Board-paid Blue Cross-Blue Shield hospitalization for family coverage or comparable coverage from another insurance carrier; board-paid term life insurance for $10,000 in the event of death; board-paid income protection insurance which begins on the 181st day of illness or disability and pays 60 percent of annual salary.

LEAVES: Ten sick leave days per year for personal or family illness; as of 1975-76 school year 15 days to be granted teachers with five or more years of service in the school district accumulable to 180 days; in the event of prolonged absence as a result of accident or illness the board will consider the circumstances and determine if an extension of full or partial sick pay is warranted; sick leave bank entitles an individual to borrow up to 180 days in advance for personal illness sick leave not yet accumulated; up to 10 days' sick leave per year excluding any accumulation can be used for family illness; two days' personal leave per year for personal business; breavement leave up to five days for the immediate family and up to three days for brother-in-law or sister-in-law, grandparents, or aunt or uncle; a physician must determine disability when sick leave is to be taken for maternity reasons; three sabbatical leaves may be granted in the district simultaneously at half salary to teachers who have at least five consecutive years of service in the district; upon return from leave the teacher is to be placed on the level of the salary schedule he would have attained had he not been absent; leave of absence without pay or other benefits for caring for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family may also be granted; leave of absence without pay for up to two years to be granted to any teacher who joins the Peace Corps, VISTA, or Teacher Corps; upon return from leave the teacher shall be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have attained had he not been absent; leave of absence of up to two years for any female teacher adopting a child.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of state, local, and national association dues; up to three days per year released time for association president, the association to pay the cost of a substitute; the board is to provide information which it is required by law to release to the general public as well as five copies of board agendas and minutes, and when appropriate, copies of notices and minutes of committee meetings; either party may, if it desires, utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional representatives to assist in the negotiations.

INSTRUCTION: High school teachers work seven consecutive class periods within seven and one-half hours, five of those periods will be teaching assignments, one planning period, and one period of study or supervision; duty-free lunch daily; class sizes determined on the following basis: elementary, 20-24 students, junior and senior high, 24-27; those classes involving exceptional students shall consist of no more than 15 pupils; consideration will be given to a teacher's request to reduce or increase a particular class size; it is expected that teachers will be in the building for a reasonable time before and after class; elementary and junior high teachers should be in the building a minimum of six and one-half hours each day; the work year shall be no more than 183 days; when substantive changes in the school calendar are being considered, the association will be asked for recommendations, and final decisions will not be made without due consideration of these recommendations; all teachers are expected to remain one day per week for one hour for student assistance and parent conferences or other necessary school functions.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; upon 24 hours' notice teachers have the right to review and reproduce material in their personnel files and to have inserted their own written comments regarding the material; no document to which an individual has not been given access shall be utilized against the individual; if material deemed confidential is removed from a teacher's file by the board, a dated notation shall be placed in the file stating what materials have been removed; as part of their professional responsibility teachers shall attend department and other professional staff meetings designated to provide meaningful professional growth or to clarify school business in general; as of the 1974-75 school year the board agrees to budget annually $9,000 for reimbursing teachers for courses taken, with no individual reimbursed more than $100 for more than one course in any fiscal year; written evaluations are to be used as the basis for a conference between the building principal and the individual teacher, both are to initial the evaluation and, if desired, attach in writing any substantial agreement or disagreement; if a teacher is involuntarily reassigned, he shall have the right to a conference with the superintendent or his designee and shall have the right to have an association representative present; no more than 2 percent of staff will be transferred after August 1 except in extreme circumstances.

* * *

East Brunswick, New Jersey

Between East Brunswick Education Association and East Brunswick Public Schools, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 600 certificated professional employees. Contract covers health, instructional, resource, and school aides, attendance officer, coordinator of cooperative education program, custodian and maintenance personnel, food services personnel, guidance counselors, instructional staff, learning disability specialists, nurses, psychologists, secretaries, clerks and data processing personnel, social workers, speech therapists, drivers, department chairmen, special education teachers, unit leaders, but excludes assistant superintendents, the business administrator, officers in charge of food services, transportation, building and grounds, and data processing personnel, the bookkeeper-accountant, personnel on a per-diem basis, principals, vice-principals, supervisors, the director of pupil personnel services, the information officer, and the administrative assistant. Proposals for renegotiation must be submitted in writing to the superintendent no later than October 15 of the school year.

COMPENSATION: (Teachers 1973-74) B.A., $8,860 to $14,365, 13 increments; B.A. plus 18 hours, $14,440 maximum; M.A., $9,445 to $15,420, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,825 maximum; (Teachers 1974-75) B.A. $9,383 to $15,213, 13 increments; B.A. plus 18 hours, $15,291 maximum; M.A., $10,002 to $16,330, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,759 maximum; special education teachers, $500 above guide placement; speech therapists, learning disability teacher consultants, and social workers, 1.08 of salary guide; guidance counselors and psychologists on a 12-month contract, 13 percent over the 10-month salary guide; counselors, 1.03 of salary guide; psychologists, 1.10 of salary guide; head coordinator of Cooperative Education Program, 1.10 of salary guide for the position and 13 percent for a 12-month contract; department chairman, 1.05 of salary guide; (Para-professional school aides 1973-74) school aides, $2.33 to $2.67 hourly, seven steps; instructional aides, $5,900 to $6,540, five steps; health aides, $4,300 to $4,725, three steps; resource aides, $3,690 to $4,290, five steps; (Para-professional school aides 1974-75) school aides, $2.46 to $2.82 hourly, seven steps; instructional aides, $6,225 to $6,900, five steps; health aides, $4,537 to $4,985, three steps; resource aides, $3,893 to $4,526, five steps.

DIFFERENTIALS: Head coaches, 1–6 years' experience, football, $1,275 to $1,475; basketball, wrestling, baseball, track, soccer, winter track, gymnastics, $1,025 to $1,225; cross country, tennis, and golf, $775 to $975; assistant coaches and junior high coaches, 1–6 years' experience, football, basketball, baseball, wrestling, track, winter track, soccer, cross country, $625 to $825; cross country assistant, $575 to $775; high-school trainer, 1,400; junior high-school trainer, $750; girls' athletic team coaches, $625 to $825; faculty manager, $1,300.

OTHER: (Summer school 1973-74 and 1974-75) Directors, $1,125 to $1,325, three steps; high school, $850 to $1,000, three steps; elementary, $600 to $700, three steps. $.12 per mile for authorized use of own car; teachers required to substitute during preparation period to be paid $5 per period; volunteer or assigned chaperones for Saturday dances to be paid $10.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, unlimited accumulation; three days' leave granted for illness in the immediate family; an unlimited number of fully compensated days for illness or approved medical care in excess of accumulated sick leave in accordance with need and after proper application to the superintendent is allowed all employees; up to five days granted for death in the immediate family and one day for any other relative or close friend; three days' personal leave for a pressing reason acceptable to the superintendent; superintendent may grant time for professional conferences and school visitation; jury duty fees to be deducted from salary; pay for temporary military leave, including military reserve, to be deducted from regular salary; if requests for a temporary leave of absence have not been approved, the teacher may have recourse to the grievance procedure; after seven years' (the last five continuous) service in the district a teacher may be granted sabbatical leave at 50 percent of salary for one full year, 65 percent for approved advance study, with no more than five teachers permitted to be on sabbatical at any one time; sabbaticals may be taken for study, travel, or other reasons as approved; upon return the teacher will be placed on the step of the salary schedule he would have achieved had he not been on leave; leave of absence for up to two years without pay to a tenured teacher who joins Peace Corps, VISTA, Teacher Corps, or becomes an overseas teacher; upon return from the above-mentioned leave the teacher is to be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been on leave.

INSURANCE: Board paid hospitilization and medical insurance coverage for employees and their families, including college students up to age 23; major medical insurance provides dental orthodontia coverage on an individual and family contract basis.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; if it becomes necessary for arbitration, mediation, or fact-finding to be conducted during school hours, three persons designated by the association will be released with pay; if the board requires witnesses in the proceedings, the witnesses will suffer no loss of pay; the association shall notify the board on or before May 1 whether the association president is to be assigned only the first four periods with full salary or to be released without pay for one school year commencing September 1; use of bulletin boards in the faculty lounge, teacher dining room, and the central office; the board is to provide the association information in the public domain; the association has the right to address new teachers on orientation day at the beginning of the school year; an association representative may speak to teachers at the end of faculty meetings for at least five minutes.

INSTRUCTION: When possible, at least one period per day for preparation; elementary teachers to teach continuously for no more than two and one half hours, junior and senior high-school teachers, no more than three consecutive periods; teachers may leave the building during their duty-free lunch period providing they sign in and out; they may also request permission to leave the building for an emergency during their planning period; teachers shall report for duty 20 minutes before the opening of the pupils' school day and shall not be required to remain beyond 20 minutes after the close of the pupils' day; the scheduled school year shall consist of 183 days for students and 187 days for teachers; however, the number of days shall be reduced by three for students and 10-month teachers if these days are not used for unexpected school closings; teachers are not required to keep registers in the elementary schools, correct standardized tests, or laminate identification card pictures, use their cars to transport students, or transfer grades from report cards to cumulative records in schools where guidance counselors exist.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration;

> A "grievance" shall mean a complaint by an employee (1) that there has been as to him a violation, misinterpretation or inequitable application of any of the provisions of the agreement of (2) that he has been treated unfairly or inequitable by reason of any act or condition which is contrary to established Board policy or administrative practice governing or affecting employees except that the term "grievance" shall not apply to any matter as to which (a) a method of review is prescribed by law or by any rule or regulation of the State Commissioner of Education having the force and effect of law, or (b) the Board of Education is without authority to act. As used in this definition, the term "employee" shall mean also a group of employees having the same grievance.

No derogatory material will be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material and to attach a reply; if the teacher has instituted a grievance or other judicial proceeding, he shall be granted the right to reproduce any material not considered privileged or confidential; building based teachers may be required to attend no more than 10 building faculty meetings per school year; meetings shall begin 15 minutes after the student dismissal time and shall normally run for no more than 60 minutes; unless there is an emergency, these meetings shall not be called on Fridays or any day immediately preceeding a holiday; meeting agenda shall be given to teachers at least two days prior to the meeting; teachers may suggest items for agenda; grants to encourage creative and innovative teachers to experiment in improving instruction and student learning will be given to no more than 12 professional staff members each year; grants will include salary renumeration only when the project demands week day, holiday or significant evening activity; grants shall be limited to a minimum of $50 and a maximum of $1,000; all monitoring or observation of a teacher shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher; students are prohibited from tape recording class sessions without prior approval of the teacher or administration; written evaluations of a teacher will be discussed with the teacher within two calendar weeks after the evaluation is made; no report shall be submitted to the central office, placed in the teacher's file or otherwise acted upon without prior conference with the teacher; a teacher shall sign evaluation forms only to indicate that he saw the form and participated in a conference concerning it; except in emergency situations teachers shall be evaluated only by persons certificated to supervise instructions as of September 1, 1975; the results of standardized testing shall not be used for the evaluation of teachers; no teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, or reduced in rank or compensation, or have an increment withheld without just cause; any teacher required to appear before the board concerning matters that may adversely affect the continuation of his employment or salary or increments shall be given prior written notice of the reasons and shall be entitled to have an association representative present to advise and represent him at such meetings; each school shall have a faculty council of up to eight teachers appointed by the association to meet with the building principal to discuss and study professional matters pertaining to the building and to make recommendations, the district-wide council, composed of seven association appointed faculty members and seven administrators designated by the superintendent, will meet, discuss, and study professional matters pertaining to the school system; recommendations made by the Council shall be conveyed to the board by the superintendent; the council has no authority to make policy, alter existing policy, or in any way depart from established administrative or board regulations; if a teacher is involuntarily transferred, he may initiate the grievance procedure at the step involving the superintendent; if a reduction in the number of teachers at a school becomes necessary, all volunteers shall be transferred first, then those with the least amount of seniority; any teacher believing he is working under unsafe or hazardous conditions or performing tasks endangering health, safety, or well-being may institute a grievance; a teacher may use any amount of force necessary to quell a disturbance threatening physical injury to others, to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects, to defend himself, and to protect persons or property; the board shall defray all costs of defending any person holding office, position, or employment with the board in any civil action cases brought against such person in the performance of his duty; should a criminal action instituted against an employee be resolved in the employee's favor, the board shall reimburse the teacher for the cost of defending such proceedings, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

* * *

BUILDING TRADES WAGE RATES AVERAGE $7.61 AN HOUR

Building trades workers' average union wage rates in cities of 100,000 or more population rose 4.9 percent over the year ending July 2, 1973, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Hourly rates averaged $7.61 on July 2, 1973, or about $15,037 annually, computed on a 38-hour work week. Including employer contributions to health, welfare, pension, and/or vacation, hourly rates averaged $8.84, or $17,468 annually, 6.0 percent increase over the year.

Teachers' BA minimum salary averaged $7,357 at the end of 1973 while the hourly rates for building laborers, the lowest paid of the building trades workers, was $5.84, or more than $11,000 annually. Similarly, the average minimum salary for teachers with a doctorate was $9,402 while electricians, the highest paid building trades workers, averaged $8.44 per hour or over $16,000.

Just over one-third of the 711 bargaining units surveyed reported wage increases during the second quarter of 1973. Approximately one-sixth were for 15 cents ($296.40 annually) or less per hour, with almost the same percentage at 50 cents ($988.00 annually) or more per hour. Two-fifths of the advances were between 25 cents and 35 cents per hour or $494.00 to $691.60 per year, respectively.

Advances in the second quarter of 1973 brought the BLS wage rate index for building trades workers to 160.5 (1967=100). The index for teachers' BA minimum salary at the end of June 1973 was 138.0 (1967=100). (U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Union Wage Rates for Building Trades Workers Advance 1.8 Percent in Second Quarter of 1973. August 17, 1973.)

TABLE 1.—UNION WAGE RATES IN BUILDING TRADES IN CITIES OF 100,000 OR MORE POPULATION, JULY 2, 1973

Trade or occupation	Hourly average
1	2
Bricklayers	$8.30
Building laborers	5.84
Carpenters	7.84
Electricians	8.44
Painters	7.49
Plasterers	7.75
Plumbers	8.42
ALL TRADES	$7.61

MAJOR COLLECTIVE BARGAINING SETTLEMENTS UP 6.0 PERCENT

In major collective bargaining settlements concluded during the first nine months of 1973, first-year wage-rate adjustments averaged 6.0 percent, down from the 7.3 percent gain in the year 1972, according to preliminary estimates of the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Nearly 3.4 million workers were covered by 643 collective bargaining settlements in the private nonfarm economy affecting the 1,000 or more workers. Settlements still requiring approval include food, health services, and construction industry.

During the period covered, wage-rate adjustments for all industries over the life of the contract averaged a 5.5 percent rise, declining from the 6.4 percent attained in 1972. Average duration of contracts was 27½ months.

In contracts affecting 5,000 or more workers, combined wage and benefit gains averaged 7.6 percent for the first year; 6.3 percent annually over the life of the contract. Similar adjustments in the year 1972 averaged 8.5 percent for the first year and 7.4 percent over the life of the contract.

Average first-year wage adjustments increased 6.2 percent in the manufacturing sector, down from 6.6 percent in 1972. Over the life of the contract, the average gain was 5.5 percent, down from 5.6 percent in 1972. The 5.8 percent first year average gain in nonmanufacturing was a decrease from the 7.8 percent recorded last year; wage gains over the life of the contract averaged 5.4 percent, down from 6.9 percent in 1972.

Contracts with cost-of-living escalation provisions provided 5.8 percent average annual increases, excluding potential cost-of-living advances under these formulas, up from 5.7 percent in 1972. Contracts without cost-of-living escalation provisions provided annual adjustments averaging 5.3 percent, down from 6.5 percent the previous year. (U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Major Collective Bargaining Settlements, First 9 Months 1973. October 26, 1973.)

* * *

TEACHER STRIKES, WORK STOPPAGES, AND INTERRUPTIONS OF SERVICE, 1972-73

Teacher concerns regarding class size, a role in decision making, job security, working and learning conditions, and salaries were major issues in the 143 teacher strikes or work stoppages that occurred during the 1972-73 school year.

For this analysis, teacher strikes, work stoppages, and interruptions of service were considered to be any concerted group actions which disrupted regularly scheduled instruction time for at least one school day. The data were not adjusted downward when teachers in a school system were involved in more than one strike in a school year, or when days lost owing to strikes were rescheduled to meet state minimum attendance requirements. A strike may be initiated in and affect a single school building, a local school district, or state school system. The duration of a strike is measured by the instructional day. Instructional days are those days on which classes are scheduled; they do not include teacher working days before the opening or after the closing of school, teacher orientation days, inservice days, holidays, or week-ends.

The 143 strikes in 1972-73 involved an estimated 114,508 teachers and an estimated loss of 1,553,223 man-days of instruction. Strikes occurred in 22 states and in the District of Columbia, and ranged from 1 day to 53 days, with 17 percent lasting more than three weeks.

Fewer than 5 teachers in 100 were involved in strikes; man-days lost totaled less than ½ of 1 percent of the estimated man-days of instruction scheduled for the entire country. Three states, Hawaii (state-wide strike), Illinois, and Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia accounted for 83 percent of the total man-days lost. The total number of man-days of instruction was calculated by multiplying the estimated total instructional staff in 1972-73 by an assumed 180-day instructional year, the minimum number of instruction days mandated by most states.

TABLE 1.—MAN-DAYS INVOLVED IN TEACHER STRIKES, WORK STOPPAGES, AND INTERRUPTIONS OF SERVICE, 1972-73 SCHOOL YEAR

State	Estimated total instructional staff[a]	Assumed number of man-days of instruction[b]	Estimated number of man-days involved in teacher strikes[c]	Man-days involved in teacher strikes as a percent of man-days of instruction[d]
1	2	3	4	5
California	208,500	37,530,000	1,850	e
Colorado	28,714	5,168,520	1,222	e
Connecticut	39,623	7,132,140	4,022	e
Delaware	7,140	1,285,200	3,568	0.3
District of Columbia	7,773	1,399,140	74,400	5.3
Hawaii	9,920	1,785,600	117,000	6.5
Illinois	119,605	21,528,900	321,573	1.5
Indiana	59,350	10,683,000	21,055	0.2
Kansas	28,386	5,109,480	1,944	e
Massachusetts	68,381	12,308,580	8,700	e
Michigan	101,090	18,196,200	29,522	0.2
Missouri	52,000	9,360,000	64,164	0.7
Montana	9,651	1,737,180	910	e
New Hampshire	8,457	1,522,260	1,570	0.1
New Jersey	91,750	16,515,000	8,440	0.5
New York	206,197	37,115,460	25,868	e
Ohio	115,800	20,844,000	11,168	e
Oregon	25,590	4,606,200	1,890	e
Pennsylvania	121,800	21,924,000	784,225	3.6
Rhode Island	10,819	1,947,420	23,339	1.2
Tennessee	40,200	7,236,000	1,360	e
Washington	39,038	7,026,840	6,047	e
Wisconsin	53,543	9,637,740	39,386	0.4
22 states and D.C.	1,453,327	261,598,860	1,553,223	0.6
Remaining 28 states	896,906	161,443,080	...	...
United States	2,350,233	423,041,940	1,553,223	0.4

[a]From: National Education Association, Research. Estimates of School Statistics, 1972-73. Research Report 1972-R12. Washington, D.C.: the Association, 1973. p. 29. Comprises teachers, principals, supervisors, and nonsupervisory instructional staff.

[b]Assumes a constant of 180 days of public-school instruction for the year. While the number of instruction days varies from state to state, the majority of states require a minimum of 180.

[c]Based on instructional days of full-time teachers during the regular school year. Teacher report-in days, holidays, week-ends, and vacation days are excluded. Data complied from published and unpublished information collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, and NEA Research.

[d]Assumes that the man-days involved in teacher strikes are not rescheduled.

[e]Less than 1/10 of 1 percent.

TABLE 2.—TEACHER STRIKES, WORK STOPPAGES, AND INTERRUPTIONS OF SERVICE, BY TYPE OF ORGANIZATION, BY MONTH, AND BY STATE, 1972-73 SCHOOL YEAR[a]

Type of organization, month, and state	Number of strikes, work stoppages, and interruptions of service	Estimated number of personnel involved	Estimated number of man-days involved[b]
1	2	3	4
TYPE OF ORGANIZATION
Professional association	120	48,230	416,927
Teacher union	23	66,278	1,136,296
MONTH
August	26	7,341	65,009
September	60	38,391	426,411
October	12	4,912	35,192
November	2	550	2,850
January	10	43,278	852,574
February	10	2,424	22,032
March	8	3,711	9,980
April	6	10,058	121,548
May	9	3,843	17,627
STATE
California	2	1,350	1,850
Colorado	2	611	1,222
Connecticut	2	1,361	4,022
Delaware	3	859	3,568
District of Columbia	1	6,200	74,400
Hawaii	1	9,000	117,000
Illinois	16	31,067	321,573
Indiana	2	2,595	21,055
Kansas	1	81	1,944
Massachusetts	2	970	8,700
Michigan	16	5,404	29,522
Missouri	2	4,082	64,164
Montana	1	130	910
New Hampshire	2	205	1,570
New Jersey	6	1,056	8,440
New York	10	3,225	25,868
Ohio	13	3,275	11,168
Oregon	1	210	1,890
Rhode Island	10	5,327	23,339
Pennsylvania	35	32,158	784,225
Tennessee	1	80	1,360
Washington	3	1,477	6,047
Wisconsin	11	3,785	39,386
TOTAL	143	114,508	1,553,223

[a]Compiled from published and unpublished information collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, and NEA Research.

[b]Based on instructional days of full-time teachers during regular school year. Teacher report-in days, holidays, week-ends, and vacation days are excluded.

VOL. 7 NO. 5
JANUARY 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- School Board Ordered to Resume Bargaining with Teacher Organization
- Permanent Injunction Dissolved; Court Recommends Enactment of Public Employees' Negotiation Statute
- Lower Court Ordered to Vacate Injunction Against Picketing
- Constitutionality of Binding Arbitration in Negotiation Impasses Upheld
- Agency Shop Fees Deductible from All Public Employees Including Classified Civil Service Employees
- Court Upholds Contempt Decision; Reduces Fines and Jail Sentences
- Sick Leave Bank Ruled Negotiable Fringe Benefit
- Incentive Pay Plan Negotiable
- Taylor Law Probationers Subject to Dismissal under Civil Service Law Procedures
- Interns and Residents Covered by Bargaining Act
- Pregancy Cannot Be Sole Reason for Denial of Unemployment Benefits

Board Findings and Rulings 8
- 45 Percent Increase in Teachers Agency Shop Fee Approved
- Elimination of Legal Department an Unlawful Refusal to Bargain
- PERC Dismisses Petition Seeking Exclusion of Supervisors from Bargaining Unit
- Principals Are Not Managerial Personnel Under Taylor Law
- Board Must Furnish Employee Organization Information on Staff Reductions
- School Crossing Guards an Appropriate Bargaining Unit
- Duty to "Meet and Discuss" Affirmed
- Full-time Teacher in Part-time Position Is Covered by Staff Reduction Clause

Negotiation Notes 12
- AFL-CIO Takes Steps to Give More Power to Public Employee Unions
- AGO: Private Preliminary Contract Negotiations Valid
- Wage and Hours Laws Amended
- Paid Time Off for Grievance Hearing
- Policemen's Association Enjoined from Picketing Committee Members' Places of Employment
- Paid Time Off to Serve as Witnesses or Election Observer
- Administrative Rulings Concerning Equal Pay
- Proposed Workweek Plan Violates FLSA Rules on Overtime Pay
- The Consumer Price Index - November 1973

Special Reports 16
- Growth of Teacher Contracts: 1966-1973
- Briefs of Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2634

CASE REVIEWS

FLORIDA

School Board Ordered To Resume Bargaining with Teacher Organizations

The Florida Supreme Court upheld a ruling of the Miami Circuit Court ordering the Dade County School Board to resume bargaining salary schedules with the Dade County Classroom Teachers Association and the Dade Federation of Teachers. The board had been negotiating with both organizations, however, attempts had been made to merge the two organizations to maximize their bargaining power.

In upholding the lower court order, the supreme court also refused the union's request to block the school board from approving its new budget prior to the completion of salary negotiations. However, the school board postponed voting on the budget and offered salary increases of $800 for beginning teachers, $900 for tenured teachers, and $1,100 for tenured teachers with seven years' experience in Florida schools. The school board's increased salary offerings (the previous offering was $800 across the board) did not meet the organizations' demand for a 10 percent salary increase for all teachers.

An association spokesman stated that attempts to negotiate impasse resolution procedures would be made at the bargaining sessions because of the absence of specific legislation authorizing bargaining. Florida's teacher bargaining laws apply only to particular counties, and Dade County is not included. The supreme court's support of the order to negotiate may have made the court ready to act on its 1972 threat to draft collective bargaining guidelines absent legislative enactment of a bargaining statute. A collective bargaining bill was rejected by the 1973 legislature. (Dade County Classroom Teachers Association Inc. et al., v. Dade County School Board, Florida Supreme Court, July 26, 1973.)

ILLINOIS

Permanent Injunction Dissolved; Court Recommends Enactment of Public Employees' Negotiation Statute

Acting under the state's anti-injunction act, the Illinois Appellate Court dissolved a permanent strike injunction issued against the municipal employees of Pana in June of 1972. Stating that the anti-injunction act was the only state law relating to public employee labor relations, the court urged the legislature to enact a public employee collective bargaining statute.

The injunction was served against employees of Pana, members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, who operated the city's water, sewer, street, and police departments. The union and the city, negotiating a renewal and extension of their collective bargaining agreement, reached an impasse. The union voted to strike, but the city obtained an ex-parte temporary injunction. A permanent injunction was later issued on the grounds that the employees' strike interfered with the operation of the city's water, sewer, street, and police departments, thus endangering the citizens' health, safety, and welfare.

AFSME appealed the injunction, claiming that it violated the anti-injunction act. The city held that in this case statutory provisions protecting citizens' health, safety, and welfare took precedence over the anti-injunction act.

The court found that the anti-injunction act forbade the issuance of injunctions against peaceful picketing or strikes and contained no exceptions in its application to public employees. According to the court, the city's reference to statutory provisions providing for the health, safety, and welfare of the people were "general, scattered, and indirect and at best constitute vague authority for the proposition advanced." The court pointed out that the anti-injunction act, enacted in 1925, was the only state legislation applicable to public employees' collective bargaining.

At the present time, more than half of the states and the federal government have enacted public employees' negotiations statutes in response to public employees' demand for the collective bargaining rights granted to private sector employees. Recent state investigative commission reports to the legislature have recommended enactment of appropriate legislation. The court supported the conclusion that "it is preferable to have the basic framework for union-management relations in the public sector established by legislation rather than to have the law evolve in a piecemeal fashion through judicial decisions." (City of Pana v. Harold Crowe et al and AFSCME Local 726, Appellate Court of Illinois, 5th District, July 25, 1973).

Lower Court Ordered To Vacate Injunction Against Picketing

The Ottawa, Illinois, appellate court remanded the judgment of a lower court with orders to vacate a temporary injunction and to dismiss the petition for the injunction. The injunction was issued when police and firemen AFSCME (American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees) members picketed the mayor's place of business during contract negotiations. AFSME appealed the court order, contending that the ruling was a violation of the state's anti-injunction act.

According to the court, in the absence of legislated protective laws for public collective bargaining and a few court decisions that could be termed precedential, the court itself must attempt to resolve disputes. After a review of the lower court proceedings, the court found that the rule on muteness had been violated and that the evidence used was ambivalent and sketchy. On the basis of the foregoing the court issued its ruling.

MAINE

Constitutionality of Binding Arbitration in Negotiation Impasses Upheld

Reviewing the state's Municipal Employees Labor Relations Act, the Maine Supreme Court split evenly over the issue of whether the statutory provisions for binding arbitration of bargaining impasses between teachers and school boards were constitutionally sound. The issue came before the court when the Biddeford school board contended that to sign the arbitrated agreement issued by an arbitration panel "would be a surrender of board members' authority as public officials to persons not responsible to the electorate."

Three members of the court contended that the statute contained sufficient standards to guide an arbitration panel, and sustained the binding arbitration provisions. Further, the Act did not list express criteria but set forth implicit standards in the totality of its statutory provisions. For example, the Act contemplated that arbitrators would act reasonably and fairly in resolving a dispute was a legislatively prescribed standard adequate to control the actions of arbitrators, and clearly defined arbitrable subjects. These justices reasoned that the legislature was "mindful of the denial to municipal employees of such economic weapons as strikes and work stoppages" and sought to avoid the disruptive feelings of resentment and bitterness which may result if the governmental employee may look only to the government for redress of his grievances. Thus, the legislature gave authority to arbitration panels not controlled by the government but chosen by the parties to settle disputes in certain noneconomic areas. Concluding, these members held that since standards or intelligible principles expressely demonstrate that the authority of arbitrators is legislatively contained, the attack upon the binding arbitration provisions of the Act as an unconstitutional delegation of power fails.

The other half of the court held that the legislature's failure to incorporate sufficient guidelines and standards for arbitrators in the provisions for binding arbitration amounted to an unconstitutional delegation of power. The court pointed out that the statute "does not require arbitrators to consider such matters as existing or future appropriations, statutory restrictions in the educational field, orders of the commissioner of education, the public interest and the quality of education." Continuing, these court members noted that "it is well established that a legislative body cannot delegate the legislative power without including in the delegating statute sufficient standards to guide the agents in the exercise of the legislative authority." Such standards would provide procedural safeguards and the opportunity for judicial review which can protect both teachers and the public against irresponsible actions by arbitrators, they said.

The court, however, unanimously agreed that the arbitrators in the Biddeford dispute had exceeded their jurisdiction by not confining their decisions to the subject of working conditions, but also had ruled on educational policies which are excluded from arbitration. The case was then remanded to a lower court for modification of the arbitration award. (City of Biddeford vs. Biddeford Teachers Association and Biddeford Teachers Association vs. Board of Education of Biddeford, Maine Supreme Court, April 30, 1973.)

MASSACHUSETTS

Agency Shop Fees Deductible from All Public Employees Including Classified Civil Service Employees

The agency shop clause in agreements between the City of Worcester and Service Employees Local 495 applied to all city employees including those in the classified civil service according to a ruling by the Massachusetts supreme court. The City of Worcester and the union entered into three collective bargaining agreements that covered five bargaining units, each containing an agency shop provision. The union and the city disagreed as to whether this provision included civil service employees.

The city contended that the legislature did not intend that civil service employees be subject to the agency shop fee. And, since the statute gave municipal employees the option as to whether they would give their employer written authority to deduct this fee from their paychecks, these employees had the option to elect whether they would become subject to the obligation to pay the fee.

Reviewing the language of the municipal employee bargaining law, the court concluded that the legislature intended civil service employees to be subject to agency shop fees. The court noted that the municipal employee bargaining law defined an employee as "any employee of a municipal employer whether or not in the classified service of the municipal employer." The legislature could have excluded civil service employees from this definition of employees, but did not do so. Therefore, the court concluded, the legislature intended the word employee to include civil service employees.

The court also concluded that the legislature clearly did not intend to exclude civil service employees from the provision whereby an employee organization recognized by a municipal employer as the representative of the majority of employees would be the exclusive representative of all the employees involved without regard to membership in the organization. The court noted that in 1970 the legislature appended a clause describing five prohibited union acts among which a mandatory agency shop fee as a condition of employment was not included. An examination of 1970 amendments as well as the message from the governor in which he endorsed agency shop fees indicated "a clear intent that collective bargaining agreements should cover all employees in the appropriate unit, and that all such employees should make a contribution to the expense of negotiating, administering and enforcing the agreements."

The court dismissed the city's argument that employees have a choice as to whether they want to be subject to the agency shop fee by pointing out that if a collective bargaining agreement is concluded between the parties, all nonunion members of the particular unit are liable to the union for the agency shop fee. Employees have a choice as to how they will pay the fee, held the court, but they cannot avoid liability by merely withholding authority from the employer to deduct the fee from their paychecks. (Steven D. Karchmar and Others vs. City of Worcester and Others, Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, November 5, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Court Upholds Contempt Decision; Reduces Fines and Jail Sentences

The New Jersey Superior Court upheld a trial court's finding individual teacher members of the Freehold Regional High School Education Association and the association in contempt of a strike injunction. However, the court reduced the fine levied against the association and shortened the teachers' jail sentences.

The 11 teachers found in contempt of the injunction appealed the trial court's decision and requested that their original trial be nullified because it was heard by the county district court judge who could not validly hear a superior court contempt charge. The court found this contention frivolous as the judge had been temporarily assigned to the superior court at the time of the trial. The court also found frivolous the association's contention that the show cause order was invalid because it was entitled in the name of the school board's attorneys.

Replying to the teachers' claim that the show cause order was defective owing to vagueness and infringement on their Fourteenth Amendment rights, the court noted that the validility of a restraining order can be tried only on appeal from the order, and not from a decision for contempt. The court also found that the teachers had been adequately warned against striking, picketing, or illegally absenting themselves from work because state statutes do not grant public employees the right to strike.

The teachers also contested admittance into evidence of a telegram from the association president advising the school board of the association's intention to strike. The court found the telegram and the photographs and films of strike activity appropriate evidence.

In answer to the teachers' claim that their guilt was determined by their membership in the association, the court found that their guilt was determined by their strike and picketing activity, and their failure to report to work, all in violation of the restraining order.

However, because the association's strike and violation of the restraining order were a first offense, the court found the fines and sentences issued by the lower court excessive. The court reduced the association's fine from $100,000 to $50,000. It did not reduce the fines of the 11 teachers ($500 each), but it did shorten the jail sentences by one-half, and stayed incarceration until after school closed for the summer. (In the Matter of Freehold Regional High School Education Association et al, New Jersey Superior Court, January 25, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Sick Leave Bank Ruled Negotiable Fringe Benefit

The New York Appellate Court determined that a sick leave bank provision in an agreement between the Syracuse Board of Education and the Syracuse Teachers Association was a negotiable item because a sick leave bank was a fringe benefit.

In 1968, the parties agreed to a sick leave bank provision in their negotiated agreement. Under the terms of the provision, teachers could contribute up to three of their yearly accumulated sick leave days to a bank to be used by teachers with long-term illnesses who had exhausted their sick leave. The board would match each contribution up to a total reserve of 3,000 days, and budgeted $10,000 for establishment of the bank.

The state comptroller ruled that "a transfer or assignment of sick leave credits of one public employee to another" was unlawful because sick leave rights were personal and therefore not transferrable. Upon the board's decision that it would no longer observe the sick leave bank provision, the association petitioned the state supreme court to declare the provision valid.

The supreme court agreed with the comptroller that it was unlawful to transfer sick leave from one public employee to another and said that sick leave banks conflicted with the state education statute.

The appellate court found that the state education law provided that each teacher in school districts other than New York City was allowed at least 10 days' sick leave per year cumulative to a minimum of 150 days. Additionally, the Taylor Law grants public employers the right to bargain collectively with employee organizations and to enter into written agreements incorporating terms and conditions of employment. The Taylor Law also obligates the public employer to pay teachers reasonable compensation which may include both cash payments and fringe benefits. According to the court, a provision for sick leave to be used for prolonged illness is a fringe benefit of advantage to all teachers and is thus a negotiable term of employment.

Citing Huntington Board of Education v. Teachers, the court reiterated that public employers are obligated to negotiate a condition or term of employment unless there is a statutory provision to the contrary. In the absence of a statute prohibiting negotiation of sick leave banks, the court concluded that the sick leave bank provision was legal, and reversed the lower court's order. (Syracuse Teachers Association v. Syracuse Board of Education and the New York State Comptroller, New York State Supreme Court, Appellate Division, June 29, 1973.)

Incentive Pay Plan Negotiable

An incentive compensation plan developed by the North Hempstead U.F.S.D. No. 11 Board of Education was a negotiable item in a contract negotiated between the board and the Carle Place Teachers Association. According to the Nassau County Supreme Court, the board's unilateral rescission of the plan constituted a breach of contract.

The board instituted the incentive pay plan in 1958 to reward teachers for unusual service to the schools and included an incentive compensation fund in the annual budget. The board reserved the right to amend or modify the plan. In 1970, without prior discussion with the teachers association, the board rescinded the plan. Within 10 days of this action, the association informed the board that the rescission constituted a breach of the parties' agreement. The board sought a declaratory judgment, maintaining that there was no breach of contract since the incentive plan was not a negotiable item and also that the plan was illegal as it constituted a gift of public funds, and was discriminatory.

Considering the question of breach of contract, the court found that all four agreements previously negotiated contained a clause that provided that the board would notify the teachers association before adopting a change in policies concerning wages, salaries, and terms and conditions of employment. This provision stated that the teachers association would have a chance to negotiate such changes. According to the board, the incentive pay plan was not included under "wages, salaries, terms and conditions of employment." On the basis of the description of the plan and the manner in which it was administered, the court determined the plan to be a wage, salary, or term or condition of employment. The court pointed to an additional contractual provision applicable to the case that stated that any bylaws, rules, and regulations not covered by the negotiated articles of the contract would be approved for the duration of the contract.

Considering the allegation of discrimination, the court found that although it was selective and limited, previous court cases had affirmed the legality of similar merit/incentive pay plans. As the plan was an award for "unusual ability and/or service to the schools," it was not a constitutionally prohibited gift of public funds but rather an incentive to teachers to perform services.

The court concluded that since the incentive compensation plan was a negotiable term and condition of employment, the board's action unilaterally dissolving the plan was a breach of the parties' contract. The court ordered that "amendments, modifications or rescission of the Plan must be negotiated between the parties." (Robert F. Volk et al v. Carle Place Teachers Association, Nassau County Supreme Court, April 26, 1973.)

Taylor Law Probationers Subject to Dismissal under Civil Service Law Procedures

The New York Supreme Court ordered the Broome County Central School District No. 1 to reinstate two tenure teachers who had been reduced to probationary status for participating in a strike and subsequently dismissed. The court ruled that the teachers reduced to probationary status under the Taylor Law could not be dismissed by standards applied to probationary employees covered under the Education Laws. The teachers, also requested an injunction enjoining the school district from terminating their employment and interfering with their discharge of classroom duties. The injunction was refused by the court.

The teachers, school district employees for over 10 years, had held tenure for more than seven years. As prescribed by the Taylor Law, they were reduced to probationary status after participating in a strike. The school district then gave the teachers a 30-day termination notice in accordance with the discharge procedure for probationary teachers contained in the Education Law. The teachers contested their discharge, alleging that they were deprived of a listing of charges and a hearing. The school district contended that the teachers were not entitled to the rights accorded to tenure teachers under the Education Law because they had been reduced to probationary status.

The section of the Taylor Law prescribing a one-year probationary period for public employees violating the strike prohibition states that "the effect of probation hereunder with regard to teachers and others subject to the Education Law shall not exceed or differ from the effect of probation hereunder with regard to other public employees." The court interpreted this provision to mean that teachers demoted to probationary status under the Taylor Law must be equated with Civil Service Law probationers and accordingly can be discharged only in accordance with Rule 4.5 of the Rules for the Classified Service. Under this rule probationary employees can be dismissed only if their job performance is shown to be unsatisfactory.

The court concluded that the tenure teachers reduced to probationary status under the Taylor Law could not be discharged with only a timely notification. Accordingly, the court ordered the teachers reinstated with full pay and benefits. The court pointed out that the ruling did not bar the school board from using appropriate measures to effect a lawful discharge of the teachers. In addition, the court refused the teachers' request to enjoin the school board from interfering with their resumption of classroom duties. (Linnie B. Tuller, Michael Oluich and the Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association v. Broome County Central School District No. 1, New York Supreme Court, April 30, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Interns and Residents Covered By Bargaining Act

The Philadelphia County Court of Common Pleas, upholding a Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) decision, ruled that residents and interns employed at state hospitals were public employees covered by the Public Employee Relations Act (PERA) because they performed services essential to the operation of the hospitals.

In 1970, the Pennsylvania Association of Interns and Residents (PAIR) petitioned the PLRB to hold a representation election for residents and interns of several state hospitals. The PLRB rejected the petition on the basis that the interns and residents were students, not public employees under PERA. In March 1972, PAIR appealed the Board's decision, and the Board reversed its original ruling and ordered a representation election to be held among the hospital employees. PAIR was designated as the exclusive bargaining representative for the interns and residents and was certified by PLRB.

The state hospitals filed exceptions with PLRB, claiming that interns and residents were not employees and PAIR was not an employee organization under PERA. When PLRB rejected the hospitals' exceptions, the hospitals took the matter to court.

Aside from claiming that collective bargaining was a major cause of labor unrest, the hospitals stated that the interns and residents were students, not public employees. The hospitals argued that the interns' and residents' association with the hospitals was purely educational and their pay was actually an educational subsidy. They also argued that even if residents were public employees, they did not constitute an appropriate bargaining unit because the unit was over-fragmented and that the interns and residents lacked a continuity of employment with the hospitals to justify granting bargaining rights. The hospitals also held that PLRB erroneously reversed its original decision owing to the replacement of two board members who participated in the original ruling.

The court found that the hospitals were not challenging the applicability of PERA to the interns and residents but rather were contesting whether interns and residents were employees in any sense, and therefore denying them collective bargaining rights. Pointing out the practical consequences of denying the interns and residents some method of dispute resolution, regardless of their status as either students or employees, the court found that a disruption of withholding of their services would severely upset operation of the hospitals. The PLRB had found that interns and residents were extensively involved in patient care and health services, they were paid for prior experiences, they paid taxes, and they received benefits such as parking, insurance, and cafeteria privileges.

Addressing the hospitals' contention that the unit was overfragmented, the court pointed out that PERA directed PLRB to achieve a balance between employees' community of interest and the effect of overfragmentation in unit determination. The court also rejected the hospitals' argument that the non-permanence of the interns and residents employment invalidated their bargaining rights. Finally, the court struck down the hospital's "reversal" objection on the grounds that "an administrative body may correct orders on its own motion, without the intervention of either party."

Concluding, the court dismissed the hospitals' petition, upholding PLRB's decision that residents and interns in state hospitals were public employees and entitled to bargaining rights under PERA. (Albert Einstein Medical Center et al v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas, Philadelphia County, August 30, 1973.)

FEDERAL

Pregnancy Cannot Be Sole Reason for Denial of Unemployment Benefits

Following the repeal of the section of the Connecticut Unemployment Compensation Law that had denied unemployment benefits to women on the basis of pregnancy, a class action before the U.S. District Court for Connecticut resulted in an immediate ban on disqualification based solely on pregnancy. Constitutionality of the discriminatory treatment of applicants on the basis of sex was challenged in a suit agains the governor and various state commissioners and administrators of the labor department, and an injunction against discriminatory denial of benefits and payment of unemployment compensation was sought. A detailed accounting of all unemployment benefits denied pregnant female claimants during the six-year period preceding March 8, 1973, was also sought.

As the disputed section of the unemployment compensation statute had already been repealed, the district court judge focused on the need to redress the effects of the discriminatory treatment. The court permanently enjoined enforcement of the repealed regulation and ordered the commissioner of labor to give written notice to all women who had been denied unemployment compensation because of pregnancy since February 24, 1973. The court also ordered the commissioner to direct state staffs to assist female applicants entitled to recovery of benefits so as to ensure that "the eligibility of said claimants for unemployment compensation benefits shall be determined after a fair hearing and review in the same manner and based upon the same criteria as are applicable to all other claimants, male or female." A 45-day time limit from the date of the order was set for filing of the claims.

The court also ordered an automatic 10 percent deduction of benefits to defer the cost of litigation and to provide free legal service by attorneys of Women's Law Fund, for women seeking legal aid in their efforts to file claims. (Sabine D. Jordan, Individually and on behalf of all other persons similarly situated, v. Thomas J. Meskill, as governor of the State of Connecticut, et al, United States District Court for the District of Connecticut, June 26, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

HAWAII

45 Percent Increase in Teachers Agency Shop Fee Approved

The Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board (HPERB) approved a 45 percent increase from $97 to $141 a year, in the "service" or agency shop fee for teachers who did not belong to the Hawaii State Teachers Association (HSTA). However, board members expressed concern for an adequate financial breakdown of services rendered to nonmembers and HSTA's refusal to raise members' dues to $141 prior to the HPERB decision.

As reasons for raising the agency shop fee, HSTA cited deficits owing to the teachers' strike ($388,745) and the fine of $190,000, in addition to current operating expenses and dues to state and national associations. HSTA was bound to dues of only 1 percent per year of the teacher's average annual salary estimated to be $10,800. Thus, HSTA's portion of the dues was $108 with an additional $33 required to pay affiliated dues.

The HPERB was distressed at the large deficit but did agree that the fine was a responsibility of the association and funding should be raised. HPERB also was concerned that the association had not raised the dues of its members prior to asking for an increase in the agency shop fee.

While the Board's Rule 6.04(b) provided that service fees might not be greater than dues, and the regular dues of members had not been raised from $97 to $141 per year, it was understood that member's dues would be raised as soon as the decision of the HPERB was handed down. The Board agreed that the HSTA was the official bargaining unit for the teachers of Hawaii and that the April 1973 strike was an integral part of the bargaining and that expenses incurred, including the $190,000 fine, were allowable charges against the service fee. The Board modified that portion of the decision that led the HSTA to conclude that its only affiliation with NEA and HEA for service fee purposes could be by contracts for services. While HSTA might utilize a unified dues structure, it must show that affiliation fees going to locals, the HEA, and NEA are for purposes allowed under Section 89-4(b), HRS and that per-capita assessments out of service fees (agency shop fees) are allowable so long as the unit members receive in exchange for such fees, service related to contract negotiation and administration.

The order of the HPERB allowed an annual service fee of $141 to be deducted from the payroll with such payments forwarded to HSTA, effective September 1, 1973. In the future, HSTA will be required to show that members' dues have been raised before requesting an increase in the service fee and shall clearly distinguish between services supplied to the bargaining unit and those supplied to members of HSTA-HEA-NEA only. The service fee of $141 considered reasonable by this order will be in effect only through June 30, 1974, at which time the Board will review the financial situation of HSTA to see whether a continuation or alteration of the service fee is warranted. (In Matter of Hawaii State Teachers Association, Petitioner and Hawaii Federation of Teachers, Intervenor, Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board, September 13, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Elimination of Legal Department an Unlawful Refusal To Bargain

Sustaining the findings and recommendations of an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) ruled that by unilaterally subcontracting its legal department's work and firing most department employees, the City of Flint had violated the state Public Employment Relations Act (PERA). MERC, therefore, directed the city to reinstate the employees with back pay, to rescind its subcontracts, and to bargain with the employees union on contracting work out of the bargaining unit or on wages, hours, and working conditions.

The ALJ had determined that the city's decision to contract out law work and to discharge legal department employees was influenced by the union's certification as these employees' bargaining representative, since prior to the election the city had indicated opposition to the organizing of the department and had threatened to contract the law work out when the union sought recognition.

While there was evidence of the city's anti-union animus, MERC said that absent expressed evidence of anti-union motivation, inadequate reasons for the employer's conduct can be a pretext disguising anti-union intention. Further, the court indicated that the absence of anti-union influence would have necessitated a determination whether subcontracting out of a unit is a mandatory bargaining item.

MERC found the discharge of the attorneys discriminatory on the basis of their union activity, and the city's citing financial problems as cause for its actions a pretext. Additionally, MERC held that the city violated PERA by its efforts to rid itself of the union by eliminating the legal department. This, in MERC's determination, "constituted an unlawful refusal to bargain," and thereby violated the Act.

Turning to ALJ's finding that the city's legal stenographer, a union sympathizer according to the city, was denied reclassification and discriminatorily discharged along with the senior clerk typist because of the city's anti-union thinking, MERC held that the discharges also violated the Act, although the two employees were not bargaining unit members.

The city contended that PERA provisions conflict with the state constitution, and that MERC was beyond its jurisdiction in ruling on unfair labor practice charges involving civil service employees.

Rejecting the city's contentions, MERC cited relevant Supreme Court rulings and held that the aggrieved individuals were asserting statutory rights. In Civil Service Commission for the County of Wayne v. Wayne County Board of Supervisors, MERC said, the Supreme Court held that by implication PERA repeals portions of previous civil service legislation by making public employees' wages, hours, and working conditions bargainable items. Further, in Detroit Police Officers Association v. City of Detroit the Michigan Court of Appeals held that public employees' rights under state law overrides conflicting city charter provisions. Additionally, MERC found PERA unharmed by the constitutional provision establishing local civil service systems.

NEW JERSEY

PERC Dismisses Petition Seeking Exclusion of Supervisors from Bargaining Unit

Mixed units of teachers and supervisory personnel may exist if "established practice" and under "prior agreement," supervisors have been included in the bargaining unit, absent any actual conflict of interest between the two groups. The potentiality of conflict of interest is not of itself sufficient to warrant removal of supervisors from an all-inclusive unit. The New Jersey Public Employee Relations Commission (PERC) so ruled in rejecting the petition of the West Paterson Board of Education that sought to exclude principals and vice-principals from a teacher bargaining unit represented by the West Paterson Education Association.

Though the association had been negotiating for a unit composed of teachers, principals, vice-principals, custodians, nurses, and secretaries since 1965, it was not until 1969 that the board petitioned to exclude the principals and vice-principals from the bargaining unit. The Commission rejected this request immediately after the state Supreme Court decision in Board of Education of the Township of West Orange v. Elizabeth Wilton which held that where supervisors' duties and obligations to the employer would result in an actual or potential conflict of interest with other members of the bargaining unit, the required community of interest was lacking, and the supervisors should be excluded from the unit. The board petition to PERC argued that the Wilton decision mandated the exclusion of supervisors from the bargaining unit where evidence indicated that actual or potential conflict of interest might ensue between personnel groups in the unit. The association contended that the prohibition against "mixed units" was inoperative when either established practice or prior agreement was evident.

In reviewing the facts of the case, the Commission found that the duties of the principals and the vice-principals were definitely supervisory as these employees were responsible for evaluating personnel, making recommendations for hiring and firing of other personnel and teacher assignments, directing the clerical and custodial staffs and classroom activities, and resolving employee grievances at the initial stage.

However, the bargaining unit's history of negotiations constituted "established practice" under the state negotiations statute. In addition, the four successive one-year labor agreements from 1969 to 1973 negotiated with the same mixed unit constituted prior agreement. The Commission then considered the impact of Wilton on a mixed unit on the basis of "established practice" and "prior agreement." The Wilton decision acknowledged that in certain situations existing mixed bargaining units might be allowed, though the thrust of the case was toward the establishment of new units.

The Commission felt that the parties' history of negotiations offset the possibility of a future conflict of interest between the groups in the unit, and since Wilton did not address itself to exceptions, it was deemed inapplicable in toto to the case at hand. PERC stated that the "Legislature intended the preservation of mixed units where:. . .the experience of the parties demonstrated the ability to negotiate and administer agreements and at the same time protecting the integrity of their interests, and where their experience has further demonstrated no compelling reason to terminate or alter that relationship." Reviewing the parties' negotiating history, the Commission found that the board, the association, and the superintendent all agreed that there were no problems in the negotiation and administration of the agreement caused by the composition of the bargaining unit. The PERC felt that the mere potential for conflict of interest did not require the exclusion of supervisors from the bargaining unit, and since the record showed no reason to disturb the relationship, concluded that the case at hand required an exception to the rules and therefore dismissed the petitions. (In the Matter of West Paterson Board of Education and West Paterson Education Association, New Jersey Public Employee Relations Commission, June 12, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Principals Are Not Managerial Personnel Under Taylor Law

The New York Public Employees Relations Board (PERB) dismissed a petition of the New York City Board of Education for designation of 1,200 New York City elementary, junior high, intermediate, senior high, and special education school principals as managerial employees. Reviewing the principals' duties and responsibilities in light of the Taylor Law's four tests for determination of managerial status, PERB found the principals to be supervisory personnel.

Under New York City's school decentralization plan, the senior high and special education schools are controlled by the board of education, and the principals of these schools are responsible to the assistant superintendent in their boroughs. Thirty-one community school boards operate the elementary, intermediate, and junior high schools, and principals of these schools are responsible to the community superintendent. The responsibilities and duties of all principals are similar, but the amount of their authority depends on their individual supervisors. According to the bylaws of the board of education principals "shall be responsible for the instruction, direction, and control of all members of the supervising and teaching and custodial staffs constituting the organization of such school."

An investigation of the specific duties and responsibilities of the principals revealed that under the United Federation of Teachers (UFT) agreement with the school board, principals have some authority in determining teachers' assignments and school programs, assign specific duties to assistant principals, evaluate personnel, provide for teacher training, recommend disciplinary actions, interview supervisors, and hire and fire substitute teachers. Although degree and course requirements and the nature of the school program are determined on the city or state level, the principal is expected to develop the educational program to fit the needs of his school, and also draft the annual objectives of the school's program. The principal is required to implement appropriate curricula subject to city and state guidelines, but may determine the method of instruction, the course content, and the teaching approach. In addition, the principal must discuss curriculum and operation decisions with faculty members and parents, and meet monthly with a UFT committee. The principal also hears the first-stage grievances.

According to PERB, principals' duties and responsibilities must be conclusively shown as managerial before the principals will be deprived of their Taylor Law rights. The Taylor Law includes four tests to determine whether employees can be classified as managerial. The first criterion is the employee's role in the formulation of policy on the system-wide or agency-wide level. PERB found that principals formulate policy in a limited sense only in their particular schools, and thus rejected this criterion. A second test is whether the employee participates in collective negotiations, i.e., has a direct involvement in the negotiating process. According to PERB's findings, principals have no involvement in the school board-UFT negotiations. Considering the third test, whether the principals hold a major role in administration of the agreement, PERB reviewed three specific duties of the principals. First, principals handle first-step grievances; however, in previous cases PERB has considered this to be a typical supervisory duty. Secondly, although the UFT agreement gives principals power to make numerous teaching and nonteaching assignments, these powers are limited by the agreement. The third consideration, the required monthly meeting with the UFT committee, was also rejected by PERB as these meetings are forums for discussion between the groups and are not related to labor relations.

The final test is whether the principals hold a major role in personnel administration. According to PERB, for an employee to be of managerial status, his authority must be derived from a close relationship with top administration, and supervisory status is determined by a close relationship with "rank and file" employees. Viewing the principals' positions and their close connections with regular teachers, substitute teachers etc. (i.e., "rank and file" employees), PERB stated that principals were not managerial but rather supervisory employees.

Owing to the failure of principals to pass the Taylor Law tests for managerial status, PERB dismissed the petition of the board of education. (In the Matter of Board of Education of the City of New York, New York Public Employee Relations Board, May 31, 1973.)

Board Must Furnish Employee Organization Information on Staff Reductions

A school board must make available to an association information regarding a reduction in staff and may not interfere with negotiations by reserving to itself the right to ratify the contract, declared the New York State Public Employee Relations Board (PERB). The ruling against the Board of Education, Falconer Central School District No. 1, resulted from a failure to negotiate in good faith with the Falconer Education Association by withholding information concerning a staff reduction. When the board reneged on its acceptance of a fact-finder's report and refused to negotiate after a legislative hearing had been conducted, the association struck.

During negotiations and subsequent proceedings, the board withheld information on a pending reduction in force until fact-finding hearings disclosed that class assignment schedules had been revised in line with a staff reduction.

The board's negotiator provisionally accepted the fact-finder's report; however, the board later rejected the report. In the resulting legislative determination, the board accepted most of the fact-finder's recommendations but froze teacher salaries at the previous year's level. The board then declared negotiations to be concluded, although the association continued to pressure for resumption. When the board refused to bargain further, the association struck for three days, and public support forced the board back to the bargaining table.

PERB agreed with a hearing officer's earlier ruling that the board's conduct constituted extreme provocation and detracted from the association's responsibility for the strike. The board's statutory role, according to PERB, was "limited to approval of matters that inherently require legislative approval . . . resolving to itself the right to ratify agreements . . . interfered with the statutory process of negotiations." The PERB noted that "where inappropriate conduct of a public employer unduly and unnecessarily frustrates an employee organization prior to the holding of a legislative hearing, the public employer cannot use the fact of a legislative hearing as a shield to insulate it from its responsibility to try to ease that frustration thereafter." The board had interfered with negotiations, exceeding its statutory role, PERB decided.

The board was ordered to supply relevant information on the reduction in force and to negotiate with the association over the impact of the staff reductions. PERB also ordered a forfeiture of three-month dues deduction against the association for its strike activity. (Board of Education, Falconer Central School District No. 1, Towns of Ellicott, Gerry, Cairo, Poland, and Ellington, Respondent v. Falconer Education Association, Charging Party, Public Employee Relations Board, May 24, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

School Crossing Guards an Appropriate Bargaining Unit

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board ruled that school crossing guards comprise an appropriate bargaining unit under the Pennsylvania Public Employee Relations Act.

The employees of Falls Township, Bucks County, petitioned PLRB requesting an election for a bargaining unit of 16 crossing guards who worked 3 to 6 hours daily. The employer objected to a bargaining unit of crossing guards as it considered them part-time employees and therefore not covered by PERA. The PERA, however, covers not only regular full-time workers but also part-time, seasonal, and day-to-day workers. Such workers are held entitled to all rights provided by the Act.

In reviewing the case, the PLRB ruled that the crossing guards who worked 6 hours per day for the 185-day school year were regular full-time employees, and those working 3 and 4 hours per day were at least regular part-time employees. If an individual's employment exists with a fair degree of frequency, it is distinguished from casual or temporary employment. Therefore, PLRB ruled that the 16 crossing guards formed an appropriate unit for collective bargaining purposes. (Matter of the Employees of Falls Township [Bucks County]Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, March 14, 1973.)

Duty To "Meet and Discuss" Affirmed

Though an employer is not bound to reach a binding agreement in "meet and discuss" sessions, there exists a statutory obligation on the employer to confer with employee representatives upon request. The existance of a negotiated contract in no way affects this statutory requirement as the duty to bargain is separate from the duty of confer. Citing the Brownsville Area School District for violation of the state Public Employee Relations Act (PERA), the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the school board cannot refuse to meet and discuss with the Brownsville Education Association.

The school board had refused the association's written request to confer, contending that the previously negotiated collective bargaining agreement had settled all matters between the parties. Having interpreted the mandate of the act to "bargain or negotiate" as identical to "meet and discuss," the board felt that negotiating a contract satisfied both requirements.

The PLRB noted that the requirement to negotiate exists for the purpose of securing a contract, while the "meet and discuss" provision guarantees that dialogue will continue on interpretation of the negotiated contract. As both requirements must be satisfied, being mutually exclusive, the school board's refusal to "meet and discuss" with the association was ruled a violation of the PERA. (PLRB v. Brownsville Area School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, July 27, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Full-time Teacher in Part-time Position is Covered by Staff Reduction Clause

In an arbitration case between the Kimberly Joint School District No. 6 and the Kimberly Education Association, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) ruled that a kindergarten teacher had been improperly placed on part-time employment, and recommended reinstatement to a full-time position and back pay.

The association claimed that the school board violated the contract by its "unilateral application of system-wide seniority" in meeting its requirement for staff reductions. According to the contract, reductions in teaching staff dictated by economic conditions "shall be in inverse order of appointment to that department in that respective building."

The school board asserted that "there was not a reduction in the professional staff but merely an adjustment of the length of the grievant's teaching day"; therefore, the seniority provision did not limit the board's right to adjust teaching hours to comply with enrollment requirements.

The arbitrator found that action taken by the employer was clearly staff reduction. As to the specific contract terms, the aribtrator ruled that the teacher's seniority within the school district was less than that of other teachers but that the teacher had two more years' service than the other teacher involved and should have been retained as a full-time kindergarten teacher. The arbitrator recommended that the school district make appropriate teaching and pay adjustments. (Kimberly Joint School District No. 6 and Kimberly Education Association, October 9, 1972.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

AFL-CIO Takes Steps To Give More Power to Public Employee Unions

Following in the footsteps of the Coalition of American Public Employees (CAPE), the AFL-CIO has initiated plans to enable public employee unions to better coordinate organizing and lobbying efforts and to give them more power in shaping AFL-CIO policy through the establishment of a special department for public employees. The plans have the endorsement of the AFL-CIO president and are expected to win official approval at the next executive council meeting. Public employee unions, such as the International Association of Fire Fighters, the American Postal Workers, and the American Federation of Government Employees, are reportedly leading the drive for support of the plan.

CAPE functions to unite and advance the collective legislative, political, financial, legal, and public relations power of organizations representing public employees. Organizations affiliated with CAPE include the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, the independent National Education Association, and the National Treasury Employees Union.

FLORIDA

AGO: Private Preliminary Contract Negotiations Valid

Florida's Attorney General indicated that the state public disclosure law is not violated by a public employer's labor representative and a public employee's representative conducting preliminary contract negotiations in secret. Further, the public body may meet in secret with its labor representative to consult with or instruct him regarding matters involved in the collective bargaining proceedings.

ILLINOIS

Wage and Hours Laws Amended

The Illinois Wage and Hours Laws have been amended to allow dues checkoff for teachers and to ban discharge for garnishment. Upon written authorization school boards are now required to deduct membership dues to any professional teachers organization from teachers' salaries. A pro-rata share of the annual membership dues will be withheld each payroll period and then paid to the designated organization.

A second amendment bans employers from discharging or suspending any employee because the employee's earnings have been subjected to a deduction order for indebtedness. Violations have been classified as misdemeanors.

MAINE

Paid Time Off for Grievance Hearing

The recently amended Maine Grievance Procedures for State Employees law now allows paid time off for state employees to appear as witnesses at a hearing. The amendment also permits the payment of travel costs and witness fees equivalent to those granted for an appearance before a court. The cost is to be borne by the party who requests that a subpoena be issued.

The state labor relations board now must issue subpoenas for documents at the written request of either party, and require the attendance of witnesses and production of any documentary evidence relative to the hearing. Board members, individually, have also been empowered to administer oaths and to issue subpoenas.

NEW JERSEY

Policemen's Association Enjoined from Picketing Committee Members' Places of Employment

The New Jersey Superior Court granted the Hillside Township Committee's motion to enjoin the Hillside Policemen's Benevolent Association from picketing premises where committee members were employed. The court held that the purpose of the picketing was to force committee members to agree to the employees' demands rather than to communicate the employees' grievances to the township's voters and citizens.

When the parties reached an impasse in negotiating the terms of their 1973 collective bargaining agreement, the employees association picketed the committee members' places of business, most of which were outside the township. The committee members, fearing that the activity would be detrimental to their employment, petitioned the court to enjoin the association's picketing. The association contended that the activity was protected by their First Amendment right of free speech.

In answer to the employees' contention, the court stated that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that picketing involves more than a communication of ideas, and, therefore, is subject to statutory regulation. According to the court, state statutes prohibit public employees from striking and picketing to further an illegal purpose. However, the court noted that the instant case was unique as the picketing took place at locations not involved with the labor dispute. The court felt that picketing may be enjoined when it is at locations removed from the labor dispute. The court concluded that "the likely purpose and effect of the picketing is to coerce plaintiffs into acceding to defendant's demands not through legitimate public pressure but through fear of losing their jobs." Accordingly the court enjoined the association from demonstrating, picketing, and parading on the premises of committee members' employment. (John Kulish et al v. Hillside Policemen's Benevolent Association Local 70, New Jersey Superior Court, June 14, 1973.)

* * *

FEDERAL

Paid Time Off to Serve as Witnesses or Election Observer

Rules adopted in November by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations outline the procedure and timetable for dealing with requests, and objections to requests, for election observers, witnesses, and documents, and provide that witnesses and election observers shall be on official paid time off when participation occurs during work hours or while on paid leave status.

Under the rules, names of representation election observers desired, along with the rationale for their selection, are to be submitted to the Area Administrator in charge of the election and to other parties not less than 15 days prior to the election. Objections to the observers are to be filed within five days, whereupon the Area Administrator normally would rule on the objection no later than five days prior to the election.

A similar timetable is in effect for motions requesting witnesses or documents in unit determination hearings. Requests will be granted "after careful consideration of any objections and upon determination that the testimony or documents appear(s) to be necessary to the matter under investigation and that the motion describes with sufficient particularity the documents sought." Denial of a request is to be fully explained and made part of the hearing record. Official time for witnesses and election observers includes travel and all related time incurred by the service during normal working hours.

Administrative Rulings Concerning Equal Pay

Recent administrative rulings from the Wage and Hour Division, U. S. Department of Labor, decreed the following:

1. A living allowance is wages for the purpose of compliance with the equal pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. If the basic wage paid to employees in the same job classification is augmented by a living allowance to cover expenses, such as rent and utilities, the allowance must be included as wages earned and be paid in compliance with equal pay regulations. Payments for medical expenses and reimbursement for tuition for dependents must also meet compliance specifications.
2. Such designations as head of household are unlawful and discriminatory when they are based on sex only. For example, if women employees are designated head of household only if the husband is "both unemployed and unemployable," while men employees face no such prerequisite with regard to their spouse's employment status, it is discriminatory.
3. An employer is in compliance with equal pay provisions if contributions made to employee retirement plans are the same for men and women, even though administrators of the plans may choose to use different actuarial tables for men and women with the result that women receive smaller benefits.

Proposed Workweek Plan Violates FLSA Rules on Overtime Pay

Responding to an employer's inquiry as to the legality of a proposed wage plan whereby employees could schedule their own hours so long as they worked a total of 75 hours in nine days over a two-week period, the Wage Hour Administrator determined that such a plan was at variance with the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA).

Under the proposed plan an employee might work more than 40 hours in one week and less than 40 hours in the other week of a biweekly pay period. However, no overtime would be paid for hours worked over 40 hours during a single week. The employer believed that the proposed plan was within the spirit of the law since the employee could decide for himself whether he would work more than 40 hours in any week.

The administrator pointed out that under provision 7(a), "employees who are subject to its standards are entitled to receive not less than one and one-half times their regular rates of pay for all hours worked in excess of 40 hours in any workweek," the Act is adament in requiring that overtime be paid for all hours in excess of 40 in a workweek. Continuing, he said both the language of the Act and previous court decisions made it clear that an employee cannot waive his statutory right to be paid overtime compensation for all hours worked in excess of 40 in any one week as the plan submitted suggests. On the basis of the law, if an employee works 30 hours one week and 50 hours the next, he must be paid overtime compensation for the hours worked in excess of 40 in the one week.

On the basis of the foregoing the administrator said that the plan could be made to comply with the Act if the number of hours that could be worked within a single week were limited to 40 or if the hours worked exceeded 40, overtime compensation, as required by the Act, were paid.

* * *

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX–NOVEMBER 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.7 percent in November to 137.6 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. Higher prices for gasoline, fuel oil, natural gas, electricity, and coal accounted for about a third of the November increase. Higher prices for restaurant meals and most types of food purchased in grocery stores—except meats, poultry, and eggs—also contributed significantly to the rise. The November CPI was 8.4 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonably adjusted basis, the November increase in the CPI was 0.8 percent, the same as in October. The food index rose 1.4 percent after seasonal adjustment, following an increase of 0.5 percent in October and a decline of 0.1 percent in September. The increase of 0.7 percent in the nonfood commodities index after seasonal adjustment was larger than in recent months. The increase of 0.6 percent in the services index was smaller than in recent months, but larger than increases earlier in the year. For the 6 months ended in November, the CPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.7 percent. The rate of advance was slower in the last 3 months than in the first 3 months of the period. (From U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, December 21, 1973.)

SPECIAL REPORTS

GROWTH OF TEACHER CONTRACTS: 1966-1973

The representation rivalry between NEA and AFT continues in the favor of NEA as revealed by the NEA Research 1972-73 survey of school systems having 1,000 or more pupils enrolled, and some form of negotiated agreement. The latest survey covered 3,960 reporting systems with a total of 1,241,415 teachers. Of the total number of negotiation agreements, 2,556 are collective bargaining contracts, an increase of more than 500 percent since the first survey in 1966-67.

The prevalence of teacher contracts is greater than the total shown as only those districts that meet the criteria above are analyzed. Also, once a first-time contract is reported and filed in the NEA depository of agreements, the continuity of collective bargaining is assumed and the system is automatically incorporated into the NEA data base, except for merged or consolidated districts.

Surveyed systems can report only two types of agreements, procedural or contractual. Most procedural agreements are found in those states lacking a mandatory collective bargaining law for teachers or public employees. Some states allow a "permissive" form of collective bargaining, e.g., Florida, Nebraska, New Hampshire, and Texas, but such "bargaining" is restricted to allowing the school board to meet and confer with teacher representatives, but with no enforceable requirements or the duty to reach a written agreement. Significant in this year's survey is the appearance of negotiated collective bargaining agreements in Georgia (1), Iowa (2), and Tennessee (1), none of which has any form of collective bargaining law.

The NEA Research survey covered all systems having a negotiated agreement and only those systems with collective bargaining contracts considered valid contracts. Each year since 1966-67, the number of procedural agreements has decreased owing primarily to passage of collective bargaining laws for teachers. The latest addition to the growing list of states (26) is Indiana, although the full impact of Indiana will not be felt for another survey or two.

The over-all increase in the number of contracts has not been as dramatic in the past two survey years as from 1966-67 to 1968-69. The growth rate of contracts has dropped from the high of 164.0 percent from 1966-67 to 1968-69 to 40.1 percent from 1970-71 to 1972-73. NEA has garnered 92.7 percent (678) of the total increase of contracts from 1970-71 to 1972-73, with a growth rate of 39.6 percent for the biennium.

In comparison, the AFT growth rate from 1970-71 to 1972-73, has decreased from 25.6 to 24.3 percent in number of contracts and 10.6 to 7.2 percent in number of teachers represented.

Translated into comparative figures, from 1966-67 to 1972-73, NEA gained 22 school systems for each one gained by AFT, and seven teachers represented for each one gained by AFT. In 1966-67, while NEA represented 9 out of 10 school systems, AFT represented 6 out of 10 teachers; but in 1972-73, while NEA still represents 9 out of 10 systems and nearly 8 out of 10 teachers, AFT represents less than 1 out of 10 systems and 2 out of 10 teachers.

Though the survey revealed a lower growth rate (40.1 percent) of collective bargaining contracts for 1972-73 over 1970-71 in comparison with past biennium, 77.7 percent for 1970-71 over 1968-69, the number of such contracts among the systems surveyed has increased from 5.4 percent to 35.4 percent from 1966-67 to 1972-73. The significance is the ever increasing changeover of school systems from procedurals to contracts.

In regard to NEA and its affiliates, the success of organizing activities and representation elections won can be measured in terms of the increase in number of contracts and the number of teachers affiliated. NEA's share of the increase from 1968-69 to 1972-73 was 92.1 percent of the total increase for all teachers, and 95.0 percent of all contracts.

For a state-by-state distribution of agreements and the number of teachers covered, see Table 2.

TABLE 1.—CLASSROOM TEACHER COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS, 1966-67, 1968-69, 1970-71, AND 1972-73

	1966-67	1968-69	1970-71	1972-73	Percent increase, 1970-71 to 1972-73
1	2	3	4	5	6
	Number of school systems
NEA	351	937	1,712	2,390	39.6
AFT	37	82	103	128	24.3
Other[a]	1	8	10	38	280.0
Total	389	1,027	1,825	2,556	40.1
	Number of teachers
NEA	88,123	273,497	504,249	721,788	43.1
AFT	120,164	173,570	192,000	205,743	7.2
Other[a]	146	1,075	1,075	7,263	575.6
Total	208,433	448,142	697,324	934,794	34.1

[a]Independent representation or joint NEA-AFT.

TABLE 2.—DISTRIBUTION OF TEACHER COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS, BY STATE: 1966-67, 1968-69, 1970-71, AND 1972-73.

State	Number of school systems				Number of teachers
	1966-67	1968-69	1970-71	1972-73	1966-67	1968-69	1970-71	1972-73
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Alaska (1970)[a]	...	...	2	5	...	...	1,750	2,656
Arizona	...	2	7	16	...	2,352	5,499	9,424
Arkansas	...	1	1	3	...	1,129	1,129	1,873
California (1965)	...	1	13	28	...	4,692	11,447	19,827
Colorado	1	4	11	16	724	9,575	12,554	16,648
Connecticut (1965)	42	71	88	89	15,964	26,344	29,655	31,527
Delaware (1969)	...	...	12	17	...	...	4,100	5,122
District of Columbia	...	1	1	1	...	8,000	8,000	7,250
Florida	...	...	2	5	...	...	4,240	12,781
Georgia	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	1,698
Hawaii (1970)	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	9,769
Idaho (1971)	...	...	2	5	...	...	334	1,755
Illinois	10	33	92	142	22,764	35,566	48,917	58,301
Indiana (1973)	...	8	20	27	...	5,765	15,179	17,132
Iowa	...	...	...	2	...	...	...	1,290
Kansas (1970)	...	1	1	15	...	3,358	3,358	5,515
Kentucky	...	...	2	4	...	...	4,300	7,112
Maine (1969)	...	...	40	44	...	...	5,580	5,846
Maryland (1968)	...	2	21	21	...	9,160	43,128	44,810
Massachusetts (1965)	55	135	167	181	15,677	39,527	47,717	55,126
Michigan (1965)	237	332	354	383	63,072	81,406	83,938	89,809
Minnesota (1967)	1	1	1	58	146	146	146	20,664
Missouri	...	1	1	3	...	850	850	4,039
Montana (1971)	...	2	2	6	...	568	568	1,337
Nebraska	...	1	6	9	...	72	4,657	6,044
Nevada (1969)	...	...	2	3	...	...	4,150	4,518
New Hampshire	...	...	6	13	...	...	1,436	3,387
New Jersey (1968)	1	6	228	278	3,650	6,357	51,193	68,084
New Mexico	...	...	1	1	...	...	2,400	3,200
New York (1967)	8	319	435	476	62,314	148,403	172,068	181,938
North Dakota (1967)	...	...	3	7	...	...	653	1,422
Ohio	1	13	63	114	271	15,821	34,098	46,521
Oklahoma (1971)	...	...	1	1	...	...	2,830	2,410
Oregon (1965)	...	...	3	25	...	...	4,837	10,227
Pennsylvania (1970)	1	5	33	281	11,000	14,477	22,374	74,555
Rhode Island (1966)	9	22	24	26	2,460	7,794	8,098	8,637
South Dakota (1969)	...	...	2	3	...	...	986	1,572
Tennessee	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	4,200
Texas	...	...	1	4	...	...	766	11,546
Utah	...	4	7	8	...	4,007	4,982	5,450
Vermont (1969)	...	...	3	9	...	...	749	1,573
Virginia	...	2	2	4	...	2,396	2,396	10,770
Washington (1965)	1	3	22	47	380	665	13,667	19,363
Wisconsin (1959)	22	56	141	169	10,011	19,062	31,213	36,367
Wyoming	...	1	2	4	...	650	1,382	1,699
Total	389	1,027	1,825	2,556	208,433	448,142	697,324	93[illegible],794

[a]Year of passage of P.N. law.

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Lakewood, Colorado

Jefferson County School District No. R-1 and Jefferson County Education Association, effective September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1976. Approximately 3,300 certificated professional employees including all teachers, counselors, speech therapists, psychologists, resource teachers, social workers, and all other nonadministrative certificated personnel. Written requests for negotiation of salaries, monetary fringe benefits, or such other matters as agreed upon may be submitted no later than April 15 each year during the term of the agreement. Written request for a successor agreement may be submitted by either party not later than April 15, 1976.

COMPENSATION: Each salary level has two lanes, one for nontenure, the other for tenure: (January 1, 1974, to December 31, 1974) B.A., $7,800 to $10,140, six increments; B.A. plus 20 hours, $12,285 maximum; M.A., $8,580 to $14,508, 10 increments; B.A. plus 60 including M.A., $15,795 maximum; B.A. plus 75 including M.A., $17,082 maximum.

Additional $500 for doctorate and $250 for specialist in education degree; teachers will be placed on the 20th step of the salary schedule after 20 years of service, 15 of which must have been in the Jefferson County Schools; teachers placed on the 20th step at B.A. will be paid a yearly salary of $10,608, B.A. plus 20, $12,675, M.A. $16,146, B.A. plus 60 including M.A., $16,887, and B.A. plus 75 including M.A., $18,174.

DIFFERENTIALS: High-school-head coaches of football, basketball, track, baseball, wrestling, band director, $700 to $900, five steps; assistant coaches of football, basketball, track, baseball, wrestling, assistant band director, dramatics director, forensics director, pep club sponsor, choral director, head coaches of gymnastics, girls track and gymnastics, $550 to $750, five steps; head coaches of golf, tennis, cross country, swimming, year book sponsor, head coaches of girls' tennis, girls' volleyball, and girls' basketball, director of intramurals, assistant choral directors, junior high coaches, pep club sponsor, $400 to $600, five steps.

OTHER: Summer school teachers will be paid $7 per hour; regularly assigned teachers who accompany students to outdoor lab school and remain overnight will be paid $20 per night in addition to regular salary; teachers contracted to complete a curriculum development responsibility will be paid $7 per hour; part-time teachers assigned for half or more of a normally scheduled instructional day will be placed on the salary schedule in the same manner as full-time teachers and their salary will be in proportion to their assignment; they will be paid one increment for each two years of service; $.12 per mile for teachers assigned to more than one school per day and must use their own automobiles.

INSURANCE: Board-paid hospitalization/major medical coverage, and long-term disability; board also to pay full cost of life insurance and accidental death coverage; part-time teachers teaching more than half of an instructional day will have board-paid insurance, hospitilization, and major medical insurance.

LEAVES: Nine days' annual sick leave credited and available the first official day of the school year or the first official day of employment, unlimited accumulation.

Extended Sick Leave:

Any teacher who has exhausted his sick leave and suffers an illness of less than six working days shall be advanced up to five days of sick leave. Such days shall be reimbursed from future-accrued sick leave.

Any teacher who has exhausted his sick leave and suffers a prolonged illness or disability (an illness in duration of at least six working days) may make application to the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel for extended sick leave days as follows:

The teacher must submit a written request to the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel stating the reason or cause for this illness and the anticipated date for returning to his working assignment. This request must be accompanied by a statement from a licensed physician verifying the need for such days and recommending the necessary recovery period.

The number of days available to the employee shall be determined by the number of years of service to Jefferson County Schools times nine (9). The maximum days available to a teacher shall be 60. Such days shall not be deducted from future accumulated sick leave.

A joint committee of J.C.E.A. and Administration shall review the application and render a decision for implementation by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel.

This committee shall consist of two members appointed by J.C.E.A. and two members appointed by the Administration.

Two days personal leave for personal or legal business, household or family matters, no reason required before taking the leave; 200 teacher-days per calendar year for professional leave will be authorized; up to five days' bereavement leave, deducted from either personal or sick leave granted in case of death in the immediate family; up to 90 days' paid leave, less military pay, granted for military reserve obligations; leave will be given to teachers for appearance in court as witnesses, to serve on a jury, or to respond to an official order from another government jurisdiction for reasons not brought about through the connivance or misconduct of the teacher, the difference between the teachers' regular salary and any amount received, not including reimbursement for transportation expenses, will be paid the teacher; part-time teachers assigned for more than half of a normally scheduled instructional day will receive proportional sick leave, bereavement leave, and jury duty and court subpoena leave; summer school teachers will be credited one hour of sick leave for every 20 hours of work;

"A male teacher shall be entitled, upon written request, to an unpaid short leave of absence to begin two weeks prior to and conclude up to two weeks after the birth of a child to his wife;"

sabbatical leave at one-half annual salary for one year and one-fourth annual salary for one semester for college or university courses, independent study, rest or recuperation, or travel; study and travel leave granted only to teachers who have at least six years of consecutive service in the district, and rest and recuperation leave granted only to teachers with at least 15 years' consecutive service in the district; other leaves granted at any time on the recommendation of the superintendent; a teacher on sabbatical leave will receive any regularly scheduled increases and will be subject to any general salary deductions; in determining the teacher's place on the salary schedule when he returns to regular employment, full experience credit will be given for time spent on sabbatical leave; remuneration from other sources, such as scholarships, fellowships, grants, will not affect the granting of sabbatical leave with pay; a sabbatical leave committee consisting of four teachers and four administrators will review applications for sabbatical leave and make appropriate recommendation through the superintendent to the board.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; released time for members of negotiation team if negotiation meetings are held during class time; one-half day released time daily for association president for one year; association will reimburse the district for half of the president's salary; teachers designated as official representatives by the association will submit applications for short-term leave at least five school days in advance for attending local, state, or national association functions; the association has the right to use school buildings, equipment, and expendable materials without cost and to place materials on the bulletin boards designated by the principal and to place such materials in teachers' mailboxes and interschool mail; the association president has the right to visit schools; the principal and the association building faculty representative will meet at the request of either party to discuss the administration of the agreement; the faculty representative has the right to call meetings before or after school and to carry on association business when it does not interfere with the normal teaching duties of teachers; association may purchase expendable office supplies and other materials from the district at the price paid by the district; either party may,utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to assist in negotiations.

INSTRUCTION: Teaching hours per work day will be determined by the local school schedule but will not exceed 40 hours per week, with regularly scheduled daily work assignment in a consecutive time block unless otherwise agreed in writing by the teacher; daily duty-free lunch period of no less than 30 minutes; teachers will, in addition to their lunch period, have preparation time consistent with school scheduling patterns, but not less than 225 minutes per week; no block of time less than 30 minutes will be considered a preparation period; teachers will prepare lesson plans which will be subject to review by the building principal upon reasonable advance notice; teachers expected to follow the approved district curriculum subject matter; every effort will be made to limit classes in K-3 to 27; when these classes exceed 30, the parties may investigate ways to alleviate the problem; the regular teacher work-year will not exceed 184 days; the work-year includes all days on which pupils are in attendance, orientation is scheduled, parent conferences are held, and other days on which attendance is required of the teacher; any teacher required to work beyond the regular teacher work year will be compensated at his regular rate of pay; teacher-pupil contact days will be 180 days; the board will make every effort to acquire sufficient teacher aides and part-time clerical assistants to relieve teachers of nonteaching duties; no teacher will be required to supervise any student teacher, those who do will be paid in addition to the contracted salary, the total amount of money received by the sponsoring school; educational task forces will be established when a specific problem arises for the purpose of investigating and seeking a solution to the problem, composition will include equal numbers of teachers and administrators as well as interested members of the community; time limits for the force will be agreed upon by the board and the association with adequate released time for teachers provided; the task force will submit a written report to the association and the district and recommendations not implemented prior to the next negotiations will be subject to negotiation; the board will provide funds for necessary expenses incurred by a task force.

Questioned and Challenged Materials

Discussion with school principal:

The school principal will hold a conference with the complainant.

At the discretion of the principal, the school librarian or the teacher using the material at the time of the challenge will be brought into the conference.

If the complainant is dissatisfied with the results of the conference, the principal will inform the complainant of the following procedures, and will provide him with the special application form "Citizen's Request for Reconsideration of Instructional Materials," to be acted upon by the reviewing subcommittee of the Curriculum Council.

The principal will forward the application the the chairman of the reviewing subcommittee of the Curriculum Council, together with a written report of the conference he held with the complainant.

Copies of the report will also be sent to the Assistant Superintendent for Instruction, and teacher or librarian involved.

One copy of the report will be kept in the school file.

The principal will provide the chairman of the reviewing subcommittee with a copy or copies of the material in question.

The questioned subject or material will be reviewed by a subcommittee of the Curriculum Council only after a signed application, "Citizen's Request for Reconsideration of Instructional Materials," has been received from the complainant.

The subcommittee will include representatives from: administrative staff, principals, materials center staff, teaching staff, and lay membership.

The principal from the school in which the materials were challenged will serve on the committee during the discussion of the related problem.

If an instructor is involved, he will be given the opportunity to render a professional opinion on the appropriateness of the questioned material.

A written recommendation of the reviewing subcommittee will be forwarded to all interested personnel.

If the complainant is not satisfied with the recommendation of the Superintendent, he has the privilege to go before the Board of Education in accordance with District procedures.

If the same material is challenged at a future date, the principal and the chairman of the reviewing subcommittee will examine the previous decision in the light of additional points of view. If they find any significant difference in the new challenge, the committee may again review the material; otherwise, the original decision will stand and a copy will be sent to the complainant explaining that the material has been previously evaluated.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board; teachers have the right to review the contents of their personnel files and make copies of any documents contained therein with no derogatory material placed in a teacher's file without the teacher's knowledge and the right to submit a written answer to such material; no material dealing with the processing of a grievance will become part of the central office personnel files of the aggrieved party or any other party at interest; leaves will be granted for work on advanced degrees of special studies; board will allow paid leave time and will pay for travel, meals, lodging, and registration fees deemed appropriate for teachers attending area instructional conferences; a leave committee consisting of equal numbers of teachers and administrators will review applications for leave and make recommendations; after-school courses, workshops, conferences, and programs designed to improve the quality of instruction will be provided; the faculty will elect a liaison committee for each school building at the beginning of each school year; this committee will meet regularly during the school year with the principal or his designee to review and discuss local school problems and practices; the board and the association will jointly develop forms for evaluation of teacher personnel; nontenure teachers will be evaluated at least twice each school year by their principal; all monitoring or observation of the work performance of a teacher will be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher; the evaluation will include first-hand observation by the evaluator in the classroom with the evaluator spending sufficient time there to justify the conclusions and observations contained in the evaluation; positive qualities and weaknesses will be mentioned in detail and specific written suggestions and a planned program for improvement will be submitted to the teacher involved; each teacher will be given a copy of his evaluation report at least one day before the conference to discuss it is held; no such report will be submitted to the central administration, placed in the teacher's files, or otherwise acted upon without a prior conference with the teacher; no teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation, or deprived of any professional advantage or employment without just cause; upon receipt of a request or recommendation for nonrenewal of a teacher's contract, the board will notify the association and the nonrenewal will be subject to the grievance process; the board will encourage administrators or persons bringing charges against a teacher to cooperate with the association in its review of the case; every effort will be made to resolve parental complaints with the involvement of the teacher, the parent, and the principal; if no resolution is reached, the contractual provisions dealing with the academic freedom and questioned and challenged materials will apply if the complaint concerns the teaching of questioned and challenged subject matter or teaching techniques; in filling administrative vacancies where applicants' qualifications are equal, preference will be given to teachers already employed by the district.

Involuntary Transfers

No teacher shall be involuntarily transferred except where a reduction in the student body enrollment makes unavoidable such transfer, or to accommodate leave returnees, or to fill assignments which cannot be accommodated by existing building staff.

Teachers effected by the above shall be retained according to the following procedure:

Teachers shall be retained on the basis of greatest length of service in the following order: department, Grade Level, or Team; building; and district.

Exceptions may be made when the involuntary transfer affects probationary teachers with below average evaluations.

In the event that two or more teachers have the same lowest degree of length of service through the third level, the involuntary transferee will be determined by the Personnel Division.

Involuntary transferees shall be identified by April 15, except in cases of emergency, through the process described above. Each transferee shall be given a list of all available positions within the District and shall be provided with sufficient release time to investigate those positions for which he/she is qualified.

Involuntary transferees identified by April 15th for transfer effective at the beginning of the school year immediately succeeding the year in which the transferee was identified, shall be given priority over voluntary transfers for assignment purposes for all vacant positions for which they are qualified between April 15th and May 1st. All involuntary transferees who have not been placed by May 1st shall be assigned by the Personnel Division.

Involuntary transferees who are identified after May 1st of each year and who are placed in a position that is unacceptable to them shall have the same rights as other involuntary transferees for the next succeeding school year.

A teacher who is involuntarily transferred after the beginning of a school year shall be given a reasonable amount of time from the date of notification to accomplish the transfer.

No teacher shall be involuntarily transferred or reassigned to fill a vacancy for which he is not qualified.

Department chairmen in junior and senior high school who have coordinating and planning functions will be selected by the principal after consultation with the department staff members; these chairmen will serve as liaison between their departments and the school administration; they will not be considered as administrative employees and will not be required to evaluate employees; every effort will be made to give department chairmen released time commensurate with the responsibilities given them by the principal; a teacher may exclude a pupil from one class period or session and refer such student to the principal or assistant principal when the grossness or the effect of the violation makes the continued presence of the student in the classroom undesirable; school authorities will endeavor to achieve correction of student misbehavior through counseling and interviews with the child and his parents when warranted; the board will provide legal counsel and assist any teacher who is complained against or sued as a result of any action taken within the scope of his employment; time lost in this connection will not be charged.

* * *

Lansing, Michigan

Between Lansing School District Board of Education and Lansing Schools Education Association, effective September 15, 1973, to June 30, 1976. Approximately 1,600 certificated professional employees including K-12 classroom teachers, guidance counselors, librarians, school psychologists, diagnosticans, social workers, special education teachers, speech and hearing therapists, remedial reading teachers, advanced instruction teachers, helping teachers, teachers of the homebound and hospitalized, attendance or truant officers, school nurses, and coordinators; excluding all ABE and high-school completion teachers, per-diem substitutes, EIP intern teachers, supervisory and executive personnel, and any other certified and noncertified personnel employed by the Board. Provision for renegotiation by March 1, 1975.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $9,065 to $14,504, 9 increments; B.A. plus 23 hours, $15,501 maximum; M.A., $9,790 to $16,489, 11 increments; M.A. plus 45 hours, $17,224 maximum; (1974-75) B.A., $9,482 to $15,171, 9 increments; B.A. plus 23 hours, $16,214 maximum; M.A., $10,241 to $17,257, 11 increments; M.A. plus 45 hours, $18,016 maximum; (1975-76) B.A., $9,884 to $15,814, 9 increments; B.A. plus 23 hours, $16,902 maximum; M.A., $10,675 to $17,989, 11 increments; M.A. plus 45 hours, $18,780 maximum; professional growth steps of $400 may be earned at 17th step of B.A. and B.A. + 23 schedules and at 16th, 19th, and 22nd steps of the M.A. and M.A. + 23 schedules; previous teaching experience credited up to 8 years; teachers holding a Ph.D. degree and teaching in the area in which the degree was awarded shall be paid 8 percent of the B.A. base in addition to the M.A. + 45 step, holders of a Ph.D. degree outside their teaching area may be paid at the same rate subject to the discretion of the assistant superintendent; teachers with a M.S.W. degree shall be placed in the proper M.A.+ track for salary purposes; after 10 years of service and according to Michigan Teachers Retirement Act, teachers will be paid $50 for each year of service up to $1,500.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Based on percent of base entry pay) High School: athletic director and head football coach, 17 percent; head baseball, 10.5 percent; cross country, 8.5 percent; assistant wrestling, girls' cheerleading and gymnastics, 8 percent; debate coach, 9 percent; yearbook advisor, 6 percent; dramatics, 4 percent; Junior High: athletic director, 8 percent; football, track, volleyball and swimming, 7 percent; girls' cheerleading and intramurals, 4.5 percent; band director, 5.5 percent; newspaper advisor, 4.5 percent; orchestra director, 3 percent.

OTHERS: Scoreboard operators, announcers, and clock operators at athletic events, $7.91 per hour; activity assistants (junior high), $6.36; driver education and summer school, $8.38 (1974), $8.77 (1975), $8.57 (1976); workshop, $7.86 (1974), $8.22 (1975), $8.57 (1976); lead teachers working with 12 or more teachers, additional $1,200, team leaders working with 7 – 11 teachers, $900; team leaders with up to 6 teachers, $700; lead or team teachers working beyond the school year, $225 a week; special education teachers, $300 for certification; vocational education teachers required by state law to have work experience and vocational certificates, 9 percent of the B.A. base plus their current salary step; vocationally certified teachers without a B.A. degree, $300 a year for certification; at initial employment vocational teachers have the option of being placed on the B.A. salary schedule or paid at an hourly rate ranging from $6.03 to $8.38 (1974), $6.32 to $8.78 (1975), and $6.59 to $9.15 (1976); professional public librarians, 5 percent above teachers' schedule; $.12 per mile for car used in job.

LEAVES: Ten days' annual sick leave, 200 days' maximum accumulation, for personal or family illness and bereavement; summer school teachers accrue one and one-half days transferrable to annual accumulation; two days' personal leave to be requested from supervisor five days in advance, not for extending a vacation, recreational pursuits, shopping, seeking other employment, or child care, unused personal leave transferrable to accumulated sick leave; one-half day leave for school district related activities when duties are covered by volunteers; leave for jury duty or court appearance in case involving teachers' employment or the school, except for unfair labor practice cases, paid difference between pay for duty or appearance and regular salary; sabbatical leave at half salary for one or two semesters after seven years; joint committee will review applications on basis of extent of professional study, travel, research, growth contributions, and service with final determination by superintendent; professional staff members who do not qualify for tenure shall be granted leaves of absence according to conditions required of tenure teachers after two years of service; extended leave for health reasons not to exceed one year but extensions may be granted by the board upon written request from the teacher; parental leave without pay granted upon the request of parents of a newborn child; leave must be requested prior to the six weeks' post-natal examination, but not less than 30 days prior to date leave becomes effective; leave shall be granted to end of school year; maternity leave must be requested at least 30 days prior to expected delivery provided that teacher notifies Personnel Office of pregnancy, submits a physician's statement stating expected date of birth and attesting to her ability to carry out duties; a pregnant teacher will be allowed to work provided her physician certifies on a monthly basis through the seventh month and biweekly thereafter that she is physically sound and able to perform all the duties and functions of her job, and she is able to perform all the duties on the same basis as other teachers; leave lasts for the duration of the pregnancy and extends no longer than the six-week post-natal examination and may be followed by parental leave; upon return from leave, teacher must provide a physician's statement attesting to her fitness; if a teacher works through the third trimester of her pregnancy, she shall be required to execute a waiver of liability or "save harmless" agreement to protect the board against any claim for injury; adoptive leave may be granted to tenure teachers without pay, commencing when teacher assumes custody of child and continues for duration of school year; public office leave may be granted to teachers who have been employed in the school district for at least three years to campaign or serve; leave will be granted for one or more semesters; teachers holding political office requiring occasional presence during school hours may utilize personal leave; leave of absence for study may be granted to teachers employed for at least three years in the school district; application must be filed by end of first semester for leave beginning the following September, and at end of second semester for leave beginning the following February; leave must be taken for full semesters not to exceed two years, and teacher must take 10 semester hours a semester or 10 term hours a quarter in an accredited institution; leave for exchange teaching not to exceed one year; exchange leave with pay may be granted upon recommendation of the superintendent; leave for teaching for the U.S. Government, Peace Corps, or other special programs not to exceed one year may be granted to teachers after three years' service in the district; teachers on long-term leave will be contacted 60 days prior to expiration of leave; failure to respond within 30 days shall be considered a voluntary discharge; upon return from leave, teachers shall be restored to former or comparable positions.

INSURANCE: Board-paid family health insurance or flat payment of $25 per month to be applied to MEA Super Medical Semi-Private (1973-1975), MESSA SM2 Program (1975-76), and/or Blue Cross-Blue Shield with Master Medical Semi-Private; board shall provide a group life insurance plan providing a $7,000 benefit with double indemnity for accidental death; teacher absent from school because of injury from a job-related accident shall receive difference between weekly income and amount of Workmen's Compensation to be paid for 30 weeks; after 30 weeks, payments to be charged against compensable leave on a pro-rata basis; liability insurance up to $150,000 for claims arising out of employment; payroll deductions for U.S. Savings Bonds, United Fund, credit union, and tax-sheltered annuities.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; agency shop, also payroll deductible; association entitled to 20 days with pay and five days without pay for business purposes, not to be used for arbitration; association executive secretary must request this leave no less than three days prior to expected leave; no more than two teachers may use this leave at one time; right to use school buildings at reasonable times for meetings outside school day, providing meetings do not interfere with normal school procedures; when special custodial service is needed, board will charge association; right to use typewriters, calculating machines, duplicating equipment and amplifying equipment for an annual fee of $106; bulletin board in each building for association use; all association materials intended for distribution or display must be identified as such before display or distribution; courier service may be used at option of association; association entitled to use school mail boxes; association announcements during duty hours shall be permitted only at the close of building faculty meetings; association activities are not to interfer with classroom or preparation time; the board is to provide information relating to all financial and non-confidential personnel information relative to the district except for any information held non-accessible to teacher bargaining units because of state statutes; association officials are to be permitted to transact official association business on school property at all times; officials must report presence to the office of the building principal before conferring with teachers.

INSTRUCTION: Secondary teachers to have not more than three preparations a day; each modified, accelerated, or enriched class is a separate preparation; elementary teacher-pupil contact time is 5 hours, 30 minutes, with a teacher planning period for 35 minutes at the beginning of the day and a 70-minute duty-free lunch period for a total time of 6 hours and 35 minutes; junior high teacher-pupil contact time for five periods of 50 or 55 minutes, with a planning period of one period and a duty-free lunch of 23 minutes, and an optional homeroom period not to exceed 15 minutes for a total time of 6 hours, 37 minutes; high-school teacher-pupil contact time for five periods of 50 or 55 minutes with one planning period and a one period duty-free lunch, and homeroom period of 15 minutes for a total time of 6 hours, 55 minutes; vocational teachers have two, three-hour blocks without homeroom or supervision assignments; preparation periods must be used for professional work, alone or in conjunction with other staff members, administrators or parents; class size and staffing patterns:

CLASS SIZE

The Board and the Association shall participate when and where feasible and practical with private organizations, governmental units and agencies, or teacher groups in such innovative means as they deem advisable to accomplish the improvement of educational quality. It is recognized that in such experimental programs or organizational structures, working conditions as defined by this contract may be effected, and as such noncompliance will not be subject to the grievance procedure.

The staff (principal and teachers) of each school shall be given the responsibility to determine the instructional organization of the school within the limits imposed by the staffing budget and in accordance with the goals of the Lansing School District, the final approval remaining the responsibility of the Board of Education

Staff Approval:

When the principal and a majority of the teaching staff in a given school approve a proposed program in their school, this will be considered staff approval under the terms of this contract. No program will be approved without meaningful community involvement.

In a situation where a sub-set of teachers in a given building wish to organize and carry out a different staffing pattern that does not interfere with the rest of the program in the building, approval by this sub-set and by the principal will be considered staff approval under the terms of this contract.

For purposes of alternate staffing patterns, when a staff agrees to reduce the number of professional staff below the allocated number for a given building or program, the money released shall be determined by multiplying the number of teachers not hired by the district-wide average teacher's salary. The staff involved will determine how this money is to be spent.

In innovative or experimental programs, alternate staffing patterns or other cases where specific class size maximums do not apply, the ratio of students to teacher equivalent positions employed by the district shall not exceed the equivalent ratio of classroom teachers in regular or traditional programs.

Elementary Maximums:

K - 27
One and two years out of Kindergarten 26 (Grades 1 and 2)
Three to six years out of Kindergarten 30 (Grades 3 thru 6)
In a situation where the continuous progress concept is in use, the class size shall not exceed those of the respective grade level equivalents.
Teachers having combination grades in the same room shall have class sizes two below the respective grade level equivalents.
If class sizes exceed three pupils over the guidelines without the consent of the teacher or teachers involved, the staff of the building shall meet to review and attempt to resolve the problem.

Elementary Overloads:

Teachers shall be paid $5.00 per week per pupil in classes where there is one pupil over the maximum for elementary classes set forth above. Fractional overloads shall be paid on the basis of the first 2/3rds and every 1/3rd thereafter. Kindergarten classes shall be considered as separate units.

Overloads shall be determined and paid each semester by using the average of three count dates. In 1973-74 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be November 2, December 14, and February 1. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 22, May 10, and June 7. In 1974-75 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be October 18, November 27, and January 17. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 7, April 25, and May 30. In 1975-76 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be October 17, November 26, and January 16. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 5, April 14, and May 28.

Secondary Maximums:

Class size maximums are set forth in Appendix C.

Secondary Overloads:

Teachers shall be paid $2.00 per week per pupil in classes where there is one pupil over the maximum for secondary classes set forth in Appendix C.. Fractional overloads shall be paid on the first 2/3rds. and every 1/3rd thereafter.

Overloads shall be determined and paid each semester by using the average of three count dates. In 1973-74 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be November 2, December 14, and February 1. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 22, May 10, and June 7. In 1974-75 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be October 18, November 27, and January 17. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 7, April 25, and May 30. In 1975-76 the dates to be used for the first semester shall be October 17, November 26, and January 16. The dates to be used for the second semester shall be March 5, April 14, and May 28.

* * *

Thirty-eight week teaching year from September to June; sufficient textbooks are to be available by the opening of school; board is to provide attendance books, paper, pencils, chalk, erasers, and instructional materials; instructional materials are to reflect the multi-ethnic nature of society; curriculum steering committees are to develop instructional program and meet three times a semester, with separate committees for each subject area composed of at least 10 teachers, area coordinator, parents, and students; the instructional council is to make recommendations to the superintendent regarding curriculum development, improvement of instruction, evaluation, and staff development, is to be composed of six teachers, six administrators, six parents, and six secondary-school students, chaired alternatively by an administrator co-chairman and a teacher co-chairman, and is to meet once a month; teachers are to be involved in preparing applications for state and federally funded projects; one or more full-time counselors are to be provided for each secondary school; the counseling chairman is not to be required to teach any guidance courses; no counselor is to be required to teach more than two sections of the guidance course; secondary guidance counselors are to be assigned no more than 70 students per counseling hour, and ratio figures are not to include coordinators of specialized programs, work-study personnel, or administrators; counselors are to be free from punitive referrals and noon hour supervision; counselors are to have the opportunity to initiate any carry on conferences with pupils during school hours; counselors' employment may be extended beyond the school year at the discretion of the board at the summer school rate of pay; librarians are to work 40 hours per week between 8:30 a.m. and 9:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday; no librarian is to work more than two evenings in one week or two consecutive Saturdays; part-time teachers are to be hired according to the number of class periods taught, elementary part-time teachers, by half-days; salary and fringe benefits provisions are to apply to regular part-time teachers on an equal ratio basis; secretarial service and office machines are to be available to teachers for school purposes; all collections are to be handled by the school office; teachers are to be available for parent conferences outside the school day when requested by the parents; elementary teachers are to be granted released time of 4-1/2 days a semester for parent-teacher conferences and an additional 3-1/2 days to plan for the conferences; teachers are not to be required to assume responsibility for emotionally disturbed pupils when it appears to the teacher, the school principal, and other staff members that a pupil requires special counseling or the action of law enforcement officials, physicians, or other professional persons; the teacher will be relieved of responsibility for student, when there is a delay in placement of an emotionally disturbed student, and extra assistance will be given to the teacher and/or the student in the interim.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; right to review personnel file upon appointment with personnel office, to review documents prepared by teacher, college transcripts, evaluation forms, and other information neither privileged nor confidential; no parental or pupil complaint is to become part of the teacher's personnel file without the complaint being reviewed at a hearing including the teacher, an association representative, the teacher's supervisor, the assistant superintendent for personnel, and if desired, the complaining party; only complaints determined valid are to be included in personnel file; determination of validity is grievable; teacher may answer complaint if he desires:

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

The Board recognizes and respects the right of citizens to make suggestions for the improvements of public schools, but maintains that no group can deny academic freedom to educators. The Board recognizes that the education profession has both the right and the responsibility to insist that children must be free to learn and teachers free to teach broad areas of knowledge, including those considered controversial. Thus, no special limitations shall be placed upon study, investigation, presentation and interpretation of facts and ideas, except that:

The teacher must exercise responsibility and prudence, and must realize that teaching in an elementary or a secondary school places special responsibility upon the teacher to carefully consider the maturity level of the student and the special circumstances that surround the teacher/learning relationship.

The teacher shall have the responsibility of keeping his principal informed of all controversial issues to be taught outside the accepted course of study.

If any group or individual brings charges against the teacher designed to impede the teacher's freedom to teach, and the teacher's position concurs with Board of Education policy No. 6122 and number 1 and 2 above, the Board shall provide without cost to the teacher, the necessary and sufficient leave of absence, legal assistance, and other support for the protection of academic freedom.

All teachers are required to show freedom from communicable tuberculosis annually; failure to do so will result in suspension without pay; teachers are required to attend six school functions and five hours of general teachers meetings; functions include parent-teacher conferences, staff developed community activities, student extracurricular activities, educational and civic functions excluding athletic events but including extracurricular activities where attendance is required; during the third and 16th weeks of the first semester, the staff of each school is to have the responsibility of determining the scheduling of time exclusive of pupil contact time; at least three hours of each week is to be devoted to curriculum development; in elementary schools the fourth week of each semester and in secondary school the fifth week of each semester will be designated as selective mandatory system-wide in-service week, and administrators will designate schedule and teachers involved; workshops, conferences, and programs to improve the quality of instruction may be provided for teachers; after one year of service teachers may be granted leave for up to four days each year to participate in workshops, programs, or conferences to improve professional competency; a joint evaluation committee is to be maintained; the board may change the policy, regulations, and evaluation form only after consultation with the committee; the content of an evaluation is not grievable; however nonadherence by evaluators to stated procedures is grievable; teachers will be disciplined for breaches of professional conduct including abuses of leaves, tardiness, willful deficiencies in professional conduct, violations of board policies, regulations, and administrative directives; disciplinary action is any written warning, reprimand, suspension, or discharge; before any disciplinary meeting the teacher is to be notified and entitled to have an association representative present; when result of disciplinary action is reduced to writing by an administrator, the report is to be put in personnel file and a copy given to the teacher; no teacher shall be disciplined without just cause; a tenure teacher must give board notice of his resignation, 60 days before September 1; teachers not following this procedure shall forfeit tenure rights granted by the Tenure Act, any teacher knowing on or before February 15 that he will not be returning is to file a notice with the office of the assistant superintendent of personnel before this date; teachers are to be informed of the following year's assignment by the close of the school year; transfers will be made to meet load conditions, instructional requirements; balance on the basis of experience, race, and/or sex is to be sought; attempts are to be made to retain probationary teachers in the same building throughout their probationary period; voluntary transfers must be requested from the Personnel Office stating school, grade or position sought, and teacher's qualifications, by March 15; Personnel Office shall post openings in bargaining unit positions for the next year; teachers must file for openings by April 1; in the event of an opening in a school, the principal is to be notified of and interview all transfer applicants on file; involuntary transfers will be made after the teacher has had the opportunity to meet with the assistant superintendent for personnel to discuss the transfer; the teacher will be given a choice of available openings; newly created positions, helping teacher, and coordinator positions are to be advertised in each school building and to be sent to association office; job description and qualifications shall be included; all applicants will be interviewed by the immediate supervisor; a joint committee will review job descriptions and qualifications; when athletic vacancies occur before June 1, the principal shall post notices for at least five days; tenure does not apply to cocurricular positions:

LAY OFF AND RECALL

In the event of lay off due to a decreased student enrollment or shortage of revenue, the order of reduction shall be:

First year probationary teachers shall be laid off first by using the criteria below in the following order:

Certification

Competency as determined by administrative evaluation of probationary personnel in accordance with Board of Education Policy and Administrative Regulations No. 4117.

Seniority

When certification and competency are relatively equal, seniority will be disregarded for all first year probationary ethnic minority teachers and such teachers shall be maintained until the number of ethnic minority teachers employed by the Board is no less than the percentage of ethnic minority students enrolled in the district, or until all ethnic majority probationary teachers have been laid off regardless of their probationary year.

If, at anytime, the percentage of ethnic minority teaching personnel reaches the ethnic minority student population percentage norm, further staff reduction shall result in maintaining a racial balance among staff no lower than the existing student ratio.

Second year probationary teachers shall be laid off in accordance with A. 1. above.

Third year probationary teachers shall be laid off in accordance with A. 1. above.

Tenured teachers shall be laid off only after all probationary teachers have been laid off. In proper cases of special qualifications, exceptions may be made. Tenured teachers shall be laid off by using the criteria below in the following order:

Certification

Competency as determined by administrative evaluation which shall be developed by the joint Board-LSEA Teacher Evaluation Committee for implementation in 1974-75.

Seniority

Seniority shall be defined as the teacher's first working day in the Lansing School District.

In the circumstance of more than one individual teacher beginning employment on the same date, all individuals so affected will participate in a drawing to determine position on the seniority list. The association and teacher so affected shall be notified in writing of the date, place and time of the drawing. The drawing shall be conducted openly and at a time and place which will reasonably allow affected teachers and association representatives to be in attendance.

A teacher shall lose his seniority if he resigns, retires, or is discharged by the Board.

If for any reason the Board anticipates a reduction of staff it shall, prior to taking formal action, consult with the LSEA to receive recommendations regarding priorities and procedures to be followed.

In the event it becomes necessary to reduce the number of teachers through lay off of employment, or to reduce the number of teachers in a given subject area, field, or program, or eliminate or consolidate position(s), the Board shall determine the order of lay off provided, however, such action shall not be contrary to Section A. The Board shall endeavor to give forty-five (45) calendar days notice of lay off to the individual involved, and in any event, thirty (30) calendar days notice shall be given in all cases.

It is further agreed that any lay off pursuant to this Article shall automatically terminate the individual employment contract of all laid-off teachers and shall suspend for the duration of the lay off, the Board's obligation to pay salary or fringe benefits and any laid-off teacher's individual or supplemental employment contract as well as all benefits under this collective bargaining agreement. Changes in a teacher's certification while on lay off shall not affect the teacher's status during the lay off period.

Any teacher on lay off shall be recalled in inverse order of lay off provided he is certified and qualified for the vacancy.

No new teachers shall be employed by the Board while there are teachers of the district who are laid off unless there is no laid off teachers with proper certification and qualifications to fill any vacancy which may arise.

The Board shall give written notice of recall from lay off by sending a registered or certified letter to said teacher, at his last known address. It shall be the responsibility of each teacher to notify the Board of any change in address. The teacher's address as it appears on the Board's records shall be conclusive when used in connection with lay offs, recall, or other notice to the teacher. If a teacher fails to report to work within ten (10) calendar days from date of sending of the recall, unless an extension is granted in writing by the Board, said teacher shall be considered as a voluntary quit and shall thereby terminate his individual employment contract and any other employment relationship with the Board.

One hour of released time shall be granted to chairmen of the following departments: science, social studies, language arts, math and counseling; every year five days prior to selection of department chairmen teachers may note suggestions to the principals; department chairmen are responsible to the principal and shall be formally evaluated once a year; the board and the association shall jointly recommend to the superintendent and the assistant superintendent, personnel for staff positions based on merit with increased racial and ethnic integration to approximate the racial and ethnic composition of the student population, and shall promote recruitment of minorities for employment in the schools; temporary suspension of students may be imposed by a principal or his assistant; a teacher may exclude a student when his behavior is disruptive and intolerable; the teacher must present the administration with all particulars of the incident as soon as possible; before the pupil is returned to his classroom, the teacher must be informed of corrective measures taken; cases of assault and battery (school related) are to be reported immediately; the board will provide legal counsel to advise a teacher of his rights; the budget committee partially composed of teachers shall assist in development of budget priorities and review the budget monthly;. the board is to provide necessary forms, catalogs, data, procedure charts, ordering deadlines, and average and interpolated appropriations for the use of the committee; information on the status foundation allowance budgets and expenditures of individual buildings are to be updated monthly by the board; telephone facilities are to be available to the teacher; reasonable effort will be made to provide adequate parking spaces; vending machines are to be installed in the teachers' lounge at the expense and request of the teachers and the proceeds are to be used for the teachers' building social fund; designated eating area, restrooms, and lounge exclusively for teachers will be available in each school.

SECONDARY CLASS SIZE – MAXIMUMS

The course types specified below are based on the degree of individual attention demanded by the course content, safety factors and the needs of the students typically enrolled in such courses. In the event new course offerings are implemented during the course of this Agreement, placement within a type shall be determined jointly by the teacher involved, the department chairman, the building principal and the Director of Curriculum.

TYPE I (36 STUDENTS)

Senior High	Junior High
English:
World Lit	Comm. Arts 1, 2
English Lit
American Lit
Contemp. Lit
Sci. Fiction
Black Lit
Film As Lit
Social Studies:
World History	Explore (7 Elective)
Afro-Am. History	8 Soc. Studies Elective
Am-Indian History
Humanities
Comp. Religion
Economics
Sociology
WUACC
St. & Loc. Govt.
Psychology
Philosophy
Community Inv.
World Geog.
Comp. Govt.
Mathematics:
Trig.	9 E. Algebra
Probabilities	9 Algebra
Analysis	9 Pre Algebra
Geometry 2	8 E. Math
Algebra 3, 4	7 E. Math
Business:
Bus. Law
Consumer Ed.

TYPE II (33 STUDENTS)

Senior High	Junior High
English:
Speech	7 English 1, 2
Drama	8 English 1, 2
Bus. English	9 English 1, 2
(Gen.) English 10, 11, 12	Speech
	Drama
Social Studies:
U.S. History 3, 4	7 Soc. St. 1, 2
Am. Govt.	8 Soc. St.
Prob. Dem.	9 U.S. History 1, 2
Mathematics:
Bus. Math	9 Gen. Math 1, 2
Algebra 1, 2	9 Basic Math 1, 2
Algebra 1c, 2c	8 Gen. Math 1, 2
Geometry 1	7 Gen. Math 1, 2
Science:
Biology	7 Science 1, 2
Adv. Biology	8 Science 1, 2
Chemistry	Biology 1, 2
Physics
Adv. Physics
Comp. Program
Art:
Comml. Art	Art 1, 2
Gen. Art
Crafts
Design
Adv. Art
Business:
Shorthand	Gen. Bus.
Forkner
Sales
Mdsg.
Bookkeeping
Home Economics:
Family Living
Soc. Probs.
Home Mgt.
Child Dev.
Foreign Language:
Latin	French 1, 2, 3
Spanish	German 1, 2, 3
French	Spanish 1, 2, 3
German	Latin 1, 2
Russian
Industrial Arts:
Drafting	Drafting
Graphics	Graphics
	Electronics
Others:
	9 Guidance

TYPE III (29 STUDENTS)

Senior High	Junior High
English:
Adv. Comp.	Journalism
Publications
Journalism
Creative Writing
Litcomp
Group Dynam & Nv. Comm.
Mathematics:
Concepts 2
Science:
Natural Science	Science 1, 2 (Physical)
	Lab Investigations
Home Economics:
Clothing	Homemaking 1, 2, 3, 4
Foods	Exploring Homemaking
Social Econ.
Food Mdsg.
Quan. Cooking
Business:
Record Keeping
Intro. Data Processing
D.P. Lab
General Business
Office Machines
Industrial Arts:
Woods	Power Mechanics

Metals
Materials Production

General Mechanics
Intro. to Industrial Arts
Woods
Metals

Clerical Block
Secretarial Block
Data Management Block

Vocational:

Auto Mech.
Auto Body
Service Station
Drafting and Design
Residential Dev.
Engine Mechanics
Electronics
Appliance Repair
Graphic Shop
Machine Shop
Cosmetology (20)
Dental Services
Hospital Services
Quantity Cooking
Food Merchandising
Quantity Baking
Construction Occupations
Heating, Air Conditioning & Ref.
Hospitality Services
Vocational Comm. Art
Business Block

TYPE V (22 STUDENTS)

Senior High	Junior High
English:
Reading Impr.
Debate
Mathematics:
Fund. Math	Fund. Math
Concepts 1
Industrial Arts:
Am. Industries

None of these maximums shall apply in typing, physical education, music or study hall.

Vocational Senior Co-op Coordinators shall be assigned a maximum of 1 pupil for each 20 minutes of scheduled coordinating time per week.

Re-entry class size maximum 40.

VOL. 7 NO. 6
FEBRUARY 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Decisions of State Grievance Board Not Subject to Judicial Review
- Agency Shop Illegal and Non-Negotiable
- Exclusion of Managers and Confidential Employees From Public Employee Bargaining Act Constitutional
- Teachers Fined New Wages for Prior Strike Activity
- Board Need Not Extend School Year to Make Up Instructional Days Lost by Strike
- Administrator's Right of Membership in Teachers Organization Upheld
- Teacher Not Entitled to a Notice of the Charges and a Hearing Upon Nonrenewal of Co-Curricular Assignment

Board Findings and Rulings 7
- Teachers Properly Assigned to Proctor Exams During Preparation Periods
- Union Must Be Told Faculty Members' Rank and Salary
- Separate Faculty Units at Individual State Colleges Found Appropriate; Unit Restricted to Maintenance Workers at State School Upheld
- Department Chairmen Ruled Supervisory, Excluded From Unit of Faculty Members
- Optional Workshop Days Not Negotiable
- Exclusion of Medical, Dental, and Law Faculties From Over-all Unit Upheld
- Unilaterally Increasing Wages a Violation of PERA
- Individual Grievances Cannot Be Stipulated Away Through Prior Arbitration Settlement
- Extra-Duty Assignments Dependent on Qualifications Not Contract

Negotiation Notes 11
- Colorado Judge Refused to Deny Striking Teachers Their 'One Weapon'
- Performance Contracting Program Dropped After Two Years
- Supervisors May Check Off Dues to Nonsupervisors Union
- Teachers' Duties Include Curriculum Development Work
- BIA Must Negotiate Over Impact of Expanded Indian Preference Hiring
- Residency Requirement for Employment Violates Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution
- The Consumer Price Index - December 1973

Special Reports 14
- Negotiated Religious Leave Provisions
- Briefs of Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2659

CASE REVIEWS

MAINE

Decisions of State Grievance Board Not Subject to Judicial Review

The Maine Supreme Court dismissed an appeal of a decision of the state public employee grievance board initiated by the Maine State Board of Education owing to the state board's failure to comply with its own policy rules for dismissal of state employees. The court also ruled that an appeal board's decision was not subject to judicial review.

When the contract of the assistant director of the Southern Maine Vocational Institute was not renewed for the 1971-72 year after having been renewed yearly from 1966 to June 1971, the employee filed a grievance with the appeals board, contending that his nonrenewal was invalid because he had tenure. The state board of education moved for dismissal, claiming that the appeals board lacked jurisdiction in the case.

The appeals board found that the state board of education had insufficient facts to support its allegations of misconduct on the part of the employee and had failed to comply with its own policy governing the release of faculty members and administrative employees. The appeals board pointed out that the state board of education had a duty to conform to its own rules and procedures and its employees had a right to rely on such conformity.

The state board of education appealed the decision to superior court on the basis of rule 80B of civil procedures which provides for superior court review of any quasi-judicial action taken by a governmental agency. The superior court ruled that the state board of education had no standing in superior court because the appeals board had the exclusive right to determine the right or lack of right to terminate the employer-employee relationship. The state board of education then appealed the case to the state supreme court.

Reviewing the state employees' grievance statute, the court noted that the statute empowered the state board of education to dismiss, suspend, or otherwise discipline a state employee for cause, but this right was subject to appeal and arbitration under the grievance law. However, the 80B procedure empowers the superior court to review decisions of a state agency acting in a quasi-judicial capacity. But, the court noted, the legislature, in an effort to minimize labor disputes and to provide for speedy resolution of them should they arise, entrusted the appeals board with the ultimate judgment on disputes and grievances of both classified and unclassified employees in all matters except classification and compensation.

Therefore, the court construed the final and binding clause to mean that "if the appeals board acts constitutionally and within its own jurisdictional framework and if the grievance alleged falls within those grievances reviewable under the act, the decision reached by the appeals board is not subject to judicial review and is conclusive." From the record the court ascertained that the grievance in the instant case and the decision reached by the appeals board fell within the above-mentioned rule and that the appeals board acted legally on the grievance. (State Board of Education vs. Kenneth I. Coombs and State Employees Appeals Board, Maine Supreme Judicial Court, August 1, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Agency Shop Illegal and Non-Negotiable

Upholding previous decisions of the Public Employee Relations Board and the Albany County Supreme Court concerning the legality and negotiability of agency shop provisions, the New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, dismissed a petition to vacate the PERB decision. The petition, filed by the Monroe-Woodbury Teachers Association, challenged the lower court's affirmation of the PERB determination (Negotiation Research Digest November 1972) that agency shop provisions were illegal.

During negotiations for their 1970-71 agreement, the Monroe-Woodbury Teachers Association and the Monroe-Woodbury Board of Education reached impasse on a proposal for an agency shop provision in the new contract. The board held that the provision was illegal and therefore not negotiable. Upon the association's refusal to withdraw the provision from negotiations, the board filed an improper practice charge with PERB. PERB ruled that the agency shop provision was illegal and that the board's refusal to negotiate this item was not an unfair labor practice. Furthermore, the association's insistence on the board's negotiating the illegal article would constitute an improper practice. The association appealed the PERB ruling to the Albany County Supreme Court, but its petition was dismissed and the PERB determination affirmed. Subsequently the association petitioned the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, again challenging PERB's ruling that the agency shop provision was illegal and also PERB's authority to make such a determination.

Referring to sections of the Civil Service Law granting public employees the right to join or refrain from joining a employee organization, and prohibiting employers from discriminating against employees in order to encourage membership in employee organizations and from interferring with employees in the exercise of rights granted in the Civil Service Laws, the court stated that the agency shop provision was statutorily illegal. As the agency shop provision was illegal, the court concluded that the board was not obligated to negotiate the item.

Considering whether PERB had the authority to determine the illegality of the provision, the court pointed out that PERB has the specific responsibility to decide whether parties have failed to negotiate in good faith, and subsequently to order the parties to negotiate in good faith. The court stated that for PERB to carry out this responsibility it must have the authority to determine the legality of items for negotiation. The court affirmed the lower court's ruling, and dismissed the association's petition. (Julia A. Farrigan, as President of Monroe-Woodbury Teachers Association v. Robert D. Helsby, Public Employment Relations Board, New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, July 12, 1973.)

Exclusion of Managers and Confidential Employees From Public Employee Bargaining Act Constitutional

Finding need in the public sector as in private business to separate managerial and confidential personnel from rank and file employees for purposes of collective bargaining, and finding no violation of First Amendment Rights, the New York Court of Appeals denied an appeal to a judgment which upheld the constitutionality of barring such personnel from membership in unions as stipulated by the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act.

Three state employees, members of the Civil Service Employees Association, had sought to enjoin the Public Employment Relations Board from classifying them as managers or confidential employees because this would bar them from membership in the association. They contended that the PEFEA provisions barring membership denied the employees freedom of association and equal protection under the law, and that the definitions of managerial and confidential employees were unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous.

Considering that the exclusion of managerial personnel from collective bargaining rights had been operational in the private sector for some time, the court examined the constitutional issue raised when the Taft-Hartley Act (which amended the National Labor Relations Act) excluded supervisors. The court noted that in Budd, "it was held that the exclusion of supervisory personnel from collective bargaining rights did not infringe their First Amendment rights of freedom of assembly and was not an arbitrary classification violative of due process." Exclusion under Taft-Hartley serves the purpose of assuring employers a loyal, responsible management group "to formulate policy and to handle labor relations." The court found the same purpose permissible in public employment because a similar need exists.

The court found the definitions of managerial and confidential employees in state law to be comparable with the federal statutory definition of supervisor which in Budd had been ruled sufficiently detailed and comprehensive to satisfy constitutional requirements.

Rejecting the appeal as an attack on "the scheme for designating managerial and executive employees and segregating them from rank-and-file collective bargaining arrangements [which] has ample precedent and is based on realistic analysis of labor relations," the court affirmed the lower court order and denied injunctive relief. (Joseph Shelofsky et al., Appellants v. Robert D. Helsby et al., Constituting the Public Employment Relations Board et al., Respondents, New York Court of Appeals, March 15, 1973.)

Teachers Fined New Wages for Prior Strike Activity

As the Taylor Law remedy for violation of the prohibition against strike activity by public employees must effectively deter such activity, the penalty of two days' pay for each day on strike may be levied on salaries paid retroactively to a date preceding the strike.

Dismissing a petition by members of the Plainview-Old Bethpage Federation of Teachers who had participated in a strike, a Nassau County Supreme Court avoided a strict interpretation of the penalty clause and sought to reinforce the intent of the statute by allowing the Plainview-Old Bethpage School District to assess penalties based upon retroactive wage scales negotiated after the strike, not the old rate of pay.

The striking teachers sought refunds on penalty deductions made months after the strike when settlement had finally been reached on the salary package. The school board asserted that its action was within the law, noting that salaries were to be paid retroactively to a date before the strike.

The controversy centered on the mandate of the statute that the "rate of pay [shall] be computed as of the time of such violations." Striking teachers felt this meant the old wage scale, but the court preferred to support the intent of the law—to penalize strike activity—stating that a strict interpretation "would tend to render the statute ineffective by awarding [strikers] with a bonus or reward for engaging in the illegal strike."

The court dismissed the teachers' petition and allowed two for one penalties to be deducted on the basis of the new salary schedules. (David S. Linton, et al., v. Plainview-Old Bethpage School District, et al., Supreme Court, Nassau County, May 25, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Board Need Not Extend School Year To Make Up Instructional Days Lost by Strike

The Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania refused to order the Northern Cambria School District to lengthen the school year and make up instructional days lost during a legal strike staged by the Northern Cambria Education Association.

The striking teachers refused to return to work until the issue of strike make-up days was settled. As the board insisted that determination of strike make-up days was a matter of inherent managerial policy, the parties never reached agreement on the matter. After striking for 30 days, the teachers returned to work in compliance with an order from the Cambria County Common Pleas court.

Subsequently two court suits were filed with the Common Pleas Court by a Northern Cambria citizen, requesting the court to order the school board to keep schools open every weekday from December 22 to June 30 with the exception of four holidays in order to provide the 180 instructional days as required by the Pennsylvania School Code and meet the eligibility requirements to receive state subsidies. The lower court dismissed the suits; however, the Commonwealth Court agreed to try the cases because of the "issues of public interest" that were raised.

The Commonwealth court found that the teachers were interested in extending the school year in order to avoid a loss in pay, and the board felt that refusing to make up the strike days served to "punish" strikers. According to the court, the school code required all public schools to be open for at least 180 instructional days a year, and granted the school board power to establish the school calendar. However, the school code did not require the school board to provide the required number of instructional days at the expense of the educational program. In addition, the board's power to establish the school calendar was subject to limitations, namely that the board's decisions must be in the best interests of the public's desire for an efficient and sound educational program. The best interest of the public, according to the court, increased participation of the association in school district policy or the strengthening or weakening of the teachers association. The board's obligation was to develop a school calendar providing as many days as possible without detracting from the educational program. The main question, according to the court, was whether the pupils and the educational program would benefit more from observing the original school calendar which because of the strike would provide only 150 instructional days or by extending the school calendar and requiring daily sessions for six months.

Considering the money issue the court stated that although the school district would lose its state subsidy by providing less than 180 instructional days, the educational program would cost the taxpayers less because teachers were paid only for days taught. The court felt that money was not the most important issue in the case. The court stated that if the issue of make-up days been brought to it after seven days of striking, the school board would have been ordered to make up the strike days. However, after a 30-day strike, the situation was quite different. According to the court, daily attendance at school for six months would have a great effect on both students and parents, particularly high-school seniors preparing for college. Furthermore, the change and extension of the school calendar would detract from the educational program. In view of these facts, the court dismissed the appeal and refused to order the school board to extend the school calendar.

The court's minority opinion held that changes in the school code were necessary to accommodate disruptions in the school calendar because of teacher strikes, but it was the responsibility of the legislature, not the courts, school boards, or teachers to determine and make the necessary changes. Furthermore, since the school code posted the school board with the power to determine the opening but not the closing date of the school year, once the school year commenced, it must extend for the 180 required days. (Benjamin Root and North Cambria Education Association v. Northern Cambria School District, Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania, August 1973.)

Administrator's Right of Membership in Teachers Organization Upheld

The Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court ruled that administrators have a legal right to remain members of a teachers organization. It thus ordered that an assistant high-school principal and a tenured high-school teacher be reinstated.

The principal had been fired for alleged inability to handle grievances and otherwise perform his administrative duties when the school district had decided that membership in a teachers organization renders a first-level supervisor incompetent under tenure laws by precluding him from performing all duties expected of him. In January 1973, the state secretary of education ordered the principal reinstated. The district appealed.

The school district argued that being a member of an employee association that is bargaining with the employer is incompatible with being a first-level supervisor who handles confidential files and who should be available to the employer to handle grievances and give advice on bargaining with the association. The Pennsylvania Public Employees Relations Act specifically permits first-level supervisors to be members of employee associations that bargain with employers, albeit not in the same unit.

The school superintendent affirmed that the principal had never received an unsatisfactory rating as a principal. The school district knew of his PSEA membership prior to his promotion, and while it disapproved his membership, it did not ask him to resign nor did he say he would. The court stated, "How failing to resign under such circumstances could be construed as negligence is beyond our comprehension and is not seriously pressed in the arguments or briefs." The court further stated that persuasive and convincing as the arguments relative to handling grievances and confidential files might be, they must be made to the legislature and not to the court.

According to the court, whether handling grievances is or is not part of the bargaining process does not control this case, and if it is, the Act simply provides how the conflict of interest is to be resolved by removing the first-level supervisor from the bargaining "or any other matter" in connection with negotiations. As a matter of fact, the principal had not been asked to handle grievances, nor had another assistant high-school principal who was not an association member. The court added:

> Perhaps the legislature, when it provided removal from the collective bargaining process as the limited remedy for conflict of interest, had in mind the apparent inequality that would be created here if intervening appellee Reese's dismissal were allowed to stand. He would have been dismissed for incompetence for not performing duties which were not in his job description and which he was never requested to perform; whereas a fellow assistant high school principal in the same school district, in exactly the same situation in every respect except for his membership in the employee organization, who did not perform any more services than he did, is retained.

The Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court ordered the principal to be reinstated. (Ellwood City Area School District v. Secretary of Education and George R. Reese, Jr., Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania, Commonwealth Docket 1973, August 3, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Teacher Not Entitled To a Notice of the Charges and a Hearing Upon Nonrenewal of Co-Curricular Assignment

Upholding a lower court's ruling appealed by a teacher, the Wisconsin Supreme Court affirmed the right of the Sheboygan Board of Education to terminate the teacher's co-curricular assignment without prior notice and/or hearing.

The teacher had been employed by the school board since 1965 as a driver education teacher and a cross-country and varsity basketball coach. Following a meeting with the superintendent in February 1971 to discuss complaints about his coaching, the teacher received a contract for the 1971-72 school year not including the coaching assignment. The teacher requested reasons for the termination of his coaching assignment and filed a grievance. Although the superintendent informed the teacher that the nonrenewal of the coaching contract was not subject to the grievance procedure, an informal hearing was scheduled. At the meeting the teacher was unable to discover the reasons for his dismissal as coach, and requested an extension for returning his teaching contract. As the school board would not meet again until after the deadline for filing contracts, the superintendent advised the teacher to submit his contract and await the board's determination of his coaching assignment. The teacher filed his contract on time and was officially notified that he would not be assigned the coaching activities. A second meeting was held and the reasons for dismissal were presented. After submitting another grievance, which was refused, the teacher filed a petition with the county court to order the school board to issue him a contract including the coaching assignment. He also requested and was granted a temporary injunction barring the school board from filling the coaching position pending a determination of the court. Following both parties' submission of motions for summary judgment, the court supported the school board's motion, thus dismissing the complaint and vacating the injunction. The teacher then appealed the lower court's decision.

According to the court, the central issue in the case was whether the teacher, having been offered his basic teaching contract, was entitled to a notice and hearing of charges when terminated from a nontenured co-curricular assignment. In answer to the teacher's contention that the school board's refusal of a notice and hearing of charges violated the due process clause, the court stated that since the teacher had not been deprived of any "liberty" or "property" rights secured by the 14th Amendment, the due process clause was not violated. Considering the teacher's argument that the school board violated state law by not sending preliminary notification of the nonrenewal of his coaching assignment, the court agreed with the school board that the statutes did not apply to co-curricular assignments as they were not part of the basic teaching contract. The teacher further contended that the school board violated its agreement with the teachers association by neglecting to show cause and to hold a hearing on his dismissal as coach. The court found that the agreement could not limit the board's power to terminate the coaching assignment without prior notification and hearing.

The court concluded that as the plaintiff's due process rights had not been violated, state law was not applicable to the case and the negotiated agreement was not violated. Therefore, it upheld the lower court's judgment and dismissed the teacher's petition. (William Richards v. Sheboygan Board of Education, Wisconsin Supreme Court, May 1, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

CALIFORNIA

Teachers Properly Assigned to Proctor Exams During Preparation Periods

An arbitrator ruled that the Fremont Union High School District under its administrative regulations could assign teachers to proctor tests during their preparation periods. The pertinent regulation provided preparation time without regularly scheduled assignments.

The arbitrator stated that although the achievement tests were given every year, the method of administering the test, the assignment of proctoring duties, and the scheduling of the tests changed annually. Therefore, the arbitrator concluded, the testing was not regular in the normal sense of the word, and the provision for preparation periods was designed to prevent the assignment of regular "special duties" or co-curricular activities to teachers during their preparation periods. As the proctoring assignments were not "regular assignments" or arbitrary and capricious, the arbitrator ruled that assignment of proctoring duties was proper and in the realm of the board's authority. (Fremont Education Association and the Board of Trustees of Fremont Union High School District, January 6, 1973.)

ILLINOIS

Union Must Be Told Faculty Members' Rank and Salary

An arbitrator ruled that under the parties' negotiated agreement, the president of Malcolm X City College was required to inform the AFT Local 1600 of the proposed rank and salary of faculty members. The arbitrator rejected the president's contentions that he was not required to release this information to the union until it was approved by the Board of Trustees.

Pointing out a section of the parties' contract that stated that after the college president proposed a rank and salary to the chancellor, he shall immediately notify the union of the placement, the arbitrator stated that the clause was explicit in its intent. The president need not wait for the board's approval before notifying the union.

Ruling that the information was public record necessary for the administering of the parties' agreement, the arbitrator added that the union was entitled to a list of all instructional personnel in the bargaining unit, their qualifications, and the credit courses they taught as soon as it was available. (Board of Trustees of Junior College District No. 58 and AFT Local 1600, American Arbitration Association, March 6, 1973.)

MINNESOTA

Separate Faculty Units at Individual State Colleges Found Appropriate; Unit Restricted to Maintenance Workers at State School Upheld

In separate unit determination cases, the Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services determined separate faculty units at state colleges appropriate for collective bargaining, and the Minnesota Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) approved a bargaining unit of maintenance workers at the state's Red Wing Training School.

The ruling of the Bureau of Mediation Services overturned a state-wide faculty bargaining unit previously determined for the six state colleges in support of a petition filed jointly by the state college board and the Inter-Faculty Organization (IFO). Hearings in the unit determination were reopened when faculty members at two state colleges challenged the decision. The state college board, the Minnesota Education Association, the American Association of University Professors, and the IFO supported a state-wide bargaining unit, contending that the majority of faculty members favored a single unit, past history of organization defended a state-wide unit, and the state college board's control over monies and other resources necessitated one bargaining agent.

The bureau director pointed out that state statutes directed him to define bargaining units "as all the employees under the same appointing authority except where professional, geographical, or other conditions affecting employment relations clearly require appropriate units of some other composition." Although the technical appointing authority in the case was the state college board, the board delegated this authority to the presidents of the state colleges. Under the state college board rules each college president has the authority to promote, suspend, and give merit increases in addition to determining day-to-day policies and college programs. The bureau director concluded that appropriate units would consist of "all faculty members employed by the president at each state college" except when geographic, professional, and other considerations indicate otherwise. He did not find sufficient evidence that a majority of faculty members or past practices supported a state-wide unit, and although the state college board controlled each school's finances, this did not necessitate the state-wide unit. Other factors supporting individual bargaining units were the "local community of interest" at the individual schools, the disparity in the number of faculty members at the schools, and the impeding of communications between college presidents and their faculty under a broad bargaining unit. Moreover, the distances between the colleges varying from 74 to 332 miles made it difficult for faculty members to participate in state-wide negotiations.

Holding that the case came under the legislature's exception to the unit determination rule for "geographical hardship," he ordered separate bargaining units at each state college. As the decision was a geographic determination, it was appealable, having been issued prior to "a complete appropriate unit determination to expedite any possible appeal."

The decision was appealed to Minnesota PERB by the state college board, the IFO, the MEA, and the AAUP. (Minnesota State College Board and the Inter-Faculty Organization and the Minnesota Federation of Teachers and the Minnesota Education Association and the American Association of University Professors, Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, August 15, 1973.)

● A Minnesota PERB ruling upheld a bargaining unit consisting of all maintenance workers at the state's Red Wing Training School and excluded house-parents, supervisory-managerial, confidential, clerical, and all other employees from the unit.

The board's decision was based on the state statute that defined appropriate bargaining units as all employees under the same appointing authority except when several considerations indicated otherwise. Although the appointing authority in the instant case was the superintendent of the school, several factors indicated that the appropriate bargaining unit should be limited to maintenance workers. The board found that the maintenance workers "are definitely differentiated from others within the scope of the appointing authority in terms of training, job requirements, career outlook, and responsibilities." Furthermore, a number of employees indicated preference for the smaller unit, the state had been successfully negotiating with the unit represented by Local 34 of the Operating Engineers since 1968, and at 10 other schools the state bargained with similar units represented by Local 34. Accordingly, the board approved a bargaining unit consisting of stationary engineers, plant maintenance engineers, delivery van drivers, electricians, plumbers, masons, painters, building maintenance foremen, and general repair workers. (State of Minnesota Red Wing Training School and Operating Engineers Local 34 and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Council No. 6, Minnesota Public Employment Relations Board, September 4, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Department Chairmen Ruled Supervisory, Excluded From Unit of Faculty Members

The New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) upheld a hearing officer's ruling that department chairmen at Essex County College should be excluded from a unit of faculty members represented by the Essex County College Faculty Association. As PERC found the department chairmen to be supervisory employees, state statutes forbid their inclusion in a bargaining unit with nonsupervisory employees.

The board of trustees held that even if the department chairmen were not supervisory, they had a conflict of interest with other staff members. The association contended that department chairmen did not have any supervisory authority and past practice and prior agreement dictated inclusion of the department chairmen in the faculty bargaining unit. In response to the state statute defining supervisors as "having the power to hire, discharge, or discipline or effectively recommend the same" in a unit of nonsupervisory personnel, the college stated that department chairmen do not hire or fire but that they do make effective recommendations.

The hearing officer found that although the recommendations of department chairmen were accepted in 98 percent of the selections of applicants, the final decisions on hiring rested with a higher authority and therefore department chairmen did not make an effective recommendation on hiring. The hearing officer also found that on the other hand, the role of the chairmen in dismissing faculty "constitutes an effective recommendation of discharge for non-tenured employees." Considering the association's contention that department chairmen should be included in the unit because of the statutory exceptions of past practice, the hearing officer found that the association was equating department chairmen with the extinct assistant divisional directors. Although the assistant divisional directors were included in the faculty unit, they differed from the department chairmen in that they had no authority to recommend retention or discharge. Dismissing the association's second contention that prior agreement dictated inclusion of the department chairmen in the bargaining unit, the hearing officer found that the parties' present agreement stated that all provisions relating to department chairmen would be subject to a unit determination by PERC. In support of the board's claim of a conflict of interest, the hearing officer referred to a recent court case that reversed a PERC ruling including a supervisor in a nonsupervisory bargaining unit because of a community of interest.

The hearing officer recommended that department chairmen be excluded from the unit, that no prior agreement or past practice to include them was found and even absent supervisory status, conflict of interest was found. PERC accepted the recommendation that the chairmen be excluded from the unit, but felt that department chairmen did have the effective power to hire. PERC concluded by defining the bargaining unit to exclude department chairmen. (Board of Trustees of Essex County College and Essex County College Faculty Association, New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission, July 27, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Optional Workshop Days Not Negotiable

Voluntary school programs designed to effectuate school-board programs are within the scope of management prerogative, and non-negotiable. So ruling, a Public Employment Relations Board hearing officer dismissed the charges brought against the Gates-Chili Central School District for having unilaterally scheduled and held three teacher workshop days which it labelled "voluntary."

Even though a school year of 186 work days was agreed upon during negotiations, the board subsequently approved a school calendar providing 184 instruction days and five teacher workshop days. At later negotiation sessions, board negotiators said that workshop attendance was voluntary. The parties reached an impasse over the "teachers' work year," but resolved the issue by inserting in the contract a clause that stated that the school year would be no longer than it was in 1971-72, 186 days. At pre-school teacher meetings, the school administration presented plans for three optional teacher workshop days, and held the workshops during the 1972-73 school year.

The association filed an improper practices charge with PERB, contending that the board had violated the contract settlement by instituting the workshop days. Since teachers were required to attend workshop planning meetings, teachers' cooperation and contribution were basic criteria for the school district's merit plan, and individual teachers had claimed that they were forced into attending workshops, the association concluded that workshop participation was mandatory rather than optional. The school board stated that the workshops were announced as optional, and all principals had been instructed to inform teachers that participation was voluntary. At the hearing all principals denied making statements or actions that implied that attendance was required.

The hearing officer determined that the board's statements outweighed the association's claims that attendance was mandatory, that the establishment of three optional workshop days did not extend the school calendar, and that the matter was a management prerogative and therefore not negotiable. The workshops were designed to improve teacher performance and were under the employer's goal of improving the teachers' professional capabilities. The hearing officer, therefore, dismissed the association's charge of unfair labor practice but stated that the method of informing teachers that workshop attendance was voluntary, and the effect of non-attendance on merit ratings should be discussed by the parties. (In the matter of Gates-Chili Central School District and Gates-Chili Teachers Association, Public Employee Relations Board, May 7, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Exclusion of Medical, Dental, and Law Faculties From Over-all Unit Upheld

Temple University filed a challenge to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) determination that the faculty of the law, dental, and medical schools be excluded from an over-all faculty bargaining unit. Following review of each case, the Board reaffirmed its decision that the faculties at each school must be excluded owing to incompatibility with the academic faculty. However, the Board included department chairman in the unit, as they were not first-level supervisors within the meaning of the Public Employee Relations Act.

Contrary to the university's contention, PLRB asserted that the factual situation bore a striking resemblance to that in Fordham University, in which the National Labor Relations Board considered such factors as physical location, interchangeability of physical facilities, extent of interdisciplinary programs, tenure requirements, salary levels, licensing and accreditation requirements, administrative duality, and bargaining history. Thus the Board reaffirmed its decision that each school must be excluded from the over-all faculty unit owing to different physical locations, independent faculties, higher salaries, few interdisciplinary contacts, and the accreditation and restrictions placed by respective professional societies, i.e., American Bar Association and American Medical Society.

The university also argued that the Board erred by including department chairman in the bargaining unit since they are first-level supervisors. By definition, a first-level supervisor must work in the interest of the employer rather than in the interest of the department or its employees. Therefore, the chairmen, who act in the interest of the department, have no greater power of recommendation than do faculty members or committees. The Board affirmed its conclusion that department chairmen are not first-level supervisors within the meaning of the Act. (Matter of Employees of Temple University of the Commonwealth System of Higher Education, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, July 5, 1973.)

Unilaterally Increasing Wages a Violation of PERA

An unwarranted delay after certification in scheduling bargaining talks and unilaterally increasing wages of unit employees without bargaining in good faith as defined by the Public Employee Relations Act (PERA) constitutes a refusal to bargain in violation of Section 1201(a) and (5). The Public Labor Relations Board determined that Reynolds School Board was in direct violation of the PERA.

A union, certified as the exclusive bargaining representative of a unit of secretaries, teacher aides, and custodians, requested negotiations to begin immediately upon certification; however, meetings were not begun for two months after the request. The union argued that the school board had a duty to bargain even prior to certification because there never existed a good-faith doubt of the union's majority status. This argument was based on the NLRB's decision in Jay Silk Mills, Inc., (85 NLRB 1263). The Board held that though Jay Silk Mills did not apply in this case, the school board was obligated to recognize and bargain with the union following the issuance of certification. This the school board did not do and thus the delay was inconsistent with the obligation to negotiate under PERA.

Relying on the budgetary deadlines set in the School Code, the school board argued that its refusal to bargain was based on the fact that the budget for 1972-73 had been submitted and increases in salaries were already implemented; therefore, it contended that negotiation should have been for the 1973-74 school year. PLRB stated that the school board overlooked the statutory provision that neither party is compelled to agree to a proposal or is required to make a concession; nor is there anything in the School Code that prevents bargaining for the current school year even though the budget has been submitted.

PLRB contended that the inconsistent and unlawful conduct in unilaterally granting wage increases to the unit employees showed the illogical quality of the board's position. Since the wage increases were included in the budget, it was obvious that the board was willing to grant the increases so long as the raises were not accomplished under union aegis. Therefore, PLRB ruled that the unilateral grant of benefits violated Section 1201(a) (1) and (5) of the Pennsylvania Public Employee Relations Act. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Reynolds School Board, PLRB, July 19, 1973.)

Individual Grievances Cannot Be Stipulated Away Through Prior Arbitration Settlement

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the Scranton School Board and teachers federation incorporated an unlawful stipulation in an arbitration agreement and unlawfully refused to process individual teachers' grievances.

As part of an arbitration agreement that provided extra compensation for teachers working in excess of regular teaching periods per week, the board and federation incorporated a provision that stated that the federation would not initiate, appeal, or process the same grievance for other employees. As a result, individual teachers attempting to process their own grievances were frustrated.

PLRB held that the federal Labor Management Relations Act (LMRA) and applicable state law both protect the employees' right to have a grievance processed and heard by the employer. The PLRB further held that the board violated the law by refusing to process the individual grievances and that the union discriminated against the teachers through its failure to afford equal treatment to other aggrieved teachers.

Rejecting the argument that the statute of limitations barred the suit, the PLRB ordered that the grievance be processed. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Scranton School Board et al., Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, July 31, 1973.)

Extra-Duty Assignments Dependent on Qualifications Not Contract

A labor agreement, according to an arbitrator, covers a regular contract and the job that is protected by that contract, but assignments, especially extra-duty ones, should be based on qualifications as such positions are outside the scope of the labor agreement.

A tenured Sto-Rox School District teacher who had held an extra-duty position as graphic arts instructor for three years was denied reappointment, and grieved under procedures within the bargaining agreement between the district and the Sto-Rox Education Association.

The agreement provided that no employee be disciplined, reduced in compensation, or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause; that any such action maintained by the board be subject to the grievance procedure. The agreement also provided that existing or expected vacancies be posted and that these vacancies be filled according to experience, competency and qualifications, length of service in the district, and other relevant factors. The agreement further provided that all conditions of employment be maintained at no less than the highest minimum standard in effect at the signing of the agreement.

Indicating that the association waived the posting requirement and that the teacher filed a written application for the extra-duty position, the board contended that the posting provision was inapplicable to the case. The board also maintained that the selected employee was qualified for the position.

In the arbitrator's determination, the graphic arts teaching position was a "side bar arrangement between board and teacher," not a tenured position. Further, the arbitrator stated that the incumbent might teach, if qualified, regardless of whether he was or was not a regular member of the school system.

Finding nothing wrong with the board's appointment, the arbitrator denied the grievance. (Sto-Rox Education Association and Sto-Rox School District, American Arbitration Association, July 28, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

COLORADO

Colorado Judge Refused to Deny Striking Teachers Their 'One Weapon'

An Arapahoe County, Colo., district court judge has refused to issue a restraining order against striking teachers in Littleton, maintaining that denial of "that one weapon which they have at their disposal" would reduce them to "second-class citizenry." Acknowledging that the district was disrupted and inconvenienced by the strike, which began January 3, the judge stressed that the board must bear as much responsibility as teachers and "must look to itself as to why the situation does exist." Since evidence indicated there "is no irreparable loss" or harm to the public interest, he declared, court action would be "nothing more than an unwarranted intrusion" of the court's "awesome" powers as a third party at the bargaining table. The Colorado and Littleton education associations praised the decision, predicting that it may have far-reaching effects on future negotiations, impasse situations, and potential strikes in the state. The current strike, affecting 870 teachers and 18,000 students, resulted from the board's refusal to negotiate or accept a factfinder's recommendation on the issue of a salary index.

FLORIDA

Performance Contracting Program Dropped After Two Years

The Dade County School Board discontinued offering teachers financial incentives based on their pupils' improved performance on standardized tests until a further evaluation of the program is completed.

The experiment, originally implemented in six schools with a large number of disadvantaged pupils, attempted to improve pupils' performance in reading and mathematics. During the first year the pupils' performance improved more than expected, and in some cases scores were three times higher than predicted. However, during the second year the pupils' scores were lower than expected more than half of the time. Several reasons were attributed to the program's decreased success: the novelty of the project had worn off, both pupils and teachers lost interest, and owing to the law of diminishing returns, the rate of increased performance was slowed down. School officials stated that cash incentives may be reinstituted if a final study of the program indicates significant pupil progress.

NEW JERSEY

Supervisors May Check Off Dues To Nonsupervisors Union

The New Jersey Superior Court ordered the Elizabeth Housing Authority to collect dues from supervisors who requested deduction and payment of such dues to the Union Council No. 8, New Jersey Civil Service Association.

The housing authority, which had previously deducted such dues, refused to continue deducting them on the ground that according to the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act supervisory personnel cannot belong to a bargaining organization that contains nonsupervisory personnel.

The court noted that the issues involved were novel and had not previously been considered by state courts. After studying the Act, the court determined that the written requests for dues deductions were proper since the statute, in allowing for dues deductions, set forth no qualifications as to whether the members who applied for such deductions were supervisory or nonsupervisory. Continuing, the court said that review of the statute also indicated that there was nothing that prohibited a labor organization from having both supervisory and nonsupervisory personnel in its membership. Furthermore, the only prohibition under the Act was that supervisors not be included in the same bargaining unit as nonsupervisors. The court then pointed out that "a bargaining unit is not synonymous with a labor organization," "the statute specifically states that even if an organization has both types of members, it nevertheless may still represent nonsupervisory employees for purposes of collective bargaining negotiations." Since the law allowed supervisors to belong to unions that contained nonsupervisors and prohibited supervisors only from being within the same unit as nonsupervisors, the court ordered the employer to honor the dues deductions requests. (Union Council No. 8, New Jersey Civil Service Association, Plaintiff v. Housing Authority of the City of Elizabeth et al., Defendants, New Jersey Superior Court, July 3, 1973.)

RHODE ISLAND

Teachers' Duties Include Curriculum Development Work

The state commissioner of education dismissed the contention of the Westerly Teachers Association that the Westerly School Committee's assignment of curriculum development work to teachers violated the parties' agreement. The state commissioner held that the school committee had the authority to assign to teachers duties within their professional competency, as long as the assignment was not arbitrary or unreasonable and did not violate any contractual provisions. Furthermore, he found that the curriculum development assignments did not eliminate the teachers' free and study periods.

FEDERAL

BIA Must Negotiate Over Impact of Expanded Indian Preference Hiring

Although the new policy of the Bureau of Indian Affairs mandates that Indians be given preference for training and filling of vacancies, no absolute bar exists to hiring and promoting non-Indians. Also, the impact of the policy on present employees is a proper subject for negotiations. A Labor Department administrative law judge thus ruled unlawful the refusal of the Albuquerque district office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs to confer with Local 40 of the National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE) over an expanded policy of Indian preference hiring.

The NFFE had charged that the district office management unfairly refused to negotiate or consider proposals for granting greater opportunities to non-Indians for transfer out of the BIA in view of the Indian preference policy. The union charged violation of non-Indian members' rights because of favored treatment accorded to Indians, and claimed a contract violation in that discriminatory treatment was based on union membership and had been initiated to discourage membership in the union.

The Albuquerque district office management maintained that it was without authority to negotiate the over effect of the new policy on present employees. Having interpreted literally the order expanding existing preference for Indians in hiring and promotion to greater priority in training and filling vacancies, management believed that non-Indians were now barred from appointments, promotion, or rehire.

The administrative law judge noted that although the policy statement expanded preference for Indians in employment transactions, administrators and managers were also ordered to protect the rights of non-Indian employees. Finding no evidence for support, the judge rejected NFFE's charges of discrimination with the comment that the union contract was subject to existing statutes and regulations, including the new policy. He recommended a cease and desist order against the refusal of district officials to negotiate proposals or set up machinery that would protect employee rights while implementing the spirit of the expanded Indian preference policy. (BIA and NFFE Local 40, Assistant Secretary for Labor Management Relations, September 26, 1973.)

Residency Requirement for Employment Violates Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution

The U.S. District Court struck down a county residency requirement for teachers. The two teachers who held valid teacher's certificates from the state of Kansas, were informed by the Unified School District No. 500 of Wyandotte County that their contracts would not be renewed for the coming school year unless they established residence in Wyandotte County as required by a long-standing county regulation.

The teachers contended that enforcement of the regulation violated their right to live and work where they chose and to travel freely, as protected by the due process and equal protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment.

In support of the residency regulation, the district argued that such requirements for public employment are neither new, novel, nor unique and extend to the highest offices in the land. It argued further that "there is no right to public employment and that the public employer should have broad discretion to establish qualifications for its employees related to effective job performance." In conjunction with this argument, the school district asserted the public interest doctrine whereby tax revenues of the school district are to be expended only for salaries of teachers who reside within Wyandotte County.

The court dismissed the teachers' contention that the residency requirement impinged upon their right to travel since the requirement is not a durational residency requirement that discriminates against those who have exercised their right to travel. According to the court, the board's regulation required teachers to choose between two rights protected by the Fourteenth Amendment, the right to live where one chooses and the right to work in one's chosen profession.

On the basis of rulings in relevant cases, the court pointed out that the right to governmental employment cannot hinge upon whether such employment is characterized as a right or a privilege. Furthermore, to allow the government to deny a person public employment because of the exercise of his constitutionally protected interests is impermissible. Therefore, the court rejected the school district's argument that it may require the plaintiffs to live in Wyandotte county merely because they have no right to public employment.

The court then pointed out that the district's public interest doctrine did not consider that some school districts within the county had separate tax bases and that "because of recent massive infusions of state funds, Kansas local revenues have become of decreasing importance in the financial support of Kansas schools." Moreover, the court held that the possible contribution of the teachers to the school district's tax base is minute when compared to the interference with their rights.

The court agreed that employment should depend upon effective performance, but in this case, the employer had submitted no evidence that Wyandotte County residents were more effective teachers than nonresidents. Further, because all teachers employed in Kansas are certified by the state, they are qualified to teach anywhere within the state.

The court recognized that residency within a certain community is a rational qualification for many public positions; however, "the residency requirement of the school district violates the Fourteenth Amendment's equal protection guarantee, because the classification of residents versus non-residents of Wyandotte County is essentially arbitrary and does not rest upon any reasonable basis." (Robert E. Hanson and Mary D. Kice, Plaintiffs, v. Unified School District No. 500, Wyandotte County, Kansas; O. L. Plucker, Superintendent of Schools for U.S.D. No. 500; C. L. Burns, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for U.S.D. No. 500, Defendants; U.S. District Court for the District of Kansas; September 5, 1973.)

* * *

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX–DECEMBER 1973

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.7 percent in December to 138.5 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. Higher prices for energy items–gasoline, heating oil, electricity, natural gas, and coal–accounted for over a third of the increase in the December index. Increases in prices of most types of food and in mortgage interest costs also contributed significantly to the rise. The effect of these increases was moderated by price declines for some food and nonfood items–notably meats, used cars, and property taxes.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the December increase in the CPI was 0.5 percent. This compares with an increase of 0.8 percent in each of the 2 preceding months. The food index rose 0.3 percent following a 1.4 percent increase in November. The indexes for nonfood commodities and services increased 0.7 percent and 0.6 percent, respectively, the same as in November.

For the quarter that ended in December, the CPI for All Items rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.0 percent. Increases in the first 3 quarters of the year were 8.6 percent, 7.4 percent, and 10.3 percent respectively. For calendar year 1973, the rise in the CPI was 8.8 percent, the largest December-to-December increase since 1947. About half of the annual increase was due to a 20.1 percent increase in food prices. Most of the increase in food prices occurred in the first 3 quarters of the year when food prices rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 23.9 percent. In the quarter ended in December, the annual rate of increase in food prices was 9.2 percent. The nonfood commodities index, on the other hand, rose more rapidly in the fourth quarter than earlier in the year, largely because of sharp prices increases for gasoline and fuel oil. The increase in the services index in the quarter ended in December, at an annual rate of 9.4 percent, was also more rapid than earlier in the year. Price increases for energy items during 1973 accounted for about 10 percent of the over-all rise in the CPI. (U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, News Release, January 22, 1974.)

SPECIAL REPORTS

NEGOTIATED RELIGIOUS LEAVE PROVISIONS

Religious leave, most often granted with pay, is provided for observance of religious holidays and/or for religious purposes not included in the school calendar. Although most agreements specifically provide religious leave in addition to other types of leave, some agreements provide that religious leave be deducted from sick leave or other multi-purpose leave allowances. Provisions for religious leave were included in 24.9 percent (380) of the 1,529 comprehensive agreements in effect in 1970-71 and analyzed by NEA Research (Table 1). One agreement out of three, 124, was selected for further analysis. This analysis included only provisions specifying leave for religious holidays and "religious purposes" and did not attempt to count days off categorized in the school calendar as religious holidays.

Nearly two-thirds of the selected provisions granted religious leave for any religious holiday, holy day, or day of observance (Table 2). The remaining one-third of the agreements were more restrictive in their provision for religious leave and therefore were more frequently subject to interpretation by courts and arbitrators.

Some provisions limited teachers' use of religious leave to religious holidays which required the teacher's absence from school for observance, i.e., when teachers are prohibited from working by their religion. Ruling on this type of provision in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, an arbitrator decided that the school board was not required to grant religious leave to a teacher who was not obliged to refrain from working on a religious holiday.[1] Leave for "religious purposes" was granted in some provisions. Although religious purposes are typically considered as religious ceremonies or religious matters, an American Arbitration Association arbitrator broadly defined religious purpose as including religious holidays.[2]

Other provisions restricted religious leave to specified holidays, e.g., Yom Kippur, Rosh Hashanah, Good Friday. Court and arbitration cases have challenged this type of provision on the basis that it is discriminatory. In California, a state employee denied leave with pay on Yom Kippur, charged the state with religious discrimination since other employees were granted paid leave on Good Friday. A state trial court, in agreement with the plaintiff, held that granting paid leave on a Christian holiday and not on holidays of other religions served to advance the Christian faith and was in violation of the federal Constitution ban on the establishment of religion. The state was ordered to cease granting paid leaves for any religious holidays.[3] However, in an arbitration case, a grievant also denied paid leave on Yom Kippur, charged the Grand Rapids School District with discrimination because schools were closed for Christmas and Good Friday. The arbitrator found no basis

TABLE 1.–NEGOTIATED RELIGIOUS LEAVE PROVISIONS, 1970-71

Provisions	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Compensation
Religious leave with pay	377	99.2
Religious leave without pay	3	0.8
Number of days provided
One	4	1.1
Two	51	13.4
Three	96	25.3
More than three	15	3.9
Not indicated	214	56.3
How leave is charged
Separate from other leave	295	77.6
Deducted from sick leave	56	14.7
Deducted from other leave	29	7.6
TOTAL NUMBER OF NEGOTIATED AGREEMENTS CONTAINING PROVISIONS FOR RELIGIOUS LEAVE	380	100.0

[1] Anne Arundel County (Md.) Board of Education and the Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County, American Arbitration Association, August 11, 1972.

[2] Board of Education of the City of Grand Rapids and the Grand Rapids Education Association, American Arbitration Association, June 12, 1970.

[3] Mandel v. Hodges, California Trial Court.

TABLE 2.–TYPES OF RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCES COVERED BY RELIGIOUS LEAVE PROVISIONS

Type of observance	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Any religious holiday, holyday, or day of observance	78	62.9
Only religious holidays which require teacher's absence from school for observance	22	17.7
Religious purpose, e.g., religious ceremonies	12	9.6
Specific religious holidays, e.g., Yom Kippur, Good Friday	9	7.3
Religious holidays as listed by the commissioner of education	3	2.4
TOTAL NUMBER OF PROVISIONS SELECTED FOR FURTHER ANALYSIS	124	100.0

for a discrimination charge as the grievant was granted leave without pay. Furthermore, he believed that since Christmas and Good Friday were incorporated into the school calendar as vacation days, it could not be argued that teachers celebrating Christmas and Good Friday were paid for days they did not work.[4]

More than half of the 124 analyzed provisions contained procedures for obtaining religious leave. A written request, often within a specified time, was sometimes a prerequisite for obtaining leave. In approximately one-third of the agreements teachers were obliged to have the approval of an administrator before using their religious leave. Most often, the superintendent's permission was needed, although the approval of the principal or other school officials was sometimes specified. Advance notification to an administrator was required in almost one-quarter of the agreements. Most often the principal or immediate supervisor had to be informed; however, in several provisions the superintendent or the personnel office were to be notified.

Several religious leave provisions are reprinted below. These are sample provisions; they are not to be regarded as exemplary.

[4] Board of Education of the City of Grand Rapids and the Grand Rapids Education Association, American Arbitration Association, June 12, 1970.

TABLE 3.–REQUIREMENTS FOR OBTAINING RELIGIOUS LEAVE

Requirement	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Leave must be requested in writing	16	12.9
Leave must be requested within a certain time limit	15	12.1
Prior approval of an administrator required	42	33.9
Prior notification of an administrator required	29	23.4
TOTAL NUMBER OF PROVISIONS STIPULATING REQUIREMENTS FOR OBTAINING RELIGIOUS LEAVE	71	57.3

The Superintendent may but need not grant temporary leaves of absence without loss of pay for the following reasons and upon the terms and conditions herein set forth and the grant or denial of such leave by the Superintendent shall be conclusive and his decision shall not be subject to grievance or arbitration:

For purposes of religious observance if the religious convictions of the teacher prohibits him from working on said day.

[Adams-Cheshire, Massachusetts]

Temporary leaves of absence will be granted on the basis of the following schedule when applied for through a signed statement by the teacher setting forth the pertinent facts related to the reason for which the leave is requested and the number of days required. When this statement has been certified by the school principal, a copy will be forwarded with the next payroll report to the Superintendent for final approval.

Observance of religious holidays, where said observance prevents the teacher from working on said days—3 days maximum annually.

[Bound Brook, New Jersey]

There shall be ten (10) school days of personal leave with full pay annually, but not cumulative, reported in writing to the Superintendent of Schools, including such considerations as marriages, deaths, or illness of the immediate family, or other comparable circumstances; legal requirements; and religious holidays. This shall also include temporary leave at full salary less remuneration for jury duty, court appearance as a witness, Selective Service examination and military reserve duty. A telephone call to the principal will be acceptable, in cases of emergency, to be followed in the near future by a report in writing to the Superintendent of Schools.

[Portland, Connecticut]

Three days absence for personal business shall be allowed only by permission of the building principal. Such absence shall not be deducted from accumulated sick leave.

Graduation of employee or child, day of wedding ceremony, participation in religious ceremonies such as confirmation, circumcision of child, honors and awards ceremonies involving a member of the immediate family.

Religious Observances: The employee may use personal days for religious holiday, observances of his particular faith not covered in the regular school calendar.

[Seaford, New York]

Absences with pay may be allowed by the Superintendent for the observances of religious obligations, which cannot be performed outside of school hours, but not in excess of three (3) days. Such request shall be made in writing to the Superintendent through the Principal.

[East Greenwich, Rhode Island]

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Indianapolis, Indiana

Between Indianapolis Public Schools and Indianapolis Education Association, effective August 27, 1973, to August 31, 1974. Approximately 4,200 certificated professional employees, including all licensed contractual employees and excluding the superintendent, associate superintendent, assistant superintendent, assistant to the superintendent, administrative assistant, director of instruction, principals, vice-principals, supervisors, assistant principals, consultants, elementary and personnel coordinators, high-school evening school director, athletic director, director of guidance, deans, assistant deans, and department heads.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $7,746 to $12,252, 14 increments; effective January 21, 1974, B.A. plus 15 hours, $12,402 maximum; M.A., $8,270 to $14,348, 19 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $14,498 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $14,872 maximum; Ph.D., $15,396 maximum; full credit on the salary schedule for outside teaching experience; upon retirement a lump-sum payment of $62.50 for each year of service in the district and $10 for each day of unused sick leave up to a maximum of 120 days.

DIFFERENTIALS: Head senior high-school football and basketball coaches, $920; head senior high baseball, track, and wrestling coaches, $690; senior high assistant basketball and football coaches, $633; senior high freshman football and basketball coaches and assistant track and wrestling coaches, $489; junior high football and basketball coaches, $375; senior high tennis, golf, and cross country coaches, $345; junior high volleyball coach, $250; junior high softball coach, $200; junior high track coach, $150.

OTHER: Summer school teachers shall be paid at an hourly rate computed by dividing the teacher's annual base salary by the number of contract days (this equals the daily rate which divided by six equals the teacher's hourly rate); supervision of after-school activities, $4 per hour; 12¢ per mile for use of personal cars for field trips and other school district business.

LEAVES: Ten annual sick leave days granted during the first year of service and seven days per year thereafter; maximum accumulation, 120 days; "an emergency sick leave bank shall be established. Each member of the bargaining unit may voluntarily contribute one day to the bank. The day shall be contributed by October 1st of each year and days in the bank may accumulate from year to year. The bank shall be administered by the IEA. Only teachers who voluntarily contribute to the bank shall be eligible to derive benefits from the bank." Two personal leave days for any purpose at the discretion of the teacher and may be taken in time periods of not less than one-half day; up to five days' bereavement leave for death in the immediate family; one day's leave for death of person not in the immediate family; leave with or without pay for attendance at programs, conferences, workshops, or seminars conducted by colleges, universities, and the National Education Association, Indiana State Teachers Association, Indianapolis Education Association, or affiliate departments thereof; remuneration for jury duty to be deducted from regular salary; nonpaid leave to perform civic duties at the state or local level for up to two days; paid leave at discretion of superintendent for inclement weather precluding travel to school, but teacher must immediately notify his supervisors of his inability to come to work and state in writing such reasons; if the teacher receives payments under the Workmen's Compensation Law of Indiana, the board shall pay the teacher's salary in full until workmen's compensation payments begin; the board shall pay the difference between workmen's compensation payments and the contractual salary of the teacher for up to 180 teaching days; a leave of absence for up to two consecutive years may be granted to engage in full-time study related to a teacher's professional responsibilities at an accredited college or university; credit on the salary schedule shall be given as though the teacher had taught in the system during such period; upon return from military leave a teacher may be credited up to four years of military experience as teaching experience; accumulated sick leave may be used for any part of maternity absence; a teacher who is unable to teach because of personal illness or disability and who has exhausted all sick leave available shall be granted a leave of absence for the duration of such illness or disability but for not more than three consecutive years; a leave of absence for up to one year may be granted for to care for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family; leave without pay shall be granted to serve in elected public office, such leaves shall be granted annually and renewed annually for the term of office, additionally, a reasonable period of time may be granted a teacher for the purpose of campaigning for public office.

INSURANCE: The board will pay the cost of an individual subscription for hospital, surgical, and major medical insurance; however, each employee shall pay $1 of the premium; a $5,100 group term life insurance plan available for all employees; participants will contribute $6 annually and the board will pay the remainder; tax deferred annuity programs available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues, a leave of absence of up to one year to serve as an officer or staff member of the association at the local, state, or national level; upon return from such leave the teacher shall be placed at the same position on the salary schedule he would have achieved had he not been absent; the association has the right to use school buildings for meetings at reasonable times, school equipment including typewriters, mimeograph and calculating machines, and audiovisual machinery when not in use; association may post notices pertaining to association activities on the teachers' bulletin boards and use teachers' mailboxes; the board will provide information relating to financial condition of the school system, including annual financial statement, adopted budget, and any other available and pertinent information which may be relevant to negotiations.

INSTRUCTION: The normal load for junior and senior high shall be 280 minutes of teaching or other assignments per day; if possible a teacher shall have no more than 3 preparations per day and shall not be required to teach more than 3 periods in a row except in the case of double period classes which may be no more than 4 periods; elementary teachers shall not exceed 27-1/2 hours of pupil contact per week; one preparation period of not less than 30 minutes per day or 200 minutes per week; daily duty-free uninterrupted lunch period of at least 40 minutes; whenever the number of pupils assigned to a kindergarten exceeds 32 and whenever grades 1-6 exceed 35 in a self-contained classroom, a classroom assistant shall be provided; the teacher's day shall normally be from 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; teachers shall be permitted to leave 10 minutes after the close of the pupils' regular school day on Fridays or on days preceeding holidays or vacations; teachers may volunteer for service on curriculum, instruction, inservice, and other educational committees; the board will provide teachers of art, music, and physical education and a librarian for elementary schools; teachers who supervise student teachers shall be tenured classroom teachers possessing a minimum of a master's degree and teaching in their respective fields of preparation who voluntarily accept the assignment.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board; teachers have the right to review personnel file at the building level and the central office level and to be accompanied by an association representative; any formal grievance on the behalf of a teacher shall not be placed in the teacher's file or become part of any file or record utilized in the promotion process, nor shall it be used in any recommendations for job placement; no material derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character, or personality shall be placed in the files unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material; faculty meetings may be scheduled on the first and third Wednesdays of each month provided that such meetings will be cancelled if unnecessary; teachers needing improvement shall be given an opportunity to utilize professional help so that they may attempt to rectify difficulties; the Inservice Education Committee, composed of equal numbers of representatives appointed by the board and the association, to plan inservice programs; permanent teachers must be evaluated in writing at least once every 5 years or at the request of the teacher; all monitoring or observation of a teacher shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher; a minimum of 2 observations per semester shall be made for each probationary teacher; an observation shall be no less then 30 minutes in length; teachers selected by the association shall be consulted concerning the creation of an evaluation instrument; the evaluated teacher shall be guaranteed a meeting with his supervisor to discuss the evaluation; the teacher may attach a memorandum to the evaluation form expressing opinions concerning the supervisor's evaluation; a copy of the completed evaluation form shall be given the evaluatee; a teacher whose performance has been deemed unsatisfactory at the time of the annual formal evaluation may request that a second evaluation be made by a person other than the original evaluator; no teacher shall be reprimanded in front of students, other teachers, or parents unless extremely extenuating circumstances prevail; a teacher shall be entitled to have present a representative of the association when such action is being taken; in filling vacancies, preference shall be given to teachers with the greatest seniority; after serving at least 2 years in one assignment, a teacher may request a transfer to a grade level or subject area for which he is licensed or to another building; a teacher involuntarily transferred to his current assignment shall not be subject to the two-year minimum service in that assignment before request for transfer is permitted; no assignment of teachers new to the system to a specific position in the school system shall be made until action on all pending requests for transfer to that position has been taken; when a reduction in the number of teachers in a school is necessary, the board shall first transfer those teachers who have volunteered to be transferred, and then shall make the remainder of the necessary transfers on the basis of years of service in the school system, those with least seniority being transferred first; lists of all vacant positions in other schools shall be made available to teachers involuntarily transferred; a teacher may suspend a pupil from class when the breach of discipline makes the continued presence of the pupil in the classroom intolerable; the board shall indemnify teachers against damage, fines, legal fees, or other costs arising out of any act of corporal punishment administered within the bounds set by board policy; the board shall, upon request, provide legal counsel and assistance for the defense of a teacher in any civil or criminal action or threatened action against the teacher which arises out of or is connected with the teacher's supervision of pupils.

* * *

Grand Haven, Michigan

Between Grand Haven School District and Grand Haven Education Association, effective September 1, 1972, to August 31, 1974. Approximately 300 certificated professional employees, including full-time classroom teachers, contracted part-time classroom teachers, vocational instructors, certificated consultants and counselors, librarians, and special education teachers, excluding substitute teachers, the director of guidance and counseling supervisory, administrative, and executive personnel, including but not limited to superintendents, assistant superintendents, principals, assistant principals, business managers, and the director of audiovisual education. The board agrees to negotiate with the association over a successor agreement not later than March 1 of the calendar year in which this agreement expires.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,400 to $13,440, 9 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $13,860 maximum; M.A., $9,240 to $15,036, 9 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $15,540 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,800 maximum. Maximum of seven years credited for prior teaching or related work experience, but not more than two years for full-time military service or for related work experience; longevity pay at 4 percent of the current basic salary during the 15th to the 19th years of service; thereafter, during each additional five years of service the teacher will receive an additional longevity payment of 4 percent of the current basic salary; terminal leave payment, $20 per year of service in the district provided the teacher has been employed in the district for at least 10 years.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Compensation based on percentage relationship to the current basic salary including five steps) athletic director, head varsity football and basketball coaches, 16.5 to 18.5 percent; head varsity wrestling and swimming coaches, 11.0 to 13.0 percent; assistant varsity football and head varsity boys' gymnastics coaches, 10.5 to 12.5 percent; head varsity baseball coach, 9.5 to 11.5 percent; head junior varsity football and basketball coaches, director of music, and senior high band director, 8.0 to 10.0 percent; assistant varsity swimming coach, 7.5 to 9.5 percent; assistant junior varsity football, head ninth grade football and basketball, and head junior high tennis coaches, 7.0 to 9.0 percent; head junior high swimming and head varsity cross country and golf coaches, 6.0 to 8.0 percent; rifle club supervisor, 6.0 to 7.0 percent; assistant varsity baseball and track coaches, 5.5 to 7.5 percent; head varsity girls' gymnastics and swimming coaches, 5.0 to 7.0 percent; senior high orchestra, vocal, and band directors, 4.75 to 5.75 percent; debate and forensics advisor, 4.5 to 5.5 percent; faculty athletic manager, senior high yearbook, cheerleading, and catalina club advisors and junior high cheerleading advisor, 4.0 to 5.0 percent; junior high orchestra and vocal directors, 3.75 to 4.75 percent; elementary vocal, band, and orchestra directors, school plays and musicals directors, 3.5 to 4.5 percent; head seventh-grade basketball, eight-grade football and head basketball, head junior high boys' gymnastics, wrestling, baseball, track, and tennis, girls' gymnastics, and head girls' varsity track coaches, senior high marching band director, junior high yearbook advisor, and senior high student council advisor, 3.0 to 4.0 percent; senior high senior and junior class advisors, 2.5 percent; athletic association advisor, 2.0 to 3.0 percent; senior high honor society, terra cotta, thespians, pep club, and honor society, junior high pep club advisor, and elementary safety patrol, 2.0 percent (one step); senior high sophomore class advisor, 1.25 percent (one step).

OTHER: Substitute teachers hired on a permanent basis will be paid a salary commensurate with the salary to which such a teacher would be entitled as a regular teacher; 10¢ per mile for use of personal automobile in the course of work.

LEAVES: Fifteen sick and emergency days annually credited at the beginning of the school year, unlimited accumulation; two days of cumulative sick leave may be used for professional, family, or business obligations; up to five days for each death or critical illness in the immediate family, deducted from sick leave; summer school teachers, two days of sick leave; leave with pay to attend educational conferences and workshops and to make visitations pertinent to the improvement of the school curriculum; teachers on jury duty shall be paid the difference between jury pay and their regular salary; teachers appearing as witnesses in court shall be paid full salary; teachers called for military reserve obligations shall be paid the difference between military pay and teachers' pay for up to 30 days; leave with pay for required physical examination for military induction; one-year sabbatical leave for professional improvement at full salary and fringe benefits or the difference between teacher salary and scholarship funds; sabbatical leave for not more than 2 percent of staff at a time; eligibility requires employment for seven consecutive years in the school district and a valid Michigan Permanent or Life Certificate; teachers on sabbatical leave allowed increment credit on the salary schedule and credit toward retirement; teachers absent owing to injury or disease incurred in the performance of assigned duties compensable under the Michigan Workmen's Compensation Law shall be paid the difference between teacher salary and Workmen's Compensation without deduction from sick leave for one year; beyond one year such payments to be charged against sick leave on a pro-rated basis until sick leave is exhausted; extended leave for one year to engage in local, state, or national association activities, to join the Peace Corps or Job Corps, to be an exchange teacher, to study in major field, to accept special assignment in research or teaching, or to campaign for or serve in public office.

INSURANCE: Board pays from $72.15 per month for family coverage to $24.86 for an individual, for medical, dental, term life, and long-term disability insurance.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; leave for teacher representative to participate in business activities of the association shall be granted with loss of pay equal to the cost of a substitute, up to a total of 20 days per year; right to use school buildings and equipment, including telephones, typewriters, duplicating machines, calculating machines, and all types of audiovisual equipment when such equipment is not otherwise in use; right to post notices of its activities on bulletin boards in each staff lounge or designated location in each school building; the board to provide information available to the public; association representatives permitted to transact official business on school property at reasonable times, provided that this shall not interfere with normal school operations.

INSTRUCTION: Junior high teachers shall have no more than six assigned periods each day and senior high teachers, no more than five assigned periods each day; uninterrupted duty-free lunch period of at least 45 minutes; secondary teachers shall have at least one unassigned period for preparing lessons, student or parent conferences, etc.; teachers will report to duty 15 minutes prior to the start of the school day and shall remain 15 minutes after the close of school; the board of education shall consider the recommendations made by the association relative to the school calendar prior to its adoption; the association and teachers will continue, in accordance with past practices to assist in the study, review, revision, updating, and amending of curriculum through department and grade committees; teachers will be relieved of nonteaching duties to the extent practical through the use of nonteaching personnel; an Instructional Council shall be established to provide consultation with, and recommendations to the board of education for improvements in teaching methods, techniques, class composition, curricular, and other pertinent phases of the instructional program.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board; teachers have the right to review their personnel file upon request; teacher evaluations shall be made regularly in writing by the principal or a designated staff member; evaluations shall be made with the full knowledge and cooperation of the teacher and shall be signed by the teacher; teacher evaluations shall be based upon criteria developed cooperatively by teachers, staff members and the board of education; in case of a reduction in force, probationary employees will be laid off first; further layoffs will be based on seniority within classification and knowledge, skill, and efficiency on the job and physical fitness; teachers shall be recalled in inverse order of layoff for new positions for which they are certified and qualified; the recall list shall be maintained for not more than two years; the board will give first consideration to qualified candidates from within its own staff when filling vacancies, including supervisory and administrative positions; a teacher involuntarily transferred shall be granted a personal interview with the superintendent or his representative to discuss the reasons for the transfer; preference will be given to teachers regularly employed in the district on the basis of qualifications and seniority for special teaching assignments in summer school programs, and adult education and evening school programs; all teaching conditions which prevail during the regular school year shall also prevail during the summer, adult education, and evening school programs; the board shall support and assist teachers with respect to control, discipline, and legal services; the board will reimburse teachers for loss, damage, or destruction of clothing, or personal property which occurs as a result of an assault by a pupil; teachers will be notified of complaints and will be granted an opportunity to answer them in conference or in writing at the discretion of the principal.

Youngstown State University
Youngstown, Ohio

Between Youngstown State University and Youngstown State University Chapter of the Ohio Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 800 certificated professional employees, including nine-month full-service faculty and excluding any position at the level of department chairman or above. Provision for renegotiation should either party notify the other on or before January 1, 1975, that it desires to modify the agreement.

COMPENSATION: Instructors, $8,000 to $12,000; assistant professor, $10,000 to $15,000; associate professor, $12,000 to $18,000; professor, $15,000 (no maximum established); in fiscal 1973-74 and again in 1974-75 each faculty member will receive a flat across-the-board increase of $500 and a 2.75 percent increase.

OTHER: Compensation per quarter for summer teaching will be at the rate of 1/36 of the preceding academic year salary.

LEAVES: Fifteen sick leave days granted yearly, credited at the rate of one and a quarter days per month, 120 days maximum accumulation; sick leave may be granted to husbands for prenatal and postnatal care of the wife upon certification from the attending physician that the husband's presence is necessary for the care of the child or the wife; the university will encourage attendance at professional conferences and seminars, but suitable arrangement must be made for studies to continue during the period of absence; court or jury leave granted with pay, all compensation received shall be deposited with the Youngstown State University cashier's office; faculty members on short-term military leave will be paid the difference between the contractual salary and military pay for up to 31 days; upon exhaustion of paid leave, leaves of absence without pay for illness or physical disability will be granted for up to 2 years per occurrence.

INSURANCE: University-paid hospitalization, surgical, life, and major medical coverage; in cases involving termination of employment insurance coverage will be maintained until the end of the faculty member's contract year, unless he voluntarily terminates his employment; in case of retrenchment, and if permitted by law, the faculty member's coverage will continue for one year following the last day of his contract year or until he acquires new employment; if a faculty member dies, medical coverage for his dependents will be maintained for the balance of his contract year; the dependents may thereafter maintain the insurance at their own expense for one additional year at the group rate; the university will provide up to $100,000 against the loss of life and limb of members of the bargaining unit traveling on university business; faculty members previously covered under the retirement system of university may continue contributions to the retirement system on a tax-sheltered basis; tax deferred annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; authorized association representatives will have access to the university premises to transact association business; association will be permitted reasonable use of university bulletin boards, faculty mail boxes, and university mail service for communication with members of the bargaining unit; the board will provide information relating to the negotiation or administration of this agreement, including the internal operating budget, the record of income and disbursement, quarterly enrollment reports, and agenda and official minutes of the Board of Trustees meetings.

INSTRUCTION: A joint committee of the university and the association will study the workload of faculty members and attempt to agree on modifications; a faculty member assigned an overload will be given an equivalent reduction in load during the current or subsequent year; the academic day will extend from 7:00 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. for teaching responsibilities; the university will develop the academic calendar in consultation with the association; the academic work week will extend from Monday through Friday even though some classes may be scheduled on Saturday; the academic year extends from September 15 through June 15; association members will have the opportunity to assist in the development of curricula and course offerings, determination and implementation of policies and criteria affecting recomendations on promotions, terminations, merit increases, tenure, leaves, and other related matters, determination of goals and periodic evaluation of the department, formulation of departmental policies consistent with academic freedom and university-wide policies in regard to attendance, grading examinations, class size, or other matters of instruction, preserving academic standards, and enhancing the quality of instruction; summer teaching assignments will be offered on a rotating basis without preference as to rank, tenure status, and years of service; no faculty member obliged to accept a summer teaching assignment; faculty members will observe reasonable office hours in order to be available for counseling students who seek help; additionally, faculty members will make additional hours available for advising students before class enrollment for the first or succeeding quarter and, if requested, during registration.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; faculty members and association have the right to review personnel file at reasonable times; faculty members will be expected to attend departmental faculty meetings and graduation exercises and convocations; the association and the university will devise an evaluation instrument to be utilized as the primary factor in determining a faculty member's career; each faculty member will be counseled annually on his performance; prior to notification of nonrenewal, the department chairman may meet with the faculty member to discuss the reasons for nonreappointment; the faculty member may attend this meeting with a faculty witness or an association representative; the faculty member may appeal the decision to the Dean, the Vice-President for Academic Affairs, and/or the President; notice of nonreappointment must be given no later than March 1 to a full-service faculty member who has completed less than one academic year at the university and no later than December 1 to a faculty member who has completed one or more academic years; any faculty member, tenured or not, may be terminated at any time for cause; in the case of a tenured member, cause may include evaluations which reveal a consistent and clear inability to maintain satisfactory performance in teaching scholarship and university service; in the case of both tenured and nontenured members, cause includes personal conduct that clearly disqualifies an individual as a member of the faculty; a faculty member whose fitness is questioned will have the opportunity to discuss the matter with the appropriate administrator and have a faculty witness of his choice and/or an association representative present; when a member is terminated, he will receive written notice from the university with a full statement of the reasons; a tenured member terminated for personal conduct will receive one year's notice and, if permitted by law, be paid the equivalent of an academic year's salary from the date of notification of intent to terminate; the faculty member can demand a hearing before an ad hoc committee of seven tenured members of the bargaining unit selected by lot by the secretary of the Senate; both parties may be represented by counsel, require witnesses to testify under oath, cross-examine witnesses, and record proceedings; within 10 days after termination of the hearing the committee will file its report with the Vice-President for Academic Affairs; after considering the report the vice-president may recommend termination to the president; if the president disagrees with the ad hoc committee's report, he may state his objections and ask for a reconsideration of the case; only after study of the committee's reconsideration whould the president make a final decision that might overrule the committee; if the president proceeds with the termination, the faculty member may appeal the matter to arbitration;

FACULTY PROMOTION

The promotion of a faculty member shall depend upon his performance in teaching, scholarship, and University service. His rating under the evaluation process in these areas shall be the primary factor in his promotability.

The eligibility of a faculty member for promotion is based upon length of service in each rank and/or the attainment of degrees as indicated below, as well as attainment of the minimum salary of the next higher rank.

1. Instructor: a graduate degree in field of specialization or its equivalent;

2. Assistant Professor:

a). a terminal degree in a relevant academic field; or b). a masters degree in a relevant academic field plus a minimum of four (4) years of prior experience in University level instruction.

3. Associate Professor:

a). a terminal degree in a relevant academic field plus a minimum of four (4) years of prior experience at the rank of Assistant Professor; or b). a masters degree in a relevant academic field plus a minimum of seven (7) years of prior experience at the rank of Assistant Professor.

4. Professor:

a). a terminal degree in a relevant academic field plus a minimum of six (6) years of prior experience at the rank of Associate Professor; or b). a masters degree in a relevant academic field plus a minimum of nine (9) years of prior experience at the rank of Associate Professor.

Completion of the years of service in the rank does not of itself assure promotion to the next rank. A faculty member with long years of satisfactory service in a given rank deserves special consideration. A faculty member whose performance is outstanding is eligible to be advanced more rapidly than the rate indicated.

The determination of a faculty member's eligibility for promotion in rank will be based only on the content of his official personnel file. Other sources of information may not be used.

If a faculty member at the rank of Assistant Professor acquires a terminal degree, each year of his service in that rank prior to the acquisition of the terminal degree will count as two-thirds (2/3) of one year toward the four (4) years required in Paragraph 3(a) above.

If a faculty member at the rank of Associate Professor acquires a terminal degree, each year of his service in that rank prior to the acquisition of the terminal degree will count as three-fourths (3/4) of one year toward the six (6) years required in Paragraph 4(a) above.

Recommendations for promotion may be initiated in one of three ways:

1). by the Department Promotion Committee of the candidate's home department;

2). by written request of the candidate to the Department Promotion Committee (to be forwarded in any case to the University Promotion Committee via the Chairman and the Dean);

3). by recommendation of the Vice-President for Academic Affairs.

1. Department Promotion Committee

All candidates for promotion in rank, including department chairmen, shall be selected by a Department Promotions Committee which has been elected by a secret ballot of all full-service faculty members in the department. The department chairman shall see to it that this committee is elected in the first month of the academic year. The four ranks—Instructor, Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, and Professor—shall be represented equally on the Department Promotions Committee when available. The department chairman shall not be eligible to serve on the Promotions Committee, but shall be consulted. No member of the committee will participate in regard to his own candidacy.

The eligibility for promotion of every department member will be considered annually by the Department Promotion Committee. All department members will be notified of the decision of the Department Promotion Committee at the end of its deliberations.

The recommendations of the Department Promotions Committee will be submitted to the Department Chairman who will submit the formal recommendations for promotion and add thereto his comments and/or recommendations before submitting them to the Dean of the school or college. The Dean will add his comments and/or recommendations and forward the promotion recommendations to the University Promotion Committee.

2. University Promotion Committee

The University Promotion Committee shall consist of the Vice-President for Academic Affairs (who will chair the committee), the Dean of the Graduate School, one academic Dean (on a rotating basis), and four (4) faculty members elected by full-service faculty with no more than one faculty member from the same school or college serving at a given time. The rotation system is set forth in Appendix A.

The University Promotion Committee shall consider all candidates proposed in accordance with the procedures outlined above, including individually initiated requests. The recommendation of the Promotion Committee will be submitted to the President and reported to the Department Chairman.

3. Action by the President

Upon receipt of the recommendations of the Promotion Committee, the President will review the recommendations and submit them to the Board of Trustees with his recommendation for approval. Should the President believe that a promotion recommended by the University Promotion Committee is unwarranted, he shall request in writing, with reasons, that the committee reconsider the individual. If upon reconsideration, the University Promotion Committee stands by its original recommendation for promotion, the committee shall notify the President in writing with its reasons and this statement shall be forwarded to the Board of Trustees along with the President's recommendation for final action.

4. Appeals

A faculty member who is eligible for promotion under the terms of this Article and who has been denied promotion two consecutive times after having been approved by the University Promotion Committee may, following the second denial, process an appeal to the Vice-President for Academic Affairs who will appoint an appeals panel. This panel will consist of two members designated by the Vice-President for Academic Affairs, two by the Association, and one additional member chosen by the four to serve as Chairman. The panel shall decide the merits of the case and its recommendations shall be forwarded to the Trustees. A faculty member who believes that the procedures presented by this Article have not been followed may file a grievance under the terms of Article VII.

5. Other

The Vice-President for Academic Affairs shall review annually the eligibility for promotion of all those members of the bargaining unit who hold academic rank but who are not members of regular academic departments.

Promotions will be effective the academic year following approval by the Board of Trustees, except that the Board may designate an earlier effective date if it deems it appropriate to do so.

Faculty members with split appointments will have a home department which is charged with the responsibility of evaluating such faculty members for promotion. The home department shall consult with the other department(s).

In determining whether retrenchment is necessary the administration will consider (a) consistently declining student credit hour production in a department, over four quarters, (b) academically sound student faculty ratios, (c) the state of development of the department, (d) the balance between academic and nonacademic personnel, (e) posibilities of enrollment trend reversals, (f) the necessity of disciplines and programs to be other than self-supporting, (g) normal attrition, and (h) other pertinent factors; the guidelines which shall be applied for retrenchment are as follows:

RETRENCHMENT OF FACULTY

1. Procedure

Each fall quarter, as soon as 14th day enrollment reports are available, the Administration will review overall staffing needs. If it determines that retrenchment is indicated, it shall prepare a preliminary report reflecting its views on the areas or departments where, in its judgment, retrenchment should occur.

The determination shall include the following considerations:

a). consistently declining student credit hour production in a department over four quarters (excluding the Summer) as compared to the same quarters during the previous year;

b). academically sound student-faculty ratios;

c). the state of the development of the department;

d). the balance between academic and non-academic personnel;

e). possibilities of enrollment trend reversals;

f). the necessity of some disciplines and programs to be other than self-supporting;

g). normal attrition; and h). other pertinent factors.

This preliminary report shall be submitted to the respective departments for review. If the department staff objects to the preliminary report as it affects the department, such objections and reasons therefor shall be submitted to a Joint Committee which shall consist of the Vice-President for Academic Affiars as Chairman, four individuals selected by the Administration and four representatives of the Association. The Joint Committee shall review the objection of each such department and will make its recommendation to the President.

2678

2. Guidelines

The guidelines which shall be applied are as follows:

a). Full-service faculty already employed by the University, except in special and unusual circumstances, have a priority of employment in their given subject matter area over limited-service faculty. Tenured faculty have a priority over non-tenured faculty.

b). The possibilities of early retirement should be thoroughly explored before consideration is given to other means of personnel reduction. However, no faculty member will have early retirement forced upon him because of retrenchment.

c). Any position that is vacant, or that becomes vacant, for whatever reasons, is considered closed and may not be filled unless it is rejustified and approved as new.

d). Under University regulations, a faculty member must always have a "home" department where determinations are made concerning his academic life and tenure. This obligation always resides with the "home" department.

e). A faculty member who has been retrenched shall be placed on a recall list for three years. He shall have access to a list of personnel vacancies as they occur, and he shall receive preference to positions for which he is qualified over non-campus applicants. For a period of one year, or until he accepts a full-time post elsewhere, the faculty member will enjoy all his faculty insurance benefits at University expense. Faculty members shall be recalled according to the principle "last laid-off, first recalled," providing a faculty member is qualified to perform the duties of the vacant position.

f). Department chairmen and Deans will make every effort to relocate extra faculty in other academic, administrative, or staff posts needing personnel when the faculty member's qualifications permit. If such shift is to be an administrative or staff position, the salary and other considerations of employment shall not exceed that which is shown for the administrative or staff position in the budget. If the appointment is academic, the rank and salary shall be the same as were held by the faculty member being transferred. Such shifts between academic departments fall into two distinct categories:

i). Permanent Transfers. A permanent transfer is a permanent change of department home and must be acceptable to the receiving department, and to the faculty member. The years of service already rendered in the original home department will be counted toward the acquisition of tenure in the receiving department except that the receiving department shall always be granted no less than two (2) full years of actual service in that department before tenure may be acquired therein. In a permanent transfer, the former home department relinquishes all obligations to the faculty member at the time of transfer.

ii). Loans. A loan is a split assignment between two or more departments for temporary service, but with the home department retaining the responsibility for continued employment of the individual since the loan arrangement is temporary. A receiving department which accepts a loaned faculty member has no obligations toward that faculty member beyond the one-year commitment in terms of the period of time it will continue the loan. If the receiving department refuses to renew the loan, the loaned faculty member will be returned to his home department for reconsideration of his status. The receiving department may change a loan to a permanent transfer at the conclusion of the year if the faculty member and the home department agree, and it has an appropriate position available in which case the receiving department assumes the obligations for the faculty member's future as described under Permanent Transfer. A home department is obligated to take back a loaned faculty member before hiring a new faculty member or limited-service faculty in the area of his competency. Appendix B attached summarizes the application of this Paragraph (f). Appendix C sets forth pertinent definitions.

g). When an academic department is notified that a reduction in the number of full-service faculty members in the department is necessary, and possibilities of reduction through normal attrition, leaves, loans, and transfers have been exhausted, the person or persons to be discontinued shall be determined in inverse order of length of continuous service in the department, provided the remaining faculty members have the necessary qualifications to teach the remaining courses or perform the remaining duties. The Joint Committee referred to above shall hear appeals from departments which seek to modify the seniority application.

h). Any full-service faculty member who is discontinued for reasons of retrenchment shall be advised of such decision by December 15th of his current contract year for lay-off commencing with the next academic year, and further advised that the reason for his discontinuation is not due to dissatisfaction with his services. Every effort shall be made to assist such displaced faculty members to relocate. Nothing in these guidelines, however, shall prevent discontinuation of any nontenured faculty member for other reasons.

Faculty members will have the freedom to report the truth as they see it in the classroom, in publications, in reports of research activities, and all other professional and academic forums; faculty members may accept, on a individual contract, consulting and other professional positions consistent with the standards of their profession; the extent of consulting activity will be made known to the department head and dean.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS OUTSTANDING NEA REFERENCE WORK?

COMPREHENSIVE NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT PROVISIONS
1972 Edition

PART I	- Scope of Agreement and Association, Board and Teacher Rights Provisions
PART II	- Joint Committees, Instructional, Educational and Teacher Assignment and Work-Load Provisions
PART III	- Grievance Procedures, Personnel and Salary Provisions
PART IV	- Group Insurance, Leaves of Absence and Fringe Benefit Provisions

This four-part document prepared by NEA Research is an invaluable source of negotiated items in teacher/board agreements. In 1,418 pages it analyzes over 1,500 negotiated agreements in U.S. public school systems. Over 300 negotiable items are identified and coded system-by-system. (Specific content of the provisions may be obtained on request by using the Information Request Forms provided in each volume.)

REPRESENTATION INFORMATION

- State
- Name of school system
- Location of school system
- Name of recognized organization
- National affiliation of recognized organization
- Number of professional personnel represented
- Type of agreement
- Term of comprehensive agreement
- Agreement page number for particular provision

PROVISION ANALYSIS

- 200 provision titles
- Detailed analysis coded for 300 variables:
  - Negotiation impasse: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Jt. administrator-teacher committees
  - Grievance arbitration: 3rd party involved in type of decision
  - Bench marks in salary schedules: 1-, 2-, or 3-year agreements
  - Group insurance: part or full premium paid by board
  - 21 short-term leaves identified

. . . . . .

Please send:

_____ $40./set. (4 parts per set)
(qty.) Stock No. 388-11940.

_____ Special price ONLY for NEA state
(qty.) and local associations: $25./set.
Stock No. 388-11938.

Check one below:

_____ Payment enclosed. Make checks payable to NEA.
_____ Bill on purchase order attached.

Mail to:

NEA PUBLICATION-SALES SECTION 192
1201 Sixteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20036

_____
Name

_____
Organization

_____
Address

_____
City/State/ZIP

VOL. 6 NO. 7
MARCH 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Alaskan Probationers Cannot Grieve Nonretention
- Contract's Validity Not Dependent on City Council's Approval
- Teachers Paid For Bomb Scare Make-up Days
- N.J. Nontenured Teachers Entitled To Nonrenewal Hearing
- Prior Settlement Restricts Arbitration Clause
- Strike Enjoined Under Pa. PERA
- Federal Court Upholds Teachers Right To Strike
- Courts Cannot Bar NLRB Elections Except for Violations of NLRA

Board Findings and Rulings 7
- Board Required to Consult Teachers on Student Discipline
- Evaluation Forms for Substitute Teachers' No Contract Violation
- Missed Reopener Deadline Renews Contract
- Per-Diem Substitutes Too Ephemeral for Taylor Law Coverage
- NLRB Finds Illegal Secondary Boycott of Municipal Facilities

Negotiation Notes 10
- Arizona Board of Ed. Would Strip Striking Teachers of Certification
- Mass. Enacts New Bargaining Law for Municipal and State Employees
- Minn. Employers Must Grant Checkoff
- Montana PLRB Adopts Rules and Regulations
- N.D. Permits Some Nonteaching Personnel in Teacher Unit
- Virginia Legalizes Use of Arbitration
- IPA Monies Allocated for State and Local Governments
- CPI—January 1974

Statistics 13
- Teacher Qualification Provisions
- White Collar Pay Increased 5.4 Percent

Special Reports 17
- Briefs of Agreements
- Personnel File Provisions in Teacher Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2681

CASE REVIEWS

ALASKA

Probationary Teachers Cannot Grieve Nonretention

Finding that statutory requirements for terminating a nontenured teacher had been met, the Alaska Supreme Court upheld a school district's firing of two nontenured teachers.

The case was brought on appeal from Superior Court which had ruled in the school district's favor. The teachers had first sought relief through the grievance procedure of their contract, but their claims were rejected as nongrievable.

The Supreme Court noted at the outset that the nonretention of the teachers was in compliance with law, and the teachers had been given timely notices.

The high court, like the trial court, determined that the parties' grievance procedure did not extend to the rehiring of nontenured teachers, and probationary employees who are lawfully discharged cannot obtain permanent status through the grievance procedure. The court said, however, that in some instances the grievance procedure may be of value in attempting to persuade rehiring by bringing out evidence and argument by which termination may be reconsidered.

Concluding, the court decided that the nontenured teachers were no longer employed by the school district and that their termination was lawful and final. The high court affirmed the trial court's decision. (Robert Van Gorder et al., Appellants v. Mantanuska-Susitna Borough School District et al., Appellees, Alaska Supreme Court, September 12, 1973.)

MAINE

Validity of Contract Not Dependent on City Council's Approval

Reviewing the legality of a decision of the Maine Public Employees Labor Relations Board, the Maine Superior Court upheld the board's ruling that an agreement negotiated between representatives of the Pine Tree Council #74, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, and representatives from the City Council of Augusta was valid. The city had originally petitioned the board, claiming that the agreement was not binding as the city council had never ratified it.

Although the transcript of the board's proceedings on the case were unavailable to the court, the court was empowered to rule only upon the matters of law involved in the case, not upon the questions of fact. Accordingly, the court was unable to find any legal error on the part of the board and thus dismissed the city's complaint. (City Council of Augusta et al., Plaintiffs v. Pine Tree Council #74, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Maine Superior Court, July 11, 1973.)

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Teachers Paid for Bomb Scare Make-up Days

In answer to a petition filed by the Association of Portsmouth Teachers, the New Hampshire Supreme Court ordered the Portsmouth School District to pay teachers for extra class days scheduled to make up time lost from bomb threats. The two extra days, both scheduled on Saturdays, extended the school year beyond the negotiated 183 class days.

High-school classes were dismissed early on 12 occasions because of bomb threats. As the school closings left a number of classes to be made up to meet the state requirement of 180 school days, the district drew up a new schedule lengthening school days and providing for two Saturday sessions. Teachers were not compensated for the Saturday sessions, and the Association filed a suit with the court requesting that teachers be paid 1/183 of their salary for each Saturday worked.

The district subsequently filed motions to dismiss the Association's suit, claiming that the make-up days were ordered by the commissioner of education, that under state law the order can be appealed only to the state board of education, and that the teachers' contracts required them to work on the two Saturdays.

The court disagreed with the school district's position that the extra days were ordered by the commissioner of education, but held that the commissioner had approved only the make-up days; therefore, the issue was not appealable to the state board. The Association's position was that the work performed by the teachers on the two Saturdays was in excess of the number of teaching days specified in their annual contracts. The school district argued that the annual contracts provided for a school year of at least 183 school days and thus gave the school district the option to schedule extra working days without additional compensation. Extending the school year to 185 days by adding the two Saturdays did not require the school district to grant teachers extra compensation.

The court found that this argument left the teachers at the mercy of the school district. Stating that interpretation of the contract should make the agreement fair and reasonable and should reflect the parties' intent at the time of negotiating the contract, the court rejected the board's argument. According to the court, it was the intent of the parties to have a 183-day school year; therefore, the additional Saturdays were beyond the teachers' contract. The court ordered the school district to pay teachers "on a quantum meruit basis" for the extra days worked. (Association of Portsmouth Teachers v. Portsmouth School District, New Hampshire Supreme Court, November 30, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Nontenured Teacher Entitled to Hearing on Nonrenewal

Noting that a nontenured teacher is ordinarily entitled neither to the renewal of an employment contract nor to a hearing regarding contract nonrenewal, the New Jersey Superior Court held that a teacher whose contract was not renewed was entitled to a "full evidentiary hearing" on the contention that her First and Fourteenth Amendment rights were violated. Accordingly, the court reversed the decision of the lower court and remanded the issue to the state commissioner of education.

The nontenured teacher's contract was not renewed because her evaluation report indicated that she had not supported and was too critical of administrative policy and action, and that she had not adequately performed her responsibilities.

The South Plainfield Education Association processed the complaint through the grievance procedure which provides appeal to the local board of education. The board declared the matter non-grievable, and indicated that no reason need be given for nonrenewal of a probationary employee. The association then sought relief through binding arbitration; however, the board sought judicial relief and had the arbitration proceedings enjoined pending exhaustion of remedies.

When the matter was appealed to the commissioner of education, the board argued for a dismissal before a deputy commissioner whose report was presented to and upheld by the commissioner, who later ruled the Association was not a party to the proceedings. The matter was then referred to the state board of education which upheld the commissioner.

The Superior Court, Appellate Division, upheld the contention that the commissioner was in error by failing to allow the Association to review and prepare objections, although the commissioner argued that he was not the head of an agency under state statute which detailed administration procedures in such matters, and that his decisions are reviewed by the state board where the parties are permitted to file objections.

The court determined that while the law was settled concerning a final decision made by one who did not hear the evidence but makes a determination in part from a hearing officer, there existed a risk that the final decision might be based upon findings not supported by the evidence. Therefore, to reduce that risk and allow fair play, it was essential that the hearing officer's report be reviewed by the parties and that the parties have an opportunity to make corrections prior to submission to the deciding officer. The court declared that the teacher and the Association were entitled to a copy of the examiner's report and that there was an error in the state board's proceedings for the same reason.

Regarding the issue of whether the Association was a party to the proceedings, the court concluded that the concern of an exclusive representative regarding matters which affect employees was genuine and sufficient enough to enable participation in the proceedings before the commissioner and the state board of education; accordingly, the court ruled the commissioner to be in error in dismissing the Association as a party to the proceedings.

As to whether a nontenured teacher has a right to a hearing, the court stated that although a nontenured teacher does not have a right to renewal of an employment contract nor the right to a hearing ordinarily, a board's discretion is conditioned by the Fourteenth Amendment. The court cited several pertinent cases, including Perry v. Sinderman wherein the Supreme Court decided that a teacher's lack of tenure or the absence of a contractual right to re-employment did not preclude a claim that the nonrenewal action was precipitated by criticism of administrative policies and infringed upon his constitutional right to free speech.

The court concluded that the teacher adequately showed that the board's decision was possibly based on her use of free speech rights under the First and Fourteenth Amendments and therefore she was entitled to a full evidentiary hearing. The court reversed the decision of the lower court and remanded the case to the commissioner for further proceedings. (Marilyn Winston and South Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield State Board of Education, New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, August 9, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Settlement Restricts Arbitrability

The New York Supreme Court upheld a negotiated agreement wherein a college instructor waived the right to arbitration and agreed to a procedure for determining his termination or reappointment.

Following notification that an art instructor would not be reappointed for the 1972-73 school year, the United Federation of College Teachers filed a step one grievance on his behalf. In negotiations the board and the instructor's representatives reached an agreement whereby the instructor would withdraw all grievances, complaints, and claims concerning the decision not to reappoint him for the coming fall and spring semesters. In return the board agreed to reappoint him, but with the stipulation that he waive his right to arbitration and agree to a special procedure to determine his adequacy as an instructor and his right to continue employment.

According to the special procedure the university chancellor would appoint a three-member panel composed of people skilled in art education to observe the instructor during the fall semester. If two of the three panel members determined that the instructor's performance was adequate, he would be certified retroactive to September 1, 1972, and thereby obtain a tenured position. However, if he did not receive a positive evaluation, he would be observed by another three-member panel during the spring semester. If his performance then was found adequate, he would be reinstated retroactive to September 1, 1972.

The fall evaluation was negative, and the instructor was notifed that he would be evaluated again during the spring semester. The instructor responded by filing a step 21 grievance, charging violation of the union contract and bad faith implementation of the settlement agreement.

The court found no evidence of bias on the part of the panel of observers nor any evidence of violation of the settlement agreement. Additionally, the court pointed out that the agreement between the parties not to proceed to arbitration was legal and that no grounds for variance from the agreed-upon procedure in lieu of arbitration was warranted. (Matter of Board of Higher Education of City of New York (De Melas), New York Supreme Court, New York County, November 7, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Teacher Strike Enjoined As Court Interprets Public Employee Relations Act

Interpreting the Public Employee Relations Act (PERA), which gives public employees, including teachers, the right to strike after procedures for resolving disputes in the collective bargaining process have been exhausted, the Court of Common Pleas enjoined the Bristol Township Education Association from any further strike against the School District of Bristol.

The court based its decision on findings that the district gave sufficient evidence that the strike created a "clear and present danger or threat to the health, safety or welfare to the public" as provided by PERA before a strike can be enjoined.

The district challenged the legality of the strike, contending that the Association sought to bargain on items deemed managerial rights by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. The court rejected this allegation since no evidence was offered in support of it. Further, the district contended that the strike presented a danger to health, safety, and welfare of the public.

From the evidence submitted by the school board, the court found that the strike had caused harm to the students, the public, and the teachers. The court concluded that the strike had created and continued to create a clear and present danger and a continuing threat to the public, and, therefore, declared that the school district was entitled to relief. (School District of Bristol Township v. Bristol Township Education Association, The Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County, October 17, 1973.)

FEDERAL

School Board Policy Denying Bargaining Rights to Unions Asserting Right To Strike Unlawful

The United States Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit, declared unconstitutional a policy of the Aurora Public Schools Board of Education that excluded from bargaining rights any union that asserted a right to strike against any government agency or assisted or participated in such a strike. In declaring the policy violative of constitutional free speech guarantees, the court overturned a United States District Court ruling and enabled teachers to seek reimbursement for losses suffered from previous enforcement of the policy.

During negotiation sessions between the Aurora Education Association and the board for the 1971-72 school year, the Association adopted a resolution that teachers would not return to the classroom at the beginning of the 1971-72 school year if a satisfactory settlement had not been reached. The board terminated its negotiations with the Association and offered each teacher an individual contract that included greater benefits than those provided in 1970-71. However, each teacher was required to sign an agreement acknowledging that the board would no longer recognize the Association as the teachers' bargaining agent under board policy that refused recognition to unions asserting a right to strike. Many teachers signed and returned the contracts. Seven teachers who did not accept employment under the new contract were offered continued employment on the 1970-71 contract terms. Although these teachers accepted employment on the offered terms, they filed suit with the United States District Court seeking a declaration that the board's policy violated the Civil Rights Act of 1871, and denied teachers due process rights. These teachers also requested that they be awarded back pay, exemplary and actual damages, and attorneys' fees in addition to being employed under the 1971-72 contract terms.

The school board, opposing the teachers' suit, stated that the teachers did not have a valid claim, the Civil Rights Act of 1871 was not applicable to the board or its members, and the Association was not a proper plaintiff to assert a claim under the Act. The district court, of the opinion that the board's action had not violated the Civil Rights Act nor denied teachers due process rights, agreed with the board that the Association did not have a valid claim and, therefore, dismissed the case. The Association appealed.

In the eyes of the court, the main issue of the case was whether a public employer had the right to interfere with employees' freedom to think and to speak. Considering the legality of the board policy, the court cited decisions that had invalidated almost identical policies in federal statutes and administrative provisions. The cited decisions had found that the language of the policies was ambiguous as to whether the restrictions concerned a person's philosphical or political belief in his right to strike. These policies were ruled unconstitutional interference with freedom of speech. Applying this rationale to the instant case, the court ruled that the board's policy was invalid because it violated free speech guarantees of the Constitution.

Since the only question before the court was whether the teachers had a valid cause for action, the court did not consider other points raised by the plaintiffs. During the course of the proceedings, the board eliminated the phrase, "asserts the right to strike against any local, state or federal agency of the government," from its policy. The board's action was not part of a settlement nor was it stipulated by the court. The board, therefore, was not required to adhere to its revised policy nor was it obligated to pay damages to employees adversely affected by the policy. Dismissing the district court's ruling, the court added that the decision did not preclude plaintiffs from seeking equitable relief, monetary, remedial, and punitive. (Aurora Education Association, Plaintiffs-Appellants v. Board of Education of Aurora School District # 131, Defendants-Appellees, United States Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit, December 20, 1973.)

* * *

Court Cannot Bar NLRB Elections Except in Cases of Violation of the Act

Ruling that it lacked jurisdiction, the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York dismissed the motion of New York University (NYU) for a preliminary injunction to bar the National Labor Relations Board and its regional director from holding an election ordered in July 1973. The dismissal handed the University another set-back in its two-year attempt to halt NLRB elections among its faculty and professional staff, as sought by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the United Federation of College Teachers (UFT).

The University held that its faculty members were independent contractors or supervisors, not employees within the meaning of the term under the Taft-Hartley Act, and therefore exempt from National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) provisions. Further, NYU argued that its Law School faculty members did not constitute a separate appropriate unit.

Rejecting the university's contentions, the court held that since the board had discretion to determine who was an "employee" or "supervisor" under law, the court's acceptance of that determination was immaterial. Further, the court held that the law school faculty members could be treated as a separate unit.

NYU cited Leedom v. Kyne, where the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that NLRB unit determinations can be reviewed by district courts if the board admits noncompliance with a specific prohibition of the Act. The court conceded that this ruling could apply to the instant case, had the board determined the unit members not to be "employees" and nevertheless ordered elections. The court added that the matter would more properly come before an appeals court.

Citing Fay v. Douds, in which the Second Circuit Court of Appeals held that a federal district court has jurisdiction when there is a contended violation of constitutional rights, the university maintained that NLRB's decision violated due process. The court held that this argument would also be more proper before an appeals court.

Concluding, the court ruled that it lacked jurisdiction and stated that it would have denied a preliminary injunction in any event. (New York University, Plaintiff v. National Labor Relations Board et al., Defendants, United States District Court, Southern District of New York, September 20, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

INDIANA

School Board Required To Communicate with Teachers on Student Discipline

Ruling on a grievance filed by the Fort Wayne Education Association, the arbitrator found that the Fort Wayne Community Schools Board of Trustees was violating the parties' negotiated agreement by neglecting to inform teachers of the disposition of discipline cases they instituted and by transferring students recommended for discipline without informing or consulting other teachers. The arbitrator recommended establishment and maintenance of effective communications between the board and the Association concerning student discipline.

Following a wave of disciplinary problems at a junior high school, the teachers association instituted a grievance charging that the school administration had failed to give teachers full support when disciplining students as required by the parties' contract. Considering the Association's charges, the arbitrator felt that student discipline was not a typical area of collective bargaining, but that many factors other than employer-employee relations enter into the formation of student discipline policy. However, the parties' agreement, while providing for board-determined discipline policies, grants teachers full administrative support in implementing discipline policies. The arbitrator concluded that the administration by failing to inform teachers of the outcome of their discipline recommendations and by transferring students without consulting teachers neglected to give them sufficient support to carry out discipline policies.

According to the arbitrator, the remedy for the contract violations was an effective communication system between the parties concerning student discipline policies and procedures. The arbitrator dismissed Association claims that the administration failed to consistently enforce its student discipline handbook and allowed teachers to work under unsafe conditions; the former because it was outside the area of collective bargaining, the latter because it was unsubstantiated. (Fort Wayne Community School District, Board of School Trustees and the Fort Wayne Education Association, American Arbitration Association, September 24, 1973.)

MICHIGAN

Evaluation Forms for Substitute Teachers No Contract Violation

Extra-contractual evaluation forms instituted by a school board for use by substitute teachers in assessing teaching atmosphere and conditions were within the purview of the school board and did not constitute a contract violation.

An arbitrator decided that the West Bloomfield Board of Education was within its rights in instituting substitute teacher evaluation forms, and he therefore dismissed the grievance filed by the West Bloomfield Education Association.

The WBEA contended that the use of the forms permitted teacher evaluation by individuals other than those contractually authorized. The board maintained that these forms were neither evaluations under the meaning of the contract, nor forbidden by the contract.

Finding that the first part of the form was an objective assessment of availability of needed items for performing teaching duties, the arbitrator turned to the portion of the form that asked for subjective comments, both positive and negative. Indicating that subjective comments are made by many individuals, the arbitrator said that an administrator must consider the input. Adding that administrators are not limited to direct observations but evaluate teachers by means of input from several sources, the arbitrator held that the contractual evaluation report pointed to factors that suggested that the basis for parts of the evaluation might be other than direct observations.

Determining that the evidence did not prove a delegation of the evaluation duty, an act prohibited by the contract, the arbitrator found the forms to be related to and limited to providing efficient operation. Further, the arbitrator found no contractual violation although substitutes' comments on lesson plans prepared for them by the regular teachers and comments on the plans are discussed and modified according to the teachers' explanations.

Concluding, the arbitrator determined the substitute teacher reporting form to be a reasonable administrative tool for insuring efficiency. (West Bloomfield Education Association and West Bloomfield Board of Education, June 20, 1973.)

Summer Driving Instructors Included in Teacher Bargaining Unit

Instructors of summer driver training courses are not casual employees and may be included in the teacher bargaining unit.

Acting on a petition of the Van Buren Educational Association seeking a representation election among driver education instructors, the Michigan Employment Relations Commission had to decide whether these instructors were entitled to representation as a bargaining group, or whether bargaining should be denied them altogether because they were employed part time for short periods.

The Van Buren School District maintained that these instructors lacked sufficient community of interest with regular full-time teachers because they taught only part time during the summer, and received none of the fringe benefits accorded full-time teachers. Furthermore, many of the instructors were from outside the Van Buren School District and had no working contact with the regular teachers.

As all the driver education instructors were certified teachers and many were rehired each year under a continuing yearly instructional program, MERC found substantial community of interest and concluded that bargaining rights for the instructors were not conditional on full-time employment nor was the subject matter at issue. With the alternatives of no bargaining at all or bargaining in a fractionalized unit, MERC preferred to avoid a multiplicity of units and ruled, as in Utica Community Schools, that one unit would be in everyone's best interest.

Finding no reason to disqualify driver education instructors, MERC directed an accretion election to be held in which they could choose to join or not join the Association bargaining unit. (Van Buren Public Schools v. Van Buren Educational Association, affiliated with The Michigan and National Education Associations, Michigan Employment Relations Commission, November 27, 1973.)

Association Misses Reopener Deadline; Contract Is Automatically Renewed

Where provision exists for automatic renewal of a contract, the party desiring to modify or terminate the agreement must notify the other party by the stipulated deadline, otherwise the contract is continued. The Michigan Employment Relations Commission accepted an administrative law judge's recommended dismissal of unfair labor practice charges filed by the Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association against the Riverside Osteopathic Hospital alleging unlawful refusal to bargain.

The controversy centered on whether the Association, as it maintained, had properly notified the hospital bargaining representative of its intent to open negotiations. The hospital's position was that the contract had been renewed automatically, but that it would bargain on wages. The Association refused the offer of unlimited bargaining and pressured for full-scale talks, whereupon the hospital withdrew its offer. When the hospital held to its position on renewal, the Association charged refusal to bargain.

Agreeing with the hospital's position, the administrative law judge found that the Association had not complied with the provision requiring notice of intent to bargain prior to the expiration date of the contract. The Association had previously contacted the hospital's attorney on the matter and had been informed that negotiations would be handled by the personnel director, who subsequently was not contacted until after the expiration date. As the contract, therefore, was automatically renewed and the hospital had no further duty to bargain, the judge recommended dismissal of the unfair labor practice charges. (Riverside Osteopathic Hospital v. Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association, MERC, November 14, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Employment of Per-Diem Substitutes Too Ephemeral To Be Covered by Taylor Law

The New York Public Employment Relations Board denied a petition for certification of the Substitute Teachers Association of Ramapo No. 2 as the exclusive representative of per-diem substitute teachers employed by the East Ramapo Central School District.

The Association contended that per-diem substitutes are covered by the Taylor Law and therefore entitled to representation since the definition of employee in the language of the law is broadly inclusive and does not specifically exclude per-diem substitutes.

Pointing to its previous rulings, the Board rejected the Association's argument that the definition of public employee is all-inclusive. The Board assumed the position that some employment is too ephemeral to be covered under the Taylor Law. In this case, the school district was not required to employ the per-diem substitutes involved for any specific amount of time, and these persons were not bound to accept offers of work. Therefore, the employment relationship of the substitutes to the school district was casual or temporary.

The Board pointed out that up to 40 percent of the per-diem substitutes worked no more than 10 days of the 180-day school year and more than 70 percent of these substitutes worked less than a quarter of the year. An individual may work one day or more per year while being free to accept or reject work. Additionally, the continuity rate from year to year for per-diem substitutes was under 50 percent while the Board required seasonal employees to have at least 60-percent continuity rate in order to be covered by the Taylor Law. On the basis of this reasoning the Board determined that per-diem employees did not have a substantial or continuing employment relationship with the school district to warrant coverage under the Law. (In the Matter of East Ramapo Central School District, Employer, and Substitute Teachers Association of Ramapo No. 2, Petitioner, Public Employment Relations Board, October 16, 1973.)

FEDERAL

Union's Secondary Boycott of Municipal Facilities Illegal

The National Labor Relations Board ruled that picketing of a municipal construction site and government offices by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers constituted an illegal secondary boycott under the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA).

After the city awarded an electrical work contract to the Mansfield Contracting Corporation, the IBEW began picketing the work site, the mayor's mansion, and the city's administrative offices but not Mansfield's place of business. Workers and other contractors and subcontractors involved in the project observed the picket lines. Since IBEW was party to an agreement with other contractors on the project and Mansfield's employees were represented by Teamsters, the purpose of the picketing was to pressure contractors and subcontractors to advise the city not to do business with Mansfield. The NLRB claimed that the picketing was secondary activity prohibited by the NLRA.

The union contended that since a municipality was involved in the case, and since municipalities were not covered by the NLRA, the Board had no control over the union's activity. The Board agreed that the city was a target of the activity and that municipalities were exempt from NLRA provisions concerning employers. However, the Act prohibits secondary activity against "any person" and thus includes municipalities.

Another union argument, that the picketing was purely informational, was also rejected by the NLRB since the worksite was isolated from the mainstream of society, and an object of the picketing was unlawful secondary activity.

A third contention of the union, that the picketing was an exercise of its Constitutional right of free speech, was also refuted by the Board. As the city's contract was a sealed-bid award it was not political, and the union's attempt to dislodge the contract from a particular company with which it had a dispute was not a constitutionally protected activity. Moreover, the court pointed out, a violation finding under the NLRA requires that only one of the objects of picketing be prohibited by the Act and it was not within the Board's power to invalidate a statutory provision on constitutional grounds.

The union's final claim, that the issue was moot since the picketing had ceased, was refuted by the Board. The court ruled that a cessation of the prohibited activity was no defense to the alleged violation, as the abeyance of the activity did not nullify the violation nor was it an assurance that the activity would not be resumed.

The Board, therefore, ruled that the union had engaged in unlawful secondary picketing at the construction site. (Local 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, AFL-CIO and Mansfield Construction Corporation, National Labor Relations Board, August 14, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

ARIZONA

Striking Teachers May Lose Certification

The Arizona State Board of Education has tentatively adopted a policy of revoking or suspending teachers' certificates for striking. Striking, as defined by the policy, constitutes "unprofessional or immoral conduct or evident unfitness to teach."

The policy, similar to previous policy and conforming to the 1971 attorney general's opinion, lists five criteria to be met before certification is revoked: (a) teachers have been served notice of a strike and a strike is in progress, (b) pickets are present on school property, (c) the school board has tried to keep schools open and allow nonstriking teachers to work, (d) the dispute involves contract terms for the next school year, and (e) striking teachers have contracted to provide services during the strike period. A teacher's certificate can be revoked or suspended "as long as the complaint is properly filed, the board's procedures for hearing such complaint are followed, and the board's action is not arbitrary."

A spokesman for the Arizona Education Association charged that the policy eliminates due process because "it prejudges you automatically guilty if you meet the conditions," and is redundant as there already is a penalty provision in the education law for teachers' unprofessional acts.

MASSACHUSETTS

Massachusetts Enacts New Bargaining Law for Municipal and State Employees

A new public employee bargaining law covering municipal and state employees which will become effective July 1, 1974, was enacted by the Massachusetts legislature to replace the Municipal Employees Relations Act (MERA). The new law excludes confidential and managerial employees and some elected and appointed officials.

Representation elections, selection of appropriate bargaining units, and general policing of the Act will be handled by the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission.

In bargaining neither party is required to accept a proposal or make a concession; however, both parties must negotiate "in good faith with respect to wages, hours, standards, productivity and performance, and any other terms and conditions of employment." A provision for agency fees may be included in an agreement if approved by a majority of bargaining unit employees. If contract provisions conflict with any city ordinance, law, or regulation, the negotiated agreement will govern.

As under MERA, strikes are prohibited. Other prohibited practices that apply to the employer, the employee, and their bargaining agents are defined. Generally these unfair labor practices are similar to those outlined in the National Labor Relations Act "but, with the addition that a failure to participate in good faith in statutory mediation, arbitration or fact finding is prohibited."

Contracts may contain a provision for final and binding arbitration of impasses, but in its absence either party may petition the state commission to order binding arbitration. However, in some impasse situations where the parties have not agreed to arbitration and proceedings to resolve the impasse have been exhausted, the dispute may be returned to the parties for further bargaining.

MINNESOTA

AGO: Employer Must Provide Dues Checkoff

Commenting on the dues checkoff provision of the state's Public Employment Relations Act, the Minnesota Attorney General stated that upon proper request, public employers must grant dues checkoff to exclusive representatives. Dues checkoff rights do not have to be negotiated between employers and employees; however, existing contract clauses providing for dues checkoff remain valid. In addition, absent an exclusive representative, the employer must provide dues checkoff to individuals for the organization of their choice.

MONTANA

Appeals Board Adopts Rules and Regulations To Administer Public Employee Bargaining Statute

Pursuant to the Montana Public Employee Bargaining Law, the governor appointed a five-member personnel appeals board to determine bargaining units, conduct elections, identify unfair labor practices, assign mediators and fact-finders to bargaining disputes, and serve as an appeal board for the state personnel bureau. The new Board of Personnel Appeals adopted temporary rules and regulations to implement the bargaining law which became effective July 1, 1973.

Under the new rules, the board will meet at the request of the chairman or three members. Bargaining agreements will extend for at least one year but no longer than two years. Petitions for a unit determination or representation election must be accompanied by prooof that 30 percent of the employees are interested. Units will be determined by community of interest, conditions of employment, bargaining history, personnel policies, and diversity of job classifications. Rules pertinent to elections will govern eligibility of voters, notice, poll watchers, ballots, electioneering, challenges, runoffs, and objections. Elections are to be by secret ballot, and the majority of valid votes cast will determine the exclusive representative. The board will certify as exclusive representative a union existing before July 1973 if it submits a copy of the bargaining agreement. Also included in the rules are provisions governing charges of unfair labor practices, i.e., procedures for filing complaints and answers, giving notice of hearings, making findings and exceptions, and issuing final orders. Confidential nonpublic mediation or a list of fact-finders will be provided for an impasse at the request of either party.

Because of the exigent need for the board to exercise its powers, it adopted the interim rules and regulations under state statutes providing for the adoption of such rules.

NORTH DAKOTA

AGO: Some Nonteaching Personnel May Be Included in Teacher Unit

Responding to the request for clarification of the state's professional negotiations law brought by the state superintendent of public instruction, the North Dakota Attorney General ruled that librarians, supervisors, and counselors are properly part of a teachers' bargaining unit. The attorney general based his ruling on the fact that unless personnel spend 50 percent or more of their time on administration, they are not considered administrators for purposes of the negotiation law.

VIRGINIA

Arbitration Procedure on School Policies Ruled Legal

A school board may enter into binding arbitration to resolve disputes occuring from the application of its policies, rules, and regulations, in the opinion of the state attorney general as he interpreted the procedures of the state board of education for resolving teacher grievances precipitated by applying a school board's policy, rule, or regulation.

The procedure, which ends in a binding decision by a three-member panel, mandates first-level informal discussion with the immediate supervisor, then written appeals successively to the principal, superintendent, and local board of education if the dispute is not settled at first-level talks. The local board of education must hold a hearing prior to making a decision.

Final appeal goes to an arbitration panel consisting of one board-appointed member, one member chosen by the employee, and a third member, who acts as chairman, selected by these two or by alternatively striking names from a list of arbitrators.

A ruling of the panel is final and binding if all time limits are observed. Failure to comply with a panel decision results in a board decision that is final and nongrievable. Expenses incurred are shared by the board and the employee; however, if a grievance goes to arbitration, the board assumes the panel's expenses.

The procedures further stipulate that local boards that have developed a grievance and arbitration procedure consistent with the state board's procedure may apply it with the state board's express approval.

The procedure defines grievance as a "difference or dispute" over the effect of school-board policies, rules, and regulations on employee work activity, and limits the panel's jurisdiction to application of these policies, rules, and regulations without changing any of them. Also, the procedure lists prerogatives of the board, superintendent, or his designee that the panel cannot alter.

Citing another opinion, the attorney general noted that no authority prevented mediation or arbitration at impasse but that the final decision rested with the board. The attorney general also noted that his determination did not involve binding arbitration of disputes arising from an existing negotiated contract.

FEDERAL

IPA Grants Set for State and Local Governments

Under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act (IPA) of 1970, federal grants ranging from $50,000 to $803,000 will go to the 50 states and the District of Columbia. The purpose of the grants is to help state and local governments improve the quality of public service at the state and local levels by improving personnel management systems and practices and by training administrative, professional, and technical employees.

IPA authorizes Civil Service Commission (CSC) and other federal assistance to state and local governments through personnel exchange, technical assistance, matching fund grants, and training fellowships. Grants are made on matching basis with CSC providing 75 percent of the cost of approved projects.

Allocation of the funds depends on population and the number of public employees at each government level. Eighty percent of the funds must be allocated to the states and the District of Columbia according to a formula, and at least 50 percent of the amount allocated to a state is mandated for the local governments.

This CSC has also allocated grants totalling $275,000 to the National Training and Development Service (NTDS), a nonprofit organization with programs designed to strengthen leadership and decision-making of state and local public officials.

NTDS programs include seminars for mayors, county executives, state legislators, and other elected and appointed leaders, and provide training in organizational development for city managers, municipal league directors, state agency administrators, and other state and local officials. NTDS has received previous grants of $432,000 from the Civil Service Commission and is also funded by the Ford Foundation and by participating state and local governments.

In addition NTDS offers a back and forth movement for federal, state, and local employees on temporary assignments between the federal government, and state and local governments or higher education institutions.

* * *

The Consumer Price Index—January 1974

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.9 percent in January to 139.7 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. Higher prices for food and energy items accounted for about four-fifths of the increase in the January index, with each component contributing about equally. The effect of the increases was moderated by price declines for apparel and used cars. The January CPI was 9.4 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the CPI increased 1.0 percent in January. The increase was 0.5 percent in December and 0.8 percent in November. The food index rose 1.6 percent in January, compared with 0.3 percent in December and 1.4 percent in November. The increase in the nonfood commodities index of 1.3 percent was almost twice as much as the increases in each of the two preceding months. The services index rose 0.7 percent in January, compared with 0.6 percent in November and in December.

The index for food purchased in grocery stores—which usually is unchanged in January—increased 1.8 percent, twice the increases in both November and December. Meat and poultry prices, which declined in each of the last three months of 1973, increased in January, and prices of most other foods continued to rise. Increases in prices of dairy products and cereal and bakery products, however, were not so large as those recorded during most of 1973. Prices of processed fruits and vegetables continued to move up rapidly; fresh fruits rose more than they usually do in January, and fresh vegetables increased seasonally. The index for food away from home—restaurant meals and snacks—rose 0.6 percent in January, about the same as in December, and noticeabley less than the increases last fall.

The nonfood commodities index rose 0.6 percent; it usually declines by this amount in January. Prices of fuel oil and gasoline continued to rise sharply. Over the year, the fuel oil and coal index and the gasoline and motor oil index increased 61.2 percent and 25.1 percent, respectively. Prices also increased in January for other nonfood commodities such as newspapers, housekeeping supplies, and household durables. The new car index rose more than it usually does in January, reflecting the mid-December increases in manufacturers' prices. The effect of these price increases was partly offset by lower prices for used cars and seasonal declines in apparel prices.

The service index rose 0.7 percent in January. Higher charges for gas and electricity accounted for almost a fourth of the rise. In addition, charges for other household services such as home maintenance and repairs, housekeeping services, property taxes, and mortgage interest costs also rose. The index for medical care services rose more rapidly than in recent months led by increases in dentists' fees and charges for semi-private hospital rooms. In the transportation services category, charges for auto repairs continued to rise, and auto registration fees increased. Local transit fares declined.

STATISTICS

TEACHER QUALIFICATION PROVISIONS, 1970-71

All 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico have statutorily determined minimum standards for teacher certification, and provisions in negotiated agreements sometimes reiterate these requirements, often with additional requirements, thus making them grievable. Such provisions were contained in 3/10 of the 1,529 agreements filed with NEA Research. A group of provisions (1 in 5 with at least one agreement from each state having a negotiated agreement) was selected for analysis.

The majority of analyzed agreements (89.8 percent) stipulated state certification requirements. Of these agreements some required state certification only (35.7 percent), state certification and additional educational requirements (36.7 percent), or state certification and a combination of education, health and other requirements (17.4 percent).

TABLE 1.—GENERAL CONTENT OF TEACHER QUALIFICATION PROVISIONS IN NEGOTIATED AGREEMENTS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Total agreements on file	1,529	100.0
Number of agreements having teacher qualification provisions	470	30.7
Provisions selected for analysis	98	6.4
Provisions stipulating:
State certification only	35	35.7
State certification and education requirements only	36	36.7
Minimum education requirements only	10	10.2
State certification and combination of education, health, and other requirements	17	17.4

Minimum education requirements only were specified in 1 agreement in 10 (Table 1).

Most of the provisions specifying educational requirements stipulated that teachers must have a bachelor's degree for initial employment. Several provisions further stated that the teacher's undergraduate work must include a major or minor in the academic area of the teacher's assignment or a certain number of credits in education and psychology. Only one provision required newly employed teachers to have a master's degree (Table 2).

Health requirements contained in teacher qualification provisions included a physical examination by either a school board or private physician and/or a negative tuberculin test. Other requirements incorporated into the provisions obligated teachers to meet standards set up by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools or the administration, to take the National Teacher Examination, or to be a United States citizen.

References to emergency situations when either education or state certification requirements could be relaxed were contained in nearly one-third of the provisions (Table 3). Although none of the provisions defined an emergency situation further than when a qualified teacher was unavailable, several provisions added that the association would be informed when a teacher with lower qualifications was to be hired and/or the association's assistance in finding a suitably qualified teacher would be enlisted. Seventeen agreements that allowed hiring of teachers with lower qualifications required the teachers to continue their academic studies to acquire certification and/or a bachelor's degree.

Several sample teacher qualification provisions are reprinted below.

Professional Qualifications and Assignments

No new teacher shall be employed by the Board for a regular teaching assignment who does not have a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university, and a provisional or permanent certificate.

The employment of teachers by individual contracts based on special certificates is to be permitted only in cases of absolute necessity or where the teacher has outstanding credentials and the Association shall be so notified in each instance and the board shall indicate the extent to which they endeavored to fill the position with a fully certificated person.

[Three Rivers, Michigan]

* * *

QUALIFICATIONS FOR TEACHERS

A minimum of the B.A. Degree, including the necessary credits in education and psychology, or a provisional certificate, shall be required for appointment in the elementary school.

The training for appointment in the junior and high schools shall meet the requirements of the official state accrediting agencies and the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

A certificate of good health from a physician shall be required for appointment. Subsequent proof of good health shall be required at the discretion of the Board of Education.

A statement certifying freedom from tuberculosis shall be required. This statement shall be based on an X-ray examination of the chest or the patch skin test. The law requires that prior to start of employment any such employee who has direct contact with pupils must present evidence of freedom from communicable tuberculosis. This evidence must be renewed annually according to state law.

[Rock Island, Illinois]

* * *

The Board agrees to hire only those teachers who are certifiable by the Vermont State Department of Education for every regular teaching assignment, except, this provision shall not apply in instances where availability of personnel is critical.

[Windsor, Vermont]

* * *

TABLE 2.–EDUCATIONAL REQUIREMENTS IN TEACHER QUALIFICATION PROVISIONS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Selected teacher qualification provisions	98	100.0
Provisions specifying educational requirements to be completed prior to teacher's employment	48	49.0
Bachelor's degree	47	48.0
Bachelor's degree minimum requirement	43	43.9
Bachelor's degree with a major or minor in teaching field	3	3.1
Bachelor's degree with courses in psychology or education	1	1.0
Master's degree	1	1.0

TABLE 3.–EMERGENCY SITUATIONS IN TEACHER QUALIFICATION PROVISIONS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Selected teacher qualification provisions	98	100.0
Provisions relating to emergency situations	32	32.6
Academic study required subsequent to employment	17	17.4
Association to be informed when teachers with lower qualifications are to be hired and/or association's assistance is enlisted	11	11.2

* * *

The Board agrees to hire only teachers holding certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners for every teaching assignment.

[Princeton, New Jersey]

* * *

In order to provide students and faculty with a variety of backgrounds and experiences, the school staff should represent a wide range of the ethnic and social segments of society. In compliance with Federal and state laws and rules and regulations of the Minnesota State Department of Education. Such teachers should be actively recruited. Appropriate in service training is encouraged.

All teachers must conform to the certification requirements prescribed by the State Department of Education.

New appointments for the elementary grades shall have a degree from a teacher training institution.

Secondary teachers shall have a degree from an accredited teacher training institution, preferably with a major in their field of teaching; however, a minor shall be acceptable at the discretion of the Administration.

[Minnetonka, Minnesota]

* * *

Applicants for teaching positions in the Phoenix Union High School System shall be required to meet the following basic qualifications:

Health Requirements

All applicants must meet the basic health requirements as specified in the policies of the Board of Education and the State Statutes. Teachers must have a report of an X-ray or skin test, indicating absence of tuberculosis, registered with the County Superintendent of Schools before they can receive their first pay check. This report must be renewed prior to October 1 of each year.

Professional Requirements

The applicant for any teaching position in the Phoenix Union High School System, with the exception of the Trades and Industry Section and the Health Occupations Section of the Vocational Education Program and Librarians, must meet the following professional requirements:

A valid Arizona certificate for teaching in the secondary schools of the state, as well as any special certification requirement in a particular area, and

A Master's Degree, except that a maximum of 20 percent of the teaching staff (including all categories) may be hired with a Bachelor's Degree and 30 semester hours in their subject area field. A teacher hired with a Bachelor's Degree agrees to make regular and diligent progress toward earning a Master's Degree. A Master's Degree must be secured before a fourth annual contract is offered.

[Phoenix U.H.S.D., Arizona]

The term "teacher" means any person who holds a teacher's certificate issued by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. (Chapter 118.19 Laws of Wisconsin) A teaching contract cannot be issued to any person not legally authorized to teach. All teaching contracts shall terminate if and when the authority to teach terminates. (Chapter 118.19 Laws of Wisconsin)

Evidence of such authorization to teach must be filed with the Superintendent of Schools before the effective date of contract.

Teachers should have a Bachelor's Degree in order to be authorized to teach in the Neenah Public School System. Teachers not having a Bachelor's Degree must present evidence to the Superintendent of Schools that at least six credits toward the Bachelor's Degree are being earned each year.

[Neenah, Wisconsin]

WHITE COLLAR PAY INCREASED 5.4 PERCENT

A 5.4 percent rise in average annual salaries for selected white-collar occupations in private industry was indicated by preliminary data collected by the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), during the year ending March 1973. At the same time the Consumer Price Index rose 4.7 percent.

BLS stated that its survey data throughout the 1960's showed a trend toward larger yearly increases in average salaries, but that rates of increase reached a peak in 1970-71 and began to decline during the 1971-73 period. The latest increase was the smallest in five years.

The largest increase, 5.6 percent, was recorded for the experienced professional and administrative occupational group, compared with a 2.8 percent advance recorded for the entry and development professional and administrative group. This year's marking of the fourth consecutive year of smaller salary advances for the entry group indicated a changing job market for college graduates. Increases of 5.3 percent and 5.1 percent were recorded for the technical support group and the clerical group, respectively.

TABLE 1.—AVERAGE ANNUAL INCREASE IN SALARIES, 1961-73

Period	All white-collar occupations	Professional, administrative, and technical support	Clerical and clerical supervisory
1	2	3	4
1961 to 1966[a] ..	3.1	3.4	2.7
1966 to 1967 ...	4.5	4.2	4.8
1967 to 1968 ...	5.4	5.5	5.3
1968 to 1969 ...	5.7	5.8	5.5
1969 to 1970 ...	6.2	6.2	6.2
1970 to 1971 ...	6.6	6.7	6.5
1971 to 1972 ...	5.9	5.5	6.2
1972 to 1973 ...	5.4	5.4	5.4

SOURCE: Christensen, Andrea. "White-Collar Pay Up 5.4 Percent." Monthly Labor Review 96: 53-55; October 1973.

[a] Average annual rate of increase.

TABLE 2.–AVERAGE SALARIES OF EMPLOYEES IN SELECTED WHITE-COLLAR OCCUPATIONS IN PRIVATE ESTABLISHMENTS, MARCH 1973[a]

Occupation and class	Number of employees[b]	Average salaries[c] Monthly	Average salaries[c] Annual
1	2	3	4
Accountants and auditors
Accountants I	7,026	$ 785	$ 9,417
Accountants II	12,492	911	10,934
Accountants III	27,927	1,039	12,472
Accountants IV	19,489	1,256	15,068
Accountants V	7,351	1,533	18,400
Auditors I	1,059	859	10,310
Auditors II	2,813	947	11,360
Auditors III	4,899	1,131	13,568
Auditors IV	2,524	1,389	16,669
Chief accountants I	644	1,352	16,220
Chief accountants II	1,239	1,553	18,634
Chief accountants III	726	1,891	22,687
Chief accountants IV	323	2,228	26,735
Attorneys
Attorneys I	558	1,123	13,478
Attorneys II	1,381	1,296	15,555
Attorneys III	2,416	1,630	19,565
Attorneys IV	1,812	2,058	24,693
Attorneys V	1,035	2,503	30,035
Attorneys VI	613	3,087	37,048
Buyers
Buyers I	3,204	800	9,603
Buyers II	11,388	953	11,431
Buyers III	12,892	1,153	13,835
Buyers IV	4,793	1,369	16,423
Personnel management
Job analysts I	59	780	9,362
Job analysts II	311	917	11,010
Job analysts III	628	1,088	13,061
Job analysts IV	590	1,351	16,211
Directors of personnel I	1,092	1,229	14,748
Directors of personnel II	1,919	1,479	17,753
Directors of personnel III	1,328	1,832	21,984
Directors of personnel IV	427	2,218	26,611
Chemists and engineers
Chemists I	1,466	836	10,028
Chemists II	4,535	961	11,534
Chemists III	9,123	1,101	13,217
Chemists IV	10,553	1,345	16,140
Chemists V	7,903	1,609	19,312
Chemists and engineers—Cont.
Chemists VI	4,160	$1,883	$22,602
Chemists VII	1,748	2,242	26,899
Chemists VIII	493	2,675	32,099
Engineers I	13,176	934	11,203
Engineers II	28,933	1,049	12,591
Engineers III	84,813	1,194	14,326
Engineers IV	117,447	1,419	17,030
Engineers V	79,996	1,635	19,614
Engineers VI	42,006	1,882	22,536
Engineers VII	14,871	2,140	25,681
Engineers VIII	3,587	2,458	29,499
Technical support
Engineering technicians I	3,428	625	7,500
Engineering technicians II	12,005	718	8,613
Engineering technicians III	25,231	834	10,005
Engineering technicians IV	30,332	938	11,257
Engineering techicians V	17,969	1,067	12,799
Draftsmen-tracers	4,225	557	6,687
Draftsmen I	19,012	666	7,988
Draftsmen II	30,284	819	9,832
Draftsmen III	29,876	1,014	12,173
Clerical supervisory
Keypunch supervisors I	949	690	8,286
Keypunch supervisors II	1,944	759	9,107
Keypunch supervisors III	1,179	846	10,149
Keypunch supervisors IV	343	1,006	12,076
Keypunch supervisors V	54	1,114	13,367
Clerical
Clerks, accounting I	90,567	516	6,188
Clerks, accounting II	65,790	6 [illegible]	7,812
Clerks, file I	26,017	404	4,852
Clerks, file II	22,643	446	6,349
Clerks, file III	8,091	549	6,593
Keypunch operators I	62,649	504	6,042
Keypunch operators II	46,510	577	6,922
Messengers	25,506	445	5,344
Secretaries I	96,643	612	7,347
Secretaries II	97,282	685	8,221
Secretaries III	54,641	737	8,842
Secretaries IV	16,757	799	9,583
Stenographers, general	46,533	543	6,521
Stenographers, senior	52,151	619	7,425
Typists I	63,801	453	5,434
Typists II	41,390	528	6,339

SOURCE: Christensen, Andrea. "White-Collar Pay Up 5.4 percent." Monthly Labor Review 96: 53-55; October 1973.

[a]Includes establishments with 250 workers or more in manufacturing and retail trade, and 100 or more in transportation; communication, electric, gas, and sanitary services; wholesale trade, engineering and architectural services, commercially operated research, development, and testing laboratories, and finance, insurance and, real estate.

[b]Occupational employment estimates related to the total in all establishments within scope of the survey and not to the number actually surveyed.

[c]Salaries reported relate to the standard salaries that were paid for standard work schedules; i.e., the straight-time salary corresponding to the employee's normal work schedule excluding overtime hours. Nonproduction bonuses are excluded, but cost-of-living bonuses and incentive earnings are included.

SPECIAL REPORTS

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Champaign, Illinois

Between Champaign Community Unit School District No. 4 and Champaign Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1976. Approximately 658 certificated professional employees, comprising all full- and part-time certificated personnel regularly employed in the district, except the superintendent, administrative assistants, directors, assistant directors, principals, assistant principals, coordinators, supervisors, and teacher aides. Provision for automatic renewal if the parties do not submit a written request for negotiations by March 1, 1976.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,000 to $9,800, 4 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $12,600 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,100 maximum; M.A., $9,600 to $14,800, 12 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,000 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $17,000 maximum; Ph.D., $17,200 maximum. (1974-75) B.A., $8,200 to $10,000, 4 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $13,000 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,500 maximum; M.A., $9,700 to $15,500, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $16,700 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $17,700 maximum; Ph.D., $17,900 maximum.

DIFFERENTIALS: High-school basketball and football coaches, $1,540; junior high football and basketball coaches, senior high assistant football, assistant basketball, track, baseball, and swimming coaches, $770; high-school first assistant football and wrestling coaches, $845; senior high dramatics, band, orchestra, choral, and athletic ticket manager, $615; junior high dramatics, band, orchestra, choral, and intramural program, $540; senior high exchange program, student council, and cross country, golf, assistant wrestling and tennis coaches, and junior high assistant football coach, $460; senior high annual, newspaper, building trades, and assistant track and baseball coaches, and junior high assistant basketball and track coaches; junior high assistant track coach and student council, cheerleader sponsor, and supervisor booster club, $310; senior high art and debate, junior high art and cross country coach, $230; senior high girls' tennis, basketball, volleyball, softball, track and field coaches, $175; department chairmen in junior and senior high school will receive in addition to their regular salary $615 if 10 or more personnel are in the department and $460 if five to nine are in the department; elementary-grade chairmen will receive $615.

OTHER: Summer school teachers will be compensated at $1,000 for a M.A. and $900 for a B.A.; $.12 per mile for approved mileage reimbursement except for those receiving a flat rate, which shall not exceed $40 per month.

INSURANCE: Board-paid health insurance; board will provide $1,000 in term life insurance.

LEAVES: Twelve days' annual sick leave per year, unlimited accumulation; two days of sick leave may be used for personal leave to attend to personal, legal, household, or family matters that require absence during school hours; the board and the association agree that professional leave be supported in part by the district; if a teacher has approval to attend a professional meeting, round trip coach fare may be paid and a substitute secured; the district will pay full salary minus jury duty remuneration; an employee who is an active member of the National Guard or the reserve forces and is mobilized during the school year will be granted a military leave at full pay minus military pay, for a maximum of two weeks, the military leave will expire with demobilization of the unit; sabbatical leave at one-half of basic salary or salary minus substitute fees, whichever is greater, for resident study, research, travel, or other purposes after six full years of service in the district; a tenured teacher may be granted a leave of absence without pay for prolonged illness, needed rest, necessities of the home, and allied reasons, or where such an absence would contribute to education in the district; a leave of absence up to one year will be granted to teachers to participate in exchange teaching programs, the Peace Corps, Teacher Corps, or Job Corps, cultural, travel, or work program related to the teacher's professional responsibilities or to serve as an officer or staff member of the Illinois Education Association or the National Education Association; upon return from such leave the teacher will be placed at the position on the salary schedule he would have attained had he taught in the district during such period.

ASSOCIATION: Right to use school buildings, facilities, and equipment at reasonable times; bulletin boards provided for the association and inter-school mail service and mail boxes; association representatives will be permitted to transact official association business on school property provided normal school operations are not interrupted; the board will provide information relating to school finance and adopted budget, and any readily available information relevant to negotiations; both parties may call upon professional and lay representatives for assistance during negotiations; the association president, president-elect or vice-president, the president of the board of education, and the superintendent shall meet monthly to promote the free flow of information.

INSTRUCTION: All regular classroom teachers will have a preparation period and a duty-free lunch of not less than 30 minutes.

TEACHER RIGHTS

Academic Freedom

The parties seek to educate young people in the democratic tradition, to foster a recognition of individual freedom and social responsibility.

An issue is controversial when some of its proposed solutions conflict with cherished interest, beliefs, or group affiliations of a section of citizens. Fundamental to most controversial issues is the intellectual or emotional attachment of some citizens to the interest or welfare of organizations or groups. It shall be the policy of the Champaign Community Schools to provide for dispassionate, unbiased, unprejudiced, and scientific study of controversial issues, in order that the pupil may have an opportunity to study such issues in a class atmosphere void of partisanship and bias. The discussion of such issues shall relate to the subject matter of the course. Without minimizing the importance of the large part of the curriculum made up of established truths and values and the elements of our American heritage and tradition, but recognizing that gradual social change is inevitable and that such change involves controversial issues is a responsibility of the public schools, since the respect for facts and an impartial search for truth is inherent in a democratic American society. The teacher, as an impartial moderator and guide, shall not attempt, either directly or indirectly, to limit or control the judgment of his pupils on such issues.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; teachers' personnel files to be open, readily accessible, and available for teacher examination upon request; nothing will be placed in the personnel file without prior knowledge of the teacher; every teacher will have the right to grieve any material in his personnel file and to have dissenting or explanatory material attached to any document on file; material not in the official file not be used as evidence in any arbitration; the work performance of tenured teachers to be evaluated once every two years; all nontenured teachers will be evaluated at least twice a year; any teacher required to appear before the board concerning any matter which could adversely affect his employment or salary will be given reasonable prior notice of the reasons for the meeting and will be entitled to have association representatives present to advise him and represent him; in filling vacancies the board will give preference to qualified teachers currently employed in the district; if it is necessary to transfer teachers for curriculum, budget, or building needs and no teachers apply for the vacancies by July 1, or no new hires become available before July 1, teachers will be transferred on the basis of length of service, qualifications, and needs of students; committees may be formed by the faculty at each building to advise the principal on matters of common concern; the principal and the association building representative will meet once a month to discuss school operations, proposed changes in existing policies and procedures, and implementation of this agreement; the board will render reasonable assistance to a teacher assaulted in the line of duty, and time lost by the teacher will not be charged against the teacher; released time will be granted to any teacher subpoenaed to testify in behalf of the teacher involved in an assault case.

* * *

Springfield, Illinois

Between Springfield School District #186 and Springfield Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 1,165 certificated professional employees.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $8,200 to $11,706, 9 increments; B.A. plus 8 hours, $12,116 maximum; B.A. plus 16 hours, $12,915 maximum; B.A. plus 24 hours, $13,325 maximum; M.A., $9,840 to $14,125, 11 increments; M.A. plus 8 hours, $14,535 maximum; M.A. plus 16 hours, $15,334 maximum; M.A. plus 24 hours, $15,744 maximum; M.A. plus 32 hours, $16,544 maximum; M.A. plus 40 hours, $16,954 maximum; M.A. plus 48 hours, $17,364 maximum. A teacher who enters the system for the first time and vocational teachers will receive credit for previous teaching experience to a maximum of six years; vocational teachers will receive two years of approved practical work experience in the area taught, to be credited as two steps on the salary schedule with additional years of approved practical work experience at the rate of one step for each two full years of experience; cooperative training coordinators (diversified occupations, cooperative work training, office occupation, home economic occupations, and distributive education) and business education teachers will be advanced one step on the salary schedule for each required and accredited year of vocational work experience in their teaching area, not to exceed two years; professional staff members will show evidence of four semester hours of professional growth courses each four-year period to continue vertical step advancement; longevity pay of an additional $400 after 19 years' service for M.A. plus levels.

REGISTERED NURSES

The Nurses' Salary Schedule shall place Bachelor Degree nurses on the Teachers' Bachelor Degree Schedule. Non-degree Registered Nurses shall be placed on a 10-step schedule calculated at 75% of the Bachelor's Degree Schedule.

Upon earning a B.S. Degree, nurses shall be placed upon the Bachelor's Degree schedule at a step which provides a salary increment at least equivalent to the basic teachers' incremental block.

Incremental credits will be granted after 1969-70 school year for courses leading to a B.S. Degree in Nursing and Public Health. With prior approval by the Superintendent, courses in Psychology, Sociology, and/or related fields may be used for incremental credits.

Each block of 8 hours toward a B.S. Degree will be credited at $100 per block to a total of $500.

Non-degree nurses shall be reimbursed for tuition paid to attend courses taken from any State College or University beyond the completion of five (5) blocks of eight (8) semester hours each under the following conditions:

Presentation of a statement from the registrar of an accredited university that the candidate has no more than twenty (20) semester hours of work remaining to secure a degree and meet all qualifications for the School Service Personnel Certificate with School Teacher Nurse endorsement.

Presentation of a tuition receipt(s) and a college transcript(s) substantiating satisfactory completion of courses required within the remaining twenty (20) semester hours.

Nurses will be notified of the Board of Education's intent to rehire them for the forthcoming year on the same dates teachers are notified.

The professional nursing staff shall be maintained with at least the same number of authorized positions for the 1973-74 school year as existed during the 1972-73 school year.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Five steps in sequence, 1, 2-4, 5-7, 8-10, and 11 plus, based on percent of B.A. base) Speech and debate-dramatics range, 6 percent, 1st step, to 10 percent, 11 plus step; cheerleader (middle school), 2 percent, 1st step, to 4 percent, 11 plus step; cheerleader (high school), audiovisual coordinator, newspaper, 7 percent, 1st step, to 11 percent, 11 plus step; intramural (middle school), 8 percent, 1st step, to 12 percent, 11 plus step; intramural (high school), 8.5 percent, 1st step, to 12 percent, 11 plus step; year book, 9 percent 1st step, to 13 percent, 11 plus step. (Five steps according to years' experience, 0, 1, 2-4, 5-9, and 10, based on percent of B.A. base) middle school cross country coaches, 3.3 percent, no experience, to 5.5 percent, 10 years' experience; track, 5.5 percent, no experience, to 7.7 percent, 10 years' experience; basketball, 6.6 percent, no experience, to 11.0 percent, 10 years' experience; high-school cross country, tennis, golf, 5.7 percent, no experience, to 8.3 percent, 10 years' experience; swimming, assistant wrestling, assistant baseball, assistant football, 11.0 percent, no experience, to 15.4 percent, 10 years' experience; basketball, football, 17.6 percent, no experience, to 22.0 percent, 10 years' experience.

EXTRA RESPONSIBILITY (COACHES)

All coaches who have attained teacher tenure will be notified within 30 days after their season is over if they are going to be relieved of their duties. If they are not notified, they will be reemployed in the same coaching position. All coaches who do not intend to remain at the same coaching position during the next coaching season, shall notify the District through their building principals of their intention to resign their coaching position within 30 days after their seasons are over.

Any high school assistant or middle school coach who is appointed as head coach on the high level (in the same sport in which he has been working) shall receive one year's credit on the percentage scale for every two (2) years' credit on the coaches compensation salary schedule earned as an assistant or middle school coach.

2698

Procedure for Selection and Dismissal of Athletic Coaches

Head coaches shall be evaluated by the principal and athletic director within 30 days after the close of the coaching season.

Assistant Coaches shall be evaluated by the head coach, principal, and athletic director within 30 days after the close of the coaching season.

The dismissal procedure for coaches will be the same as the normal dismissal procedure for a 1st year teacher.

All coaching evaluations will be placed in the coaches personnel file and will be subject to the provisions of this agreement relating to the personnel file.

A special athletic evaluation committee will be formed and given the responsibility of developing an evaluation instrument that will be ready for use at the beginning of the 1974-75 school year. The committee will consist of the Director of Secondary Education, who will serve as the chairman, High School principals or their designee, athletic director, and two coaches from each High School.

OTHER: Day-to-day substitute teachers will be paid at the rate established by the board; substitute teachers will be paid $23.50 per 7½ hour day; however, beginning with the 11th consecutive day of substituting, the rate will be $26.50 per day; driver education instructors will be paid $6.50 an hour; 10 cents per mile for travel within district and 8 cents per mile for travel outside the district.

PROFESSIONAL GROWTH AND INCREMENTS FOR BLOCKS OF ADVANCED WORK

In order to receive a salary increment for advanced work, staff members should file intent to change columns as the result of further approved training by April 1. Official transcripts to substantiate such training received prior to September 1, of any year, along with the request for increment approval shall be filed in the Office of Personnel. Assuming such requests are accurate and complete, partial payment will be included in the second payroll following submission of said request. Payment for increments will be in equal amounts over the total number of pay periods. The first partial payment shall be an amount equal to the bi-monthly increment times the number of elapsed pay periods. The balance of the increment will be spread evenly over the remaining pay periods.

Beginning in September 1969, professional staff members shall show evidence of no less than four (4) semester hours of professional growth courses each four (4) year period as outlined under the provisions used for granting additional blocks on the salary schedule in order to continue vertical step advancement. (Courses taken during the summer of 1969 may be used to fulfill this requirement.)

Professional Growth Courses

Graduate or undergraduate courses for which one does not receive incremental pay shall be counted for the professional growth reasons only, prior notification and approval are not necessary. Such courses will automatically receive professional growth credit upon receipt of the transcript to substantiate completion of work. Courses for which one receives incremental pay will automatically count toward the professional growth provisions.

General Provisions

The Springfield Education Association and the administration shall cooperatively establish opportunities by which teachers and administrators may increase or update their knowledge of their teaching field or in general areas of education designed to enhance the educational program of the district.

If arrangements can be made for graduate credit with a recognized university, incremental credit may be allowed according to the negotiated guidelines. All established courses and/or designated workshops will be recognized as contributing toward the requirement for professional growth credit.

Undergraduate courses generally will not be approved for incremental purposes on the salary schedule. They may be approved in unusual circumstances and as an exception to policy, however, if related to some of the special concerns and/or situations noted above, and with prior approval of the Superintendent.

All requests for approval of courses must include sufficient justification as outlined above, and should be submitted to the Superintendent for action at least two weeks prior to enrollment in said course. Every reasonable effort will be made to process and return requests for approval of courses to the applicant within two (2) weeks from the date of receipt. The two-week requirement may be waived where a change of course is necessitated by some factor over which the staff member has no control. These requests for approval will be returned to the staff member indicating one of the following and specific written reasons shall be given for (2), (3), and (4) below as to why approval for incremental credit was not given:

Approved for professinal growth and incremental credit.
Approved for professional growth only.
Disapproved.
More information needed before a decision can be reached.

Staff members taking University credit courses during the regular school year are expected to adhere to limitations imposed by the institution. In the absence of such guidelines, staff members could expect approval for incremental credit for not more than eight (8) semester hours earned during the regular school year. Any exceptions to this policy would require prior approval by the Superintendent.

Courses for which incremental credit is approved must be utilized within eight (8) years after completion of said course. Staff members may request approval for courses taken between 1964 and 1969 which would be evaluated and approved according to our present guidelines.

It will still be necessary for staff members to submit requests for increments based upon approved courses with substantiating transcripts.

With the fields of knowledge expanding at an accelerated rate, it is predictable and expected that professionally-oriented teachers will keep current in their field by taking appropriate and additional course work as required in teaching areas.

For Courses Beyond the B.A.

Graduate courses taken and which are part of an approved master's degree program in a subject area speciality included in our curriculum or a related field as defined in 2,b and c below offered by a fully accredited institution of higher learning will be accepted with the expectation of receiving incremental credit provided paragraph 5 of General Provisions, is not violated. Required transcripts submitted to substantiate completion of work and requests for increments must indicate that the applicant teacher has been accepted by the appropriate university authority into a selected master's degree program. In the event that the transcript does not indicate admission to an M.A. degree program, a letter from the registrar is required.

Graduate courses taken but which are not an integral part of an approved master's program, as has been described above, may be accepted for incremental credit if with prior approval of the Superintendent, and if:

They are in the teacher's major area of preparation or the area in which the teacher is presently teaching.

The courses are closely related to the teaching areas or are in a closely related field where they can be justified by current relevance to the instructional program. (By exposure to newly developed materials or methods in his field the teacher may avoid obsolescence or may increase his competency.)

A "related field" might include certain courses in such areas as:

Psychology
Guidance and Counseling
Audiovisual Methods
Educational Statistics and Methods of Research.
Other specific courses designed to enhance the teacher's professional effectiveness in the area to which the teacher is assigned.
Administration and Supervision

Provisions For Courses Beyond the Master's

All teachers who have been granted a master's degree are entitled to additional increments for training received at an accredited college or university at the graduate level after the granting of the master's degree. In addition, teachers with master's degrees who take refresher courses in their subject matter field or who are taking training for a specific position at other than the teacher's present level, with the knowledge and consent of the Superintendent's or of a teacher-administration evaluation committees, are entitled to additional increments.

Graduate courses taken after receipt of and beyond the Master's Degree which are in the teacher's assigned teaching area need no prior approval. They are accepted automatically for incremental credit on the salary schedule as indicated. The teacher should notify the Office of Personnel of intent to change columns by completing a special "Beyond the Master's Intent Form" by April 1 of each school year.

Courses for which incremental credit is sought and which are taken in a related field must be approved by the Superintendent in advance of enrollment in such courses. A "related field" might include certain courses in areas such as:

Psychology
Guidance and Counseling
Audiovisual Methods
Educational Statistics and/or Methods of Research
Administration and Supervision
Other General Educational courses designed to enhance the teacher's professional effectiveness in the area to which the teacher is assigned.

Teachers who are working toward certification in a special field, e.g., Guidance and Counseling or Administration and Supervision, should not expect to receive credit for every course made available to them. While it could be argued that any and all additional training may have some value in some way and to some degree, the District should not be expected, nor has the Board indicated any willingness to subsidize a teacher who wishes to prepare for a different and supposedly "better" position. An exception could be made, however, should the District through the Superintendent, request that a teacher acquire special and/or additional preparation as a prerequisite to an anticipated and agreed upon future assignment. Even in the absence of such a district request, if the teacher were to be employed and assigned subsequently to a position utilizing such special and/or additional training he will be given credit for the training at the time such assignment and determination of salary is made.

COUNSELORS

The counselors' regularly assigned day shall be that generally required of all teachers. As with classroom teachers and other regularly assigned certificated personnel this is not to be interpreted so as to interfere with or relieve the counselors of the responsibility for service as required to serve students, parents, and their colleagues appropriately and professionally. Counselors shall be on a contract year that provides for ten (10) days of service beyond that of regular teachers. The utilization of these ten (10) days may be flexible reflecting the justified needs and desires of the head counselor and building principals. The scheduling of these ten (10) days shall be completed in consultation and with the agreement of the counselor involved. Salary for the additional ten (10) days shall be calculated on a per diem basis.

In emergency situations or those characterized by obvious but unanticipated needs, extended time or extra days of duty for cause may be requested by principals. If approved by the Superintendent, the salary for such request and approved extended time will be calculated on a per diem basis.

LEAVES: The board will grant sick leave to each certificated employee at the following rate: 9 months - 12 days, 9½ months - 12½ days, 10 months - 13½ days, 10½ months - 14 days, 11 months - 14½ days; 155 days maximum accumulation; any teacher with at least 15 years' service in the school district may be reimbursed upon termination of employment while in good standing, one-half of the unused accumulated sick leave days at the current single daily substitute rate; two days of sick leave may be used for emergency or personal obligations, religious obligations, or additional bereavement leave; bereavement leave of three days per death in the immediate family; summer school employees will be granted one day of sick leave for personal illness, family emergency, family illness, or death in the immediate family; three days' leave for educational conferences and workshops; board will make up the difference between compensation and normal pay for any employee called for jury duty or an employee who is subpoenaed to appear in a matter in which the employee is not a party or a party of interest; sabbatical leave will be granted to three teachers at their regular salary minus salary for a substitute; however, such salary after deduction for substitute services shall in no case be less than the minimum provided by the school code, or one-half of the basic salary, whichever is greater; upon return from sabbatical the teacher will be assigned to a comparable position; upon recommendation of the superintendent, the board may grant a tenure teacher a leave of absence for illness, disability, educational or professional purposes, or political appointment or election; service leave of absence may be granted for participation in exchange teaching program in territories or other countries, foreign or military teaching programs, the Peace Corps, Job Corps, VISTA or some other similar program as a full-time participant, cultural travel or work program related to his professional responsibilities; upon return from such leave a teacher will be placed at the same position on the salary schedule as he would have attained nad he taught in the district during such period; maternity leave will be granted for up to four semesters to any second-year or tenured staff member who submits a written request by the end of the fourth month of pregnancy along with a physician's certification of pregnancy; the employee will not lose accumulated benefits and rights of employment previously gained; if the teacher has completed six months or more of the school term, she will be considered as having completed a full year for advancement on the salary schedule.

INSURANCE: Board pays 100 percent of employees health insurance with single coverage; however, employees may add coverage of dependents at own cost; board pays group life insurance in the amount of $10,000 with double indemnity; district will protect all employees and student teachers from losses resulting from suits arising out of claims for damages resulting from alleged negligent or wrongful acts of the employees committed in the scope of their employment or under the direction of the board of education; tax-sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: The association president will have his daily teaching schedule so arranged that his daily preparation period is the last period of his assigned day; he will be allowed to leave his assignment when necessary during this time to conduct affairs of the association; up to 10 days' released time for designated association representatives to attend the annual Illinois Education Association convention; the association will be granted an additional 10 days per year for members designated by the association president to participate in meetings connected with the Illinois Education Association and the National Education Association; service leave of absence may be granted to any teacher to serve in the Illinois Education Association or the National Education Association as an officer or staff member; upon return the teacher will be placed at the same position on the salary schedule as he would have attained had he taught in the district; the association has the right to use school facilities for meetings outside school hours; the board will provide storage space for association materials in a place that can be secured.

INSTRUCTION: High-school and middle-school teachers will be provided a 30-minute duty-free lunch period and not less than one preparation period per day; elementary teachers will be provided a 45-minute duty-free lunch period and not less than a 30-minute preparation period per day; every effort shall be made to limit a teacher's academic subject preparation to three; staff members who are assigned in lieu of their preparation period, the responsibility of an absent teacher's class, will be reimbursed on a prorated basis of a substitute teacher's pay; the administration will try to insure that no teacher will be required to teach more than four consecutive class periods; every attempt will be made to limit academic classes to 28 students; when a class exceeds 35 students, every reasonable attempt will be made to provide the teacher with such assistance as teacher aides, teacher assistants, or full-time substitutes; the assigned school day for teachers will not exceed 7½ consecutive hours; nonprofessional personnel will supervise noontime playground and lunchroom at all grade levels; professional staff on such duty will do so as volunteers and will be paid at the rate paid nonprofessional supervisors; summer school teaching positions will be filled where possible by regularly appointed teachers in the school district; consideration will be given to competence, major and minor field of study, length of service in the school district, and frequency of prior applications for assignment to summer positions; inservice training workshops will be held annually.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with board consideration of arbitration report and final decision within 20 days of submission by arbitrator; right to review personnel file upon written request and in the presence of a personnel officer; the teacher will be permitted to reproduce at his own expense any material in his file, excluding confidential recommendations of former employers and confidential college credentials; no material will be placed in the file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read it; the teacher must sign material placed in file to acknowledge that he has seen it; material that the teacher does not agree with may be contested; the association and the administration will provide opportunities for teachers to increase or update their knowledge of their teaching field or in general areas of education to enhance the educational growth of the district; the first two years of employment in the district will be considered probationary years regardless of previous experience; and for teachers with no previous experience may be extended one year; the parties agree that the primary purpose of teacher evaluation is to improve the quality of instruction; evaluations of a teacher's performance will be made by the principal or assistant principal only; evaluation by any other employee of the district will be advisory only; traveling teachers will have evaluations prepared by all building principals and subject area specialists, if appropriate, with the final evaluation a composite prepared by the Director of Elementary or Secondary Education; a copy of this evaluation, individual and composite, will be provided the teacher and a conference held if the teacher so requests; observation of formal classroom performance will be conducted with the full knowledge of the teacher; informal observations outside the classroom which are to be used to evaluate the teacher will be formally evaluated at least twice each year and a tenure teacher will be formally evaluated at least once each year; within five days after formal evaluation a conference will be held to discuss the evaluation; if the principal does not recommend a probationary teacher for continued employment, a copy of the recommendation will be given the teacher; teachers may be discharged only for reasonable and just cause which includes incompetency, cruelty, negligence, and immorality; if practicable seniority will be taken into account in making a transfer; assignments and reassignments will be made by the superintendent on the basis of qualifications and tenure; changes in assignment made before August 1 will be discussed with the staff member to determine if it is satisfactory; any teacher involuntarily transferred will be released from his contract or be granted a leave of absence not to exceed one year.

* * *

APPEAL (IMPASSE)

Mediation

If agreement cannot be reached during negotiations, either party may request mediation as a means of attempting resolution of the item or items in dispute. Such request must be honored by the other party. The Board and the Association shall stipulate in writing points of agreement and points not resolved.

The services of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service or other comparable neutral organization, if available, shall be used.

The mediator shall have the authority to confer separately or jointly with the parties, and shall take such other steps as he may deem appropriate in order to persuade the parties to resolve their differences and effect an agreement, provided, that the mediator shall not, without the consent of both parties, make finding of fact or recommend terms of settlement.

Fact-Finding

If mediation is unsuccessful in resolving the dispute between the parties, fact-finding may be invoked by either party.

A fact-finder shall be selected by the American Arbitration Association (AAA) or other comparable neutral organization, if available, in accordance with its rules.

At the time of declaration of impasse, if a proposal has been tendered and not countered, the party to which the proposal was offered may make a final counterproposal prior to fact-finding.

The items of impasse and the positions of the parties in fact-finding shall be as specified in paragraph "c" above.

The fact-finder shall in no more than thirty (30) days after his selection, make findings of fact and recommend terms of settlement, which terms shall be advisory only. Findings of fact and the recommended terms of settlement shall be submitted in writing to the parties.

The fact-finder shall, within (10) days after his selection, meet with the parties or their representatives, or both, either jointly or separately, make inquiries and investigations, hold hearings, and shall take other steps as he deems appropriate. The Board and Association shall furnish the fact-finder, upon his request, all records, papers and information in their possession relating to any matter under investigation by or in issue before the fact-finder.

Within fifteen (15) days from receipt of the written recommendation each party must notify the fact-finder, in writing, of its decision to accept or reject the recommendation of the fact-finder. If the written recommendation is not accepted, the reasons for non-acceptance must be included in the response.

The costs for the mediation and the fact-finder shall be equally shared by the Board and the Association.

Assistance

The Board and the Association may call upon competent professional and lay representatives to consider the matter under discussion and to make suggestions. Both parties have the right to utilize the service of consultants in the deliberations.

Miscellaneous

Any and all agreements reached as the result of negotiations shall be reduced to writing and copies provided to all parties.

Nothing in this agreement shall preclude or impinge upon the recognized and inherent right of the Superintendent and/or a member of the Springfield Education Association negotiation committee to consult with such members of the administrative staff as he may choose concerning matters brought before the negotiating committees. All such conferences shall be private and no information shall be released without mutual consent of the Board and the Association.

* * *

REPRESENTATION REFERENDUM

A group challenging the Association must submit evidence that it has at least thirty percent (30%) of the total regularly certificated professional staff as members. This evidence shall be filed with the Secretary of the Board of Education between September 15 and October 15 of any odd-numbered year. Such a referendum shall be held within thirty (30) days of the filing of the petition of membership.

Time

Such election will be held on a school day which is immediately preceded and followed by a school day. The polls will be open from 3:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Places

Such election will be held in all middle and high schools.

Eligibility

An eligibility list shall be developed by the Association, the challenging group and representatives of the Board of Education. Copies of said eligibility list shall be made available for the President and/or spokesman of each group, each building principal, and one copy conspicuously displayed in each teacher faculty room. Such eligibility list shall be delivered and displayed within 5 school days of the election. Any challenge to the eligibility list must be made within 48 hours of the election.

Upon signing the affidavit the person will be issued a ballot initialed by a polling judge. Administration and District clerical personnel are not eligible for service as polling judges. If a teacher is selected to serve as a polling judge, it shall not interfere with their working day. Upon completion of voting, the ballot shall be folded and given to the polling judge who will deposit it in the sealed ballot box.

A list of all persons voting absentee will be sent to each polling site no later than 3:15 p.m. on election day. Such individuals delivering lists cannot be a district clerical employee or administrator.

Lobbying Rules

Lobbyists will be permitted in the building to visit with staff members before, or after their 7¼ hours of the regularly assigned teaching day. If the lobbyist is not a member of that building staff, proper arrangements with the building principal must be made in advance. On election day there will absolutely be no distribution of any campaign materials on school grounds. In addition, there will be no campaigning by outside representatives on this day. All posters will be removed prior to the start of this school day by the responsible groups. It will, however, be permissible to wear organizational pins on election day. No permission will be granted to enter building to outside representatives on election day.

All school campaign materials will be limited to the faculty lounge and teachers' mail boxes, and may be distributed by both groups. Proper arrangements with the building principal must be made in advance by both groups. There should be no materials which will receive student and/or public visibility.

All additional matters pertaining to the referendum shall be mutually established by the Association, the Board of Education, and the challenging group.

Upon failure to reach agreement within ten (10) school days following the validation of the petitions, the issues in dispute shall be submitted to the American Arbitration Association.

Costs of the referendum shall be equally shared by the challenging group and the Association.

Ballots

The ballot shall contain only the names of those organizations and/or groups and all of their affiliates, and/or "no representations" which are involved in the election. The ballot shall also contain the statement, "Place an X inside the box opposite the position with which you agree."

The Ballots, along with an eligibility list, shall be delivered in a sealed envelope to each building, and shall be held in safe keeping by the building administrator or his designee until such time for the election. The building administrator shall deliver the sealed envelope with the ballots and eligibility list to the polling judges at the polling site thirty minutes before the time the election in that building is to begin.

The polling site shall be established by the building administrator. Directions to such polling sites will be clearly posted.

Voting

As an individual votes, one (1) polling judge shall pencil out that individual's name from the eligibility list and one (1) judge shall initial the ballot at the time it is handed to the voter.

On the closing of the polling booths the eligibility list shall be placed in the ballot box. The two (2) polling judges will escort the ballot box and the extra ballots to a predetermined central place where the ballots will be counted. Representatives of each organization on the ballot may accompany the polling judges.

Counting

Equal members of the Association and the challenging group may be present to observe the counting of the ballots. The counting shall be done by predetermined and mutually agreed upon ballot counters. If there are contested ballots such shall be decided by a representative of the American Arbitration Association. This person's decision shall be final and binding.

Polling Judges and Poll Watchers

Polling judges will be mutually agreed upon by the Association, Board of Education and the challenging group. Each group may have a poll watcher at each polling site.

Absentee Balloting

Absentee balloting may take place five (5) school days prior to the date of the election and no later than twelve (12) noon of the day preceding the election date.

Absentee voting shall take place at the district administrative office between 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Persons wishing to cast an absentee ballot shall sign an affidavit declaring his/her full name and his/her assigned school.

* * *

Kingston, New York

Between City School District of the City of Kingston and the Kingston Teachers Federation (affiliated with AFT, AFL-CIO, and NEA), effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 650 certificated professional employees, excluding the superintendent, associate superintendents, the assistant superintendent, administrative assistants, principals, assistant principals, directors, assistant directors, supervisors, coordinators, department chairmen, deans, per-diem substitute employees.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $8,400 to $13,250, 14 increments; B.A. plus 12 hours, $13,470 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,800 maximum; M.A., $9,060 to $13,910, 14 increments; M.A. plus 12 hours, $14,130 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $14, 460 maximum.

Separate salary for school psychologists, 14 increments: M + 36, $9,720-$14,570; M + 48, $14,790 maximum; M + 60, $15,010 maximum; each psychologist to receive a minimum salary increase of $500 for 1973-74.

GUIDANCE COUNSELORS

Guidance Counselors will be placed on step and column on the teachers' salary schedule. The column will be determined by preparation, and the step will be determined by the years of experience as a teacher and guidance counselor. Column and step will be evaluated at the time of original employment in this school district. A $330 differential shall be added to this amount. Pay for those assigned to work an eleventh month shall be computed by taking the base salary, adding the differential, and then taking one-tenth (1/10) of the total. Secondary Guidance Counselors shall work an eleven (11) month period. The eleventh month shall consist of twenty-two (22) working days.

A timetable of the working days would include the first eleven (11) working days in July and the last eleven (11) working days in August. Any deviation from this schedule shall be by recommendation of the building principal and guidance counselor, with the approval of the coordinator of guidance.

All guidance counselors will report for work the same days as teachers during the regular school year except that they will be on duty each working day for the entire month of June and September.

INSERVICE CREDITS

A member of the Teachers' Unit shall be eligible to complete fourteen (14) credits in inservice courses for salary credit. If a member of the Teachers' Unit successfully completes two (2) three hour courses at the college level, either before, during or after completion of fourteen (14) inservice credits, he shall be granted permission to take an additional fourteen (14) credits in inservice courses for salary credit. All inservice courses must be approved by the Superintendent of Schools. Each teacher unit employee, upon successful completion of an inservice course, shall receive a written statement indicating completion of the course. After evaluation by and upon recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools, teachers shall receive inservice credit for educational articles published in educational journals and for published books. Credit shall range from 1 to 6 semester hours.

Credit for up to four years' experience shall be granted for military service; credit up to two years for service in either VISTA or Peace Corps with additional years of credit, up to a total of four, for teaching experience in either organization; any tenure teacher having taught in the district 15 years or more who is eligible for retirement under the New York State Teachers' Retirement System and who has submitted his resignation on or before November 15 of the school year during which he retires is eligible to receive $500 upon termination.

DIFFERENTIALS: Head football coach, $1,450; football assistants, $600 to $950; basketball coaches, $400 to $1,100; baseball coaches, $400 to $700; track coaches, $500 to $775; wrestling coaches, $300 to $600; high-school girls' interscholastic athletics, $300 per sport; cheerleading, $100 to $410; intramurals, $170; drama, $330; band, $300.

OTHER: Adult education and home teaching instructors to be paid $6.00 per hour; additionally, home teaching instructors will receive $1.50 travel allowance for each visit; the differential for uncertified teachers of special education will be $225; teachers required to work on days not specified as working days on the school calendar will be paid 1/200 of annual salary per day; $.10 per mile for authorized travel.

LEAVES: One day of annual sick leave to be credited each month, with unlimited accumulation, to be used in case of personal illness or physical disability; teachers permitted to contribute accumulated sick leave to any member of the teachers' unit who has exhausted his sick leave and is still absent owing to his personal illness, such leave for the individual not to exceed 50 school days in any one school year; bereavement leave up to 5 days for the death of a member of the immediate family; a teacher may be freed to attend a funeral if his duties are, in the discretion of the building principal, adequately covered and without cost to the district; leave for religious holiday will be granted when absolutely necessary for the observance; 2 personal business days granted per year; unused personal leave to be added to accumulated sick leave; no sick time will be deducted from a teacher's sick leave when he leaves school owing to an emergency and no substitute is hired for the remainder of the day; leave will be granted for attendance at workshops, seminars, or other professional improvement sessions; the district will pay reasonable expenses, including fees, meals, lodging, and transportation; teachers will receive time necessary to appear in any legal proceeding connected with his employment; the board will pay the regular salary minus Workmen's Compensation benefits and social security benefits for on-the-job injuries for up to the end of the fiscal year involved; sabbatical leave at full pay for one year after seven years' service in the district for the purpose of pursuing a graduate study program; requests for sabbatical leave prior to February of the preceding year for which leave will be taken will be responded to by the superintendent no later than March 15; leaves of absence will be granted upon the recommendation and upon board of education approval for continuance of education up to and including a doctor's degree, providing it is in an area in which the teacher is working or will work in the district, for acceptance of a grant, scholarship, fellowship, or other education award, for service as an elected or appointed political officer, for convalescence from a serious illness or accident, for service in a full-time position in the teacher organization, and for maternity.

INSURANCE: Board will pay 100 percent of the New York State Health Plan for individuals or families; a dental insurance plan will be established with the board contributing $100 per teacher; district will maintain an insurance coverage to protect teachers against personal property loss, excluding money; tax-sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; 45 minutes daily released time for Federation Grievance Committee chairman; 45 minutes daily released time for Federation president; released time for Federation representatives to attend conferences and conventions of the organization's state and national affiliates to a total of five teacher-days per school year; bulletin board will be provided in each school; Federation representative will be given the opportunity at the end of any faculty meeting to talk to staff.

INSTRUCTION: The maximum class size for kindergarten classes will be 30; if the class exceeds 32, an aide will be provided; maximum class of 29 for grades 1-4, and 30 for grades 5 and 6; if classes exceed the maximum, consideration will be given to adding another section if space is available or to transferring excess pupils to another school; the maximum for junior high-school classes will be 32 in advanced, regents, mid-groups, and art classes, 27 in school classes, 45 in music classes, and 60 in physical education classes; the maximum for high-school classes will be 30 pupils in advanced, regents, and school classes, and 120 in physical education classes; one 30-minute duty-free lunch period daily; the length of the school day for secondary professional personnel will be 7 hours, 15 minutes, and will be 6 hours, 45 minutes, for elementary-school personnel; the length of the school day will be shortened by 15 minutes on Fridays, on days preceding a holiday, and on days teachers must attend an after-school staff meeting; one or two unused snow days will be added to the Memorial Day vacation; all secondary teachers, except physical education teachers, will have five class assignments; every effort will be made to avoid more than three consecutive class assignments in any school day and more than two different preparations; every secondary teacher will have at least one unassigned period per day; the goal for elementary school is one librarian per 625 students a week; however, the maximum is one librarian per 750 students per week; one vocal music teacher per 750 students per week and one physical education teacher per 240-250 students per day; three speech therapists will be retained for the 1973-74 school year; aides will be hired for lunchroom supervision; clerk typists will be hired to do typing and duplicating work for teachers; every effort will be made to provide physical education, art, music, and library sessions at least once a week for each grade (K-6) and to have a special subject (art, vocal music, physical education or library) each school day.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; right to review personnel file upon request; right to answer any material and attach to file copy; building faculty meetings will be held no more than once per month except that during September, May, and June additional meetings may be held, but not to exceed a total of five in one year; after-school meetings will begin by 3:30 and last no more than 60 minutes; classroom observation of teachers for the purpose of evaluation will be done only by appropriate supervisory personnel; a tenured teacher summoned for an interview for the record which may lead to disciplinary action entitled to be accompanied by a Federation representative or by his lawyer; he shall receive two days' notice of such a summons and the reason for summons; an interview not held in accordance with these conditions will not be considered part of the employee's personnel file or record, and neither the fact of the interview nor any statements made at the interview by either the administrator or the teacher may be used in any subsequent proceeding involving the employee; except for unsatisfactory job performance as provided under the tenure law, no teacher will have his employment terminated during the duration of the contract.

* * *

PERSONNEL FILE PROVISIONS IN COMPREHENSIVE TEACHER AGREEMENTS

Teacher personnel file provisions in comprehensive teacher agreements were incorporated in nearly half of the 1,529 negotiated agreements for the 1970-71 school year. A sample of agreements (144) composed of every fifth agreement from each state having a negotiated agreement containing teacher's personnel file provision was selected for analysis. The general negotiated content of these provisions is shown in Table 1. In all the sampled agreements, a teacher's personnel file was subject to a review by the teacher upon prior request and at a mutually convenient time. However, privileged or confidential material was exempted from the teacher's review. While almost 2 provisions in 5 provided that a teacher association representative accompany the teacher during a review of his personnel file, 1 provision in 5 allowed the review to be made in the presence of an administrator, usually the person responsible for keeping the files.

Upon written request, each teacher shall have the right to review at a time mutually convenient the contents of his personal file, excepting however, any confidential reference given prior to the time of his employment. At the teacher's request an M.E.A. representative may accompany the teacher in such review. The review shall be made in the presence of the administrator responsible for the safe-keeping of such file.

[Mapleton Public Schools, Denver, Colorado]

TABLE 1.—CONTENT: PERSONNEL FILE PROVISION

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Teacher has right to review contents of personnel file	144	100.0
Specific contents of personnel file listed	15	10.4
Filing of derogatory materials	69	47.9
Privileged or confidential materials	76	52.8
Right to reproduce material in file	34	23.6
Total sample	144	100.0

One provision in 10 listed the materials to be included in a teacher's personnel file. Such items as medical records, college transcripts, copies of contracts, and other personal and professional data were generally named. For example:

Each teacher's personnel file shall contain the following minimum items of information:

Required medical information.
Teacher evaluation reports and other information regarding teacher performance.
Copies of salary statements.
Other information which is used as a basis for discipline or failure to re-employ a teacher.

[Moline, Illinois]

Each teacher shall have the right, upon request, to review the contents of his own personnel files exclusive of materials received prior to the date of his employment by this District. A representative of the Association may at the teacher's request accompany the teacher in this review. Each teacher's personnel file subject to such review shall contain the following minimum items of information:

Annual TB report and required medical information
All teacher evaluation reports
Photostatic copy of the Teacher's Certificate
Transcript of academic records
Tenure recommendation

[Portland, Oregon]

The Board of Education and Copiague Teachers Association agree that teacher personnel folders will be utilized to contain credentials, certification documents, transcripts, employment recommendations received by the district, statements of evaluation, and an employment record card.

[Copiague, New York]

TABLE 2.—TEACHER'S RIGHT TO REVIEW CONTENTS OF PERSONNEL FILE

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Teacher has right to review contents upon request	144	100.0
Teacher may have association representative at review	53	36.8
Teacher may review contents in presence of administration	35	24.3
Total sample	144	100.0

Almost one-half of the sampled provisions referred to the filing of material derogatory to the teacher's conduct, service, character, or personality. All of these provisions specified that no derogatory material could be placed in the teacher's personnel file unless the teacher had an opportunity to read it and to acknowledge his having seen it by signing it. More than one-third provided the teacher with an opportunity to respond to derogatory material and 3 provisions in 10 provided for the filing of the teacher's response, but 2 provisions in 10 provided for filing of the teacher's response, subject to review by the administration.

However, no material derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality will be placed in his personnel file unless the teacher will acknowledge that he has had the opportunity to review such material by affixing his signature to the copy to be filed with the express understanding that such signature in no way indicates agreement with the contents thereof. The teacher will also have the right to submit a written answer to such material and his answer shall be reviewed by the Superintendent of Schools and attached to the file copy.

[Everett, Massachusetts]

Material originating within the School System and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall not be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material. The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material.

[Phoenix Union High School District, Phoenix, Arizona]

TABLE 3.—FILING OF DEROGATORY MATERIALS IN TEACHER'S PERSONNEL FILE

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Material not filed unless teacher has had opportunity to read it	69	47.9
Teacher has opportunity to respond to derogatory material to be filed	50	34.7
Teacher's response to be inserted in personnel file	43	29.9
Reviewed by administration before insertion into file	32	22.2
Total sample	144	100.0

Slightly more than half of the sample provisions exempted material from the teacher's inspection on the basis of confidentiality. Privileged or confidential material reflected information received by the administration from outside sources concerning the teacher's original employment. One provision in 6 exempted all material obtained by the administration before the teacher's original employment and more than 1 provision in 10 listed specific items originating outside the system which were to be considered as privileged or confidential material not subject to review by the teacher. However, some provisions stated that the administration was to provide the teacher with a list of the items exempted from inspection.

Each teacher, upon request, shall have the right to review the contents of his own personal file maintained by the school system. The review shall be made at the central office in the presence of the administrator responsible for the safekeeping of the file. Privileged information such as confidential credentials, letters of reference from the universities, individuals, or previous employers are specifically exempted from such review. The administrator shall remove such credentials and confidential reports from the file prior to a review of the file by the teacher.

[Ross Twp., Merrillville, Indiana]

Information received by the administration prior to employment, confidential medical records obtained in employment processing, and confidential references or evaluations obtained from sources outside the school system subsequent to employment shall be exempted from inspection. However, the instructor shall be provided a list of such items upon request.

[Wichita, Kansas]

About one-fifth of the analyzed provisions stipulated that a teacher could reproduce or be furnished with photocopies of any material, other than confidential materials, placed in the teacher's personnel file as in the following:

The Director of Personnel shall be responsible for providing the employee with copies of records to be filed in personnel folder, if a copy has not been directed to the employee.

[Smithtown Central School District 1, St. James, New York]

If the teacher has instituted grievance or other judicial proceedings, he shall be granted the right to reproduce any materials in his file not considered to be privileged, such as confidential credentials and related personal references normally sought at the time of employment.
[East Brunswick, New Jersey]

TABLE 4.–CONFIDENTIAL MATERIAL IN TEACHER'S PERSONNEL FILE

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Confidential materials exempted from review by teacher	76	52.8
All material prior to employment considered confidential	23	16.0
Specifically named material considered confidential	21	14.6
Material originating outside system considered confidential	7	4.9
Evaluative materials originating inside system regarding employment or promotion considered confidential	4	2.8
Total sample	144	100.0

Selected provisions covering teachers' personnel files are reprinted below. These are sample provisions only, and not intended to be regarded as exemplary.

TEACHER FILES

All teacher files shall be maintained under the following conditions:

All materials placed in a teacher's file and originating within the School District shall be available beginning Sept. 1, 1970, to the teacher at his request for inspection, except as provided by Section D.

Material originating within the School District and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall not be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material. The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed. Such signature does not indicate agreement nor disagreement with the content of such material. If the teacher refuses to sign the derogatory material, the material may be placed in the file with a notation made of such refusal.

The teacher shall have the right to answer any material filed, and his answer shall be submitted to the Administrative Assistant, and attached to the file copy.

All references and information originating outside the School District on the basis of confidentiality, and information obtained within the School District in the process of recommending the teacher for employment or promotion shall not be subjected to this agreement and therefore shall not be available for inspection by the teacher.

[Wilson School District 7, Phoenix, Arizona]

Each teacher shall have the right upon request to examine any of the following documents in his file: (a) teacher's certificate; (b) college transcript; (c) evaluations of his professional performance; (d) letters from parents; (e) clippings from newspapers or periodicals. Entries in teacher files will be signed and dated as part of routine procedure. Entries prior to adoption of the 1966-67 contract shall not be invalidated by inadvertent omission of signature or date if the identity of the person making the entry and the date thereof can be established by competent proof or if such facts are immaterial to the issues at hand.

A representative of the Association may, at the teacher's request, accompany the teacher in such review. The review will be made in the presence of the administrator responsible for the safekeeping of such files. Privileged information such as confidential credentials and related personal references normally sought at the time of employment are specifically exempted from such review. The administrator shall, in the presence of the teacher's authorized representative, remove such credentials and confidential reports from the file prior to a review of the file by the teacher.

All communications, including evaluations by administrators, commendations and validated complaints (as set forth in Article X, Section D) directed toward the teacher which are included in the Personnel File shall be called to the teacher's attention at the time of such inclusion.

[Bloomfield Hills, Michigan]

* * *

All teacher files shall be maintained by the central administration under the following:

No nonconfidential or nonprivileged material derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher is notified that such material has been or may be included in his file. Upon request by either a teacher or the administration, a teacher shall be given an opportunity to read such material and shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the copy to be filed. Such signature merely signifies that he has read the material to be filed; it does not indicate agreement with its content.

A teacher shall have the right to comment upon any nonconfidential or nonprivileged material filed and his comment shall be reviewed by an appropriate member of the administration and attached to the file copy.

Upon request by a teacher, he shall be given access to his file for good cause within a reasonable time. Confidential and privileged information, such as confidential credentials, letters of reference from universities, individuals, or previous employers are exempted from such review. The appropriate administrator shall remove such confidential and privileged material from the file prior to a review of the file by the teacher.

A teacher shall be permitted to reproduce material in his file other than confidential or privileged material, provided that such reproduction is without cost to the Board.

Teachers will keep their files up to date on forms supplied by the Administration concerning names (beneficiaries, persons to be notified in case of emergency, dependents, etc.) addresses, telephone numbers, marital status, higher education related to professional advancement, health and medical status, pregnancy, and other matters required for good cause in personnel administration.

File copies shall not be removed from the offices of the School Administration.

A representative of the School Administration shall be present at any inspection or reproduction of a teacher's file.

The Administration shall provide a facility by which teachers may reproduce material in their files at cost.

[Pompton Lakes, New Jersey]

VOL. 7 NO. 8
APRIL 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Arbitrator Exceeds Authority by Ruling on Non-Arbitrable Issue
- Service Fee Mandatory Subject of Collective Bargaining
- Contract Does Not Contravene Statutory Ban Against Collective Bargaining
- School Board's Consolidation of Department Chairmanships Not a Proper Subject of Binding Arbitration
- College Calendar a Matter of Management Prerogative
- Arbitrator's Award of Reinstatement and Back Pay Upheld; Petition to Vacate Strike Penalties Dismissed
- A Minority of Bargaining Unit Employees May Not Meet with School Board on Bargaining Subjects
- Court Cannot Bar NLRB Elections Except in Cases of Violations of NLRA
- Procedures for Determination of Violation of No-Strike Provision Must Satisfy Statutory Requirements

Board Findings and Rulings 7
- First "Last Offer" Arbitration Award Increases Police Wage Differentials
- Past Practice May Warrant "Mixed" Units of Teachers and Supervisors
- Unilaterally Changing Unwritten Past Practice Benefits Violates Contract
- Unless New Evidence Is Present Employer Must Bargain with Representative
- Failure to Grant Credit for Military Experience Violates Contract

Negotiation Notes 10
- Conn. Teacher Bargaining Law Amended
- Hawaii High Court Dubs HSTA "Trail-Blazer" in Bargaining
- Hawaii AGO: Ombudsman May Not Handle Bargaining Unit Grievances
- Wash. School Principals and Assistant Principals Are Certified Employees
- One-Fifth of Men Teachers Moonlight
- Union Interference Spurs Court Denial of Enforcement of NLRB Court Order
- Employer's Duty to Offer Health Care
- The Consumer Price Index—February 1974

Statistics 13
- Negotiated Student Discipline Provisions
- Teachers Receive Smaller Increases Than Policemen, Firemen

Special Reports 18
- Long-Term Unpaid Leaves of Absence for Research, Study and Travel
- Briefs of Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2707

Case Reviews

ILLINOIS

Arbitrator Exceeds Authority by Ruling on Non-Arbitrable Issue

The Illinois Appellate Court upheld a lower court ruling that overturned an arbitration award favoring the Champaign Education Association on the ground that the arbitrator exceeded his authority by going beyond the contract. The grievance arose after student lunch periods were lengthened to one hour while teacher duty-free lunch periods remained at 30 minutes. Students were to use the additional time for extracurricular activities or as extra recess time while teachers were to be available for supervision on a rotating basis. The Association maintained that extending student lunch periods while leaving teachers' at the status quo was a violation of the School Code.

Regarding the lower court decision, the Association contended that the court should have based its determination on the statutory grounds for vacating arbitrators' awards in existence prior to the adoption of the Uniform Arbitration Act. Therefore, the only grounds for overturning an arbitration decision were fraud, corruption, other undue means, or a showing that the arbitrator misbehaved. Additionally, the School Code provision that mandates that teachers have a lunch period equal to the students' lunch period should govern in the instant case since conflicts between the agreement and the Code must be resolved in favor of the Code. The Association then argued that the board of education waived its right to challenge the arbitration award when it participated in arbitration and waited until after the award was rendered before filing the petition.

The appellate court found that the association's reliance on the 1917 statutory grounds for vacating arbitrators' awards was not valid since they were repealed by the enactment of the Uniform Arbitration Act. Even if the 1917 statute were still valid. the court pointed out, the language of the act would permit, as does the Uniform Arbitration Act, vacating awards entered by an arbitrator acting without authority. Continuing, the court said that the terms of the contract relating to the lunch period neither conflicted with rights granted under the School Code nor constituted a denial of them. Additionally, alleged violation of the School Code did not constitute a grievance within the terms of the agreement and therefore the issue was not arbitrable.

The court held that the board of education had not waived the right to challenge the arbitration award simply by having participated in arbitration since the record showed that the board had filed a timely objection to the proceeding. Therefore, the lower court decision was upheld. (Board of Education of Community Unit School District No. 4, Plaintiff-Appellee v. Champaign Education Association, Defendant-Appellant, Illinois Appellate Court, November 21, 1973.)

MASSACHUSETTS

Service Fee Mandatory Subject of Collective Bargaining

The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court dismissed the Lynn Hospital's application to vacate a lower court ruling that upheld an arbitrator's decision requiring payment of an agency service fee to the Massachusetts Nurses Association.

The hospital contended that while agency service fee was a proper subject for voluntary collective bargaining, it could not be determined by aribtation because the arbitration involved was mandatory and not voluntary. To show that the arbitration involved was mandatory, the hospital pointed to section 9A of the labor relations law which states that grievances or disputes between a health care facility and the collective bargaining agent for nurses shall be submitted to arbitration.

The court agreed with the hospital's argument that arbitration was mandatory for grievances and unresolved disputes; however, the two parties had agreed in their previous contract to voluntarily submit their unresolved differences to arbitration. Relying on National Labor Relations Board v. General Motors, the court pointed out that the Supreme Court had ruled that the subject of union security is a mandatory subject of collective bargaining if it is not banned by state law. Since Massachusetts had not banned such provisions, the court concluded that the hospital was required to negotiate the subject with the union and to submit the subject to arbitration when negotiations failed to produce an agreement.

On the basis of the foregoing the court dismissed the hospital's petition and confirmed the arbitrator's award. (Massachusetts Nurses Association, Appelle v. Lynn Hospital, Appellant, Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, January 17, 1974.)

MISSOURI

Contract Does Not Contravene Statutory Ban Against Collective Bargaining By Teachers

The Missouri Supreme Court ruled that an agreement that provided for consultation and recommendations was not in conflict with law or prior court decisions, and dismissed the school board's contention that teachers do not have the right to bargain and negotiate. However, a school board is not precluded from establishing policy, regulation, or resolution in response to teacher proposals.

The case was brought by the R-5 Community Teachers Association which represented teachers employed by the board. The Association sought a declaratory judgment regarding its bid for a written teacher/school board agreement. A lower trial court had previously dismissed the Association's petition.

On appeal, the Association alleged that the board's refusal to honor the written agreement violated its rights of petition, peaceable assembly, and free speech and the right to appoint representatives to meet, confer, and discuss matters regarding employment as provided in the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the federal Consitution and Article 1 of the Missouri Constitution.

The board challenged the court's jurisdiction, alleging that the application of a constitutional provision did not confer jurisdiction upon the court, that the Association did not plead facts adequate to invoke provisions of the Declaratory Judgment Act, and that the Association should have sought specific performance not a declaratory judgment. The trial court sustained the board's move for dismissal on the ground that the Association failed to comply with applicable rules governing class actions.

The state supreme court found that the agreement involved was not in conflict with the standards presented by the board because it provided for consultation and recommendation without binding the board to an agreement. The court held that while the agreement did provide for a study group to make recommendations regarding unresolved issues, the board remained free to accept or reject them. Accordingly, the court reversed and remanded the case to the trial court and directed the Association to prove compliance with rules governing class action. (Richard E. Peters et al., Individually and as Representatives of Class Known as the R-5 Community Teachers Association, Appellants v. Board of Education of Reorganized School District No. 5 of St. Charles County, Missouri et al., Missouri Supreme Court, February 11, 1974.)

NEW JERSEY

School Board's Consolidation of Department Chairmanships Not a Proper Subject of Binding Arbitration

A school board cannot legally agree to submit to binding arbitration its decision to consolidate the chairmanships of two departments into a newly created chairmanship as such an action is an educational policy within the scope of management prerogative, ruled the New Jersey Supreme Court.

The school board had previously sought relief in a lower court to restrain the Dunellen Education Association from proceeding to arbitration. The board argued that submitting the issue to arbitration would be improper because though the agreement did not restrict such action, if the agreement was construed to restrict consolidation, the restriction would be an illegal, unenforceable delegation of the board's statutory responsibilities. The board also held that the commissioner of education had exclusive jurisdiction over the dispute since it arose under state school laws.

The commissioner, who intervened in the case, asserted that he had primary jurisdiction to determine whether the dispute arose under the school laws that are within his jurisdiction and decided that arbitration should be stayed.

Contending that the commissioner had no function regarding the dispute and that the issue was one for arbitration, the Association moved for dismissal. The lower court granted the dismissal, ruling that the controversy arose from the contract, and at the same time ruled out the commissioner's expertise in the matter.

The state supreme court found that in fulfillment of the state's constitutional mandate for legislative maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools, the legislature entrusted school supervision and management to local school boards. The court also found that the commissioner of education was empowered to hear and determine disputes arising under the school laws or the rules of the state board of education or the commissioner.

The court noted that in the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, the legislature did not specify the meaning of "terms and conditions" in regard to negotiating terms and condition of employment. The court indicated that the Nebraska Supreme Court determined that teacher organizations have a broad view of the meaning while school boards have restricted the meaning to preserve management prerogative and policy-making.

The court ruled that to consolidate was a matter of educational policy remotely affecting the terms and conditions of employment, and that the board had the statutory responsibility for such a decision. The court also ruled that the commissioner had the responsibility to supervise such a determination. So ruling, the court reversed the trial court's decision. (Dunellen Board of Education et al., Plaintiffs-Appellants v. Dunellen Education Association et al., Defendants-Respondents, Commissioner of Education of New Jersey, Intervenor, New Jersey Supreme Court, November 20, 1973.)

College Calendar a Matter of Management Prerogative and Non-negotiable

On appeal by the Board of Trustees of Burlington Community College, the New Jersey Supreme Court reversed the Law Division's ruling that the college calendar was a mandatory item for negotiation under the state Employer-Employee Relations Act. The court found that the college calendar which set the length and division of the school year was within management's prerogative and not an appropriate subject of bargaining between the board of trustees and the Burlington County College Faculty Association.

The Association originally filed a petition with the Law Division when the board refused to negotiate the college calendar on the basis that it was exclusively under management's control and therefore not negotiable under the Act. The board of trustees held that the calendar did not determine faculty members' days and hours of work, their workload, or their compensation, but only fixed times when the college was open with courses available to students. Although the board of trustees had adopted the college calendar every year since the school's founding, the present governance structure provided for a calendar committee composed of representatives from administration, faculty, and student body. According to the board of trustees, the calendar had a great effect on the school's budget because it was a major determinant of the number of student credit hours produced. Additionally, the calendar was designed to serve the needs and interests of the student body and the neighboring community.

The court believed that the board presented sufficient evidence that designing the school calendar was a major educational policy decision and implicit in the board's responsibility "for the management and control" of the institution. Pointing out that the board did discuss the college calendar with students, faculty members, and the administration through the grievance structure, the court suggested that the discussions also include official representatives of the Association. As the court did not find the college calendar a mandatory subject for negotiation, it reversed the lower court's decision and upheld the board's petition. (Burlington County College Faculty Association, Plaintiff-Respondent v. Board of Trustees, Burlington County College Defendant-Appellant, New Jersey Supreme Court, November 20, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Arbitrator's Award of Reinstatement and Back Pay Upheld; Petition To Vacate Strike Penalties Dismissed

The New York Supreme Court of Westchester County ruled on two issues that evolved from negotiations between the Harrison Association of Teachers and the Central School District Board of Education.

o In the first case the court dismissed an appeal by the county school board to vacate an arbitrator's award reinstating a probationary teacher with back pay. The teacher, who had previously been rated highly, was dismissed after she wrote a letter explaining to the parents of a child whom she had been voluntarily tutoring, that she (as well as other Association members) had been requested by the Association to cease all voluntary and unpaid extracurricular work during contract negotiations with the board. The school board obtained a copy of the letter and circulated it through a community newspaper.

The arbitrator, doubting that the teacher would have been dismissed had she not written the letter, ruled that the board had violated the contract by dismissing the teacher not with just cause but in reprisal for a permitted and protected act. Therefore, he ordered the teacher reinstated with back pay.

The court dismissed the board's appeal and upheld the arbitrator's decision on the ground that the record did not indicate that the arbitrator had exceeded his power. (Harrison Association of Teachers v. Harrison Board of Education, Central School District, New York Supreme Court, February 1974.)

• In the second case the court dismissed the Association's petition seeking to vacate the penalties imposed for its engagement in a prohibited strike.

The Association contended that the penalties should be vacated because the school board violated section 209 of the Civil Service Law when it failed to negotiate in good faith. As a result the school board was without the right to impose penalties under section 210 of the law.

The court refused to make a determination as to whether the employer had violated section 209 since the Association was seeking only to have the fines imposed under section 210 vacated. The court pointed out that "under section 210 the only issue to be decided is whether a strike occurred, and if so, who engaged in it." Moreover, the court said that the imposition of sanctions under 210 is designed to protect the public interest and may not be lost or waived by the employer. The court then dismissed the petition. (In the Matter of the Application of Frank J. Murabito and Paul D. Sherman, Petitioners, v. Board of Education, Central School District and Glenn C. Parker, Respondents, Supreme Court, Westchester County, November 28, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

A Minority of Bargaining Unit Employees May Not Meet With School Board on Bargaining Subjects

The Wisconsin Circuit Court upheld a Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) decision[1] that a representative of a minority of bargaining unit employees did not have the right to appear before a public board meeting concerning mandatory bargaining items.

Prior to the proceedings before WERC, a teacher who was not a member of the bargaining association, Madison Teachers Inc., wrote a letter to all teachers in the system allowing them, through the ballot type letter, to express their opposition to a proposed agency shop provision. The teacher then appeared before the board and requested that all teachers be presented with alternatives to the agency shop provision since his survey indicated wide confusion concerning the provision.

As a result of discussion following the meeting, the board adopted a resolution calling for acceptance of the total bargaining package excluding the agency shop provision, among other things, which was still unresolved.

[1] NRD 6.4.9.

MTI filed a complaint with WERC. The board sought review of WERC's decision which held that the board had committed unfair practices under the Municipal Employment Relations Act.

Reviewing WERC's decision, the court held that denying a representative of a minority union the right to appear and speak at a public board meeting regarding mandatory bargaining subjects did not infringe upon constitutional freedom of expression. The court cited Board of School Directors v. WERC where the state supreme court came to the same conclusion. The court held in that case that a minority union did not have the right to negotiate with the employer and that it would be a prohibited practice if an employer chose to negotiate with it.

The court ruled, therefore, that while the teacher's statement appeared to be a position statement, which according to Board of Directors would make it difficult to label as negotiating, the total circumstances constituted negotiating. The court further found WERC's decision reasonable and consistent with applicable state statute. Accordingly, the court affirmed WERC's order. (City of Madison et al., Petitioners v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, Respondent, Madison Teachers Incorporated, Intervenor Respondent, Wisconsin Circuit Court, October 2, 1973.)

FEDERAL

Procedures for Determination of Violation of No-Strike Provision Must Satisfy Statutory Requirements

The U.S. District Court of Ohio enjoined the Vinton Local Board of Education from conducting proceedings to discharge members of the Vinton Local Teachers' Association for alleged violation of statutory no-strike provisions.

In making its determination the court noted that the defendants, in accordance with the Ohio Revised Code, had requested an opportunity to deny violation of the Code. The Code provides for the appointment of a referee to make determinations in such cases if requested by the defendants. Any procedure not in accordance with the Code, such as that advocated by the board of education, denies due process of law and must be enjoined, the court said. (Vinton Local Teachers' Association, et al., Plaintiffs v. Board of Education of Vinton Local School District et al., Defendants, United States District Court, Southern District Ohio, October 3, 1973.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MICHIGAN

First "Last Offer" Arbitration Award Increases Police Wage Differentials

In the first award granted under the "last offer" provisions of the policemen's and firefighters' arbitration act, a three-member panel increased the wage differential between senior patrolmen and sergeants to 17 percent for the contract year, July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1973. The award also maintains a 10.57 percent difference between sergeants and lieutenants and a 19.13 percent difference between lieutenants and captains. The panel based its decision to increase the differential between senior patrolmen and sergeants on job descriptions and other comparative information presented at the hearings.

The panel also ruled that when any member of the Pontiac Police Supervisors Association is promoted, he must receive the full rate of pay of the rank to which promoted. On the other hand, the panel rejected the Association's demand for unmarked cars for captains during off-duty hours as a fringe benefit and for two hours' extra pay for any unit member called at home while off duty on any matter of departmental business on the basis that the established salary differentials compensated for fringe benefits and extra duty. (Pontiac Police Supervisors Association and the City of Pontiac, Michigan, November 19, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Past Practice May Warrant "Mixed" Units Of Teachers And Supervisors

The New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) upheld a past decision and dismissed a petition by the West Paterson Board of Education seeking exclusion of principals and vice-principals from a bargaining unit represented by the West Paterson Education Association. In a previous decision, PERC had ruled that an exception to the rule prohibiting negotiating units composed of both supervisors and nonsupervisors was valid owing to established practice and prior agreement which made such a "mixed" unit permissible within the meaning of the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA).

The board of education contended that the inclusion of supervisors in the unit created a conflict of interest between the supervisors and nonsupervisory personnel. To substantiate this contention, the board pointed to fact-finding proceedings in which the fact-finder recommended, and the board accepted, a salary increase of 5.5 percent for principals and the union later proposed a 4.3 percent increase. According to the board this showed that "there indeed exists in West Paterson a conflict of interest which cries out for relief."

The Association rebutted the board's allegations, pointing out that the argument was not proper in the instant proceeding and was the kind of issue that might be raised by supervisors for the purpose of severing themselves from a mixed unit on the basis of unfair representation.

PERC agreed with the Association's argument, remarking that the purpose of its reconsideration of the previous ruling was to examine the statutory exceptions to established practice and prior agreement. PERC concluded that although the legislature viewed mixed units as unworkable, it did not desire to disturb relationships that had proved successful and that had been established prior to enactment of PERA. On this basis PERC dismissed the petition. (In the Matter of West Paterson Board of Education, Public Employer-Petitioner and West Paterson Education Association, Respondent and Employee Representative, New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission, September 14, 1973.)

The Public Employment Relations Commission reversed a hearing officer's decision, ruling that department coordinators employed by the Sterling Board of Education should not be represented by the Sterling Education Association teachers unit. The case originally came before the Commission after "the board adopted policy creating the supervisory position of department coordinator to replace department chairmen."

The Association previously had contended that the department coordinator was just another name for department chairman, that the functions of the two were substantially the same and not supervisory, and that past practice exception in the Public Employment Relations Act should hold if the position was found to be supervisory.

The board filed exceptions to the Commission's conclusion that department coordinators are not supervisory, that the similarity between coordinators and chairmen is a basis for finding established practice, and that there is not enough evidence of conflict of interest.

In making its determination, the Commission concluded that the established practice exception did not apply since the negotiations in which the parties agreed to matters relating to employment prior to 1968 was not met as required by the Act.

Because the parties urged an immediate determination despite insufficient record of past conduct whereby the board's intentions could be clearly discerned, the Commission pointed out that it would have to rely heavily on the board's description of the elements of its program for coordinators. From a review of the record and the board's description, the Commission found that the duties performed by the coordinators were supervisory and might cause a conflict of interest and that there was not a community of interest between coordinators and teachers to warrant inclusion in the same bargaining unit. However, since the ruling, in large part, was based on the board's outlined program for coordinators, the decision was made subject to re-examination at a later time should the board's plan not materialize as described. (In the Matter of Sterling Board of Education, Public Employer and Sterling Education Association, Petitioner-Employee Organization, New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission, February 5, 1974.)

NEW YORK

Unilaterally Changing Unwritten Past Practice Benefits Violates Contract

The Hinsdale Teachers Association's (HTA) grievance alleging that the board violated the parties' contract by unilaterally changing fringe benefits, was upheld by a New York Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) hearing officer.

The school board, in an attempt to reduce a deficit in the school cafeteria, increased the price of school lunches and discontinued the serving of free coffee in the teachers' lounge and the granting of free admission to athletic and other extracurricular activities to teachers.

HTA contended that these actions violated the contract since the three issues were fringe benefits which had been unwritten board policies and practices and, therefore, were within the meaning of Article 1, Section 5, of the contract which in essence provided that any benefits, privileges, or duties previously held as board policy and unwritten provisions within the scope of the contract would continue.

Arguing that the grievance did not affect the terms and conditions of the contract, the board asserted that "terms and conditions" held only for a provision stated or offered for acceptance or an agreement by stipulation, and that since no stipulation or agreement governed the items, the contract was not violated.

The arbitrator found that Article 1, Section 5, of the parties' agreement was similar to "past practice" clauses in many negotiated agreements and that its meaning should be found in the usage of labor relations. Accordingly, the arbitrator rejected the board's contention and noted that the concept of "custom and practice" was found in arbitrators' opinions regarding disputes between public schools and their employees the same as in the private sector. He also stated that whether a past practice was a term or condition of employment was to be determined by the parties' acts.

Finding that all items in dispute, excluding the board's discretion to set lunch prices, were established past practice, thereby a condition of employment, and that the termination of them was a violation of the parties' agreement, the arbitrator directed that the items be reinstated. (Hinsdale Board of Education and Hinsdale Central School Teachers Association, New York Public Employment Relations Board, March 6, 1974.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Unless New Evidence Is Present Employer Must Bargain with Representative

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board ruled that the Monongahela Valley Hospital had committed an unfair labor practice by refusing to negotiate with a newly certified bargaining unit for maintenance, clerical, and technical personnel.

Because the hospital had objected to the election and certification of the bargaining unit and petitioned the courts for review of the board's dismissal of its election objections, the hospital contended that it was justified in refusing to bargain with the union.

The Board overruled the hospital's contention because it was not required to re-examine its certification of a bargaining unit if no new evidence was introduced and because the law provided that appeal proceedings shall not operate as a stay of board orders, unless directed by the court. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Monongahela Valley Hospital, Inc., Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, December 3, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

Failure To Grant Credit for Military Experience Violates Contract

An arbitrator ruled that the Madison Board of Education should have granted one-half year of military service credit to a teacher who received the military training prior to being hired for a teaching position.

The board contended (a) that the issue was not arbitrable because it was not filed within the time limitations specified in the contract, (b) that the term "military service" as defined in the contract meant only active duty service or training for active duty for which it had always been board policy to grant credit, and (c) that there was a difference between credit granted to a newly hired employee for prior military training and rights that might exist when leave is granted for military training that interrupts teaching service.

The Madison Teachers Inc. (MTI) contended that the grievance was arbitrable since there was a recurrence of the grievance whenever a salary check was issued to the teacher, and that the right to grieve was protected under the contract. The association asserted that state laws that grant preferences and credits to veterans supported its position, and that it did not intend to make the distinctions the board made.

Noting that while arbitrators respect time limitations designed to protect employers from possible liability, the arbitrator commented that the interpretation of time limitation clauses should not be unreasonably technical. The arbitrator also noted that the parties themselves provided in their contract for renewal of time limits if the act recurs.

The arbitrator rejected the board's contention that the grievance was not arbitrable. He held that military service included not only active service or training prior to active duty, but also full-time National Guard training which the teacher received following honorable discharge from a 71-day duty in the Marine Corps. However, week-end or evening National Guard Service was not within the meaning of "active duty." So ruling, the arbitrator held that the teacher was entitled to one-half year of credit for his military service performed prior to his teaching assignment, that his salary reflect this credit, and that he receive back pay for the school year 1973-74. (In the Matter of Arbitration Between Madison Board of Education Joint School District, No. 8, City of Madison, Wisconsin and Madison Teachers Inc., January 2, 1974.)

• • •

Negotiation Notes

CONNECTICUT

Teacher Bargaining Law Amended

The recently amended statute regarding collective bargaining for teachers, Title 10, now covers all certified professional employees of town and regional boards of education and permits separate bargaining units for superintendents and supervisory personnel. The amendments require bargaining on salaries and other conditions of employment.

Employees in either a supervisory or a teaching unit may be represented by any organization of certified professional employees for the purposes of negotiating salaries and other conditions of employment. To acquire recognition, a majority of the employees must so petition the board of education between October 1 and October 31 of any school year.

The board has three days to post a notice of the request and mail a copy to the secretary of the state board of education.

The board will recognize the designated organization within 30 days after the posting date. However, if 20 percent of the employees in the unit petition for a representation election, such an election is to be held. If no organization receives a majority vote, a run-off election is to be held. The organization receiving the majority vote will be certified as the exclusive representative of all employees in a unit for bargaining purposes, but any certified professional employee may at any time present any grievance to such persons as the town or regional board of education shall designate for that purpose.

A unit that includes both administrators and teachers represented by an exclusive representative may, upon expiration of the salary schedule, remain in effect or the employees may initiate a petition for designation or election of an organization to represent them.

The election procedures also provide for an impartial person or agency, agreed upon by both parties, to conduct a secret ballot election between 20 and 45 days following the first election petition; the town or regional board of education is to pay the costs incurred. When disagreement on the agency to conduct the election occurs, a board of arbitration selects an impartial agency.

The town or regional board of education and the elected organization are required to negotiate salaries and other conditions of employment. The "duty to negotiate" obligates the board to meet at reasonable times, including meetings pertinent to budget-making, to confer in good faith on salaries and other conditions of employment, and to execute a written contract. However, the law does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or to make concessions.

The terms of any written contract will be binding upon the legislative body of the town or regional school district unless rejected by it within 30 days after the filing of the contract. In case of rejection the parties must renegotiate.

HAWAII

Hawaii High Court Dubs HSTA "Trail-Blazer" In Bargaining

Though upholding a lower court ruling that the Hawaii State Teachers Association violated an injunction by striking last year, the state supreme court on March 25, 1974, reduced by nearly half the $190,000 in strike fines levied against the Association. Since HSTA was the first organization to test the ramifications of the state bargaining law allowing strikes by public employees, the court declared that "there is no doubt HSTA acted as the 'legal trail-blazer' in an uncharted, complicated, new legal field of collective bargaining." The high court did not rule on whether the strike was called legally, as HSTA contended, but simply on whether an injunction had in fact been violated. The legality issue is still before the lower court. However, the high court declared that "the promotion of justice would be better enhanced" if strike fines were reduced by $90,000.

AGO: Ombudsman May Not Handle Bargaining Unit Grievances

The attorney general ruled that an ombudsman may not investigate grievances of public employees in units covered by agreements that contain an exclusive procedure for settling disputes. However, he may process grievances of public employees outside the scope of an agreement and not subject to the contractual grievance procedure or of employees excluded from bargaining units.

Further, an ombudsman may not investigate grievances of public employees exempt from civil service unless they are excluded from a bargaining unit, or if they are included, the employee has a complaint outside the scope of the agreement and not subject to the contractual grievance procedure.

WASHINGTON

School Principals and Assistant Principals Are Certified Employees

School principals and assistant principals are to be considered certified employees unless a majority elect to be excluded from the legal definition, according to the provision in the Revised Code of Washington regarding the right of teachers to negotiate through representatives with their employers on school policy concerning, but not limited to, curriculum, hours, and wages.

If principals and assistant principals vote for exclusion from the legal definition, the provisions of the law shall apply to them separately. The amendment stipulates that in that case negotiations between the employer and the separate principals and assistant principals unit be limited to compensation, hours of work, and the duration of employment contracts.

One-Fifth of Men Teachers Moonlight

A Special Labor Force Report published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics revealed that in May 1973, 4.3 million workers held two or more jobs at the same time. Although this is the greatest number of moonlighters ever reported, the percentage of the working force holding two jobs remained essentially the same as in previous surveys (5.1 percent).

The moonlighting rate for men was much higher than for women, four-fifths of all multiple job holders being men.

As in previous years, men teachers below the college level had the highest moonlighting rates—nearly 20 percent of the men but only 3.5 percent of the women were moonlighters.

Protective service employees had the second highest moonlighting rate, 14.2 percent. On an industry-wide basis the highest moonlighting rates were found among men employed in public administration on the state and local level and educational services.

* * *

FEDERAL

Union Interference Spurs Court Denial of Enforcement of NLRB Order

A union interferes with employees' right to free choice in an election and abridges their right to refrain from union activities by offering to waive initiation fees only for those employees who sign union authorization cards prior to an election. On that basis the Supreme Court of the United States refused to enforce a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) order directing an employer to bargain with the union.

The union, Mechanics Educational Society of America, narrowly won a representative election conducted by NLRB. NLRB rejected objections to the election filed by the employer, and certified the union as representative of the employees. But the employer refused to bargain. The union then filed an unfair labor practice charge. NLRB sustained the charge and ordered the employer to bargain with the union.

The Supreme Court found that whatever an employee's true intentions, signing a recognition slip prior to an election indicates to other employees his support for the union and thereby influences other employees. The court held that the NLRB allowed the union to "buy" support when it permitted the union upon winning the election to waive initiation fees for those who signed recognition cards before the election.

The court held that in accordance with the National Labor Relations Act a fair election procedure must honor not only those who support a union, but also those opposed to a union. The court stated that the Act also makes it an unfair labor practice for an employer to interfere with employees' rights to form, join, or assist unions. The court injected that the Act also provides the right to refrain from any or all union activities. According to the court, the whole of the Act is neutral regarding the right to free choice.

The court ruled that the union's action conflicted with the principle of fair and free choice and was ground for denying enforcement of NLRB's order that the employer bargain with the union. (National Labor Relations Board, Petitioner v. Savair Manufacturing Company, Respondent, United States Supreme Court, December 17, 1973.)

Employer's Duty To Offer Health Care

The purpose of the Health Maintenance Organization Act of 1973 is to improve health care services available to the public through a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) that contracts to provide basic medical care for a fixed fee.

The law, which is tied to the employer's coverage under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), requires employers of 25 or more workers to offer HMO benefits to them as an optional health plan.

To qualify as an HMO, the health care organization must provide the full range of basic and supplemental health care services mandated by the law and show that it operates in the manner prescribed. A nonoperational health care organization may qualify if the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare determines that the organization will provide the required services when it becomes operational.

Employers are required to pay no more than specified in bargaining agreements or health benefit contracts between the company and its employees. Failure of an employer to offer membership in a qualified HMO violates the Fair Labor Standards Act and invokes criminal penalties.

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX—FEBRUARY 1974

The Consumer Price Index rose 1.3 percent in February to 141.5 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. Almost half of the February increase was due to higher prices for food. Higher prices for gasoline and other energy items accounted for about a fifth of the increase. The February CPI was 10.0 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the February increase in the CPI was also 1.3 percent. In January the CPI increased 1.0 percent and in December 0.5 percent. The food index rose 2.5 percent in February, compared with 1.6 percent in January, and 0.3 percent in December. The nonfood commodities index rose 1.0 percent in February, following increases of 1.3 percent in January and 0.7 percent in December. The services index rose 0.7 percent in February, the same as in January.

Monthly Changes in Detail (Not Seasonally Adjusted)

The index for food purchased in grocery stores—the major portion of the food index—rose 3.0 percent, substantially more than is usual for February. The index for food away from home—restaurant meals and snacks—rose 0.7 percent. Over a third of the rise in the food at home index was due to a 7.5 percent rise in beef prices. The February increase in beef prices followed a smaller increase in January and declines in the last 3 months of 1973. Fresh vegetable prices increased sharply in February instead of declining as they usually do. Prices also rose for most other types of food, including processed fruits and vegetables, cereal and bakery products, dairy products, and sugar and sugar-based products. Poultry prices declined, however, instead of increasing as they usually do in February.

The index for nonfood commodities—which usually is unchanged in February—increased 1.0 percent. The gasoline and motor oil index increased 5.3 percent, slightly less than in January, to a level 30.9 percent above February of last year. The fuel oil and coal index rose 3.8 percent, the smallest increase in 5 months, to a level 58.8 percent above February 1973. Apparel prices rose more than they usually do in February, following a seasonal decline in January. Prices also increased for a wide range of other nonfood commodities such as textile housefurnishings, housekeeping supplies, toilet goods, newspapers, and household durables. The effect of these increases was moderated by a further sharp decline in used car prices. New car prices also declined, but less than they usually do in February.

The services index rose 0.7 percent in February. In the household services category, charges for gas, electricity, water and sewerage services, housekeeping and home maintenance services, and rent continued to increase. Mortgage interest rates and property taxes declined. Medical care services increased more than in recent months as a result of larger increases for physicians' fees and charges for most types of hospital services. Other types of services such as apparel, personal care, recreational, and funeral services continued to rise.

Diffusion of Individual Price Changes

Approximately 118,000 individual prices were collected directly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in February for use in this index. Approximately 80 percent of these quotations (accounting for about 40 percent of the weight of the CPI market basket) represent monthly comparisons. About 34 percent of these monthly comparisons showed an increase, 10 percent showed a decrease, and 56 percent showed no change between January and February. . . The proportion of food prices increasing in February was considerably larger than increases in each of the preceding five months. The proportion of nonfood commodity prices increasing was about the same as in recent months. The proportion of service prices increasing was much smaller than in January and about the same as in the last three months of 1973.

The February index also includes approximately 23,000 price comparisons from periods prior to January, 19,000 of which cover the quarterly span from November to February. About 24 percent of these quarterly price comparisons increased, more than in the October-to-January period. In addition, about 4,700 rental units were surveyed in February, and 27 percent of these reported rent increases from August 1973, about the same as for the 6-month period ended in January.

(U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, March 21, 1974.)

* * *

STATISTICS

NEGOTIATED STUDENT DISCIPLINE PROVISIONS

Growing teacher concern over student discipline in the classroom and the effects on the educational atmosphere caused by disruptive students is indicated by the increase in the percentage of teachers indicating this area to be a major problem—from 15.2 percent in 1968 to 21.2 percent in 1971 as recorded in an NEA Research survey.[1]

The 1970-71 NEA Research survey of 1,529 written negotiated agreements found that 34.1 percent of them contained student discipline provisions. A random sample of agreements containing such a provision, one out of five (108) with at least one from each state, was selected for analysis.

Both in formulating school board or administrative policy as well as in negotiating student discipline procedures, care must be taken to bring the desired results in line with existing interpretations of the federal Constitution relative to personal rights. Many recent court decisions have upheld student challenges to school board and teacher decisions. Among the issues involved in court rulings have been the constitutionality of a school prohibition against the wearing of black armbands by high-school students protesting the Viet Nam War, the constitutionality of school dress and grooming codes, search and seizure, and corporal punishment. The decisions in these cases have limited the discretionary power of school officials and the manner in which such power may be utilized, and have made school administrators, teachers, and board members aware of the necessity to educate themselves regarding their limitations and responsibilities in the school-student relationship. Nonetheless, many court rulings, such as Wexell v. Scott and Owens v. Commonwealth, indicate that the courts realize that educators have responsibility for student discipline and that teachers frequently work in extremely provoking situations and may occasionally make a mistake in judgment.

Some 12.0 percent of the provisions in negotiated agreements recognize existing student discipline regulations by stipulating that teachers and the administration will abide by these regulations or policies. For example:

> The teachers recognize that all disciplinary actions and methods invoked by them shall be reasonable and just, and in accordance with established Board policy.
>
> [Ostego Public Schools
> Ostego, Michigan]

Most of the agreements analyzed contained a statement of philosophy that assigns responsibility for student discipline, mentions conditions under which disciplinary problems are less likely to occur, indicates board and administrative agreement to assist teachers with discipline, and advises teachers on how to handle disciplinary problems should they arise.

Twelve percent of the agreements directly stated that classroom discipline is primarily the teacher's responsibility; however, the clause stating that disciplinary problems are less likely to occur in classes that are well taught and where a high level of student interest is maintained implies teacher responsibility for classroom discipline. An important element in the effectiveness of teachers' disciplinary measures is the amount and kind of support that can be expected from school boards and administrators; more than 45 percent of the provisions stated that the board and the school administration agree to assist teachers in disciplinary matters.

Some contracts, 17.6 percent, outlined a method for constructively dealing with disciplinary problems. Most often, encouragement, praise, and emphasis upon the student's desirable characteristics were suggested as methods of handling a disruptive pupil.

The goals of student discipline with regard to the individual student were mentioned in a few contracts. An example of the language is as follows:

> The goal in discipline is for the pupils to grow and develop In self-control and self-direction to the point that their habits and attitudes will enable them to live harmoniously within their group and ultimately to achieve self-mastery.
>
> [Oxnard Unified High School District
> Oxnard, California]

The reasons for imposing disciplinary measures on a student were found in 40.7 percent of the agreements. Usually an over-all statement that did not pinpoint the exact action for which the student may be disciplined was made. An example follows:

> A teacher may exclude a pupil from class for one class period or less when the grossness of the offense, the persistence of the misbehavior, or the disruptive effect of the violation makes the continued presence of the pupil unacceptable.
>
> [Phoenix Union High School District
> Phoenix, Arizona]

A few provisions specifically identified undesirable behavior as follows:

> Examples of offenses for which teachers may dismiss students from class: Profanity or obscenity, fighting, gambling, class skips, deliberate and open defiance of authority, inciting others

TABLE 1.—ANALYSIS OF STUDENT DISCIPLINE PROVISIONS IN NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS, 1970-71

Item	Agreements with clause
	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Board disciplinary policy or public law tied to agreement by contract language	13	12.0
General statement of teacher/board disciplinary philosophy	60	55.6
Classroom discipline primarily the teacher's responsibility	13	12.0
Disciplinary problems less likely to occur in well taught classes, etc.	27	25.0
Discipline the joint responsibility of board, administration, and teacher	8	7.4
Board and administration agree to assist teacher in disciplinary matters	49	45.4
Procedure for handling disciplinary problems	19	17.6
Goals of student discipline	6	5.6
Reasons for taking disciplinary action	44	40.7
General description of undesirable behavior	37	34.3
Undesirable behavior specifically named	7	6.5
Procedures for initial identification and handling of disciplinary problems	56	51.8
Reasonable force for protection and restraint	3	2.8
Student sent to principal's office	46	42.6
Teacher and principal confer about/with student	8	7.4
Teacher, principal, and appropriate specialist confer with/about student	3	2.8
Parents called to conference	5	4.6
Teacher, principal, appropriate specialist, and parents confer about/with student	3	2.8
Principal or specialist interviews and councils parents and student	6	5.6
Specific punishments	66	66.1
Corporal punishment	12	11.1
Temporary suspension from class	46	42.6
Temporary suspension from school	19	17.6
Expulsion from school	5	4.6
Detention after school	2	1.8
Transfer to another teacher	1	0.9
Need for outside specialist recognized	39	36.1
Total agreements analyzed	108	100.0

to violence or disobedience, possession of pornographic literature, petty theft, petty vandalism, cigarettes, narcotics and gun, etc.

[Macoupin Community Unit SD No. 7
Macoupin, Illinois]

Most frequently agreement provisions state that after a teacher has exhausted all means of handling disciplinary problems at the classroom level, the next course of action is to send the student to the principal's office. Then the teacher is to submit a written report outlining the reasons for the pupil's ejection from the classroom. The principal, and sometimes the teacher, then are to decide what measures should be taken. Among these measures are conferences which may include the principal, the teacher, the student, an appropriate specialist, and the student's parents.

A teacher opinion poll conducted by the NEA Research Division found that 6 teachers in 10 thought that they should have the right to suspend unruly students from their classes without the approval of the principal. About 3 in 10 replied "No," and the remainder were uncertain. When asked the maximum length of time a teacher should be permitted to suspend students from their classes with the principal's approval, the majority of those who favored suspension favored short-term suspensions not exceeding three days, with the largest proportion recommending suspension only for the remainder of the class period.[2]

Dismissal or suspension from class was also the punishment most often mentioned in the agreement provisions (42.6 percent). Generally the length of time that a student might be suspended from class was not specified. In 17.6 percent of the contracts, the principal was empowered to temporarily suspend a student from school.

Recognizing that emotionally disturbed students and disruptive students impede the progress of the entire class, many school boards and teacher groups have incorporated into their student discipline provisions, clauses that recognize the need to consult specialists regarding students with unusual problems since such students cannot be adequately handled with ordinary disciplinary measures. Examples of such clauses follow:

> When, in the judgment of a teacher, a pupil requires referral to other professional personnel or specialists, he shall so inform his principal or immediate supervisor. The principal or immediate supervisor shall arrange as soon as possible for a conference which includes himself, the teacher, and appropriate specialist(s), if necessary, to discuss the problem and to decide upon appropriate steps for its resolution.
>
> [Wichita Public Schools
> Wichita, Kansas]

> Teachers have the right to expect the Board and administrative support in their lawful and necessary actions in maintaining discipline and working with pupils and parents; such support to include referral of pupils with deviant behavior to other persons or agencies for assistance.
>
> [Coleman Community Schools
> Coleman, Michigan]

---

[1] National Education Association, Research Division. "Teachers' View of Teaching." NEA Research Bulletin 49: 102-108; December 1971. p. 105.

[2] National Education Association, Research Division. "Teachers' Right To Suspend Students." Today's Educa-Education 58: 35; February 1969.

• • •

TEACHERS RECEIVE SMALLER INCREASES THAN POLICEMEN, FIREMEN

Bureau of Labor Statistics report disclosed that between January 1, 1972, and January 1, 1973, scheduled minimum salaries for policemen and firemen rose 5.6 percent and scheduled maximum salaries 8.9 percent. However, minimum scheduled salaries for teachers with a bachelor's degree in school systems enrolling 6,000 or more pupils increased 4.2 percent, and maximum scheduled salaries for those with a doctorate, advanced 5.5 percent from the 1971-72 school year to the 1972-73 school year.[1]

For 1972-73, firemen's minimum salaries averaged $9,515 and policemen's minimum $9,963; average maximum salaries were $11,604 and $12,330, respectively. Minimum scheduled salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees averaged $7,357 for the 1972-73 school year, and maximum scheduled salaries for teachers with a doctorate averaged $14,562. The percentage increases in minimum salaries for policemen and firemen were below those of previous years; however, increases in their maximum salaries were comparable to 1968-69 increases. Although percentage increases for both minimum and maximum teachers' salaries were higher than in 1971-72, the dollar increases were lower than those in years preceding 1971.

In the five-year period since 1968, the annual rate of increase for policemen's and firemen's minimum salaries was 7.4 percent, while maximum salaries rose at an annual rate of 8.2 percent. Since the 1967-68 school year, teachers' minimum scheduled salaries increased annually by 5.5 percent and maximum salaries by 5.8 percent.

---

[1] National Education Association, Research. Salary Schedules and Fringe Benefits for Teachers, 1972-73. Research Report 1973-R2. Washington, D.C.: the Association, 1973. p. 14.

TABLE 1.—PERCENT CHANGE IN AVERAGE PAY OR SALARY SCALES OF SELECTED GROUPINGS OF GOVERNMENT AND PRIVATE INDUSTRY EMPLOYEES AND IN THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX OVER THE 5-YEAR PERIOD ENDING IN 1972-73[a]

Occupational group	Average annual rate of increase Government
Firemen and policemen:[b]
Maximum annual salary scales:
Firemen and policemen	8.2
Firemen	8.0
Policemen	8.3
Minimum annual salary scales:
Firemen and policemen	7.4
Firemen	7.3
Policemen	7.4
Federal employees under the General Schedule:[c]
Basic annual salary scales	7.0
Average annual salary rates	7.4
Average annual salaries	9.1
Private industry
Professional, administrative, technical, and clerical employees, average salaries:[d]
Clerical and beginning technicians	5.9
Entry and development professional levels, advanced technician levels, and supervisors of nonprofessional levels[e]	5.8
Fully experienced professional working levels, supervisors of professional levels, and program administrative levels	6.0
Production and nonsupervisory workers in private nonfarm economy, average hourly earnings adjusted for overtime (in manufacturing only) and interindustry employment shifts	6.6
Consumer prices
Consumer Price Index	4.6

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Minimum Salary Scales for Firemen and Policemen Increased 5.6 Percent and Maximum Scales 8.9 Percent in 1972. News release, December 18, 1973.

[a] All data related to the latest 5 years for which information is available. The increases in firemen's and policemen's scales, hourly earnings of production and nonsupervisory workers, and consumer prices are from January 1968 to January 1973; changes in pay for federal employees under the General Schedule are from October 1967 to April 1972; and under "professional, administrative, technical, and clerical employees," changes in average salaries cover the period from June 1968 to March 1973.

[b] Data pertain only to cities which had a population of 100,000 or more in 1970.

[c] Basic salary scales reflect only statutory changes in salaries. Average salary rates show statutory changes and the effect of changes in the proportion of workers at each step within the salary ranges for individual grades. Average salaries measure the effect not only of these two types of change, but also of changes in the proportion of workers in the various grades.

[d] For additional information about the occupations included in these categories and the scope and method of the study, see National Survey of Professional, Administrative, Technical, and Clerical Pay, March 1972, BLS Bulletin 1764, 1973.

[e] Also includes the three highest secretarial levels.

TABLE 2.–AVERAGE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM ANNUAL SALARY SCALES OF FIREMEN AND POLICEMEN BY CITY SIZE AND REGION,[a] 1968-73

Employee group and year	City size					Region
	All cities 100,000 and over	Over 999,999	500,000 to 999,999	250,000 to 499,999	100,000 to 249,999	North-east	South	North Central	West
				Minimum annual scales
Firemen:
1968	$ 6,753	$ 7,623	$ 6,636	$ 6,335	$ 6,063	$ 7,148	$ 5,681	$ 6,704	$ 7,624
1969	7,413	8,497	7,338	6,890	6,574	7,995	6,182	7,444	8,124
1970	8,041	9,253	7,786	7,685	7,103	8,651	6,678	8,189	8,813
1971	8,489	9,596	8,215	8,179	7,672	9,027	6,980	8,827	9,396
1972	9,015	10,385	8,743	8,480	8,098	9,854	7,249	9,238	9,967
1973[b]	9,515	10,849	9,186	9,054	8,614	10,440	7,838	9,566	10,427
Policemen:
1968	7,019	7,628	6,741	6,480	6,212	7,322	5,909	7,011	7,736
1969	7,741	8,540	7,274	7,066	6,739	8,231	6,480	7,720	8,210
1970	8,448	9,300	7,888	7,926	7,357	8,953	7,001	8,553	8,953
1971	8,874	9,675	8,291	8,414	7,939	9,256	7,339	9,219	9,518
1972	9,440	10,454	8,742	8,747	8,342	10,152	7,617	9,594	10,060
1973[b]	9,963	10,971	9,311	9,259	8,853	10,763	8,266	9,965	10,505
				Maximum annual scales
Firemen:
1968	7,982	9,015	7,865	7,486	7,143	8,376	6,898	7,936	8,870
1969	8,736	10,033	8,591	8,158	7,744	9,247	7,497	8,876	9,444
1970	9,482	10,828	9,293	9,089	8,349	9,960	8,150	9,710	10,353
1971	10,060	11,327	9,839	9,649	9,080	10,368	8,549	10,489	11,296
1972	10,713	12,245	10,485	10,080	9,642	11,212	8,990	11,097	12,030
1973[b]	11,604	13,639	11,166	10,792	10,254	12,577	9,784	11,737	12,551
Policemen:
1968	8,313	8,976	8,127	7,657	7,338	8,545	7,232	8,377	9,044
1969	9,196	10,101	8,678	8,508	7,982	9,522	7,896	9,461	9,641
1970	10,017	10,927	9,616	9,385	8,648	10,275	8,596	10,424	10,598
1971	10,576	11,452	10,109	9,960	9,408	10,563	9,091	11,230	11,611
1972	11,284	12,387	10,667	10,423	9,988	11,479	9,488	11,897	12,307
1973[b]	12,330	13,720	11,725	11,062	10,650	13,024	10,612	12,523	12,819

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Minimum Salary Scales for Firemen and Policemen Increased 5.6 Percent and Maximum Scales 8.9 Percent in 1972. News release, December 18, 1973.

[a] Regions used in this study are: NORTHEAST–Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Vermont; SOUTH–Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia; NORTH CENTRAL–Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, and Wisconsin; and WEST–Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

Data relate only to cities that had a population of 100,000 or more in 1970.

[b] Preliminary.

• • •

SPECIAL REPORTS

LONG-TERM UNPAID LEAVES OF ABSENCE FOR RESEARCH, STUDY, AND TRAVEL

Long-term unpaid leaves of absence for research, study, and travel were found in 30 percent of 1,529 teacher/school board collective bargaining agreements in effect during 1970-71. These leaves are similar in purpose to a sabbatical leave; however, prior years of service required before taking leave are fewer than for sabbatical leave, and the teacher is generally under no obligation to return to the school system.

The following analysis is based on a sample of one of every five agreements (110) from each state having a negotiated agreement which contained a long-term unpaid leave of absence provision for research, study, and travel.

Purpose

Generally, long-term unpaid leave is granted for formal study at an accredited institution, educational research, or foreign or domestic travel. It may also permit a teacher to utilize a fellowship, internship, or scholarship.

Length of Leave

The minimum time allowed for unpaid research, study, and travel leave is one semester. More than 3 out of 5 provisions (63.6 percent) granted such unpaid leave extending for one year with two years' duration indicated in about 16 percent of the agreements. A small group (4.5 percent) specified one semester or up to one year and the remainder did not specify. However, such leave may be extended for an additional year at the school board's discretion if timely notice is received by the board prior to the expiration of the first leave. Reprinted below are examples of contract language:

> Leave of absence without pay up to one (1) year may be granted to a permanent tenure teacher for further study when college credits are earned. Under this provision, leave of absence can be granted for one (1) semester when the teacher pursues a course of study of at least eight (8) semester hours. One (1) year's leave of absence can be granted when a teacher pursues a course of study of at least fifteen (15) semester hours. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be granted up to one (1) year's credit for the purpose of achieving a salary level as if he remained actively employed in the School District..

> All requests for extended leave of absence or renewals will be made in writing to the Office of the Superintendent.

> [Colorado Springs, Colorado]

> For a teacher who has been an active member of the Glastonbury Public Schools staff for a minimum of one year a leave of absence of one year may be granted to permit participation in academic year institutes, approved programs of graduate study, or overseas teaching assignments.

> [Glastonbury, Connecticut]

Requirements

One-fourth of the agreements indicated that any teacher, probationary or tenure, would be granted such a leave and about a fourth specified tenure teachers. (Table 2) A small group, 4.5 percent, indicated that the leave would be granted to teachers who do not qualify or elect to take a sabbatical, and the remainder did not specify.

> A certified tenure employee may make written application to the Superintendent of Schools for leave, not to exceed one year in length, for purposes of study or travel.

> [Park Forest, Illinois]

> A leave of absence of up to one (1) year shall be granted to any teacher not eligible for Sabbatical Leave as provided for in Article IV, Section K of this Contract for purposes of engaging in study or for cultural travel or work program related to his professional responsibilities.

> [Brookline, Massachusetts]

TABLE 1.—GENERAL NEGOTIATED CONTENT OF 110 UNPAID RESEARCH, STUDY, AND TRAVEL LEAVE PROVISIONS, 1970-71

General content	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Eligibility requirements for leave	85	77.3
Screening and selection	92	83.6
Length of leave	92	83.6
Procedure for extending leave	8	7.3
Benefits	22	20.0
Conditions on return	69	62.7
Total sample	110	100.0

TABLE 2.–ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS FOR UNPAID RESEARCH, STUDY, AND TRAVEL LEAVE, 1970-71

Eligibility requirements	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Who may apply
Tenure teacher	26	23.6
Any teacher	28	25.5
Teacher not qualifying for sabbatical leave	5	4.5
Certificated teacher	4	3.6
Length of continuous service required	22	20.0
Five years	2	1.8
Four years	1	0.9
Three years	12	10.9
Two years	3	2.7
One year	4	3.6
Quality of previous service	5	4.5
Teacher's intended program of study	24	21.8
Total sample	110	100.0

One provision in 5 stipulated that a teacher must have served a minimum number of years of continuous service in order to be granted leave, one-tenth specifying three years of service. The number of years of continuous service required ranged from one year to five years. Examples of these provisions follow:

> Professional Study—An instructional employee who has been employed under contract for three years or more, upon written request, may at the discretion of the Board be granted, without pay, a leave of absence for study for one year, provided it does not in any way injure the program of the school.
>
> [Fenton, Michigan]

> After four years of service with the Westbrook School Department, any staff member may apply for a one-year leave of absence for study at no pay, subject to the following conditions:
>
> [Westbrook, Maine]

Additional criterion used to grant leave is the content of the program of study, indicated in about 1 provision in 4. Basically the applicant's program of study had to reflect his professional responsibilities and be of benefit to the educational process of the school system.

Screening and Selection

Over three-fifths of the provisions provided that a teacher need only request or apply for the unpaid leave of absence with no indicated restrictions as to time limits; just over one-fifth specified filing dates (Table 3).

Applications for leave are generally approved by the superintendent, but in 55.5 percent of the agreements the board makes the final decision.

In only 5.5 percent of the agreements is incorporated a clause which limits a leave to a certain number of recipients, a range from 2 to 5 per year.

Benefits

Contractual fringe benefits retained by the teacher while on such leave of absence without pay most frequently were insurance, other paid or unpaid leaves, and retirement and salary credit. One provision in 10 required the teacher to pay the cost of insurance programs if the carrier permitted. One-fifth of the provisions mentioned some type of fringe benefit retention, with leave accrual maintained in slightly more than 3 percent, and retirement credit in about 5 percent.

TABLE 3.–SCREENING AND SELECTION PROCEDURE FOR UNPAID RESEARCH, STUDY, AND TRAVEL LEAVE, 1970-71

Screening and selection	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Advance notification required	71	64.5
Filing date specified	25	22.7
Recommendation or approval by administration	34	30.9
Superintendent	28	25.4
Principal or other supervisor	3	2.7
Administration committee	3	2.7
Final decision	70	63.6
School board	61	55.5
Superintendent	9	8.2
Limitation on number of recipients	6	5.5
Total sample	110	100.0

Conditions on Return

Future service required after returning from leave was incorporated in about 7 percent of the provisions (Table 4). One-fourth of the provisions mentioned job placement, usually specifying a return to the same or equivalent position. Salary credit upon return to teaching was specified in almost one-half of the provisions, most of them specifying the normal experience credit on the salary schedule which the teacher would have attained had he performed regular teaching duties.

Selected provisions covering unpaid leaves of absence for research, study, and travel are reprinted below. These are sample provisions only, and are not intended to be regarded as exemplary.

TABLE 4.—CONDITIONS ON RETURN FROM UNPAID RESEARCH, STUDY, AND TRAVEL LEAVE, 1970-71

Conditions	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Teacher must notify board of intent to return	15	13.6
Teacher must submit records or transcripts	3	2.7
Future service required	8	7.3
Job placement	28	25.5
Same position	6	5.5
Same or similar position	20	18.2
Contingent on openings	2	1.8
Placement on salary schedule	52	47.3
Experience credit on salary schedule granted	44	40.0
No experience credit on salary schedule granted	8	7.3
Total sample	110	100.0

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

There shall be four basic classifications of leave of absence: educational leave, sabbatical leave (see Art. 14.4), personal leave and maternity leave.

Educational leaves of absence: Teachers who have demonstrated superior capacity for five years under the provisions of the Cheshire Evaluation Plan may apply for an extended leave of absence without pay for purposes of increasing professional competence by making written application to the Superintendent. The Board, on recommendation of the Superintendent, may grant such leave for not less than one semester and not longer than one school year.

All applications for educational leave of absence must be submitted to the Superintendent not less than sixty (60) school days before the leave is to begin.

Applicants must satisfy the Board that the study and/or travel or work experiences for which leave is to be granted will benefit the school system and lead to an increase in teaching effectiveness.

A recipient of educational leave of absence will also:

Be guaranteed the right to return to the teaching position or equivalent that he/she has occupied during the school year prior to the year of leave, and,

On return from leave, be placed on the salary schedule step which he would occupy had he been teaching during the leave time.

On return from leave, all previously accumulated unused sick days and personal days will be reinstated.

[Cheshire, Connecticut]

* * *

STUDY OR SPECIAL TEACHING

A leave of absence up to one (1) year without pay or fringe benefits, shall be allowed upon approval of the Board and Superintendent for study, research, or special teaching in the teacher's major field.

Written request for such leave shall be received by the Superintendent by March 1st in the school year prior to the term the leave is to start.

Notification of a desire to return from leave of absence shall be received, in writing, by March 1st, of the school year prior to the return date.

One year of experience on the salary schedule may be granted by the Board for one year of specialized teaching in the teacher's major field during the leave of absence.

[Tri Creek School District, Lowell, Indiana]

* * *

EDUCATIONAL LEAVE

A staff member who has been employed by the Rockford School District for a minimum of three years and has a record of satisfactory service, shall be eligible for a study leave for a period of up to two years, provided said staff member states his intent to return to the Rockford School District for a minimum period of one year. Upon return, he would be restored to his former position, if possible, or to a position of like nature.

Study leave shall be a leave without pay and may be granted by the Board after receiving the recommendation of the Committee for Sabbatical Leave.

A staff member being granted a leave of absence for study shall advance on the salary schedule as he would have advanced had he been employed in the Rockford School District provided a transcript is filed indicating the required credits have been earned. Upon return from leave, he shall be restored to his former position, if possible, or to a position of like nature. He shall maintain tenure, if granted, insurance benefits, accumulated sick leave, and all other accrued benefits provided in the Professional Agreement.

Request for leave of absence for study shall be made to the Committee for Sabbatical Leave.

[Rockford, Illinois]

* * *

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Washington Depot, Connecticut

Between Shepaug Regional School District Number 12 Board of Education and Shepaug Valley Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 48 certificated professional employees below the rank of superintendent and school principals and excluding temporary substitutes. Should the parties fail to negotiate a successor agreement prior to the termination of this agreement, they may extend the present agreement until a new agreement is reached; all salary-related provisions of the successor agreement shall be retroactive to July 1, 1973.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,300 to $12,020, 13 increments; B.A. plus 12 hours, $12,350 maximum; B.A. plus 24 hours, $12,680 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $12,845 maximum; M.A., $9,245 to $14,065, 14 increments; M.A. plus 12 hours, $14,395 maximum; M.A. plus 24 hours, $14,725 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $14,890 maximum; Professional Diploma or six-year certificate, $15,610 maximum; doctorate, $17,240 maximum. Full credit may be given for teaching experience in the public schools of the United States.

LONGEVITY: "For the excess in years of service in the district schools over that required to reach maximum salary, the Board will pay an additional One Hundred (100) Dollars for each of the years in excess, and this amount is to be added to the maximum salary in the appropriate schedule. In formula form $100.00 (Years in school district—Years to reach maximum) plus Maximum Salary."

DIFFERENTIALS: (Percentage times $8,300 Base) Dramatics director, .06; senior class adviser, .03, National Honor Society adviser, .010; boys' varsity basketball, .065; boys' and girls' gymnastics and boys' track, .0525; girls' field hockey, .05; girls' varsity softball .035; coed skiing, .0425.

OTHER: Homebound instructor will receive $7.00 per hour; $.12 per mile reimbursement for travel between schools; teachers involved in curriculum studies will be compensated for time devoted to such studies other than that which falls within the regular working day at the rate of $5.00 per hour.

LEAVES: Fifteen days' sick leave will be granted each year with unlimited accumulation; six days per year noncumulative leave will be granted for illness of a spouse or dependent or for death in the immediate family; three days' personal leave per year for personal matters that must be arranged during the school day; should an emergency arise and the three alloted personal leave days were used for religious observances not provided for in the school calendar, the superintendent may grant up to three additional personal leave days; leave for professional conferences may be granted at the discretion of the superintendent; leave for jury duty will be granted without deduction from any other leave, and the teacher will receive the difference between his pay and jury duty remuneration; professional leave at one-half annual salary for approved programs of study after six consecutive years of service; a leave of absence without pay will be granted up to one calendar year for temporary disability due to illness or injury; leave of absence of up to two years may be granted to teachers with three years of service to serve in Peace Corps or Teacher Corps.

INSURANCE: Blue Cross coverage under the Extended Plan with additional semiprivate room credit rider benefits, semiprivate maternity rider, and special dependent endorsement; general liability insurance coverage for a total of $1,000,000 will be provided for teachers supervising students for school-sponsored activities off school property; tax-sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of professional association dues; if negotiation meetings are scheduled during normal working hours, association representatives will be relieved from all regular duties without loss of pay; association business, including investigations and processing of grievances that interfere with the performance of duties will not be conducted during the working hours of a school day.

INSTRUCTION: Middle-school instructors will be assigned no more than five and one-half hours of duty during the day and will not be required to teach in more than two fields; all teachers will receive a 30-minute duty-free lunch period; instructors in departmental or modified departmental programs will have a minimum of 60 minutes planning time daily; classroom teachers will have at least 30 minutes planning time daily; teachers are required to be on duty one-half hour before and after school; every effort will be made to maintain class size in the self-contained classroom at no more than 25 students; should class size exceed 25, it is recognized that assistance may be needed; teachers will be dismissed at least four hours early on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, last day of the school year; the superintendent will confer with the staff in preparing the regional school district calendar; teachers will play an active role in the preparation, implementation, and evaluation of all curriculum revisions and pilot program studies; since the board recognizes that competent specialists are essential to the operation of an effective educational program, the administration will make known to teachers established lines of communications for appropriate referrals and consultations; the board will supply sufficient auxiliary personnel to permit teachers to devote their time to teaching and preparation and to providing a wider range of services for the educational program; a textbook committee comprised mainly of teachers will make recommendations of textbooks to the superintendent.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; when a teachers meeting extends more than an hour beyond the workday, any teacher with commitments made prior to the notification of the meeting is free to leave unless notification of the meeting was given at least two weeks in advance and the ending time beyond the hour limitation was specified; all regularly scheduled meetings must be designated on the calendar for the year; teachers will be given four weeks' notice for after school or evening parent conference schedules or other program for which their attendance is required; prior to the start of evaluation of teachers at least one inservice meeting will be held for discussion of the evaluation criteria to be used; evaluation reports will be placed in teachers' files with a copy provided to the teacher; teachers may comment on the report and both the teachers and the administrator will sign the file copy; teachers will be notified in writing by June 1 of any changes in their programs or schedules for the coming year; if two or more applicants for vacant positions are substantially equal in qualifications, the one with the greatest amount of seniority in the Shepaug Valley School District will be given preference; instructional chairmen will have at least 45 minutes per day for administrative duties in addition to their regular planning time; the board will provide legal counsel to defend any teacher in any action arising out of an assault on a teacher or out of disciplinary action taken against a student by a teacher and in criminal, civil, or administrative proceedings in which the teacher is charged with assault in connection with employment; absence as a result of personal injury compensable under Workmen's Compensation Laws caused by an assault arising out of and in the course of employment will not be charged to accumulated sick or personal leave; the employee will be paid his full salary for the period of absence minus the workmen's compensation paid.

* * *

Charles Stewart Mott Community College
Flint, Michigan

Between Board of Trustees of Charles Stewart Mott Community College and Charles Stewart Mott Education Association, effective August 16, 1973, to August 15, 1975. Approximately 294 faculty and nonteaching professionals including all full- and part-time professional personnel, counselors, area coordinators, health counselors, and related trade and technical instructors. Provision for renegotiation not later than February 15 of the calendar year in which the agreement expires.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) Less than B.A., $7,411 to $10,581, 10 increments; B.A., $8,994 to $15,064, 10 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $15,486; M.A., $9,838 to $16,515, 11 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $16,937 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $17,359 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $17,781 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $18,203 maximum; doctorate, $18,625 maximum.

DIFFERENTIALS: Sponsorship of all student clubs and organizations will be voluntary and each sponsor will be paid $60 per semester; basketball coach, $1,790; baseball and track coaches, $1,430; wrestling coach, $1,375; cross country, golf, and tennis coaches, $775; basketball assistant, $750; baseball assistant, $630; debate coach, $600; cheerleading coach, $425.

OTHER: Authorized travel by car, $.12 per mile; faculty members who substitute will be paid $14 per contact hour; full-time instructors assigned to teach an overload course will be paid $210 per weekly contact hour per semester ($220 in 1974-75); faculty members performing professional assignments other than classroom teaching (e.g., advising, late registration duties, special test construction and correction) beyond their regular assignment will be paid at one-half the substitute rate.

LEAVES: Ten days' sick and emergency leave credited annually, unlimited accumulation; up to five days' emergency leave may be used for death in the immediate family and eight days of such leave may be used in case of serious illness of an immediate family member; full-time summer session faculty will accrue two days of sick and emergency leave; summer session faculty teaching one-half time or more but less than full time, will accrue one day of sick or emergency leave and summer session faculty teaching one-quarter or more but less than one-half time will accrue one-half day; two days' personal leave will be granted annually to take care of legitimate business and professional and family obligations that cannot be met outside the regular scheduled teaching assignment; three days' leave of absence without pay will be granted to faculty members who wish to observe traditional and customary holidays; the board will encourage attendance at professional conferences without loss of salary; the board will provide funds for expenses incurred for attendance at authorized meetings; when a natural catastrophe occurs, one day of leave will be granted without loss of pay; leave with pay for jury service with any juror's fees paid to the board; leave with pay when subpoenaed to serve as a witness in a court action arising out of employment; board will pay a faculty member in the military reserve the difference between his regular salary and the pay received for such service up to two weeks; sabbatical leave for one semester at full pay, or one academic year or the last semester of an academic year at half pay after completion of seven years of service in the college within 10 consecutive years; all insurance benefits provided by the board will continue while employee is on leave; a leave of absence up to three years may be granted for personal illness extending beyond accumulated sick leave; the board may grant a leave of absence for one year for study and may extend such leave annually up to a limit of three years for a plan of study approved by the administration; leave without pay will be granted for service in a school system, educational institution, or with an official governmental agency, including Peace Corps.

INSURANCE: Board will pay 100 percent of Blue Cross-Blue Shield MVF-2 Program plus Master Medical with $2 co-pay prescription drug coverage; board will pay group life insurance protection of $25,000; board will pay for long-term disability plan to age 65 at 60 percent of salary for sickness or accident with a 30-working day waiting period.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues.

Membership, Fees and Payroll Deductions

All faculty members in the bargaining unit except those employed less than three-fifths time, as defined in Paragraph A(3) of Article X shall, as a condition of continued employment by the Board:

Maintain membership in the MCCEA, or

Pay, as a representation fee, an amount equal to the membership dues of the MCCEA (which dues shall include the dues of the Michigan Education Association and the National Education Association).

Each faculty member employed less than three-fifths time, except Civil Service and Building Trades personnel, shall either

Maintain membership in the MCCEA; or

Pay each semester, as a representation fee, ten dollars per weekly contact hour or one-quarter of an amount equal to the yearly membership dues of the MCCEA (defined in Section I-2 above) whichever is less; or Pay one-quarter of the local MCCEA yearly dues for each semester of employment, provided that he is already a member of the MEA and the NEA.

The provisions of this section shall also apply to the summer session for employees hired only for the summer session of a given school year, except that the rate specified in paragraph 2 shall be five dollars per weekly contract hour per summer session.

Any faculty member now employed by the Board who is not a member of the MCCEA and any faculty member hereafter employed by the Board, shall within thirty (30) days from the execution of this Agreement, or within thirty (30) days from the date of employment, or within thirty (30) days after the indemnity hereinafter mentioned is received and approved by the Board, whichever date is later in point of time, make application for membership in the MCCEA (which shall include membership in the Michigan Education Association and National Education Association) or pay said representation fee if membership is not desired.

In the event that a faculty member fails to pay the membership dues or representation fee, the Board shall cause the termination of the employment of said faculty member as of the end of the school year in which said failure occurs. The parties expressly recognize that the failure of any faculty member to comply with the provisions of this Article shall constitute reasonable and just cause for discharge.

The president, the vice-president, and the Representative Assembly delegate will be released from classes for five days per school year to attend state or national meetings without deductions from salary, provided the association pays the cost of any necessary substitute; three contact hours of released time per week will be granted the president, provided the association bears the cost of his replacement(s) on a part-time or overload basis; effective with the 1974-75 academic year, this figure shall be six contact hours; faculty members engaged in negotiations during school hours will be released from regular duties without loss of salary; the association has the right to use school buildings for business meetings when not otherwise in use; the association may use college equipment, including typewriters, duplicating equipment, calculating machines, and audiovisual equipment, bulletin boards in each division may be used to post notices of association activities and matters; faculty members' mail boxes may be used for the distribution of informational material; the board will provide information on the financial resources of the district, adopted budgets, board minutes, and such other information as the association may reasonably require, together with information necessary for the association to conduct its legitimate business.

INSTRUCTION: The number of contact hours (50 minutes each) per week per semester will be determined by the instructors within each division with the advice of the division chairman and the approval of the president; the regular and standard teaching load will be 12 to 16 contact hours per week; a faculty member will not be assigned more than two course preparations unless more are needed to carry a full load; each faculty member will maintain at least six office hours per week, and will make additional provision for student consultations as may be necessary and reasonable and will be assigned no more than 25 students for counseling during any semester or summer session; whenever possible classes will be assigned within eight consecutive hours and with a 12-hour span between the end of the last assignment and the beginning of the first assignment the next day; full-time faculty employees will not be required to have classes beginning after 4:00 p.m. more than one semester each year and then no more than two per week unless necessary to make a full load; assignment of full-time faculty members to week-end duties will be on a voluntary basis; no class size shall exceed that set forth upon an official list without written consent of the faculty member affected; the board will continue to provide clerical services to the faculty for teaching and counseling purposes.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; right to review personnel file and challenge any contents concerning employment by the board and to be accompanied by a representative of the association; every attempt will be made to schedule faculty meetings at times that do not conflict with classes, except in emergency; the agenda for general faculty meetings will be published 48 hours in advance; attendance at college activities, except Commencement, will be voluntary; all full-time faculty members will be deemed on probation during their first three academic years at the college; not less than one year of credit will be given for teaching and counseling at other accredited higher education institutions; after satisfactory completion of probationary period the faculty member will be granted a continuing contract with full right to hearing and appeal; unless notified 60 days before the close of the academic year that his service will be discontinued, a probationary employee will be employed for the ensuing year; any probationary faculty member whose services are discontinued because they are deemed unsatisfactory or for other causes, may process his dismissal through the first four levels of the grievance procedure.

Evaluation of Probationary Instructors

The evaluation of probationary faculty members shall be made by a committee consisting of the Division Chairman or his designee and the appropriate faculty of the division. The committee shall conduct such evaluations in accordance with applicable divisional rules and regulations.

Evaluations shall include classroom techniques and methods; preparation of course syllabi and objectives; methods, systems and materials used to evaluate students; adherence to professional standards and codes of ethics; and relationships with peers and students.

The committee's written recommendation concerning a probationary faculty member's continued employment or dismissal, together with such documentation as may be requested, shall be transmitted by the Division Chairman to the appropriate Dean.

Written evaluation reports shall be signed by the faculty member and the appropriate Dean after a conference between the two. It is understood and agreed that the faculty member's signature merely acknowledges his having read the report. The probationary instructor shall have the right to respond in writing to the evaluation report, and such response shall be attached to all copies of the report.

Discharge or demotion of a faculty member on continuing contract may be made only for reasonable and just cause, and only after such charges, notice, hearing, and determination thereof, as are herein provided, to wit:

1. All charges against a faculty member shall be in writing, signed by the person making the same and filed with the Secretary, Clerk, or other designated officer of the Board, provided that charges concerning the character of professional service shall be filed at least sixty (60) days before the close of the academic year. The Board, if it decides to proceed upon such charges, shall furnish the faculty member with a written statement of the charges, and shall, at the option of the faculty member, provide for a hearing to take place not less than thirty (30) days nor more than forty-five (45) days after the filing of such charges.

2. On the filing of charges in accordance with the preceding Paragraph, the Board may suspend the accused faculty member from active performance of duty until a decision is rendered by the Board, but the faculty member's salary shall continue during such suspension, provided that, if the decision of the controlling Board is appealed and the arbitrator reverses the decision of the Board, the faculty member shall be entitled to all salary lost as the result of such suspension.

3. The hearing shall be conducted in accordance with the following provisions:

a. The hearing shall be public or private at the option of the faculty member affected.

b. No action shall be taken resulting in the demotion or dismissal of a faculty member on continuing contract except by majority vote of the members of the Board.

c. Both the Board and the person filing charges may be represented by counsel.

d. Testimony at the hearing shall be taken on oath or affirmation.

e. The Board shall employ a stenographer who shall make a full record of the proceedings at such hearing and who shall within ten (10) days after the conclusion thereof, furnish the Board and the faculty member affected thereby with a copy of the transcript of such record which shall be certified to be complete and correct.

f. Any hearing held for the dismissal or demotion of a faculty member on continuing contract must be concluded by a decision in writing, within fifteen (15) days after the termination of the hearing. A copy of such decision shall be furnished the faculty member affected within five (5) days after the decision is rendered.

g. Both the Board and the Faculty member may call witnesses and offer competent and relevant testimony and documentary evidence at the hearing.

h. Any faculty member on continuing contract shall have the right to appeal any decision of the Board under this Paragraph C within thirty (30) days from the date of the Board's decision to an arbitrator.

* * *

Staff Reduction

The Board may, upon giving ninety (90) days written notice, without hearing, terminate the services of any faculty member at the end of the academic year because of necessary reduction in personnel, provided that a meeting shall be held for the specific purpose of consulting with the MCCEA prior to the decision to make any such reductions, and provided that the reductions shall be accomplished according to the following provisions:

The Board shall determine the areas in which reductions shall be made and such reductions shall then be accomplished in the following order: part-time faculty, probationary faculty, year-to-year contract faculty, and lastly continuing contract faculty members. Retention of full-time faculty members shall be determined by using the criteria of seniority in the institution, in the division, and in specified areas within the division (not necessarily in that order of priority).

Released faculty members shall be placed on leave of absence with no obligation to rehire after the expiration of three (3) years. Each faculty member placed on leave of absence as aforementioned shall be reinstated in inverse order of his placement on leave of absence for a vacancy for which he is qualified.

The Board shall notify qualified faculty members on leave of absence of subsequent vacancies by certified mail to the last address registered by the faculty member in the Office of Staff Personnel Services. No new appointments, except on a temporary basis, shall be made within thirty (30) days from the mailing of such notification. No appointment of new faculty members shall be made until all those on leave of absence qualified for the vacancy have been given an opportunity to be reemployed. If a faculty member does not return to work at the specified time the Board shall have no further employment obligation to him, except that when a faculty member who has given notice of his intent to return is prevented from so doing due to illness or other emergencies, his leave shall be extended for a period not to exceed one (1) year.

Upon return such faculty member shall retain all credits toward sabbatical leave, sick and emergency leave and experience credits for salary purposes, but shall not accrue any such credits for sabbatical leave and sick and emergency leave and experience for salary purposes during layoff, provided that college or university teaching and counseling experience gained during layoff shall be evaluated for salary purposes upon re-employment.

* * *

Human Relations

Whereas, the Board and MCCEA are mutually committed to the human rights and dignities of all and to policies and programs of racial integration and desegregation as being necessary to good government, good education, and good management; and

Whereas, the parties to this Agreement are mutually committed to the necessity of equal educational opportunity for all students with no exclusion from any program on the basis of race, religion, creed, or social status:

The MCCEA agrees to continue to admit persons to membership without discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, religion, or national origin, and to represent fairly all faculty members subject to the terms of this Agreement.

The Board agrees to continue its policy of not discriminating against any faculty member on the basis of race, creed, color, religion, national origin, or sex in hiring, placement, and assignment of personnel covered under terms of this Agreement.

The Board shall make all reasonable efforts to recruit minority group members for employment in the College and to affirmatively act to increase minority employment. To implement this effort the Board will adopt the following procedures:

The Board shall regularly communicate with institutions training substantial numbers of minority group members for the teaching profession.

Campus visits for the purpose of recruiting will be scheduled when it would appear that such visitations will result in successful recruiting. Such visitations may be cancelled when there is an insufficient number of teaching candidates who have scheduled interviews.

The parties recognize that faculty members shall be an integral part of the recruiting effort. Faculty members shall participate in recruiting trips when practicable. Faculty members participating in recruiting trips shall be selected by the Office of the Vice President. The Office of the Vice President shall give the MCCEA the names of faculty members selected.

Recommendation of potential teaching candidates by community leaders and community organizations will be given careful consideration.

Terminal Leave

A terminal leave payment of one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125.00) per year of service to the College will be paid upon retirement thereafter to: 1. Any faculty member who retires at the end of the school year in which he attains age 65.
2. Any faculty member who has ten (10) years of service to the College and who retires at the end of the school year in which he attains age 61, 62, 63, or 64.
3. Any faculty member who retires after reaching age 55 who has ten (10) years of service to the College if retirement is the result of ill health sufficient to qualify such faculty member for disability retirement under the Michigan Retirement System for Public School Employees Act.

A terminal leave payment of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00) per year of service to the College will be paid upon retirement thereafter to any faculty member who has ten (10) years of service to the College and who retires at the end of the school year in which he attains age 60.

Any faculty member who retires under the terms and conditions of Paragraph A 1 shall receive five hundred dollars ($500.00) additional terminal pay if he has accumulated one hundred (100) unused earned sick and emergency leave days at the time of said retirement.

Any faculty member who retires under the terms and conditions of Paragraph A 2 or B shall receive an additional ten dollars ($10) per day for each day of accumulated sick and emergency leave.

For the purposes of Paragraphs A 1 and A 2, the school year is defined as beginning on September 1 of any given year and ending August 31 of the following year.

No vacancy will be filled except on a temporary basis until such vacancy has been posted for at least 15 days; transfers and changes of assignments will be made only in the area of the faculty member's competence and will be on a voluntary basis; whenever possible faculty members will be given 45 days' notice of involuntary transfers and the reasons therefor if the faculty member so requests; an opportunity to state in writing the reasons for objections to the transfer will be given; an involuntary transfer, or denial of a request for transfer may be challenged through the grievance procedure solely on the ground that the decision was unreasonable; there will be no monitoring or communications device used in the classroom or office without prior consent of the faculty member involved; discipline of faculty members will be subject to the grievance procedure.

2730

* * *

Port Washington, New York

Between Port Washington School District and Port Washington Teachers Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1978. Approximately 465 certificated professional employees, including instructional staff.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $9,711 to $13,542, 14 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $13,842 maximum; B.A. plus 60 hours, $14,142, maximum; M.A., $10,779 to $18,354, 14 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $18,985 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $19,616 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $20,199 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $20,782; doctorate, $21,753 maximum. (1974-75) B.A., $10,235 to $14,191, 14 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $14,491 maximum; B.A. plus 60 hours, $14,791 maximum; M.A., $11,361 to $19,344, 14 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $20,009 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours $20,675, maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $21,289 maximum; M.A. plus 60 hours, $21,903 maximum; doctorate, $22,926 maximum. (1975-76) "The salary schedule for 1975-76 shall be 6% or Cost-of-living plus 1, whichever is higher, on BA Step 1 of the modified index. This schedule will appear as insert Appendix A in this Agreement." (1976-78) "The salary schedules for 1976-77 and 1977-78 shall be in each of the two years 5% or cost-of-living, whichever is higher, on BA Step 1 of the modified index. This schedule will appear as insert Appendixes B and C in this Agreement. In each instance the computation of the cost-of-living will be that as published by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics for the New York - Northeastern New Jersey area and reported in April as reflecting the cost-of-living figures for the previous twelve months from March to March."

LONGEVITY: After 20 and 25 years $100 each year at B.A. and B.A. plus lanes and five percent above maximum salary at M.A. and higher lanes; part-time teachers will receive a pro-rata share of salary and will be advanced to the next salary step after having taught the equivalent of a full-time yearly schedule; experience credit for up to six years for previous teaching experience in equivalent public or private schools; additional credit up to twelve years may be granted at the discretion of the superintendent and with the approval of the board; credit for active military or Peace Corps experience may be granted up to three years; credit will be granted for previous work experience where deemed advisable by the superintendent.

DIFFERENTIALS: Athletic director, 22 percent of M.A. plus 30, step 25; instructional music assistant, $1,000.

OTHER: Home instruction teachers will be paid $11 per hour; coordinators of inservice courses will be paid $20 per two-hour session in 1973-75 and $22 per two-hour session in 1975-78; teachers on inservice courses will be paid $25 per two-hour session in 1973-75 and $27 per two-hour session in 1976-78; summer-school teachers will be paid $1,200 per six-week session and driver education summer-school teachers will be paid $1,425 per six-week session.

LEAVES: Sick leave advanced at start of school year, no accumulation.

Sick Leave

a. Instructional personnel having served the school district less than three full years shall be eligible to receive thirty (30) days for absence for personal illness at the beginning of each school year; those having served more than three years but less than ten years shall be eligible to receive one-hundred twenty (120) days for absence for personal illness at the beginning of each school year; and, those having served the school district more than ten years shall be eligible to receive two-hundred (200) days for absence for personal illness at the beginning of each school year.

During the first year of service it is understood that, after ten (10) days of absence, no salary will be paid to an employee for the first two days of any subsequent absence.

Personnel employed after the start of the school year, shall be eligible for sick leave on a pro rata basis during their first year of employment.

b. In those instances where an individual, having served the district for three (3) years or more, utilizes a portion of his sick leave allotment during the school year, days so utilized shall be deducted from the normal sick leave allotment (see "a" above) for the individual in the subsequent school year. Where an individual has served the district more than three years but less than ten years, he shall be guaranteed receipt of a minimum of forty-five (45) days for absence for personal illness in any one year; where an individual has served the district more than ten years, he shall be guaranteed receipt of a minimum of sixty (60) days for absence for personal illness in any one year.

Where required by the Administration, the employee will furnish a doctor's certificate in order to qualify for the above benefits.

No newly employed instructional employee is entitled to sick leave benefits prior to having started to teach in the District and prior to having satisfactorily passed the pre-employment medical examination, including tuberculin test, or chest x-ray.

Part-time teachers will receive a pro rata amount of sick and personal leave; an employee who sustains an on-the-job injury resulting in medical treatments and absence from work will receive his regular salary and fringe benefits up to one school year; any benefits received while on such leave will be paid to the school district; up to 10 days granted for illness in the immediate family; up to five days for absences owing to death in the immediate family; up to three days' personal leave for business that cannot be conducted after school hours will be granted upon the approval of the superintendent; sabbatical leave at one-half annual salary for a half year and 75 percent of annual salary for one year for study, research, or educational travel, after seven years of service in the school system; payment for summer sabbaticals will be limited to $1,000 per employee, and will be computed at $75 per week of program for employee, $15 per week of program for employee dependents up to four, plus full payment for tuition and academic fees; leaves of absence without pay will be granted for participation in Peace Corps or VISTA, restoration of health, service as an officer in a state or national professional organization, study clearly related to applicant's field of teaching, teaching at an accredited school or college for the purpose of enriching candidate's instructional skills, and assumption of political office; upon return to the school system, participants in VISTA or Peace Corps will be placed on the salary schedule at the level they would have achieved had they not been on leave; all employees returning from leave of absence will be assigned their former position if leave was for one year or less.

INSURANCE: Board pays 100 percent of individual health insurance plan and 60 percent of the dependents plan during 1973-75 and 75 percent of the dependents plan in 1975-76 and 80 percent of the plan in 1976-78; tax-sheltered annuity plans available.

Dental Insurance

During the 1973-74 school year, the Board shall make available the sum of $40,000 plus an additional sum to maintain the dental plan in effect during the 1972-73 school year. In the year 1974-75, the Board shall expend the sum of $20,000 above that which it expended in the 1973-74 school year for dental insurance. The sum expended in 1974-75 shall also be expended in the years 1975-76, 1976-77 and 1977-78. These amounts are to be utilized exclusively for the provision of dental insurance for instructional personnel under a plan established by representatives of the Association and administered by the Board.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of association dues; the association president will be relieved of all building duties; members of the association appointed by either the president or the superintendent to serve on committees may be released from classes or building duty during the school day; leaves of absence without loss of pay for association delegates to attend the annual New York State Unified Teachers House of Delegates meeting; the association will be alloted 10 days a year for association business; no more than three of these days are to be used by any one person, and should be scheduled two days in advance; association has the right to use school buildings for the conduct of general meetings, board will provide a permanent private office within a district facility, including filing space, office furniture, and a typewriter; association will have access to duplicating equipment, audiovisual equipment, and faculty mail boxes; the board will provide information relating to published surveys, reports, agendas, and minutes of public board meetings before public release and upon request, nonconfidential administrative reports and surveys; the board and the association will hold meetings during the school year, by mutual agreement, when requested; five minutes will be allotted at the beginning of each faculty meeting for association announcements.

INSTRUCTION: Direct teaching responsibilities of elementary teachers may not exceed 22½ hours per week and not more than 20 hours for secondary teachers; the secondary teacher's nonteaching duties will not exceed 3 hours and 45 minutes per week; elementary teachers shall have a duty-free lunch period of not less than 50 minutes except when weather or other circumstances may limit such time to 30 minutes; secondary teachers shall have not less than a 45-minute lunch period; a minimum of two and one-half hours per week will be reserved for preparation periods for elementary-school teachers; elementary-school teachers' day will begin at 8:15 and end at 3:15; high-school and secondary teachers' day will begin at 8:00 a.m. and end at 3:10 p.m. and 3:15 p.m., respectively; teachers will be required to work 182 days from September through June; the Professional Growth and Curriculum Development Committee, composed of instructional and administrative personnel, will make recommendations to the superintendent concerning revisions of present educational programs and proposals for new system-wide programs; a committee composed of the principal and three teachers in each building will decide on the utilization of teacher aides, and be responsible for their orientation, supervision, and evaluation; teacher aides will be used only by instructional personnel for noninstructional duties such as library, study hall, bus, cafeteria, playground, and technical duties; instructional aides and teacher assistants will be utilized for the same duties as aides as well as duties under the direction and supervision of the teacher such as checking homework, specific individualized instruction, preparing audiovisual materials, checking attendance, reporting grades, and filing.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; right to review personnel file and to be accompanied by representative; no material will be placed in the employee's personnel files unless the employee has had an opportunity to read the material; the employee has the right to respond to any material in his file and to have his response attached to the file copy; a maximum of 20 faculty meetings will be held each year; meetings will be held on Mondays and will commence no later than 15 minutes after the dismissal of pupils; the Evaluation Committee for the Advanced Status Program, which is composed of teachers and an advisor from the administration, will review proposed plans for members of the professional staff who wish to attain higher degree status, and recommend applicants to the superintendent and the board; all nontenure teachers will be given a written assessment of their performance and those teachers whose services are to be terminated will be so notified by April 1; such teacher may upon written request have a meeting with the principal and the assistant superintendent for personnel; any teacher evaluated will be notified of the results of the evaluation within five days after the evaluation and should receive a copy of the written assessment within 10 days with the right to make a written comment concerning each evaluation and to have this comment included as part of the evaluation; the Supervision and Evaluation Committee comprised of representatives of the administration and the association will continue to study problems and issues and make recommendations to the superintendent concerning the evaluation of teachers.

Reduction of Personnel

Any proposed reduction in the number of instructional employees shall be discussed by the Association and the Superintendent. In the event that positions are abolished or discontinued in a specific teaching area, e.g., pre-kindergarten through sixth year, special areas or specific secondary subject areas, in order, uncertified teachers, probationary teachers, and then the least senior certified tenured employees in the tenure area, shall be laid off.

When vacancies arise following layoffs:

1. Laid off tenured teachers will be reemployed in order of seniority in the tenure area where they hold certification.
2. If vacancies do not exist in a specific tenure area, laid off tenured teachers in possession of certification to teach in another specific teaching area will be reemployed in order of seniority.

If no position is available for which a tenured teacher possesses certification, the district will utilize one of the following procedures:

1. Every effort shall be made to place a teacher in a position for which he has partially completed the requirements for certification while he proceeds to be retrained and certified.
2. The teacher may be provided with one of the sabbatical leaves provided by contract for the purpose of retraining for appropriate certification.

Laid off probationary teachers who would otherwise be retained will be given priority status for substitute teaching in the specific teaching areas for which they are certified, certifiable, or pursuing new certification. Every consideration will be accorded such teachers for available positions suitable to their talents and certification. Laid off probationary teachers serving as substitutes will be advised of available positions by the Office of Personnel.

Candidates for teaching positions will be interviewed by the principal, chairman, and two teachers of the same year level or subject area, when available, prior to offering the applicant the position; when the qualifications of applicants to fill vacancies or new positions are substantially equal, preference will be given to association members.

Chairmen's Teaching Load

All chairmen shall teach at least the equivalent of two classes. So that he may fully perform the duties and responsibilities that are his as head of a department, the chairman shall be relieved of teaching responsibilities in accordance with the number of teachers that are in his department as follows:

(1) 12 or more teachers in the department, including the chairman, 3 classes fewer than a full load.

(2) 7-10 teachers in department, including the chairman, 2 classes fewer than a full load.

(3) 4-6 teachers in department, including the chairman, 1 class fewer than a full load.

D. Additional Assignments

Department chairmen shall be relieved of building duty.

Teachers will be consulted when the annual budget is being prepared; when a budget cut must be made in teachers' specific budget requests, the teachers will select those items to be deleted provided such deletion does not contradict board policy; whenever remodeling of existing school facilities or constructon of additional school facilities is being considered, teachers with an interest in the foregoing will be consulted in the preparation of plans.

VOL. 7, NO. 9
MAY 1974

NRD

NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- School Board Cannot Delegate Allocation of Budget Funds to Teacher Association
- Statute Illegally Restricted Employers' Contributions to Employees' Retirement Fund
- Board of Higher Education Not Required To Negotiate Tenure Resolutions
- Increases in Teaching Hours and Credit for Courses Ruled Arbitrable
- Knowledge of Strike Injunction Sufficient for Compliance
- PERB Orders Enforceable By Judicial Declaration
- Non-Material Conditions of Employment Not Subject to Negotiation

Board Findings and Rulings 7
- Fact Finders Support Released Time for Organizational Representatives
- Teacher Entitled to Full Pay for Early Completion of Assignment
- Absent Contractual Provision Public Employee Not Guaranteed Substantive Right to Independent Review of Dismissal
- Student Employees Under College Work-Study Programs Are Not "Public Employees"
- Requiring Teachers To Show 'Good Cause' Before Leaving Building Constitutes Violation of Contract
- Reduction of Extracurricular Activities Because of Financial Squeeze Upheld
- Teachers To Be Paid for Two-Day Orientation Program in Excess of Contractual Year
- Prior Submission of Budget Does Not Annul a Board's Duty To Bargain on Economic Terms
- Separate Unit Determined For Law School Faculty: Part-Timers Excluded

Negotiation Notes 11
- Iowa Teacher Bargaining Law Enacted
- Residence and Retirement Plan Provisions Ruled Bargainable
- Attorney General's Opinion; Alabama, Hawaii, New Mexico
- Equal Pay Act Guidelines
- The Consumer Price Index—March 1974

Special Reports 14
- Negotiated Family Sick Leave Provisions
- Briefs of Agreement

Text 23
- Public Employee Negotiations Act—Iowa

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2733

CASE REVIEWS

GEORGIA

School Board Cannot Delegate Allocation of Budget Funds to Teacher Association

In support of a trial court decision, the Georgia Supreme Court held that absent legislative authorization, the Chatham County Board of Education was not empowered to grant the Chatham Association of Educators the right to allocate budget funds as economic benefits to members. The court, therefore, ruled that the contractual provision delegating this right to the Association was null and void.

The parties had negotiated a contract providing for a reopener on the economic sections. The board adopted a resolution amending its budget to grant the Association the right to allocate $339,600 for economic benefits to the board's professional employees. The Association ratified the resolution and decided that one-half of the funds would be applied to an insurance program and the remaining funds to salary increments. The Association informed the board of its action and requested that the funds be made available by February 1, 1973. The board refused to make the funds available.

Association petitioned the court to order the board to carry out its resolution and provide the monies for salaries and the insurance programs and to enjoin the board from withholding funds from its employees. The trial court found that the agreement negotiated between the parties contained terms and conditions of employment as well as a clause stating that the contract provisions would supersede any rules, regulations, and practices of the board. Furthermore, the board's resolution of August 1972 amended the budget to grant the Association the right to allocate $339,600 in economic benefits for professional employees. However, state statutes authorize the state board of education to administer state funds allocated to local school districts; local school districts have no authority to divert these funds. In addition, the board as an individual school system is charged with the duty of levying local taxes for support of the schools, and is responsible for the control and management of the school system. The trial court stated that absent specific legislative authorization, the school board was not empowered to delegate its legally appointed duties to third parties. The court further declared the board's contract and resolution void as they were illegal attempts by the board to delegate its powers to determine conditions of employment and the allocation of public funds. Accordingly, the Association could not enforce the contract and the resolution. The Association appealed the ruling to the supreme court.

Reviewing the trial court's decision, the supreme court affirmed the lower court's decision and dismissed the Association's appeal. (Chatham Association of Educators v. Board of Public Education for the City of Savannah and the County of Chatham, Georgia Supreme Court, March 7, 1974.)

MICHIGAN

Statute Illegally Restricted Employers' Contributions to Employees' Retirement Fund

The Michigan Court of Appeals, reversing a circuit court's decision, found that a statute limiting employers' retirement fund contributions unconstitutionally impaired the enforcement of a retirement fund provision of a contract between the Washtenaw Community College Education Association and the Board of Trustees of Washtenaw Community College.

The negotiated agreement included a provision for an optional private retirement fund for instructors to be funded by contributions from both employers and employees. These payments were to be in addition to employers' statutorily required contributions to the public-school employees fund. Subsequent to the effective date of the agreement, when legislation was enacted restricting higher education employers from contributing to more than one employees' retirement fund, the board of trustees discontinued payments to the retirement plan. As a result, the faculty association filed a petition in circuit court for a declaratory judgment asserting that the statute restricting the employers' retirement contributions illegally impaired the enforcement of the parties' contract. The circuit court did not find that the statute impaired the obligations of the contract and dismissed the petition. The association appealed.

The appeals court acknowledged that the Constitution of the United States provided that no state may enact legislation impairing the obligation of contracts. However, when a state has allegedly impaired contractual obligations, the state's economic interests and responsibility to protect the welfare of its citizens must be considered in relation to the constitutional restriction. The court agreed that the contract was impaired by the legislation, but believed that the central question was whether the impairment was constitutional, for a statute that impairs contract obligations cannot be challenged if it only restricts a party's contractual benefits.

The court found that the statute could be challenged because it abolished retirement benefits the employees expected according to the terms of the contract. The board of trustees contended that the state's responsibility to protect its citizens' interests and welfare outweighed the constitutional ban on impairment of contracts, and that the statute was enacted to make the school employees retirement fund financially sound. The court rejected the board's contention because it found no evidence that the retirement fund was in financial difficulty, and prohibition of contributions to a private fund would not result in more money being diverted to the public fund. The court concluded that the prohibition of contributions to other retirement funds did not result in the state's further protection of the people's interests and welfare.

Examining the nature of the contractual obligation, the court determined that the private retirement fund was an important benefit accorded to employees because an employee could increase his compensation by as much as 5 percent by participating in the private retirement fund.

In conclusion, the court found that the statute restricting higher education employers' contributions to a single retirement fund was unconstitutional as it impaired the contract retirement fund provision; it, therefore, reversed the decision of the trial court. Additionally, in accordance with a pre-trial agreement between the parties, the board of trustees was obligated to pay all appropriate back contributions to the retirement fund. (Washtenaw Community College Education Association v. Board of Trustees of Washtenaw Community College, Michigan Court of Appeals, November 2, 1973.)

NEW JERSEY

Board of Higher Education Not Required To Negotiate Tenure Resolutions

In support of a New Jersey Board of Higher Education resolution, the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that under the state employer-employee relations statute, a board of education was not obliged to negotiate faculty tenure policies as they were matters of educational policy exclusively within the board's power.

In 1971, the board requested the Chancellor of Higher Education to implement a study of tenure at state colleges. The report indicated that there was a serious tenure problem at the state and county colleges. Recognizing that normally between 50 and 60 percent should be tenured, the report pointed out that the tenured faculty in the colleges was approximately 63 percent in 1971, 71 percent in 1972 and would be 77 percent in six years if current practices were continued. Factors affecting the tenure problem were the recent growth in the number of tenured faculty, decreasing enrollment in the colleges, distribution of tenured faculty by department and rank, and the proportion of tenured assistant professors and instructors. The report proposed adoption of an appropriate tenure ratio and various policy changes designed to award tenure to faculty members who have not only performed satisfactorily, but also contributed to the development of the institution. The report also proposed that each state college submit a master plan specifying its personal requirements.

In July 1972, the Chancellor's report was distributed to the presidents of the state colleges, requesting that each president discuss the report with the faculty senate and transmit recommendations back to the board. Subsequently, the board, in support of the Chancellor's recommendations, adopted a tenure resolution incorporating policies which mandated the board of trustees of each college to draw up a 10-year plan to limit the proportion of tenured faculty, to establish more intensive and rigorous review procedures for conferring tenure, and to initiate a procedure to regularly evaluate tenured teachers' performance. Tenure was to be offered only to faculty members who had a terminal degree, whose probationary performance indicated future contribution to the school, and who exhibited superior teaching ability and scholarship. Subsequently, the board adopted a similar plan for county colleges.

Both the Association of New Jersey State College Faculties and the Association of New Jersey County College Faculties appealed the board's resolution to the Law Division. As the petitions were similar, they were consolidated and brought before the Supreme Court. Meantime, the board filed its tenure resolution with the Secretary of State and published the policies in the state register in the form of emergency statutes. The board's action afforded the public an opportunity to comment on the resolutions. Upon receiving no reaction, the board readopted these resolutions as administrative rules.

The faculty associations contended that in filing the tenure resolutions the board violated the New Jersey Administrative Procedures Act which requires that prior notice be given and a hearing be held before filing resolutions. The court found the issue moot; the act allows filing of rules without prior notification in an emergency, and the board's publication of the emergency rules satisfied any statutory requirements. The associations also asserted that the board lacked the authority to adopt tenure policies which impair faculty members' tenure rights. The court pointed out that the board had been given the statutory power to establish reasonable tenure guidelines in accordance with statutory tenure provisions. Reviewing the board's tenure resolutions, the court found that their purpose was to avoid granting tenure to unqualified teachers and in such a high proportion that institutional flexibility would be reduced. As no legal deficiencies were found in the resolution, the court rejected the parties' contentions.

Additional arguments contended that the adoption of the tenure rules violated the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act; however, the court held that although the Act obligated employers to bargain with recognized employee organizations over "terms and conditions of employment" and "working conditions," these terms were never clearly defined as the Act did not purport to restrict the board's supervisory responsibilities as set forth in the state education law.

The court reiterated that adoption of the tenure policies was within the board's statutory duties and the resolutions could be considered matters of major educational policy statutorily within the exclusive province of the board. Accordingly, the court affirmed the board's adoption of the tenure resolution but added that although the board was not obligated to negotiate faculty tenure policies, prior consultation with and recommendations from faculty representatives and other interested parties were very important. (Association of New Jersey State College Faculties Inc. v. Ralph A. Dungan, Chancellor of Higher Education et al, New Jersey Supreme Court, October 12, 1974.)

Increases in Teaching Hours and Credit for Courses Ruled Arbitrable

Working hours and progress along the contractual salary schedule are terms and conditions of employment, regardless of overlap into areas of educational policy; consequently, grievances dealing with these matters are arbitrable. The New Jersey State Supreme Court reversed, on appeal, a Chancery Division restraining order that had prevented the arbitration of two grievances submitted by the Englewood Teachers Association in a dispute with the Board of Education of the City of Englewood. In both cases, the teachers had exhausted the four-level internal grievance procedure and sought binding arbitration as provided for in the contract.

The basic issue was the negotiability of the board's increasing the teaching hours of four special education teachers, to bring their work day into conformity with that of other teachers, and the board's refusal to grant credit for courses taken by another teacher which had the effect of denying the teacher a salary increment warranted by the attainment of a higher level of education.

With regard to the unilateral change in work hours, the Association felt that the savings clause of the contract protected the teachers from such an extension because it proscribed any interpretation or application of the agreement which worked to "eliminate, reduce or otherwise detract from any teacher benefit existing prior to its effective date." The board's position was that the matter of a teacher's work hours rested exclusively with it and could not be delegated, as the prerogative was explicit under the state education laws precluding the arbitrability of the complaint; the court's decision sustained this view.

Similarly, arbitrability was the issue involved in the second grievance wherein the board maintained that it had the exclusive right to deal with matters of compensation. The Chancery Division court again favored the board's contention and granted a restraining order against the Association's effort to arbitrate the grievances.

Examining the opposing positions, the state supreme court had to determine the fine line between the board's duties and powers under the Education Law and the Association's rights under the Employer-Employee Relations Act. The court returned to the principles derived in its previous attempt at reconciliation of the provisions of the two statutes in Dunellen Board of Education v. Dunellen Education Association, and found that working hours and compensation, along with physical work environment, requisite facilities, and customary fringe benefits were matters within the jurisdiction of the Employer-Employee Relations Act. Specifically, the court held that "major educational policies which indirectly affect the working conditions of the teachers remain exclusively with the Board and are not negotiable whereas items which are not predominantly educational policies and directly affect the financial and personal welfare of the teachers do not remain exclusively with the Board and are negotiable."

Finding the matters at issue to be suitable for negotiation and the grievance procedure, including arbitration if so negotiated, and failing to find any violation of the education statute in the Association's effort to secure arbitration, the court reversed the Chancery Division's restraining orders. The court stressed that it would continue a case-by-case determination in disputes involving the Education Law and the Employer-Employee Relations Act in an effort to give effect to the provisions of both without frustrating the goals or terms of either. Although it anticipated "administrative and judicial burdens" through this approach, the court felt that the burdens would decrease with the emergence of additional guideline opinions. (Board of Education of the City of Englewood, Plaintiff-Respondent v. Englewood Teachers Association, Defendant-Appellant, Supreme Court of New Jersey, November 20, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Knowledge of Strike Injunction Sufficient for Compliance

Persons proven to have knowledge of a court ordered injunction are guilty of contempt for violation of the order even if the injunction was not actually served upon them. Also, a school district satisfies the statutory definition of "public employer" or "government" and can properly sue for injunctive relief in its own name. So ruling, the Appellate Division of the state supreme court denied union appeals and affirmed two orders of a special term supreme court which enjoined a strike by the Yorktown Congress of Teachers and held teacher leaders in contempt for continuing the strike in violation of the injunction. However, the court modified the fines and jail sentences levied against individual teachers and union officers.

The union's first appeal was directed at the court's denial of a motion to dissolve a temporary restraining order against the strike. The union contended that the suit filed by the school district to enjoin the strike was improper as it should have been filed by the school board. The court disagreed, finding a school district to be a "proper party plaintiff" in that state statutes defined a school district as a government, public employer, and municipal corporation with the power to negotiate collectively and sign contracts with the teachers.

A second appeal contended that union members had not been proven guilty of criminal contempt for violation of the injunction and that the sentences and fines imposed by the court were excessive.

The lower court had ascertained that all but three of 22 union leaders and other teachers had been served with the restraining order and had been absent from work during the entire period of the strike. The court ruled that the strikers, having willfully violated the order were guilty of criminal contempt and fined the union $1,000 for each day of the strike. In addition, the court sentenced six union officers to 30-day jail terms and the 16 other teachers to 15-day terms, and fined each of them $250.

The appellate court concluded from the evidence that proof of guilt had been established beyond reasonable doubt for the 19 teachers served with the restraining order. The three who had not received the order were union officers and would have known about the injunction, the court believed, stating that "persons who have knowledge of the mandate of the court may be punished for contempt even though not served with a copy of the order allegedly disobeyed." Although the school board requested that the teachers not be jailed, the penalties imposed were held justifiable in view of the teachers' intentional defiance of the law and court order.

The court affirmed both lower court decisions, but reduced the jail sentences to that time already served by the teachers and to five days for the union officers. (Yorktown Central School District No. 2 v. Yorktown Congress of Teachers, et al, New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Second Judicial Department, October 29, 1973.)

PERB Orders Enforceable By Judicial Declaration

A Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) order directing an employer to negotiate in good faith can be enforced by judicial proclamation, so ruled the New York Supreme Court.

PERB ordered the City of White Plains to bargain with the Firefighters Association regarding two of the Association's six demands. The city contended that PERB's petition was insufficient in law since the court did not have jurisdiction, that it (the city) was bargaining in good faith, that such an order could be entertained only after administrative procedures regarding improper practices were exhausted, and that the issue of good faith bargaining was a matter of another administrative hearing. PERB sought an order directing the city to comply with its order.

The court held that the dispute was whether or not the city was in compliance, although PERB asserted that a non-compliance contention was unnecessary to obtain judicial enforcement. The court ruled that PERB had authority to render its decision and that the evidence supported PERB's determination. Accordingly, the court granted PERB's petition and ordered the city to comply with PERB's decision. (Matter of New York State Public Employment Relations Board, Petitioner v. The City of White Plains, Respondent, New York Supreme Court, September 26, 1972.)

SOUTH DAKOTA

Non-Material Conditions of Employment Not Subject to Negotiation

Affirming a trial court's decision, the South Dakota Supreme Court ruled that under the Public Employees Union Law, the Aberdeen School Board was not required to negotiate with the Aberdeen Education Association over elementary conferences, teacher aides, elementary planning, class size, audiovisual expansion, budget allowances, guidance programs, and administrators' retirement. The court said that the above-mentioned items were non-material conditions of employment and, therefore, not subject to negotiation. The teachers Association had appealed the trial court's decision, claiming that the items were "other conditions of employment" and, therefore, a proper subject for negotiations.

Dismissing the school board's contention that the state collective bargaining law was unconstitutional, the court stated that the important issue was whether the trial court had erred in determining that the items were not proper subjects of negotiation. According to the court, the state negotiation statute authorized public employers to bargain with public employees over wages, hours, and other conditions of employment. The instant case concerned the term "other conditions of employment."

The court cited previous court cases and National Labor Relations Board decisions that had ruled that employers did not have to negotiate every item affecting employment, and also cases where employees were not required to negotiate non-material working conditions. In the opinion of the court, the negotiation statute did not require the board to negotiate non-material working conditions. "Other conditions of employment," as viewed by the court, constituted material conditions of employment directly affecting wages, hours, and working conditions. The court did not consider elementary conferences, teachers' aides, elementary planning, class size, audiovisual expansion, guidance programs, and administrators' retirement to be material items affecting working conditions, wages, and hours, but rather matters of management prerogative.

Accordingly, the court dismissed the Association's petition and affirmed the trial court's decision. (Aberdeen Education Association v. the Aberdeen Board of Education, South Dakota Supreme Court, March 19, 1974.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

CALIFORNIA

Fact Finders Support Released Time for Organizational Representatives

The majority decision of a fact-finding committee called in to settle a "three-party persistent disagreement" under procedures of the states' Winton Act (CETA) recommended that the Campbell Elementary School District grant released time for conducting organization business to one representative of the Campbell Elementary Teachers Association. The fact-finders based their decision on prior practice and the needs of the school district and the Association.

In previous years, the board officially had granted the president of the CETA released time on the basis of 2/7 of a school day. The practice was continued, however, without official board action. As the Association reimbursed the school district for the permanent substitute, released time was at no cost to the district with the exception of some fringe benefits. At the meet-and-confer sessions for the 1973-74 school year, the Certificated Employees Council (CEC) requested one-half day released time for at least two representatives of the employee organization, and eventually revised its request for one person on a half-time basis. The board offered four days per year for one person, whereupon CEC declared a persistent disagreement and submitted the issue to fact-finding.

In view of the history of the released time program, the CEC claimed that the board's proposal was not meaningful as the purpose of the released time was to promote a better employer-employee relationship. The CEC also presented a list of activities instituted by the Association since the inception of released time. In addition, several principals offered testimonals on the benefits of the released time program.

The board did not deny the established practice of granting released time, but pointed out that a 1967 Attorney General Opinion held that a government agency need not allow time off for conducting organizational business, and contended that comparable school districts did not provide as much released time, that the released time would discriminate against employee organizations other than the CETA, and that eventually other organizations would request the same amount of time. The board also mentioned that the program had received some adverse community reaction and that the released time activities were not always beneficial to the school district.

The fact-finders' majority opinion recognized that the board was not obligated to grant released time and that the AGO was applicable, but questioned whether a strictly legalistic view was appropriate since the minimal number of complaints or problems arising from the program seemed to be outweighed by the principals' testimonials. On the basis of a statement from another employee organization that it did not find the program discriminatory, the majority of the fact-finders felt that the chances of another employee organization requesting a similar benefit were minimal. Finally, the strongest support for the program was its efficient operation.

The fact-finders also pointed out that both the Association and the CEC were working on plans for employing a full-time organizational official, and the board was acquiescent to this type program even though it could not be implemented during the current school year. Considering the fact that the CEC requested released time for one-half of the school day as opposed to the previous 2/7 of the school day, the fact-finders reported that this was no real change in practice, because previously, the organizational representative had been released at noon, leaving only two of a day's five teaching periods after lunch.

In conclusion, both the neutral fact-finder and the CEC fact-finder recommended that the practice of releasing one teacher designated by the CEC from noon onwards be continued for the 1973-74 school year. (Certificated Employees Council, Campbell Union School District and Board of Trustees, Campbell Union School District, Fact Finding Panel, January 8, 1974.)

MARYLAND

Teacher Entitled to Full Pay for Early Completion of Assignment

An arbitrator upheld the authority of the Anne Arundel County Board of Education to issue procedures for prorating extracurricular pay, but "simple justice" obligated the school board to pay the full amount to a teacher who satisfactorily completed her assignment in less than the specified time period.

An agreement negotiated between the board and the teachers association specified lump sums for various extracurricular activities. The programs of individuals and the teachers to be assigned were to be determined by the principal with the advice of the faculty council in accordance with administrative guidelines. The Association contended that the guidelines should be negotiated, that they should be limited to specifying extracurricular programs and the number of teachers to be involved, and the extracurricular rate should not be less than the amount stated in the contract.

The case brought to arbitration involved a teacher, appointed yearbook advisor, who completed the assignment in a shorter time than the one specified in the written offer signed by the teacher when she accepted the assignment. The school board refused to pay the teacher the full sum for the activity and in accordance with extracurricular guidelines prorated the amount.

The arbitrator found that nothing in the contract prohibited the action of the board in setting up minimum time requirements and a system of proration, and that the system of proration had existed informally and unchallenged for a number of years. The arbitrator stated further that if the Association wanted to change the extracurricular guidelines, it should seek to do so at the bargaining table. However, reviewing the instant case, the arbitrator found that the teacher had satisfactorily completed her assignment in less than the estimated time and therefore ruled that the school board pay the teacher the full amount for the assignment. (Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County and Anne Arundel County Board of Education, American Arbitration Association, May 1, 1973.)

MINNESOTA

Absent Contractual Provision Public Employee Not Guaranteed Substantive Right to Independent Review of Dismissal

Basing their decision on a state Attorney General's Opinion, the Minnesota Public Employee Relations Board declared that the state public employee bargaining law did not guarantee employees the substantive right to the review of grievances, "unless it is otherwise provided by contract, ordinance, statute or civil service rule."

The board's ruling was issued in a case brought against the Lac Qui Parle County Assessor's Office, for dismissing one employee without either providing reasons for dismissal or affording a hearing of charges. A letter sent to the county board of commissioners requesting a hearing and objecting to the dismissal on the basis that it was without justification was never acknowledged. Subsequently, the employee petitioned PERB for an independent review under Section 179.76 of the bargaining law.

At the PERB hearing, the county asserted that the board lacked jurisdiction in the case because the employee's dismissal was not a grievance arising out of the terms and conditions of employment. According to the county, the assesor had the authority to terminate the employee and furthermore, the action resulted from an elimination of the full-time clerical assistant position in the assessor's office. The county also stated that the employee withdrew a request to appear before the board of commissioners and refused further employment as a part-time assistant.

According to the board there were three central issues in the case: whether the dismissal was subject to independent review, whether the county provided such review, and whether the employee was discharged for cause. The board admitted that there was no evidence that the county provided a procedure for independent review of grievances or that the dismissal of a public employee was a grievance under Section 179.76 of the bargaining law. However, according to the board, the important question was whether the employee was protected from discharge without cause under the state bargaining law when there was no county procedure, contract, or policy providing such protection.

An attorney general opinion on the issue, as requested by the PERB, stated that an employer does not have to prove cause in order to dismiss an employee unless provided for by statute or collective bargaining agreement. The attorney general stated further that cause standards were not imposed on public employers unless their employees were permanent employees in the public service or were covered by a civil service procedure or contract providing a cause standard. He concluded that the clerical assistant's case was not justiciable before the board.

In accordance with the attorney general's opinion, the board ruled that Section 179.76 of the bargaining law did not provide public employees with the substantive right of independent review in the absence of a contract, ordinance, statute, or civil service procedure providing such a right. The board therefore dismissed the clerical assistant's case and added that Section 179.76 of the bargaining statute concerned only the procedural right of independent review. (Dorothy Richard and Lac Qui Parle County Board of Commissioners and Lac Qui Parle County Assessor, Minnesota Public Employee Relations Board, January 2, 1974.)

NEW YORK

Student Employees Under College Work-Study Programs Are Not "Public Employees"

Student employees who work for a university as student aides under the federally assisted College Work-Study Program are not "public employees" as defined in the New York Collective Bargaining Law, ruled the Office of Collective Bargaining (OCB), Board of Certification.

The decision emanated from a certification petition brought by a union of college workers seeking a unit of student aides and federally supported College Work-Study Program students at the libraries of the senior colleges of the City University of New York. A second petition requested certification of a unit of student aides and students in the work-study program who performed clerical and related office work at the university.

The city argued for a dismissal of the petitions on the grounds of impropriety since the nature of the employment relations between the student aides and College Work-Study Program students and the university was not within Taylor Law rights and obligations.

The OCB cited cases having related issues in which the common theme was that where an employment relationship exists only for furthering an educational or correctional goal, it is different from that considered in the labor relations statute.

A factual determination revealed that this type of employment is different because positions are reserved particularly for student employees, who are each treated differently, and few students remain in a position or are permitted to remain permanently in a position. Further, the board found that the purpose of student employment is to supplement the students' financial resources so that the students may continue in school, not to provide training or experience in the student's chosen field of study. Finally, the board held that the employment status was totally dependent on continuing student status.

The OCB ruled that the employment relationship was subordinate to the primary educational purpose of the student's relationship with the university, and consequently ruled that the students were not public employees within the meaning and intent of the New York City Collective Bargaining Law. Therefore, the board dismissed the union petitions. (College Workers Association and the City of New York et al., Office of Collective Bargaining, Board of Certification, February 4, 1974.)

Requiring Teachers To Show 'Good Cause' Before Leaving Building Constitutes Violation of Contract

An arbitrator ruled that the Falconer Board of Education violated its agreement with the Falconer Education Association when it issued a memo requiring teachers to show "good cause" before leaving the school building during unassigned periods. Prior to the issuance of the memo, teachers were required only to notify a member of the clerical staff when they were leaving the building.

The contract included a provision that stated that teachers were allowed to leave school during an unassigned period upon proper notification to the principal. Disagreement concerned what constituted "proper notification" and "unassigned periods." The board claimed that preparation periods were assigned periods while the Association held the opposite view.

According to the arbitrator, an unassigned period was any period when a teacher was not assigned to teach a class or supervise a study hall. Therefore, preparation periods were unassigned. Furthermore, since the board had previously accepted teachers' notification of the clerical staff as "proper notification" for leaving the building during an unassigned period, the board's issuance of a memo requiring teachers to show "good cause" before leaving the building was a unilateral change of contract language and thus violated the contract. (Falconer Education Association and Falconer Board of Education, American Arbitration Association, March 27, 1973.)

OHIO

Reduction of Extracurricular Activities Because of Financial Squeeze Upheld

The Cincinnati Board of Education was justified in reducing teachers' extracurricular assignments and compensation because of the electorate's failure to approve a tax levy. In so finding, an arbitrator rejected the challenge of the Cincinnati Teachers Association to the board's action. The Association contended that reduction could not be made because the negotiated agreement stipulated various extra-duty provisions as well as rates of pay and a maximum number of hours for each activity.

Reviewing the facts of the case, the arbitrator stated that although the agreement stipulated a maximum number of hours for each activity, a minimum number of hours or the amount to be paid for each activity was not required. In fact, inclusion of a maximum number of hours for each activity implied that sometimes less than the maximum would be scheduled. This concept was reinforced by the inclusion of an hourly rather than an annual rate of compensation. However, the arbitrator found that after the cutback several teachers had devoted more than half of the scheduled hours for various activities, and he recommended that these teachers be reimbursed according to the scheduled hourly rate. (Cincinnati Board of Education and Cincinnati Teachers Association, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, July 30, 1973.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Teachers To Be Paid for Two-Day Orientation Program in Excess of Contractual Year

In support of a grievance filed by the Bangor Area Education Association, an arbitrator ruled that the mandatory two-day orientation session scheduled by the Bangor Area School District exceeded the negotiated school year, and, therefore, ordered the school board to compensate teachers for attending.

The negotiated agreement effective during the 1972-73 school year provided for a 183-day school year: 180 pupil attendance days, two inservice days, and one orientation day. Prior to the beginning of the 1972-73 school year, all new teachers were informed that they had to attend two orientation days before the schools opened. The Association claimed that the orientation program was never discussed during negotiations, and furthermore the extra orientation days lengthened the school calendar.

Reviewing the facts of the case, the arbitrator rejected the board's contentions that the grievance was improper as the events took place prior to the start of the school year, and that the grievance was improperly filed since not all teachers signed the grievance and some teachers were unaware of the grievance. The arbitrator pointed out that the grievance was signed by a chairman of an Association committee who had the right to file a grievance in the name of the organization. The arbitrator also rejected the board's final contention that past practice of holding the orientation without extra pay should be maintained. According to the arbitrator, past practices was superseded by contractual provisions. As the present contract stated that the school year shall not exceed 183 days, the board could not extend the school year without paying additional compensation to teachers. The school board was ordered to reimburse teachers who attended the orientation program. (Bangor Area School District and Bangor Area Education Association, American Arbitration Association, April 11, 1973.)

Prior Submission of Budget Does Not Annul a Board's Duty To Bargain on Economic Terms

Prior submission of its budget was no defense for the Muhlenberg Township School District's refusal to bargain with the Muhlenberg Township Education Association regarding economic terms and conditions of employment for the current school year, ruled the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PERB).

The district adopted its final budget for the 1973-74 school year prior to its budget submission date without consultation or negotiation with the Association regarding wages and benefits for the coming year. However, the district granted increases to bargaining unit members who received less than $6,800 annually and who had been employed for more than six months and also granted these employees the same fringe benefits received by others.

The union contended that the district had violated the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA) by refusing to bargain in good faith and by unilaterally changing the terms and conditions of employment.

Citing a similar case, Reynolds School Board, PERB said that the budget submission date has the purpose of fixing the timing for activating collective bargaining impasse procedures, and that the Act does not define the conduct or the obligation to bargain. Accordingly, PERB directed the district to bargain on economic issues, but stated that by so ruling, it did not intend that any concession be made regarding the economic matters.

PERB rejected the union's charge that the district committed an unfair practice in unilaterally granting increases in wages and fringe benefits since it found that the district had established past practice of granting such wage increases and equalizing fringe benefits. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. Muhlenberg Township School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, January 29, 1974.)

FEDERAL

Separate Unit Determined For Law School Faculty: Part-Timers Excluded

Basic differences between the operation of a law school and the operation of the other parts of a university warrant a separate bargaining unit consisting of regular law school faculty, assistant dean, and librarians, and excluding part-time faculty, adjunct facutly, and the head librarian. The National Labor Relations Board adhered to its precedents set in Fordham University and Catholic University of America, by favoring the unit sought by the Associated Law Professors of the University of San Francisco School of Law over the university-wide unit sought by the administrators of the University of San Francisco.

To determine whether the law school satisfied the guidelines developed in the cases cited, the NLRB examined the law school's facilities, accreditation standards, salaries, governance structure, and degree of independence in matters of curriculum content, recruitment, promotion, and tenure. It found that the law school was housed in its own building, maintained a separate academic calendar, and operated independently in matters of staff conditions of employment. Therefore, it defined the law school faculty as a separate bargaining unit as it constituted "an identifiable group of employees whose separate community of interest has not been submerged in the broader community of interest shared with the rest of the university faculty."

The assistant dean carried a teaching load and performed certain administrative functions, but his responsibilities stopped short of those of a supervisor, the Board asserted, thus including him in the bargaining unit.

While the law school library staff did not teach or hold law degrees, they were included in the unit as they were found to be a "closely allied professional group" operating a facility fully integrated with the law school. The head librarian was defined as a supervisor and excluded from the bargaining unit.

Adjunct professors were usually lawyers retained on a semester basis, and paid by credit hour instead of an annual salary. They were not eligible for tenure, promotion, or fringe benefits and had no voice in the operations of the law school governance. Noting the significant dissimilarity between adjunct and full-time faculty, the NLRB excluded the former from the bargaining unit. (University of San Francisco and Associated Law Professors of the University of San Francisco School of Law, National Labor Relations Board, November 7, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

IOWA

Teacher Bargaining Law Enacted

Iowa enacted a public employee negotiations act making it the 31st state to give public employees the right to bargain with respect to the terms and conditions of their employment. The newly enacted law permits public employees to organize and bargain collectively, protects their right to join or to refuse to join, participate or refuse to participate in employee organizations, and prohibits and prevents all strikes by public employees. Excluded from the purview of the Act are elected officials and persons appointed to fill vacancies in elective offices, members of any boards and commissions, representatives of a public employer, confidential employees, temporary employees hired for four months or less, judges, judicial magistrates, and the employees of judges.

The Act establishes a Public Employment Relations Board composed of three members, appointed by the governor with approval of two-thirds of the senate, to administer the provisions of the Act. Among the Board's duties will be collecting data and conducting studies related to wages, hours, benefits, and other terms and conditions of public employment, and maintaining a list of qualified mediators and arbitrators, and establishing their compensation rates.

Employers and employee organizations are mandated to negotiate in good faith with respect to wages, hours, vacations, insurance, holidays, leaves of absence, shift differentials, overtime compensation, supplemental pay, seniority, transfer procedure, job classifications, health and safety matters, evaluation procedures, procedures for staff reduction, inservice training, authorization of dues deduction, grievance procedures for resolving disputes arising under the agreement, and other matters agreed upon by both employers and employee organizations.

All parties are prohibited from willfully refusing to negotiate in good faith or refusing to participate in any agreed-upon impasse procedures. Employers are specifically prohibited from engaging in a lockout, and employees and employee organizations are barred from sponsoring or supporting any picketing that is performed in support of a strike, work stoppage, boycott, or slowdown against a public employer.

Charges of violations of the Act must be filed with the Board within 90 days of the alleged violation, and a copy must be sent to the accused party. The accused party must file an answer to the complaint within 30 days. The Board may designate a hearing officer to conduct the hearing on complaints having basis in fact. However, the decision of the hearing officer may be appealed to the Board. Should the Board find the accused guilty, it can enter into a consent order with the party to discontinue the practice or petition the district court for injunctive relief. Any party aggrieved by a Board decision may appeal to the district court of the county within 10 days of such decision.

Board orders or decisions may be modified, reversed, or set aside if the Board acts without power or in excess of its powers, if the order was procured by fraud or is contrary to law, or if facts found by the Board do not support the order.

Maximum punishment for engaging in an unlawful strike is a fine of $500 for an individual or $10,000 for an employee organization for each day of noncompliance with a court injunction barring such action or imprisonment in a county jail not to exceed six months, or both. An employee held in contempt of court for failure to comply with an injunction against a prohibited practice will be ineligible for employment by his public employer for 12 months, and an employee organization found in contempt will be decertified for not less than 12 months.

The Act also outlines procedures for determination of appropriate bargaining units and bargaining representatives. In defining a unit, the Board will consider, along with other relevant factors, the principles of efficient administration of government and the existence of a community of interest among public employees. The Board will call an election to determine the bargaining representative if it finds at least a 30-percent showing of interest. The election will determine whether the employees want exclusive bargaining representation, and if so, which organization. If no employee organization receives a majority of the votes cast, a runoff election will be held.

The parties have the option of negotiating their own impasse procedures or abiding by the procedures for handling impasses outlined in the Act, including mediation, fact-finding, and binding arbitration. [See TEXT section, page 23 for full version.]

MICHIGAN

Residence and Retirement Plan Provisions Ruled Bargainable

Upholding a decision of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC), the Michigan Supreme Court held that the residence requirement for Detroit police and the police retirement plan were bargainable.

The Detroit Police Officers Association (DPOA) brought the case before MERC, charging that the city refused to bargain. MERC ruled that the adoption of the residence ordinance did not mean that the city could avoid bargaining a residence requirement, adding, however, that enacting the ordinance was legal since a valid impasse existed when the city common council rejected the parties' negotiated agreement which freed the city to take the unilateral action of enacting the ordinance. Further, MERC held that the city was not obligated to bargain on recruiting requirements for patrolmen. MERC also held that the city erroneously refused to negotiate changes in the police retirement plan by conducting a referendum on amending the city charter provisions for the plan. In so ruling, MERC directed that the city not require approval by a vote of the electorate as a condition for any agreement reached concerning retirement provisions for police.

Ruling on the city's appeal, the Michigan Court of Appeals interpreted the Supreme Court's decision in Detroit Police Officers Association v. Detroit, to mean that the city was not obligated to bargain on residence since its enactment of the requirement was legal. However, the court agreed with MERC regarding the city's obligation to bargain concerning retirement changes. But the Supreme Court held that the appeals court misinterpreted its decision since the Supreme Court's ground of decision was the fact that the common council had the authority to enact a residence ordinance.

The high court noted that when the case was before the lower court, the city had agreed that the residence requirement was within PERA's definition of terms and conditions of employment. Now the city claimed that residence was a continuing recruiting requirement, over which, according to MERC, the city was not required to bargain. The Supreme Court held that residence in this context was not a recruiting requirement but rather a condition with which police officers must comply in order to maintain their employment. Accordingly, the high court affirmed MERC's decision and the stipulation that the residence requirement was a mandatory subject of bargaining under PERA, and that collective bargaining could not be avoided by enacting a city ordinance.

Additionally, the Supreme Court affirmed MERC's decision that the city's enactment of the ordinance was legal, noting that the common council was not negotiating directly with the DPOA and that after the city's rejection of the city/DPOA contract, an impasse existed which permitted the city's unilateral action.

Regarding the retirement issue, the court upheld MERC's determination that the changes in the police retirement plan were mandatory subjects of bargaining. The court rejected the contention that the Home Rule Cities Act mandated that the city charter include retirement plans and that such plans could not be changed without voter approval. The court found that the Act did not require that the city charter contain more than a general grant and an outline of authority to a city government to implement and maintain a retirement plan, and that the substantive details of the plan were subject to the duty to bargain found in PERA. But the court did not enforce MERC's order to bargain on the matter.

Accordingly, the Supreme Court affirmed the lower court's decision in part and reversed it in part. (Detroit Police Officers Association v. City of Detroit and Michigan Employment Relations Commission, Michigan Supreme Court, February 14, 1974.)

* * *

ALABAMA

Attorney General's Opinion

In a case in which an employee on jury duty failed to give his employer the contractually required 15 hours' notice before returning to work, the attorney general ruled the notification requirement inapplicable. Noting that the employee was unable to give adequate notice of his availability for work because he had not been released from jury duty in time, the attorney general stated that the employee was entitled to his regular compensation for the time missed, less jury duty pay.

HAWAII

Attorney General's Opinion

The attorney general ruled that legislation enacting unilateral pay increases for public employees whose union status was to be determined by a pending representation election was constitutional. However, he added, such legislation was premature and inconsistent with the purpose and intent of the collective bargaining law.

NEW MEXICO

Attorney General's Opinions

The state attorney general recently handed down three opinions regarding collective bargaining in institutions of higher education.

1. Dealing with the matter of union security, the attorney general held that an institution of higher education can lawfully enter into collective bargaining agreements containing provisions for a modified agency shop because state law does not specifically prohibit union shop or agency shop provisions. However, the attorney general found that the state does provide for self-organization, choice of bargaining representatives, and collective bargaining.

2. In another opinion regarding union security, he ruled that institutions of higher education may enter into collective bargaining agreements allowing for a dues check-off system since this type of provision does not come within the concern of the statute that allows a wage assignment only under specified conditions.

3. The third opinion dealt with collective bargaining agreements incorporating compulsory arbitration as a means of settling disputes. The attorney general held that such agreements can legally be entered into as the legislature's adoption of the Uniform Arbitration Act expressed its intent to favor arbitration, and that it is normal procedure to incorporate arbitration provisions into collective bargaining agreements.

* * *

FEDERAL

Equal Pay Act Guidelines

The Employment Standards Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor currently in the process of applying principles established by the courts under the Equal Pay Act to professional and managerial employees in retail stores, industrial plants, and educational institutions released several guidelines to help insure compliance.

In determining job content, wage-hour compliance officers must consider the requirements of the position and the employee's performance; in comparing positions, job content must be similar in character, and comparisons cannot be based solely on salary. Furthermore, job titles, job descriptions, rank, departmental classification, evaluation methods, and collective bargaining agreement provisions cannot be totally relied on in determining compliance with the act as they may reflect sexist stereotypes. Job comparisons may be made between full- and part-time employees and reviewed on a case-by-case basis. Job comparisons may also be made between departments or disciplines.

Base pay must be equal regardless of fringe benefits. A pay differential for a college degree or a skill is not justified if the degree or skill is not required for the job and payment of a higher salary to attract a minority worker of either sex is illegal if it results in discrimination against a member of the opposite sex. Employees must be informed of merit pay systems, and these systems must be applied regardless of sex. All required payroll records must be made available to Department of Labor representatives.

In determining equal pay for equal work, the burden of proof remains with the Department of Labor; however, the burden shifts to the employer if he disagrees with the Department's findings or believes that an exception applies.

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX—MARCH 1974

The Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in March to 143.1 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. . . . Higher prices for gasoline and food each accounted for about one-fourth of the rise in the index. The remainder of the increase was due to higher prices for many other consumer goods and services, notably apparel, gas, electricity, postal charges, and physicians' fees. The March CPI was 10.2 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the CPI rose 1.1 percent in March, following increases of 1.0 percent in January and 1.3 percent in February. The increase in the food index of 0.8 percent in March was considerably less than in the preceding two months. The increase in the index for nonfood commodities was unusually large for the third consecutive month. The services index rose 0.8 percent, following increases of 0.7 percent in the preceding two months.

In the calendar quarter ended in March, the CPI rose at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of 14.5 percent. This compares with a rate of 9.0 percent in the last quarter of 1973. The acceleration in the first quarter was due to large increases for a variety of consumer goods, including gasoline, food, apparel, and household durables. Prices of consumer services rose at about the same rate as in the fourth quarter.

Monthly changes in detail (not seasonally adjusted)

The index for food purchased in grocery stores increased 1.0 percent, substantially more than is usual for March, but less than the increases in February and in January. Fresh vegetable prices rose. Prices of processed fruits and vegetables, cereal and bakery products, and dairy products continued to rise, although not so fast as in late 1973. Increases in prices of sugar and sugar-based items were larger than in recent months. Beef prices, on the other hand, declined in March following a sharp rise in February. Prices also declined for pork, poultry, eggs, and fresh fruits; prices of most items usually rise in March. The index for food away from home—restaurant meals and snacks—rose 0.7 percent, about the same as in recent months.

The index for nonfood commodities, which is usually unchanged in March, rose 1.5 percent. The gasoline and motor oil index rose 7.0 percent to a level 39.3 percent above March of last year. The index for fuel oil and coal declined slightly in March, but it was still 57.7 percent above March 1973. Price increases for apparel commodities were larger than usual for March. Prices continued to increase for other nonfood commodities such as textile housefurnishings, housekeeping supplies, toilet goods, newspapers, houses, household durables, and auto parts. New car prices increased instead of declining as they usually do in March. Used car prices continued to decline.

The services index increased 0.8 percent. In the household services category, postal charges rose almost 20 percent, and charges for gas, electricity, home maintenance and repair services, laundry work, and washing machine repairs increased. The rise in charges for medical care services was led by a 1.7 percent advance in physicians' fees. Among transportation services, there was a large increase in intercity bus fares. Charges for personal care services and apparel services continued to increase.

SOURCE:

U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, April 14, 1974.

* * *

SPECIAL REPORTS

NEGOTIATED FAMILY SICK LEAVE PROVISIONS

Leave for family illness is granted to teachers whose presence is required when a member of his family is ill or injured. Provisions for family illness leave were included in 49 percent (749) of the 1,529 comprehensive agreements in effect in 1970-71 and on deposit in NEA Research. Every fifth agreement with at least one from each state having a negotiated agreement was selected for analysis.

All of the agreements analyzed grant paid leave for family illness. However, 17 agreements stated that should it become necessary for the teacher to be absent longer than the time alloted, he would either be given an extension, usually at the discretion of the superintendent or school board, or in some provisions, be placed on leave without pay.

The definition of "family members" covered by family sick leave provisions ranges from only the spouse or child living at home, to spouse, child, brother, sister, parent, grandmother, grandfather, aunt, uncle, father-in-law, mother-in-law, sister-in-law, brother-in-law, or a person whose relationship to the teacher warrants such attendance. The kinship of family members for which leave may be taken is identified in 71.8 percent of the 149 contracts analyzed. The spouse and children were listed in 63.8 percent of the agreements and parents in 63.1 percent. (See Table 4.) In 28.2 percent of the provisions only broad terms are used, e.g., family, immediate family, blood relative, close relative, or others in the family. A few provisions permit a teacher to utilize such leave for any person whose illness has a "real meaning" to the teacher.

About half (49.0 percent) of the agreements provide that leave for family illness be deducted from sick leave allowance and about one-fourth (24.2 percent) of family sick leave provisions provide for negotiated separate leave. In most agreements in which family illness leave is a separate item, it is listed under a general heading such as leaves of absence or temporary leaves of absence, which usually includes leaves other than leave for personal or family illness.

More than half (59.7 percent) of the agreements specified the number of days that may be used for family illness: 35.6 percent, the maximum days allowable per year; 6.0 percent, the number of days allowable for each incidence of illness; and 18.1 percent no specification as to whether the time listed was for each incidence of illness or a yearly maximum.

TABLE 1.–GENERAL CONTENT OF NEGOTIATED FAMILY SICK LEAVE PROVISIONS, 1970-71

Provisions	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Family leave with pay	149	100.0
Circumstances under which leave is granted
Critical illness	22	14.8
Emergency illness	3	2.0
Illness	68	45.6
Serious illness	55	36.9
Kinship of family members identified	107	71.8
How leave is charged
Deducted from sick leave	73	49.0
Deducted from personal leave	16	10.7
Deducted from emergency leave	11	7.4
Separate from other leave	36	24.2
Combined with bereavement leave	13	8.7
Number of days allotted
Per incident of family illness indicated	9	6.0
Per year	53	35.6
Not specific as to whether per incident or per year	27	18.1
Not indicated	60	40.3
Provisions for extension of leave	17	11.4
Total number of provisions analyzed	149	100.0

TABLE 2.–REQUIREMENTS FOR OBTAINING FAMILY SICK LEAVE, 1970-71

Requirements	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Reason for leave must be verified by a written statement from the employee and/or a physician	20	13.4
Prior notification of an administrator required	22	14.8
Leave must be requested within a certain time limit	14	9.4
Number of provisions stipulating requirements for family leave	42	28.2
Total number of provisions analyzed	149	100.0

TABLE 3.—NUMBER OF FAMILY SICK LEAVE DAYS PROVIDED, 1970-71

Number of days	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Number of days alloted per incident	9	6.0[a]
One	1	0.7
Two	1	0.7
Three	2	1.3
Four	1	0.7
Five	4	2.7
Number of days allotted per year	53	35.6
One	1	0.7
Two	5	3.4
Three	9	6.0
Four	3	2.0
Five	30	20.1
More than five	5	3.4
Number of days allotted not specific as to whether granted per incident or per year	27	18.1
One	1	0.7
Two	1	0.7
Three	11	7.4
Four	2	1.3
Five	9	6.0
More than five	3	2.0
Number of days allotted not indicated	60	40.3
Total number of provisions analyzed	149	100.0

[a] Sub-items do not add to total because of rounding.

The circumstances for which family illness leave is granted include critical illness (14.8 percent), serious illness (36.9 percent), emergency illness (2.0 percent), and illness (45.6 percent). When the terminology used is not clearly defined, the provision is open to interpretation by courts and arbitrators. A few contracts define "critical illness" and "serious illness." Examples follow:

In addition to leave for personal illness as defined above, a teacher may be allowed a maximum of five (5) school days in any one year with full pay because of death or critical illness within the immediate family.

Critical - shall be construed to mean of the nature of, or constituting, a crisis, hence of doubtful issue.

[Mountain Lakes, New Jersey]

Five days absence will be allowed for critical illness or death for each member of the immediate family. This allowance cannot be accumulated from year to year. Critical illness means illness which the attending physician considers sufficiently serious to require the employee's presence at the bedside. (The Director of Personnel reserves the right to require a statement from the attending physician to substantiate critical illness.)

[Coatesville, Pennsylvania]

Serious illness applies to immediate family and shall be construed to mean any illness or injury which a doctor considers to be of such a nature as to require the employee's attendance.

[Mahopac Falls, New York]

In case of serious illness or injury of the immediate family or member of the household, no salary deduction will be made for absences not exceeding three days. These days shall not be deducted from the accumulative sick leave. Absences under this provision must be approved by the Superintendent of Schools. Definition: "immediate family" shall be understood to include: husband, wife, father, mother, child, brother, sister. "Serious illness" shall be defined as illness implying a sense of urgency and the immediate need of medical service.

[Point Pleasant, New Jersey]

The meaning of an emergency leave provision was clarified in Michigan by an arbitrator who ruled that an employee could not use emergency illness leave to care for her grandchildren while her daughter-in-law was in the hospital for the birth of another child. In his decision the arbitrator pointed out that although the period following childbirth could come within the meaning of illness, childbirth is not an unforseen occurrence and therefore cannot be classified as an emergency.[1]

For a teacher to be compensated when on leave for family illness some school systems require the teacher to submit a written statement concerning the leave and/or a statement from the attending physician verifying the illness and the need for the teacher's presence. Advance notification of an administrator is required in 14.8 percent of the agreements.

Examples of family illness leave provisions follow:

Illnesses in the Family

a. Where personal presence is advisable because of the critical illness of (a) a teacher's spouse, child, a parent, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother, sister, or (b) any other person living in the teacher's immediate family household, absences will be allowed with pay for a total period of ten (10) school days in each school year.

TABLE 4.—KINSHIP OF FAMILY MEMBERS IDENTIFIED IN PROVISIONS FOR FAMILY SICK LEAVE, 1970-71

Kinship	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Spouse	95	63.8
Children	95	63.8
Parents	94	63.1
Brother or sister	73	49.0
Parents-in-law	53	35.6
Person living in same household	44	29.5
Grandparents	35	23.5
Brother- or sister-in-law	17	11.4
Son- or daughter-in-law	14	9.4
Person in loco parentis	12	8.1
Grandchildren	7	4.7
Aunt or uncle	6	4.0
Person dependent on employee	5	3.4
Niece or nephew	3	2.0
Step relative	3	2.0
Foster children	3	2.0
Spouse's grandparents	1	0.7
Step children	1	0.7
Total number of provisions analyzed	149	100.0

b. In all absences under this section totalling four (4) or more consecutive school days, the teacher must file a physician's certificate with the Board Secretary/Business Manager by way of the principal of the school where employed.

c. The Board reserves the right to require a doctor's certificate after one (1) day's absence due to illness in the family.

[East Orange, New Jersey]

TEMPORARY LEAVES OF ABSENCE

a. As of the beginning of the 1970-71 school year, teachers shall be entitled to the following temporary nonaccumulative leaves of absence with full pay each school year.

Up to five (5) days at any one time in the event of death or serious illness of a teacher's spouse, child, parent, or sibling; and up to three (3) days at any one time in the event of death or serious illness of a teacher's son-in-law, daughter-in-law, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, person standing in loco parentis to the teacher, and any other number of the teacher's immediate household.

[Lincoln Park, New Jersey]

Sick Leave may be used for:

Illness or death in the immediate family (up to 4 days). The term "immediate family" includes: mother, father, foster parents, stepmother, stepfather, grandparents, wife, husband, children, brother, sister, mother-in-law, father-in-law, and other relatives or members of the immediate household.

[Arlington, Virginia]

[1]Public School and United Steelworkers of America, District 29, American Arbitration Association, November 13, 1971.

* * *

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Wilmington, Delaware

Between Marshallton-McKean School District and Marshallton-McKean Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 202 certificated professional employees. Provision for renegotiation if notice is given by the Association on or before December 1, 1974.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74 state basic schedules) B.A., $7,146 to $9,527, 10 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $10,241 maximum; M.A., $8,098 to $10, 479, 10 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $11,194 maximum; doctorate, $11,670 maximum.

DIFFERENTIALS: (1973-74 in four steps) Athletic director, $1,125 to $1,372; head boys basketball and head football coach, $975 to $1,189; assistant football coach, $575 to $702; assistant basketball coach, $525 to $640; head wrestling coach, $897 to $1,093; assistant wrestling coach, $468 to $571; head baseball coach, $700 to $853; assistant baseball coach, $375 to $458; head girls' hockey coach, $424 to $516; assistant girls' hockey coach, $295 to $360; school newspaper advisor, $475 to $579; yearbook advisor, $400 to $487.

LEAVES: Up to 12 days' annual sick leave, cumulative to 120 days; up to three days deductible from sick leave for critical family illness and religious holidays; up to three days' personal leave upon approval of superintendent.

BEREAVEMENT LEAVE

Up to five (5) days. Immediate family is defined as father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife, parent-in-law, or any relative who resides in the same household, or any person with whom the employee has made his or her home. This absence shall be in addition to other leaves granted the employee.

One (1) day for the funeral. Near relative is defined as first cousin, grandfrather, grandmother, aunt, uncle, niece, nephew, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law. This absence shall be in addition to other leaves granted the employee.

Leave with pay up to 15 days; sabbatical leave after seven years' service in public education in Delaware, provided that at least five consecutive years of service will have been in the employ of the school board; such leave may be granted for professional improvement or for the recovery of health after prolonged illness; the period of leave shall not be shorter than one-half school term, nor longer than one full term; employees granted such leave will be compensated up to $2,000 for a full school term or $1,000 for a half term dependent upon full-time salary and the state minimum salary.

MATERNITY LEAVE

Illnesses and temporary disabilities associated with pregnancy shall be treated as any other illness and shall be subject to the provisions of Delaware Code, Title 14, Section 1318, entitled, Sick Leave and Absence for Other Reasons, except for the following provisions necessitated by reasons of "business necessity" or optionally granted provisions for the additional benefit of the employee, said exceptions reflecting the practicalities of the situation.

An employee who is ill because of pregnancy may be absent and remain on the payroll under the provisions of Section 1318 for any number of days to which the employee has earned entitlement under the provisions of the section, except as otherwise herein provided.

2747

Prior to the expected delivery of a child, absence with pay will be recognized in accordance with Section 1318, Section 1319, entitled, Records of Absence; Proof, and Section 1320, entitled Deduction for Unexcused Absence, as these sections may be applicable.

Beginning with the day on which the child is born to an employee, that employee may continue to be absent from employment and remain on the payroll to the extent of earned entitlement under Section 1318 for each working day in a period of twenty (20) calendar days.

Any employee who is absent for any illness during all of the working days in a period of twenty (20) calendar days may remain on the payroll for that period but if then unable to return to work assignment, said employee shall present a report concerning the condition of illness.

The employee may extend the number of days of absence with pay beyond that defined above upon certification of illness by an attending physician and subject to earned eligibility for sick-leave time.

An employee who is absent on account of pregnancy or other temporarily disabling illness but who has not earned or who does not have a sufficient reserve of earned sick-leave days under Section 1318, may be absent in accordance with the provisions in Paragraphs (c) and (d) above, without any jeopardy to employment status but without pay for the period of time after exhaustion of earned sick leave, if any.

An employee who is absent in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs (c), (d), or (e) above, on account of pregnancy or after the delivery of a child, may request and shall be granted additional days of absence, without pay, in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs (g), (h), (i), and (j) of this section without any showing of illness regarding the additional days. An employee who is absent in accordance with provisions of Paragraphs (d) or (e) on account of other temporarily disabling illness shall present a physician's certification as documentation in support of the request.

As a condition for the granting of such additional leave, the employee shall indicate to the Board of Education of the school district that said employee will, at the completion of the leave and on such date as is determined in agreement with the Board, return to regular employment in the district or resign from the position held, thus authorizing the Board to employ a regular, full-time person.

The maximum additional days of leave requested by and granted to an employee may be for the remainder of any semester during which the illness occurs and the next succeeding semester of that or the subsequent school term. In the event that a classroom teacher requests additional days of leave without pay for a period shorter than that referred to above, the Board of Education of the school district may require that the teacher remain absent from school until some appropriate and regularly scheduled change in the school schedule, such as the end of a semester, or a marking period.

At the end of any leave as herein described, the professional employee shall be accepted into full-time employment by the leave-granting Board and assigned to the same or a similar position to the one from which leave was granted. In no case may assignment be made so as to invalidate a professional employee's certification status or to bring about a demotion in position or salary for the employee.

The period of absence granted under these provisions shall be applicable to the determination of experience, salary, or pension eligibility and the computation of pension eligibility time in the same manner as any other absence under Delaware Code, Title 14, Section 1318. No state funds shall be used for any payment of salaries to persons absent under the provisions of these sections, except as provided for in Delaware Code, Title 14, Section 1318, Section 1319, and Section 1320. State Board of Education regulation, September 21, 1972.

INSURANCE: Basic state program plus $15 per month paid toward Blue Cross and Blue Shield health insurance; group term life insurance which includes accidental death and dismemberment benefit; board paid long-term disability insurance which pays 66 2/3 percent of the employee's salary for a maximum of five years with a 60-day waiting period during the 1973-74 contract year; in 1974-75 contract year the maximum will be to age 65.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; the board will provide the equivalent of seven days per year of released time to the president or a person designated by the Association to perform Association duties; whenever an aggrieved employee and/or his Association representative is required to participate in grievance procedures during working hours, the grievant and his Association representative shall suffer no loss in pay; the board will pay one-half of the total state-supported salary plus the local supplement for a lost day for any other employee whom the Association may require to attend, and one-half the cost of a substitute for the employee with the Association paying the balance; if attendance at negotiations, conferences or meetings is required by the board or administration, no pay loss will be suffered; the Association has the right to use school buildings, school facilities, and equipment; the Association may place a bulletin board in each building and will also be assigned space on the bulletin board in the central office of each building; interschool mail facilities and school mail boxes may also be used; the Association will be provided without cost, office space in a building at a location agreed upon; the board will provide information relating to annual financial reports and audits, register of certificated personnel, tentative budgetary requirements and allocations, agendas and minutes of all board meetings, census data, individual and group teacher health insurance premiums, experience figures, names and addresses of all teachers, and such other information that will assist the Association.

INSTRUCTION: Every effort will be made to ensure that a teacher on a departmental schedule will not be required to teach in more than two subject areas; all employees will have a half-hour duty-free lunch period; teachers at the elementary level, excluding kindergarten and first grade, will be granted not less than 120 minutes preparation time per week to be scheduled in blocks of not less than 30 minutes; teachers must report 15 minutes prior to the opening of school and may leave 10 minutes after the close of the school day; one-half of the members of the Educational Improvement Council will be teachers elected by each building staff; the board will employ aides to assist the professional staff in performing professional and nonprofessional duties provided such employment is economically feasible as determined by the board.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the state board of education; right to review personnel file and be accompanied by an Association representative; material deemed unfavorable by an employee may be destroyed after three years; no derogatory material will be placed in employee's file without his knowledge; employee will have the right to affix a written response pertaining to such material; meetings to be held whenever necessary; however, every effort will be made to limit meetings to 45 minutes; all monitoring or observation of the work performance of an employee will be conducted openly; all employees will be given a signed copy of any formal evaluation report and no such report will be submitted to the central office, placed in the employee's files, or otherwise acted upon without a prior conference with the employee; nontenure teachers will receive evaluation reports at least twice per year; board and Association to develop evaluation criteria; whenever an employee is required to appear before the board, the superintendent, or his designee concerning any matter which could adversely affect continuation of his employment, the employee will be given prior written notice of the reasons for such meeting or interview and will be entitled to have a representative of the Association present to advise and represent; if a terminated or suspended employee is reinstated, he will receive back pay; any discipline, reprimand, reduction in rank or compensation, or deprivation of any professional advantage will be subject to the grievance procedure; areas of competence and length of service in the district will be considered with other qualifications when evaluating employee for promotion; the criteria used in voluntary transfers will be certification, qualification as determined by evaluation, seniority, and recommendation of receiving administrator; if a transfer or promotion is denied, the employee will be given reasons upon request; involuntary reassignment will take place only after all other possible ways of filling the vacancy have been exhausted; upon retirement 50 percent of the per-diem rate of pay in effect at the time of retirement will be paid for up to 90 days of unused sick leave.

* * *

Columbus, Ohio

Between Columbus Board of Education and Columbus Education Association, effective September 1, 1973, to December 31, 1974. Approximately 4,800 certificated professional employees, including all certificated teaching employees, certificated and noncertificated school nurses, dental hygienists, clinic nurses, and regular hours rated teachers who are employed for the major part of the school year; excluding the superintendent, deputy superintendent, assistant superintendents, principals, assistant principals, and other administrative or supervisory personnel. Provision for renegotiation during November 1974 on salary and fringe benefits and on agency shop provided legislative action has established agency shop as negotiable.

COMPENSATION: B.A., $7,900 to $13,683, 14 increments; B.A. plus 150 hours, $14,078 maximum; M.A., $8,761 to $15,168, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,468 maximum; Ph.D., $16, 456 maximum. Up to five years credited for public-school teaching experience outside the Columbus Public Schools.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Based on percentage of B.A. minimum) Senior head coaches of football, basketball, baseball, track, and wrestling, and director of instrumental music, 13.04 percent; faculty manager and activities coordinator, 10.14 percent; senior assistant coaches of football, basketball, baseball, track, and wrestling, and junior head coaches of basketball, baseball, and track, and senior yearbook advisor, 6.52 percent; senior head coaches of cross country, golf, tennis, and swimming, 5.07 percent; junior and senior intramural directors, senior newspaper, 4.34 percent; senior vocal music, 3.62 percent; senior debate, elementary safety patrol, and junior assistant coaches of basketball, baseball, and track, 2.89 percent.

Stipulations—Summer school rate shall be paid for all summer school work; i.e., coaches, instrumental music, treasurers, etc.

A senior instrumental music assistant shall be employed for two weeks half-day at summer school rate.

Senior treasurer will teach four (4) classes, have two (2) periods assigned for treasurer's duty, one (1) conference period, one (1) lunch period, and one (1) extra duty assignment.* The extra duty assignment may be used to perform the treasurer's duty should the building principal deem it necessary.

Junior treasurer will teach five (5) classes, have one (1) period assigned for treasurer's duty, one (1) conference period, one (1) lunch period, and one (1) extra duty assignment.* The extra duty assignment may be used to perform the treasurer's duty should the building principal deem it necessary.

At the conclusion of the school year the principal is authorized to permit school treasurers to work and receive payment for a number of days necessary to complete the end of the year work.

*It is recommended the junior and senior treasurer not be assigned a homeroom. Extra duties shall not be required of treasurers unless required of teachers generally.

OTHER: Summer-school teachers will be paid $6.60 per hour; rate of pay for part-time hourly personnel will be $6.60 per hour; 11 cents per mile for use of private transportation to perform assigned duties.

The following guidelines shall be followed in determining teaching years of experience for full-time hourly professional employees:

All full-time previous Columbus City School District teaching experience is counted.

A maximum of five (5) years experience out of the system with or without a degree.
(a) Includes military service.
(b) Industrial experience can be counted if it is for twelve (12) months per year and above and beyond certification requirements of seven years.

Full-time teaching experience if it is for 120 days or more per year.

Teaching experience in Public Education institutions, maximum of five (5) years.

Teaching in federally funded programs; such as:
Concentrated Employment Program
Neighborhood Youth Corps
Manpower Development and Training

In order to be counted, federally funded programs must meet full-time teaching requirements:

6 or more hours per day
5 days per week
37 weeks per year

Substitute teaching in Columbus Public Schools if 120 days or more per year.

Degree person-recognize and give credit for industrial experience up to five (5) years.

LEAVES: Fifteen days of annual sick leave granted per year, 200 days' maximum accumulation; 5 days credited upon initial employment; sick leave may be used for personal illness, illness in the immediate family, or death in the immediate family; to accomplish school needs, short-term periods of absence without loss of pay may be granted by the superintendent to attend local, state, and national meetings, to participate in civic activities, and to provide community service; up to three days not deducted from sick leave for paid religious leave upon 10 days' notice; 3 days of absence with pay for emergency personal reasons, reason for taking leave must be given within 10 days after leave is taken; leave for jury duty upon written request to the superintendent, teacher to be paid the difference between his jury pay and his regular salary; sabbatical leave at a salary equal to the difference between the teacher's regular contract salary and the minimum bachelor's degree salary for professional graduate study, travel, writing, or research after at least five years' service in the district and subject to 1 year of service upon return or a refund of monies; teachers on sabbatical leave will be given enough college "scrip" to pay for full-time attendance; "a teacher on sabbatical leave will be given an employment contract for the year of leave"; leaves of absence without pay may be granted for ill health, family illness, exchange teaching, professional study or travel, military leave, service in Peace Corps or VISTA or special leave without stated reasons; upon return from such leave the employee will be returned to a postion comparable to that held before leave was taken.

INSURANCE: Board pays 100 percent of hospital, surgical, and major medical insurance for all individual full-time members of the bargaining unit; board pays 50 percent of first year dependent coverage and 100 percent thereafter; board will provide $2,500 group term life insurance for full-time employees in 1974 and $5,000 in 1975; tax sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, district, state, and national association dues; Association president will be required to teach a class load equivalent to only one-half of the normal teaching assignment; the Association will reimburse the board for one-half of the president's gross compensation, including the board's contribution to fringe benefits; if it is necessary for the president to devote his efforts to Association duties on a full-time basis, he will be granted a leave of absence without pay from his teaching duties; such leave may be on a year-to-year basis as required; upon request one additional designee of the Association will be required to teach a class load equivalent to one-half of the normal daily teaching assignment with the Association paying half the teacher's salary and benefits during this period.

Association Leave

The Board shall authorize a pool of up to a total of 200 days of leave with pay per year for the use of members of the bargaining unit who are elected to represent the Association or who are chosen to serve on programs or to represent the Association in any official capacity at meetings, conferences, or conventions attended by representatives of the Association. Such leaves will be granted upon written application made not less than five (5) school days in advance to the Assistant Superintendent, Personnel, and in no event shall more than three (3) teachers be granted such leaves at the same time from any school.

Bulletin board space will be provided in the area of teachers' mailboxes for the posting of notices and other materials relating to Association activities; the Association may use school office equipment and audiovisual equipment when such equipment is not in use.

INSTRUCTION: Duty-free lunch period daily; elementary teachers will have approximately 45 minutes per day for preparation time; each elementary staff will conduct a written ballot each year to determine whether there will be one or two 15-minute recesses per day; to the extent class size creates substantial inequities in staffing in relation to comparable courses in the same school, such inequities will be subject to the grievance procedure; teachers will be on duty 30 minutes before classes begin and will remain at least 15 minutes after the close of the scheduled school day; the length of the elementary-school day will be 5-½ hours, excluding the lunch period; the secondary-school day will be 6-3/4 hours, including one class period for lunch; the regular work day for full-time teachers is to be 7-½ hours; a Curriculum Council composed of five representatives appointed by the superintendent and five Association representatives will be established to strengthen the educational program through recommendations to the board and the Association in order to meet the needs of the students, the school, and the community; the board will allocate $8,000 for the Council to function; members of the Council or any subcommittee that serves beyond the regular in-school year will be paid at the summer-school hourly rate; duplicating machines and typewriters will be made available to aid teachers in carrying out their professional tasks; a minimum of one half-time educational aide will be provided for each school to reduce the duties teachers are required to perform in supervising study halls, school yards, and lunchrooms; additional educational aides will also be hired to further reduce nonteaching duties teachers are required to perform; teachers will be involved in the planning of new buildings.

GUIDELINES FOR CLASSROOM VISITATIONS

The Association and the Board wholeheartedly support parent and community involvement in schools and encourage members of the community to visit the schools. However, because of the potential interruption and disruption of children's education posed by uncontrolled classroom visitations, the Board hereby adopts as its policy the following guidelines for public or parental visitations in classrooms in order to minimize disruption of the educational process:

All visitors must check in at the office upon entering the school.

The visitor shall be escorted to the classroom unless the teacher is expecting the visitor and directions to the visitor will be sufficient. In the latter case the teacher should be advised by the office so the teacher will know the office is aware of the visitor's presence.

Where practical, visitations should be by prior arrangement with the teacher. Visitors should inform the teacher of the general purpose of the observation or visitation in advance.

Teachers shall have the right to reschedule a visitor when prior arrangements have not been made.

Where practical, the visitor and teacher should arrange a conference to discuss the observation.

No electronic devices will be used to make any record of the visit except by agreement of the teacher.

Every effort will be made to minimize the amount of disruption caused by such visits.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; the provisions of the agreement will have precedence over the Administrative Guide or other board policy; prior to board adoption or revision of any provision of the Administrative Guide, board representatives will consult representatives of the Association a minimum of 30 days prior to such adoption; each school will have a Principal's Advisory Council which will include five teachers to assist the principal and the school staff in developing policies and programs for the school involved.

Teachers will be required to attend two regular staff meetings per month which will not extend beyond 4:30 p.m. or more than 45 minutes when called by the principal; in addition, the principal, in consultation with the Principal's Advisory Council, may schedule two 45-minute staff meetings per month and/or extend one required staff meeting per month a maximum of 30 minutes for purposes of staff development; attendance at such additional meetings or extension will be voluntary unless a majority of the staff vote by secret ballot to require attendance at a particular meeting.

TEACHER EVALUATION

The following number of evaluations shall be conducted by the building administrators based upon continuous experience in the Columbus Public Schools:

1st and 2nd years	2 evaluations
3rd year	1 or 2 evaluations at administrator's option
4th and 5th years	1 evaluation
subsequent years	1 evaluation every fourth year, commencing with the ninth year.

Evaluations provided for in paragraph A of this article shall be for the major purpose of assisting the teacher toward improved instruction.

When a building administrator deems that a teacher's performance is seriously unsatisfactory and it is the administrator's intention to formally reprimand, recommend involuntary transfer, non-renewal of contract, termination of contract, or other disciplinary action, or investigate further with the possibility of formally reprimanding or making any of the aforementioned recommendations, the administrator shall notify such teacher of his intent in writing on a form mutually agreeable to the Board and the Association. Such notification shall set forth the specific areas of alleged unsatisfactory performance. Following such notification the administrator shall evaluate the teacher's performance, observing all stipulations of this article except paragraph A. A conference shall be held between the administrator and the teacher to discuss the teacher's performance prior to any final action by the administrator. The teacher may be accompanied or represented by an Association representative at such conference and shall have three (3) days prior notification of the conference. Final administrative action in regard to the alleged unsatisfactory performance shall not conflict with any provision of this Agreement.

Classroom observations of the work performance of a teacher for the purpose of a formal written evaluation shall be conducted openly with the observer visible to the teacher. A minimum of one (1) and a maximum of three (3) such observations shall be accomplished through prior arrangements with the teacher. In addition, a maximum of three (3) such observations may be accomplished at the convenience of the building administrator provided the number of such observations does not exceed the number of observations accomplished through prior arrangement.

A teacher shall be given a copy of any written evaluation or report on an observation.

Right to examine personnel file with Association representative upon notification of personnel division; no evaluation will be placed in a teacher's permanent file or otherwise acted upon without a prior conference with the teacher; teachers will be permitted to affix comments to any evaluation or report prior to its being placed in the permanent file; factors, forms, and procedures used in all evaluations of teachers shall be cooperatively developed and annually agreed to by the board and the Association; a teacher may have an Association representative present when he/she is being formally reprimanded or warned, or is being disciplined for any infraction of the rules, delinquency, or unprofessional performance; the reasons for a decision not to re-employ a nontenured teacher will be made available in writing to the teacher at his option; the termination of a tenured teacher's contract will not be subject to the grievance procedure, such teachers will have recourse to their rights under Section 3319.16 of the Revised Code of Ohio; racial balance, special skills, experience level, training level, sex, and extra duties will be considered when filling vacancies; teachers will not be involuntarily assigned outside the scope of their teaching certificates or their major or minor field of certification except in an emergency; department chairmen in secondary schools will be elected to a one-year term by the teachers in the respective departments.

DISRUPTIVE STUDENTS

When a disruptive student is identified, a coordinated program will be undertaken by the teacher and principal to determine the causes for the disruptive performance, and to develop an individualized action program to meet the needs of the disruptive student.

A conference may be held among the student's teacher(s), a guidance counselor, the visiting teacher, the parents, and the principal to determine the details of a program to help the student. Such a conference may call upon the participation of the student, a school psychologist, an activities coordinator, the school nurse and a probationary officer as necessary.

Should the above action not be taken by the principal and the pupil's disruptive behaviour continue, the teacher shall have the right to file a grievance at Step 2 of the grievance procedure.

Arlington, Virginia

Between Arlington County School Board and Arlington Education Association, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 1,200 certificated professional employees including all full-time and regular part-time instructional personnel, all certificated personnel on the classroom teacher's salary schedule, all personnel involved in what is normally considered teaching or instructional capacities, all school nurses and nurses aides, all teacher and lunchroom aides, excluding administrators, supervisors, adult education teachers, substitute teachers, principals' aides, and manpower aides.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $8,408 to $15,551, 14 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $15,961 maximum; M.A., $9,598 to $16,795, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $17,622 maximum; Ph.D., $18,450 maximum. "Effective July 1, 1974, the 1973 salary schedule shall be improved by a cost-of-living increase equivalent to the increase in the Consumer Price Index for the Washington Metropolitan Statistical Area published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, for the 12-month period ending February 1, 1974." An employee employed for 90 or more school days during the current school year is eligible for a salary increment the following year; credit is given for up to two years of full-time active duty with the armed forces or for service in the Peace Corps; employees with a satisfactory performance record who qualify and retire under the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System or the Arlington County Supplemental Retirement System will be paid a half-day's pay for every day of accumulated sick leave based on their salary at the time of retirement.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Computed on B.A. base x supplemental index) Senior high (s.h.) head football, .16; s.h. head baseball, track, wrestling, crew, basketball, and head junior and senior high intramurals, .14; s.h. head soccer, gymnastics, j.v. football, .12; s.h. head debate, drama, s.h. assistant baseball, track, basketball, football, wrestling, crew, soccer, j.v. football, j.h. head football, .10; s.h. head of tennis, swimming, indoor track; and j.h. head of outdoor track, basketball, wrestling, soccer, .08; s.h. head of rifle, cheerleaders, and j.h. head of cross country, tennis, swimming, drama, .06; s.h. assistant debate and j.h. head of cheerleaders, assistant wrestling, football, outdoor track, .04.

OTHER: Fifteen cents per mile for approved travel.

Because of the difference in the programs in the several secondary schools, and because of the differing demands on the time of those who work in the programs, funds will be appropriated, provided prior written approval of the principal is obtained, for the following supplemental payments: (1) a per-diem compensation for music teachers who accompany students in out-of-county, state sponsored activities; (2) a per-diem compensation for music teachers who assume primary responsibility in the annual music festivals; (3) a per-hour compensation for those music teachers who work with drama coaches in the jointly sponsored Music-Drama productions; (4) a per-hour compensation for senior high school band directors not to exceed 40 hours as required for the football season; (5) a per-hour compensation for vocal Music teachers for a maximum of 90 hours of direction of madrigals or similar singing groups as part of the Music program of the school but not during the regular contract day; (6) the per-hour compensation for those Art teachers who work with drama coaches in performing Arts production, and for Art teachers who work on major student Art exhibitions.

The per-diem rate shall be $36 and the per-hour rate shall be $6. This shall also be the rate for in-service teacher training.

LEAVES: One days' annual sick leave granted per month, unlimited accumulation; sick leave shall be used in half day units; any teacher who reports to work and then becomes ill will be charged with no more than a half day of sick leave; sick leave may be used for personal illness, doctor's appointments, and illness or death in the immediate family; a sick leave bank will be established whereby teachers can donate up to three days of sick leave for use by another teacher who has a long-term illness not covered by accumulated sick leave or the income protection plan; the length of the employee's absence because of illness can in no way impair the employment status of the individual; three days' personal leave granted per year; unused personal leave will be transferred to employee's sick leave account on June 30; time off with pay granted when performing jury duty, when subpoenaed to appear before a public body, commission, or the court, when performing emergency civilian duty in connection with national defense or voting; leave with pay granted for participation in observations, workshops, meetings, conferences, or other activities devoted to improvement of curriculum and instruction; sabbatical leave at annual salary for not less than one full semester or more than one calendar year after six consecutive years in the school system for study, research, or travel; seniority and annual salary increments during the time of such leave will be the same as though the employee were in regular service; disability leave up to 90 days will be granted with full pay to any association member disabled during employment, Workmen's Compensation checks must be endorsed over to the school board; extended leave for one year without pay will be granted for professional full-time study, foreign teaching assignment, or exchange teaching, serious illness in the immediate family, service in Teacher Corps, VISTA, or the Peace Corps; extended leave will count as an additional year of experience for salary purposes except in cases of serious illness in the employee's family; full-time leave without pay will be granted to all individuals who are elected or appointed to any public office.

INSURANCE: During the 1973-74 contract year the board will pay 80 percent of Major Medical, Blue Shield-Blue Cross Plan for full-time unit members, 43 percent of hospitalization insurance for those working 20-29 hours weekly and 33 percent for those working 20 hours or less weekly; in 1974-75 the board will pay 85 percent for full-time unit members, 48 percent for those working 20-29 hours weekly, and 38 percent for those working 20 hours or less weekly; the same dollar amount will be paid for participation in the Group Health Association Plan; the board will contribute $100 or 100 percent, which ever is less, toward the annual cost of life insurance for each unit member; $1,000,000 liability insurance per employee shall be provided; income protection and tax-sheltered annuity plans provided.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of state and national association dues; 10 days' leave will be granted to unit members who hold an elected position in the National Education Association; an additional 10 days will be provided for members of the Virginia Education Association Board of Directors or Chairmen of VEA State Committees; a 10-month leave of absence without pay will be granted the association president; 120 days of organizational leave will be provided for official attendance at meetings of VEA and NEA; 25 additional days will be provided but the association will pay the cost for substitute teachers if necessary; association has the right to use school buildings and typewriting and duplicating equipment; association may post notices, circulars, and other materials on designated bulletin boards or place them in inter-school mail and teacher mail boxes.

INSTRUCTION: To the extent administratively possible, no secondary teacher will be assigned more than two course preparations per semester; all elementary teachers may use for planning purposes the time their classes are being instructed by art, music, and physical education teachers; all elementary teachers except kindergarten will be released from instructional duties for planning purposes at 1:15 p.m. once each week except during those weeks in which school holidays or parent teacher conferences occur; full-time kindergarten teachers will be released from instructional duties for planning purposes on 15 occasions for one-half day; all elementary art and music teachers will be provided at least a 30-minute planning period each day and at least a 10-minute interval between scheduled classes; full-time secondary teachers will be guaranteed at least one planning period per day equivalent to normal teaching period; all elementary and secondary unit members will be provided a daily 30-minute lunch period plus adequate time for going to and coming from the classroom; the normal school day will be 8:45 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. for elementary teachers, 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for junior high teachers, and 7:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. for senior high teachers; teachers will not be required to designate in any manner their exact time of arrival or time of departure; all teachers affected by changes in organizational and curricular patterns will be actively and directly involved in decision making; the administration will seek the approval of the majority of the teachers involved; teachers will be allowed to use textbooks, course materials, or curricular programs other than those mandated county-wide so long as that teacher, prior to the use of such materials, can provide to the principal a reasonable basis for the choice; association members will serve as supervising teachers of student teachers only on a voluntary basis; assignment of student teachers to supervising teachers will be preceded by reasonable advance notice, an opportunity for an interview, and an opportunity for rejection of the student teacher by the supervising teacher; regular parent-teacher conferences will be held between 12:45 p.m. and 4:15 p.m.; substitutes will be provided for any teacher who has more than 38 conferences; kindergarten teachers will be provided sufficient additional conference days to allow for completeness; principals will involve teachers in an advisory capacity in determining the quality level of instructional supplies, equipment, and furniture; the board will include $45,000 in the budget for each year of this agreement for disruptive pupil programs in secondary schools.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; teachers will be compensated at the teacher's hourly rate for meetings scheduled by administrators which last more than one hour beyond the contract time; notice of the board's intent not to continue employment of a teacher on continuing contract must be preceded by an unsatisfactory annual evaluation not later than January 15 and a written notice by March 1 that a subsequent unsatisfactory evaluation the following year may result in termination; probationary teachers may be terminated for serious cause; however, the school system must be prepared to show cause; notice of the board's intent not to re-employ a first-year probationary teacher solely on performance grounds must be preceded by an unsatisfactory evaluation; all teachers will be evaluated annually; the evaluation is to be positive, with the purpose being the improvement of teacher performance; an unsatisfactory evaulation must be preceded by a minimum of four classroom visits by a principal or his designee and/or a supervisor and must be of sufficient duration to adequately evaluate the performance of the teacher before the end of January at which time the teacher is given notice of the possibility of an unsatisfactory evaluation; a lay-off will occur only when there is a shift of pupils or a reduction in the number of pupils within the county; if lay-off is necessary, it shall be preceded by a 90-day notice to the employees so affected; the teachers will be laid off on the basis of county-wide seniority within each employee category, the least senior teacher being laid off first; all affected employees will be placed on a recall list and placed in vacancies as they occur in inverse order of lay-off, the most senior being placed first; no employee will be hired new into the county until all employees on the recall list have had an opportunity to bid on the position; if a teacher's request for a voluntary transfer has been denied, he will upon written request and within a reasonable period of time receive from the superintendent or his designee a written explanation of the reasons therefor; an involuntary transfer can be made only for just cause, only after a 90-calendar day notice to the employee; if a teacher is involuntarily transferred, that teacher will take the position only for the duration of the school year, and such position shall be advertised as a vacancy; the transferred teacher has a right to bid on and assert rights to any vacancy except the position from which the teacher was transferred; when two or more applicants for teaching, supervisory, or administrative positions are substantially equal in fitness, length of service in Arlington County shall be given primary consideration; department chairmen shall be selected annually by majority vote of the members of the department, provided the selection is approved by the principal; the board will furnish legal counsel to unit members in defense of legal action arising out of the discharge of their duties within the scope of their employment in the school system; an employee absent from school as a result of personal injury caused by an assault or in the course of his employment shall be paid his full salary for the period of such absence without having such absence charged to his annual or accumulated sick leave; in case of suspension in any disciplinary or legal action, unit members will receive their salary and fringe benefits until the case is decided.

Texts

IOWA

Public Employee Negotiations Act

An Act relating to public employment relations and providing penalties for violations.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF IOWA:

Section 1. PUBLIC POLICY.

The general assembly declares that it is the public policy of the state to promote harmonious and cooperative relationships between government and its employees by permitting public employees to organize and bargain collectively; to protect the citizens of this state by assuring effective and orderly operations of government in providing for their health, safety, and welfare; to prohibit and prevent all strikes by public employees; and to protect the rights of public employees to join or refuse to join, and to participate in or refuse to participate in, employee organizations.

Section 2. TITLE.

This Act shall be known as the "Public Employment Relations Act."

Section 3. DEFINITIONS.

When used in this Act, unless the context otherwise requires:

1. "Public employer" means the state of Iowa, its boards, commissions, agencies, departments, and its political subdivisions including school districts and other special purpose districts.
2. "Governing body" means the board, council, or commission, whether elected or appointed, of a political subdivision of this state, including school districts and other special purpose districts, which determines the policies for the operation of the political subdivision.
3. "Public employee" means any individual employed by a public employer, except individuals exempted under the provisions of section four (4) of this Act.
4. "Employee organization" means an organization of any kind in which public employees participate and which exists for the primary purpose of representing public employees in their employment relations.
5. "Board" means the public employment relations board established under section five (5) of this Act.
6. "Strike" means a public employee's refusal, in concerted action with others, to report to duty, or his willful absence from his position, or his stoppage of work, or his abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful, and proper performance of the duties of employment, for the purpose of inducing, influencing, or coercing a change in the conditions, compensation, rights, privileges, or obligations of public employment.
7. "Confidential employee" means any public employee who works in the personnel offices of a public employer or who has access to information subject to use by the public employer in negotiating or who works in a close continuing working relationship with public officers or representatives associated with negotiating on behalf of the public employer.

   "Confidential employee" also includes the personal secretary of any of the following: any elected official or person appointed to fill a vacancy in an elective office, member of any board or commission, the administrative officer, director, or chief executive officer of a public employer or major division thereof, or the deputy or first assistant of any of the foregoing.
8. "Mediation" means assistance by an impartial third party to reconcile an impasse between the public employer and the employee organization through interpretation, suggestion, and advice.
9. "Arbitration" means the procedure whereby the parties involved in an impasse submit their differences to a third party for a final and binding decision or as provided in this Act.
10. "Impasse" means the failure of a public employer and the employee organization to reach agreement in the course of negotiations.
11. "Professional employee" means any one of the following:
    a. Any employee engaged in work:
       (1) Predominantly intellectual and varied in character as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical, or physical work;
       (2) Involving the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance;
       (3) Of such a character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; and
       (4) Requiring knowledge of an advanced type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study in an institution of higher learning or a hospital, as distinguished from a general academic education or from an apprenticeship or from training in the performance of routine mental, manual, or physical processes.

b. Any employee who (i) has completed the courses of specialized intellectual instruction and study described in subparagraph four (4) of paragraph a of this subsection, and (ii) is performing related work under the supervision of a professional person to qualify himself or herself to become a professional employee as defined in paragraph a of this subsection.

12. "Fact-finding" means the procedure by which a qualified person shall make written findings of fact and recommendations for resolution of an impasse.

Section 4. EXCLUSIONS.

The following public employees shall be excluded from the provisions of this Act:

1. Elected officials and persons appointed to fill vacancies in elective offices, and members of any board or commission.
2. Representatives of a public employer, including the administrative officer, director, or chief executive officer of a public employer or major division thereof as well as his deputy, first assistant, and any supervisory employees.

   Supervisory employee means any individual having authority in the interest of the public employer to hire, transfer, suspend, layoff, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward or discipline other public employees, or the responsibility to direct them, or to adjust their grievances, or effectively to recommend such action, if in connection with the foregoing exercise of such authority is not of a merely routine or clerical nature, but requires the use of independent judgment. All school superintendents, assistant superintendents, principals, and assistant principals shall be deemed to be supervisory employees.
3. Confidential employees.
4. Students working as part-time public employees twenty hours per week or less, except graduate or other post-graduate students in preparation for a profession who are engaged in academically related employment as a teaching, research, or service assistant.
5. Temporary public employees employed for a period of four months or less.
6. Commissioned and enlisted personnel of the Iowa national guard.
7. Judges of the supreme court, district judges, district associate judges, and judicial magistrates, and the employees of such judges and courts.
8. Patients and inmates employed, sentenced, or committed to any state or local institution.
9. Persons employed by the state department of justice.
10. Persons employed by the commission for the blind.

Section 5. PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD.

1. There is established a board to be known as the public employment relations board. The board shall consist of three members appointed by the governor, with approval of two-thirds of the senate. No more than two members shall be of the same political affiliation and no member shall engage in any political activity while holding office and the members shall devote full time to their duties.

   Each member shall be appointed for a term of four years, except that of the members first appointed, two members shall be appointed for a term of two years commencing July 1, 1974 and ending June 30, 1976, and one member shall be appointed for a term of four years commencing July 1, 1974 and ending June 30, 1978.

   The member first appointed for a term of four years shall serve as chairman and each of his successors shall also serve as chairman.
2. Any vacancy on the commission which may occur when the general assembly is not in session shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall expire at the end of thirty days following the convening of the next session of the general assembly. Prior to the expiration of the thirty-day period, the governor shall transmit to the senate for its approval the name of the appointee for the unexpired portion of the regular term. Any vacancy occurring when the general assembly is in session shall be filled in the same manner as regular appointments are made, and before the end of such session, and for the unexpired portion of the regular term.
3. In selecting the members of the board, consideration shall be given to their knowledge, ability, and experience in the field of labor-management relations. The chairman shall receive an annual salary of twenty-four thousand (24,000) dollars. The remaining two members shalleach receive an annual salary equal to ninety percent of the salary received by the chairman.
4. The board may employ such persons as are necessary for the performance of its functions. Personnel of the board shall be employed pursuant to the provisions of chapter nineteen A (19A) of the Code.
5. Members of the board and other employees of the board shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. All expenses and salaries shall be paid from appropriations for such purposes and the board shall be subject to the budget requirements of chapter eight (8) of the Code.

Section 6. GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE BOARD.

The board shall:

1. Administer the provisions of this Act.
2. Collect, for public employers other than the state and its boards, commissions, departments, and agencies, data and conduct studies relating to wages, hours, benefits and other terms and conditions of public employment and make the same available to any interested person or organization.
3. Maintain, after consulting with employee organizations and public employers, a list of qualified persons representative of the public to be available to serve as mediators and arbitrators and establish their compensation rates.
4. Hold hearings and administer oaths, examine witnesses and documents, take testimony and receive evidence, issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of records, and delegate such power to a member of the board or persons appointed or employed by the board, including hearing officers for the performance of its functions. The board may petition the district court at the seat of government or of the county wherein any hearing is held to enforce a board order compelling the attendance of witnesses and production of records.

5. Adopt rules and regulations in accordance with the provisions of chapter seventeen A (17A) of the Code as it may deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Section 7. PUBLIC EMPLOYER RIGHTS.

Public employers shall have, in addition to all powers, duties, and rights established by constitutional provision, statute, ordinance, charter, or special act, the exclusive power, duty, and the right to:

1. Direct the work of its public employees.
2. Hire, promote, demote, transfer, assign, and retain public employees in positions within the public agency.
3. Suspend or discharge public employees for proper cause.
4. Maintain the efficiency of governmental operations.
5. Relieve public employees from duties because of lack of work or for other legitimate reasons.
6. Determine and implement methods, means, assignments and personnel by which the public employer's operations are to be conducted.
7. Take such actions as may be necessary to carry out the mission of the public employer.
8. Initiate, prepare, certify, and administer its budget.
9. Exercise all powers and duties granted to the public employer by law.

Section 8. PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RIGHTS.

Public employees shall have the right to:

1. Organize, or form, join, or assist any employee organization.
2. Negotiate collectively through representatives of their own choosing.
3. Engage in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection insofar as any such activity is not prohibited by this Act or any other law of the state.
4. Refuse to join or participate in the activities of employee organizations, including the payment of any dues, fees or assessments or service fees of any type.

Section 9. SCOPE OF NEGOTIATIONS.

The public employer and the employee organization shall meet at reasonable times, including meetings reasonably in advance of the public employer's budget-making process, to negotiate in good faith with respect to wages, hours, vacations, insurance, holidays, leaves of absence, shift differentials, overtime compensation, supplemental pay, seniority, transfer procedures, job classifications, health and safety matters, evaluation procedures, procedures for staff reduction, in-service training and other matters mutually agreed upon. Negotiations shall also include terms authorizing dues checkoff for members of the employee organization and grievance procedures for resolving any questions arising under the agreement, which shall be embodied in a written agreement and signed by the parties. If an agreement provides for dues checkoff, a member's dues may be checked off only upon the member's written request and the member may terminate the dues checkoff at any time by giving thirty days written notice. Such obligation to negotiate in good faith does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or make a concession.

Nothing in this section shall diminish the authority and power of the merit employment department, board of regents' merit system, educational radio and television facility board's merit system, or any civil service commission established by constitutional provision, statute, charter or special act to recruit employees, prepare, conduct, and grade examinations, rate candidates in order of their relative scores for certification for appointment or promotion or for other matters of classification, reclassification or appeal rights in the classified service of the public employer served.

The public employee retirement systems provided under chapters ninety-seven A (97A), ninety-seven B (97B), four hundred ten (410), and four hundred eleven (411) of the Code shall be excluded from the scope of negotiations.

Section 10. PROHIBITED PRACTICES.

1. It shall be a prohibited practice for any public employer, public employee, or employee organization to willfully refuse to negotiate in good faith with respect to the scope of negotiations as defined in section nine (9) of this Act.
2. It shall be a prohibited practice for a public employer or his designated representative willfully to:
   a. Interfere with, restrain, or coerce public employees in the exercise of rights granted by this Act.
   b. Dominate or interfere in the administration of any employee organization.
   c. Encourage or discourage membership in any employee organization, committee, or association by discrimination in hiring, tenure, or other terms or conditions of employment.
   d. Discharge or discriminate against a public employee because he has filed an affidavit, petition, or complaint or given any information or testimony under this Act, or because he has formed, joined, or chosen to be represented by any employee organization.
   e. Refuse to negotiate collectively with representatives of certified employee organizations as required in this Act.
   f. Deny the rights accompanying certification or exclusive recognition granted in this Act.
   g. Refuse to participate in good faith in any agreed upon impasse procedures or those set forth in this Act.
   h. Engage in a lockout.
3. It shall be a prohibited practice for public employees or an employee organization or for any person, union, or organization or their agents willfully to:
   a. Interfere with, restrain, coerce, or harass any public employee with respect to any of his rights under this Act or in order to prevent or discourage his exercise of any such right, including, without limitation, all rights under section eight (8) of this Act.
   b. Interfere, restrain, or coerce, a public employer with respect to rights granted in this Act or with respect to selecting a representative for the purposes of negotiating collectively on the adjustment of grievances.
   c. Refuse to bargain collectively with a public employer as required in this Act.
   d. Refuse to participate in good faith in any agreed upon impasse procedures or those set forth in this Act.

e. Violate section twelve (12) of this Act.
f. Violate the provisions of chapter seven hundred thirty-six B (736B), Sections one (1), two (2) and three (3) of the Code, which are hereby made applicable to public employers, public employees and public employee organizations.
g. Picket in a manner which interferes with ingress and egress to the facilities of the public employer.
h. Engage in, initiate, sponsor or support any picketing that is performed in support of a strike, work stoppage, boycott or slowdown against a public employer.
i. Picket for any unlawful purpose.

4. The expressing of any views, argument, or opinion, or the dissemination thereof, whether in written, printed, graphic, or visual form, shall not constitute or be evidence of any unfair labor practice under any of the provisions of this Act, if such expression contains no threat of reprisal or force or promise of benefit.

Section 11. PROHIBITED PRACTICE VIOLATIONS.

1. Proceedings against a party alleging a violation of section ten (10) of this Act, shall be commenced by filing a complaint with the board within ninety days of the alleged violation causing a copy of the complaint to be served upon the accused party in the manner of an original notice as provided in this Act. The accused party shall have ten days within which to file a written answer to the complaint. However, the board may conduct a preliminary investigation of the alleged violation, and if the board determines that the complaint has no basis in fact, the board may dismiss the complaint. The board shall promptly thereafter set a time and place for hearing in the county where the alleged violation occurred. The parties shall be permitted to be represented by counsel, summon witnesses, and request the board to subpoena witnesses on the requestor's behalf. Compliance with the technical rules of pleading and evidence shall not be required.
2. The board may designate a hearing officer to conduct the hearing. The hearing officer shall have such powers as may be exercised by the board for conducting the hearing and shall follow the procedures adopted by the board for conducting the hearing. The decision of the hearing officer may be appealed to the board and the board may hear the case de novo or upon the record as submitted before the hearing officer, utilizing procedures governing appeals to the district court in this section so far as applicable.
3. The board shall appoint a certified shorthand reporter to report the proceedings and the board shall fix the reasonable amount of compensation for such service, which amount shall be taxed as other costs.
4. The board shall file its findings of fact and conclusions of law. If the board finds that the party accused has committed a prohibited practice, the board may, within thirty days of its decision, enter into a consent order with the party to discontinue the practice, or petition the district court for injunctive relief pursuant to chapter six hundred sixty-four (664) of the Code.
5. Any party aggrieved by any decision or order of the board may within ten days from the date such decision or order is filed, appeal therefrom to the district court of the county in which the hearing was held, by filing with the board a written notice of appeal setting forth in general terms the decision appealed from and the grounds of the appeal. The board shall forthwith give notice to the other parties in interest.
6. Within thirty days after a notice of appeal is filed with the board, it shall make, certify, and file in the office of the clerk of court to which the appeal is taken, a full and complete transcript of all documents in the case, including any depositions and a transcript or certificate of the evidence together with the notice of appeal.
7. The appeal shall be triable at any time after the expiration of twenty days from the date of filing the transcript by the board and after twenty days notice in writing by either party and the board upon the other.
8. The transcript as certified and filed by the board shall be the record on which the appeal shall be heard, and no additional evidence shall be heard. In the absence of fraud, the findings of fact made by the board shall be conclusive if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole.
9. Any order or decision of the board may be modified, reversed, or set aside on one or more of the following grounds and on no other:
   a. If the board acts without or in excess of its powers.
   b. If the order was procured by fraud or is contrary to law.
   c. If the facts found by the board do not support the order.
   d. If the order is not supported by a preponderance of the competent evidence on the record considered as a whole.
10. When the district court, on appeal, reverses or sets aside an order or decision of the board, it may remand the case to the board for further proceedings in harmony with the holdings of the court, or it may enter the proper judgment, as the case may be. Such judgment or decree shall have the same force and effect as if action had been originally brought and tried in said court. The assessment of costs in such appeals shall be in the discretion of the court.
11. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from any final order, judgment, or decree of the district court.

Section 12. STRIKES PROHIBITED.

1. It shall be unlawful for any public employee or any employee organization, directly or indirectly, to induce, instigate, encourage, authorize, ratify, or participate in a strike against any public employer.
2. It shall be unlawful for any public employer to authorize, consent to, or condone a strike; or to pay or agree to pay any public employee for any day in which the employee participates in a strike; or to pay or agree to pay any increase in compensation or benefits to any public employee in response to or as a result of any strike or any act which violates subsection one (1) of this section. It shall be unlawful for any official, director, or representative of any public employer to authorize, ratify, or participate in any violation of this subsection. Nothing in this subsection shall prevent new or renewed bargaining and agreement within the scope of negotiations as defined by this Act, at any time after such violation of subsection one (1) has ceased; but it shall be unlawful for any public employer or employee organization to bargain at any time regarding suspension or modification of any penalty provided in this section or regarding any request by the public employer to a court for such suspension or modification.

3. In the event of any violation or imminently threatened violation of subsection one (1) or two (2) of this section, any citizen domiciled within the jurisdictional boundaries of the public employer may petition the district court for the county in which the violation occurs or the district court for Polk county for an injunction restraining such violation or imminently threatened violation. Chapter six hundred sixty-four (664) of the Code and the pertinent rules of civil procedure regarding injunctions shall apply. However, the court shall grant a temporary injunction if it appears to the court that a violation has occurred or is imminently threatened; the plaintiff need not show that the violation or threatened violation would greatly or irreparably injure him; and no bond shall be required of the plaintiff unless the court determines that a bond is necessary in the public interest. Failure to comply with any temporary or permanent injunction granted pursuant to this section shall constitute a contempt punishable pursuant to chapter six hundred sixty-five (665) of the Code. The punishment shall not exceed five hundred dollars for an individual, or ten thousand dollars for an employee organization or public employer, for each day during which the failure to comply continues, or imprisonment in a county jail not exceeding six months, or both such fine and imprisonment. An individual or an employee organization which makes an active good faith effort to comply fully with the injunction shall not be deemed to be in contempt.
4. If a public employee is held to be in contempt of court for failure to comply with an injunction pursuant to this section, or is convicted of violating this section, he shall be ineligible for any employment by the same public employer for a period of twelve months. His public employer shall immediately discharge him, but upon his request the court shall stay his discharge to permit further judicial proceedings.
5. If an employee organization or any of its officers is held to be in contempt of court for failure to comply with an injunction pursuant to this section, or is convicted of violating this section, the employee organization shall be immediately decertified, shall cease to represent the bargaining unit, shall cease to receive any dues by checkoff, and may again be certified only after twelve months have elapsed from the effective date of decertification and only after a new compliance with section fourteen (14) of this Act. The penalties provided in this section may be suspended or modified by the court, but only upon request of the public employer and only if the court determines the suspension or modification is in the public interest.
6. Each of the remedies and penalties provided by this section is separate and several, and is in addition to any other legal or equitable remedy or penalty.

Section 13. BARGAINING UNIT DETERMINATION.

1. Board determination of an appropriate bargaining unit shall be upon petition filed by a public employer, public employee, or employee organization.
2. Within thirty days of receipt of a petition or notice to all interested parties if on its own initiative, the board shall conduct a public hearing, receive written or oral testimony, and promptly thereafter file an order defining the appropriate bargaining unit. In defining the unit, the board shall take into consideration, along with other relevant factors, the principles of efficient administration of government, the existence of a community of interest among public employees, the history and extent of public employee organization, geographical location, and the recommendations of the parties involved.
3. Appeals from such order shall be governed by appeal provisions provided in section eleven (11) of this Act.
4. Professional and nonprofessional employees shall not be included in the same bargaining unit unless a majority of both agree.

Section 14. BARGAINING REPRESENTATIVE DETERMINATION.

1. Board certification of an employee organization as the exclusive bargaining representative of a bargaining unit shall be upon a petition filed with the board by a public employer, public employee, or an employee organization and an election conducted pursuant to section fifteen (15) of this Act.
2. The petition of an employee organization shall allege that:
   a. The employee organization has submitted a request to a public employer to bargain collectively with a designated group of public employees.
   b. The petition is accompanied by written evidence that thirty percent of such public employees are members of the employee organization or have authorized it to represent them for the purposes of collective bargaining.
3. The petition of a public employee shall allege that an employee organization which has been certified as the bargaining representative does not represent a majority of such public employees and that the petitioners do not want to be represented by an employee organization or seek certification of an employee organization.
4. The petition of a public employer shall allege that it has received a request to bargain from an employee organization which has not been certified as the bargaining representative of the public employees in an appropriate bargaining unit.
5. The board shall investigate the allegations of any petition and shall give reasonable notice of the receipt of such a petition to all public employees, employee organizations and public employers named or described in such petitions or interested in the representation questioned. The board shall thereafter call an election under section fifteen (15) of this Act, unless:
   a. It finds that less than thirty percent of the public employees in the unit appropriate for collective bargaining support the petition for decertification or for certification.
   b. The appropriate bargaining unit has not been determined pursuant to section thirteen (13) of this Act.
6. The hearing and appeal procedures shall be the same as provided in section eleven (11) of this Act.

Section 15. ELECTIONS.

1. Upon the filing of a petition for certification of an employee organization, the board shall submit two questions to the public employees at an election in an appropriate bargaining unit. The first question on the ballot shall permit the public employees to determine whether or not such public employees desire exclusive bargaining representation. The second question on the ballot shall list any employee organization which has petitioned for certification or which has presented proof satisfactory to the board of support of ten percent or more of the public employees in the appropriate unit.
2. If a majority of the votes cast on the first question are in the negative, the public employees shall not be represented by an employee organization. If a majority of the votes cast on the first question is in the affirmative, then the employee organization receiving a majority of the votes cast on the second question shall represent the public employees in an appropriate bargaining unit.
3. If none of the choices on the ballot receive the vote of a majority of the public employees who could be represented by an employee organization, the board shall conduct a runoff election among the two choices receiving the greatest number of votes.
4. Upon written objections filed by any party to the election within ten days after notice of the results of the election, if the board finds that misconduct or other circumstances prevented the public employees eligible to vote from freely expressing their preferences, the board may invalidate the election and hold a second election for the public employees.
5. Upon completion of a valid election in which the majority choice of the employees who could be represented by an employee organization is determined, the board shall certify the results of the election and shall give reasonable notice of the order to all employee organizations listed on the ballot, the public employers, and the public employees in the appropriate bargaining unit.
6. A petition for certification as an exclusive bargaining representative shall not be considered by the board for a period of one year from the date of the certification or noncertification of an exclusive bargaining representative or during the duration of a collective bargaining agreement which shall not exceed two years. A collective bargaining agreement with the state, its boards, commissions, departments, and agencies shall be for two years and the effective date of any such agreement shall be July first of odd-numbered years. However, if a petition for decertification is filed during the duration of a collective bargaining agreement, the board shall award an election under this section not more than one hundred eighty days nor less than one hundred fifty days prior to the expiration of the collective bargaining agreement. If an employee organization is decertified, the board may receive petitions under section fourteen (14) of this Act, provided that no such petition within one year from decertification shall include as a party the decertified employee organization.

Section 16. DUTY TO BARGAIN.

Upon the receipt by a public employer of a request from an employee organization to bargain on behalf of public employees, the duty to engage in collective bargaining shall arise if the employee organization has been certified by the board as the exclusive bargaining representative for the public employees in that bargaining unit.

Section 17. PROCEDURES.

1. The employee organization certified as the bargaining representative shall be the exclusive representative of all public employees in the bargaining unit and shall represent all public employees fairly. However, any public employee may meet and adjust individual complaints with a public employer.
2. The employee organization and the public employer may designate any individual as its representative to engage in collective bargaining negotiations.
3. Negotiating sessions, including strategy meetings of public employers or employee organizations, mediation and the deliberative process of arbitrators shall be exempt from the provisions of chapter twenty-eight A (28A) of the Code. Hearings conducted by arbitrators shall be open to the public.
4. The terms of a proposed collective bargaining agreement shall be made public and reasonable notice shall be given to the public employees prior to a ratification election. The collective bargaining agreement shall become effective only if ratified by a majority of those voting by secret ballot.
5. Terms of any collective bargaining agreement may be enforced by a civil action in the district court of the county in which the agreement was made upon the initiative of either party.
6. No collective bargaining agreement or arbitrators' decision shall be valid or enforceable if its implementation would be inconsistent with any statutory limitation on the public employer's funds, spending, or budget or would substantially impair or limit the performance of any statutory duty by the public employer. A collective bargaining agreement or arbitrators' award may provide for benefits conditional upon specified funds to be obtained by the public employer, but the agreement shall provide either for automatic reduction of such conditional benefits or for additional bargaining if the funds are not obtained or if a lesser amount is obtained.
7. If agreed to by the parties nothing in this Act shall be construed to prohibit supplementary bargaining on behalf of public employees in a part of the bargaining unit concerning matters uniquely affecting those public employees or cooperation and coordination of bargaining between two or more bargaining units.
8. The salaries of all public employees of the state under a merit system and all other fringe benefits which are granted to all public employees of the state shall be negotiated with the governor or his designee on a statewide basis, except those benefits which are not subject to negotiations pursuant to the provisions of section nine (9) of this Act.
9. A public employee or any employee organization shall not negotiate or attempt to negotiate directly with a member of the governing board of a public employer if the public employer has appointed or authorized a bargaining representative for the purpose of bargaining with the public employees or their representative, unless the member of the governing board is the designated bargaining representative of the public employer.

Section 18. GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES.

An agreement with an employee organization which is the exclusive representative of public employees in an appropriate unit may provide procedures for the consideration of public employee grievances and of disputes over the interpretation and application of agreements. Negotiated procedures may provide for binding arbitration of public employee grievances and of disputes over the interpretation and application of existing agreements. An arbitrator's decision on a grievance may not change or amend the terms, conditions or applications of the collective bargaining agreement. Such procedures shall provide for the invoking of arbitration only with the approval of the employee organization, and in the case of an employee grievance, only with the approval of the public employee. The costs of arbitration shall be shared equally by the parties.

Public employees of the state shall follow either the grievance procedures provided in a collective bargaining agreement, or in the event that no such procedures are so provided, shall follow grievance procedures established pursuant to chapter nineteen A (19A) of the Code.

Section 19. IMPASSE PROCEDURES–AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

As the first step in the performance of their duty to bargain, the public employer and the employee organization shall endeavor to agree upon impasse procedures. Such agreement shall provide for implementation of these impasse procedures not later than one hundred twenty days prior to the certified budget submission date of the public employer. If the parties fail to agree upon impasse procedures under the provisions of this section, the impasse procedures provided in sections twenty (20), twenty-one (21) and twenty-two (22) of this Act shall apply.

Section 20. MEDIATION.

In the absence of an impasse agreement between the parties or the failure of either party to utilize its procedures, one hundred twenty days prior to the certified budget submission date, the board shall, upon the request of either party, appoint an impartial and disinterested person to act as mediator. It shall be the function of the mediator to bring the parties together to effectuate a settlement of the dispute, but the mediator may not compel the parties to agree.

Section 21. FACT-FINDING.

If the impasse persists ten days after the mediator has been appointed, the board shall appoint a fact-finder representative of the public, from a list of qualified persons maintained by the board. The fact-finder shall conduct a hearing, may administer oaths, and may request the board to issue subpoenas. The fact-finder shall make written findings of facts and recommendations for resolution of the dispute and, not later than fifteen days from the day of appointment, shall serve such findings on the public employer and the certified employee organization.

The public employer and the certified employee organization shall immediately accept the fact-finder's recommendation or shall within five days submit the fact-finder's recommendations to the governing body and members of the certified employee organization for acceptance or rejection. If the dispute continues ten days after the report is submitted, the report shall be made public by the board.

Section 22. BINDING ARBITRATION.

1. If an impasse persists after the findings of fact and recommendations are made public by the fact-finder, the parties may continue to negotiate or, the board shall have the power, upon request of either party, to arrange for arbitration, which shall be binding. The request for arbitration shall be in writing and a copy of the request shall be served upon the other party.
2. Each party shall submit to the board within four days of request a final offer on the impasse items with proof of service of a copy upon the other party. Each party shall also submit a copy of a draft of the proposed collective bargaining agreement to the extent to which agreement has been reached and the name of its selected arbitrator. The parties may continue to negotiate all offers until an agreement is reached or a decision rendered by the panel of arbitrators.

As an alternative procedure, the two parties may agree to submit the dispute to a single arbitrator. If the parties cannot agree on the arbitrator within four days, the selection shall be made pursuant to subsection five (5) of this section. The full costs of arbitration under this provision shall be shared equally by the parties to the dispute.

3. The submission of the impasse items to the arbitrators shall be limited to those issues that had been considered by the fact-finder and upon which the parties have not reached agreement. With respect to each such item, the arbitration board award shall be restricted to the final offers on each impasse item submitted by the parties to the arbitration board or to the recommendation of the fact-finder on each impasse item.
4. The panel of arbitrators shall consist of three members appointed in the following manner:
   a. One member shall be appointed by the public employer.
   b. One member shall be appointed by the employee organization.
   c. One member shall be appointed mutually by the members appointed by the public employer and the employee organization. The last member appointed shall be the chairman of the panel of arbitrators. No member appointed shall be an employee of the parties.
   d. The public employer and employee organization shall each pay the fees and expenses incurred by the arbitrator each selected. The fee and expenses of the chairman of the panel and all other costs of arbitration shall be shared equally.
5. If the third member has not been selected within four days of notification as provided in subsection two (2) of this section, a list of three arbitrators shall be submitted to the parties by the board. The two arbitrators selected by the public employer and the employee organization shall determine by lot which arbitrator shall remove the first name from the list submitted by the board. The arbitrator having the right to remove the first name shall do so within two days and the second arbitrator shall have one additional day to remove one of the two remaining names. The person whose name remains shall become the chairman of the panel of arbitrators and shall call a meeting within ten days at a location designated by him.
6. If a vacancy should occur on the panel of arbitrators, the selection for replacement of such member shall be in the same manner and within the same time limits as the original member was chosen. No final selection under subsection nine (9) of this section shall be made by the board until the vacancy has been filled.

2760

7. The panel of arbitrators shall at no time engage in an effort to mediate or otherwise settle the dispute in any manner other than that prescribed in this section.
8. From the time of appointment until such time as the panel of arbitrators makes its final determination, there shall be no discussion concerning recommendations for settlement of the dispute by the members of the panel of arbitrators with parties other than those who are direct parties to the dispute. The panel of arbitrators may conduct formal or informal hearings to discuss offers submitted by both parties.
9. The panel of arbitrators shall consider, in addition to any other relevant factors, the following factors:
   a. Past collective bargaining contracts between the parties including the bargaining that led up to such contracts.
   b. Comparison of wages, hours and conditions of employment of the involved public employees with those of other public employees doing comparable work, giving consideration to factors peculiar to the area and the classifications involved.
   c. The interests and welfare of the public, the ability of the public employer to finance economic adjustments and the effect of such adjustments on the normal standard of services.
   d. The power of the public employer to levy taxes and appropriate funds for the conduct of its operations.
10. The chairman of the panel of arbitrators may hold hearings and administer oaths, examine witnesses and documents, take testimony and receive evidence, issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of records, and delegate such powers to other members of the panel of arbitrators. The chairman of the panel of arbitrators may petition the district court at the seat of government or of the county in which any hearing is held to enforce the order of the chairman compelling the attendance of witnesses and the production of records.
11. A majority of the panel of arbitrators shall select within fifteen days after its first meeting the most reasonable offer, in its judgment, of the final offers on each impasse item submitted by the parties, or recommendations of the fact-finder on each impasse item.
12. The selections by the panel of arbitrators and items agreed upon by the public employer and the employee organization, shall be deemed to be the collective bargaining agreement between the parties.
13. The determination of the panel of arbitrators shall be by majority vote and shall be final and binding subject to the provisions of section seventeen (17), subsection six (6), of this Act. The panel of arbitrators shall give written explanation for its selection and inform the parties of its decision.

Section 23. LEGAL ACTIONS.

Any employee organization and public employer may sue or be sued as an entity under the provisions of this Act. Service upon the public employer shall be in accordance with law or the rules of civil procedure. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to make any individual or his assets liable for any judgment against a public employer or an employee organization.

Section 24. NOTICE AND SERVICE.

Any notice required under the provisions of this Act shall be in writing, but service thereof shall be sufficient if mailed by restricted certified mail, return receipt requested addressed to the last known address of the parties, unless otherwise provided in this Act. Refusal of restricted certified mail by any party shall be considered service. Prescribed time periods shall commence from the date of the receipt of the notice. Any party may at any time execute and deliver an acceptance of service in lieu of mailed notice.

Section 25. INTERNAL CONDUCT OF EMPLOYEE ORGANIZATIONS.

1. Every employee organization which is certified as a representative of public employees under the provisions of this Act shall file with the board a registration report, signed by its president or other appropriate officer. The report shall be in a form prescribed by the board and shall be accompanied by two copies of the employee organization's constitution and bylaws. A filing by a national or international employee organization of its constitution and bylaws shall be accepted in lieu of a filing of such documents by each subordinate organization. All changes or amendments to such constitutions and bylaws shall be promptly reported to the board.
2. Every employee organization shall file with the board an annual report and an amended report whenever changes are made. The reports shall be in a form prescribed by the board, and shall provide the following information:
   a. The names and addresses of the organization, any parent organization or organizations with which it is affiliated, the principal officers, and all representatives.
   b. The name and address of its local agent for service of process.
   c. The amounts of the initiation fee and monthly dues members must pay.
   e. A pledge, in a form prescribed by the board, that the organization will comply with the laws of the state and that it will accept members without regard to age, race, sex, religion, national origin, or physical disability as provided by law.
   f. A financial report and audit.
3. The constitution or bylaws of every employee organization shall provide that:
   a. Accurate accounts of all income and expenses shall be kept, and annual financial report and audit shall be prepared, such accounts shall be open for inspection by any member of the organization, and loans to officers and agents shall be made only on terms and conditions available to all members.
   b. Business or financial interests of its officers and agents, their spouses, minor children, parents, or otherwise, that conflict with the fiduciary obligation of such persons to the organization shall be prohibited.
   c. Every official or employee of an employee organization who handles funds or other property of the organization, or trust in which an organization is interested, or a subsidiary organization, shall be bonded. The amount, scope, and form of the bond shall be determined by the board.

4. The governing rules of every employee organization shall provide for periodic elections by secret ballot subject to recognized safeguards concerning the equal right of all members to nominate, seek office, and vote in such elections, the right of individual members to participate in the affairs of the organization, and fair and equitable procedures in disciplinary actions.
5. The board shall prescribe rules and regulations necessary to govern the establishment and reporting of trusteeships over employee organizations. Establishment of such trusteeships shall be permitted only if the constitution or bylaws of the organization set forth reasonable procedures.
6. An employee organization that has not registered or filed an annual report, or that has failed to comply with other provisions of this Act, shall not be certified. Certified employee organizations failing to comply with this Act may have such certification revoked by the board. Prohibitions may be enforced by injunction upon the petition of the board to the district court of the county in which the violation occurs. Complaints of violation of this section shall be filed with the board.
7. Upon the written request of any member of a certified employee organization, the auditor of state may audit the financial records of the certified employee organization.

Section 26. EMPLOYEE ORGANIZATIONS–POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS.

An employee organization shall not make any direct or indirect contribution out of the funds of the employee organization to any political party or organization or in support of any candidate for elective public office.

Any employee organization which violates the provisions of this section or fails to file any required report or affidavit or files a false report or affidavit shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine of not more than two thousand dollars.

Any person who willfully violates this section, or who makes a false statement knowing it to be false, or who knowingly fails to disclose a material fact shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days or shall be subject to both such fine and imprisonment. Each individual required to sign affidavits or reports under this section shall be personally responsible for filing such report or affidavit and for any statement contained therein he knows to be false.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit voluntary contributions by individuals to political parties or candidates.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit or deny any civil remedy which may exist as a result of action which may violate this section.

Section 27.

Section nineteen A point nine (19A.9), subsection two (2), Code 1973, is amended to read as follows:

2. For a pay plan within the purview of an appropriation made by the general assembly and not otherwise provided by law for all employees in the merit system, after consultation with appointing authorities with due regard to the results of a collective bargaining agreement negotiated under the provisions of this Act and after a public hearing held by the commission. Such pay plan shall become effective only after it has been approved by the executive council after submission from the commission. Review of the pay plan for revisions shall be made in the same manner at the discretion of the director, but not less than annually. The annual review by the director shall be made available to the governor a sufficient time in advance of collective bargaining negotiations to permit its recommendations to be considered during such negotiations. Each employee shall be paid at one of the rates set forth in the pay plan for the class of position in which employed and, unless otherwise designated by the commission, shall begin employment at the first step of the established range for his class. Unless otherwise established by law, the governor, with the approval of the executive council, shall establish a pay plan for all exempt positions in the executive branch of government except for employees of the governor, board of regents, the state educational radio and television facility board, the superintendent of public instruction and members of the professional staff of the department of public instruction, appointed under the provisions of section 257.24, who possess a current, valid teacher's certificate or who are assigned to vocational activities or programs, the commission for the blind, members of the Iowa highway safety patrol and other peace officers, as defined in section 97A.1, employed by the department of public safety, and officers and enlisted men of the armed services under state jurisdiction.

Section 28.

If any provision of this Act jeopardizes the receipt by the state or any of its political subdivisions of any federal grant-in-aid funds or other federal allotment of money, the provisions of this Act shall, insofar as the fund is jeopardized, be deemed to be inoperative.

Section 29.

This Act shall become effective on July 1, 1974, but the provisions of this Act relative to the duty to bargain shall not become effective until July 1, 1975. However, public employees of the state, its boards, commissions, departments and agencies may not bargain collectively until June 1, 1976.

VOL. 7 NO. 10
JUNE 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Decertification Fails for Lack of Specific Charges
- Court Cannot Order Binding Arbitration of Disputes
- Phone Calls to Employees in Grievance Processing Protected Activity
- Funding Formulas and Budgetary Calendar Non-bargainable
- Vested Sabbatical Leave Contingent on Contract
- Oregon PERB Rulings Upheld as Enforceable
- Vermont Boards Bound by Negotiated Grievance Procedures
- Budget Allocations Non-negotiable

Board Findings and Rulings 8
- Maine Teachers Win Back Pay
- Back Pay Award for Union Animus Discharge
- PERC Approves Over-all Administrative Unit
- Pa. Higher Education Units Must be All-inclusive
- Unfair Labor Practice To Discuss Negotiations With Employees
- District Must Negotiate Coaches Salaries
- Permanent Substitutes Must Be Covered by Master Contract
- District Ordered To Bargain Pay for Women Coaches
- Failure To Process Nonrenewal Grievance Unfair Labor Practice

Negotiation Notes 11
- Mediation Report Incorporated Into Contract
- Florida Enacts Comprehensive Public Employee Law
- Kansas Boards Cannot Issue Individual Contracts During Negotiations
- Michigan Accountability System Scored
- North Dakota "Fair Dismissal" Law Tested
- Consumer Price Index—May 1974
- BLS Plans Two Consumer Price Indexes
- Union Wage Rates for Local Truck Drivers Rise 8 Percent
- N.J. Nurses To Be Paid Teacher Rates
- Ohio Attorney General's Opinion

Special Reports 15
- Seniority Provisions In Negotiated Contracts
- Briefs of Agreements
- Family Budget Costs Up 10 Percent

Texts 26
- Florida Public Employee Bargaining Law

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2763

CASE REVIEWS

DELAWARE

Decertification Petition Fails For Lack of Specific Charges

The Delaware Supreme Court ruled that the Conrad Area School Board lost its right to decertify the Conrad Area Federation of Teachers (AFT) following a three-day strike because it failed to pursue such a remedy in initial chancery court hearings during and after the walk-out.

Under Delaware law, Conrad teachers voted for CAFT as their collective bargaining agent for a two-year period. Representatives of CAFT and the school board subsequently engaged in negotiations, but following a dispute over teacher pay raises, the teachers struck. At the board's request, the Court of Chancery issued a temporary order restraining the strike.

A new contract raised salaries by $200, contained a grievance procedure, allowed teachers to review their personnel files, and barred transfers for disciplinary reasons. The teacher negotiation statute provides that if an employee organization designated as exclusive representative violates the no-strike provision, its designation as exclusive representative shall be revoked by the public-school employer and shall be ineligible to be designated as exclusive representative for a period of two years thereafter.

In its complaint, the board sought a declaration by the chancery court that the federation had forfeited its right as a bargaining unit by engaging in the strike, and it sought decertification as part of its relief. The chancery court dismissed the complaint, stating that no legitimate, useful purposes would be served by imposing sanctions after a contempt hearing since the matters leading to the filing of the action had been rendered moot and that the board initially had sought a restraining order, not decertification.

The board did not appeal this decision, but when the state attorney general ruled that striking teacher groups must be decertified under the negotiation law, the board withdrew recognition of CAFT, whereupon the federation instituted legal proceedings against the state. The chancery court stated, not on the basis of the bargaining law but on the principle of res judicata (a thing or matter settled by judgment), that it was satisfied that there was no need to equivocate as to the correct principle to apply.

The board issued a renewal of CAFT's certification, but attorneys for the state appealed the decision to the Delaware Supreme Court. The supreme court denied the appeal from the state justice department and state education officials on the basis of alleged violations of the anti-strike statute, agreeing with the lower court which had held that "the board's action was improper and ordered it rescinded on the ground that there had been a judicial determination of the issue." So ruling, the supreme court upheld the chancery court order. (State of Delaware, et al., v. Conrad Chapter of the Delaware Federation of Teachers, et al., Delaware Supreme Court, April 9, 1974.)

FLORIDA

Trial Court Cannot Order Binding Arbitration To Settle Dispute

In the absence of specific legislative guidelines to implement the constitutional right to collective bargaining, it was improper for a trial court to order binding arbitration in a labor dispute between the City of Coral Gables and the Coral Gables Employees Association. So ruling, the Florida District Court of Appeals reversed a lower court's order.

The trial court ordered binding arbitration when an impasse was reached in negotiations after three months of bargaining. Additionally, the employees association was on strike in violation of Article 1, Section 6, of the state constitution.

Citing Dade County Classroom Teachers' Association v. Ryan, the Court of Appeals stated that the state Supreme Court held that public employees have a right to bargain collectively according to the 1968 state constitution. Further, in Dade County Classroom Teachers' Association v. Legislature, the Supreme Court acknowledged the problem of non-existing statutory guidelines for bargaining and held that enforcing constitutional rights rests with the judiciary.

Pointing out that the legislature had enacted the Firefighters Bargaining Act which provides advisory arbitration, the Supreme Court held that the legislature will in time extend its activity in this field, thus making judicial implementation of the rights in question premature.

Concluding that it was essential that the legislature establish appropriate standards and guidelines in labor relations for the public sector, the Court of Appeals held that at the present time the legislature did not act unreasonably, although it failed to enact legislation implementing the constitutional right to collective bargaining. Accordingly, the Court of Appeals ruled that the trial court improperly ordered binding arbitration in the absence of specific legislative guidelines and reversed the decision of the trial court. (City of Coral Gables, Florida, Appellant v. Coral Gables Employees Association, Inc., Appellee, Florida District Court of Appeals, January 15, 1974.)

MICHIGAN

Phone Calls to Fellow Employees in Grievance Held Protected Activity

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled that a substitute bus driver was within her rights under the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act when she phoned fellow drivers assigned to regular runs in order to gather evidence for a grievance alleging a violation of her seniority rights.

The substitute bus driver was hired and assigned to a temporary bus run until the regular driver returned. She asked for a permanent position but was not assigned; whereupon she filed a grievance requesting a permanent position. The collective bargaining agreement gave preference to drivers with seniority, but the school board maintained that a substitute driver did not come within the scope of the agreement since it covered only employees with "regularly scheduled hours." Even though union and school officials met with the school grievance committee on November 18, the complaint was not resolved.

The MERC upheld the trial examiner's recommendation that the substitute driver be reinstated and given back pay, while agreeing that the grievance against the union be dismissed since no cause of action was shown. The court of appeals ordered enforcement of MERC's order. Affirming the appeals court order, the supreme court noted that the substitute driver made the calls in preparing a grievance.

The court discounted suggestions that the phone calls were threatening, noting no claim that the bus driver had threatened physical violence. The court held that there was a "threat inherent in any similar grievance asserting that someone was granted preferred status in derogation of another's seniority rights."

The school board argued that the substitute bus driver was not under the protection of the PERA since she was acting on an individual, rather than a group, grievance. But, according to the court, "The NLRB and the United States Courts of Appeal have held, however, that the filing of a grievance by even a single employee constitutes protected concerted activity."

The court also disposed of two other arguments advanced by the school board. First, to the argument that the driver was not included within the bargaining agreement because she allegedly did not keep "regularly scheduled hours," the court found that she did have definite morning and afternoon hours, five days a week. Second, while agreeing that the driver's charge filed with MERC failed to inform the school board of what it was specifically accused, the court stated that the fuzziness of the wording in the complaint did not prejudice a full and fair presentation of the facts and issues in the case.

The dissenting judge held that there was no finding of any concerted activity in the phone calls as required under PERA, that the driver's actions ruptured the bonds of common cause, and that the driver did not communicate to develop facts but to complain, coerce, and intimidate. As such, these activities did not warrent protection but furnished ample cause for discharge. (Michigan Employment Relations Commission v. Reeths-Puffer School District, Michigan Supreme Court, March 19, 1974.)

NEW JERSEY

Adoption of New Funding Formula and Budgetary Calendar Not in Violation of Statutory Duty To Bargain

The New Jersey Superior Court dismissed a petition of the Rutgers Council of the American Association of University Professors (RC-AAUP) which claimed that the state board of higher education violated the state's Administrative Procedure Act (APA) and the Employer-Employee Relations Act (EERA) by adopting a 32-week budgetary calendar based on funding methods devised by the state department of higher education. The court found that the new funding method, approved by the legislature, was within the board's authority and did not affect the parties' previous bargaining position. Furthermore, the court reiterated its former position that the school calendar was not a mandatory subject of negotiations.

In previous years, the state appropriated funds for the university, with the university having authority to allocate funds within certain guidelines. These allocations were determined by budgetary formulas based on a student/faculty ratio. The university would submit its budgetary request to the board which would then forward the request to the governor through the budget bureau; the governor would revise the request and send it to the legislature for final determination. The funding formula had no actual relation to the classroom but was a budgetary method based on program objectives. The legislature established a committee to study alternate funding formulas and issue a report prior to the submission of a budget request by the university. The final report of the committee based the budgetary formula on the student/faculty ratio, but unlike the old formula, the new ratio was divided into such components as student levels, subject matter, and faculty experience. Rutgers accepted this formula with the provision that it be allowed to allocate funds according to its needs and goals. Incorporating the new budgetary formula, the board processed the university's budget request and submitted it to the governor and the legislature.

Subsequently, the RC-AAUP petitioned the court, claiming that the board had violated the APA by adopting the revised budgetary formula (The APA protects parties adversely affected by administrative rules and regulations adopted by state agencies.) and the EERA for not consulting with RC-AAUP before implementing the prescribed 32-week budgetary calendar. RC-AAUP also contended that the funding policy interfered with Rutgers' autonomy.

Considering charges that the board had violated the APA, the court stated that the primary issue was whether the board was engaged in rule-making when it adopted the funding policy. The court determined that since the board's adoption of the ratio formula affected only the university's allotment of funds, not the application of them, the new funding policy was within the board's statutory authority and could not be considered rule-making. The court noted that the dispute was rightfully with the legislature for implementing the new funding policy, not with the board for utilizing it.

Examining the RC-AAUP's contentions that the adoption of the student-faculty funding formula and the 32-week budgetary calendar by the board violated the EERA, the court ruled that the new funding policy did not change the collective bargaining position existing between the parties, since RC-AAUP was still free to negotiate all terms and conditions of employment with the university. Regarding the budgetary calendar the court restated its previous position in Burlington Community College[1] that although the school calendar has some effect on terms of employment, it is not a mandatory subject for negotiations.

The court found no merit in the RC-AAUP's contention that the new budget formula violated Rutger's autonomy, a matter of concern only to the university, not the RC-AAUP, and also the board did not change the university's statutory authority by simply advising the legislature as to the university's need for funds in accordance with a formula adopted by the legislature.

Finding no merit in any of the RC-AAUP's charges, the court dismissed its petition and upheld the board's action in implementing the new funding policy. (Rutgers Council of American Association of University Professors v. New Jersey Board of Higher Education et al, New Jersey Superior Court, November 27, 1973.)

[1]NRD 7. 8.

NEW YORK

Sabbatical Leave Contingent on Contractual Provision

Vested sabbatical leave rights end with the termination of a contract and a school board's failure to act on sabbatical applications during negotiations for a new contract is not an improper practice because the leave is not a basic employee benefit nor a mandatory subject of negotiations. The New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, dismissed petitions filed by the Baldwin Faculty Association seeking enforcement of sabbatical leave provisions in a contract the Association had voluntarily terminated.

Under the Association's 1972-73 continuing contract, sabbatical leaves were vested for the 1973-74 contract year because of a statutory prohibition of sabbaticals in the former year. Five teachers had applied for sabbaticals, and raised the issue when the Baldwin School Board refused to act on the applications, contending that the sabbatical leave provision no longer had effect since the contract had expired.

Although the Association had voluntarily terminated the continuing contract, it maintained that the right to sabbaticals had been vested the previous year and should be granted while negotiations were being conducted for a new contract.

The court examined the provision in question and found no support for continuation of the effect of the clause beyond the limits of the negotiated agreement, negating any presumption that a right to sabbatical leave could be vested outside a contract. In Ewen v. Board of Education of Union Free School Dist. No. 18, the court had ruled that teachers could keep previously vested sabbaticals in the face of a legislative ban in the prior year because the leaves had been granted and a provision for sabbaticals existed in a contract still in effect. The court concluded that the school board was not obligated to grant sabbaticals in the instant case until provision for such has been negotiated.

A fall back position of the Association was that the Taylor Law operated to preserve the "status quo" during negotiations since it banned strikes. Citing two previous PERB cases involving continuance of the grievance procedure and salary provisions of expired contracts, the Association believed its members were also entitled to the contested sabbaticals.

The court acknowledged the handicap imposed by the no-strike provision; yet it noted, that the main emphasis of the statute was on collective bargaining rights for public employees, particuarly the employer's duty to negotiate in good faith. Efforts to change major employment conditions and benefits in lieu of a contract might be construed as improper practices—failure to negotiate in good faith—but such an allegation should concern some indispensible item, some mandatory subject of negotiations, since preserving the "status quo" could not mean maintaining all prior contract terms, the court reasoned. Sabbatical leaves for a few teachers were not a mandatory subject of negotiation, the court concluded, unwilling to assure a blanket continuation of expired contract terms, and thereby tip the negotiations power balance in favor of the Association.

The court accordingly dismissed the Association's petition. (Matter of Application of Arthur Cardinale, as President of the Baldwin Faculty Association et al., Petitioners v. Herbert P. Andersen et al., members of the Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 10, Town of Hempstead, Baldwin, New York et al., Respondents, New York Supreme Court, Nassau County, August 24, 1973.)

OREGON

Court Affirms PERB Ruling Against Employee in Grievance Involving Merit Rating

An employee cannot invoke the Public Employees Relations Board's (PERB) jurisdiction in a grievance regarding a performance evaluation if he/she does not file a written grievance within procedural time limits in accordance with state administrative rules. So ruling, the Court of Appeals affirmed PERB's denial of the employee's request to set aside or modify the evaluation.

The employee sought to have PERB intervene and consequently change or set aside the evaluation of her performance since it was unsatisfactory. However, PERB ruled against her on the merits.

The employer (Children's Services Division) moved for dismissal on a claim that the employee's grievance was not filed within the 60-day time limit. PERB dismissed the motion, finding that the employee verbally complained to her supervisor within the 60-day period on the grounds that the language of the parties' labor agreement provided that the initial step of a grievance was an effort to reach agreement with the supervisor. Consequently, PERB held that the grievance was within the procedural time limits.

The court of appeals, although affirming PERB, disagreed with PERB's ruling regarding the timeliness of the grievance and held that failure of the oral attempt necessitated the written presentation of the grievance. The court found that the employee was required to file a written grievance within 60 days from receipt of the merit rating. Accordingly, the court affirmed the PERB ruling against the employee. (Wittmeyer, Petitioner v. Children's Services Division, Respondent Cross-Petitioner, Oregon Court of Appeals, December 1973.)

VERMONT

School Board Bound by Negotiated Grievance Procedure in Contract Non-renewal Case

Absent a specific statutory provision limiting its authority to enter into or limit the scope of negotiated agreements, the contention of the Danville Board of School Directors that submission of a teacher dismissal case to final and binding arbitration was an improper delegation of its powers was rejected by the Caledonia County Supreme Court. Final and binding arbitration is the fourth step of a grievance procedure contained in an agreement negotiated between the board and the Danville Teachers Association.

A member of the teachers association, informed by the board that her contract would not be renewed, filed a grievance in accordance with the parties' negotiated grievance procedure. The parties followed the first three steps of the procedure, and the dismissal was upheld at all levels. The Association then submitted the grievance to arbitration. The school board refused to comply with the final step of the procedure, and petitioned the county court for an injunction barring arbitration. The court refused to issue an injunction, and the board appealed the case to the county supreme court.

The board argued that state education statutes granted school boards the sole authority to hire and dismiss teachers, and, therefore, submission of a grievance concerning contract non-renewal to final and binding arbitration was an improper delegation of the board's authority.

Reviewing the facts of the case, the court pointed out contractual provisions which stated that teachers' contracts shall be renewed "except for just and sufficient cause" and that non-renewal of a teacher's contract may be submitted to the negotiated grievance procedure. According to the court, the main issue in the case did not concern the school board's power to hire and dismiss teachers but rather the board's authority to enter into a collective bargaining agreement including a provision for binding arbitration.

The court believed that the board's participation in the first three steps of the arbitration process indicated that it did not object to the arbitration procedures. However, the board objected to an arbitrator's making the final decision as to whether a teacher was dismissed for "just and sufficient cause." Referring to previous legal decisions, the court stated that to prove that a nonrenewal decision could be made only by the board, a statutory provision to the effect must be cited. Concluding that the board failed to demonstrate the existence of a statutory provision limiting its authority to enter into an agreement including arbitration provisions, the court affirmed the lower court's decision. (Danville Board of School Directors v. Flora Fifield and Danville Teachers Association and Leslie Gensburg, Caledonia County Supreme Court, December 9, 1973.)

WASHINGTON

Budget Allocations Not a Negotiable Policy

The Washington Supreme Court, in support of a previous superior court decision, ruled that the Spokane School District No. 81 Board of Education was not obliged to negotiate revised budget allocations with the Spokane Education Association. According to the court, the revised budget necessitated by the failure of a special school levy, was not a statement of policy. Furthermore, the board did not violate the state's negotiation statute by negotiating with the Association only once before adopting a budget which resulted in the layoff of 214 teachers.

The Association originally petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandamus to prevent the school district from notifying several teachers of their nonrenewal which resulted from necessary budget cuts.

The Association contended before the supreme court, that the school district violated the state negotiations act. In addition to providing for the negotiation of terms and conditions of employment, the act empowers school boards to adopt rules and regulations for the administration of employer-employee relations. Accordingly, the board adopted a procedure whereby any proposed or revised policy would be read at two public meetings prior to adoption. Under this procedure, the Association had opportunity to meet with the superintendent to communicate its membership's views on a policy change; if a settlement was not reached, the Association had the right to meet with the board within 10 days. If the board and the Association were unable to reach agreement, the board could enforce the new or revised policy subject to the Association's right to request aid from the state superintendent.

Upon rejection of a special school levy, the superintendent drew up plans for allocation of the reduced budget and an Association committee met with a committee from the superintendent's office to discuss possible budget cuts if a second levy vote was defeated. The Association held that no personnel should be discharged as a result of the budget reduction and recommended cuts in other areas of the school program. Although the superintendent incorporated many of the Association's suggestions into his plan, the plan did include the layoff of some teachers. During this period, the board held two public meetings to discuss plans for budget reductions. After the meetings the Association requested a meeting with the school administration and subsequently with the board regarding budget allocations and the reduced school program. The school board received the Association's request for a meeting three days before the date teachers had to be informed of their non-renewal. Because of the necessity of meeting this deadline, the board voted to adopt the superintendent's proposals without further discussion, and non-renewal notices were sent to 214 certificated staff members whereupon the Association petitioned the court for an order estopping the board from issuing the non-renewal notices.

Although the Association eventually dropped this contention, it first argued that the state negotiation statute provided for negotiations until a settlement was reached. However, the Association maintained that the meetings held with the board did not meet statutory requirements and regulation procedures and that the board's adoption of the superintendent's plan for budget reduction was unlawful.

Reviewing the facts, the court believed that the legislative intent of the statute was to give an employee organization the opportunity to negotiate a proposed policy for a reasonable time prior to the date the board was required to act. Pointing out that both parties were aware that a budget reduction plan might have to be implemented after the first school levy failed, the court stated that the Association could have requested negotiation in case the levy failed a second time. However, the Association neglected to request negotiation with the board until three days before the board was required to send non-renewal notices. The court held that if the Association wished to exercise its right to negotiate with the board, it should have requested negotiation prior to the late date that it did. The court added that prior to its adoption of the superintendent's plan, the board indicated that it was willing to negotiate the staff reductions, and in fact both the Association and the board agreed to modify the superintendent's plan. The court concluded that the Association had never been denied the right to negotiate the budget reductions.

The board and the Association disagreed over the scope of negotiations as specified in the negotiations statute. The Association contended that the statute allowed negotiation of budget allocations because policies relating to negotiable items listed in the statute affect the budget. On the other hand, the board held that budget allocation was one of its non-delegable duties. The court agreed that policy matters relating to specified negotiable items were subject to negotiation but added that although many of the items going into a budget reflect policy decisions, the school budget itself could not be considered a statement of policy. However, this did not preclude the school board from discussing the budget with the Association.

In conclusion, the court affirmed the lower court's order and dismissed the Association's petition. (Spokane Education Association v. Orville L. Barnes, Washington Supreme Court, January 17, 1974.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MAINE

Kittery Teachers Win Back Pay

In an unprecedented decision, the Maine Public Employees Labor Relations Board directed the Kittery School Committee to reimburse teachers for lost wages owing to the committee's decision to unilaterally change the negotiated salary provision of the parties' expired contract.

The school committee contended that Article 23 of the parties' 1971-72 contract which provided 7 percent increases for all teachers with 11 or more years' experience for the school year 1971-72, was no longer in effect; however, it indicated that all other provisions would remain effective pending the end of 1972-73 contract negotiations. The Kittery Teachers Association argued that all contract provisions should remain in effect until the negotiation of a successor agreement.

Citing other rulings in support of its decision, the Board held that the school committee improperly made a unilateral change in working conditions in the midst of negotiations. So ruling, the Board ordered the school committee to pay the teachers involved the full amount lost. (Kittery Teachers Association and School Committee of Town of Kittery, Maine Public Employees Labor Relations Board, March 15, 1973.)

Employees Discharged for Union Activity Reinstated with Back Pay

Holding that Gardiner Water District employees were discharged owing to their union activity, the Maine Public Employees Labor Relations Board (PELRB) directed that the four employees be reinstated, reimbursed for wages lost, and compensated some $642 to $1,722 in damages. Further, the Board vacated the results of a representation election which the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) lost shortly after the employee firings.

The discharged employees, who installed water meters for the district's "crash program," were terminated a few days after they circulated a petition for a certification election. Their superintendent later informed them of upcoming pay raises and new retirement and insurance programs, and told them that because of these changes and their unsatisfactory work, they would be fired.

The Board found no good cause for the discharges and noted that the employees were not warned or disciplined prior to the firings. Further, the Board said that talks regarding impending benefits had no relevance to the discharges but would be relevant only to stress benefits lost for participating in union activity.

Finding a violation of Section 964 of the state's bargaining law which prohibits public employers from discouraging union membership through hiring and employment discrimination, the Board ruled that the firings were clearly a result of the employees' union activity. So ruling, the Board ordered an end to the district's illegal actions and directed that the employees be reinstated with compensation for damages, and lost vacation, holiday, and bonus pay plus wages lost.

The Board additionally directed that a new representation election be held owing to the circumstances surrounding the previous election. (Gardiner Water District, Maine Public Employees Labor Relations Board, April 1, 1974.)

NEW JERSEY

PERC Finds Over-All Unit of Administrators Appropriate for Collective Negotiations

Finding that administrators in a disputed unit shared a community of interest, backed up by voluntary negotiation experience as one unit, the New Jersey Employment Relations Commission (PERC) ruled that the Long Branch Administrative Association, which petitioned for a unit of administrators—elementary and secondary principals and elementary-school curriculum supervisors—comprised an appropriate unit for collective negotiations.

When the school board refused to recognize the Association as the exclusive bargaining representative for the employees, an employee representative petitioned PERC requesting a unit comprised of principals and vice-principals of elementary and junior and senior high schools, and elementary-school supervisors. However, the school board decided to agree to any determination made by PERC.

Another organization, representing high-school administrators challenged the appropriateness of the unit, contending that the high-school administrators and others named in the disputed unit shared no community of interest with elementary-school administrative personnel and that established practices and special circumstances supported their request for exclusion from the unit.

From a plenary review of the record and evidence, a hearing officer found that the disputed unit was appropriate for collective negotiations and held that the record showed that the administrators in the disputed unit shared a sufficient community of interest to form an appropriate collective negotiations unit.

Replying to the contention that established practices and special circumstances supported the high-school administrators' request for exclusion from the disputed unit, the hearing officer stated that it was not necessary to pursue the issue since determination must deal with community of interest rather than with established practices, prior agreement, or special circumstances. The hearing officer noted, however, that the record indicated a history of a continuous representation prior to the laws of 1968 which reinforced the concept of an all-inclusive administrators unit as appropriate for negotiations. He found that the administrators in the past voluntarily acted concertedly to acquire or improve salaries, fringe benefits, and noneconomic benefits. Accordingly, he determined, and the full Commission agreed, that the administrators in the disputed unit comprised an appropriate unit for collective negotiations and recommended a secret ballot election among the employees within that appropriate unit. (In the Matter of Long Branch Board of Education, Public Employer, and Long Branch Administrative Association, Petitioner, and Long Branch High School Administrators' Association, Intervenor, Public Employment Relations Commission, February 28, 1974.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Higher Education Unit Petition Denied

Dismissing a request to represent full-time library aides, teachers, and counselors, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) held that the petition of the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown Teachers Association would "over fragmentize" the employer.

PLRB, as in previous cases which involved the state as employer, held to its position requiring bargaining on an employer-wide basis, and indicated that particular emphasis should be placed on that position when dealing with a teacher unit whose members have identical standards of educational background and use the same disciplines.

Noting that its ruling could have been different if dealing with employees possessing skills used only locally, recruited from local areas, and working under their salaries, hours, and conditions reflecting local conditions for comparable jobs, PLRB found that the University could not fit this category since its teachers are selected nationwide with employer-wide employment standards. Accordingly, PLRB dismissed the Association's unit petition. (University of Pittsburgh of Commonwealth System of Higher Education (Johnstown Campus), Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, July 11, 1973.)

Board Discussion of Contract Negotiations with Rank-and-File Members Is Unfair Labor Practice

In support of the charge of the Upper Merion Area Education Association, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that talks initiated by a school-board member with picketing rank-and-file members of the Association regarding their reasons for rejecting the district's proposed contract, was illegal and constituted an unfair labor practice to which the employer school district is liable owing to the actions of one of its agents.

PLRB pointed out that in other cases, employer activity which endeavors to disunify members or undermine the selected representative's authority, has been ruled as an unfair labor practice. Accordingly, PLRB found the board member's action illegal as the activity attempted to bypass the exclusive bargaining representative. (Upper Merion School District and Joseph Fertal, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 29, 1973.)

Board's Refusal To Bargain with Head Coaches Violates State's Bargaining Law

Karns City School District violated Section 1201 of the state's bargaining law when it refused to bargain with the association regarding salaries for head coaches, ruled the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB). The ruling struck down the school district's allegation that bargaining on pay for head coaches was not required since they are supervisory employees.

PLRB stated that head coaches, who are in the association's unit of professional teaching employees, devote the major portion of their time to teaching and perform their coaching duties under a supplementary agreement. Since the head coaches have no authority in the hiring process nor are they required to use independent judgment concerning relaying assignments to assistants, PLRB held that their supervision over assistants was meaningless compared to their duties; that their supervision mainly affected student conduct and activities, not other employees. Consequently, PLRB ordered the district to negotiate salaries for head coaches. (Karns City Area School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, August 23, 1973.)

School District's Refusal To Include Substitute Within Coverage of Contract Unfair Labor Practice

Rejecting a school district's concept of "full-time teacher," the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) ruled that the district committed an unfair labor practice by not including a substitute teacher under the contract negotiated for a unit of nurses, librarians, counselors, and child accounting and full-time certificated instructional personnel.

The district relied on Section 1101 of the Public School Code which describes a substitute teacher as any individual employed during the absence of a regular professional employee, or for other legal cause approved and authorized by a Board of School Directors, to perform the duties of that employee or to perform the duties of a temporary professional employee.

Finding the board's explanation erroneous since it deprived certain employees of the right to representation, PLRB remarked that the record indicated that the district was baffled by the term "full-time certificated instructional personnel" as used in the unit description. PLRB noted that the district classified teachers as professionals, temporary professionals, and substitutes. But PLRB held that the district's classification did not affect the definition of full-time, regular part-time, and casual employees, as used to define employees with sufficient community of interest to be included in the same unit for collective negotiations. (Carlynton School District, Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, June 15, 1973.)

WISCONSIN

School District Ordered To Bargain Changes in Pay for Women Athletic Coaches

In an attempt to conform to the Fair Labor Standards Act, Joint School District No. 8 unilaterally raised pay for women athletic coaches under a collectively negotiated Extra Duty Compensation Schedule of the contract with the Madison Teachers, Inc. (MTI). Nevertheless, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) ordered the school district to bargain the matter with MTI, but did not grant MTI's request that the board cease paying the raises already implemented.

The schedule used by the board to compensate the women athletic coaches set forth three bases depending on seniority and stipulated that coaches of various activities be paid prescribed percentages of the given base. However, while the percentages for men coaches ranged from 4 to 12 percent, those for women coaches ranged from 4 to 5 percent.

MTI filed a grievance, alleging that the district had violated state and federal laws in paying coaches of girls' sports improperly low wages which were less than the percentage rates for male coaches. Subsequently the board unilaterally instituted the salary amounts it had proposed to MTI.

WERC concluded that even though the compensation negotiated between the parties for coaches of women's sports was not in compliance with the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the board was not relieved of its obligation to bargain collectively. And in unilaterally implementing the increases, the board refused and continued to refuse to negotiate a prohibited practice under the Act.

The board admitted that it had unilaterally implemented the wage increases, but it denied that doing so constituted a prohibited practice since it is charged with the duty of abiding by the FLSA. The Commission emphasized that "an employer is bound to deal exclusively with the majority representative of its employees."

MTI contended that even if the board had the right unilaterally to increase salaries under the FLSA, that right was limited to equalizing salaries. This the board did not do; instead it "modified" salaries paid to women coaches. Of the 17 "modified" wages, only 6 were equalized and the remaining 11, while increased, remained at levels from one to five points lower than the index for men coaches.

The board's contentions that even if it did bargain the matter, the MTI might charge it with discrimination was mere conjecture, in the Commission's view. Therefore, the Commission ordered bargaining, but allowed the increases already implemented to stand, saying that to rescind them would be inequitable. (Madison Teachers Inc. v. Joint School District No. 8, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, April 8, 1974.)

Failure To Submit Grievances Concerning Non-renewal to Arbitrator Ruled Unfair Labor Practice

Upholding an examiner's ruling, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) held that Monona Grove School District committed an unfair labor practice when it would not submit grievances regarding non-renewal of teacher contracts to arbitration as requested by the Monona Grove Education Association.

The examiner rejected the district's claims of timeliness and non-arbitrability. In agreeing with the Association, he found that the defects of the grievances created procedural defenses which by WERC'S policy should be left to arbitrators. Accordingly, he ordered a halt to the district's refusal to submit and participate in arbitration on the grievances and related matters. (Monona Grove Education Association and Monona Grove Joint School District No. 4, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, August 23, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

ALASKA

Contract Incorporates Mediation Board Report

After going to mediation owing to an impasse in negotiations, the Matanuska-Susitna Alaska Education Association and the school board added the mediation board's report to their contract.

Effective July 1, 1974, the contract provides 11 percent increases, with salaries ranging from $11,400 to $22,800. An $800 across-the-board increase is set for 1975-76. Also included in the agreement is a 188-day school year (one day increase) and maximum salaries of $25,200 for elementary-school principals and $25,850 for secondary-school principals.

FLORIDA

Comprehensive Public-Employee Labor Law Enacted

To be effective January 1, 1975, with the exception of provisions effective July 1, 1974, Florida's public-employee labor act amends Section 447.03 of the state's statutes to include the right to refrain from participation in labor organizations. The amended version states that public employees have the right to form, join, or assist labor organizations for the purpose of collective bargaining through designated representatives, as well as the right to refrain from such activity.

The Act provides a nondiscrimination clause which prohibits a public employer from denying employment to any person because of membership or nonmembership in a labor organization, and provides injunctive relief to an aggrieved person(s).

Implementing Article 1 of the state constitution and amending Section 477, Part II, of the statutes, the Act gives public employees the right of organization and representation and requires state and local governments, and other political subdivisions to bargain collectively with duly certified public employee representatives over terms and conditions of employment. Further, the Act creates a public-employee relations commission empowered to assist in resolving disputes between public employers and public-employee organizations, with legislative review of the commission's rulings.

The Act specifies public employer and public employee rights and provides that a duly certified public-employee organization may, upon request, have its dues and assessments deducted and collected by the employer from the salaries of employees who authorize such deductions.

The Act lays down the procedure for registration, recognition, and certification of public-employee organizations and provides for the payment of fees and expenses of collective bargaining.

A grievance procedure is provided with final and binding disposition by an impartial neutral selected by both parties. Further, the Act provides for mediation in case of impasse during negotiations. Both parties choose the mediator, but if no agreement can be reached, the commission is empowered to appoint a special master agreeable to both parties; if not agreeable, the commission appoints the specail master at its discretion.

Unfair labor practices are listed for both the public employer and public-employee organizations which include, but are not limited to, a public employer's refusal to bargain collectively, refusal to bargain in good faith, and refusal to sign a final agreement. Included in the list of unfair labor practices for public-employee organizations is violation of the no-strike clause. [See Text section for complete law.]

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Copies of the recently enacted Florida and Iowa collective bargaining statutes as well as full text of collective bargaining laws from states which cover public-school teachers are available free of charge to subscribers of NRD from NEA RESEARCH, 1201 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.]

KANSAS

School District Cannot Issue Teacher Contracts When Negotiations Break Down

The Geary County District Court issued a temporary restraining order forbidding the Geary County Unified School District from issuing teachers' contracts to members of the Junction City Education Association following a breakdown in negotiations.

The order mandated that the district cease issuing teachers' contracts, refusing to bargain in good faith, and breaking off negotiations. Additionally, the restraining order directed that the district recall all contracts issued and not accept other signed contracts from teachers.

MICHIGAN

Independent Panel Blasts Michigan Accountability System

Criticizing its educational soundness and usefulness to the state, an independent panel found significant flaws in Michigan's accountability system for education.

The panel's findings showed overwhelming cost for taxpayers and student and teacher time required when "every-pupil" testing for the entire state goes into effect. A more suitable plan for testing, according to the panel, would involve different groups of students taking different small segments of the test.

Another defect indicated by the panel was the withholding of a portion of state funds allotted for the educationally disadvantaged as a penalty to districts showing small gains in achievement scores. Further, the panel opposed publishing district scores, ranking districts from top to bottom, stating that Detroit has followed this system and still remains at the bottom of the list.

The panel also strongly opposed plans to publish a book of objectives for parents, contending that such a book could possibly mislead parents as to what students are taught and cause too great expectations of students' achievement. Finally, the most profound defect indicated by the panel was the evaluation of teachers according to student scores.

NORTH DAKOTA

State's Fair Dismissal Law Involved in NDEA Suits

Two suits involving teacher rights and the state fair dismissal law were heard by the North Dakota Supreme Court.

The first case concerned a teacher who was notified of his nonrenewal without first receiving a notice of intent not to rehire or being given a hearing as prescribed by the state nonrenewal statute.

In the second case a teacher did receive a notice of intent but the notice was not specific; it merely stated the board's intent and the time of the next board meeting which the teacher was to attend. Further, the Association noted that the board met in executive session when, the board president said, it was "sort of agreed" that the teacher would not be rehired.

The Association argued that both teachers were improperly notified of the nonrenewal of their contracts and based this argument on the fair dismissal law which incorporates specific procedures to be followed by a school board in nonrenewal and provides a hearing on the nonrenewal of a teacher's contract. Further, the Association alleged that the school board's procedure violated the fair dismissal law, specifically that portion requiring school boards to act in all fairness and decency in not renewing a teacher's contract.

* * *

FEDERAL

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX—MAY 1974

The Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in May to 145.6 (1967=100), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. . . .The rise was due to higher prices for a wide range of consumer goods and services, notably fresh vegetables, used cars, apparel, commodities, gasoline, and housekeeping services. The effect of these increases was partially offset by lower prices for some foods, particularly meats. The May CPI was 10.7 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the May CPI also rose 1.1 percent. The increase was larger than in April, and about the same as the average monthly increase in the first 3 months of this year. The food index, which declined in April, increased 0.9 percent after seasonal adjustment. The index for nonfood commodities rose 1.3 percent in May—the fifth consecutive month of substantial increase in this index. The services index rose 1.0 percent in May, compared with an average monthly increase of 0.7 percent in the first 4 months of this year.

Monthly changes in detail (not seasonally adjusted)

The index for food purchased in grocery stores increased 0.6 percent, instead of decreasing slightly as it usually does in May. Prices rose for most food items except meats, poultry, and eggs which continued to decline. Fresh vegetable prices rose substantially more than is usual for May—19.0 percent—following a decline in April. Fresh fruit prices also increased much more than they usually do in May. Prices continued to increase rapidly for cereal and bakery products, sugar and sweets, processed fruits and vegetables, nonalcoholic beverages, and partially prepared foods. The rise in prices of dairy products, however, was noticeably smaller than in recent months. The index for food away from home—restaurant meals and snacks—increased 1.0 percent, following a rise of 1.2 percent in April.

The nonfood commodities index increased 1.6 percent, considerably more than is usual for May. Prices rose for all major types of commodities. The used car index rose sharply for the second consecutive month. New car prices increased, instead of declining as is usual in May. Apparel prices rose more than seasonally. The gasoline and motor oil index continued to increase, but by much less than earlier this year. Prices for furniture, housekeeping supplies, appliances, toilet goods, reading materials, and tobacco products continued to rise.

The services index rose 1.0 percent in May. Indexes for all major categories of services in the CPI, except transportation services and rent, increased more than in any preceding month this year. Charges for household services less rent rose 1.2 percent due to increases in housekeeping services, gas and electricity, home maintenance services, and mortgage interest costs. The index for medical care services also rose 1.2 percent. There were large increases in physicians' fees, fees for other professional services such as eye examinations and laboratory tests, and in charges for hospital rooms. Among other services, charges rose at a faster rate than in recent months for most apparel services such as drycleaning, shoe repairs, automatic laundry, and laundering men's shirts; for barber and beauty shop services, and for movie admissions.

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, June 21, 1974.

BLS PLANS TWO CONSUMER PRICE INDEXES

The Bureau of Labor Statistics. . .announced a major change in its plan to revise the Consumer Price Index. The Bureau will issue two indexes beginning in April 1977:

"The present Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers will be updated and continued.

"A broader Consumer Price Index for Urban Households also will be published. Both indexes will be as good as or better than the present index and will incorporate improvements being developed by BLS as part of its CPI revision program.

The CPI for Wage Earners and Clerical Workers now covers about 45 percent of the total population and is widely used for the escalation of wages under collective bargaining agreements. The new CPI for Urban Households will cover about 80 percent of the population and will provide a comprehensive measure of consumer price trends for the entire economy.

. . .[the] Commissioner of Labor Statistics explained that the plan for producing two indexes was developed "because the BLS is now convinced that a single index cannot fully meet the diverse needs of users in business, labor, and government."

Spokesmen for organized labor have stressed that continuation of the CPI for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers is necessary for collective bargaining. Escalator agreements now cover more than 5 million union workers. Trade union officers explained that the availability of this index for collective bargaining promotes industrial peace and that failure to continue the index would cause confusion and disrupt collective bargaining.

[The] Commissioner. . .stated that he agreed with these views of organized labor but that "the need for the broader index is also compelling because it will provide a more comprehensive and representative measure of month-to-month price movements in the economy. Moreover, as I pointed out in my recent testimony before a Senate subcommittee, some 44 million persons, including social security beneficiaries and retired Federal workers, are covered by escalation agreements in addition to those covered under union agreements. Also, the Department of Agriculture escalates school lunch payments for some 24 million school children in accord with changes in the CPI and the official Government poverty threshold is also escalated by the CPI. The expanding use of escalation agreements points to the need for an index covering more than urban wage earners and clerical workers."

Production of two indexes rather than one will increase the cost of the Consumer Price Index program. . .and additional appropriations for this purpose will be sought from the Congress.

The BLS traditionally revises its Consumer Price Index about every 10 years in order to take account of changes in consumer buying habits. The revised indexes will include:

1. A new market basket based on a survey of consumer expenditures for commodities and services;

2. New weights reflecting the proportions of expenditures for food, fuel, medical services, and other products people buy; and

3. A new sample of stores where people buy, reflecting shifts in retail purchases, such as from central cities to suburbs and from retail stores to mail order houses.

Source: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, May 24, 1974.

Union Wage Rates for Local Truckdrivers Rise 7.9 Percent in Year Ended July 1, 1973

Average union wage rates for local truckdrivers and helpers in cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more increased 7.9 percent between July 1, 1972, and July 1, 1973, the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor announced . . . . The average increase for truckdrivers was 7.9 percent, compared with 8.4 percent for drivers' helpers.

The July 1972-73 increase, which raised the Bureau's wage rate index for all local truckdrivers and helpers to 163.4 (1967=100), was below the 9.9 percent gain reported a year earlier and was the smallest one-year rise since 1968-69.

Wage rates for nearly nine-tenths of the workers surveyed increased during the year ended July 1, 1973. Increases for about three-fifths of the drivers and helpers were for less than 10 percent. The heaviest concentration in both groups were for increases in the range of 2 to under 10 percent.

Union wage rates for local truckdrivers, 91 percent of the workers covered by the study, averaged $5.90 an hour on July 1, 1973. Truckdrivers' helpers averaged $5.30 an hour. When comparisons were limited to the same area and type of operation, however, wage rates for truckdrivers and helpers commonly varied by 30 cents an hour or less. Wage rates for 58 percent of the drivers' helpers, on the other hand, had wage rates over $6 an hour and less than 1 percent exceeded $7.

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, news release, June 26, 1974.

NEW JERSEY

School Nurses To Be Paid at Teachers' Rate

A ruling of the Cost of Living Council (CLC) granted full and proper pay to school nurses. A 1972 state law requires that school nurses be paid on the teachers' salary schedule. However, several school boards claimed that the change in salary rates would give the nurses a salary increase far above the CLC guidelines. Although most school boards complied with the law, a few districts acted only after court suits and decisions by the Commissioner of Education.

The CLC held that "an historical inequity has existed between school nurses and teachers' salaries at the same experience and training level. The equitable position of the employers involved and the need to prevent gross inequity are such that an exception to the general wage and salary standard is warranted."

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

OHIO

According to the state attorney general, the board of trustees of the state university cannot enter into a collective bargaining agreement with an organization of its unclassified employees which provides for binding arbitration of grievances. The state legislature has given the board the exclusive authority in matters concerning employment, removal, and compensation of employees. Absent legislative authorization, the board is not permitted to delegate these powers.

SPECIAL REPORTS

SENIORITY PROVISIONS IN NEGOTIATED CONTRACTS

Seniority is defined as length of continuous service in employment. Long a principle operating to protect employee rights in the private sector, seniority is less frequently incorporated in negotiated teacher contracts. Despite references to "length of service" or "years of teaching experience" in teacher contracts, few such provisions in fact parallel the private sector straight seniority provisions which afford preferential treatment to employees with greatest length of service, especially with regard to job retention and recall in case of layoff. A standard usage of the seniority principle has yet to evolve in teacher contracts, although use of the term or synonymous phrases is increasing among the various approaches to incorporating experience as a factor in the determination of assignments, transfers, promotions, and layoff and recall.

Without a base definition, seniority is left to evolve within the context of applicable provisions which are weakened by exceptions and qualifications. Further, absence of a definition of seniority and/or the utilization of similar but ambiguous terms gives teachers little protection and in the event of disagreement allows arbitrators or the courts or management to make their own interpretations. A seniority provision not only provides stability and equity among employees so that they know where they stand, but also serves as a check on management's power to indiscriminantly fire, promote, transfer, and recall.

A study of 1,529 negotiated comprehensive agreements in effect in 1970-71 in school systems with 1,000 or more pupils enrolled found that 124 agreements contained some reference to seniority or length of service. For purpose of this analysis, three conditions were established to test every reference as to adherence to the seniority principle as found in private sector models. To be counted, a contract had to incorporate at least one of the following:

- That the seniority provision exist as a separate article containing a definition of seniority
- That the provision describe the process for establishing the seniority roster
- That the seniority be the sole determinant in whatever area it is to be applied.

Forty-four agreements were found to contain provisions which met the conditions and could be considered seniority provisions (Table 1). The majority of 80 excluded contracts merely incorporated the state tenure law in some fashion and attempted to elaborate guidelines upon a foundation of tenure rights. The basic difference between tenure and seniority should be noted; tenure status is reached after a requisite time period, and provides due process in the event of dismissal. Seniority is cumulative from a specific date, although nontenure teachers may or may not have seniority rights. As seniority exists independently of other criterion, it should not necessarily be contingent upon or modified by tenure regulations.

However, the seniority rules have been affected by federal regulations and executive orders which mandate "affirmative action" plans for school districts holding federal government contracts in order to redress or prevent race and sex discrimination. However, the incorporation of an affirmative action plan within a negotiated agreement does not nullify the seniority system in those agreements which contain such a provision. An arbitrator ruled that though a school district and the association negotiated an affirmative action plan the seniority provision was operative, not the

TABLE 1.—GENERAL CONTENT OF SENIORITY PROVISIONS IN NEGOTIATED CONTRACTS, 1970-71

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Provision title
Provisions carrying seniority title	21	47.7
Seniority provision as major subsection of another title	23	52.3
Definitions
Seniority defined	9	20.5
Continuous service defined	23	52.3
Priority in operation
System-wide seniority supercedes others	41	93.2
Building or school-wide seniority supercedes others	3	6.8
Major components
Procedure for resolution of conflict	20	45.5
Effect of interruptions, leaves, termination	24	54.5
Seniority rights upon transfer from other districts	21	47.7
Procedure for development of, access to listing	24	54.5
Total selected provisions	44	100.0

TABLE 2.–PROVISIONS FOR RESOLVING CONFLICT IN SENIORITY

Provision	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Date of most recent appointment or hire	7	35.0
Date of application, eligibility	3	15.0
Lottery	2	10.0
Earliest date of part-time employment	1	5.0
Age	1	5.0
Combination of factors—classification, skill, knowledge, etc.	6	30.0
Total provisions containing procedure for resolving conflict	20	100.0

affirmative action program, in a reduction in force. (Ann Arbor Education Association and Ann Arbor Board of Education, A. A. A., August, 1973).

While every selected provision defined seniority, two key elements had to be present: which seniority system had priority and what constituted continuous service. Both were identified in the elaborate provisions, affording benchmarks for purposes of cross referencing with other articles. Even as a major provision, seniority had to be referred to under other provisions to be applicable.

Continuous service was defined in about half of the provisions, usually in terms of a period beginning with the date of hire and ending with some of permanent separation, such as resignation:

> Seniority shall accrue county-wide for each year of continuous service (continuous service being defined as the most recent date of employment to the present) in Hillsborough County.
>
> [Hillsborough County, Florida]

Left ambiguous in the majority of provisions was the seniority status of part-time, substitute, probationary, or nontenure teachers, although a ready explanation may be that some of these groups were not part of the bargaining unit. In one contract, time spent as a substitute or provisional teacher was not counted, while in another contract, the probationary period immediately prior to full-time employment could be added to seniority accumulation. Fifteen contracts specified that a teacher who was granted tenure would have seniority from the last date of hire and that new teachers, considered probationary employees, would not have seniority.

A statement identified as the seniority definition was included in 9 of the 44 provisions, all of which defined seniority as length of service in the school system or district. In addition, three defined building-wide and two defined department-wide seniority as subsystems superceded by system-wide seniority.

Definition

> a. District seniority is defined as the length of continuous service as a certificated teacher in the district.
>
> b. Department seniority is defined as the length of continuous service within a particular department.
>
> [Reavis High School District Oak Lawn, Illinois]

> For the purpose of this Agreement, seniority is defined as the status attained solely on the basis of length of service in a professional capacity in the Watkins Glen School System.
>
> [Watkins Glen, New York]

System-wide seniority as the prevailing mode was clearly evident as all but three of the provisions indicated that system-wide seniority supercedes all other types. Where school or building seniority still has priority, length of service in the district was to be used as a tie-breaker, as in the following:

> In cases where seniority is considered as one of the determining factors in this contract, length of service in that particular school shall count as seniority. In cases where length of service in that school is the same, then length of time in the system shall prevail.
>
> [Oregon City, Ohio]

About 45 percent (20) of the provisions contained procedures for resolving similarities or situations of equal seniority (Table 2). The most frequent method used was the date of most recent hire, appointment, or employment, followed by use of the date of application, earliest date of part-time employment, and age. In six provisions, a combination of factors, such as skill, knowledge, and academic achievement, was to be employed to resolve the issue.

With regard to continuity of service, about 54 percent (20) of the 44 provisions described one or more effects of leaves, sustained absences, terminations, and the like in determining retention or loss of seniority. Table 3 shows that for two-thirds of the 24 provisions, approved leaves did not affect continuous service. In a few cases, involuntary leaves or transfers, and transfers to administrative positions also had no effect on the continuity of employment for seniority purposes. Loss of seniority was usually due to resignation, retirement, employment out of the district, or some form of extended separation, with the specific cause being listed in less than 10 percent of the provisions.

> Teachers on leave voluntarily or involuntarily shall continue to accrue seniority. Teachers who leave the employ of the school district and later return begin seniority on the effective date of their re-employment.
>
> [Wisconsin Heights, Wisconsin]

> Teachers shall lose their seniority for the following reasons:
>
> (1) Resignation or other form of voluntary severance.
> (2) Discharge for cause.
> (3) Retirement.
> (4) Sustained absence from normal duties for a period of 90 days without filing application for a leave of absence, sick or maternity leave or other request for authorization of absence with the Committee.
>
> [Swampscott, Massachusetts]

The effect of prior service in other school districts upon transfer to another system was incorporated in almost half

TABLE 3.–EFFECT OF INTERRUPTIONS ON SENIORITY

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Absence not affecting continuous service
Approved leaves	16	66.7
Sabbatical	1	4.2
Sick leave up to one year	1	4.2
Military service	1	4.2
Involuntary leave or transfer	2	8.3
Transfer to administrative post	2	8.3
Interruptions affecting continuous service
Transfer out of district	1	4.2
Personal leave extended	1	4.2
Four or more years on leave	1	4.2
Five years on civic leave	1	4.2
Resignation, retirement, termination	3	12.5
Total provisions	24	100.0

(21) of the provisions, with the majority reflecting protection of teachers already in the district. Only one provision, utilizing a point system, credited service in other districts, while another counted service in districts previously annexed. Sixteen provisions stated specifically that prior service could be applied only to reduce the probationary period and was not considered for seniority accumulation.

> Under no circumstance shall any teacher transferring into District 143½ from any other district, county or state, be placed higher on the individual building or system-wide seniority list than a teacher already having seniority in School District 143½ or any building therein.
>
> [Posen Robbins, Illinois]

> Credit given for outside teaching experience in other school districts shall not be considered for the purpose of accumulating seniority, but shall serve to reduce the probationary period in accordance with the provisions of the Tenure Act.
>
> [Belding, Michigan]

A procedure for developing the seniority lists was provided for in 24 provisions. Over 87 percent of these 24 stated that the school district was responsible for developing and maintaining the listing. Joint responsibility was specified in two provisions, while in one provision the teachers' organization maintained all lists. A system-wide list was provided for in 23 of the contracts, while six called for a building or school list. In addition, eight provisions mandated a listing by classification, and one provided for a separate list in each department. The maintenance of accurate, up-to-date lists and openness is essential to the operation of seniority. Realization of this need was evident in that over half of the provisions concerned with seniority lists also stipulated a time limit or due date for development and subsequent publication. A procedure for notification was included in 70 percent of the provisions which designated the teacher organization as recipient of the lists. Six provisions guaranteed access to individual teachers where lists were not automatically forwarded to the teacher group, and lists were required to be posted in three provisions.

The extent of seniority in operation as well as applicability is compared in Table 5 by type of provision. In the 21 seniority titled provisions, all but two described system-wide seniority and almost half referred to building-wide seniority as well. A system based on seniority by department was included in two, while one included a grade level system. Seniority was applicable in decisions related to teaching assignment and transfers to other schools in almost one-quarter of these provisions. One detailed seniority as applicable in promotions. However, in most such cases, much was open to interpretation, and seniority was either one of many factors or the deciding factor when qualifications were otherwise equal.

> In order to recognize faithful career teachers, it is mutually agreed that, as a condition of providing better working conditions (i.e., assignments of subjects, classes, etc.) or advancement opportunities, seniority will prevail where all other qualifications are equal.
>
> [East Chicago, Indiana]

> Room assignments and building privileges will be assigned by the principals. Teachers with building seniority shall receive priority after classrooms for subject areas, grade levels or subdivisions thereof have been established by the administration. "Building privileges" shall be determined by mutual agreement of the principal and the Union Bargaining Representatives.
>
> [Kakakee, Illinois]

TABLE 4.–SENIORITY LISTS

Item	Number	Percent
1	2	3
Responsibility
List developed by district	21	87.5
List developed jointly	2	8.3
List developed by teacher organization	1	4.2
Type of listing
System-wide	23	95.8
Building-wide	6	25.0
By classification	8	33.3
By department	1	4.2
Date or time limit for publication	13	54.2
Access
List must be furnished to teacher organization	17	70.8
List available to individual	6	25.0
List is posted	3	12.5
Total provisions mentioning seniority lists	24	100.0

Where qualifications are substantially equal, building seniority shall be the determining factor in making assignments within a particular building.

[Niles Township, Illinois]

All but one of the 23 provisions listed under titles other than seniority operated system-wide. Only four provided a building-wide seniority system. As 15 of these provisions followed the Michigan state model, there was an obvious preponderance of seniority subsystems based on subject matter and grade level, as in the following example:

Seniority within the school system shall first be determined by certification as approved by the Department of Education of the State of Michigan, and shall secondly be determined by years of continuous employment in K-3 grade levels or 4-6 grade levels in grades K-6 and by subject matter taught in grades 7-12.

[Homer Community School District, Michigan]

The incidence of the Michigan provisions also skewed the frequency of provisions dealing with applicability of seniority. Decisions over teaching assignment were decided by the principle in three contracts, but only when qualifications and competencies were equal and after consideration of school needs. In four contracts, seniority was a factor in transfer requests, with one of these specifying seniority priority among qualified applicants. Also, two of four anticipated involuntary transfers, mandating that the least senior teacher be transferred first.

Thirteen of the provisions (one outside Michigan) contained elaborate procedures for layoff and recall, with most describing the development of lists, based on seniority, by the school board and reviewed by the teacher organization. Probationary teachers (non tenure) were to be the first laid off and recall was to be in inverse order of layoff. Protection from loss of employment and preference in re-employment through seniority are illustrated by the following examples:

District seniority shall be the determining factor whenever a reduction in staff occurs; the person with the least seniority to be the first eliminated. Rehiring will be based on the same seniority procedure, subject to provisions of applicable New York State Law.

[Batavia, New York]

In order to promote an orderly reduction in personnel when the educational program and curriculum is curtailed, the following procedure will be used:

(1) Probationary employees will be laid off first where any teacher who has acquired any seniority and whose position has been curtailed is certified and qualified to perform the services of the probationary teacher.

(2) In the event seniority teachers must be laid off, layoff will be on the basis of seniority within classification and knowledge, skill and efficiency on the job and physical fitness. It is expressly understood that the Association shall have a right to review the layoff list prior to notification of the individuals to be laid off. In the event of a dispute concerning the layoff lists, the Association shall have the right to file a written grievance thereon within not more than seventy-two (72) hours after the termination of the meeting requesting review of the list.

RECALL. Seniority teachers shall be recalled in inverse order of layoff for new positions opening for which they are certified and qualified.

[Maple Valley, Michigan]

TABLE 5.—TYPES OF SENIORITY SYSTEMS AND APPLICABILITY

Provision	Number	Percent
1	2	3
PROVISIONS CARRYING SENIORITY TITLE	21	100.0
System-wide seniority	19	90.5
Building-wide seniority	10	47.6
By department, subject taught	2	9.5
By grade level	1	4.8
Applicability
In teaching assignment	5	23.8
In transfers	5	23.8
In promotions	1	4.8
SENIORITY PROVISIONS AS MAJOR SUBSECTION OF ANOTHER TITLE	23	100.0
System-wide seniority	22	95.7
Building-wide seniority	4	17.4
By department, subject taught	15	65.2
By grade level	12	52.2
Applicability
In teaching assignment	3	13.0
In transfers	4	17.4
In layoff	13	56.5
In recall	13	56.5
Recourse to grievance procedure	11	47.8

The sample provisions which follow are not to be regarded as exemplary, but are included to illustrate the many variations in present practice.

Seniority

System-wide seniority for those teachers active in the system on September 1, 1968 shall be equal to the number of years of teaching in the Hartford Public Schools as indicated in the official personnel roster on said date and thereafter shall be accumulative in accordance with their continuous service. In the event of teachers having an equal number of years, seniority shall be determined among them by date of their most recent appointment to the system. For all teachers entering the system after September 1, 1968 their seniority shall be measured by their continuous service from the date of their most recent appointment to the system. Continuous service shall not be deemed to be interrupted by approved leaves of absence, but seniority shall be accumulated only during those leaves which are counted for purposes of the longevity program.

School seniority shall equal the length of service of a teacher in his school except that if a teacher is transferred to another school at the request of the Administration he shall take his accumulated school seniority with him to his new assignment.

When any special consideration such as no home room assignment, reduced load or any other special relief is available in a school, release from such duty shall be assigned annually on a rotation basis among the teachers with five or more years of seniority within the school. No teacher shall have more than one such special consideration in any year.

[Hartford, Connecticut]

Seniority

Seniority shall accrue county-wide for each year of continuous service (continuous service being defined as the most recent date of employment to the present) in Hillsborough County.

Seniority shall commence to accrue on the date recorded by the placement supervisor on the personnel authorization form.

When a specific issue must be resolved involving teachers with equal seniority, it will be resolved by an objective lottery in the presence of the affected parties.

[Hillsborough County, Florida]

* * *

Seniority

System-wide seniority shall be the length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the district.

Building seniority shall be the length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the building.

Where length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the district is equal, as in a situation involving two or more teachers, the determining date of employment shall be the determining factor.

Building seniority shall not be superceded by system-wide seniority.

[Cahokia, Illinois]

* * *

Seniority Rights

No tenure teacher in the district schools shall be transferred from one level-primary (K-3), intermediate (4-6), upper level (7-8) to another level on any interchange thereof except on a qualification basis or after consultations and agreement between the teacher and the administration.

Teachers may express in writing to their principal or superintendent their preference of grade level, subject, department assignment, extra-curricular assignment, and school committee.

Such request shall be kept on file for one school year in the office of the Superintendent.

Requests which are not acted upon shall be re-filed each August to remain active. A teacher whose request was not acted upon may ask for an explanation.

Seniority shall be determined as follows:

System-wide seniority-length of service as a classroom teacher in Community Unit School District No. 7 from date of appointment.

Cases involving conflict shall be determined as follows: In cases of equal qualification, competency which shall be decided by the administration shall be the deciding factor, seniority will be considered.

[Macousin, Illinois]

* * *

Seniority

System-wide seniority shall be the length of services as a teacher in the District. Under no circumstances shall any teacher transferring into School District No. 111 have seniority.

Where length of service as a teacher in the system is equal, date of appointment shall be the determining factor.

Conflicts of seniority among teachers with the same starting dates of service in the schools shall be resolved by earlier dates of part-time employment as a certified teacher or application for reemployment as a certified teacher, in that order.

On the first day of each semester, the administration shall post and deliver to the Union President and Building Representatives, a district-wide seniority list. This list shall list teachers' names in order of their continuous service in the School District.

In the event of double sessioning, teachers will be assigned on the basis of seniority within grade levels.

[South Stickney Elementary School District 111, Illinois]

* * *

Seniority

System-wide seniority shall be the length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the system.

Building seniority shall be the length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the present building. If building seniority is the same, system-wide seniority shall be the determining factor in the resolution of any specific building problem.

Where length of service as an actual classroom teacher in the system is equal, the date of hiring shall be the determing factor.

Room assignments and building privileges will be assigned by the principals. Teachers with building seniority shall receive priority after classrooms for subject areas, grade levels or subdivisions thereof have been established by the administration. "Building privileges" shall be determined by mutual agreement of the principal and the Union Building Representative.

Each building shall maintain a list showing the building seniority of each teacher.

The Superintendent shall make available to any teacher the system-wide seniority as it may affect the resolution of any specific problem.

Under no circumstances shall any teacher transferring in to District No. 111 be placed higher on the seniority lists than teachers already in District No. 111.

Whenever a teacher transfers to an administrative position he will continue to maintain building seniority in the building from which he was last actively teaching.

[Kakakee, Illinois]

* * *

Seniority

Each teacher in the bargaining unit shall have and accumulate seniority on the basis of the total length of continuous service as a teacher and/or administrator in the Swampscott School System. Teachers shall lose their seniority for the following reasons:

(1) Resignation or other form of voluntary severance.
(2) Discharge for cause.
(3) Retirement.
(4) Sustained absence from normal duties for a period of 90 days without filing application for a leave of absence, sick or maternity leave or other request for authorization of absence with the Committee.

If there have been two (2) separate and broken periods of employment in the Swampscott School System for any of the reasons listed above in this subparagraph, then only the latest and continuous period of employment will be considered in determining seniority.

Questions of seniority under this Agreement shall be finally determined between the Association and the Committee or its designees and shall not be the subject of a grievance with the provisions of this Agreement.

[Swampscott, Massachusetts]

* * *

Seniority

Seniority ratings at Southern Regional High School are based on a point system with the following provisions:

An academic year of professional educational service at Southern Regional High School has a value of five (5) points.

An academic year of professional educational service at any other accredited school or college, or a calendar year of military service (maximum allowance-four (4) years), has a value of three (3) points.

In cases of equal seniority, and only then, the effort of an individual to improve his academic qualifications during service will affect his seniority rating. In such situations one (1) point will be granted for each six (6) semester hours credit earned. Further, a bonus of five (5) points will be awarded for a masters degree and ten (10) points will be awarded for a doctorate.

Should equal seniority still exist under the above regulations chronological age becomes the determinant with the older (oldest) individual having precedence.

Professional educational service of less than a full academic year but of three months or more duration will be counted one-half year and points will be assigned accordingly.

It is the responsibility of each member of the professional staff to advise the P.R.&R. Committee of all pertinent facts affecting his seniority status at this time and as change occurs.

The SREA P.R.&R. Committee will keep the Administration and Board of Education advised of the seniority status of all professional staff members. The committee will also advise each individual staff member of his seniority status.

[Southern Regional HSD, Manahawkin, New Jersey]

* * *

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

Kansas City, Kansas

Between Board of Education of Turner Unified School District and Kansas National Education Association, Turner, effective July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. Approximately 245 certificated professional employees, including all teachers employed by the board. Automatic renewal unless notice for renegotiation is given by either party by March 15, 1974.

COMPENSATION: (1973-74) B.A., $7,150 to $9,044, 9 increments; B.A. plus 10 hours, $9,509 maximum; B.A. plus 20 hours, $9,741 maximum; M.A., $7,846 to $10,684, 13 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $11,219 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $11,748 maximum.

An additional $300 of longevity pay will be paid at the 20th and 25th years of service in the district to teachers holding an M.A. or above.

DIFFERENTIALS: (High school) head coach basketball, football, and athletic director, $1,025; head coach track, wrestling, $650; assistant basketball, football, $520; assistant track, wrestling, $400; (Junior high) basketball grades 8 and 9, head coach football, $520; head coach track, $400.

INSURANCE: The board will contribute $19,000 during the 1973-74 contract year toward health and accident insurance; any premium in excess of the board contribution must be paid by the individual teacher.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues.

LEAVES: Ten days' paid leave will be granted to each teacher per school year, 80 days' maximum accumulation; such leave may be used for personal illness or bereavement, up to three days; critical family illness and personal business, up to one day; additional leave will be granted when a teacher is required to be absent because of a sudden or unexpected situation that requires the teacher's personal attendance, for attendance at conventions, institutes, workshops, professional meetings, trips involving school business, and school visitation; up to two semesters of leave without pay may be granted for professional study.

INSTRUCTION: Elementary teachers will have a duty free lunch period of 30 consecutive minutes each day; a minimum of 20 minutes daily will be provided elementary-school teachers for planning time; in determining class size the board will consider such factors as room size, ability of the students, age of the students, grade level, and available facilities; the school day for teachers will begin 30 minutes before the start of the first class period and will end 30 minutes after the end of the last class period; however, on the last school day before a holiday or election day teachers will be allowed to leave school upon completion of regular assigned duties; student teachers will be assigned only with the consent of the cooperating teacher; no more than two student teachers will be assigned to a teacher per year; fees provided by cooperating institutions will be divided among the cooperating teachers in accord with a formula to be agreed upon by the association and the board; in the case of a single cooperating teacher the fee shall be paid in full to the one teacher.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with arbitration; right to review personnel file upon appointment and under the supervision of the Director of Personnel; no teacher will be given an unsatisfactory evaluation solely because of nonparticipation in PTA activities; the administration will keep no record of participation or nonparticipation in PTA activities; written evaluations will include but not necessarily be limited to pupil progress, rapport with students, relationships with school personnel and community, teacher's development and classroom manner; teachers will be given copies of any evaluation report and may respond to the evaluation in writing; the response will be placed in the teacher's record; the board of education will allow a hearing of any staff member who has been terminated; the staff member will have the right to be represented by an attorney or by the association and to present evidence in his or her behalf, to be confronted with the evidence against him, and to examine and cross examine any witnesses whose testimony may be relevant or form the basis for a decision;

> No staff member shall be terminated without just cause if the staff member has been engaged for more than three (3) years. Just cause shall be understood to include but shall not be limited to any one or more or combination of the following: pupil progress, rapport with students, relationships with school personnel and community, teacher's development, classroom manner, immoral character, conduct unbecoming an instructor, insubordination, failure to obey reasonable rules promulgated by the Board of Education, inefficiency, incompetency, physical unfitness or failure to comply with reasonable requirements of the Board of Education as may be prescribed to show normal improvement and evidence of professional training, or any violation of Article XXI. Instructors also may be dismissed because of decrease in number of pupils or for other causes over which the Board of Education has no control.

Teachers may express preferences for building assignment for grade levels, hourly schedules, and special assignment by notifying principal of such preferences by February 1 preceding issuance of contracts; if a teacher's request fo fill a position is denied, the teacher may request an explanation from the superintendent or principal.

* * *

Prineville, Oregon

Between Crook County School District, County Unit, and Crook County Education Association, effective July 1, 1974, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 124 certificated professional employees, including all certificated teachers and excluding the superintendent, assistant superintendent, principals, vice-principals, substitutes, and per-diem teachers who work outside the school facilities.

COMPENSATION: (1974-75) B.A., $8,000 to $11,175, 13 increments; B.A. plus 30 hours, $11,825 maximum; B.A. plus 45 hours, $12,050; M.A., $8,725 to $12,575, 14 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $12,775 maximum; M.A. plus 45 hours, $13,425 maximum.

DIFFERENTIALS: Senior high athletic director, head football, basketball, and wrestling coaches, $880 to $1,240; senior high head baseball and track coaches and assistant football, basketball, and wrestling coaches, sixth-grade athletics, $640 to $910; junior varsity football, baseball, and wrestling coaches, junior high athletic director, $460 to $640; senior high golf, tennis, newspaper, intramurals, speech, gymnastics, junior high football, basketball, track, and wrestling coaches, $350 to $485; senior drill team and rally squad advisor, junior high drama, rally squad advisor, and annual photographer, $210 to $300.

OTHER: Use of automobile from one school building to another, field trips, or other business of the district compensated at 15¢ per mile; teachers will be paid $6.00 per hour for teaching an additional class that is assigned beyond the normal class load; teachers who are assigned work above and beyond the official school calendar will be remunerated at $6.00 per hour.

LEAVES: Ten sick leave days granted per year, maximum accumulation 160 days; a teacher who was employed in another school district may receive credit for accumulated sick leave up to 30 days; 5 noncumulative days' leave with pay will be granted at the teacher's request and the superintendent's approval for emergencies of a serious personal nature; three days' personal leave will be granted per year with substitute's salary deducted from the teacher's salary; up to three consecutive days' leave with pay may be granted for death in the immediate family; teachers subpoenaed for jury duty or for appearance as a witness before a court, legislative committee, or judicial or quasi-judicial body will be paid full salary for the period of required service; all compensation received by the teacher for such duty must be signed over to the district unless earned on the teacher's day off; sabbatical leave at one-half pay for independent study, enrollment in college, or other purposes which in the district's judgment would be of significant value to the district may be granted after at least seven years of service in the district.

INSURANCE: Board pays cost for medical coverage for both the teacher and his family.

ASSOCIATION: Ten days without pay will be granted to members of the Association delegated by the Executive Committee to attend to Association business if a substitute is available; no representative of the Association who participates during working hours in negotiations or grievance proceedings will suffer loss of pay; Association has the right to use school buildings at reasonable times and school equipment, including typewriters, mimeographing machines, other duplicating equipment, calculating machines, and all types of audiovisual equipment; Association bulletin boards will be provided in each faculty lounge; the Association may use interschool mail and mail boxes for appropriately labeled materials; an Association member may speak for at least 10 minutes at faculty meetings; the board will provide information necessary to the functioning of the Association as the exclusive bargaining representative and a current list, including names and addresses, of all certificated employees;

ASSOCIATION SECURITY

A. All teachers covered by this Agreement who are members or who become members of this Association following the date of signing of this Agreement or who following thirty (30) days of employment voluntarily become members shall, as a condition of employment remain members of the Association, during the term of this Agreement.

B. In consideration of the services rendered by the Association in behalf of all such employees they shall be required to pay to the Association either:

1. Regular monthly Association dues in the case of employees who are or become members of the Association, or
2. An amount of money equivalent to regular monthly Association dues in the case of employees who are not members of the Association as a service charge to the Association for negotiating and administering the contract. The Association shall comply with ORS 243.735, Section 6, Paragraph 1.

C. Teachers who are now members of the Association and teachers hereafter hired who become members of the Association, shall have the right to terminate such membership by sending a withdrawal statement in writing to the Association, with a copy to the District, within the thirty (30) day period preceding the next ending of this Agreement.

D. All regular monthly Association membership dues or equivalent charges may be deducted as provided in ORS 292.055, Section 31.

INSTRUCTION: The school calendar will consist of 177 student-teacher contact days, five inservice days, three paid holidays and 185 teacher contract days; the administration will be receptive to suggestions from teachers regarding the scheduling of parent-teacher conferences.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with final and binding arbitration; right to review personnel file upon request.

TUITION REIMBURSEMENT

Teachers shall be reimbursed per credit hour at the rate established by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education. Tuition reimbursement for teachers attending colleges or universities outside the State of Oregon shall not exceed those rates established by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education.

To be eligible for tuition reimbursement the following conditions will be adhered to:

1. The District will reimburse the teacher for approved credit hours taken up to eighteen (18) in each three (3) year period.
2. All courses must be approved in advance by the building principal and the District Superintendent.
3. Each teacher shall complete nine (9) credit hours (6 hours for MS, MS + 45, and BS + 90) during a four (4) year period commencing with the initial date of employment or with the date of completion of the nine (9) six (6) credit hour requirement, whichever is later. Teachers failing to meet this requirement shall fail to advance on the salary schedule.

Workshops, seminars, conferences, in-service training sessions or such other sessions a teacher may be required or requested to take must receive approval from the District Superintendent. Cost reimbursement will be determined at the time of approval is made by the District Superintendent.

All teachers will be evaluated in writing not less than twice per school year; evaluated teacher will have an opportunity to discuss the results of his evaluation with his evaluator within 10 school days after his evaluation; a teacher may make written response to the evaluation and have it placed in his personnel file; consideration will be given to training, experience, specific achievements, wishes, and convenience of the teacher as well as instructional requirements when teachers are transferred within the district; no teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, or reduced in rank or compensation without just cause; any information basic to disciplinary action against a teacher will be made available to him/her and upon his/her approval, to the Association.

* * *

Montpelier, Vermont

Between Montpelier School District and Montpelier Education Association, effective July 1, 1974, to 1976 school year. Approximately 110 certificated professional employees, including all certificated personnel exclusive of principals and assistant principals. Provision for re-negotiation between April 1 and April 25, 1975.

COMPENSATION: (1974-75) B.A., $7,000 to 11,150, 11 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $12,000 maximum; M.A., $8,000 to $12,850, 13 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $13,700 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $14,550 maximum. (1975-76) B.A., $7,300 to $11,700, 11 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $12,600 maximum; M.A., $8,300 to $13,500, 13 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $14,400 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $15,300 maximum. Experience and education credit as well as related military and work experience credit will be granted teachers entering the system for the first time; however, the total of such experience may not be credited for salary purposes above the eighth step on the schedule; re-entering teachers with more than 8 years' experience upon leaving will be placed on the same step as when they left regardless of additional outside experience; one additional semi-monthly check if employed within the school system for eight years or less and one additional monthly check if employed within the school system for nine years or more will be paid to the estate of a teacher in case of death.

DIFFERENTIALS: For 0-5 years' experience: Varsity football and basketball coaches, $910 to $1,190; faculty stage manager and dramatics director, $910 to $1,190; varsity baseball, track and skiing coaches, $770 to $1,050; assistant varsity football, junior varsity basketball, and varsity hockey coaches, $630 to $910; junior varsity football and assistant varsity baseball coaches, $490 to $770; varsity golf and cross country coaches, $350 to $630; student council advisor, debating varsity coach, and yearbook director, $350 to $630.

INSURANCE: Participants in the health insurance plan will have deducted from their first payroll check the following: $6.00 for single coverage, $12.00 for one dependent coverage, or $24.00 for family coverage with the board paying the remainder of the premium; insurance terminates on the last day of the month in which the participant ceases employment; the board will retain any rebate accruing from the master policy and apply such rebate to its general revenue account; the board will assess a maximum premium cost in the amount of $50,000; when it appears that this figure will be reached, the conditions of the agreement will be subject to renegotiation.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local and national association dues during July and August

LEAVES: Sick leave will be granted upon submission of a written report by the employee's personal physician on the following basis:

Years of employment	Number of school days with pay per year
1st year	20
2nd year	40
3 to 5 years	60
6 to 10 years	80
11 to 15 years	100
16 to 20 years	120
21 to 25 years	150
25 years or more	180

Six days per school year will be granted for any combination of emergency leave, bereavement leave, leave for civic duty, professional and association business; extended leave at 25 percent of basic contract salary for one-half or one full year may be granted to an employee who has taught in the district for at least eight years; extended leave at 50 percent of basic contract salary for one-half or one full year may be granted to an employee who has taught in the district for at least nine years; individual professional days may be granted for visiting schools, attending professional meetings and conferences, participation in group meetings, and conducting parent conferences; long leaves of absence will be granted for personal health, family illness, maternity, military service, full-time campaign and/or election to public office, further education, travel, appointment to public office, educational research, or teacher association work, with return to former position guaranteed.

INSTRUCTION: Duty-free lunch period equal in time to that of the pupils; the school calendar will consist of 190 days;

A teacher who considers that the amount of time and effort needed to properly supervise an approved activity has increased to compare in hours and responsibility to activities already on the cocurricular schedule may approach the principal and the Superintendent for joint review of the situation. With the recommendation of the Superintendent and the concurrence of the Board, the position may be remunerated at 2% of the base salary until annual negotiations can take place.

Ten short-session days for grade level, departmental curriculum, interschool work, and professional meetings and activities will be instituted for the school year; paraprofessional assistance will be provided for playground, cafeteria, and inclement weather duty.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with advisory arbitration; to promote professional growth, the school board will make available fellowships for summer school attendance, attendance at conferences, meetings, programs of a related professional nature, summer project, or extended leave.

Teacher Role

DESCRIPTION

Each member of the faculty will be responsible for both the welfare and educational growth of the pupils of the Montpelier Public School System. Specifically, members of the faculty will;

Assist in the development of the teaching-learning processes;
Be considered as experts in the facets of education to which they are assigned;
Provide leadership and expertise in meeting the individual needs of every pupil.
Be prepared on a daily basis to meet their assigned duties.

DUTIES

Each member of the faculty will:

Carry out the teaching-learning process;
Be available before, during and after formal school day for the purposes of assisting pupils and carrying out the assigned duties with the exception of playground duty, cafeteria duty, inclement weather duty.

NOTE: The non-assignable duties noted in 2a, b,c, will be carried on by paid paraprofessionals. Staff teachers may volunteer for those adults at their own discretion.

Cover, in an emergency situation, a class for an absent teacher only when the services of a substitute teacher cannot be engaged;
Assist in the establishment of orderly procedures for pupils who are transported via bus to and/or from home to school;
Be available to provide bus duty coverage when other personnel are not available as directed by the principal.

* * *

FAMILY BUDGET COST UP 10 PERCENT

Approximately 10 percent more dollars this year are essential for an average urban family of four to maintain the same standard of living as last year, reported the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

Updating its three hypothetical annual family budgets (low, intermediate, and high), BLS found that from fall 1972 to fall 1973 the family budget for a middle income family increased 10.3 percent to $12,626. The lower level budget rose 10.8 percent, or $795, to $8,181, a 9.9 percent increase for the same period.

Increasing food prices and tax hikes were the major contributors to rising cost in the three budgets, with food prices weighting heavily on the budget for the lower level since, according to BLS, "food as a proportion of the total cost of consumption declines as the level of living represented by the budget rises." Food cost took 37 percent of the consumption total at the lower level, 33 percent at the intermediate, and 34 percent at the higher level. The increase in food cost was more than triple the rise in any other consumption component at all three levels.

The BLS family budgets were developed for a hypothetical urban family of four comprised of an experienced full-time employed husband at age 38, a non-working wife, a boy age 13, and an 8-year-old girl. With 15 years of marriage, the family is well established and has, "for each budget level, average inventories of clothing, housefurnishings, major durables, and other equipment."

As with food cost in the lower level budget, total housing cost (housefurnishings, household operations, and shelter) accounted for a large portion of the intermediate and higher budget levels. Overall, housing cost accounted for 25 percent of all consumption for the lower level, 30 percent for the intermediate, and 33 percent at the higher level. BLS figures reflected rented units in the lower level and homeownership in the intermediate and higher levels.

Families with a lower level budget were affected more by medical care cost, accounting for 10 percent of consumption cost, while at the intermediate level medical care took 7 percent, and amounted to 5 percent of consumption cost for the higher budget level. Medical care cost for all three levels included family membership in a group hospital and surgical insurance plan, and a specified number of visits to physicians, provisions for dental and eye care, and prescriptions. At the higher level, major medical insurance is also included.

Excluding gifts and contributions, occupational expenses, life insurance, social security, and personal income tax, all elements of consumption accounted for 80 percent of the total lower level budget, 77 percent of the intermediate budget, and 74 percent of the total higher level budget.

Increases in the tax rate and the maximum income on which contributions are made into the social security system accounted for marked increases. The total cost, which includes social security payments and federal, state, and local income taxes went up 10.8 percent in the lower level, 10.3 percent in the intermediate level, and 9.9 percent in the higher level. Social security taxes rose 23.9 percent at the lower level, 34.6 percent and 34.2 percent for the intermediate and higher levels, respectively. Personal income taxes increased by 21.6 percent, 16.9 percent, and 16.4 percent at the lower, intermediate, and higher levels, respectively.

Area indexes showing differences in budget totals for equivalent levels of living, reflect regional variations in consumption patterns, climate, kinds of transportation facilities, taxes, and price differences. Lower budget costs were 9 percent higher, intermediate 14 percent higher, and the

TABLE 1.—SUMMARY OF ANNUAL BUDGETS FOR A 4-PERSON FAMILY AT 3 LEVELS OF LIVING, URBAN UNITED STATES, AUTUMN 1973

Item	Lower budget	Intermediate budget	Higher budget
1	2	3	4
Total budget	$8,181	$12,626	$18,201
Total family consumption	6,580	9,761	13,450
Food	2,440	3,183	4,020
Housing	1,627	2,908	4,386
Transportation	563	1,014	1,315
Clothing	696	995	1,456
Personal care	205	275	390
Medical care	660	664	692
Other family consumption	389	722	1,191
Other items	385	611	1,024
Taxes	1,216	2,254	3,727
Social security and disability	492	647	647
Personal income taxes	724	1,607	3,080

Source: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Autumn 1973 Urban Family Budgets and Comparative Indexes for Selected Urban Areas. Press Release No. USDL: 74-304, June 16, 1974.

higher budget level 19 percent higher in metropolitan than in non-metropolitan areas. Total budget levels were lowest in small cities in the South.

The budgets do not represent actual expenditures nor are they intended to represent a minimum of subsistence level of living; they reflect three different levels of living based on estimates of costs for different specified types and amounts of goods and services.

TABLE 2.—FAMILY BUDGET TOTALS FOR 40 URBAN AREAS

City	Lower budget	Intermediate budget	Higher budget
1	2	3	4
National average	$ 8,181	$12,626	$18,201
Anchorage	12,010	16,520	23,011
Honolulu	9,924	14,937	21,901
Boston	8,988	14,893	21,986
San Francisco-Oakland	8,939	13,378	19,316
Hartford	8,909	13,721	19,127
New York	8,661	14,448	21,999
Chicago	8,635	13,213	18,919
Champaign-Urbana, Ill.	8,582	12,943	18,723
Washington, D.C.	8,547	13,043	18,869
Los Angeles-Long Beach	8,525	12,520	18,087
Baltimore	8,425	12,519	18,192
Philadelphia	8,415	13,022	18,851
Seattle	8,407	12,667	17,924
Portland, Me.	8,283	12,694	17,578
Minneapolis-St. Paul	8,269	13,020	18,970
Detroit	8,246	12,810	18,591
San Diego	8,229	12,216	17,763
Milwaukee	8,220	13,211	19,186
Buffalo	8,201	13,223	18,920
Indianapolis	8,171	12,738	18,074
Cleveland	8,105	12,806	18,172
Lancaster, Pa.	8,101	12,385	17,470
Kansas City	8,098	12,481	18,126
St. Louis	8,056	12,390	17,691
Pittsburgh	8,002	12,299	17,703
Denver	7,976	12,107	17,422
Cedar Rapids	7,933	12,603	18,183
Durham, N.C.	7,923	12,111	17,206
Green Bay, Wis.	7,922	12,557	18,701
Bakersfield, Calif.	7,827	11,761	16,531
Orlando, Fla.	7,827	11,358	16,210
Wichita, Kans.	7,796	11,876	16,919
Dayton, Ohio	7,785	11,715	16,912
Cincinnati	7,733	12,137	16,896
Atlanta	7,716	11,684	16,683
Nashville	7,583	11,667	16,633
Houston	7,532	11,343	16,188
Dallas	7,494	11,408	16,473
Baton Rouge, La.	7,333	11,368	16,582
Austin	7,233	10,959	15,743

Source: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Autumn 1973 Urban Family Budgets and Comparative Indexes for Selected Urban Areas. Press Release No. USDL: 74, 304, June 16, 1974.

Texts

FLORIDA

PUBLIC EMPLOYEE COLLECTIVE BARGAINING LAW

An act relating to labor, implementing Section 6 of Article I of the Constitution of the State of Florida; amending section 447.03, Florida Statutes, 1971, to include the right to refrain from participation in labor organizations; creating section 447.17, Florida Statutes, to provide civil and injunctive relief for denial or abridgement of rights; amending chapter 447, Florida Statutes, by adding Part II; providing right to organize and bargain collectively as to terms and conditions of employment; providing method of bargaining procedure; creating and providing administration by the Florida public employees relations commission within the department of commerce; providing for legislative review of commission rules; defining rights of public employees and employers; providing payroll dues deduction; providing rules and procedures for registration, recognition, and certification of employee organizations and bargaining agents; providing payment of fees and expenses in collective bargaining process; providing grievance procedures; providing procedures for resolution of impasse; providing factors to be considered by the special master; providing for compensation and records; establishing unfair labor practices by employers and employee organizations; providing procedures to resolve unlawful actions and practices, penalties and remedies; providing injunctive relief; providing effect on merit and civil service systems and state and local control of same; providing for a local option; providing certain exceptions to §286.011 and chapter 119, Florida Statutes, and providing limits to such exceptions; providing for severability; repealing §230.22 (1) (a), Florida Statutes, as created by chapter 73-338, Laws of Florida, relating to general powers of school boards; repealing §§447.20-477.35, Florida Statutes, as created by chapter 72-275, Laws of Florida, the Fire Fighters Bargaining Act; repealing §839.221, Florida Statutes, which prohibits participation in strikes or membership in organizations that assert right to strike against government employer by governmental officers and employees; providing an effective date.

Be It Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Florida:

Section 1. Section 447.03, Florida Statutes, is amended to read:

447.03 Employees' right of self-organization.—Employees shall have the right to self-organization, to form, join, or assist labor unions or labor organizations or to refrain from such activity to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities, for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection.

Section 2. Section 447.17, Florida Statutes, is created to read:

447.17 Civil remedy; injunctive relief.—

(1) Any person who may be denied employment or discriminated against in his employment on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor union or labor organization shall be entitled to recover from such employer, other person, firm, corporation, labor union, labor organization or association, acting separately or in concert, in the courts of this state, such damages as he may have sustained and the costs of suit, including reasonable attorney's fees. If such employer, other person, firm, corporation, labor union, labor organization, or association acted willfully and with malice, or reckless indifference to the rights of others, punitive damages may be assessed against such employer, other person, firm, corporation, labor union, labor organization or association.

(2) Any person sustaining injury as a result of any violation or threatened violation of the provisions of this section shall be entitled to injunctive relief against any and all violators or persons threatening violation.

Section 3. Part II of chapter 447, Florida Statutes is created to read:

447.001 Statement of policy.—It is declared that the public policy of the state and the purpose of this part is to provide statutory implementation of Section 6, Article I of the Constitution of the State of Florida, and to promote harmonious and cooperative relationships between government and its employees, both collectively and individually, and to protect the public by assuring, at all times, the orderly the uninterrupted operations and functions of government. It is the intent of the legislature that nothing herein shall be construed to either encourage or discourage organization of public employees. These policies are best effectuated by:

(1) Granting to public employees the right of organization and representation;

(2) Requiring the state, local governments, and other political subdivisions to negotiate with bargaining agents duly certified to represent public employees;

(3) Creating a public employees relations commission to assist in resolving disputes between public employees and public employers; and

(4) Recognizing the constitutional prohibition against strikes by public employees and providing remedies for violations of such prohibition.

447.002 Definitions.—As used in this part:

(1) "Commission" means the public employees relations commission created by section 447.003, Florida Statutes.

(2) "Public employer" or "employer" means the state, any county, municipality, special district, and any subdivision or agency thereof which the commission determines has sufficient legal distinctiveness to properly carry out the functions of a public employer; provided, however, that the board of regents shall be deemed to be the public employer with respect to faculty and administrative and professional employees and for all other public employees within the state university system not otherwise determined by the commission as properly belonging to a statewide bargaining unit composed of state career service system employees; provided further, that the board of trustees of a community college shall be deemed to be the public employer with respect to all employees of the community college.

(3) "Public employee" means any person employed by a public employer except (a) those persons appointed by the governor or elected by the people, agency heads, members of boards and commissions, (b) persons holding positions by appointment or employment in the organized militia of the State, (c) individuals acting as negotiating representatives for employer authorities, (d) persons who are designated as managerial or confidential employees pursuant to criteria contained herein upon application of the public employer to the public employees relations commission.

(4) "Managerial employees" are those employees generally having authority in the interest of the public employer who (a) formulate policy which is applicable throughout the bargaining unit, or (b) may reasonably be required on behalf of the employer to assist directly in the preparation for and conduct of collective bargaining negotiations or to have a major role in the administration of agreements resulting therefrom, or (c) have a significant role in personnel administration or in employee relations, and in the preparation and administration of budgets for any public agency or institution or subdivision thereof, provided, that said roles are not of a routine, clerical or ministerial nature and require the exercise of independent judgment. In determining whether an individual is a managerial employee, the commission shall consider the historic relationship of the employee to the public employer and to co-employees.

(5) "Confidential employees" are persons who act in a confidential capacity to, assist, or aid managerial employees as defined in §447.002(4).

(6) "Strike" means the concerted failure to report for duty, the concerted absence of employees from their positions, the concerted stoppage of work, the concerted submission of resignations, the concerted abstinence in whole or in part by any group of employees from the full and faithful performance of the duties of employment with a public employer, for the purpose of inducing, influencing, condoning or coercing a change in the terms and conditions of employment or the rights, privileges, or obligations of public employment, or participating in a deliberate and concerted course of conduct which adversely affects the services of the public employer, the concerted failure to report for work after the expiration of a collective bargaining agreement and picketing in furtherance of a work stoppage.

(7) "Bargaining unit" means either that unit determined by the commission, or that unit determined through local regulations promulgated pursuant to section 447.022, Florida Statutes, or that unit determined by the public employer and the public employee organization and approved by the commission to be appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining; provided, however, that no bargaining unit shall be defined as appropriate which includes employees of two employers that are not departments or divisions of the State, a county, or municipality, or other political entity.

(8) "Chief executive officer" for the state shall mean the governor of the state, and for other public employers shall mean the person whether elected or appointed who is responsible to the legislative body of the public employer for the administration of the governmental affairs of the public employer.

(9) "Legislative body" means the state legislature, the board of county commissioners, the district school board, the governing body of a municipality, or the governing body of an instrumentality or unit of government having authority to appropriate funds and establish policy governing the terms and conditions of employment and which, as the case may be, is the appropriate legislative body for the bargaining unit.

(10) "Employee organization" or "organization" means any labor organization, union, association, fraternal order, occupational or professional society, or group, however organized or constituted, which represents or seeks to represent any public employee or group of public employees concerning any matters relating to their employment relationship with a public employer.

(11) "Bargaining agent" means the employee organization which has been certified by the commission as representing the employees in the bargaining unit as provided in §447.009, or its representative.

(12) "Budget submission date" means the date by which, under law or practice, a public employer's budget, or a budget containing proposed expenditures applicable to such public employer, is submitted to or is considered by the legislative body or other similar body of government for final action, or in the absence of any annual budget, the date upon which an annual appropriation ordinance, resolution, or law, for the ensuing fiscal year is required to be introduced before such legislative body, for final action.

(13) "Professional employee" means:

(a) Any employee engaged in work in any two or more of the following categories:

1. Predominantly intellectual and varied in character as opposed to routine, mental, manual, mechanical or physical work;

2. Involving the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance;

3. Of such a character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; and

4. Requiring advanced knowledge in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study in an institution of higher learning or a hospital, as distinguished from a general academic education, an apprenticeship or training in the performance of routine mental or physical processes; or

(b) Any employee who:

1. Has completed the course of specialized intellectual instruction and study described in subparagraph 4. of paragraph (a), and

2. Is performing related work under supervision of a professional person to qualify himself to become a professional employee as defined in paragraph (a).

(14) "Collective bargaining" means the performance of the mutual obligations of the public employer and the bargaining agent of the employee organization to meet at reasonable times, to negotiate in good faith, and to execute a written contract with respect to agreements reached concerning the terms and conditions of employment, except that neither party shall be compelled to agree to a proposal or be required to make a concession unless otherwise provided in this part.

(15) "Membership dues deduction" means the practice of a public employer of deducting dues and uniform assessments from the salary or wages of a public employee upon the presentation to the public employer of cards authorizing the deduction of dues, signed by such individual public employee. Such term also means the practice of a public employer of transmitting the sums so deducted to such employee organization.

(16) "Civil Service" means any career, civil or merit system used by any public employer.

447.003 Public employees relations commission.—

(1) There is hereby created and established within the department of commerce the public employees relations commission, hereinafter referred to as the "commission." The commission shall be composed of five (5) members to be appointed by the governor, subject to confirmation by the senate, from persons representative of the public, known for their objective and independent judgment, and who shall not be employed by or hold any commission with any governmental unit in the state or any employee organization as defined in this part. The governor shall designate one (1) member as chairman. Members shall serve for a term of four (4) years, except that beginning July 1, 1974, two (2) members shall be appointed for a term of one (1) year, one (1) member for two (2) years, and (1) member for three (3) years, and one (1) member for four (4) years. A vacancy for the unexpired term of a member shall be filled in the same manner as herein provided for an original appointment. The presence of three (3) members shall constitute a quorum of any called meeting of the commission. The commission in the performance of its duties and powers under this act shall not be subject to the control, supervision, or direction by the Department of Commerce.

(2) The chairman shall devote his entire time to his commission duties. He shall receive a salary as established pursuant to the provisions of section 216.251, Florida Statutes, and shall not engage in any other business, vocation, or employment. The remaining members shall be paid an honorarium of one hunderd dollars ($100) for each day they are engaged in the work of the commission. The chairman and other members shall also be reimbursed for expenses as provided in section 112.061, Florida Statutes. The chairman shall be responsible for the administrative functions of the commission and shall have the authority to employ such personnel as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this part.

447.004 Commission; powers and duties.—

(1) After public hearing, the commission shall adopt, promulgate, amend, or rescind such rules and regulations as it deems necessary and administratively feasible to carry out the provisions of this part, in accordance with chapter 120, Florida Statutes.

(2) To accomplish the objectives and to carry out the duties prescribed by this part, the commission may subpoena witnesses, may issue subpoenas to require the production of books, papers, records, and documents which may be needed as evidence of any matter under inquiry, and may administer oaths and affirmations.

(3) In cases of neglect or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any person, the circuit court of the county in which the investigations or the public hearings are taking place, upon application by the commission, may issue an order requiring such person to appear before the commission and produce evidence about the matter under investigation. A failure to obey such order may be punished by the court as a contempt.

(4) Any subpoena, notice of hearing or other process or notice of the commission issued under the provisions of this part shall be served personally or by certified mail. A return made and verified by the individual making such service and setting forth the manner of such service is proof of service and a returned post office receipt, when certified mail is used, is proof of service. All process of any court to which application may be made under the provisions of this part shall be served in the county wherein the persons required to be served reside or may be found.

(5) The commission shall adopt rules as to the qualifications of persons who may serve as mediators and special masters, shall maintain lists of such qualified persons who are not employees of the commission and shall initiate dispute resolution procedures by special masters pursuant to the provisions of this part.

(6) Pursuant to its established procedures, the commission shall resolve questions and controversies concerning claims for recognition as the bargaining agent for a bargaining unit, determine or approve units appropriate for purposes of collective bargaining and investigate charges of engagement in prohibited practices, and charges of striking by public employees.

447.005 Public employer's rights.—It is the right of the public employer to determine unilaterally the purpose of each of its constituent agencies, set standards of services to be offered to the public, and exercise control and discretion over its organization and operations. It is also the right of the public employer to direct its employees, take disciplinary action for proper cause, and relieve its employees from duty because of lack of work or for other legitimate reasons, provided, however, that the exercise of such rights shall not preclude employees or their representatives from raising grievances, should decisions on the above matters have the practical consequences of violating the terms and conditions of any collective bargaining agreement in force, or civil or career service regulation.

447.006 Public employees' rights; organization and representation.—

(1) Public employees shall have the right to form, join, and participate in, or to refrain from forming, joining, or participating in any employee organization of their own choosing.

(2) Public employees shall have the right to be represented by any employee organization of their own choosing, to negotiate collectively through a certified bargaining agent with their public employer in the determination of the terms and conditions of their employment, and to be represented in the determination of grievances arising thereunder. Public employees shall have the right to refrain from exercising the right to be represented.

(3) Nothing in this part shall be construed to prevent any public employee from presenting, at any time, his own grievances, in person or by legal counsel, to his public employer, and having such grievances adjusted without the intervention of the bargaining agent, if the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of the collective bargaining agreement then in effect and if the bargaining agent has been given reasonable opportunity to be present at any meeting called for the resolution of such grievances.

447.007 Dues; deduction and collection.—Any employee organization which has been certified as a bargaining agent shall, upon request, have its dues and uniform assessments deducted and collected by the employer from the salaries of those employees who authorize the deduction of said dues and uniform assessments; provided that such authorization is revocable at the employee's will upon thirty (30) days written notice to the employer and employee organization; provided that reasonable costs to the employer of said deductions shall be a proper subject of collective bargaining. Such deduction shall be in force during the term of the collective bargaining agreement. The public employer is expressly prohibited from any involvement in the collection of fines, penalties or special assessments.

447.008 Registration of employee organization.—

(1) Every employee organization, prior to requesting recognition by a public employer for purposes of collective bargaining or prior to submitting a petition to the commission for purposes of requesting a representation election, shall adopt a constitution and by-laws and shall register with the commission by filing a copy thereof, together with an annual report in a form prescribed by the commission, and an amended report whenever changes are made, which shall include:

(a) The name and address of the organization and of any parent organization or organization with which it is affiliated;

(b) The names and addresses of the principal officers and all representatives of the organization;

(c) The amount of the initiation fee and of the monthly dues which members must pay;

(d) The current annual financial statement of the organization;

(e) The name of its local agent for service of process and the address where such person can be reached; and

(f) A pledge, in a form prescribed by the commission, that the employee organization will conform to the laws of the state and that it will accept members without regard to age, race, sex, religion, or national origin.

(2) Every employee organization shall file annually with the commission a financial report signed by its president and treasurer or corresponding principal officers containing the following information in such detail as may be necessary accurately to disclose its financial condition and operations for its preceding fiscal year;

(a) assets and liabilities at the beginning and end of the fiscal year;

(b) receipts of any kind and the sources thereof;

(c) salary, allowances, and other direct or indirect disbursements (including reimbursed expenses) to each officer and also to each employee who, during such fiscal year, received more than $10,000 in the aggregate from such employee organization and other employee organization affiliated with it or with which it is affiliated, or which is affiliated with the same national or international employee organization;

(d) direct and indirect loans made to any officer, employee, or member, which aggregated more than $250 during the fiscal year, together with a statement of the purpose, security, if any, and arrangements for repayment; and

(e) direct and indirect loans to any business enterprise, together with a statement of the purpose, security, if any, and arrangements for repayment; all in such categories as the commission may prescribe.

(3) A registration fee shall accompany the initial report filed with the commission. Such money shall be used to defray the cost of registration and investigation of the filing party, with the remainder to be deposited in the general revenue fund. The amount charged for registration shall not exceed fifteen dollars ($15).

(4) Every employee organization shall keep accurate accounts of its income and expenses which accounts shall be open for inspection by any member of the organization or by the commission at all reasonable times.

(5) A copy of the current constitution and by-laws of the state and national groups with which the employee organization is affiliated or associated shall accompany each annual report.

(6) An employee organization which is not registered as provided in this section, is prohibited from requesting recognition by a public employer or submitting a petition requesting a representation election. This prohibition shall be enforced by injunction upon petition of the commission to the appropriate circuit court.

447.009 Certification of employee organization.—

(1) Any employee organization which is designated or selected by a majority of public employees in an appropriate unit as their representative for purposes of collective bargaining shall request recognition by the public employer. The public employer shall, if satisfied as to the majority status of the employee organization and the appropriateness of the proposed unit, recognize the employee organization as the collective bargaining representative of employees in the designated unit. Upon recognition by a public employer, the employee organization shall immediately petition the commission for certification. The commission shall review only the appropriateness of the unit proposed by the employee organization. If the unit is appropriate according to the criteria used in this part, the commission shall immediately certify the employee organization as the exclusive representative of all employees in the unit.

(2) If the public employer refuses to recognize the employee organization the employee organization may file a petition with the commission for certification as the bargaining agent for a proposed bargaining unit. The petition shall be accompanied by dated statements signed by at least thirty (30) percent of the employees in the proposed unit indicating that such employees desire to be represented for purposes of collective bargaining by the petitioning employee organization. Provided that any employee, employers or employee organization having sufficient reason to believe any of the employee signatures were obtained by collusion, coercion, intimidation or misrepresentation or are otherwise invalid, shall be given a reasonable opportunity to verify and challenge the signatures appearing on the petition.

(3) (a) The commission or one of its designated agents shall investigate the petition to determine its sufficiency; if it has reasonable cause to believe that the petition is sufficient, the commission shall provide for an appropriate hearing upon due notice. Such a hearing may be conducted by an agent of the commission, who shall not make any recommendations with respect thereto. If the commission finds upon the record of the hearing that the petition is sufficient, it shall immediately:

(1) Define the proposed bargaining unit and determine which public employees shall be qualified and entitled to vote at any election held by the commission;

(2) Identify the public employer or employers for purposes of collective bargaining with the bargaining agent;

(3) Order an election by secret ballot.

(b) Where an employee organization is selected by a majority of the employees voting in an election, the commission shall certify the employee organization as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of all employees in the unit;

(c) In any election in which none of the choices on the ballot receives the vote of a majority of the employees voting, a run-off election shall be held according to rules promulgated by the commission.

(d) No new election may be conducted in any appropriate bargaining unit to determine the exclusive representative if a representative election has been conducted within the preceding twelve month period.

(4) In defining a proposed bargaining unit, the commission shall take into consideration:

(a) The principles of efficient administration of government;

(b) The number of employee organizations with which the employer might have to negotiate;

(c) The compatibility of the unit with the joint responsibilities of the public employer and public employees to represent the public;

(d) The power of the officials of government at the level of the unit to agree or make effective recommendations to other administrative authority or legislative body with respect to matters of employment upon which the employee desires to negotiate.

(e) The organizational structure of the public employer;

(f) Community of interest among the employees to be included in the unit, considering:

1. The manner in which wages and other terms of employment are determined.

2. The method by which jobs and salary classifications are determined.

3. Inter-dependence of jobs and interchange of employees.

4. Desires of the employees.

5. The history of employee relations within the organization of the public employer concerning organization and negotiation.

(g) The statutory authority of the public employer to administer a classification and pay plan.

(h) Such other factors and policies as the commission may prescribe by regulations or by its decisions; provided that no unit shall be established or approved for purposes of collective bargaining which includes both professional and non-professional employees unless a majority of each group votes for inclusion in such unit.

447.010 Collective bargaining; approval or rejection.—

(1) After an employee organization has been certified pursuant to the provisions of this part, the bargaining agent for the organization, and the chief executive officer of the appropriate public employer or employers jointly shall bargain collectively in the determination of the wages, hours and terms and conditions of employment of the public employees within the bargaining unit. The chief executive officer, or his representative, and the bargaining agent, or its representative, shall meet at reasonable times and bargain in good faith. In conducting negotiations with the bargaining agent, the chief executive officer or his representative shall consult with, and attempt to represent the views of the legislative body of the public employer. Any collective bargaining agreement reached by the negotiators shall be reduced to writing and such agreement shall be signed by the chief executive officer and the bargaining agent. Any agreement signed by the chief executive officer and the bargaining agent shall not be binding on the public employer until such agreement has been ratified, at a regularly scheduled meeting of the public employer and by public employees who are members of the bargaining unit, subject to the provisions of subsections (2) and (3) of this section.

(2) Upon execution of the collective bargaining agreement, the chief executive shall, in his annual budget request or by other appropriate means, request the legislative body to appropriate such amounts as shall be sufficient to fund the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement. If less than the requested amount is appropriated, the collective bargaining agreement shall be administered by the chief executive officer on the basis of the amounts appropriated by the legislative body. The failure of the legislative body to appropriate funds sufficient to fund the collective bargaining agreement shall not constitute nor be evidence of any unfair labor practice.

(3) If any provision of a collective bargaining agreement is in conflict with any law, ordinance, rule, or regulation over which the chief executive officer has no amendatory power, the chief executive officer shall submit to the appropriate governmental body having amendatory power a proposed amendment to such law, ordinance, rule or regulation. Unless and until such amendment is enacted or adopted and becomes effective, the conflicting provision of the collective bargaining agreement shall not become effective.

(4) If the agreement is not ratified by the public employer or is not approved by a majority vote of employees voting in the unit, in accordance with procedures adopted by the commission, the agreement shall be returned to the chief executive officer and the employee organization for further negotiations.

(5) Any collective bargaining agreement shall not provide for a term of existence of more than three (3) years, and shall contain all of the terms and conditions of employment of the employees in the bargaining unit during such term, except those terms and conditions provided for in applicable merit and civil service rules and regulations.

447.011 Grievance procedures.—Each public employer and bargaining agent shall negotiate a grievance procedure to be used for the settlement of dispute between employer and employee, or group of employees, involving the interpretation or application of a collective bargaining agreement. Such grievance procedure shall have as its terminal step a final and binding disposition by an impartial neutral, mutually selected by the parties; provided, however, that an arbitrator or other neutral shall not have the power to add to, subtract from, modify or alter the terms of a collective bargaining agreement. If an employee organization is certified as the bargaining agent of a unit, the grievance procedure then in existence may be subject of collective bargaining and any agreement which is reached shall supersede the previously existing procedure. All public employees shall have the right to a fair and equitable grievance procedure, administered without regard to membership or non-membership in any organization. A career service employee shall have the option of utilizing the civil service appeal procedure or a grievance procedure established under this section, but such employee cannot use both a civil service appeal and a grievance procedure.

447.012 Resolution of impasses.—

(1) If, after a reasonable period of negotiation concerning the terms and conditions of employment to be incorporated in a collective bargaining agreement, a dispute exists between a public employer and a bargaining agent, or if no agreement is reached within sixty (60) days after the commencement of collective bargaining or at least seventy (70) days prior to the budget submission date of the public employer, an impasse shall be deemed to have occurred. Where an impasse occurs, the public employer, or the bargaining agent or both parties acting jointly may appoint or secure the appointment of a mediator to assist in the resolution of the impasse.

(2) If no mediator is appointed, or if the impasse is not resolved within sixty calendar days prior to the budget submission date of the public employer, the commission shall:

(a) Appoint a special master and submit all unresolved issues to a special master acceptable to both parties. If the parties are unable to agree on the appointment of a special master, the commission shall appoint, in its discretion, a qualified special master. Provided that nothing in this section shall preclude the parties from using the services of a mediator at any time during the conduct of collective bargaining.

(b) The special master or masters shall hold hearings in order to define the area or areas of dispute, to determine facts relating to the dispute and to render a decision on any and all unresolved contract issues. The hearings shall be held at times, dates, and places to be established by the special master or masters in accordance with rules promulgated by the commission. The special master or masters shall be empowered to administer oaths and issue subpoenas on behalf of the parties to the dispute or on their own behalf. Within twenty (20) calendar days after final hearings, the commission shall transmit the recommended decision of the special master or masters to the representatives of both parties, which decision shall be discussed further by the parties in negotiations and shall be deemed approved by both parties unless either party, by formal action, rejects the decision within fifteen (15) calendar days of the transmission of the decision to the parties.

(c) In the event that either the public employer or the employee organization does not accept in whole or in part the recommendations of the special master or masters, (i) the chief executive officer of the government involved shall, within ten days after receipt of the findings of fact and recommendations of the special master or masters, submit to the legislative body of the government involved a copy of the findings of fact and recommendations of the special master or masters, together with their recommendations for settling the dispute; (ii) the employee organization may submit to such legislative body its recommendations for settling the dispute; (iii) the legislative body or a duly authorized committee thereof shall forthwith conduct a public hearing at which the parties shall be required to explain their positions with respect to the report of the factfinding board; and (iv) thereafter, the legislative body shall take such action as it deems to be in the public interest, including the interest of the public employees involved.

447.013 Factors to be considered by the special master.—The special master shall conduct the hearings and render his decision with the objective of achieving a prompt, peaceful and just settlement of disputes between the public employee organizations and the public employer. The factors, among others, to be given weight by the special master in arriving at a decision shall include:

(1) Comparison of the annual income of employment of the public employees in question with the annual income of employment maintained for the same or similar work of employees exhibiting like or similar skills under the same or similar working conditions in the local operating area involved.

(2) Comparison of the annual income of employment of the public employees in question with the annual income of employment of public employees in similar public employee governmental bodies of comparable size within the state of Florida.

(3) Interest and welfare of the public.

(4) Comparison of peculiarities of employment in regard to other trades or professions, specifically:

(a) Hazards of employment;
(b) Physical qualifications;
(c) Educational qualifications;
(d) Intellectual qualifications;
(e) Job training and skills;
(f) Retirement plans;
(g) Sick leave;
(h) Job security;
(i) Availability of funds.

447.014 The compensation, if any, of the mediator, shall be borne by the party or parties requesting or securing his appointment. The compensation, if any, of the special master shall be borne equally by the parties. All stenographic and other expenses will be divided equally between the parties.

447.015 Records.—All records which are relevant to or have bearing upon any issue or issues raised by the proceedings conducted by the special master shall be made available to the special master by the request in writing of any of the parties to the fact-finding.

447.016 Unfair labor practices.—

(1) Public employers or their agents or representatives are prohibited from:

(a) Interfering with, restraining, or coercing public employees in the exercise of any rights guaranteed them under this act;

(b) Encouraging or discouraging membership in any employee organization by discrimination in regard to hiring, tenure, or other conditions of employment;

(c) Refusing to bargain collectively or failing to bargain collectively in good faith, or refusing to sign a final agreement agreed upon with the certified bargaining agent for the public employees in the bargaining unit;

(d) Discharging or discriminating against a public employee because he has filed charges or given testimony under this part;

(e) Dominating, interfering with, or assisting in the formation, existence, or administration of any employee organization, or contributing financial support to such an organization;

(f) Refusing to discuss grievances in good faith, pursuant to the terms of the collective bargaining agreement with either the certified bargaining agent for the public employee or employees involved.

(2) A public employee organization or anyone acting in its behalf, its officers, representatives, agents or members are prohibited from:

(a) Interfering with, restraining, or coercing public employees in the exercise of any rights guaranteed them under this act; or from interfering with, restraining or coercing managerial employees by reason of their performance of job duties or other activities undertaken in the interests of the public employer.

(b) Causing or attempting to cause a public employer to discriminate against an employee because of the employee's membership or nonmembership in an employee organization or to attempt to cause the public employer to violate any of the provisions of this part;

(c) Refusing to bargain collectively, or failing to bargain collectively in good faith with a public employer;

(d) Discriminating against an employee because he has signed or filed an affidavit, petition, or complaint, or given any information or testimony in any proceedings provided for in this part;

(e) Participating in a strike against the public employer by instigating or supporting, in any positive manner, a strike. Any violation of this section shall subject the violator to the penalties provided in this act.

(f) Instigating or advocating support, in any positive manner, for an employee organization's activities from high school or grade school students, or institutions of higher learning.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (1) and (2), the parties' rights of free speech shall not be infringed upon and the expression of any arguments or opinions shall not constitute or be evidence of an unfair employment practice or of any other violation of this part, if such expression contains no promise of benefits, nor threat of reprisal or force.

447.017 Charges of unfair labor practices.—Violations of the provisions of section 447.016, Florida Statutes, shall be remedied by the commission in the following manner:

(1) Whenever it is charged by an employer or an employee organization that any person has engaged in or is engaging in any unfair labor practice, the commission, or any agent designated by the commission for such purpose, shall conduct a preliminary investigation to determine if there is substantial evidence indicating a prima facie violation of the applicable unfair labor practice provision.

(2) If, upon a preliminary investigation, it is determined that there is not substantial evidence indicating a prima facie violation of the applicable unfair labor practice provision, the designated agent of the commission shall dismiss the charge.

(3) A charging party whose charge is thus dismissed, may appeal to the chairman and one other member of the commission, and if they find substantial evidence of a meritorious charge, that charge shall be reinstated and served pursuant to the procedures of paragraph (a) of this section.

(a) If the commission or its agent determines that there is substantial evidence indicating a prima facie violation the commission or such agent shall issue and cause to be served upon the person, a copy of the charges and a notice of hearing before the commission or a member thereof, or before a designated agent, at a place therein fixed, to be held not less than ten (10) days after service of a copy of the charges by the commission. Any charge may be amended by the charging party, at any time prior to the issuance of an order based thereon, provided that the charged party is not unfairly prejudiced thereby. The person upon whom the charge is served may file an answer to the charge. The charging party and the respondent shall have the right to appear in person or otherwise and give testimony at the place and time fixed in the notice of hearing. In the discretion of the member or agent conducting the hearing, or the commission, any other person may be allowed to intervene in the proceeding and to present testimony. In any hearing the commission shall not be bound by the judicial rules of evidence.

(b) Whenever a charging party alleges that a person has engaged in unfair labor practices and that he will suffer substantial and irreparable injury if he is not granted temporary relief, the commission may petition the circuit court for appropriate injunctive relief, pending the final adjudication by the commission with respect to such matter. Upon the filing of any such petition, the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the parties, and thereupon shall have jurisdiction to grant such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper.

(4) The testimony taken by the member, agent, or the commission shall be reduced to writing and filed with the commission. Thereafter the commission, upon notice, may take further testimony or hear argument.

(a) If, upon consideration of all evidence taken, the commission finds substantial evidence that an unfair labor practice has been committed, then it shall state its findings of fact and shall issue and cause to be served an order requiring the respondent party to cease and desist from the unfair labor practice, and to take such positive action, including reinstatement of employees with or without back pay, as will effectuate the policies of this part. The order may further require the person to make reports from time to time showing the extent to which he has complied with the order.

(b) If, upon consideration of the evidence taken, the commission finds that the person or entity named in the charge has not engaged in and is not engaging in the unfair labor practice, the commission shall state its findings of fact and shall issue an order dismissing the charge.

(c) No notice of hearing shall be issued based upon any unfair labor practice occurring more than six (6) months prior to the filing of the charge with the commission, unless the person aggrieved thereby was prevented from filing the charge by reason of service in the armed forces, in which event, the six (6) month period shall be computed from the day of his discharge.

(d) No order of the commission shall require the reinstatment of any individual as an employee who has been suspended or discharged, or the payment to him of any back pay, if the individual was suspended or discharged for cause.

(5) The district courts of appeal are empowered, upon the filing of an appropriate petition, to review final orders of the commission. Until the record in a case has been filed in the appropriate district court of appeal, the commission at any time, upon reasonable notice and in such manner as it deems proper, may modify or set aside, in whole or in part, any findings or order made or issued by it.

(6) (a) The commission may petition for enforcement of the order and for appropriate injunctive relief, and shall file the record of the proceedings before the commission in the district court of appeal.

(b) Upon the filing of the petition, the appropriate district court of appeal shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the respondent, and thereupon shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding and shall grant such temporary or permanent relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper, enforcing, modifying, or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the commission. No objection that has not been urged before the commission, its members or agent, shall be considered by the district court of appeal, unless the failure or neglect to urge the objection is excused because of extraordinary circumstances. The findings of the commission, with respect to questions of fact, if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole, shall be conclusive.

(c) If either party applies to the court for leave to present additional evidence and shows to the satisfaction of the court that the additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to present it in the hearing before the commission, its members or agent, the court may order the additional evidence to be taken before the commission, its members or agent, and to be made a part of the record. The commission may modify its findings as to the facts, or make new findings, by reason of additional evidence so taken and filed, and it shall file the modifying or new findings, which findings with respect to questions of fact if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclusive, and shall file its recommendations, if any, for the modification or setting aside of its original order.

(d) Upon the filing of the record the jurisdiction of the court shall be exclusive and its judgment and decree shall be final, except that the same shall be subject to review in accordance with the rules of appellate procedure. An appropriate district court of appeal may enforce its rulings by contempt proceedings, if necessary.

(7) Any person aggrieved by a final order of the commission granting or denying in whole or in part the relief sought, may obtain a review of such order by filing in the appropriate district court of appeal a petition praying that the order of the commission be modified or set aside. A copy of the petition shall be filed with the commission. Thereupon, the aggrieved party shall file in the said court the record in the proceeding certified by the commission. Upon the filing of the petition, the court shall proceed in the same manner as under subsection (5), and shall grant to the commission such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper, enforcing, modifying, or setting aside, in whole or in part, the order of the commission. The findings of the commission with respect to questions of fact, if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole, shall be conclusive.

(8) The commencement of proceedings under subsection (5) or (6) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the district court of appeal, operate as a stay of the commission's order.

(9) Petitions filed under this part shall be heard expeditiously by the district court of appeal to which presented, and shall take precedence over all other civil matters except prior matters of the same character.

447.018 Strikes prohibited.—No public employee or employee organization may participate in a strike against a public employer by instigating or supporting, in any manner, a strike. Any violation of this section shall subject the violator to the penalties provided in this part.

447.019 Violation of strike prohibition; penalties.—

(1) Circuit courts having jurisdiction of the parties are vested with the authority to hear and determine all actions alleging violations of section 447.018, Florida Statutes. Suits to enjoin violations of section 447.018, Florida Statutes, will have priority over all matters on the court's docket except other emergency matters.

(2) If a public employee, a group of employees, an employee organization, or any officer, agent, or representative of any employee organization, engages in a strike in violation of section 447.018, Florida Statutes, the commission or any public employer whose employees are involved or whose employees may be affected by the strike, may file suit to enjoin the strike in the circuit court having proper jurisdiction and proper venue of such actions under Florida Rules of Civil Procedure and Florida Statutes. The circuit court shall conduct a hearing, with notice to all interested parties, at the earliest practicable time. If the plaintiff makes a prima facie showing that a violation of section 447.018, Florida Statutes, is in progress or that there is a clear, real and present danger that such a strike is about to commence, the circuit court shall issue a temporary injunction enjoining the strike. Upon final hearing, the circuit court shall either make the injunction permanent or dissolve it.

(3) If an injunction issued pursuant to this section to enjoin a strike is not promptly complied with, on the application of the plaintiff, the circuit court shall immediately initiate contempt proceedings against those who appear to be in violation. An employee organization found to be in contempt of court for violating an injunction against a strike shall be fined an amount deemed appropriate by the court. In determining the appropriate fine, the court shall objectively consider the extent of lost services and the particular nature and position of the employee group in violation. In no event shall the fine exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000). Each officer, agent or representative of an employee organization found to be in contempt of court for violating an injunction against a strike, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars ($50) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100) for each calendar day that the violation is in progress.

(4) An employee organization shall be liable for any damages which might be suffered by a public employer as a result of a violation of the provisions of section 447.018, Florida Statutes, by the employee organization or its representatives, officers and agents. The circuit court having jurisdiction over such actions is empowered to enforce judgments against employee organizations, as defined in this part, by attachment or garnishment of union initiation fees or dues which are to be deducted or checked off by public employers. No action shall be maintained pursuant to this subsection until all proceedings which were pending before the commission at the time of the strike or which were initiated within thirty (30) days of the strike have been finally adjudicated or otherwise disposed of. In determining the amount of damages, if any, to be awarded to the public employer, the trier of fact shall take into consideration any action or inaction by the public employer or its agents that provoked or tended to provoke the strike by the public employees. The trier of fact shall also take into consideration any damages that might have been recovered by the public employer under subsection (6) (a) 4. of this section.

(5) If the commission after a hearing on notice conducted according to rules promulgated by the commission determines an employee has violated section 447.018, Florida Statutes, it may order the termination of his employment by the public employer. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a person knowingly violating the provision of said section may, subsequent to such violation be appointed or reappointed, employed or reemployed, as a public employee, but only upon the following conditions:

(a) Such person shall be on probation for a period of six (6) months following his appointment or reappointment, employment or reemployment, during which period he shall serve without tenure. During this period, the person may be discharged only upon a showing of just cause;

(b) His compensation may in no event exceed that received by him immediately prior to the time of the violation;

(c) The compensation of the person may not be increased until after the expiration of one (1) year from such appointment or reappointment, employment or reemployment.

(6) (a) If the commission determines an employee organization has violated section 447.018, Florida Statutes, it may:

1. Issue cease and desist orders as necessary to insure compliance with its order.

2. Suspend or revoke the certification of the employee organization as the bargaining agent of such employee unit.

3. Revoke the privilege of check-off of dues deduction and collection previously granted to said employee organization.

4. Fine the organization up to twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) for each calendar day of such violation or determine the approximate cost to the public due to each calendar day of the strike and fine the organization an amount equal to such cost, notwithstanding the fact that the fine may exceed twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) for each such calendar day. The fines so collected shall immediately accrue to the public employer and shall be used by him to replace those services denied the public as a result of the strike. In determining the amount of damages, if any, to be awarded to the public employer, the commission shall take into consideration any action or inaction by the public employer or its agents that provoked or tended to provoke the strike by the public employees.

(b) An organization determined to be in violation of section 447.018, Florida Statutes, shall not be certified until one (1) year from the date of final payment of any fine against it.

(7) Orders of the commission pursuant to this section are reviewable in the district court of appeal and may be enforced by such court.

447.020 Other unlawful acts.—

(1) Employee organizations, their members, agents, representatives, or any persons acting on their behalf are hereby prohibited from:

(a) Soliciting public employees during working hours of any employee who is involved in the solicitation;

(b) Distributing literature during working hours in areas where the actual work of public employees is performed, such as offices, warehouses, schools, police stations, fire stations and any similar public installations. This section shall not be construed to prohibit the distribution of literature during the employee's lunch hour or in such areas not specifically devoted to the performance of the employee's official duties.

(c) Instigating or advocating support, in any positive manner, for an employee organization's activities from high school or grade school students during classroom time.

(2) No employee organization shall directly or indirectly pay any fines or penalties assessed against individuals pursuant to the provisions of this part.

(3) The circuit courts of this state shall have jurisdiction to enforce the provisions of this section by injunction and contempt proceedings, if necessary. A public employee who is convicted of a violation of any provision of this section may be discharged or otherwise disciplined by his public employer, notwithstanding further provisions of law, and notwithstanding the provisions of any collective bargaining agreement.

447.021 Merit or civil service system; applicability.—The provisions of this part shall not be construed to repeal, amend, or modify the provisions of any law or ordinance establishing a merit or civil service system for public employees or the rules and regulations adopted pursuant thereto; or to prohibit or hinder the establishment of other such personnel systems unless the provisions of such merit or civil service system laws, ordinances or rules and regulations adopted pursuant thereto are in conflict with the provisions of this part, in which event such laws, ordinances, or rules and regulations shall not apply, except as provided in §447.006(3).

447.022 Local option.—Any district school board or political subdivision (other than the state or a state public authority), may elect to adopt by ordinance, resolution or charter amendment its own provisions and procedures in lieu of the requirement of this part, provided that such provisions and procedures effectively secure to public employees substantially equivalent rights and procedures as set forth in this part. Prior to becoming law the public employer shall apply to the commission for review and approval as to whether local provisions or procedures, or both, are substantially equivalent to the provisions and procedures set forth in this part. All public employee agreements now in existence shall remain in effect until their expiration.

447.023 Government in the sunshine.—

(1) All discussions between the chief executive officer of the public employer and the legislative body of the public employer relative to collective bargaining shall be exempt from §286.011, Florida Statutes.

(2) The collective bargaining negotiations between a chief executive officer and a bargaining agent shall not be exempt from §286.011, Florida Statutes.

(3) All work products developed by the public employer in preparation for negotiations and during negotiations shall be exempt from Chapter 119, Florida Statutes.

Section 4. It is declared to be legislative intent that the provisions of this act are severable; if any section, subsection, sentence, clause or provision is found to be unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, the same shall not affect the remaining provisions of this act.

Section 5. The legislature shall retain the right to approve, amend or rescind all rules promulgated by the commission pursuant to this act. In the absence of legislative action to the contrary, all rules shall have full force and effect upon their approval by the commission.

Section 6. Paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section 230.22, Florida Statutes, as created by chapter 73-338, Laws of Florida, is hereby repealed.

Section 7. Section 839.221, Florida Statutes, is hereby repealed.

Section 8. Chapter 72-275, Laws of Florida, appearing as section 447.20 through section 447.35, Florida Statutes, 1972 supplement, is hereby repealed.

Section 9. This act shall take effect January 1, 1975, except that sections 447.003, 447.004 and 447.008(1), (2), (3), (4) and (5), Florida Statutes, shall become effective July 1, 1974, or at such time as the administrative rules and regulations of the commission have been adopted, whichever is first.

VOL. 8 NO. 1
SEPT. 1974

NRD
NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

Table of Contents

	Page
Case Reviews	3
"Student Welfare" Issue Enjoins Strike
Right to Strike Upheld
Unprofessional Conduct Grounds for Dismissal
Reduction of Work Year Negotiable
Employer's Inquiry Does Not Waive Grievance Time Limits
Department Heads May Belong to Employee Organization
Arb. Award Vacated For Failure To Represent Properly
Published "Scab" List Not Libelous
Board Findings and Rulings	7
Separate Units For Minnesota Higher Ed. System
Posting of Campaign Materials on Election Day Not Improper Practice
Dues Check Off Suspended Over Strike
Nevada Board Expands Scope of Bargaining
Handing Out Pro-Union Materials During Working Hours Legal Contract Cannot Abridge Grievance Rights
Wisc. Board Broadens Unit Scope To Include Student Counselors
Negotiation Notes	11
Montana Grants Higher Ed. Bargaining Rights
Charitable Contributions May Be Substituted For Dues
Montana AGO Rules on Employee Benefits
Taylor Law Grants Binding Arb. to Police and Fire
U.S. High Court Hears Maternity Disability Benefits Suit
U.S. Labor Dept. Funds Public Employee Jobs
Special Reports	14
Brief of Agreements
Teacher Coverage Under Unemployment Compensation Laws

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2796

CASE REVIEWS

COLORADO

Jeopardy to Students' Education Cited in Court Order To End Strike in Colorado

The right of students to a public education takes precedence over the rights of school-board officials and teachers when a teacher strike presents a clear danger to public schooling. Therefore, the Arapahoe County District Court enjoined the Littleton Education Association from further strike activity against the Arapahoe County School District No. 6, having concluded that the strike had substantially jeopardized the educational system.

The court had earlier denied an injunction against the teacher strike, having interpreted the school board's legal action as an attempt to bypass a negotiated settlement and force the Association to accede to the board's last offer in an attempt to "guarantee closed debate on the issue and to use (or abuse) the power of the court to force the teachers to accept the board's terms on a 'take it or leave it' basis." The strike followed impasse over the board's wage proposal which abolished the index salary schedule and offered a general increase in its place. Although the strike had been disruptive, it had served a purpose in that another attempt had been made to reach agreement.

Failing to reach agreement with the board, the teachers continued their strike, and the court reconsidered the case. The court pointed out that the school board, in the first place, must discharge its duties and responsibilities under the law. Secondly, teachers have a right to collective bargaining and may lawfully disagree with board policies. Under state statutes, however, students are guaranteed a public education. The effect of the strike on the students' education became the focus of the court's concern; the court reasoned that school-board members were free to seek that office and teachers were free to select where they taught. The court found that since students must go to school, their rights were "being irreparably injured, damaged and lost as a direct result of the strike." The court further found no basis upon which to rule the strike lawful and was unwilling to issue a favorable precedential decision, preferring "to interpret the law as it finds it."

The court ordered the Association to cease strike activity and any action interfering with normal school operations. (Arapahoe Co. School District No. 6 vs. Littleton Education Association, et al.; Arapahoe Co. District Court, Colo., January 18, 1974.)

MONTANA

Public Employee Right To Strike Upheld

Since the Montana Collective Bargaining for Public Employees Act does not specifically prohibit strikes, as was the case in other legislation concerned with bargaining, the Board of Personnel Appeals has ruled that public employees have the right to strike. The Helena District Court sustained the decision, and the issue has been appealed to the state supreme court. The ruling came as a result of a walkout by highway maintenance employees over a wage dispute with the state department of highways during protracted negotiations for a successor contract.

The striking workers were part of a group of trade units represented by the Public Employees Craft Council. With the state highway department contract expiring in June 1973, negotiations stalled on the wage items and mediation was initiated. The board of personnel appeals, created by bargaining legislation effective in July, intervened with fact-finding procedures which resulted in a recommendation favoring a 7 percent across-the-board increase. The amount was still unacceptable and precipitated the walkout in January 1974. The highway department obtained a temporary restraining order and sought to permanently enjoin the strike, contending that public employees were not explicitly granted the right to strike under the state bargaining law.

The union argued that the provision of the statute guaranteeing employee rights to "concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection" was specific enough to include the right to strike.

The court focused on the interpretation of the existing statutory language, noting that similar phrases in private sector bargaining laws had been considered sufficient to imply the right to strike. Earlier legislation granting bargaining rights to teachers had specifically prohibited strikes. Nurses in private and public hospitals had also gained negotiations rights and could strike only under certain conditions. Absent a specific bar to strikes, the court concluded, it was certainly reasonable to follow common labor usage of "concerted activity" as including strikes.

The court ruled in favor of the union and removed the temporary restraining order; the order was reissued, however, on appeal by the highway department, pending a state supreme court review of the case.

NEW JERSEY

Insubordination, Unprofessional Conduct Grounds for Dismissal

The First Amendment right of free speech does not cover a teacher's public criticism of immediate supervisors where foul language and vindictive motives are evident. The New Jersey Superior Court Appellate Division upheld the dismissal of the president of the Brick Township Education Association for derogatory remarks judged insubordinate made during an orientation speech for teachers new to the system. Pending higher appeal, this decision was the latest in a series of hearings and reviews during which the teacher unsuccessfully advanced her defense on the basis of constitutional rights. The court pointed out that its decision rested upon an examination of individual conduct and not the teacher's role as an association leader.

The teacher had been suspended shortly after having made the remarks critical of the school board and the superintendent. She sought review by the state education commission. An investigation conducted by a hearing officer from the commissioner's office found that dismissal was warranted for conduct unbecoming a teacher. The commissioner agreed with the hearing officer's findings, but awarded the teacher back pay from the 121st day of suspension to the date of his decision. A later review by the state board of education sustained the dismissal, effective as of the date of suspension.

Citing Pickering v. Board of Education, the teacher claimed constitutional protection of the right to speak out publicly in opposition to local board policies. The Supreme Court of the United States had ruled in Pickering in favor of a teacher who had criticized the school board in a letter to the editor of the city newspaper. The teacher maintained that since her actions closely paralleled those of the earlier case, her verbal dissension should not be penalized.

The court examined testimony presented at the hearing and later reviews and noted that the charges of personal character attacks and the use of expletives with superiors and students had been substantiated. The totality of such conduct was unprofessional and merited dismissal, the court stated, agreeing with the state board's decision. In Pickering, the court observed, the public criticism had been limited properly to policy and had not digressed to attacks on individuals. Having crossed the bounds of constitutionally protected behavior, the teacher was justifiably dismissed, the court decided. (Kathleen M. Pietrunti v. Board of Education of Brick Township, New Jersey Superior Court Appellate Division, May 6, 1974.)

NEW YORK

School Board Ordered To Negotiate Reduction of Work Year

Since the length of the work year is a term of employment, a school board must negotiate over any modifications and may not unilaterally shorten the work year. The Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court recently upheld a Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) ruling which declared the Oswego school board in violation of the Civil Service Law for failure to negotiate reduction of the work year with employee members of the Association of Administrative Personnel of the Enlarged City School District of Oswego.

The PERB based its decision on the uncontested fact that the Oswego school board had, during negotiations with the Association for a new contract, unilaterally reduced the work year for some bargaining unit employees to 11 or 10 months from the former 12-month work year. The new policy was to take effect in mid-summer on the starting date of the new contract. Shortening the work year without prior negotiation with the Association was an improper employer practice, PERB concluded, and ordered the board to negotiate the proposed change.

The school board appealed the PERB order, claiming that under the fundamental governmental decision-making power provided in the Education Law it had exclusive authority to determine the length of its employees' work year. The board also claimed that the action was not a mandatory subject of negotiation since it dealt with basic educational services and was an effort to reduce operating costs.

The court found that since "the length of the work year is a function of hours of work and thus a 'term of employment,' " it was a mandatory subject of negotiations under provisions of Civil Service Law, unless specifically prohibited by the Education Law. Finding no such prohibition, the court stated that the board's powers were broad enough to include negotiating the length of the work year. The court also rejected the argument that the board's action concerned basic policy or management rights since there was no effect on public service and the educational program remained the same, with no change in function of the administrators. The court, therefore, concluded that the board's policy change was "simply a unilateral decision to change the hours and wages of the school administrators without negotiation."

The Appellate Court denied the school board appeal and sustained the PERB order. (City School District of the City of Oswego, New York v. Robert D. Helsby et al., Constituting the Public Employment Relations Board et al., New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, July 12, 1973.)

Contract Violation Grievance Untimely; Time Limits Not Waived by Employer's Inquiry

Holding that the North Babylon Teachers Organization failed to observe contractual time limits in filing for a grievance arbitration, the New York Supreme Court granted a stay of arbitration proceedings requested by the North Babylon Board of Education.

The Association filed the grievance in September 1972 after the school board refused to hire the teacher as an assistant football coach. Late in October, the district principal informed the Association that he had rejected the grievance and inquired whether the Association considered the matter to be one of contract interpretation and therefore subject to binding arbitration. Under the parties' collective bargaining agreement grievances concerning application or interpretation of a term or provision of an agreement were subject to binding arbitration while all other grievances were subject only to advisory arbitration. Binding arbitration grievances were to be submitted within five days of the principal's determination, while advisory arbitration was to be pursued within 10 days. Here the request for binding arbitration was submitted more than 30 days after the principal's determination. In response to school-board contentions that the request for arbitration was untimely, the Association contended that time limits were waived by the principal's inquiry as to whether binding arbitration would be pursued.

The court found that the grievance clearly concerned a contract violation and was subject to procedures for advisory arbitration. The court rejected the Association's contention that the principal's inquiry concerning the arbitration method constituted a waiver of time limits. Pointing out that a waiver was "an intentional relinquishment of a legal right" and that the principal's rejection of the grievance and his inquiry did not constitute a clear waiver of the time limits. The court granted the board's petition for a stay of arbitration. (Matter of arbitration between North Babylon Board of Education and North Babylon Teachers Organization, New York Supreme Court, February 22, 1974.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Department Heads' Membership in Employee Organization Upheld

A school district requirement that department heads withdraw membership in an employee association or resign as department heads constituted an unfair labor practice, ruled the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court.

The Eastern Lancaster County Education Association, (ELCEA) filed an unfair labor practice charge before the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) when the school district informed department heads that they had to either cease membership in the ELCEA or give up their department head positions. The school district contended that continuation as department head precluded membership in ELCEA.

PLRB ruled in favor of the department heads, saying that as first-level supervisors, the department heads might continue in their positions and retain their association membership. The school district appealed. The court of Common Pleas set aside the PLRB order and ruled that department heads engage in collective bargaining, as they hear grievances, and that, therefore, membership in ELCEA was prohibited under the Public Employee Relations Act.

The Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court reversed the lower court order. Accepting the decision in Ellwood City Area School District v. Secretary of Education the court ruled that the Public Employee Labor Relations Act provided that department heads could hold membership in employee associations that bargain with the employer, albeit not in the same bargaining unit of the employee association. So ruling, the court held that the action of the school district was an unfair labor practice as it attempted to interfere with the department heads in the exercise of their rights. (Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Appellant v. Eastern Lancaster County School District, Appellee, Eastern Lancaster County Education Association, Intervening Appellant, Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court, January 3, 1974.)

RHODE ISLAND

Arbitration Award Which Ousted Teacher from Promotional Position Vacated

Ruling that arbitrators exceeded their powers, the Rhode Island Superior Court vacated an arbitration board award which removed a teacher from his position as department head and replaced him with another teacher. The court further held that the arbitrators violated the law by permitting the teachers union to deny fair representation to the removed teacher.

The ousted teacher (plaintiff) and the defendant were both members of the same union and were both candidates for the position of business department head. The plaintiff had been the unanimous choice of the school committee to fill the position which he held for one year. Having filed a grievance challenging the plaintiff's appointment, the defendant was turned down at each step of the grievance procedure but requested that the union proceed to arbitration.

Prior to arbitration, the union met with the defendant to discuss his testimony, but did not question the plaintiff regarding his qualifications for the position. At the trial, the plaintiff alleged that the union presented testimony supporting the claim that it was not representing the defendant but was providing a forum in which his grievance could be aired.

The plaintiff also contended that the union sided with the defendant during the grievance process and voted to take the defendant's case to arbitration.

The arbitration board decision removed the plaintiff from his position as department head and replaced him with the defendant. The plaintiff then wanted to grieve, but was informed by the union that it would pursue a grievance regarding the adequacy of his representation by the school committee but not a grievance attempting to regain his position.

Hearing the plaintiff's case to vacate the arbitration award, the Superior Court stated that to vacate the award it must determine whether the award was procured by fraud, whether the arbitrators exceeded their powers, or whether there was no valid submission or contract. The court found that the arbitrators exceeded their powers by dismissing the plaintiff and appointing the defendant, a power vested exclusively in the school committee. The court also held that the arbitrators violated the law by allowing the plaintiff to be represented by the school committee instead of his union.

The court ordered the re-appointment of the plaintiff to the position of department head and payment of the differential from the date of his discharge by the arbitrators. (Richard A. Belanger, Plaintiff v. Arthur B. Matteson et al., Defendants, Rhode Island Superior Court, February 26, 1974.)

FEDERAL

Published Union Scab List Not Libelous, Supreme Court Declares

Since "uninhibited, robust, and wide-open debate in labor disputes" is protected under federal labor law and the application of state libel laws is limited to statements known to be false, the printed listing of nonmembers as being scabs is not unlawfully defamatory. The Supreme Court of the United States thus reversed a libel judgment against Old Dominion Branch No. 496 and the National Association of Letter Carriers by the Virginia courts. The case involved defamation suits filed by non-union postal employees during an organizational drive to attain 100 percent membership. The employees' names had appeared on the scab list for three consecutive issues of the local monthly newsletter, though previously court action had been threatened to prevent recurrence of the defamatory practice. In a subsequent trial, a jury verdict awarded damages in excess of $165,000. The union appealed, but the state supreme court upheld the judgment.

Countering the initial suits and during the later appeals, the union maintained that the published scab list was protected speech under the First Amendment and under federal labor law.

In the state court action, the trial judge, on the basis of his interpretation of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Linn v. Plant Guard Workers Local 114, had allowed the libel suits to be presented. The high court in Linn had ruled that federal labor statutes did not completely pre-empt the applicability of state libel laws for statements made during labor disputes, so that under certain circumstances, particularly incidents involving falsehood and malice, individuals could sue to recover damages. The trial judge's charge to the jury contained an interpretation of "malice" that was based on common law, and defined in his terms as statements motivated by "hatred, personal spite, ill will, or desire to injure."

The Supreme Court review centered on the interrelated issues of the extent of protected speech for public employees under federal labor laws, the extent of First Amendment protection, the lower court's interpretation of the Linn decision, and the nature of libel within the context of labor disputes.

The Court established that the union was certified as exclusive bargaining agent for mail carriers in the local jurisdiction under provisions of Executive Order 11491 granting basic organizing and bargaining rights to federal workers, including postal employees. Union freedom of speech guarantees are derived primarily from section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act which protects the right of employees to "persuade other employees to join [unions] for their mutual aid and protection." The court found NLRA protections equally applicable for the letter carriers. Although covered by an executive order, basic rights parallel those of employees in the private sector. The Court determined that the legislative and executive intent was to foster free debate during organizing and labor/management disputes. Precedential decisions by labor boards had allowed wide latitude and vigorous free expression in such cases, the Court noted, favoring the defense advanced by the union.

With regard to whether the libel suits should have been allowed under state law, the Court stated that its decision in Linn had been misinterpreted by the lower courts. The pre-emptive effect of state libel law on federal statutes hinged on a test for malice different from that of common law. In Linn, the court had returned to the New York Times Co. v. Sullivan test that suit be permitted "only if the defamatory publication was made 'with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not.' " Since malice was the Court's shorthand term for the New York Times test, the Court reversed the lower court decision because of erroneous instructions to the jury.

For the sake of clarity in future applications of its decisions, however, the court went on to apply the test in the instant case. The newsletter's use of the word "scab" was factual as it was literally true that the nonmembers were scabs. The union's published scab list was thus protected under federal law, the court concluded, and could not be the basis for a state libel suit. A dissenting opinion held that the majority decision "appears to allow both unions and employers to defame individual workers with little or no risk of being held accountable." (Old Dominion Branch No. 496, National Association of Letter Carriers, et al. v. Austin, et al., United States Supreme Court, June 25, 1974.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MINNESOTA

PERB Upholds Separate Units for Each Campus of State-wide System

Ruling on an appeal of a decision of the Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, the Minnesota Public Relations Board (PERB) upheld the Bureau's determination of a separate faculty unit for each college of the state-wide system as appropriate for collective bargaining. The appeal was made because the decision of the Bureau had been based on "geographic hardship," an exception to the unit determination rule.

A joint petition had been filed by the Minnesota State College Board (MSCB) and the Inter-Faculty Organization seeking certification of IFO as bargaining agent for a system-wide unit. Although the Bureau originally had ruled such a unit appropriate, challenges raised by faculties at two campuses were sufficient to allow reconsideration of the decision. At hearings on the matter, the Minnesota Education Association, the MSCB, the IFO, and the AAUP all supported a state-wide unit, citing past history, backing of the majority of faculty, and MSCB's ultimate control of fiscal and other resources as compelling factors. The Bureau then determined that a separate unit for each college was appropriate. The four organizations appealed this decision to the Minnesota PERB.

The Bureau director had based his decision on the statutory provision mandating that he "define appropriate units of state employees as all employees under the same appointing authority except where professional, geographical or other considerations affecting employment relations clearly require appropriate units of some other composition." While MSCB was technically the appointing authority, the director reasoned, it had delegated significant authority in matters of appointments, promotions, salary increases, terminations, and other conditions of employment to local college presidents. He concluded that units of faculties under each college president were appropriate since each was in reality the appointing authority.

The PERB concluded that each president was delegated appointing authority under MSCB's own rules and that each campus was operationally distinct as to educational offerings, governance, administration, faculty constituency, and salary scheduling. Also evident, PERB maintained, was the wide geographic separation of the campuses and the lack of uniform policies or faculty transfers among the colleges. The Board pointed out that its decision would allow a larger unit, as desired by the appellees, through election of the same bargaining organization in some or even all the campuses.

Two dissenting opinions argued that the statutory intent was that of broad units with a community of interest generated out of a common appointing authority. Furthermore, if such authority could be delegated, it could also be redelegated, conceivably forcing modification of the unit to match the new appointing authority. Dissenting members also said that faculty members shared a community of interest as "professionals" as defined by law which warranted a system-wide unit and that most of the parties to the appeal, including the MSCB, favored the broad unit. A precedent existed, they continued, in that all community college faculty members were in a single unit with one certified representative, the Minnesota Junior College Faculty Association, which had negotiated a state-wide contract.

Further objections were that the separate units would foster a less stable bargaining arena and that basic topics of negotiations, especially fiscal resources and employment policies, were the responsibility of the MSCB and not the college presidents. (Minnesota State College Board, and Inter-Faculty Organization, and Minnesota Federation of Teachers, and Minnesota Education Association, and American Association of University Professors, PERB, April 8, 1974.)

Ride to Polls and Use of Campaign Materials on Election Day Ruled Not Improper

Posting campaign literature, wearing pro-Federation buttons, and providing needed transportation to the polls did not significantly affect the outcome of an election and, therefore, were not improper practices. The Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Service dismissed charges filed by the Stewartville Education Association against the Stewartville Federation of Teachers and sustained the Association's defeat in a representation election between the two organizations.

The SFT had filed for the representation election, seeking to displace the SEA as bargaining agent for the Stewartville teachers. While successful in the election, the SFT's certification as exclusive representive was delayed owing to the charges of unfair labor practices filed by the SEA. The Association's charges alleged violation of three Bureau election rules dealing with proper posting of pro-SFT materials, transportation to the polls, and partisan discussions with students concerning the election.

Testimony at hearings revealed that SFT posters had been placed on a hall bulletin board used by both organizations and in the school library, and that a few teachers had worn SFT buttons during the representation campaign. One teacher, absent because of bereavement, was visited at home by fellow teachers who gave her a ride to the polls at her request. Another teacher had made remarks to students about the demise of the SEA by way of explaining the significance of a flower he was wearing.

The Bureau director hearing the case noted that the flower incident had occurred so soon after the election rules were issued that the teacher involved might not have been aware of them. He found no violation in providing a ride to the polls under the circumstances attested to, and regarded the SFT identification buttons as innocuous though a "use of poor judgment." The violation in posting signs was that they could be viewed by students, the director observed, but the action did not affect the election results.

The charges were dismissed and the SFT was certified as the exclusive representative for the teacher unit. (SFT and SEA, and Independent School District No. 534, Stewartville, Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, April 5, 1974.)

NEW YORK

Association Dues Deduction Privileges Suspended

PERB confirmed a hearing officer's report which charged the Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association (SVTA) with conducting an illegal strike proscribed under the state's Taylor Law. In addition to the already imposed court fines, the PERB ordered the SVTA's dues check-off privileges suspended for 12 months, with restoration subject to a promise not to engage in future strike activity.

The SVTA had presented before the hearing officer 15 specifications of improper practice and/or failure to negotiate in good faith which the association contended, taken together created extreme provocation and thus caused it to engage in a strike. However, the hearing officer dismissed all charges but three, which he deemed had only a "chilling" effect on negotiations.

With regard to the three violations of improper practice charged against the school board, the hearing officer ordered the board to cease and desist from refusing to negotiate with the SVTA in good faith and interfering with, restraining, and coercing its employees in their exercise of protected rights under the Act by (a) reneging upon matters previously agreed upon during negotiations, (b) improperly preconditioning negotiations upon the reopening of previously resolved matters, and (c) failing to maintain the status quo. Also, he ordered the board to compensate returning employees for the period September 5 to October 5 with the appropriate percentage of their annual increments as called for by the prior contract, together with interest thereon at the rate of 3 percent per annum, and to post an appropriate notice at locations ordinarily used to communicate with unit employees.

The hearing officer dismissed the 12 alleged violations since most of them concerned the board's duty to negotiate in good faith, which, as defined by the PERB, required that "both parties approach the negotiating table with a sincere desire to reach an agreement." From this perspective, PERB stated that the SVTA had failed to sustain its burden of proof as to these allegations.

As to the strike charge against the SVTA, the hearing officer recommended that the Association be found to have violated paragraph 210 of the Act and that the penalty imposed by the PERB reflect the impact of a 17-day strike and its effect upon the public health, safety and welfare of the community in the absence of "extreme provocation." The hearing officer reasoned that despite the exhaustive list of charges made by the SVTA and the circumstances surrounding negotiations, the strike was intended to secure an improved negotiating position and not a result of extreme provocation. Therefore, the PERB ordered that the dues deduction privileges of the SVTA be suspended for 12 months commencing immediately, and that this privilege be restored thereafter if the SVTA affirmed that it no longer asserted the right to strike. (Board of Education, Central School District No. 1, The Towns of Conklin, Binghamton, Kirkwood and Vestal, Broome County, and Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association, Public Employment Relations Board, August 31, 1973.)

NEVADA

Unification Now Permitted; Scope of Bargaining Further Delineated

In two recent Nevada Local Government Employee-Management Relations Board decisions, a reversal of a previous order now permits unified membership and landmark definitions expand the scope of negotiable items to include the hiring of nonteaching aides and preparation time for parent-teacher meetings. Excluded as bargainable items, however, were teacher evaluation of evaluators; assignment of the aides; hiring and assignment of nurses; a minimum discretionary fund per teacher for instructional materials; matters dealing with field trips; and the number, staffing, and operation of libraries.

The unification case was heard upon petition by the Clark County Classroom Teachers Association to reconsider an earlier Board ruling that it was unlawful to require membership in the Nevada State Education Association and the NEA upon joining the CCCTA. The decision had been rendered in a case involving a complaint filed by Local 2170 of the American Federation of Teachers charging administrator dominance within the unified local. The Board examined the eligibility and the role of administrators and principals in the NSEA and NEA, noting that neither could be members of the CCCTA since the Nevada bargaining law prohibited them from joining.

The Board also found that the actual percentage of administrator members in the state and national associations was too small to control policy at either level and that the number of such members was diminishing. Local affiliates were clearly autonomous, the Board discovered, and since only teachers could join the CCCTA, with that membership a condition of state and national membership, administrator dominance could not be substantiated. The Board further established that unified membership systems were common among labor organizations.

Finding no violation of the statute barring administrator membership in dominance of a teacher organization, the Board reversed its previous decision and allowed CCCTA's unified membership plan.

The second case concerned bargaining proposals offered by the Washoe County Teachers Association which were held non-negotiable by the Washoe County School District. The issues were brought before the Board for a ruling, along with the matter of admitting substitute and adult education teachers to the WCTA.

The contested WCTA proposals were:

Hiring teacher aides to relieve the noninstructional clerical load

Creation of a $100 per teacher discretionary fund for extra materials

Employment of more school nurses

Additional preparation time for parent-teacher conferences

Released time for visitations by special education teachers

A procedure for teacher evaluation of administrators, including the evaluation criteria and implementation guidelines

Expansion of library facilities and additional library staff

Procedures for employment and training of substitute teachers

Provision for more instructional field trips.

The Board found all but the first two proposals to be management prerogatives not affecting teachers' wages, hours, and conditions of employment and, therefore, nonnegotiable. While the employment of teacher aides was bargainable, the procedures for hiring and assigning aides were not negotiable, the Board ruled. The Association petition was upheld in regard to bargaining over parent-teacher conferences, but not over the dates of such meetings.

The Board ruled adult education teachers ineligible to join the regular teacher unit since adult education had recently become the responsibility of the community colleges. The inclusion of substitute teachers hinged upon the individual's length of employment since a per-diem rate was paid for up to 20 teaching days, while substitutes employed for longer periods were given short-term contracts paralleling scheduled salaries for regular teachers. Therefore, the Board ruled that substitute teachers fitted the negotiated definition of teacher and could be included in the bargaining unit. (Las Vegas Federation of Teachers vs. Clark County School District and Clark County Classroom Teachers Association, Nevada Local Government Employee-Management Relations Board, April 23, 1974.) (Matter of Washoe County Teachers Association and Washoe County School District, Nevada Local Government Employee-Management Relations Board, March 26, 1974.)

VERMONT

Dissemination of Organizing Materials During Working Hours Lawfully Prohibited

Prohibiting distribution of organizational campaign literature during office hours does not constitute an unfair labor practice when the distributing of the literature disrupts normal work operations. The Vermont Employees Labor Relations Board so ruled in dismissing charges brought by the American Federation of Teachers alleging unlawful interference with the formation of a union in the Vermont State College system. The AFT had previously been successful in a representation election for a unit of state college faculty members and subsequently sought to organize nonfaculty workers. However, union tactics ran afoul of administration policies, resulting in management's attempt to restrict organizing activity, and subsequent union charges of interference with legitimate campaign practices.

The specific issue addressed in the board's decision concerned the distribution of a leaflet announcing the rescheduling of a union meeting. Given the urgency of the message, a union organizer and a faculty member distributed notices during working hours and conferred with workers at their desks. The organizers were informed that campus policy prohibited solicitation during working hours and that their communications effort had clearly violated that policy.

The AFT filed charges of unfair labor practice, asserting that campus management was attempting to interfere with the formation and orderly conduct of a union, an activity proscribed under the state bargaining law. The union felt that ample precedent had been established in the earlier faculty election when professors had been visited during the work day and no challenges had been raised by the administration. The Board determined, however, that the issue had not been brought up in this campaign and that the administration's policy was not in written form.

Striving for a balance between the union's protected activity and the campus management's right to maintain orderly business operations, the Board commented that the policy, nonetheless, was reasonable. The union did have regular access to the campus mails and could visit employees outside working hours. Acknowledging that faculty members had been visited by union organizers during office hours, the Board maintained that working conditions for non-faculty employees were clearly different and that visiting these employees at their desks disrupted the operation of college business. The Board ruled, therefore, that the college administration's restrictions on union activity were justifiable, nondiscriminatory, and not an unfair labor practice. (American Federation of Teachers vs. Vermont State Colleges, Vermont Employees Labor Relations Board, March 8, 1974.)

WISCONSIN

Grievance Rights May Not Be Abriged Between Contracts

Unilateral modification of any item within the scope of bargaining is unlawful in the interim between the lapse of the old contract and the effective date of a successor contract. The Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission sustained an examining officer's order prohibiting the school board of Unified School District No. 1 (Racine County) from changing the grievance procedure during negotiations for a successor agreement with the Racine Education Association.

With the lapse of the association contract, the school board adopted a policy limiting the types of grievances which could be adjudicated and eliminated binding arbitration. The board maintained that operational pressures justified the change and that the issue was moot since a new contract had already been signed.

The Association charged that the board's action constituted an unfair labor practice. The examining officer found for the Association, ruling that the board had failed to meet its obligation to negotiate the changes.

The WERC concurred with the examining officer's report and pointed out that grievance and arbitration procedures fall within the scope of bargaining delineated in the Wisconsin Municipal Employment Relations Act. Failure to bargain over or unilaterally changing any terms and conditions of employment during negotiations is a "prohibited practice" under the Act, WERC ruled. While aware of a new agreement between the parties, WERC insisted that the violation be specified and a cease and desist order rendered so as to preclude a recurrence of the board's action. (Racine Education Association v. Unified School District No. 1 of Racine County, Wisconsin, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, April 19, 1974.)

Student Counselors, Librarians, and Federally Funded Teachers Should Be Included in Unit of Full-time Teaching Personnel

Ruling on a unit petition, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission (WERC) held that student counselor, librarian, and federally funded teacher positions ought to be included in a unit of full-time teaching personnel represented by AFT Local 2308.

WERC rationalized that student counselors have a similar education background and role in the educational program; thereby they share a community of interest with the certified teaching staff although they are not directly involved in teaching. Turning to the librarian position, WERC found that it should also be included in the unit since the duties are not supervisory and there is a community of interest.

Finally, WERC ruled that even though the federally funded teachers receive hourly pay but no fringe benefits, such as the locally funded teachers do, they should be included in the unit since the similarity of the profession negates differences in employment conditions. (Vocational, Technical, and Adult Education District No. 5 and AFT Local 2380, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, July 30, 1973.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

MONTANA

Higher Education Bargaining Law Passed

The state public employee bargaining statutes have been amended by the legislature to provide basic organizing rights and procedures for collective bargaining faculty members and other resident professional educational employees working half time or more at a university or community college. This broad scope of law guarantees "academic freedom," provides for exclusive representation by a bargaining agent, and delineates methods for resolution of conflicts including voluntary binding arbitration.

Bargaining unit eligibility is extended to teaching faculty, librarians, counselors, researchers, chairmen, and deans, with the stipulation that they be employed at least half-time and not be registered as students. Professional employees are granted the right to form collective organizations and negotiate over terms and conditions of employment. Agreement on salaries, wage scales, hours of work, fringe benefits, grievance procedure, and other negotiated items must be in the form of a written contract.

Administrators employed at the central administrative offices of a university or community college are excluded by definition from faculty bargaining units. Prohibited unfair labor practices include administrator dominance or interference with bargaining unit organizing activities, interference with the internal operation of the employee association, refusal to negotiate, and attempts to influence membership in unions.

The state board of personnel appeals will conduct certification elections for exclusive bargaining representative when a labor organization can prove support of the potential unit by at least 30 percent of the employees involved. A representative election will be held under the auspices of the state labor department prior to the certification election if the board determines that doubt exists as to the desire of the employees to organize and negotiate. For both elections, the board defines the bargaining unit and eligible voters in consultation with the higher education commission. The certified union is determined by majority vote although the board must also be satisfied that the organizational structure is democratic and utilizes sound fiscal controls. An agency shop clause is permitted, with nonassociated employees having the right to contribute the fee to a union designated charity. The union is prohibited from refusing to bargain or abridging individual member rights.

Charges of unfair labor practices by either employer or union are to be adjudicated by the board of personnel appeals or its appointed examining officer. After hearings at which the parties at issue present testimony, the examiner will issue a ruling to dismiss, sustain, or award redress, which will serve as the board's order unless challenged within 20 days.

As both union and employer have a duty to bargain, provision exists for mediation in the event of negotiations disputes. Either side may submit such disputes to mediation; however, the board may intervene to initiate mediation if no agreement is reached within 60 days. The parties then have 30 days to settle before the board convenes a fact-finding panel whose expenses are shared by the board and disputants. The dispute may also be submitted to voluntary, binding arbitration, although the decision is regarded as advisory if it requires legislative action. Arbitration costs are shared half by the state and half between the parties.

Binding arbitration may also be negotiated as part of the grievance procedure, with the stipulation that individuals may present grievances themselves and not through the union, if they so desire. Decisions and awards rendered under the alternative process must conform with the contract.

All concerned are urged to negotiate in time to reach agreement before state budget submissions are filed.

Charitable Contributions May Be Substituted for Dues

An amendment effective July 1, 1974, adds to the Montana public employee bargaining statute a provision allowing individuals whose religion prohibits them from joining a union to contribute the agency shop fee to a charity. The procedure also applies to initiation fees and any assessments levied by the union where an agency shop guarantee has been secured. The labor organization is authorized to select a "nonreligious, nonunion" charity, and the employee must furnish the union with written proof of payment. The same penalties provided by the contract for nonpayment of dues apply if the individual fails to pay or furnish proof of payment.

The employee initiates the procedure by written petition to the chairman of the board of personnel appeals. A committee is then appointed within 10 days to decide upon the eligibility of the petitioner for "nonassociation" status. The three-member committee consists of a clergyman of a denomination different from that of the employee, a labor representative not connected with the union, and an at-large member who presides and must call a meeting within 10 days to hear evidence. A decision must be rendered within three days, with copies forwarded to all parties.

AGO OPINION

The state attorney general recently ruled on three similar cases involving employee benefits:

- A board of county commissioners cannot enter into a contract incorporating payments by the county toward group insurance premiums exceeding the statutorily prescribed amount of $10 per month per employee.
- A county must remit employee benefits to the union trust as assigned by the employees rather than pay such benefits as wages, the maximum contribution to the trust not exceeding the maximum of $10 per month per employee allowed by law.
- A county employer is prohibited from contributing to both the Public Employees Retirement System and a private union pension trust, but union employees may contribute to the latter even though the county contributes to the former.

NEW YORK

Taylor Law Amendments Provide Binding Arbitration for Police, Firemen; Teachers' Recourse to PERB over Salary Impasse

Two Identical amendments to the Taylor Law, effective July 1, 1974, now allow binding arbitration where impasse occurs during negotiations between public employers and policemen and fire fighters in New York State. The changes in the bargaining law do not affect New York City, where separate negotiation statutes are currently in effect. Procedures governing negotiations with school boards revised to provide mediation under the Public Employment Relations Board in cases of impasse over salary matters. School boards formerly could set salaries if agreement was not reached with teacher organizations.

While the provisions for binding arbitration of impasses involving police and fire fighters negotiations will be in effect for only three years, framers of the legislation hope for a greater incidence of realistic negotiations and voluntary settlements so that the procedure can be extended to other organized bodies. The guidelines and time limits for impasse resolution under the new rules are as follows:

Mediation—Wherever impasse is declared by either employees or employer, or determined to exist by the PERB, the PERB will appoint a mediator who will reconcile the dispute for up to 15 days.

Fact Finding—If no agreement is reached during mediation, the parties will proceed to advisory fact finding. If the parties do not agree on the fact finder, PERB is authorized to appoint one. The fact finder is allowed 10 days for consultation with the parties and must file his advisory recommendations with PERB within 30 days after the meeting period.

Binding Arbitration—The parties have 10 days from the filing of the fact finder's report to seek binding arbitration. A three-member panel will be appointed, consisting of one employee representative, one management representative and a public member, selected by the parties, who serves as chairman. PERB will pay the chairman's fees if he is chosen from a list of PERB arbitrators; otherwise, the parties will share these costs. An eleventh-hour rule enables the parties to renegotiate any disputed matter immediately prior to a vote on the issue by the arbitration panel. Decisions will be reached by majority vote and will be binding (not subject to local municipal or legislative review) for two years from the expiration date of the contract.

If no contract exists, the decision will be binding for two years from the date of the panel's report.

Under new regulations covering teacher union-school board negotiations, a settlement must be reached over salary issues and PERB is authorized to conciliate if impasse prevents an agreement on compensation. Effective May 23, 1974, a school board cannot unilaterally impose a salary schedule in the event of impasse, as was formerly the case when school boards were authorized to arbitrate impasse disputes and at the same time be a party at interest.

The imbalance in favor of the school boards has been abolished so that PERB can more effectively utilize mediation and fact finding in an effort to facilitate an agreement.

* * *

FEDERAL

Supreme Court Hears Arguments on California Maternity Disability Benefits

The constitutionality of denying disability benefits for normal pregnancies under the California Unemployment Insurance Code is being considered by the Supreme Court of the United States. Although the state UIC has been amended through legislative action following an Appellate Division decision favoring disability benefits for complications arising from pregnancy, normal pregnancy and delivery are still excluded as a compensable disability. Three of four appellees in the case which reached the high court did receive disability benefits for complications following the change in the law; however, the fourth who had had a normal delivery did not.

Arguing against the benefits, the California Deputy Attorney General noted that costs per woman in Hawaii, where normal pregnancies are covered, had doubled and that since the change in the California law, women were receiving more benefits than men and had a greater claim rate. In addition, the state attorney pointed out that increased costs which would force an increase in funding, that pregnancy was voluntary and could be planned, that pregnancy involved extended leave, and that medical treatment varied in pregnancy cases. A lower rate of return to work following pregnancy as compared to other disability leaves was also claimed and attested to in amicus curia briefs filed by General Electric and ATT.

The appellees' attorney attempted to focus on the issue as it concerned benefits to be paid for disabilities arising out of normal pregnancies. Further discussion revealed that hysterectomies were covered under California law, but coverage in cases of voluntary abortion was undecided. The higher disability rate among women was attributed to the disparity in wages between the sexes—low wage earners generally had a higher disability rate. Arguments next focused on the state's claim of disproportionate cost, with counsel for the appellees agreeing that extending the coverage would cost more but not to the extent claimed. Denial of disability benefits for pregnancy amounts to sex discrimination and should be banned, he said.

The favorable support of labor unions added to the weight of testimony seeking to remove discriminatory coverage, further discounted the state's argument of increased costs.

The summation on behalf of the state emphasized that the matter was properly a concern of the state legislature and that the change in coverage sought would result in a small percentage of workers receiving a disproportionate percentage of disability benefits. (Geduldig v. Aiello; Geduldig v. Armendariz, Johnson, Jaramillo; U.S. Supreme Court No. 73-640.)

* * *

Labor Department Allocates $620 Million To Create Public Service Jobs

The distribution of $620 million to all states and over 600 local governments has been provided by the U.S. Department of Labor to create approximately 95,000 public service jobs from money made available under the Second Supplemental Appropriations Act for fiscal 1974.

Most of the money (over half) is appropriated under Title II of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA) to provide transitional public service employment for the unemployed and underemployed in areas of substantial unemployment, those where there was joblessness of 6.5 percent or more in three consecutive months. Program agents under the Emergency Employment Act (EEA) will receive the remainder of the money. The funds will provide related training and services to persons in public service jobs, helping them to move into regular private sector employment.

In distributing the funds under CETA, $296 million will go to 316 state and local governments and all federal and state Indian reservations. All states, cities, and counties of over 75,000 population, and Indian intertribal councils serving as program agents will receive $238.5 million under Section 5 of the Emergency Employment Act of 1971. This appropriation is fashioned to facilitate an orderly transition from the expired EEA to the new CETA. Finally, at the Secretary's discretion, $85.5 million will be distributed under CETA Title II to areas of substantial unemployment, and for program administration.

The Labor Department regional offices will distribute the funds on the basis of applications submitted by prime sponsors under CETA and by program agents under EEA. Funds distributed under CETA must be used by June 30, 1975, and EEA funds must be used by March 31, 1975, as EEA will be terminated on that date.

For both CETA and EEA, potential hires must be unemployed or underemployed, with special consideration to be given to groups such as veterans, welfare recipients, and former manpower trainees. Public employees under the plan must receive the same pay, benefits, and working conditions as regular employees.

SPECIAL REPORTS

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

SHAWNEE MISSION, KANSAS

Between Shawnee Mission School District No. 512 and National Education Association of Shawnee Mission, effective July 1, 1974, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 1,400 certificated professional employees, including all members of the teaching staff regularly assigned as well as those assigned on a part-time basis.

COMPENSATION: Up to six years' credit on the salary schedule will be granted for previous approved experience; a maximum of three years' credit on the salary schedule may be granted for military service or alternate civilian service required by the selective service system.

OTHER: Summer school payment will be computed on an hourly basis for four hours per day for four, six, or eight weeks to be paid in two checks, one each session or semester of summer school.

LEAVES: Teachers are allowed 10 days' personal leave per year plus 3 days' bereavement leave; personal leave may accumulate without limit; up to the total number of days of accumulated personal leave may be used for personal illness or injury; up to three days per contract year may be used for emergency leave, and up to two days per contract year may be used for business leave; selected teachers may be granted leave to attend state, regional, or national meetings of professional education associations or learned societies; leave will be granted for jury duty with the difference between the teacher's salary and pay for jury duty to be paid by the district; up to 15 days will be granted for military reserve obligations; the teacher will be reimbursed any difference between his base contract daily rate and his military pay; an employee will be paid his full salary less the amount of any Workmen's Compensation payments for up to 180 days for personal injury arising out of employment.

PARENTAL LEAVE

(All requests for extended leaves of absence will be applied for and those approved shall be granted in writing.)

1. A teacher may be granted a leave of absence, without pay or increment, for the purpose of prenatal care, or for the purpose of child care, upon the birth or adoption of a child into his or her family. In the event that both parents are employees of the District, then they must elect which one shall take the leave. Such leave may commence at any time and may extend through the end of the current contract year.

2. Such leave may be combined with Personal Leave as follows:

(a) Absence caused by physical incapacity must be charged to Sick Leave under the provisions of Section "D", Personal Leave, Temporary and Section "E", Sick Leave.

(b) In such case, the teacher may be required to submit periodically, with the Personnel Office, a physician's statement setting forth the nature of the illness or incapacity and the projected date of possible return.

(c) Use of accumulated Personal Leave shall cease as of the date on which the physician certifies that the teacher is physically capable of returning to a teaching assignment. The leave of absence, without pay or increment, granted for the purpose of child care shall commence on that date.

3. Upon written application, such leave may be extended for one school year.

Teachers enrolled in approved graduate study programs leading to advanced degrees may be authorized to be absent from assigned duties for a designated portion of the regular work day or work week to attend classes or to participate in the activities required in the degree program; the salary of such teachers will be prorated accordingly; teachers appointed to official bodies of the state of Kansas may be allowed excused absences without loss of pay, as necessary to attend scheduled meetings; upon return from military leave, the employee will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have attained had leave not been taken; leaves of absence without pay may be granted for foreign travel or teaching and academic study.

INSURANCE: Blue Cross—Blue Shield plan is subsidized by the district and is available to all employees without restriction at a reduced rate; the board will contribute up to $16.64 of the individual employee's single membership premium of the current district approved health plan; tax-sheltered annuity plan available.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; teachers designated by the Association may, upon request, be granted a leave of absence for up to two years without pay to engage in activities of local, state, or national affiliates of the Association; upon return the teacher will be assigned to the same or to a substantially equivalent position; Association may use school buildings at reasonable times; the board will provide information such as financial data, names and addresses of employees, and board agenda.

INSTRUCTION: All teachers will have an uninterrupted duty-free lunch period of at least 25 minutes; teachers assigned full-time to a secondary school will have at least one period each day for planning, preparation, and evaluation of instructional activities; elementary-school teachers, 150 minutes per week; teachers will start work 30 minutes before classes convene and will remain 30 minutes after classes are dismissed.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with superintendent's decision; employees have the right to review personnel file and to answer any material filed subsequent to employment and have such answer affixed to the material; an employee may have any evidence of competence, professionalism, or outstanding performance or service he chooses placed in his personnel folders in the building and at the district offices.

PROFESSIONAL GROWTH

A. Professional Growth

The Board and the Association recognize that continual growth in knowledge of the content and methodology of education is essential for all teachers. To assure good education for students, minimum periodic study expectations are established in terms of professional growth units. One professional growth unit is defined as one semester hour of college or university credit or the equivalent quality and amount of work normally required to receive one semester hour of college credit and receiving the approval of the Professional Growth Committee.

B. Professional Growth Committee

The Professional Growth Committee will be composed of eleven members: the Director of Staff Development of the Shawnee Mission Public Schools, five members to be appointed by the Association, and five members to be appointed by the Superintendent. The Director of Staff Development serves as a permanent member and chairman of the committee.

C. Periodic Study Requirements

1. A teacher who holds a Bachelor's Degree is expected to earn at least six professional growth units within each four-year period.

2. A teacher who holds a Master's Degree is expected to earn at least six professional growth units within each six-year period.

3. Sections (1) and (2) will not apply to teachers past age sixty-five who have been in the service of the District a minimum of ten years.

4. A teacher may postpone periodic study upon presentation and approval of an application for deferment. Such application should be supplemented by a letter from a licensed physician stating that, in the best interest of the teacher's health, the teacher should rest or receive medical treatment during the summer months rather than attend summer school.

5. Credit shall not be given for a Master's Degree unless a minor is in the field of subject assignments.

A probationary period of at least three consecutive years of experience in the district is required of all teachers before they attain permanent status; the board may extend the probationary period up to four or five years if deemed necessary to fully assess performance and improvement; the teacher will be informed in a private conference and in writing of the extension of probation, the reasons for extension, and areas in need of improvement; recommendations for dismissal of a probationary teacher or placement of a teacher on permanent status will be made by March 15 of the fifth year of probation; if a probationary teacher is not continued in employment, the board will advise the teacher of the reasons therefor in writing; any proposed discharge or demotion of a permanent status teacher must be preceded by a warning and a specific statement in writing of the reasons therefor, and the teacher will be given not less than nine weeks to demonstrate improvement if the proposed discharge or demotion is based on incompetency or neglect of duty; the building principal and the appropriate supervisor will design a program of inservice activity to help the teacher bring his performance to such a level of improvement that at the end of nine school weeks continued employment may be possible.

PERSONNEL APPRAISAL

1. In order to insure a high quality of performance on the part of certified employees of Unified School District No. 512, Johnson County, Kansas, a continuous program of teacher and administrator evaluation shall be established in the School District. The purposes of such evaluation program shall be:

(a) To improve the performance of individual staff members and thus the instructional program of the School District.
(b) To assist in the implementation of District and state educational goals.
(c) To assist the employee in developing specific goals for implementing his contractual assignments.
(d) To build community confidence in the quality of the school.
(e) To identify teachers and administrators who may qualify for positions of greater responsibility in the School District.
(f) To provide a basis for administrative recommendation and Board decision as to renewal of contract.

2. The Board of Education adopts the general philosophy that any evaluation system should be based upon the development of specific performance objectives. Such objectives should be jointly developed by the individual employee who is the subject of the evaluation process and by personnel designated by the Board. The Board shall place primary responsibility upon members of the administrative staff in making such evaluations. Once such performance objectives have been identified and agreed upon, the evaluation process should attempt to measure the success of the individual employee in meeting his own performance objectives for the school year.

3. The evaluation procedure shall include self-evalution on the part of the individual employee, classroom and/or other building area visitations by the administrative staff of the School District, and such other evaluative procedures as the Superintendent of Schools may deem appropriate.

All certified employees will be evaluated at least twice a year in the first two consecutive years of employment, once a year during the third and fourth years of employment, and after the fourth year, at least once in every three years; evaluated personnel will have the right to discuss the written appraisal with their evaluator and the right to answer any part of such report; such written answer will be affixed to the report before it is submitted to the personnel office or filed; if an employee is rated as less than satisfactory in any formal evaluation, he and his evaluator will work together to raise the employee's level of performance before the next formal appraisal.

TERMINATION OF CONTRACT

1. A contract may be canceled by mutual agreement or for one or more of the following causes after due process shall have been afforded the teacher:

(a) incompetency;
(b) physical disability or sickness of any type which interferes with the performance of duty;
(c) insubordination, which shall be deemed to mean a willful refusal to obey the school laws of this state, the rulings of the State Board of Education, or reasonable rules and regulations prescribed for the government of the schools of the District by the Board;
(d) neglect of duty;
(e) immorality;
(f) failure to give evidence of professional growth;
(g) unethical conduct as outlined in the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession and as determined by the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association.

2. The District reserves the right to dismiss teachers because of decrease in the number of pupils or for other causes over which it has no control. The selection of teachers for dismissal shall be made in a nonarbitrary manner.

3. Physical and mental examinations may be ordered only when reasonable cause exists for believing that the professional performance of a teacher is being impaired by reason of health. The teacher may appeal such an order through the grievance procedure prior to submitting to a physical or mental examination.

4. The Board may order a physical or mental examination for a permanent status teacher prior to dismissal on the basis of physical or mental disability, the expense to be borne by the District. The teacher may have his own examination, and in the event the medical examinations conflict, a third examination may be ordered at Board expense to be conducted by a mutually-acceptable physician.

If a teacher's written request for assignment to a particular position is not accepted, the teacher will receive an explanation in writing from the principal; when a request for transfer is denied, notification will include an explanation of the reasons for denial; district teachers will be given consideration for vacancies as they occur before new teachers are employed to fill vacant positions; if a teacher objects to an involuntary transfer or to the procedures followed in implementing the transfer, he may appeal through the grievance procedure; in filling summer school openings, preference will be given to applicants from the regularly appointed teaching staff, but this will not preclude the board from employing outside personnel who would benefit the program.

* * *

MONTGOMERY COUNTY
ROCKVILLE, MARYLAND

Between Montgomery County Board of Education and Montgomery County Education Association, effective for the school years 1974-76. Approximately 7,318 certificated professional employees. In October of each year that the Association is recognized, the parties will present all proposals relative to salaries, wages, hours, and other working conditions.

COMPENSATION: (1974) B.A., $8,668 to $11,788, 6 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $13,695 maximum; M.A. $9,408 to $17,596, 13 increments; M.A. plus 30 hours, $18,289 maximum.

All personnel on the state nondegree, state bachelor's degree salary schedule, and the Montgomery County Public Schools supplementary salary schedule will be guaranteed a minimum of 7.0 percent over their fiscal year 1974 salary.

The 1974-75 salary schedule will be adjusted beginning July 1, 1975, for 1975-76 as follows:

a. The percent of adjustment will be determined by the year-end averaging of the percent of increase of the Consumer Price Index for the Washington Metropolitan Area ending with the following dates: November 1973; February, 1974; May, 1974; and August, 1974. The amount of money to be added for salary schedule improvement will be determined by applying the resultant percentage to the total cost of FY 1975 professional salaries and wages updated to FY 1976.

Since the Department of Staff Development administers the credit granting authority for salary placement, appeals from this authority should be provided. A special appeals board shall be established composed of two members appointed by the Superintendent from Board staff, other than staff of the Department of Staff Development, and two members appointed by the Association. The appeals board will receive appeals from the credit granting authority and recommend dispositions to the Associate Superintendent for Personnel Services who will make the final decision. Annually, on or before May 1, the appeals board will review the criteria employed in granting of credit and report its findings to the PDEI Committee.

Longevity

All teachers on schedules C and D will be eligible for longevity pay according to the following criteria:
(a) Longevity Payment I — Beginning the tenth* creditable year of employment with the Montgomery County Public Schools, and the nineteenth year of total creditable experience.
(b) Longevity Payment II — Beginning the fifteenth* creditable year of employment with the Montgomery County Public Schools, and the twenty-fourth year of total creditable experience.
(c) Longevity Payment III — Beginning the twentieth* creditable year of employment with the Montgomery County Public Schools, and the Twenty-ninth year of total creditable experience.

*Only creditable years of experience shall be considered toward longevity. Years employed on a second-class certificate shall not be considered creditable years. A longevity increment shall be determined as follows:

Longevity I — 5 percent times the first step of the bachelor's degree salary schedule.
Longevity II — 10 percent times the first step of the bachelor's degree salary schedule.
Longevity III — 15 percent times the first step of the bachelor's degree salary schedule.

DIFFERENTIALS: Classification III—golf, track, soccer, cross country, girls' hockey, girls' basketball, and girls' volleyball coaches, choral and drama directors, yearbook and newspaper sponsors, $400; Classification IV—cross country, tennis, and swimming coaches, gymnastics director, class advisor, $700; Classification V—choral director, basketball coach, assistant soccer coach, intramural director, debate and forensics sponsors, band, drama, and stage directors, yearbook and newspaper sponsors, $1,000; Classification VI—soccer coach, assistant wrestling, baseball, track, basketball, and football coaches, $1,300; Classification VII—athletic director, baseball, basketball, track, wrestling, football coaches, $1,600.

OTHER: Resource teachers will be paid $1,000 for a department of 4-9 teachers or $1,600 for a department of more than 9 teachers; one-session kindergarten teachers will work four hours and 10 minutes each duty day and will be paid at 60 percent of their appropriate salary placement; 13 cents per mile for authorized use of personal automobile; if gasoline prices increase or decrease from the January 1, 1974, prices, mileage will be adjusted one cent for every 10 cent change; part-time work will be compensated at the hourly rate commensurate with the unit member's experience and training and the member will be eligible on a proportional basis for all the benefits enjoyed by a full-time unit member.

LEAVES: Not negotiated this year; a unit member absent from school as a result of personal injury caused by an accident or an assault occurring in the course of his employment will be paid full salary less the Workmen's Compensation award for the period of such absence; 12-month employees may be granted summer leave without pay for not more than 37 days provided they file a written request for such leave with the associate superintendent for personnel services by April 15.

INSURANCE:

INSURANCE AND ANNUITY

A. As of July 1, 1974, the Board agrees to continue the following plan of shared premium cost for the current health insurance-life-dental insurance program:

Years in Employee Benefit Plan	Board	Unit Member
1-3	55%	45%
4-7	65%	35%
7 and thereafter	75%	25%

B. The Board agrees to continue to carry a comprehensive general liability policy in which employees are named insureds while acting within the scope of their duties with limits of liability at not less than $300,000.

C. Unit members will be eligible to participate in the currently available tax-deferred annuity plans. The forms for the necessary reduction of annual salaries shall be availabe at the central office or MCEA's headquarters.

D. The joint MCEA-MCPS committee for the purpose of reviewing periodically the Employee Benefit Plan shall be continued and shall make recommendations to the parties when warranted. Each party shall appoint three members of the committee.

E. A special committee shall be formed to study the Federal HMO law and report recommendations to the Superintendent by November 15, 1974, with Board of Education acting upon them by January 15, 1975.

The board will reimburse a teacher up to $10,000 for the cost of medical, surgical, or hospital services (less insurance reimbursement) incurred as the result of any injury sustained in the course of employment; the board will reimburse a teacher up to $500 for any clothing or other personal property damaged or destroyed as the result of his enforcement of school regulations.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues;

Association officers and/or representatives will be permitted to draw on a bank of 250 full paydays for use in external or internal Association business. No less than one-half day may be used at any one time and no unit member may be absent for this purpose more than ten (10) days per year. Such leave will be granted in accordance with the current procedures established by the Superintendent.

The Association president will be granted leave at half salary and related permissible benefits; Association members participating in negotiation meetings between the board and the Association held during the school day will charge leave to the Association's leave bank; a bulletin board for the Association will be provided in each building; the Association has the right to use school buildings and equipment at reasonable times and also the interschool mail service; the board will provide information relating to board agenda prior to each meeting and a copy of board minutes after their approval by the board; the Association will appoint a liaison committee in each building to meet with the principal or appropriate supervisor monthly to discuss matters of common interest and concern; the school board and the superintendent will meet with the Association Board of Directors at agreed-upon times to discuss matters of common concern and interest.

INSTRUCTION: Teachers will be responsible for no more than three preparations a day; teachers in schools organized on a six-period schedule will be assigned no more than five regular classes and one period for preparation; teachers of vocational subjects may be assigned six classes but will not be assigned a home room or other duties; elementary teachers will be granted three hours' planning time per week; the board will make an effort to guarantee that no self-contained elementary class will exceed 35; if a class does exceed 35, every effort will be made to provide an aide for that class; in staffing schools with classroom teachers, however, school administrators should regard ratios ranging from one teacher for each 25 or 28 pupils as the arrangement which will be approximated following assignment of all professional personnel in the school system; teachers' work day will be eight hours; unit members will indicate their presence for work by placing a check mark in the appropriate column of the faculty "sign in" roster; the number of student instructional days will not exceed 185.

EDUCATIONAL SPECIALSTS

A. The Board and the Association recognize the fact that an adequate number of competent specialists is essential to the operation of an effective and productive educational program.

B. Where possible and practical in terms of the budget which is authorized by the County Council, the Board will not reduce the number of specialists employed in the school system and where circumstances permit will strive to increase their number in order to reach the following goals;

1. Elementary Schools
   Reading Specialists — Not less than one for every two schools

Music Teachers—Instrumental	Not less than one for every five schools
Art Teachers	Not less than one for every 540 students
Guidance Counselors and Social Workers	This program to be expanded as budget permits with a continual evaluation to be carried out.
Music Teachers—Vocal	Not less than one for every 540 students
Physical Education Teachers	Not less than one for every 450 students
Librarians	Not less than one per school
2. Secondary Schools
Guidance Counselors	Not less than one for every 300 students
Librarians	Not less than one for every 500 students
3. Pupil Services Personnel (including pupil personnel workers, school psychologists, students, social workers, community coordinators)	Not less than one for every 2,000 students
4. Speech and/or Hearing Therapists	Not less than one for every 2,000 students

C. Elementary art, vocal music, and physical education teachers shall be assigned to no more than two schools if possible and in no case more than three schools.
D. New secondary schools shall open with an allotment of counselors which is at least that which would be normally assigned under the current staffing standard.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; right to review personnel file and be accompanied by an Association representative; the Professional Development and Educational Improvement Committee, composed of five members appointed by the Association and five appointed by the superintendent, will review and make recommendations on the progress of staff development, preservice teacher education programs in teacher education institutions and preservice teacher education practice and policies in the district, and certification regulations for the state of Maryland; the Committee will also consider and recommend new programs to promote the professional growth and competence of unit members; at least twice a year, one-half day will be utilized for inservice programs to be planned as area-wide workshops; upon written request teachers will be given a copy of any class visit or evaluation report prepared by their supervisor at least one day before a conference is held to discuss it; no report will be submitted to the central office, placed in the teacher's file, or otherwise acted upon before a conference with the teacher; teachers may attach comments to any derogatory material in their file; probationary teachers who receive notice of nonrenewal of a provisional or regular contract may within 10 days of that notice request a hearing by the superintendent; upon request prior to the hearing the teacher will be informed of the reasons for the proposed termination; the teacher will be entitled to be represented by the Association and/or counsel of his choice and will be granted an opportunity to defend himself; the decision of the superintendent will be in writing, stating the reasons for his determination.

PROCEDURES FOR REDUCTION IN PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Definition

A. Reduction of professional staff shall mean that the termination of a unit member(s) will occur because of one or more of the following reasons:

1. Decrease in student enrollment.
2. Change in curriculum.
3. Decline in subject or grade level enrollment.
4. Budget limitations.

B. Procedure

If any reduction in personnel within any given field of instruction, the determination of those who are to be released will be in the following order:

1. Unit members holding Class II certificates.
2. Nontenured unit members holding provisional certificates.
3. Nontenured unit members holding regular certificates.
4. Tenured unit members.

When a reduction in professional staff is necessary, a unit member's length of service in MCPS and quality of job performance will receive equal consideration in determining those individuals who will be terminated. Among additional factors to be considered will be the competency of the teacher as related to the program needs of the school.

C. Recall

1. Any unit member whose service has been terminated because of the elimination of a position or a reduction in professional staff shall for a period of two (2) years receive priority consideration for reemployment if they so desire and if appropriate vacancies develop.
2. In the event that a unit member does not desire at the time of termination to be placed on the list for priority consideration for reemployment, he shall receive full payment for all earned unused leave. For those terminated unit members with tenure, they will receive in addition one month's salary for each year of creditable MCPS service up to a limit of six months' salary.

D. Any action taken under this policy will not be subject to the grievance procedure; however, it shall be subject to the administrative complaint procedure.

Transfers will usually not be approved for personnel who are to be evaluated for tenure, personnel who are requesting transfer out of their field of preparation and certification, and personnel who are listed on mid-year report; if more than one unit member has applied for the same position and both are acceptable to the principal, seniority in the district will be considered; however, the balanced staffing policy of the school system will apply in the consideration of seniority; each faculty unit should be appropriately balanced in terms of sex, race, ethnic background, age, and experience; if a unit member's request for a voluntary transfer is denied, he will upon request be given a written explanation of the reasons from the superintendent or his designee; an involuntary transfer will be made only after a meeting between the unit member and the area assistant superintendent, at which time he will be notified of the reason for the transfer; involuntary transfers are not subject to the grievance procedure, but they will be subject to the administrative complaint procedure; normally no unit member will be subject to an involuntary transfer more than twice within any five-year period; in filling vacancies for promotional positions, consideration will be given to the currently employed unit member's length of service in the school system, areas of competence, major and/or minor fields of study, quality of performance, and attendance record; positions in evening school and positions under federal and other special programs will be filled first by regularly appointed teachers in the district; in filling new openings for 12-month employment, consideration will be given first to the currently employed unit member's areas of competence, major and minor fields of study, quality of teaching performance, attendance record, and length of service in the district; any suspension of a teacher will be with pay; a teacher is entitled to be accompained by an Association representative when being formally disciplined by any member of the administration.

* * *

QUINCY COMMUNITY SCHOOLS
QUINCY, MICHIGAN

Between Quincy Community School District and Quincy Education Association, effective July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1975. Approximately 69 certificated professional employees including full-time certificated teachers on tenure or probation, guidance counselors, and librarians, and excluding administrators, substitute department heads, supervisors, evening and summer school teachers, office, clerical, maintenance, operating, cafeteria, and transportation employees.

COMPENSATION: (1974-75) B.A., $8,200 to $12,050, 11 increments; B.A., plus 20 hours, $12,550 maximum; M.A., $8,500 to $13,250, 11 increments; M.A., plus 20 hours, $13,650 maximum. (Experience/education crediting) Full credit up to 5 years for teaching experience in any school district.

DIFFERENTIALS: (Three steps) Football and basketball, $800, $900, $1,000; wrestling, $650, $750, $850; track and baseball, $550, $650, $750; cross-country, girls' basketball and golf, $250, $350, $450; all assistant coaches, $500, $550, $600; school paper $150; bowling $200; yearbook $300; special education teachers receive $150 additional.

OTHER: Substitute teachers, any teacher who teaches more than the normal teaching load will receive additional compensation at the rate of $6 for each teaching period in excess of normal load.

LEAVES: Probationary employees will receive 10 days' sick leave per year and tenure teachers will receive 15 days' sick leave per year, cumulative to 110 days; any teacher absent because of injury or illness compensable under the Michigan Workmen's Compensation Act will receive the difference between the allowance under the Act and his regular salary until the accumulated sick leave equivalent is exhausted; in the event of critical illness in the immediate family, the teacher may be granted up to 30 percent of the accumulated sick leave; professional conference days may be granted for any education purpose at the discretion of the principal, up to two days per year will be allowed each teacher for professional and family obligations, including funerals; up to five days may be deducted from sick leave for death in the immediate family; a teacher required to serve on a jury will be granted leave and paid the difference between his pay for such jury service and his salary; a leave of absence without pay for up to two years will be granted to any tenure teacher upon application, for the purpose of participating in exchange teaching programs, Peace Corps, Teacher Corps, or Job Corps, or cultural travel; upon return from such leave the teacher will be placed at the same position on the salary schedule as he would have attained had he not been on such leave; a leave of absence without pay for up to two years may be granted for the purpose of engaging in study at an accredited college or university; a leave of absence not to exceed four years will be granted to any tenure teacher for the purpose of campaigning for, or serving in, a public office.

INSURANCE: Board pays full cost of Blue Cross-Blue Shield health protection for a 12-month period for each member of the bargaining unit and eligible dependents.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of local, state, and national association dues; all teachers will as a condition of employment, pay as a fee to the Association an amount equal to membership dues payable to the Association, the National Education Association, and the Michigan Education Association; a leave of absence without pay for up to two years may be granted to any tenure teacher upon application, for the purpose of serving as an officer of the Association or on its staff; Association has the right to use school building and equipment including typewriters, mimeographing machines, other duplicating equipment, calculating machines, and all types of audiovisual equipment; at least one bulletin board will be provided for Association use in each building; the board will provide information relating to financial resources of the district, including annual financial resources and audits, register of certificated personnel, county allocation, board budgets, agendas and minutes of all board meetings, monthly financial statements, membership data, names and addresses of all teachers, salaries paid, and information which may be necessary for the Association to process any grievance or complaint.

INSTRUCTION: Normal weekly teaching load in junior and senior high schools will be 25 teaching periods or not more than five per day; a supervised study period will be considered a teaching period; the normal teaching load in elementary schools will not exceed five hours of classroom teaching per day; elementary teachers are entitled to a duty-free uninterrupted lunch period; elementary teachers may use for preparation time all time during which their classes are receiving instruction from teaching specialists.

The pupil-teacher ratio is an important aspect of an effective educational program. The parties agree that class size should be lowered wherever possible to meet the following standards:

	Optimum	Maximum
1. Elementary	24	30
2. Middle School	24	30
3. Secondary	24	30
Physical Education	30	45

Where maximum standards within a particular building and grade level must exceed maximum, excess students will be equally distributed among the teachers assigned to that grade level or course.

Teachers are required to report to work 30 minutes before the opening of the pupils' regular school day and are to remain at work 15 minutes after the close of the pupils' regular school day.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with binding arbitration; principals have the right to call one faculty meeting per week on a designated day up to 4:30 p.m.; two regular scheduled parent-teacher conferences per year for all grades K through 12; probationary teachers will be evaluated at least once a semester and tenure teachers once a year; each observation for evaluation purposes will be for a minimum of 30 minutes; a copy of the written evaluation will be submitted to the teacher at the time of personal interviews or within 10 days thereafter; if the teacher believes his evaluation was incomplete or unjust, he may put his objections in writing and have them attached to the evaluation report to be placed in his personnel file.

A "Teaching Coach" may be assigned to every probationary teacher upon entrance of the teacher into the system. The "Teaching Coach" insofar as possible, shall be a tenure teacher with a minimum of five (5) years teaching experience and shall be engaged in teaching within the same grade, building or discipline as the probationary teacher. It shall be the duty of the teaching coach to assist and council the probationary teacher in acclimating to the teaching profession and the school system. The teaching coach shall not be involved in the evaluation of the probationary teacher.

If the board deems it necessary to reduce the teaching staff, it will make the reductions in accordance with the best interests of the district with consideration being given to the educational growth of the children, and the qualifications, tenure, and competence of the teachers involved; the board supports a policy of filling vacancies from within its own teaching staff; an involuntary transfer will be made only in case of emergency or to prevent undue disruption of the instructional program; if the teacher objects to such transfer, the dispute may be resolved through the professional grievance procedure; a teacher will at all times be entitled to have present a representative of the Association when he is being reprimanded, warned, or disciplined for any infraction of rules; any discipline or reprimand asserted by the board or its representative will be subject to the professional grievance procedure.

* * *

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION COVERAGE FOR TEACHERS

Recent NEA testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee on mandatory inclusion of teachers under the federal unemployment compensation statute[1] dramatically pointed out the recent high unemployment statistics in a profession which heretofore had been considered relatively immune from such economic displacements.

Teachers suffer layoffs and reductions in force owing to decreased enrollments, tight public money, and inflation. The first to feel the fiscal pinch were university professors and hospital workers. Both groups in 1970 were brought under the umbrella of federal-state unemployment statutes. Yet most teachers in public elementary and secondary schools remain without protection against sudden, unanticipated cutoff of earning power.

Status of Unemployment Compensation for Teachers

Present federal law provides that a state must meet or exceed the established minimum requirements in order to participate in the joint federal-state system. The law permits states to elect mandatory or permissive/elective coverage of nonfederal public employees, but efforts to secure such coverage on a state level have reached fruition in only eight states. Most states allow elective coverage of employees by the employer jurisdiction.

Most teachers are employed by local school jurisdictions, though some teachers, as in Alaska and Hawaii, are state employees. Virtually all local governmental units refuse to cover teachers unless coverage has been specifically negotiated by the local association or mandated by state law. A few locals have secured such protection through collective bargaining; however, currently only eight states and the District of Columbia provide mandatory unemployment compensation coverage for teachers. Those eight states are Hawaii, Kansas, Connecticut, Ohio, Oregon, Minnesota, New Jersey, and Washington. Michigan will soon extend such coverage as of January 1, 1975. These teachers who enjoy such protection number 356,926 or 15.7 percent of a total teacher working force of 2,124,150[2].

Extent of Teacher Unemployment

Unemployment resulting from separations from the teaching profession either through reduction in force or dismissal struck more than 11,728 teachers in 1972-73 and more than 15,047 in 1973-74, nearly 1 percent of the teaching force (Table 1). The U.S. Office of Education predicts that within the next five years reductions in total teaching positions throughout the United States will number in excess of 80,000. As shown in Table 1, the figures for total separations are not comprehensive and comprise only those states responding to an NEA Research survey. Some states have no available statistics on teacher unemployment; some states compile statistics on unemployed teachers but do not categorize by reason for separation. The latter could not be tabulated in the survey and coupled with the lack of statistics from those states that do not collect such data results in a low "separation" total.

1970 Extension of Unemployment Compensation Coverage

Faced with the possibility of high, short-term unemployment among university faculty and public hospital staff, the Congress in 1970 extended mandatory coverage to these employees. A system was created which permitted public employers to participate in the unemployment fund on the same basis as private employers, or to elect a fixed contributory system of reimbursement based on incidence of claims to the service of the particular employer. Of 28 states that provide only elective coverage for local employees, 11 mandate protection for state employees. Six states that provide mandatory coverage for state employees grant no provision for protection of local governmental employees even on an elective basis. In several states, local school boards have elected coverage for noncertificated personnel while refusing to extend coverage to teachers.

Pending Legislation

Pending legislation[3] before the Congress seeks to cover under the existing Act (FUTA) those teachers who will be subjected to a reduction in force, lay-off owing to a budget reduction, or dismissal. The period between the ending and the beginning of school would not be compensable as the summer holidays are considered to be compensated for during the school year. On the face, it is inequitable that private sector employees, such as construction workers earning an average of $8.55 per hour plus fringe benefits and having potential yearly earnings in excess of $16,000 (based on a 37-hour week, 52-week work year) excluding overtime pay, as compared with an annual average teachers salary of $10,675[4], can claim unemployment compensation for non-working winter months while teachers separated from their employment are forced to seek any type of employment, change careers, or remain unemployed until fall hiring opens.

Though the legislative route is by far the best long-term guarantee, other unions, notably the United Auto Workers and the Seafarers International (longshoremen) have been striving to negotiate a guaranteed income provision for their members during slack or nonproduction seasons. This concept of guaranteed income is a formal negotiable extension of unemployment compensation. Regardless, be a person a teacher or construction worker, both are entitled to the same form of income protection during periods of unemployment.

Unemployment Insurance Described

Unemployment insurance is a federal-state system that provides temporary subsistence to workers during periods of unemployment. It provides financial assistance on the assumption that the individual is actively seeking work. The benefit payments do not replace earnings, but they do help the individual to maintain some purchasing power during unemployment.

The unemployment compensation,[5] an outgrowth of federal and state legislation covering approximately 86 percent of all nonfarm workers, was established in 1935 by the Social Security Act and subsequent amendments and legislation on federal and state levels. It requires that states meet certain minimum federal standards. Compliance allows private employers to credit against their federal tax the amounts they pay to the state for benefits to the unemployed. The state is also entitled to federal grants to cover all the necessary costs of administering the program. The primary purpose of the grants is to insure the use of state unemployment funds only to pay unemployment benefits. Other purposes are to safeguard the investment of the fund, to guarantee an opportunity for fair hearing to all individuals whose claims are denied, and to limit grant expenditures to amounts and purposes required for proper and efficient administration of the state law.

A federal tax of 3.28 percent on the first $4,200 of each worker's wages is charged to employers to self-underwrite the unemployment insurance program. Most employers and all public employers may offset 90 percent of the federal tax by taxes and experience rating credit under state law. The remainder of the tax, 0.58 percent of taxable wages (net payable) is paid to the federal government. Revenues from this tax are used to pay administrative expenses of federal and state agencies and the federal share of the extended unemployment benefits program.

Each state levies a tax on employers, and three states—Alabama, Alaska, and New Jersey—collect contributions from employees[6] which are deposited to the state account in an unemployment trust fund in the federal treasury. These funds are withdrawn as needed.

Owing to the overriding presence of federal law and guidelines, in the majority of the states, operations, benefits to claimants, and rates of contributions from employees are standardized. The prevailing rate of contributions in all but seven states is 2.8 percent; in Hawaii, Ohio, and Nevada, 3.0 percent; in Montana, 3.1; and in North Dakota, 4.2 percent. Rates of contributions are tied to the unemployment experience of an employer. In Nevada, an unrated employer is assigned a 3.0 percent rate. In Idaho a rate of 2.7 percent of total payroll is assessed if the ratio of the unemployment fund to the total payroll is 4.25 percent or more; however, if the ratio falls below this point, the rate is adjusted to 2.9 percent and as it slides lower, it is adjusted upward to 3.1 or 3.3 percent. The varying rates in the example states above are contrary to norm, though it is important to note that a particular state and a particular employer within a state usually has a variable rate, up or down from the standard as determined by his incidence of unemployment experience.

Federal law also gives employers additional credit, the difference between the actual state rate paid by the employer and the lower of the state's highest rate or 2.7 percent, for a lowered rate of contribution if the employer's rate is based on three or more years of unemployment experience. Individual states may grant a reduced rate of not less than 1 percent to employers who have not had three years of experience and contributions into the system.

State laws usually mandate certain qualification requirements for an employer to be included in the unemployment insurance system. They include "(1) the coverage provisions of the state law [at any time vs. 20 weeks]; (2) in states using benefits or benefit derivatives in the experience-rating formulas, the type of basic period and benefit year and the lag between these two periods, which determine how soon a employer may be charged for benefits; (3) the type of formula used for rate determinations; (4) the length of the period between the date as of which rate computations are made the effective date for rates."[6]

The taxable wage base of most states is that provided in the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, wherein an employer pays a tax on wages paid to each worker within a calendar year up to the amount specified in state law. Most states have an adjustment mechanism that ties the state wage base to the federal in the event the federal standard is amended. The average tax rate for Virginia, for example, was 0.41 percent in 1972 on a taxable wage base of $4,200, and 0.23 percent of total wages. The average tax rate for all states is 1.70 percent of taxable wages with some states (e.g., Massachusetts) as high as 3.24 percent. The variance in tax rates on taxable wages is due to the variables in each state's taxable wage base and rates, benefit system, and economic conditions.

Nonprofit and Public Employee Financing Provisions

Federal law requiring each state to extend unemployment benefits to workers of nonprofit organizations employing four or more persons with 20 or more weeks of employment and in state hospitals and institutions of higher education provides a different method of financing benefits paid to employees. These institutions may elect to make payments in lieu of contributions. Prior to this amendment of federal law in 1970, these institutions were prohibited from financing their employees' benefits on a reimbursable basis owing to the experience rating standards established by federal law. State laws permit two or more employers participating on a reimbursable basis to jointly apply to the state agency for the establishment of a separate group account to pay the benefit costs charged to service in their employ. For purposes of benefit reimbursement and cost allocation, this group is considered a single employer.

Nonprofit organizations are required by federal law to pay into the state fund amounts equal to the benefit costs, including that half of extended benefits not paid by the federal government. (No state permits noncharging of bene-

TABLE 1.—NUMBER OF TEACHERS SEPARATED FROM SERVICE, BY STATE, 1972-73 AND 1973-74

State	1972-73			1973-74
	By reduction in force	For cause[a]	Total	By reduction in force	For cause	Total
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Alabama	No reply
Alaska	50	3	53	30	2	32
Arizona	NA	0	NA	600	0	600
Arkansas	No reply
California	3,100	0	3,100	3,300	0	3,300
Colorado	60	16	76	110	25	135
Connecticut	No reply
Delaware	25	1	26	25	2	27
D.C.	No reply
Florida	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Georgia	0	0	0	NA	0	NA
Hawaii	678	3	681	695	6	701
Idaho	1	7	8	3	4	7
Illinois	NA	NA	NA	477	100	577
Indiana	58	209	267	276	177	453
Iowa	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Kansas	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Kentucky	1,045	127	1,172	910	137	1,047
Louisiana	No reply
Maine	150	10	160	200	10	210
Maryland	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Massachusetts	10	6	16	65	7	72
Michigan	900	500	1,400	900	500	1,400
Minnesota	400	75	475	850	90	940
Mississippi	No reply
Missouri	300	500	800	400	600	1,000
Montana	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Nebraska	NA	NA	NA	10	25	35
Nevada	0	0	0	0	1	1
New Hampshire	No reply
New Jersey	340	258	598	217	339	556
New Mexico	0	0	0	0	0	0
New York	234[b]	46[b]	280[b]	NA	NA	NA
North Carolina	No reply
North Dakota	68	62	130	106	60	166
Ohio	476	243	719	772	253	1,025
Oklahoma	No reply
Oregon	20	218	238	NA	NA	NA
Pennsylvania	34	144	178	76	2,298	2,374
Rhode Island	No reply
South Carolina	No reply
South Dakota	NA	28	28	6	23	29
Tennessee	400	225	625	NA	NA	NA
Texas	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Utah	3	5	8	0	4	4
Vermont	NA	23	23	NA	15	15
Virginia	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Washington	270	25	295	35	27	62
West Virginia	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA	NA
Wisconsin	105	240	345	80	190	270
Wyoming	20	7	27	None or few	9	9
Total	8,747	2,981	11,728	10,143	4,904	15,047

[a]For all causes other than reduction, death, retirement, and resignation.
[b]Does not include New York City.

fits to reimbursing employers.) Under such a reimbursement system, a contributing employer is not indebted to the unemployment fund nor is it required to maintain a minimum contribution rate or a solvency account. Rather, each participating employer in the special fund is liable only for benefit costs paid to its own employees and is not liable at all for the cost of any other benefits. As such, the liability to share group costs vs. group risks is absent.

Usually, the employer electing to participate on a reimbursement basis is billed at the end of each calendar quarter or period, as determined by the administering agency, for the full amount of regular benefits plus half of the extended benefits paid during that period of service attributable to his employ. Alternatively, a nonprofit employer may be assessed a flat rate at the end of each calendar quarter or other period specified by the agency. This assessment is determined on the basis of a percentage of total payroll in the preceding calendar quarter rather than being actual benefit costs incurred by the organization. However, to prevent excesses or insufficient payments into the fund, modifications of the percentages are made by the state agency on an annual basis, at which time an accounting to collect or dispose of overpayments is also made. The latter percentage plan is preferred as it is less burdensome than quarterly reimbursement method and spreads costs more nearly uniformly throughout the calendar year. Nearly half the states permit nonprofit organizations and/or public employer jurisdictions the option of choosing either plan.

In 23 states, benefits paid to state and local government employees are financed through either the reimbursement method or paid contributions as for other employers. In 27 states, no election is permitted and the state or local jurisdiction must reimburse the fund for benefits paid to employees. (Table 2)

There are variations among states. For example, Alabama requires both the state and its political subdivisions to pay an estimated amount each quarter, with end-of-year adjustments if necessary. New Mexico and Utah have no provision specifying means of financing benefits, thus allowing the particular employer jurisdiction to choose the most convenient method of payment. Illinois, Nevada, and New York do not mandate reimbursement and they provide an option to join the unemployment insurance pool with other employers.

Limitations of Coverage

Although adoption of unemployment insurance laws by states has been influenced by federal statute, coverage is limited by exclusion of certain types of employment. While states are free to determine the employers liable for contributions and though most states can extend coverage to excluded workers under voluntary election of coverage provisions, there is no compelling reason to cover public-school teachers as a group, as failure to do so is of no advantage to the state employer.

Numerous reasons are offered by public employers as to why their employees should not be extended unemployment compensation coverage. The financial factor is perhaps the least significant as the preceding discussion has illustrated the relatively low cost of the program. Such a program is based on a "shared-risk" concept among employers if participation is on a contributory basis, or full reimbursement depending upon incidence of claims to the service of that public employer. True, the public employer does not receive the tax write-off benefits that a private sector employer receives, but neither does a public employer pay into the fund as much as a private sector employer. Also, a stringent checking-screening system of claimants and the right of challenge to a claim by the employer or employee thwarts spurious claims.

From a funding standpoint, monies for a fully employer-paid program would come either from general funds earmarked for compensation and benefits, or from funds specially appropriated for this specific program. However, as the program is applied to higher education facilities and public hospitals, the employer may choose to enroll in a plan based on the reimbursement method which is advantageous to the public employer with little or no incidence of unemployment charged to service in his employ.

Severance Pay as Unemployment Compensation

A standard provision in private sector labor contracts which guarantees some form, though limited, of income protection upon separation from an employer's service for any reason other than death or retirement, is severance pay. This type of provision is noticeably absent from teacher contracts. Less than 1 percent of the agreements analyzed by NEA Research contained a true severance pay provision which measured up to those in the private sector. All incorporated length of service and unused sick leave as factors in determining the amount of compensation. Limited income protection can be provided teachers who are faced with dismissal or a reduction in force if a severance pay provision is incorporated into the agreement. The combination of a reduction-in-force provision and a strict seniority provision provides for the orderly and equitable separation of employees. A severance pay provision and/or provision of unemployment compensation would make the public employer reassess his educational priorities and engage in lay-offs or dismissals only if such measures were absolutely necessary, and then in such a manner as would provide minimal hardship to unemployed teachers.

---

[1] Federal Unemployment Tax Act, Chapter 23 of Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

[2] National Education Association, Research. Estimates of School Statistics, 1973-74. Research Report 1973-R8. Washington, D.C.: the Association, 1974. p. 29. (Revised figure)

[3] H. R. 14952 introduced by Representative Joseph Morazitti (R-N.J.).

[4] National Education Association, Research, op. cit., p. 31.

[5] This discussion of the federal-state unemployment compensation system was derived from Comparison of State Unemployment Insurance Laws, U.S. Department of Labor, Manpower Administration, Revised January 1, 1974.

[6] Comparison of State Unemployment Insurance Laws, U.S. Department of Labor, Manpower Administration, Revised January 1, 1974.

TABLE 2.—COVERAGE OF SERVICE FOR STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS[a]

State	Mandatory		Elective		Benefits financed by—		Financing benefits for state hospitals and colleges[b]
	State	Local	State	Local	Contributions	Reimbursement	Choice	Mandatory reimbursement
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Alabama	...	b	...	...	...	X	...	X[g]
Alaska	...	...	X	X	c	c	X	...
Arizona	...	...	X	X	c	c	X	...
Arkansas	X	...	...	...	c	c	X	...
California	b	b	X	X	c	c	X	...
Colorado	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
Connecticut	X	X	...	...	c	c	...	X
Delaware	X	...	...	X	...	X	X	...
District of Columbia	...	...	X	...	...	X	...	X
Florida	X	...	...	X	X	...	...	X
Georgia	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
Hawaii	X	X	...	...	...	X	...	X
Idaho	X	b	...	...	...	X	...	X
Illinois	X	...	...	...	...	X	...	X[g]
Indiana	...	b	...	...	X	...	X	...
Iowa	X	...	...	...	...	X	X	...
Kansas	...	X	...	X	...	X	...	X
Kentucky	...	...	X	X	X	...	X	...
Louisiana	X	...	...	X	c	c	X	...
Maine	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	X
Maryland	b	...	X	X	X	...	...	X
Massachusetts	...	...	c	...	...	X	...	X
Michigan	X	...	...	X	...	X	...	X
Minnesota	X	X	...	...	...	X	...	X
Mississippi	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
Missouri[d]	...	...	X[f]	X[f]	X	...	X	...
Montana	X[l]	...	...	...	...	X[j]	...	X
Nebraska	X[k]	...	...	X	...	X	...	X
Nevada	...	...	X	X	X	...	...	X
New Hampshire	X	...	...	X	...	X	...	X[i]
New Jersey	b	X	...	...	X	...	...	X
New Mexico	...	...	...	...	...	...		No provision
New York	X	b	...	X	c	c	X	...
North Carolina	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
North Dakota	...	...	X	...	...	X	X	...
Ohio	X	X	...	...	...	X	...	X
Oklahoma	X	...	...	...	...	X	...	X
Oregon	X	X	...	...	c	c	...	X
Pennsylvania	X	...	...	e	X	...	...	X
Puerto Rico	b	b	...	...	X	...	X[g]	...
Rhode Island	X	...	...	X	...	X	...	X
South Carolina	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
South Dakota	X	...	...	X	...	X[c]	...	X
Tennessee	...	...	X	X	X	...	X	...
Texas	X	...	...	X	...	X	...	X
Utah	X	...	...	X	...	X		No provision
Vermont	...	...	...	X	...	X	X	...

TABLE 2.–COVERAGE OF SERVICE FOR STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS[a] (Continued)

State	Mandatory		Elective		Benefits financed by–		Financing benefits for state hospitals and colleges[b]
	State	Local	State	Local	Contributions	Reimbursement	Choice	Mandatory reimbursement
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Virginia	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	X
Washington	X	b	...	X	c	c	...	X
West Virginia	...	...	...	...	...	...	X	...
Wisconsin	X	b	...	X	...	X	...	X
Wyoming	...	...	X[f]	X[f]	X	...	X	...

SOURCE: Comparison of State Unemployment Insurance Laws, U.S. Department of Labor, Manpower Administration, Revised January 1, 1974.

[a]Including instrumentalities thereof. All states are required by federal law to cover employees of state hospitals and institutions of higher education and to provide each subdivision with the right to elect coverage for employees of local hospitals and institutions of higher education.

[b]Limited to service for Walker County and its agencies or instrumentalities; this provision has not been implemented, Alabama. Limited to service for public housing authorities and to services performed for the state by blind and physically handicapped workers in non-civil-service positions; mandatory coverage applicable only to employees with civil service status who receive notice of layoff on or after March 1, 1971, due to reduction in the budget, reduction in staff due to economy or from organizational changes or a reduced workload, California; irrigation and soil conservation districts, Idaho; municipally-owned public utilities, Indiana; services for the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, Maryland; services for South Jersey Port Commission, New Jersey; custodial service for boards of education of cities of 400,000 or more, New York; agencies or instrumentalities of P.R. or of its municipalities, operating as private enterprises, P.R.; public utility districts and public power authorities, Washington; and first class cities, Wisconsin.

[c]State and local have choice of financing, Arizona; state has choice of financing, Arkansas; contributions for state, reimbursement for local, California; reimbursement for state and either contributions or reimbursement for local, Connecticut, New York, Oregon; either contributions or reimbursement for State, reimbursement for local, Louisiana. Initial deposit required of 2.7% of the political subdivision's taxable wages during the 4 quarters preceding the effective date of election, South Dakota. Contributions required from the Toll Bridge Authority, public utility and port districts and public power authorties; the State and all other political subdivisions electing coverage make payments in lieu of contributions, Washington.

[d]No election reported.

[e]Elective coverage limited to service for instrumentalities specifically authorized by legislation, Massachusetts; and municipal authorities, school cafeterias, and volunteer fire companies, Pennsylvania.

[f]By interpretation.

[g]State and local governments must pay an estimated amount each quarter and at the end of the year either pay a balancing amount or receive a refund, Alabama; local governments may make payments in lieu of contributions on the same basis and in the same manner as amounts determined for ERs who are liable for payment of contributions, or they may elect reimbursement in the same manner as nonprofit organizations, Illinois; both the state and its political subdivisions are permitted a choice of financing benefits by either contributions or reimbursement, Puerto Rico.

[h]Political subdivisions covering their employees of hospitals and institutions of higher education, must reimburse the fund for benefits paid in all states except, Alabama, Illinois, and Puerto Rico, as indicated in footnote g above and in Connecticut as indicated in footnote c.

[i]Prior to January 1, 1975, choice of financing is available, New Hampshire.

[j]Regulation provides for quarterly prepayment of a rate based on gross payroll.

[k]Beginning January 1, 1974, state departments, commissions and boards are required to elect coverage for not less than 2 CYs, Nebraska.

[l]Effective January 1, 1975, Montana.

This Publication is Available in MICROFORM from...

Xerox University Microfilms

300 North Zeeb Road,
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106
(313) 761-4700

PLEASE WRITE FOR COMPLETE INFORMATION

VOL. 8 NO. 2
OCT. 1974

NRD

NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

CONTENTS

Page

Case Reviews 3
- Arbitrability of Contract Disputes To Be Resolved by Parties and Arbitrator
- Names and Addresses of Substitutes Employed as Strikebreakers Released Under "Right To Know" Law
- Easter Vacation Cutback Overruled
- Breach of Contract Suit Requires Additional Evidence
- Impact of Class Size Negotiable
- Agency Shop Declared Non-Negotiable Under "Right To Work" Law
- Contracting Out Is a Mandatory Subject of Bargaining

Board Findings and Rulings 6
- Bargaining for Principals Ordered Under Old Law Until New Law Becomes Effective
- Unilateral Change in Retirement Provisions Held Unfair
- Ratification Without Preconditions Ordered
- Duty To Bargain Includes Terms and Conditions of Employment Not Covered by Agreements Made Before October 1973 Now Negotiable
- Supervisory Status Requires More Than Minor Managerial Responsibilities

Negotiation Notes 9
- Board of Regents May Bargain with University Faculty
- Attorney General's Opinion
- Public Employee Bargaining Law Enacted
- "Second Class" Status of Public Employees Affirmed
- National Labor Relations Act Extended to Include Nonprofit Hospitals
- The Consumer Price Index—September 1974

Statistics 12
- Consumer Price Index: August 1973—August 1974 and 10-Year Averages
- Briefs of Agreements

Special Reports 20
- Cost of Living Provisions in Teacher/School Board Agreements

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
RESEARCH

Copyright © 1974 by the
National Education Association
All Rights Reserved

2822

CASE REVIEWS

ILLINOIS

Arbitrability of Contract Disputes To Be Resolved by Parties and Arbitrator

The Illinois Appellate Court ruled that a decision on the arbitrability of a contract dispute should be left to the parties and the arbitrator. This ruling was handed down as the court affirmed in part and reversed in part a lower court decision regarding two grievances filed by teachers in the South Stickney School District.

In one of the grievances, the teacher protested a transfer to another school and charged a violation of seniority rights. The other grievance alleged that the school board improperly required teachers to list students' names on attendance sheets. In both cases, the trial court ruled the issues inarbitrable. The appellate court concurred with the trial court, upholding its decision in the first grievance, but reversed the second, ruling in favor of the teacher.

The appellate court decision in the two grievances was based on the finding that the parties' contract stipulated that grievances resulting from an alleged violation of the agreement or unfair treatment of a teacher might be submitted to arbitration. On involuntary transfers, the contract stipulated that the administration was to use the teacher's qualifications, length of service, and personal preference as criteria to decide who shall be transferred.

In the grievance regarding the transfer, the teacher contended that a first-year teacher should have been transferred. The school board, contending that the issue was vested within its discretion and could not be decided by an arbitrator, moved to have the arbitration stayed. Citing Board of Education v. Rockford Education Association, which dealt with a grievance charging that a teacher was improperly denied a promotion, the lower court held that the grievance and the arbitration demand infringed on the board's discretion and therefore ruled the matter inarbitrable.

The trial court also held for the board in the matter regarding the teacher's complaint of being required to perform clerical duties in contradiction to the parties' agreement. The board contended that this grievance was also inarbitrable since the assignment was within its discretionary powers.

The appellate court interpreted the decision in Board of Education v. Rockford to mean that while particular decisional matters might be contained in a collective bargaining agreement, they could not be delegated. Citing Board of Education, Community Unit School District No. 4 v. Champaign Education Association, the court agreed that arbitration of minor disputes under a contract "does not constitute delegation by the board," and found that such disputes should go to arbitration when parties reach impasse.

The appellate court found that since some matters are reserved to the board under the state School Code, only items of bargaining agreements not in conflict with the Code are arbitrable. Accordingly, the court held that the decision of whether a dispute is arbitrable should be left to the parties and the arbitrators. Further, the court found nothing which would preclude the use of the state arbitration act to govern the resolution of minor disputes.

Concluding, the appellate court ruled that in the case of the transfer the decision should be made by the school board since an arbitrator's decision would result in the arbitrator determining teacher qualifications. However, the court ruled that the dispute over the board's requiring teachers to fill in student's names on attendance sheets might be submitted to arbitration since it fell under minor matters. (Board of Education, South Stickney School District 111, Cook County, Illinois v. Karlene Johnson, etc., and AFT Local 943, Illinois Appellate Court, First District, April 11, 1974.)

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Names and Addresses of Substitutes Employed as Strikebreakers Released Under "Right to Know" Law

After reviewing a case involving the Timberlane Regional Educational Association and the Timberlane Regional School District, the New Hampshire Supreme Court upheld a local trial court interpretation of the state "right to know" law (RSA Ch. 91-A) as requiring the district to furnish names and addresses of substitute teachers employed during a strike.

The Association had contended that it needed the information to check the credentials of the substitutes to determine whether there were violations of statutes relating to professional strikebreakers, and to be able to contact the substitutes.

In the hearing before the supreme court, the district contended that the trial court order to furnish the information should be set aside on the grounds that the court ignored the question of hardship to the district resulting from the order, but the supreme court upheld the trial court decision.

In a dissenting opinion, it was held that the "right to know" law exempted information which constituted an invasion of privacy, and that addresses should be considered as exempted, particularly where there was insufficient reason for disclosure. (Timberlane Regional Education Association v. Robert V. Compton, New Hampshire Supreme Court, May 17, 1974.)

NEW JERSEY

Easter Vacation Cutback Overruled

Because the minimum 180-day school year had been waived, a New Jersey school board could not shorten a contractual vacation to make up for days lost owing to a fuel conservation close-down. The State Superior Court decision favored the Englewood Teachers Association suit against the Englewood Board of Education which had ordered teachers to work during their Easter vacation.

The school board argued that the three school days lost because the state board had ordered the Christmas vacation to be extended had to be made up to fulfill minimum school year requirements and qualify for state equalization monies.

The Association sought compliance with a negotiated provision stipulating a one-week spring vacation. Legislation had waived the minimum school year, the Association pointed out, and the three-day shut down to conserve fuel was to be considered actual school time for funding under the special law.

The court ruled that the special state legislation preempted the school board order for a three-day make-up period during the scheduled spring vacation and that the order violated the teachers' contracted vacation leave provision. (Englewood Teachers Association v. Englewood Public Schools, New Jersey Superior Court, April 1974.)

NEW YORK

Breach of Contract Suit Requires Additional Evidence

The New York Supreme Court determined that additional oral evidence was necessary for it to decide whether a school board was bound by the terms of a preamble to a negotiated agreement.

When the school board allegedly abandoned a "More Effective Schools Program" described within the preamble to the parties' agreement, the teachers union brought the suit charging breach of contract. The union sought to compel the board to continue the agreement as expressed in the preamble, contending that it gave up part of its salary package in exchange for the Program as part of the strike settlement.

The school board claimed that the preamble was a statement of policy, not a contractual obligation, and that it did not have the authority to enter into a contract regarding matters at issue under state statutes and the federal Constitution.

Holding that while proof of the physical unity of the documents had been shown, the court found that oral testimony was necessary to establish the acquiescence of the parties to be charged. Further, the court held that as a prelude to the agreement, the preamble might give reason for the agreement but might not be binding.

The court denied the board's motion for dismissal and the union's cross motion for summary judgment since no answer had been served in the case and a trial was required to establish whether the documents were separate or to be construed together, as well as to determine the intent of the parties. (Shanker, Plaintiff v. Monserrat, Defendant, New York Supreme Court, January 18, 1974.)

Impact of Class Size Negotiable

The New York Court of Appeals sustained a Public Employee Relations Board decision that class size was a matter of educational policy and clearly non-negotiable, but that the impact of class size was negotiable.

PERB held that the dispute rested on whether the Education Law limited the negotiability of terms and conditions of employment, or whether the Taylor Law circumvented the school board's power so that negotiation would be possible without regard to the Education Law.

The West Irondequoit Teachers Association argued that class size was a condition of employment, qualifying it as a mandatory bargaining topic under the Taylor Law. The Association further contended that, contrary to Civil Service Law, the board had failed to bargain in good faith, since in May 1970, specific proposals on class size had been discussed during negotiations, wherein the board recognized that excessive class size was detrimental to the mental health of teachers.

The board contended that no definite agreement on class size had been reached, but that it had proposed in writing a recommendation that the relationship among class size, learning, and teaching load be subject to continued examination by both parties while at the same time stressing the desirability of maintaining flexibility in regard to class size for purposes of curricular diversification.

While PERB recognized that the impact of class size on teacher load was negotiable, it stated that the fixing of class size was exclusively a matter of educational policy.

Upholding the distinction between the original specification of class size and the resultant impact on working conditions and holding that the courts do not have the authority to substitute their interpretation on the strength of what the NLRB or the federal courts might do in a similar situation, the Appelate Court ruled that the PERB decision was basically sound and affirmed it. (West Irondequoit Teachers Association v. Robert D. Helsby, et al., Constituting the Public Employment Relations Board, et al., New York Court of Appeals, July 11, 1974.)

NEVADA

Agency Shops Declared Non-Negotiable Under "Right to Work" Law

After reviewing a case involving Independent Guards Association, Local No. 1, and Wackenhut Services, the Nevada Supreme Court upheld a trial court decision that declared an agency shop agreement in violation of the state "right to work" law. The court ruled that agency shops are the equivalent of union shops and, therefore, under section 14b of the National Labor Relations Act are subject to state laws prohibiting union shops.

When an employee of Wackenhut Services resigned from the Association and refused to pay the equivalent of dues, the Association requested Wackenhut to fire him or forfeit his seniority rights. In this connection, the Association sought a declaratory judgment as to whether the agency shop provisions were legal and binding. The trial court ruled that the provisions were in violation of the state "right to work" law and therefore unenforceable.

The Association appealed to the Nevada Supreme Court, contending that the agency shop provision was not prohibited under section 14b of the National Labor Relations Act, which allows states to prohibit agreements requiring union membership as a condition of employment or continuation of employment. The court rejected the Association's contention, citing federal Supreme Court rulings in Labor Board v. General Motors [373 U.S. 734 (1963)] which held agency shops to be the 'practical equivalent' of union shops and in Retail Clerks v. Schermerhorn [375 U.S. 96 (1963)] which held an agency shop clause to be in violation of the "right to work" provision in Florida's constitution and subject to injunction by state courts. The court concluded that an agency shop provision is the practical equivalent of a union shop and therefore under section 14b of the National Labor Relations Act it is subject to state laws prohibiting the union shop. (Independent Guards Association, Local No. 1 v. Wackenhut Services, Inc., Nevada Supreme Court, May 29, 1974.)

PENNSYLVANIA

Contracting Out Is a Mandatory Subject of Bargaining

Holding that contracting out is a mandatory subject of bargaining, the Allegheny County Common Pleas Court ruled that the Borough of Wilkinsburg unlawfully had refused to bargain in good faith with sanitation workers in a dispute regarding this issue. So ruling, the court reversed an earlier decision of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) which had held that the Borough only had to meet and confer with employees and that economics spurred contracting out of bargaining unit work, not anti-unionism.

The court stated that its major concern was whether contracting out was a mandatory subject of bargaining under Section 701 of Act 195 or whether the matter related to Section 702 which required the employer to meet and confer with the union. The Act gives public employees the right to organize and engage in concerted activities and requires public employers to recognize and negotiate with employee representatives.

Citing the Fibreboard decision which held that the employer must bargain over any contracting out, the court found that to hold that contracting out was an inherent managerial prerogative rather than a mandatory subject of bargaining would weaken Act 195. Further, the court found that it could best serve legislative purposes by holding that contracting out falls under other terms and conditions of employment.

The court also held that to include contracting out among mandatory subjects of bargaining did not interfere with the borough's inherent managerial right to reduce standards of service or adopt a budget appropriate to insure economic use of tax revenue; that while the borough retained the right to reduce its level of services, it could not contract out during negotiations, particularly when it had given to the union no information regarding reductions in services.

Concluding, the court ruled that the borough unlawfully refused to bargain in good faith and thus violated Act 195. (Employees of the Sanitation Department of the Borough of Wilkinsburg, Petitioners, v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board and Borough of Wilkinsburg, Respondents, Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania Civil Division, April 4, 1974.)

BOARD FINDINGS AND RULINGS

MASSACHUSETTS

Bargaining for Principals Ordered Under Old Law Until New Law Becomes Effective

The Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission (MLRC) ordered two school committees to continue bargaining with units of principals under the old collective bargaining law until the new law, which might preclude such employees from negotiating, became effective.

The Wellesley School Committee continually refused to bargain with Unit B of the Wellesley Teachers Association which included principals, assistant principals, directors, coordinators and department heads, pending a ruling by MLRC or the courts regarding whether members of that unit would be considered managerial employees under the new law.

MLRC held that the rights of these employees to bargain under the old law was not at issue since the old law continued until the new law became effective. MLRC, therefore, held that the school committee's refusal to bargain was based on the committee's assumption of what would exist when the old law was no longer in effect. Ruling that the school committee denied the exclusive bargaining agent its rights, MLRC ordered the school committee to bargain.

The Littleton School Committee's refusal to bargain with principals and assistant principals represented by Teamsters Local 380 was similar to the Wellesley case. The school committee attempted to prove that four of the five employees of that unit would be managerial under the new law.

MLRC referred to the Wellesley case and stated that it would not interpret the new law until it became effective. (Town of Wellesley, School Committee and Wellesley Teachers Association, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, May 6, 1974.) (Town of Littleton School Committee and Teamsters Local 380, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, January 30, 1974.)

MICHIGAN

Unilateral Change in Retirement Provisions Held Unfair

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission, upon recommendation by an administrative law judge, issued a cease and desist order to the City of Mt. Clemens following the Mt. Clemens Fire Fighters Union charge of unfair labor practices. The dispute concerned a unilateral change in the computation of compensatory accumulated sick leave for retiring city employees.

The union charged that the board of trustees, representing the city, changed the terms and conditions of employment in violation of the collective bargaining agreement between the parties.

The city contended that a collective bargaining agreement made in accordance with the Public Employment Relations Act could not alter a city charter provision, arguing that since the retirement system was established by that city's charter and was managed by the Retirement Board of Trustees, it would be unlawful to allow an arbitrator to intervene. Such action, the city asserted, could result in the amending of the city charter and the binding of a third group— the board of trustees—not a party to the contract.

The city also contended that a decision to determine the arbitrability of a dispute historically rested with the courts, not with the Commission or an administrative law judge.

At issue in the city's first argument was the question of conflicting grants of power, those provided by the state legislature through PERA and those granted cities under the Home Rule Cities Act. The Commission dismissed this argument, citing Detroit Police Officers Ass'n. v. City of Detroit wherein the state supreme court ruled that while city governments were authorized by their charters to administer retirement programs, substantial details were contractual and subject to bargaining.

Concerning the city's second contention, the Commission resorted to a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States (NLRB v. Strong) which held:

> Arbitrators and courts are still the principal sources of contract interpretation, but the Board may prescribe conduct which is an unfair labor practice even though it is also a breach of contract remediable as such by arbitration and in the courts.

Reaffirming the administrative law judge's application of Hurley Hospital, which held that an employer's failure to proceed on a grievance to arbitration was an unfair labor practice even though it is also a breach of contract remediable as such by arbitration and in the courts.

The Commission ordered the city to bargain with the union and submit to arbitration any disputes not resolved through collective bargaining channels. (City of Mt. Clemens, Public Employer v. Mt. Clemens Fire Fighters Union Local 838, I.A.F.F., MERC, October 26, 1973.)

NEW YORK

Ratification Without Preconditions Ordered

A Public Employment Relations Board hearing officer determined that the Rensselaer City School District superintendent violated the Public Employee Fair Employment

Act by refusing to execute an agreement made with the Rensselaer Teachers Association unless the agreement was modified.

The point of contention concerned a provision that the "academic subject area secondary school teachers'" schedule be limited to five instruction periods and one preparation period. At the Association's request the employer's negotiator agreed to delete "academic subject area," thus changing the coverage of the provision to "secondary school teachers."

Following a memorandum of understanding between the school board and the Association and the distribution of a revised contract, the Association president noted two substantive errors, omission of the extracurricular pay schedule and retention of the words, "academic subject area." The Association president called this to the attention of the negotiator who then requested that the packets of agreements be returned for correction.

Subsequently, a school librarian filed a grievance claiming that he was a secondary teacher and therefore entitled to the same consideration concerning teacher load. The Association supported this position, but the school board maintained that since it had ratified only the earlier written memorandum, it had no further obligation. Additionally, it insisted that the Association state in writing that the librarian, nurse-teacher, guidance counselor, and attendance teacher be exempted from coverage.

The Public Employment Relations Board took exception to this reasoning. It said that the actions of the board and the superintendent indicated that an agreement had been reached in some form. According to the PERB, an agreement is "an exchange of mutual promises between the school superintendent and the employee organization. The statutory role of the Board of Education is limited to the approval of matters that inherently require legislative approval, as the provision of additional funds."

PERB concluded, then, that the superintendent violated an agreement under the conditions of a revised 1973-74 and new 1974-75 contract, which included, among other things, a revised article dealing with class load for secondary teachers, and recommended that he be ordered to sign the agreement without any preconditions. (Rensselaer City School District, New York and Joseph V. Reilly, Superintendent of Schools v. Rensselaer Teachers Association, Public Employment Relations Board, July 30, 1974.)

Duty To Bargain Includes Terms and Conditions of Employment Not Covered in the Contract

The duty to bargain does not terminate with a collectively negotiated agreement. An employer has a continuing duty to negotiate terms and conditions of employment not covered in the contract, provided the employee organization has not specifically waived its right to do so and communicates its desire to negotate. Therefore, PERB ordered the North Babylon Union Free School District to cease and desist from refusing to negotiate with the North Babylon Teachers Organization (NBTO) regarding the impact of its abolition of teaching positions.

The school district informed NBTO that because of financial difficulties it would have to eliminate some teaching positions. NBTO then requested a meeting to discuss the impact of the reduction, but the district refused to discuss the matter.

NBTO filed a complaint with PERB, charging the district with refusing to negotiate in good faith. The district claimed that there was no impact on terms or conditions of employment, that it had not modified the terms and conditions provided in the contract, and that the NBTO had never made a clear demand to negotiate on the impact of its decision.

Accepting a fact-finder's report, PERB concluded that the teachers had communicated their desire to negotiate and then ruled in favor of NBTO, stating that an employer cannot avoid a duty to negotiate by making a unilateral determination of fact, and that in the absence of an explicit waiver by an employee organization, the employer may not alter or refuse to negotiate terms and conditions of employment not provided for in the contract. It, therefore, ordered the district to cease and desist from refusing to negotiate. (In the Matter of North Babylon Union Free School District and North Babylon Teachers Organization, PERB, April 29, 1974.)

OHIO

Length of Provisional Certificated Teacher Contract Not Negotiable

Agreeing with the school board, an arbitrator ruled that the length of a contract issued to a teacher holding a provisional certificate was not a subject of bargaining. He stated that the parties should have utilized mediation, as provided in their agreement, to resolve conflicts before they became major disputes. He concluded that drastic and harsh change in board policy reduced teachers' trust and respect for the board.

Prior to the conflict, the board's policy had been to grant a one-year teaching contract to a teacher with a four-year provisional certificate, and to extend the contract for three years on rehiring the teacher, followed by a five-year contract if the teacher was retained.

Prior to arbitration, the board queried teachers and the Association president concerning extending the one-year contracts to three years in order to more adequately evaluate the teachers' performance before granting the extended contracts. The Association wanted to negotiate the change; however, the board decided that the matter was not negotiable.

The Association contended that the board must negotiate the matter since there were no legal restraints against doing so, and because the board violated the spirit and intent of the contract. The Association further argued that personnel policy, which was listed in the parties' agreement as a negotiable item, included length of contract since personnel policy meant any governing principle or plan dealing with teachers.

Finding that neither party tried to define personnel policy before the dispute or relate it to length of contract, the arbitrator noted that the Association wanted to define the term in a broad sense while the board wanted to restrict the meaning. The arbitrator held that the term should not be interpreted to include all governing principles and indicated that if the term was to be interpreted broadly, it should include other related items. Further, the arbitrator held that because of its importance to provisionally certificated teachers, the parties would have included length of contract in the list of negotiable items if they had intended it to be negotiable. Additionally, the arbitrator held that the item did not fit as other agreed-upon matters which directly affected the educational program.

Rejecting the Association's contention that the board violated the spirit and intent of the agreement by setting aside the resolution of disputes without explanation, the arbitrator held that the only resolution reached at the parties' agenda meeting regarding length of contract was a board member's proposal which the board later rejected. The arbitrator found that the board had informed the Association more than once that the matter was not negotiable and that the Association's thinking otherwise was assumptive. However, the arbitrator agreed with the Association that the board should have communicated an explanation of its policy change, but that its failure to do so did not mean that length of contract was negotiable.

Agreeing that the board had not utilized the mediatory facilities provided by the contract, the arbitrator stated that either party could have requested consideration by an advisory panel, and should have made use of their contractually provided mediation procedure since it was designed to resolve differences before they developed into general conflagrations.

Although ruling in favor of the board, the arbitrator stated that the board's change in policy regarding the length of contract for provisionally certificated teachers was a drastic change which could only reduce the teachers' lack of respect and trust for the board. (Bethel-Tate Board of Education and Bethel-Tate Education Association, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, September 25, 1973.)

OREGON

Working Conditions Not Discussed or Covered by Agreements Made Before October 1973 Now Negotiable

As a result of the enactment of the new comprehensive collective bargaining law, negotiations can be reopened on any matter not discussed or covered by a collective bargaining agreement concluded before October 5, 1973. Reopener provisions in these contracts, which do not specifically authorize bargaining on such matters, do not relieve an employee of his duty to bargain on them. Therefore, PERB ordered Redmond School District No. 2 to negotiate on the proposals of the Redmond Education Association that pertained to subjects not covered by their existing agreement.

The Association and the school district had entered into a three-year agreement under the "meet and confer" statute when, according to the state attorney general, working conditions, grievance procedures, and class size were not "normally" subjects of consultation. The new statute called upon public employers and employees to "bargain" on wages, hours, and conditions of employment, whereupon, the Association requested the school district to renegotiate 26 items. The district refused to bargain on all but seven items which related to cost-of-living increases.

The Association filed a complaint with PERB, charging the district with refusing to bargain on unemployment conditions. The Association contended that under the new statute, issues which were not negotiable when the agreement was made were now open to bargaining. The district argued that, according to the new law, "nothing in this act affects a collective bargaining agreement made prior to this act" and, therefore, only annual reopeners on cost-of-living items were affected.

PERB ruled in favor of the Association, stating that "the legislature intended that the parties would be bound only to agreement on matters on which they had engaged in arms length negotiations" and "it would be unconscionable to assume that the legislature would destroy the statute which authorized and restricted negotiations and leave the parties in limbo on matters they had never consulted and negotiated on." PERB added that the provision on reopener could not bar negotiations on matters that were not specifically covered by it.

The school district was ordered to negotiate on "those employment conditions which are mandatory bargaining subjects under the new law." (Redmond Education Association v. Redmond School District No. 2, Oregon PERB, May 2, 1974.)

WISCONSIN

Supervisory Status Requires More Than Minor Managerial Responsibilities

A position which requires greater expertise than others and involves responsibilities that indicate superior status does not have supervisory status unless the position involves more than routine and minor managerial responsibilities. Therefore, WERC ruled that the positions of assistant athletic director and directors of guidance should not be excluded from the Menomonee Falls Education Association bargaining unit of certified teaching personnel. In the case of the guidance directors, minor roles in the screening of job applicants and other routine judgments were not considered sufficient criteria for supervisory status. (Menomonee Falls Public Schools Joint School District No. 1, WERC, March 4, 1974.)

NEGOTIATION NOTES

COLORADO

Board of Regents May Bargain with University Faculty

Recently the Colorado Division of Labor ruled that the Board of Regents of the University of Colorado may negotiate a collective bargaining agreement with the faculty.

After extensive hearings on this issue, the Labor Division held that the faculty members were in a position similar to that of public-school teachers, and that the regents' obligation in operating the University was similar to that of a school board. Like public-school teachers, the faculty members of the University of Colorado may decide whether they want collective bargaining and who the bargaining agent will be.

The overriding issue is that the introduction of binding negotiations will rest on the governing board of the University. The University faculty members have already voted in favor of collective bargaining, but as yet have chosen no bargaining agent.

KENTUCKY

Attorney General's Opinion

Broadly interpreting Kentucky school laws which define the powers and duties of a school board in effective management, the state attorney general decreed that the validity and duration of a negotiated contract between a local association and a board of education were subject to the whim and pleasure of the board.

According to law, a school board may not bind itself or future boards to any contract which inhibits it from effectively managing its day-to-day operations, including setting up qualifications for and employment of teachers. The law further states that a vote of three members of the school board is sufficient to repeal any rules, regulations, or bylaws which impede the board in the discharge of its management functions.

The state association is currently contemplating litigation to challenge this position which enables school boards at any time to unilaterally void a negotiated agreement with a local education association. The state association points out that this interpretation is off base since school boards may enter into some contracts for services which include arbitration clauses establishing third-party resolution of disputes. The state attorney general is of the opinion that a school board may enter into some contracts.

MONTANA

Public Employee Bargaining Law Enacted

"To promote public business by removing certain recognized sources of strife and unrest," Montana enacted a public employee bargaining law. The law covers persons employed by a public employer except elected officials, persons directly appointed by the governor, supervisory employees and management officials, members of any state board or commission, school district clerks and school administrators, paraprofessional instructors, registered professional nurses, professional engineers and engineers in training, and any person whose work has ceased as a consequence of an unfair labor practice or concerted employee action. An amendment, effective July 1, 1974, gave professional instructors and teachers coverage under the law.

Certification as an exclusive bargaining representative will only be granted to or continued by an organization which guarantees democratic organization and procedures, elections conducted pursuant to adequate standards and safeguards, controls for the regulation of officers and agents having fiduciary responsibility, maintenance of sound accounting, and fiscal controls, including annual audits.

No employee who for religious reasons is not permitted to join or financially support a labor organization will be required to do so. However, in lieu of payment of union assessments, an equivalent sum may be paid to a nonreligious, nonunion charity designated by the labor organization. The employee must submit proof of payment to the labor organization. Failure to make payments or furnish proof will subject the employee to the same sanctions as would nonpayment of dues, initiation fees, or assessments.

A determination as to whether an employee is qualified to avail himself of the right of non-association with a labor organization will be initiated by a letter from the employee to the chairman of the board of personnel appeals. The chairman will then appoint a committee consisting of a clergyman not connected with the sect in question, a labor union official not directly connected with the labor organization in question, and a member of the public at large, who will be the chairman. This committee will, after receiving written or oral presentation from all interested parties, make its determination.

Unfair labor practices include refusal by either party to bargain in good faith; domination, interference, or assistance in the formation or administration of a labor organization on the part of employers; and the use of agency shop fees for contributions to political candidates or parties at state or local levels by labor organizations.

Whenever a party complains to the board, alleging violation of the Act, the Board will hold a hearing. If the party charged is found guilty of an unfair labor practice, the Board may order the party to cease and desist from the practice and may require the party to make reports from time to time showing the extent of compliance with the order. Should the party not comply with the Board's order, the Board or the complaining party may petition the district court for appropriate temporary relief or a restraining order. The court, after a hearing on the matter, may grant relief as requested by the Board or may set aside the order of the Board in whole or in part. The Board will direct an election by secret ballot to determine representation if it receives a petition from an employee, a group of employees, or a labor organization alleging to be acting in behalf of at least 30 percent of the employees; or the employer alleging that one or more labor organizations has presented to it a claim to be recognized as the exclusive representative.

The public employer will be represented in negotiations by the chief executive officer of the state or political subdivision, or the chairman of the county commissioners or the commissioner of higher education or his designated representative.

The parties may request mediation after a reasonable period of contract negotiation or upon expiration of an agreement if a dispute concerning the collective bargaining agreement exists between the parties. Fact-finding may be initiated by the parties upon expiration of an agreement or 30 days following certification of an exclusive representative if a dispute exists. If the parties fail to request fact-finding in these instances, the Board may initiate fact-finding. The parties may, however, submit any or all the issues to final and binding arbitration, in which case arbitration will supersede the fact-finding procedures.

WEST VIRGINIA

"Second Class" Status of Public Employees Affirmed

Affirming a 1966 attorney general's opinion, a current ruling ranks public employees, particularly teachers, as second-class citizens with no rights to determine their working standards and conditions. The ruling reiterates the notion of employer paternalism since the final determination of wages, hours, working conditions, and the like rests with the particular governmental unit and cannot be delegated away.

However, modern trends in public employee labor relations are evident in that school employees may "join any association or labor organization of their own choosing, with the knowledge that they cannot be discriminated against because of such membership."

Other sections of the ruling allow school boards to recognize and negotiate with unions or representatives of teachers and other employees, but any such agreements arising out of these negotiations may not be collective bargaining agreements carrying the right to strike or binding arbitration. These "agreements" are valid contracts only if they establish, create, and define the "limitation or extent to which they [employer] may agree with their employe."

The attorney general placed only one limitation on such contracts, that being "the general law applicable to the possibility of financial or statutory changes that may occur during the life of the written document which may make some or all of its terms inoperative."

FEDERAL

National Labor Relations Act Extended To Include Nonprofit Hospitals

Coverage of the National Labor Relations Act has been extended to nonprofit hospitals, convalescent hospitals, health maintenance organizations, health clinics, nursing homes, extended care facilities, and other institutions devoted to the care of sick, infirm, or aged persons.

The amendment requires any party seeking to modify or terminate a bargaining agreement to serve written notice of intent at least 90 days in advance to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS). However, if bargaining is for an initial agreement, the FMCS must be given 30 days' notice of an existing dispute. Upon receipt of these notices, the FMCS will attempt to reach an agreement through mediation and conciliation in meetings in which both parties are required to participate.

Should the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service determine that a threatened or actual strike or lockout would substantially interrupt the delivery of health care in the locality, he may, within 30 days after receiving the 60-day notice of contract termination or modification, appoint a board of inquiry to investigate the issues involved. This board must make a written report containing findings of fact and submit recommendations for settling the dispute to the parties within 15 days.

Before engaging in any strike, picketing, or other concerted refusal to work, the labor organization must give both the employer and the FMCS at least 10 days' notice. The date and time that such action will begin must be included in the notice.

Employees who for religious reasons are not permitted to join or financially support a labor organization will not be required to do so as a condition of employment. But, such an employee may be required to pay in lieu of dues, an amount equal to union assessments to a nonreligious charitable fund exempt from taxation and designated by the agreement or one of his own choosing.

* * *

THE CONSUMER PRICE INDEX–SEPTEMBER 1974

The Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in September to 151.9 (1967 = 100.0), the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor reported. The rise was due to higher prices for a wide range of consumer goods and services, notably meats, apparel commodities, and mortgage interest costs. Prices declined for a few items, particularly fresh fruits and vegetables and gasoline. The September CPI was 12.1 percent higher than a year ago.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the rise in the September CPI of 1.2 percent was about the same as in August. The food index rose more in September than in August after seasonal adjustment–1.9 percent compared with 1.4 percent, while the index for nonfood commodities increased less–1.0 percent in September compared with 1.5 percent in August. The services index rose 1.1 percent in September, the same as in the preceding month.

For the calendar quarter ended in September, the CPI increased at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of 14.2 percent. This was up from the 10.9 percent annual rate in the second quarter and the same as the first quarter's pace. Food prices, which rose at a 3.1 percent annual rate in the second quarter, increased at a 12.3 percent annual rate in the third quarter as prices of meats, poultry, and eggs rose following declines in the second quarter. The nonfood commodities index rose at an annual rate of 16.5 percent in the 3 months ended in September, marking the third consecutive quarter in which the increase has been at about this rate. Although gasoline prices declined and price rises for fuel oil and used cars moderated, prices for a wide range of other nonfood commodities increased at a faster pace in the third quarter than in the second. The services index rose at a 13.9 percent annual rate in the calendar quarter ended in September, continuing an acceleration evident since the beginning of the year.

Monthly changes in detail (not seasonally adjusted)

The index of food purchased in grocery stores–which usually declines in September–rose 1.5 percent. With the exception of fresh fruits and vegetables, all major categories of food purchased in grocery stores increased. Beef and pork prices rose instead of declining and poultry prices, which are usually unchanged in September, also rose. Prices of dairy products increased for the first time in 4 months. Prices of fats and oil products rose sharply. Prices continued to increase for other food items such as eggs, cereal and bakery products, processed fruits and vegetables, and sugar and sweets. Fresh fruit and vegetable prices showed their usual large seasonal decline. The index for food away from home–restaurant meals and snacks–rose 0.7 percent.

The index for nonfood commodities rose 1.1 percent. About a fourth of the increase was due to higher prices for apparel commodities. In addition, there were large increases in prices of houses, housefurnishings, housekeeping supplies, toilet goods, reading materials, and alcoholic beverages. New car prices increased slightly instead of declining substantially as they usually do at the end of the model year. Prices for used cars and fuel oil continued to rise but the increases were smaller than in recent months. Gasoline prices declined for the second consecutive month.

The services index rose 1.1 percent in September. Over a fourth of this increase was due to a rise in mortgage interest costs which reflected earlier increases in interest rates on conventionally financed loans as well as the previously announced rate increase for VA-guaranteed loans (from 9.0 to 9.5). Charges for other household services such as home maintenance and housekeeping services and utilities–gas, electricity, and telephone– also rose. The index for medical care services rose 1.0 percent in September, compared with an average monthly increase of 1.5 percent from April to August. Charges for auto repairs and other services such as dry cleaning, shoe repairs, and barber and beauty shop services continued to rise. College tuition, which is priced for the CPI in September of each year, also rose.

Reprinted from: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Consumer Price Index–September 1974, News Release, October 22, 1974.

STATISTICS

Consumer Price Index: August 1973-August 1974 and 10-Year Averages

Another contractual school year of rampant inflation was evident according to data supplied by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. With the reporting of the Consumer Price Index for August 1974 reaching 150.2, a 1.3 percent rise over the previous month, the CPI is 11.2 percent higher than in August 1973. Although prices for gasoline and fresh vegetables declined, the August 1974 index was pushed upward by increased prices for apparel, especially for women and girls, household services, medical care, used cars, and food, especially meats. One year ago, the August CPI set a new record, besting a 26-year mark, with a one-month increase of 1.9 percent.

The CPI for August 1974 registered a 1.3 percent increase after seasonal adjustments, the highest price rise in 12 months. While a decline in food prices helped to hold the July increase to 0.8 percent, the high August figure was

TABLE 1.—CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, ALL ITEMS, SELECTED CITIES OR SMSA'S, 1964 TO 1973 (1967=100)

SMSA/city	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972	1973
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
U.S. City average[a]	92.9[b]	94.5	97.2	100.0	104.2	109.8	116.3	121.3	125.3	133.1
Atlanta, Ga.[c]	92.8	94.0	97.0	100.0	104.0	110.2	116.3	121.7	125.5	133.7
Baltimore, Md.[c]	92.9	94.4	97.7	100.0	104.1	110.5	117.0	123.4	126.3	134.9
Boston, Mass.[c]	92.7	94.5	97.7	100.0	104.1	110.0	116.5	122.8	127.1	134.7
Buffalo, N.Y.[c]	92.0	94.2	97.4	100.0	104.5	109.6	116.1	121.8	126.6	134.8
Chicago, Ill.-Northwestern Ind.	93.4	94.7	97.4	100.0	104.3	109.9	116.3	120.8	124.3	132.0
Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.[c]	93.7	94.4	97.2	100.0	104.8	109.8	115.7	120.7	124.7	132.1
Cleveland, Ohio[c]	93.2	94.7	97.2	100.0	105.9	111.9	119.3	122.8	126.5	134.1
Dallas, Texas[c]	92.6	93.8	97.1	100.0	104.5	111.3	117.8	121.3	124.9	132.0
Detroit, Mich.	90.5	92.6	96.7	100.0	104.3	110.6	117.4	121.7	126.2	134.5
Honolulu, Hawaii[c]	92.9	94.6	97.3	100.0	103.8	108.5	114.2	118.9	122.8	128.3
Houston, Texas[c]	93.7	94.8	97.5	100.0	104.3	111.0	116.8	120.9	125.2	132.3
Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.[c]	92.5	95.5	98.0	100.0	104.0	109.6	115.8	120.5	124.0	130.3
Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.	93.7	95.7	97.5	100.0	103.9	108.8	114.3	118.5	122.3	129.2
Milwaukee, Wis.[c]	93.9	95.8	98.0	100.0	103.5	109.5	115.8	120.1	123.7	131.5
Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.[c]	93.2	94.5	96.8	100.0	104.6	109.9	117.5	121.7	125.5	133.0
New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.	92.8	94.3	97.5	100.0	104.3	110.8	119.0	125.9	131.4	139.7
Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.	93.2	94.7	97.3	100.0	104.8	110.4	117.8	123.5	127.0	135.5
Pittsburgh, Pa.[c]	94.3	95.8	98.3	100.0	104.7	110.4	116.4	121.5	125.3	132.9
St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.[c]	92.6	94.1	97.2	100.0	104.0	109.2	115.2	119.6	122.3	129.3
San Diego, Calif.[c]	(NA)	95.2	97.1	100.0	104.1	109.5	115.3	119.9	124.4	132.5
San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.[c]	92.9	94.7	97.1	100.0	104.5	110.2	115.8	120.2	124.3	131.5
Seattle, Wash.[c]	93.4	94.5	97.1	100.0	104.1	109.2	114.0	116.4	119.7	127.5
Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.[c]	92.8	94.1	97.3	100.0	104.7	111.2	117.6	122.7	126.9	135.0

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers, All Items—Series A (1967=100). Washington, D.C.: the Bureau. Various issues.

[a]Based on 50 urban areas for 1965, and 56 metropolitan areas and nonmetropolitan urban places beginning in January 1966. Excludes Portland, Oreg., and Scranton, Pa. For 1965, excludes Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.; Houston, Texas; Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; and San Diego, Calif.

[b]Beginning in 1964, the index structure was revised to reflect the buying patterns of urban wage earners and clerical workers in the 1960's, including single workers living alone as well as families with two or more persons. Indexes for prior years apply only to families of two persons or more.

[c]The Bureau determines a weighted average for the 18 Standard Metropolitan Areas which are on a quarterly CPI cycle. The factor weights used in determining the weighted average are available through the Bureau.

2832

TABLE 2.—CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, ALL ITEMS, SELECTED CITIES OR SMSA'S, 1973-74 BY MONTH (1967 = 100)[a]

SMSA/city	September	October	November	December	January	February	March	April	May	June	July	August
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
U.S. city average	135.5	136.6	137.6	138.5	139.7	141.5	143.1	144.0	145.6	147.1	148.3	150.2
Atlanta, Ga.	137.0	...	...	138.9	...	...	144.1	...	...	147.5	...	...
Baltimore, Md.	137.5	...	...	140.7	...	...	147.3	...	...	151.7	...	...
Boston, Mass.	...	138.7	...	...	142.0	...	...	145.3	...	...	149.9	...
Buffalo, N.Y.	...	...	138.6	...	...	144.2	...	...	147.7	...	...	151.8
Chicago, Ill.-Northwestern Ind.	134.6	135.7	136.1	136.8	138.7	140.6	142.1	143.0	144.1	145.9	146.5	48.3
Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.	134.4	...	...	136.6	...	...	141.3	...	...	146.1	...	...
Cleveland, Ohio	...	...	137.5	...	...	142.1	...	...	146.2	...	...	150.1
Dallas, Texas	...	...	135.6	...	...	139.6	...	...	143.3	...	...	147.9
Detroit, Mich.	137.3	137.9	139.0	140.0	141.5	143.8	144.9	145.5	146.6	148.7	149.8	151.3
Honolulu, Hawaii	129.6	...	...	132.8	...	...	137.7	...	...	141.4	...	...
Houston, Texas	...	136.2	...	...	139.1	...	...	143.1	...	...	148.2	...
Kansas City, Mo.-Kansas	132.5	...	...	134.4	...	...	138.6	...	...	143.6	...	...
Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.	131.2	132.3	133.6	134.1	135.2	136.2	137.6	139.2	140.6	141.8	143.3	145.4
Milwaukee, Wis.	...	...	135.7	...	...	139.0	...	...	142.1	...	...	145.9
Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.	...	136.3	...	...	140.3	...	...	145.2	...	...	149.0	...
New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.	142.3	143.1	144.4	145.9	146.8	149.0	150.8	150.9	152.5	153.8	154.6	157.0
Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.	138.1	139.4	140.5	141.3	142.8	144.9	147.0	148.2	149.5	151.1	152.1	153.8
Pittsburgh, Pa.	...	136.6	...	...	139.3	...	...	144.2	...	...	148.6	...
St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.	132.3	...	...	133.8	...	...	138.2	...	...	141.4	...	...
San Diego, Calif.	...	...	136.5	...	...	140.2	...	...	143.3	...	...	150.3
San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.	134.5	...	...	135.2	...	...	139.2	...	...	144.1	...	...
Seattle, Wash.	...	...	131.4	...	...	135.8	...	...	139.5	...	...	143.2
Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.	...	...	139.4	...	...	144.0	...	...	147.7	...	...	152.9

SOURCE: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. Consumer Price Index. News Release, September 1973 through August 1974.

[a]Foods, fuels, and several other items are priced every month in all cities. Most other goods and services are priced according to the following schedule:

1. Every month-city average: Chicago, Ill.-Northwestern Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.; New York, N.Y.-Northeastern N.J.; and Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.
2. January, April, July, October: Boston, Mass.; Houston, Texas; Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; and Pittsburgh, Pa.
3. February, May, August, November: Buffao, N.Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Milwaukee, Wis.; San Diego, Calif.; Seattle, Wash.; and Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.
4. March, June, September, December: Atlanta, Ga.; Baltimore, Md.; Cincinnati, Ohio-Ky.; Honolulu, Hawaii; Kansas City, Mo.-Kans.; St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.; and San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.

paced by seasonally adjusted increases of 1.4 percent for food and 1.5 percent for commodities other than food. The unadjusted services index increase of 1.1 percent continued the 1 percent or better rise for the fourth consecutive month.

While both the index for food purchased for home consumption and the nonfood commodities indexes normally decline in August, unadjusted price increases in these areas boosted the all-items average. Larger than usual price gains were noted for eggs, pork, and beef. The trend of higher prices for cereal and bakery products, sugar, processed fruits and vegetables, and partially prepared foods continued during the month. Declines were evident, however, in prices for fresh vegetables, fish, and dairy products.

Led by the higher apparel prices, the nonfood commodities index at 1.4 surpassed the 1.3 percent rates of each of the three previous months. Nondurables apart from apparel, such as fuel oil and coal, tobacco products, and alcoholic beverages, also continued to rise during the month. Durable commodities like household items and used cars rose at rates comparable to or higher than the over-all index. A separate news release issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics listed a decline of 0.8 percent to 55.4 cents per gallon of regular gasoline from July to August. Premium gasoline dropped 0.6 percent to 59.1 cents per gallon on the average.

Over one-quarter of the 1.1 percent rise in the cost of services was due to higher mortgage interest rates owing to abnormally high interest rates on conventional loans and an increase from 9.25 to 9.50, in rates for FHA-insured loans. Costs of home maintenance and repair as well as utilities and medical care continue to rise.

Table 2 lists the CPI for all items, U.S. average and selected cities or Selected Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) for which the Bureau publishes an index on either a monthly or a quarterly basis, for September 1973 through August 1974. Table 1 lists the annual averages for the U.S. and selected cities or SMSA's from 1964 through 1973.

The 11.2 percent increase over the twelve-month period, August 1974 to August 1974, comprised an 11.4 percent increase in commodities (about 63 percent of all items) and a 10.7 percent rise in the cost of services (the 36.5 percent balance of the items). The commodity record setters in food were cereals and bakery products with a 34.9 percent increase, dairy products with 19.0 percent increase, and food away from home with a 13.7 percent increase. As for nondurable commodities other than food, gasoline and motor oil increased 38.4 percent and fuel oil and coal rose 66.3 percent. The costs for general household services other than rent rose 15.1 percent while medical care costs increased 12.8 percent.

The purchasing power of the dollar, computed as the reciprocal of the August CPI, has declined fully 10 percent or 7.4 cents over the year as compared with the 1967 dollar.

The CPI is designed to measure "average changes in prices of goods and services usually bought by urban wage earners and clerical workers, both families and single persons living alone." Prices of some 400 items representing price movements of all goods and services purchased by wage earners and clerical workers regularly are obtained in urban portions of 39 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) and 17 selected smaller cities.

Price changes used in calculating the CPI are averaged and then weighted according to their importance in spending. In the total index, all SMSA and city data are combined and weighted on the basis of the 1960 populations of SMSA's and the cities they represent. While index numbers were previously computed on the base 1957-59=100, a new base reference point of 1967-100 became effective January 1971. Statistical series expressed as indexes are affected by the change in base, but the rebasing of the CPI does not alter percentage changes between index figures over time, except for rounding differences. The CPI is rounded to one decimal point.

For details see: U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Consumer Price Index—August 1974 and Retail Gasoline Price—August 1974, News Releases, September 20, 1974.

BRIEFS OF AGREEMENTS

COMPTON, CALIFORNIA

Between Compton Education Association and Compton Unified School District, effective December 1973 to 1975. Approximately 1,503 certificated professional employees.
COMPENSATION: (1974-75) B.A., $8,336 to $14,325, 12 increments; B.A. plus 15 hours, $14,909 maximum; B.A. plus 30 hours, $15,494 maximum; M.A., $10,089 to $16,078, 12 increments; M.A. plus 15 hours, $16,661 maximum; M.A. plus 30 hours, $17,245 maximum.
DIFFERENTIALS: Not indicated.
INSURANCE: District will insure Association members against personal liability for death, injury to person, or damage or loss of property; health and life insurance coverage not indicated.
INSTRUCTION: All teachers will have a duty-free lunch period of not less than 30 minutes; a committee that includes Association members will be established to review and recommend appropriate class sizes for various subjects in the secondary schools; all teachers will report to school 30 minutes before the start of classes and remain on duty for a minimum of seven hours; an advisory committee composed of elected faculty members will be established at each school to make recommendations to the principal on matters affecting educational programs.

SCHOOL ACTION CONTROL COMMITTEE

By February 1, 1974, a School Action Control Committee shall be established to develop educational programs which will focus on the control of violence and the retention of students in schools. It is expected that the major thrust of such programs will be at the secondary school level.

The School Action Control Committee (SACC) shall be composed of:

- three teachers selected by the CEC
- three community representatives selected by the CEC
- four students, one selected by the student body governance groups at each high school
- three community representatives selected by the Board of Education
- three district representatives selected by the Board of Education

The SACC shall have the following specific responsibilities:

- develop coordinating and communicating liaison with community groups and agencies that currently service the youth within the CUSD in order to reduce fragmentation of effort and to focus energies in desired directions
- conduct research, as needed, into incidents of violence, truancy, vandalism, absenteeism, drop-out rates, reasons for the occurences of these symptoms of problems
- develop a cohesive, directed program for dealing with the findings of above
- seek with the assistance of other District personnel funding from all sources, public and private, to provide the financial resources necessary for the program
- make recommendations to the Board of Education by June 1, 1974, of programs to be included in the 1974-75 budget.

PERSONNEL: Grievance procedure ends with the board of education;

Materials in personnel files of employees which may serve as a basis for affecting the status of their employment are to be made available for the inspection of the person involved in the presence of an authorized person. Such review shall take place during normal business hours, and the employee shall be released from duty for this purpose without salary reduction.

No derogatory material may be placed in an employee's file until the employee is given notice and an opportunity to review and comment on it; the employee may authorize an Association representative to examine the file and obtain copies of the items within the file; notice of a faculty meeting must be given at least 48 hours in advance except in an emergency; certificated employees from within the district will get first consideration for any vacancy; seniority will be the deciding factor when two or more employees apply for the same position; employees denied a transfer will be given the reasons for denial in writing; upon request the employee will be granted a meeting with the administration to discuss the issue and/or have the right to file a grievance; when an employee is transferred involuntarily, he will receive a letter of notification concerning such transfer; additionally, a conference of the party who initiated the transfer, the area administrator, and the transferee will be arranged to discuss the reason for the transfer; if after conferring with the principal, head teacher, area administrator, and/or assistant superintendent of personnel services, the transferee still does not agree with the transfer, he may file a grievance; all summer school teachers will be selected from the school district with consideration given to the employee's major and/or minor fields of study, experience, and performance as determined by the latest written evaluation; all else being equal, seniority within the district will determine who is selected.

LONG TERM SUBSTITUTES

Long term substitutes are those employed to replace regular certificated employees or temporary employees who are absent for twenty (20) or more consecutive school days. A long term substitute shall be paid according to Class I, Step I of the salary schedule. A daily substitute becomes a long term substitute when he has entered his 21st consecutive day of service in the same assignment. A long term substitute who works for more than 75% of the school year shall be classified as a probationary certificated employee for the next school year and is entitled to all probationary certificated employee rights and responsibilities as long as there as a vacant position pursuant to Education Code Section 13336.5. Such probationary status is not applicable to those who are employed to serve in an on-call status to replace absent regular employees on a day-to-day basis. All long-term substitutes employed shall be notified in writing that there is a possibility that they may be released from their assignment prior to completing 75% requirement above.

Upon request, the district will provide for the defense of any action or proceeding brought against an employee on account of an act or omission in the scope of his employment; if the district refuses to provide counsel and the employee prevails in the proceeding, the employee will be entitled to reimbursement for necessary legal expenses; the district will reimburse an employee up to $100 for personal property damaged in the line of duty.

UNIVERSITY OF DUBUQUE
DUBUQUE, IOWA

Between the Association of Faculty and Theological Education Professionals of the Theological Seminary of the University of Dubuque and the University of Dubuque, effective May 11, 1974. Approximately 305 certificated professional employees.

The Bargaining unit shall consist of all employees of the University of Dubuque who are administratively accountable to the Dean of the Seminary and who fall into one or another of the following categories of employment: (1) full-time faculty, including the associate professor of bibliography; (2) regular part-time faculty; (3) irregular part-time faculty who are employed for two consecutive semesters, or for one semester in each of two consecutive years; (4) full-time non-supervisory professional staff, including the director of admissions and the student affairs, administrator; (5) regular part-time non-supervisory professional staff including the acting director of field education; (6) irregular part-time non-supervisory professional staff who are employed for two consecutive semesters or for one semester in each of two consecutive years.

COMPENSATION: (1974-75—Placement on schedule dependent upon recommendation of the Appointment and Promotion Committee): Staff or instructor, $7,735 to $11,650, 9 increments; assistant professor, $10,345 to $13,825, 8 increments; associate professor, $12,085 to $15,130, 7 increments; professor, $14,695 to $16,870, 5 increments.

INSURANCE: Board pays costs of group medical, life, and disability insurance coverage; employee has choice of pension program at the present percentage rate of the individual's base salary.

ASSOCIATION: Payroll deduction of state, local, and national association dues; released time with pay for association representative to participate in negotiations or grievance proceedings during scheduled working hours; for the term of office, the association president will have a load reduction of one credit hour per semester or its equivalent; for a nonteaching association member, the equivalency is three working hours per week; upon written request and with reasonable notice, the University will make every effort to make available a room appropriate for association meetings; faculty and staff bulletin boards may be used to post notices of association activities and concerns; association may use typewriters, duplicating equipment, calculating machines, and audiovisual equipment if not otherwise in use.

INSTRUCTION: Each faculty member will offer not more than two courses per semester; the academic year extends from three working days prior to the beginning of classes in the fall through the commencement exercises in the spring.

FACULTY RESPONSIBILITIES AND WORKING CONDITIONS

Faculty Rights: The faculty as a body shall have responsibility for:

- The standards for admissions of students.
- The standards for academic performance.
- The initiation of new degree programs, the establishment of requirements for such degrees, and the approval of degree recipients.
- The decisions for initiating and developing curriculum, including courses, and the structuring of courses into new programs.

